Rahul to pick winners of CM race

Aspirants for Raj, Chhattisgarh CM posts rush to high command; overt consensus on Kamal Nath for MP

DEEPAK KUMAR JHA ■ NEW DELHI

It is now Congress chief Rahul Gandhi's call to decide the Chief Ministers for Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan and Chhattisgarh as differences emerged in the legislatures party meetings of all these States where the Congress staked claim to form Governments.

The Chief Ministers would be declared in the Congress Legislatures Party (CLP) meetings in all three States on Thursday morning and thereafter the party leaders would convey the decision to Rahul following which he would take the final call.

Congress sources said the high command may choose former Union Minister Kamal Nath to take over as Chief Minister in MP while Rajasthan strongman Ashok Gehlot may be favoured over Sachin Pilot for the CM post in Rajasthan.

Sources said after the CLP meet both Gehlot and Pilot are likely to be in Delhi on Thursday to meet the party high command to iron out differences.

In MP, Jyotiraditya Scindia is likely to take it easy and propose the name of party heavyweight Nath's candidature for the CM post. Nath has already patched up with another Congress strongman and former Chief Minister Digvijay Singh, who has a strong base in the State. Congress leader Shobha Oza said in Bhopal, "All the MLAs have unanimously decided that a decision on the Chief Minister (of Madhya Pradesh) will be taken by Rahul."

Bhupesh Baghel and TS Singh Deo are locked in keen tussle for the CM's chair in Chhattisgarh. Congress' Lok Sabha member Tamradhwaj Sahu's name also figured in the evening before the party decid-

Making the choice of CM in Rajasthan is going to be tough task for Rahul.

Following the differences, Congress Legislature Party (CLP) meeting in Rajasthan where he passed a single-line resolution authorising the party president to decide the name of the Chief Minister.

While the CM's name was yet to be finalised due to disagreements, Congress delegation met Rajasthan Governor Kalyan Singh to stake claim to form a Government. A Congress MLA said there could be another meeting of the CLP on Thursday morning to resolve the deadlock.

"We have full majority and have staked claim to form a Government. We will take along all non-BJP parties and elected members who are against the BJP and are willing to support us," Pilot said after the CLP meeting in Jaipur.

Asked about the choice of the Chief Minister, Pilot said the party's newly elected MLAs will debate the question, and the party president will take a decision after that.

Rajasthan Congress MLA Vishvendra Singh has expressed disagreement over the process of seeking opinion of party legislators to select the Chief Ministerial candidate in Rajasthan when the party president will decide the face for the coveted post.

Both Pilot and Gehlot, both frontrunners for the post, were present in the meeting. Congress observer KC Venugopal held consultation with the party MLAs and feedback will be shared with the party president and then the announcement of the Chief Minister's name would be made.

8,7K traders under lens for ₹262 crore cyber-tax fraud

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

The Delhi Government has unearthed a cyber-tax fraud worth ₹262 crore committed by over 8,700 traders who were found showing fraudulent tax deposits into 13 banks since 2013, Delhi Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia said on Wednesday.

Sisodia, who also holds the Finance portfolio, said the Trade and Taxes Department has registered a complaint with the Delhi Police's Economic Office Wing (EOW) for registration of FIRs into the matter.

According to Delhi Police spokesperson Anil Mittal, "Reena Toppo, VAT officer Delhi, has given a complaint against some business firms which had claimed input tax credit under GST on the basis of fictitious documents and non-existent bank accounts."

Preliminary amount involved is ₹9.97 crore. Complaint is being examined at EOW, said Mittal

"Delhi Govt tax authorities have unearthed a big cyber-tax fraud. More than 8,000 registered dealers have been found showing fraudulent tax deposits into 13 banks. The matter has been handed over to EOW, Delhi Police. The AAP Government believes in zero tolerance to any corrupt practices," Sisodia tweeted.

Earlier in the day, the Deputy Chief Minister said during the scrutiny of suspected fraud transactions, it was noticed that such kind of fraud had been continuing since 2013 and it was going on until it was detected by the department.

"The Government has detected cyber-tax fraud of ₹262 crore. As per our initial investigation, around 8,700 traders are involved in the fraud. It is a very serious issue that should be investigated thoroughly," he said.

"The authorities were on high alert for three months following some hints received by the department during verification of the credit of the payments made by the dealers registered with the department," he said.

BJP ousted from Rajasthan by just over 1.7 lakh votes

IAN S ■ JAIPUR

A total of 1,39,35,201 votes went into the Congress kitty in Rajasthan while the BJP received 1,37,57,502 votes — a marginal difference of over 1.70 lakh votes that ended five years of the BJP rule.

The Congress got 39.3 per cent of the vote spread over 199 Assembly constituencies and the BJP 38.8 per cent vote. The narrow difference led to the ouster of Vasundhara Raje and her Government.

NOTA (None of the Above) accounted for 4,67,781 lakh votes, or 1.3 per cent of the vote, Rajasthan Chief Electoral Officer Anand Kumar said on Wednesday.

Independents got 9.5 per cent vote (33,72,206) and the the Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) 4 per cent (14,10,995 votes).

Overall, 74.69 per cent voting was recorded in Rajasthan on December 7. The statistics show independents and BSP played spoilsport for both Congress and the BJP.

BSP, SP change tack, offer support to Cong in Rajasthan, MP

VIRENDRA NATH BHATT ■ LUCKNOW

After taking on the Congress in the just-concluded Assembly polls, the BSP and the Samajwadi Party have offered to support the grand old party in the Government formation in Madhya Pradesh and Rajasthan. The gesture is seen as a major development towards stitching a mahagathbandhan in Uttar Pradesh against the BJP.

Nearly three decades after the emergence of caste-based identity politics in Uttar Pradesh and the gradual rise of the SP and the BSP that led to the decimation of the Congress in UP, the success of the Congress in the three States of the Congress in the hinterland threatens to unsettle the poll arithmetic of both regional parties in UP.

Before the Assembly polls in MP, Rajasthan and Chhattisgarh, both parties had claimed they are not interested in accommodating the Congress in the grand alliance in UP for the 2019 Lok Sabha polls. Besides the SP and the BSP, the Rashtriya Lok Dal, the Nishad Party and the Peace Party are the other constituents of the alliance.

The SP had offered only two seats — Amethi and Rae Bareilly — to the Congress. Both regional parties had adopted strident postures against the Congress.

Industrial growth 11 months high, inflation slumps to 17-month low

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

India's industrial output grew at an 11-month high of 8.1 per cent in October mainly on the back of mining, power and manufacturing sectors coupled with higher offtake of capital as well as consumer durable goods. At the same time, retail inflation plunged to a 17-month low in November at 2.33 per cent, mainly on account of decline in prices of kitchen essentials like vegetables, eggs and pulses.

Industrial production measured in terms of Index of Industrial Production (IIP) grew 1.8 per cent in October last year, as per official data released by the CSO.

The previous high IIP growth rate was recorded in November last year at 8.5 per cent. During the April-October period, industrial output grew 5.6 per cent as compared to 2.5 per cent in the same period of the previous fiscal.

