China's digital economy reaches 31 trillion yuan

China's digital economy reached 31 trillion yuan (US$4.7 trillion) last year, up 19% year-on-year, or 18.9 percentage points higher than the national GDP growth rate, according to the National Bureau of Statistics (NBS).

The growth rate of the digital economy is notably higher than the national GDP growth, indicating that China's digital economy is growing faster than its traditional economy, according to a media report.

China's digital economy accounted for 38.6% of the country's GDP last year, NBS data shows.

China's digital economy, which covers industries such as e-commerce, cloud computing, 5G, big data, artificial intelligence and Internet of Things, has become an important driver for China's economic growth.

In terms of structure, China's digital economy has shifted from relying on information technology to platform services, such as electronic commerce, logistics and cloud computing.

Yunnan Governor: 'Tour Yunnan with mobile'

Yunnan Governor Han Zheng has urged people to explore Yunnan with mobile phones.

“Tour Yunnan with mobile” is about smart tourism.

The Third Yunnan Fuxian Lake Cherry Blossom Festival is on in Shijia Village on Huanhu Donglu Fuxian Lake from March 30 through April 22. During the festival, 58 cherry blossom varieties with 50,000 cherry shrubs and 100,000 fresh flowers will be in bloom along the banks of the beautiful Fuxian Lake. Some 500 acres of cherry blossoms will form a 2.5 km cherry-blossom belt along the lake, which will entertain citizens and tourists alike with a romantic spring atmosphere.

Living in China is easy: Indian friend

Sthitapragnya Deshpande, an Indian living in China, has been in China for six years. Having been educated and working in China, he is nothing short of privileged. After being sent to China by his company's headquarters, he enjoys his life in China. In his view, the cost of living is not very high and he can earn considerable income here. In his words, "I have found that living in China is really easy."

The public transportation in China is very efficient. So I do not need to spend much time on commuting. He believes that if one can earn enough money, he can choose to live in areas within 20-25 minutes walk distance to the office. That will greatly increase the living efficiency. The sidewalks in China are beautiful, almost the same as in London, but wider and safer. China's parks and squares are clean and well-maintained.

In addition, China's market always has a lot of new and exciting products. I can buy anything I want, from a screen to a car and a bicycle. I like the innovation from China's world manufacturing center, said Sthitapragnya.

Yunnan Governor: ‘Tour Yunnan with mobile’ is about smart tourism

Following the successful conclusion of the first session of the 13th National People's Congress (NPC), Yunnan Provincial People's Congress Committee Chairman Wang Guanzhong answered questions at a press conference on Yunnan's economic and development situation.

Science and Technology Development is a major issue at the press event. According to Wang, to build digital Yunnan is a top priority under the 13th Five-Year Plan. Why does Yunnan choose to build digital Yunnan? What is the impetus behind the move? And what is the new digital Yunnan like? These are all questions asked by the media.

"To build digital Yunnan is a new pattern of development in the context of a new era, and is also a strategic choice to build a new Yunnan with the New Era," said Wang.

He explained in detail what Yunnan's new digital Yunnan is about and what the advantages of digital Yunnan are.

Editorial: The year 2019 marks the 70th anniversary of the founding of the People's Republic of China. Over the past seven decades, China has developed from a poor, weak country to the second-largest economy in the world. This is an excellent achievement.

Since the founding of New China, the country has made great progress in its road construction. By the end of 2017, China's total highway mileage reached 50.75 million km, ranking first in the world. Picture shows the expressway in Lusuping county of Wenshan Prefecture in southeastern Yunnan.

China is more broad-minded in international affairs

On March 21, Foreign Ministry spokesperson Geng Shuang responded to media in a regular press conference in Beijing, saying that China is more broad-minded in international affairs.

As an Indian company is going to spend 3.5 billion dollars on an oil refinery in the United States, the US government wants to mediate the dispute. In March 21, it’s a huge investment for Sri Lanka. The government of Sri Lanka wants to sell the land for Indian business. The land is attractive to India as it is broader and more yellow than the Santhani Land in Colombo.