Dalits, tribals drift apart from BJP for Cong

RAJESH KUMAR ■ NEW DELHI

The BJP has lost its hold on the Assembly seats reserved for Scheduled Castes (SCs) /Scheduled Tribes (STs) in Chhattisgarh, Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh. The Assembly results indicate that SC/ST and Dalit vote swung in favour of the Congress. As per Election Commission (EC) data, across Chhattisgarh, MP and Rajasthan, the BJP lost 71 of 137 reserved seats won by it in 2013. There are 166 seats reserved for SCs/STs in these three States.

In Chhattisgarh, MP and Rajasthan, where 43 per cent, 36 per cent, and 30 per cent seats are respectively reserved for SCs and STs, except for Rajasthan, the BJP recorded its worst performance in a decade, while the Congress recorded its best.

In Rajasthan, 59 of 200 Assembly seats are reserved for SCs/STs. Of them, 34 seats are reserved for the SCs and 25 for the STs. The Congress won 31 of these seats and the BJP's tally came down to 21 from 50 in 2013.

The ruling BJP paid for engaging people from the SCs/STs for the April 2 protests against perceived dilution of the SCs/STs Act. A new tribal party Bahujan Tribal Party (BTP) won two seats in Durgapur district. According to the 2011 census, SCs constitute 17.8 per cent and STs 13.5 per cent of the population in the State. Of 25 seats reserved for Adivasis, the BJP won 12 constituencies, while the Congress won 11.

The SCs are spread across seven divisions, especially northern and eastern parts in the State. The Congress won 7 out of 8 seats in Jhunjhunu, Sikar, Alwar, Jaipur and Dausa districts. On the other hand, the STs are concentrated in Udaipur, Durgapur, Banswara, Pratappgarh, Rajasamand and Chittorgarh districts that form the Mewar region. Both the Congress and the BJP focussed on the tribal heartland.

Chief Minister Vasundhara Raje launched her campaign from Charbhuj temple of Udaipur, while the Congress president held Sankalp rally in Sagwaraod Durgapur.

In Chhattisgarh, 10 seats are reserved for SCs and 15 for STs (Adivasi). Besides, there are 14 seats where ST voters are deciding factors. The BJP's popularity in 29 tribal-dominated constituencies further dwindled from 2013 level. The tribals in the State have voted against the BJP this time around. Seats for SCs/STs together account for 43 per cent of the State Assembly's 90 seats.

The Congress won six seats while the BJP managed to retain only two of the 10 constituencies reserved for SCs. The BSP also won two seats. The party won 9 out of 10 in the 2013 against the 5 it won in 2008.

As per results, the Congress won 18 seats, equalling the number it had won in 2013.

The Ajit Jogi-Mayawati alliance, which was eyeing 13 seats to play the kingmakers role, fell short of its target. Issues related to non-timber forest produce (NTFP) and their relation to women also seem to have played a role, according to experts.

What Google furnished to inquisitive Indians in 2018

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

As it does every year for the past decade, American tech giant Google released the most popular searches for 2018 for both the world and India. And the top search string for 2018 for India was for the "World Cup 2018", a sign of just how popular football is becoming in this country.

And it is not as if cricket has lost its allure in India, as "IPL 2018" was the third-most popular search stream, with "Live score" which could be peculiar to cricket and other sports being the second-most searched term. But politics, predictably took the fourth spot with "Karnataka elections". The football world cup topped the searches for news items, and predictably sporting events in the Winter Olympics surprisingly came in as the fifth-most popular item despite India barely registering a presence at the snowy games held in South Korea earlier this year. What is interesting is that these results are more democratic since they consider the entire country and not just a few cities; many Indians were curious in the "What is" section about the controversial Section 377 that barred homosexuality.

The Google search history records also give some fascinating insights into what Indians are trying to do. Even though the Supreme Court upheld the right to privacy and limited the scope of the Unique Identity document Aadhaar, the second-most popular how-to item searched by Indians was "How to link mobile number to Aadhaar". Of course, the most popular item searched had to do with social media and people wanted to know "how to send stickers on WhatsApp". The most popular movie this year, at least when it came to searches online, was the recently released Rajnikanth-starrer "Robot 2.0" and no matter if many in the entertainment industry do not think of Tiger Shroff as a top star as yet, "Baaghi 2" was the top Bollywood movie searched this year. Irrespective of movie's failure the success of its songs, "Dilbar Dilbar" was the most popular song searched for this year.

And the famous Malayalee "wink girl" Priya Prakash Varrier was the top-most searched personality, closely followed by the new Mr Priyanka Chopra, Nick Jonas.

Across the world too, the World Cup dominated searches highlighting just how important the quadrennial event is to the globe. But the second-most popular search item was as a result of a tragic death of Swedish electronic musician Avicii. The British Royal wedding and Meghan Markle also filtered to the top of the search pile showcasing how the world is still fascinated by the British Royal family. And even though Stan Lee passed away recently, the creator of so many superheroes for the Marvel empire must be laughing as four of the top movie searches this year were for Marvel movies with the list topped by "Black Panther".

Sidhu reaches out to Amarinder; resolves differences

MONIKA MALIK ■ CHANDIGARH

If Pakistan was yet another cause of discord between Punjab Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh and his Minister Navjot Singh Sidhu, the cricketer-turned-politician, on Wednesday made attempts to iron out differences by bringing a gift for the Chief Minister from across the border.

But the gift, a "stuffed" Patridge, apparently did not work as Amarinder did not accept it citing the necessity of permission from the wildlife department first.

After controversies over Sidhu's "captain" remark and his Pakistan visit, the two senior Congress leaders held a "cordial" meeting for about half-an-hour "to discuss the matters of mutual interest".

Downplaying the "differences" between him and his Chief Minister, Sidhu said there were "many things we talked about which I cannot share with you all".

Regarding his "captain" remarks, Sidhu said his statement had been "blown out of proportion".

He said everything from his Pakistan visit for Kartarpur ground-breaking ceremony and subsequent remark about Amarinder was "unnecessarily raked up...A mountain was made out of a mole hill. I have nothing more to say".

Sidhu had stirred the hornet's nest during an interaction with the media in Hyderabad while he was campaigning for the party when asked about going to Pakistan to attend the groundbreaking ceremony for the Kartarpur corridor despite Chief Minister's disapproval.

"Rahul Gandhi is my captain. It is he who sent me to Pakistan. Rahul Gandhi is the captain of the captain (Amarinder Singh) also," he had said. A day after, at least five Punjab Ministers lashed out at Sidhu asking him to resign from the State Cabinet on moral grounds.

Earlier, Sidhu had chosen to go to Pakistan, at the invitation of Pakistan Prime Minister and former fellow cricketer Imran Khan, while Punjab CM had declined the invite saying that the Pakistan Army was killing Indian soldiers and conspiring to revive terrorism in Punjab.

Sidhu, after his meeting, said, "I am a disciplined soldier of the party...and I have got a lot of love and affection from the Congress president and Amarinder Singh."

Reliable sources informed The Pioneer that the party high command has asked Sidhu, who was in the national Capital a day before, to cautiously use his words, especially for his Chief Minister, and iron out his differences with him.

In the wake of Congress' winning performance in the recently concluded Assembly elections of five States, result for which was announced on Tuesday, party high command wanted Sidhu to mend fences with Amarinder, if any. For, it is believed that Sidhu is set to get a larger role in 2019 Lok Sabha polls considering his performance as party's star campaigner in these elections.

Chief Minister had already described Sidhu as a "likeable person", while clarifying that they were not at loggerheads as reported by the media. "I have absolutely no problems with Sidhu while running the Government. Sidhu always spoke in a forthright manner and his only problem is that sometimes he shoots before he thinks," he had stated.

On "captain" remark, Capt Amarinder had rebuffed it saying that it was hardly any issue to be raised "as Sidhu had always treated me as a fatherly figure". Reaching Chandigarh from New Delhi in the afternoon, Sidhu headed straight to meet Capt Amarinder at his official residence where the latter is recuperating after illness.

Official spokesperson said Sidhu enquired after the health of the Chief Minister and wished him speedy recovery.

Punjab CM lashes at Parkash Badal

Amarinder Singh said it was not him but the Akali veteran who was trying to sabotage interests of Sikh community, and Punjab, with his 'injudicious' statement

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Lashing out at the former Chief Minister Parkash Singh Badal over his "atrocious" accusations, Punjab Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh on Wednesday said it was not him but the Akali veteran who was trying to sabotage the interests of the Sikh community, and Punjab, with his "injudicious" statement.

Reacting to Badal's allegation that Amarinder was trying to sabotage the Kartarpur Corridor, Chief Minister said that Akali leader's statement was in line with his approach of exploiting religious issues to further his political interests.

"The former Chief Minister is once again trying to mislead the people of Punjab with his baseless allegations. It is the Congress leadership, from Indira Gandhi to Dr Manmohan Singh, that had always striven for the opening of the Kartarpur corridor, and I myself have been raising the issue with Pakistan as well as the Central Government on various occasions," the Chief Minister pointed out.

As a Sikh, he himself had always aspired for the opening of the historic corridor with the Kartarpur Sahib Gurdwara, with which his own family had historic ties, Amarinder said, adding "it is idiotic, in the circumstances, to suggest that I could try to block the corridor and sabotage the fulfilment of the aspirations of the Sikh community".

"In fact, I am proud of the fact that the Punjab Government, under my command, had worked closely with the Central Government on the opening of the Kartarpur corridor," he added.

He said the Punjab Government had worked closely with the Centre in successfully overcoming many and strong security concerns and infrastructural challenges in opening up the India-Pakistan border in the face of huge dangers posed by the Pakistani State and its agencies, said the Chief Minister.

The Punjab Government was able to assure and convince the Central Government that the security concerns and challenges could be met with the required checks and balances, which could be built into the system and security regime, he added.

"By choosing to close his eyes to the harsh and sad reality of the Pakistan threat, Badal Senior has once again shown he is least concerned about the people's welfare and is only bothered about the political gains he could make from the opening of the Corridor, which his party had been trying to take undue credit for," the CM added.

While it was a dream for him to visit the Kartarpur Sahib Gurdwara, he could not turn a blind eye to the terror being perpetrated in his land by the ISI-backed forces, nor could he ignore the killings of innocent soldiers by the Pakistani Army, said the Chief Minister, adding Badal, as a veteran leader and former chief minister of Punjab, should be able to appreciate the many perils and dangers posed by Pakistan to the border State of Punjab and the Indian State.

Punjab Assembly Winter Session from today

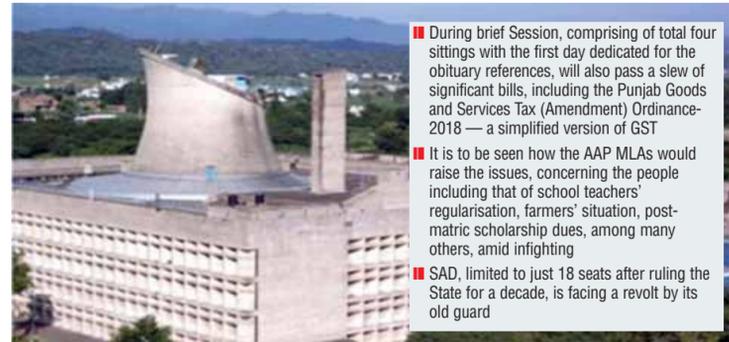

MONIKA MALIK ■ CHANDIGARH

Punjab Vidhan Sabha's three-day Winter Session, beginning from Thursday, is expected to be a cakewalk for the ruling Congress as the already minuscule-Opposition — comprising Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) and Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD) — is going through its worst ever political crisis.

While AAP has suspended two of its prominent MLAs — Sukhpal Singh Khaira and Kanwar Sandhu — having support of six other party legislators out of total 20, SAD leadership is facing protest by its taksali (traditional Akali) leaders who have been blaming the party for 2015 sacrilege cases and related firing incidents.

During the brief Session, comprising of total four sittings with the first day dedicated for the obituary references, will also pass a slew of significant bills, including the Punjab Goods and Services Tax (Amendment) Ordinance-2018 — a simplified version of GST.

During the previous Assembly Session, AAP was a divided house but Dakha MLA HS Phoolka played the role of

But, the division is now amply clear with Khaira and Sandhu suspended for anti-party activities. Moreover, Phoolka has also put in his papers member of Legislative Assembly — which is yet to be accepted by the Speaker, and had already made it clear that he would not attend the session.

It is to be seen how the AAP MLAs would raise the issues, concerning the people including that of school teachers' regularisation, farmers' situation, post-matric scholarship dues, among many others, amid infighting.

SAD, limited to just 18 seats after ruling the State for a decade, is facing a revolt by its old guard, including party veterans — sitting MP Ranjit Singh Brahmputra, former MP Rattan Singh Ajnala and former Minister Sewa Singh Sekhwan — who had announced to float a "new Akali Dal".

The trio, along with their sons, had been expelled from SAD's primary membership recently, after they questioned the functioning of Sukhbir prayers at the Akal Takht — Sikh's supreme temporal body — to seek atonement for the "mistakes" it committed "inadvertently" in the past, without disclosing its details.

A resolution thanking the State, Centre and the Pakistan Government for opening of the Kartarpur Sahib Corridor, is also expected to come up, and is likely to witness a heated debate over the credit war between SAD-BJP and the Congress.

Besides, the Cabinet has given its nod to enhance the parole for state prisoners by approving to amend Section 3 Sub Section 2 of the Punjab Good Conduct Prisoners (Temporary Release) Act, 1962, and a Bill regarding the same would be tabled in the House.

The Bill proposed to increase the regular parole given to the prisoners with good conduct from the existing three weeks to four weeks, and a total parole from 12 weeks to 16 weeks during a calendar year.

The Assembly is also likely to pass the Punjab Water Resources (Management and Regulation) Bill that seeks to regulate the misuse of groundwater.

General JJ Singh resigns from SAD

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Amid the political turmoil SAD is facing, its prominent leader and former Army Chief General JJ Singh (retired) on Wednesday resigned from the party citing personal reasons. General JJ Singh, also the president of the SAD ex-servicemen wing, had written to the SAD president Sukhbir Badal to inform him about the decision.

"I wish to inform you with a heavy heart that I have resigned from the Shiromani Akali Dal and from the position of president of Shiromani Akali Dal ex-servicemen wing with immediate effect due to personal reasons," he stated in his letter.

General JJ Singh, a former Governor of Arunachal Pradesh, had joined the Akali Dal on the eve 2017 Punjab elections and had unsuccessfully contested against the Congress veteran Capt

Amarinder Singh, now Punjab Chief Minister, from his bastion Patiala.

Former Army chief's entry to SAD was his first political stint. Even as General JJ Singh has not come out in open to talk about his decision and his future course of action, it has been learnt that he was unhappy with the functioning of the party, and inaccessibility of its leadership.

Sources in formed that General JJ Singh was not happy with the way things were taking shape in the Akali Dal.

"Being an Army man, he was doing his bit to contribute in the party. He was the head of ex-servicemen wing and he wanted to expend its base down to the grassroots level. But, it seems thing could not work out," said a senior SAD leader.

General JJ Singh has been keeping his cards close to his chest regarding his future in politics.

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

To preserve Punjab's depleting ground water level, the State Water Resources Minister Sukhbinder Singh Sarkaria on Wednesday urged the International Commission on Irrigation and Drainage (ICID) to share technical expertise to augment State's efforts in this direction.

Highlighting various steps being taken towards promoting crop diversification, Sarkaria asked ICID president Felix Britz Reinders, who called upon him, to complement the State efforts to save this precious resource.

Underlining the importance of diversification of crop pattern, Sarkaria emphasised that the paddy-wheat cycle had lowered the ground water level which was a main cause of concern.

482 Indian fishermen languishing in Pak jails, 18 in Sri Lanka: MEA

A total of 500 Indian fishermen are languishing in various jails of Pakistan and Sri Lanka, the Lok Sabha was told on Wednesday. Altogether 482 fishermen are languishing in Pakistani jails while 18 are in custody in Sri Lanka, Minister of State at the External Affairs Ministry VK Singh said in a written reply. However, he clarified that Pakistan has acknowledged custody of only 391 Indian fishermen.

Singh also said as many as 174 Indian fishermen were released by Pakistan this year while 214 fishermen were set free by Sri Lanka. The Pakistan has also seized 1050 boats while 10 boats are in Sri Lanka custody, he added. Pakistan and India regularly arrest each other's fishermen who inadvertently enter into their waters due to absence of any proper technology to confirm the coastline border between the two countries near Sri Creek in the Arabian Sea.

Let CISF security man VIPs: House panel

ASKS CENTRE TO RELIEVE BORDER GUARDING PARAMILITARY FORCES FROM THE DUTY

RAKESH K SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

Parliamentary panel has advised the Centre to expeditiously hand over VIP security duties to the Special Security Group (SSG) of the Central Industrial Security Force (CISF) and relieve border guarding paramilitary forces like ITBP and BSF as also CRPF of personal protection roles.

"The committee takes note of the (Home) Ministry's plan to progressively assign security of all VIP protectees, apart from high risk protectees, to the SSG. The committee recommends that the ministry should implement this plan at the earliest and put an end to the issue of multiple forces being assigned the task of VIP security," the panel noted in its report tabled before the Parliament on Wednesday.

The CRPF provides security cover to 76 VIPs including BJP president Amit Shah and former Bihar CM Lalu Prasad Yadav. ITBP protects 18 high profile persons including judges of the Supreme Court and politicians from Jammu and Kashmir. The ITBP that is the border guarding force for Indo-China frontier has been engaged in VVIP security deployment since early nineties. The National Security Guard (NSG) protects 15 VIPs, including Union Home Minister Rajnath Singh.

The counter-terror force NSG has urged the Home Ministry to relieve it from VIP security duties. VIP protection assignments often hit the core operational roles of the paramilitary forces. It also affects their reserve component of the forces leading to the lack of leave to the jawans. The CRPF has deployed as many as six battalions (6,000 personnel) of CRPF are engaged in VIP security duty which adversely affects the reserve factor of the force. Under reserve category, the personnel are engaged in training and such postings are given after hard postings.

Personal protection of the VIPs is provided in four categories that include Z-plus (38 guards), Z (24 guards), Y (11 guards) and X (2 guards). VIP security entails an annual expenditure of Rs 390 crore, officials said.

Following the Kargil misadventure, a Group of Ministers had in 2002 recommended the designation of CISF for VIP security duties and also advised that one force will guard one border but that has also been tinkered with and the border guarding paramilitary forces are engaged in anti-Naxal deployments and counter insurgency roles.

The home ministry provides security cover on the basis of threat assessment to some individuals on the basis of inputs of the Intelligence Bureau. The assessment is subject to periodic review based on which it is continued/withdrawn/downgraded/upgraded.

The Parliamentary committee on Home Affairs also expressed disappointment over "difficulties" being faced by CRPF jawans fighting Naxals in Chhattisgarh in getting their daily meals and some paramilitary personnel living in "sub-human conditions" in different parts of the country.

"They (CRPF personnel) have to depend on local 'haats' and contractors for supply of raw material for their food. The committee recommends that a foolproof mechanism should be developed for ensuring regular supply of nutritious food, including dishes/raw materials of different cuisines to all CRPF camps particularly those which have no access or difficult access to local market like Bastar in Chhattisgarh," the panel added.

Akbar, Tejpal suspended from Editors Guild

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Editors Guild of India on Wednesday suspended the memberships of former Union minister MJ Akbar and ex-Tehelka editor-in-chief Tarun Tejpal over allegations of sexual misconduct.

The Guild had sought the views of its Executive Committee (EC) on what action should be taken against Akbar, a dormant member at present and one of its past presidents, Tejpal and senior journalist Gautam Adhikari "in light of sexual misconduct allegations levelled against them", a statement said.

A majority of the EC members suggested that Akbar and Tejpal's memberships be suspended. Office-bearers of the Guild discussed the EC's comments and concurred with the view that Akbar and Tejpal should be suspended from the Guild, it said.

The Guild decided it would seek Adhikari's response before deciding on his membership.

SC asks forensic auditors to examine trail of homebuyers' ₹3K cr diverted by Amrapali

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Wednesday asked forensic auditors to examine the trail of around ₹3,000 crore, the homebuyers' money allegedly spent by the Amrapali Group on buying shares of its sister companies and asset creation.

Amrapali Group CMD Anil Sharma, directors Shiv Priya and Ajay Kumar returned to the court a total amount of ₹1.55 crore of home buyers money "lying" with them.

The top court grilled several accountants of the group as to how they have prepared the accounts statements which were submitted in the court and on what basis they created the accounts this year for financial years 2015-16, 2016-2017 and 2017-2018.

It directed the forensic auditors to ascertain the numbers of flats which were 'benami' property, doubly booked or booked on a nominal value by Amrapali Group.

A bench of Justices Arun Mishra and U U Lalit directed Debt Recovery Tribunal, Delhi to conduct the valuation of Amrapali's five-star hotel Tech Park in Greater Noida and sell it by January end.

It also questioned Sharma about the sub-leases granted to the family members of Amrapali directors and where the Rs 3,000 crore of home-buyers' money has gone.

The bench after failing to get a satisfactory reply asked the two forensic auditors Pawan Kumar Aggarwal and Ravi Bhatia to examine the trail of around ₹3000 crore.

"More than ₹2,990 crores were taken out from nine companies of Amrapali Group in the name of assets creation and purchase of shares of sister companies. You should examine the trail of the money as to how and where did it go, and the assets created by the fund", the bench told the forensic auditors.

The court asked the company to file the details of the assets it created with ₹2,990 crore and the board resolutions which allowed ₹1,100 crore to be spent for purchasing share capital.

It directed the forensic auditors to also examine whether any siphoning of funds was done by granting sub-leases or any favours were doled out in such transactions.

The top court noted that pursuant to its last order in which one last window was given to the directors and other officials of the company to return home buyers money, Sharma and two directors Shiv Priya and Ajay Kumar returned ₹1.25 crore, Rs 20 lakh and ₹10 lakh respectively.

The court sought an affidavit from Sharma and the two directors to declare that they do not have any more money of home buyers lying with them.

India to hike public health spending to 2.5% of GDP: PM

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ NEW DELHI

By 2025, India's public health spending will be 2.5 per cent of the gross domestic product (GDP), up from the present 1.15 per cent with women, children and the youth at the heart of every policy, programme and initiative of the Government.

Stating this at the 2018 Partners' Forum here, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said high out-of-pocket expenditure incurred by families to avail medical care in India worried his Government and to address the issue, it launched the Ayushman Bharat Yojana, which has a two-fold strategy.

The Pradhan Mantri Jan Arogya Yojana provides cashless health insurance cover up to ₹5 lakh per family per year, covering 500 million poor citizens.

"This number is almost equal to the population of Canada, Mexico and the US taken together. We have already provided free treatment worth ₹700 crore to 5 lakh families under this scheme within 10 weeks of its launch," Modi said.

The other arm of Ayushman Bharat, Modi said, is the provision of providing comprehensive primary care at a facility near the community, for which the Centre will start 1.5 lakh health and wellness centres by 2022.

The community will also be able to receive free screening and care for common diseases including hyper-tension, diabetes and three common cancers — of breast, cervix and oral. The patients will receive free medicines and diagnostic support close to their homes, he said.

At the event, Modi said the government is set to increase its spending on public health to 2.5 per cent of the GDP.

"This will mean an actual increase of 345 per cent over the current share, in just eight years. We will continue to work for the betterment of people. Women, children and youth will continue to remain at the heart of every policy, programme or initiative," he said.

Modi informed that India's immunization programme, "Mission Indradhanush", will be featured as a success story, among 12 others from all over the world, in the two-day forum.

Under the "Mission Indradhanush", he said the government reached 32.8 million children and 8.4 million pregnant women over the last three years while the number of vaccines has been increased from 7 to 12.

He said India's story was one of "hope. Hope that roadblocks can be overcome. Hope that behavioural change can be ensured. Hope that rapid progress can be achieved".

The PM said that India was one of the first countries, to advocate focused attention on adolescence and implement an extensive health promotion and prevention programme for adolescents.

Modi said when his government assumed office in 2014, "India was losing more than 44,000 mothers". The Centre then launched the "Pradhan Mantri Surakshit Matritva Abhiyan", as part of which doctors pledged one day of service per month to this campaign and 16 million antenatal care check-ups were performed.

Modi said that to deal with the issue of malnutrition among children, the government has launched "POSHAN Abhiyan" and is also implementing "Rashtriya Bal Swasthya Karyakram", which has provided 800 million health screening check-ups and free referral treatment to 20 million children in the last four years. He also talked about small deposit savings scheme for girls called 'Sukanya Samridhi Yojana' and the Pradhan Mantri Matru Vandana Yojana which is expected to benefit more than 50 million pregnant women and lactating mothers.

Opp stalls both Houses, Parliament adjourned

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ NEW DELHI

Parliament on Wednesday was adjourned without transacting much business after the Opposition stalled proceedings in both the Houses on a variety of issues including Rafale jet deal, Ram temple and Cauvery river water. However, the Rajya Sabha managed to pass the National Trust for the Welfare of Persons with Autism, Cerebral Palsy, Mental Retardation and Multiple Disabilities (Amendment) Bill amidst the din.

It was the second consecutive day when Parliament was adjourned after the winter session commenced on Tuesday. On the first day, both Houses were adjourned after paying homage to former prime minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee and union minister Ananth Kumar.

On Wednesday, the Lok Sabha was adjourned for the day just after noon following protests by opposition members on various issues including the Rafale deal, construction of Ram Temple and Cauvery river water.

Immediately after the House was reconvened at noon, Congress, Shiv Sena, TDP and AIADMK members trooped into the well with placards and started shouting slogans in support of their demands.

Similar scenes were earlier witnessed when Question Hour began after obituary references to former MPs.

Congress members were demanding a probe by a Joint Parliamentary Committee into the alleged corruption in the Rafale aircraft deal while Shiv Sena MPs staged protests demanding immediate construction of the Ram temple in of urgent importance. Though he had not allowed the issues to be raised under Rule 267 (suspension of business to take up a matter), all issues would be taken up for discussion, Naidu assured members.

As the two parties continued to protest, Naidu said only on Tuesday people in some states have shown their "confidence in democracy" and asked members to respect sentiments of the people.

Protests continued when the House met again at 2.00 PM. Amid noisy scenes, The National Trust for Welfare of Persons with Autism, Cerebral Palsy, Mental Retardation and Multiple Disabilities (Amendment) Bill, 2018 was passed. The proposed amendments entail fixing the term of the Chairperson of the National Trust for Welfare of Persons with Autism and other Disabilities.

Moving the bill for consideration and passage, Social Justice and Empowerment Minister Thaawarchand Gehlot said a Chairperson could not be appointed even after several attempts since 2012 as a suitable candidate meeting the stringent selection criteria could not be found. Gehlot said the amendments will ease the procedure related to appointment of a Chairperson.

"Opposition parties, including Trinamool, keen to discuss all issues in #Parliament We want Parliament to run and hold this Govt accountable. However, BJP fielding its ally' from TamilNadu to disrupt proceedings," tweeted Derek O'Brien, Trinamool Congress' Parliamentary Party leader in the Rajya Sabha with a hashtag 'MatchFixing' peeved over the adjournments.

SC extends time for filing claims for inclusion in NRC

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Wednesday extended to December 31 the deadline for filing claims and objections for inclusion of names in the National Register of Citizens for Assam by those who have been left out in the draft NRC.

The draft NRC was published on July 30 in which names of 2.89 crore of the 3.29 crore people were included. The names of 40,70,707 people did not figure in the list. Of these, 37,59,630 names have been rejected and the remaining 2,48,077 are on hold.

A special bench comprising Chief Justice Ranjan Gogoi and Justice R F Nariman considered the plea of Assam government that the deadline of December 15, fixed for filing claims and objections by those left out in the draft NRC, be extended by till January 15 next year.

Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for Assam government, said that out of 40.70 lakh left out persons, so far 14.28 lakh persons have filed the claims and objections with the authorities for inclusion in the NRC.

There has been surge in such applications in last few weeks and hence, the deadline be extended by one more month, he said.

The apex court, however, said that it would extend the deadline by another 15 days and now the left out persons can file their claims and objections till December 31.

POLL RESULTS It's victory against BJP's negative politics: Sonia

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ NEW DELHI

Buoyed by the electoral gains of the party, UPA Chairperson Sonia Gandhi on Wednesday termed the Congress's win in three Hindi heartland States ruled by the BJP as a victory against the ruling party's negative politics.

"I am happy with 3-0 score line... It is a victory against BJP's negative politics," Sonia said talking to reporters outside Parliament after results to five state elections were declared.

This was her first reaction over the poll success and in overall also the first reaction to election results after she handed over the party reins to her son Rahul Gandhi last year. She had served as the longest serving chief of the grand old party for almost two decades and during the tenure she anchored two successive Congress UPA governments.

The Congress was edged out of Mizoram and didn't make an impact in Telangana despite a grand alliance with Chandrababu Naidu's TDP and other parties. But in the three politically-crucial BJP states, the Congress is set to form a government.

The Congress was a clear winner in Chhattisgarh state, and fell one seat short of a majority in Rajasthan and two in Madhya Pradesh. Both Chhattisgarh and Madhya Pradesh had been ruled by the BJP for 15 years.

Haryana, Punjab DGPs to continue in office till Jan 31: Apex court

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court Wednesday allowed the Director Generals of Police (DGPs) of Punjab and Haryana to continue in office till January 31.

The police chiefs -- Suresh Arora (Punjab) and B S Sandhu (Haryana) -- were due to retire on December 31.

The Punjab and Haryana governments moved the apex court recently, seeking modification of its earlier order directing the states to mandatorily take the assistance of the UPSC in shortlisting the names for appointing DGP.

The states had said they have enacted separate laws for the selection and appointment of police chiefs.

A bench headed by Chief Justice Ranjan Gogoi said it will hear their pleas seeking modification of the January 8 order and allowed the current DGPs to continue in office till January 31.

The top court had on July 3 this year passed a slew of directions on police reforms in the country and chronicled the steps for appointment of regular DGPs.

It had said the states will have to send a list of senior police officers to the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) at least three months prior to the retirement of the incumbent.

The commission will then prepare a panel and inform the states, which in turn will immediately appoint one of the persons from that list, the apex court had said.

15 breeds of livestock registered for better conservation of genes

RAJESH KUMAR ■ NEW DELHI

As many as 15 new breeds of livestock and poultry have been registered in country with six of them of goat, three of buffalo, two of cattle and a donkey giving them national recognition and paving way for their better conservation and preservation of their genes.

The breeds which have been registered are two cattle breeds - Ladakhi (Jammu and Kashmir) and Konkani Kapila (Maharashtra and Goa); three buffalo breeds - Luit (Assam and Manipur), Bargur (Tamil Nadu), Chhattisgarhi (Chhattisgarh); one sheep breed - Panchali (Gujarat); six goat breeds - Kahmi (Gujarat), Rohilkhandi (UP), Assam Hill (Assam & Meghalaya), Bidri (Karnataka), Nandidurga (Karnataka), Bhakarwali (Jammu and Kashmir); one pig breed - Ghurrah (UP); one donkey breed - Halari (Gujarat) and one chicken breed - Uttara (Uttarakhand).

According to Ministry of Agriculture, the National Bureau of Animal Genetic Resources (NBAGR) has approved registration of record 15 new breeds of livestock and poultry this year alone taking the total to 40 during 2014-18. The NBAGR, the nodal agency of the Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR), for registration of new breeds has recognized 55 breeds since 2010. Between 2010 and 2014, only 15 breeds were given national recognition.

Names of these breeds are derived either from the origin of their tract or due to their distinct features. Officials said that both the Halari donkey and Panchali sheep are named because their origins are traced in Halar region (Jamnagar district) and Panchal region (Surenranagar) of Saurashtra. Kahmi is local name of the two-coloured goat.

Interestingly, Halari breed is the second donkey breed to be recognised in the country after Spiti - the donkey breed which is indigenous to Spiti valley region of Himachal Pradesh. Luit are found in some areas of Mizoram, Manipur and Nagaland bordering Assam. Luit is a medium sized black coloured buffalo with compact body and strong built up. Forehead is broad with conical face and wide muzzle.

Kahmi goat is native to Saurashtra region of Gujarat. It Coat color is unique - neck and face are reddish brown while rear abdominal part is black, locally called Kahmi. Ears are long, tubular & coiled, locally called vudli. Wattles are present in majority of goat. These goats are used both for meat & milk.

According to Union Agriculture Minister Radha Mohan Singh, these native breeds are renowned for heat tolerance, disease resistance and thriving on low input system. "The process of identification of animal breeds and their documentation is not only important in providing value to the indigenous animal breeds and introducing various development programs of the government for their improvement but also plays a special role in preserving the biodiversity of the country," Singh said.

Rajasthan has 26 registered indigenous breeds and is the top in the list, followed by Gujarat having 19 registered indigenous breeds and poultry.

India has about 15 percent of total cattle, 57 percent of total buffalo, 17 percent of goat, 7 percent of sheep and 4.5 percent of chicken of the world.

The coalition Government of the JD(S) and Congress in Karnataka which was always on the threat of being poached by the BJP through operation Lotus is rejoicing after the saffron defeat in the Hindi heart land. The Congress victories in Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan and Chhattisgarh have given the coalition Government in Karnataka a shot in the arm to take on the BJP in the 2019 elections.

The Kumaraswamy Government which came into existence was a master initiative by the Congress to stitch a Mahagathbandhan to take on the Modi - Shah Combine in the ensuing general elections sometime in 2019 and the congress victory has given more teeth to this initiative of Opposition unity with minor and local parties like that of JDs.

Kites of false campaign are falling down. This is not a time to boast about victory. We need to become ideologically stronger and fight till the end."

However a senior Congress leader on the condition of anonymity said "with the resounding victory why should we piggyback on the JD(S)." Karnataka is the only State in South India where BJP scored well in 2014 by winning 17 of the 28 seats. Now, as the Congress-JD(S) looks to regain ground, BJP may find it tough to retain its seats. The victory is also an eye opener for the BJP which is planning to get more number of seats and also planning to topple the JD(S)- Congress Government in the State through poaching which is called operation Kamala(Lotus).

BJP'S ATTACK ON NEHRU-GANDHI FAMILY

It boomeranged on BJP: Pawar

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

NCP president Sharad Pawar said here on Wednesday Prime Minister Narendra Modi's frequent attacks on the Nehru-Gandhi family members had not gone down well with the public, leading to the BJP's debacle in the Assembly polls in three States.

"During the recent Assembly poll campaign, Modi forgot all the promises he had made during the 2014 polls. All he did was to talk about one family. Here is a man who had not seen Pandit Nehru and Indira Gandhi. But he continued to attack one family all through the campaign. The BJP is paying for the Modi's folly," Pawar said.

Slamming the Modi Government for its questionable governance during the last four and a half years, Pawar said: "Such is the nature of interference of the Modi dispensation in various established institutions is there for everybody to see. First of all, four senior most Supreme Court judges had come out openly to address a press conference. Then, it was the turn of Government appointed RBI Governor Urjit Patel who resigned. We are still to resolve the mess created by the Govt in the CBI. There have been attacks on the Constitution from the Government's side from time to time."

"We were thinking that the BJP would suffer a jolt from Adivasis and farmers. But, the BJP has suffered 50 per cent setback even in urban areas. The process of change in government at the Centre has started," the NCP president said.

Holding that the people had accepted the Congress' decision to hand over the leadership to the new generation (read Rahul Gandhi), Pawar said that there may not be a federation opposition front at the Centre, but the Opposition parties should rise over their differences and come together to take on the BJP during the 2019 Lok Sabha polls.

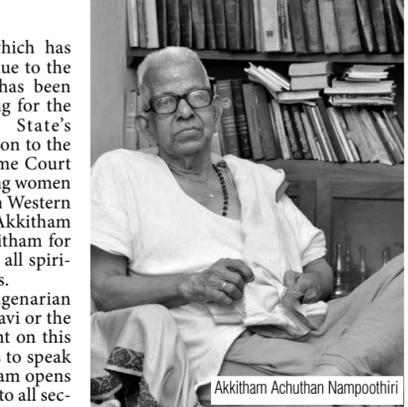

"We may not have a UPA or a third front during the Lok Sabha polls. But, the Opposition parties should sink their differences and come together to fight the BJP in the Lok Sabha polls," Pawar said.

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ KOCHI

Kerala's political skyline which has been turned tumultuous due to the Sabarimala controversy and has been vitiated by the hour is waiting for the counsel from the State's Bheeshmapitamah. The solution to the issue arising out of the Supreme Court verdict of September 28 allowing women of all age into the holy shrine in Western Ghats lies with 93-year-old Akkitham Achuthan Nampoothiri, (Akkitham for short) the State's last word in all spiritual cultural and literary issues.

But the celebrated nonagenarian poet (the one and only Mahakavi or the great poet in the State) is silent on this controversial issue and refuses to speak out his mind. "Of only Akkitham opens up his mind, people belonging to all sections will fall in line," said S Rameshan Nair, the Tamil Nadu-born Malayalam poet who was honoured with this year's Sahitya Akademy Award for poetry.

Akkitham refused to divulge what was in his mind about the Sabarimala stand off which has affected millions of Lord Ayyappa devotees all over south India. "It is a matter of belief, custom and tradition. But I don't want to speak anything about it. The sentiments and feelings of devotees should be respected," the poet told The Pioneer. This scholar, internationally accepted as the father of modernism in Malayalam poetry for his work Epic of the Twentieth Century, has also fought for eradication of untouchability and was engaged in teaching and oppressed classes in the society.

"I am against segregation or discrimination of devotees based on their gender or caste or religion. But customs and traditions considered as sacred by the society should not be violated. Let's welcome the true devotees," said Akkitham while speaking to this newspaper on Wednesday.

There is not a single Malayalee anywhere in the globe who has not heard his lyric "Light is sorrow, dear child;

Darkness is happiness", pointed out Nair, who has been a close associate of the poet for more than five decades. "These are the lines from Epic of the Twentieth Century which has no parallel in contemporary literature. That's why people in Kerala have accorded him the status of an iconic figure irrespective of their caste, creed and political ideologies.

Literary critics like late Prof M Krishnan Nair had described Akkitham as a poet who integrated spirituality, philosophy and humanity in his works. His latest poetic work is the Malayalam translation of Shrimat Bhagawatam, comprising 14,613 verses spread across 2400 printed pages. The respect commanded by Akkitham could be understood from the fact that his is the only poems from Malayalam which has been translated into French and published in "Europa", the quarterly literary journal in France.

"Poetic images built out of drops after drops of tear and laughter after laughter that will not burn down to ashes in the efflux of time, that will not dissolve and not washed away in the torrential flow of time and that will not be thrown away and shattered to pieces in the swirling typhonic drift of time are the essential basic characters of Akkitham's poetry," says Prof M Leelavathi, the legendary literary critic who is also a nonagenarian like Akkitham.

It is time Kerala society listened to his words of wisdom, at least in the Sabarimala issue.

Poll results, warning for BJP: Hazare

PNS ■ MUMBAI

Termining the defeat in the Assembly polls in three States as a wake-up call for the BJP, noted social activist Anna Hazare said on Wednesday that if the ruling party at the Centre did not keep its various made in the previous elections, the people would teach a lesson to it in the 2019 Lok

Sabha polls.

Talking to media persons at Ralegan-Siddhi, Hazare said: "Before and after coming to power at the Centre, the BJP sold dreams to the people. But, all the promises made by the BJP and Prime Minister Narendra Modi have remained on paper. Through their mandate in the Assembly polls in five States, the people have exposed the Modi Government and its false promises," Hazare said.

"The Assembly poll verdict is a wake-up call for the BJP. If the Modi Government does not fulfil its promises made in the run-up and after the 2014 polls, then the people would teach a lesson to the ruling BJP in the 2019 Lok Sabha polls," Hazare added.

PMO returns money order of farmer who got pittance for onions

Mumbai: A money-order sent by a farmer in Maharashtra's Nashik district, who had got a princely sum of ₹1,064 after selling 750 kg of onions, has been returned by the Prime Minister's Office (PMO).

Sanjay Sathre, a farmer from Niphad tehsil of Nashik district, had sent ₹1,064, his earnings from onion sale in the wholesale market, to Prime Minister Narendra Modi on November 29 as a protest.

A few days ago, the local post office informed him that the money-order was not accepted.

"I went to the office of India Post in Niphad Monday and received the amount of ₹1,064," Sathre told PTI on Wednesday.

"My only intention was to prompt the Government to take some steps to ease the financial stress farmers are suffering from because of the crashed prices," he said.

Sathre, who had taken his onion crop to Niphad wholesale market, had received a paltry rate of ₹1.40 per kg

Sathre, who had taken his onion crop to Niphad wholesale market, had received a paltry rate of ₹1.40 per kg.

His act of donating the money to the disaster relief fund of the PMO by making a money-order had made headlines.

"I wanted to draw the Government's attention to our problems. I am not associated with any political party," he said.

"I hope the Union and State Governments will take some steps so that onion growers earn more," he said.

India joins elite club with submarine rescue vessel

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

India joined a select league of nations worldwide with the sovereign capability in fly away configuration to search, locate and rescue crew from a disabled submarine, as Admiral Sunil Lanba, the Chief of Naval Staff, formally inducted the Deep Submergence Rescue Vessel (DSRV) and its associated equipment at the Naval Dockyard in south Mumbai on Wednesday.

Speaking at the induction ceremony, Admiral Lanba, the Chief of Naval Staff, who is also the Chairman of Chiefs of Staff Committee, said: "I wish we should not use it, but in case we need to use, the intention is to rescue each and every life".

"The induction of the vehicle has put the Indian Navy into a small league of navies that have an integral submarine rescue capability...It is a red-letter day for the Indian Navy and its submarine arm...we have acquired it after years of focussed effort," Vice Admiral Girish Luthra, the Flag Officer Commanding-in-Chief of the Mumbai-headquartered Western Naval Command (WNC), said.

The first DSRV's first vessel, inducted on Wednesday, would be based in Mumbai, while another similar one is expected to join the Indian Navy in the next and it will be based in Visakhapatnam, the headquarters of Eastern Naval Command (ENC).

The newly inducted DSRV has a Side Scan Sonar for locating the position of the submarine in distress at sea, providing immediate relief by way of posting Emergency

Admiral Sunil Lanba, Chief of the Naval Staff unveiling the plaque inducting Deep Submergence Rescue Vessel (DSRV) and its associated equipment (Right) The DSRV being put into sea for a demonstration, after its induction into the Indian Navy Life Support Containers with the help of Remotely Operated Vehicle (ROV) and thereafter rescuing the crew of the submarine using the DSRV itself.

Currently, the Indian Navy currently operates submarines of the Sindhughosh, Shishumar, Kalvari Classes as well as the nuclear powered submarines. The operating medium and the nature of operations undertaken by submarines expose them to high degree of inherent risk. In such an eventuality, traditional methods of search and rescue at sea are ineffective for a disabled submarine.

Remove restrictions, barricades at prime spots at Sabarimala, Kerala HC directs police Kochi: The Kerala High Court on Wednesday directed police to remove barricades at prime spots in the temple complex of the Lord Ayyappa hill shrine at Sabarimala.

It also directed police to lift restrictions like blocking pilgrims at Sharakutti, en route to the 'sannidhanam' or temple complex, after 11.30 PM.

A division bench of justices Ramachandra Menon and N Anil Kumar said its earlier order that there should not be any protest in Sabarimala stands intact.

The bench also approved the report of the three-member monitoring commission appointed by it on November 28 to oversee the pilgrimage at Sabarimala temple.

The court had appointed the three-member panel to oversee the pilgrimage at Sabarimala temple and said there should not be any more protests at the shrine, which witnessed a series of violent incidents after the September 28 Supreme Court verdict, allowing women of all ages into the shrine.

It had, while hearing a bunch of petitions questioning restrictions at the temple, said the three observers would monitor the pilgrimage and report to the court.

The court Wednesday said that depending on the intensity of the crowd, police can take appropriate measures to manage the crowd and inflow without causing inconvenience to pilgrims.

New dilemma

The Congress has to now deal with its old coterie and be decisive about leadership issues

The Congress celebrations, now that everybody has labelled the Assembly results as the nose-in-the-ground anointment of its new chief Rahul Gandhi, need to simmer down and its top brass should get working on the troublesome issue of State leadership at hand. Should the party go with the old guard or prop up the new, if only to demonstrate that Rahul Gandhi is indeed capable of bringing the vigour of youth instead of relying on handed down logic? Besides, Gandhi has to dispel the myth that he would still love to be cushioned in princeling comforts and not be overshadowed by talented challengers. If he has to send out a message of a new-found sense of purpose and appeal to the younger demographic of voters, then he indeed has to accommodate his young leadership and peers in power positions. A clearer verdict would have no doubt given him the muscle but now that the Congress has slender margins of victory, it cannot afford to alienate the older and more importantly, the loyal watchguards of the organisation. Dissenters in the Congress are notorious for harming the party and in the two States could even shop in Opposition camps. Unlike the monolithic grassroots matrix of the BJP, the Congress votebank is harvested in pocket borough style by regional leaders. At this point, when the party needs to work on its organisational depth for 2019, it could hardly afford to crank up the senior leaders. In Rajasthan, a young Sachin Pilot worked the ground but was tasked with the superhuman feat of pulling up seat strength from 21 to 100 plus. And though he staked his strengths, he has yet to reach the over-arching and harmonising capabilities of the seniority and experience of an Ashok Gehlot. The Congress does need his expertise to keep the flock together. Though the two leaders chose to brief the press from their residence, it was the senior Gehlot who was pragmatic enough to call on his junior for the right optics.

In Madhya Pradesh, where the Congress is tipping on needle point, and where Jyotiraditya Scindia is an equal claimant to leadership, the experience of the old guard has to be banked upon. A strategist like Kamal Nath was needed to begin talks with post poll allies like Mayawati's Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP), the Samajwadi Party, Gondwana Gantantra Party and independents. The party needs 116 to form the Government. For Mayawati, it is a shot at relevance as she has realised that a pre-poll partnership would have worked far more for mutual benefit and that tricky territory needs delicacy and soft-treading of ego issues which the senior leaders are expectedly more adept at. One doesn't deny the imperatives but do the old warhorses have the maturity to be the margdarshak and give up the hot seat instead? The Congress has to deal with its coterie clout and seem to be decisive about leadership issues, give credence to the bottom-up approach rather than the one handed down by the high command.

Privacy pitfalls

Pichai appeared far more confident than Zuckerberg, but tech companies need to be regulated on privacy matters

Google Chief Executive, the Indian-born Sundar Pichai, appeared confident and answered quite succinctly all questions posed by United States Congressmen at a hearing. His hearing was not the media circus that the hearing of Facebook Chief Executive Mark Zuckerberg was, because Pichai did not appear shifty or deflect questions the way Zuckerberg did. But that does not take away the persistent concerns that users and Governments have about the power of the American technology giants such as Amazon, Facebook and Google. And these companies have been lax in responding to these allegations, with hopes that they will pass through. So much so that Facebook sent a middling executive with little knowledge of the issues at hand to a multinational parliamentary hearing recently in London.

Far too many people have been bothered by the flippant way America's technology giants have treated privacy concerns, but the fact is that almost every technology company or service provider has been treating data irresponsibly. As some have commented that 'Data is the new Oil', the problem is that we are burning that oil irresponsibly and spilling it all over the place. The practice of deep packet inspection by some Indian telecom companies of their Internet traffic is disturbing as is the fact that Facebook and Google mine information from your phone calls and messages to suggest friends and new services to you. Even more worrying is the use of a phone microphone at all times to ostensibly listen for the name of their artificial intelligence driven assistant, something that is even being copied by car companies today in their latest models. Can this information be weaponised? Several Chinese handset manufacturers have become popular in India. Can they burrow through conversations and emails to compromise Indian democracy? Have the actions and inactions of Facebook already compromised elections? These are questions that we hope our smarter legislators can ask, but across the world, thanks in no small part to the power of these technology companies, populists with limited education and knowledge are being elected, which serves the interests of the technology companies to keep doing what they are doing with little or no regulation.

Indeed, it has been very disappointing that the Indian legislature has not done much to further the Supreme Court's landmark Right to Privacy judgement and gone after the technology majors for the way they use data from India and data of Indians. Not just the American tech giants, but Chinese handset operators, Indian telecom operators as well as companies that have started under the Digital India initiative, have to be questioned by our legislators in public hearings. Otherwise, we are just selling souls online.

Tango or foxtrot?

How the Congress' win in the three Hindi heartland States informs the dance of democracy and steps gingerly around the mahagathbandhan

ISHAN JOSHI

The very creditable electoral success of the Congress in Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh and Rajasthan has justifiably given the Grand Old Party a spring in its collective step. But the thing is that this achievement, and it is a major one to come back virtually from the dead against multiple-term incumbents from a dominant ruling dispensation, has also caused some consternation among the bevy of regional political heavyweights arrayed against the BJP in their respective States who are crucial players in a putative Opposition grand alliance or mahagathbandhan. To use an analogy from the dance floor, it takes two to tango but when one partner breaks into a foxtrot the other tends to get breathless keeping pace.

Messrs K Chandrashekar Rao, Naveen Patnaik, Mamata Banerjee, MK Stalin, Mayawati, Akhilesh Yadav, Sharad Pawar, Deve Gowda, Arvind Kejriwal and, arguably, the BJP's perennially suspect ally Nitish Kumar would clearly prefer a non-BJP, non-Congress Federal Front which could control a substantial chunk of over 250 MPs that will be elected to the Lok Sabha from their respective States of operation as opposed to a UPA kind of arrangement with the Congress as primus inter pares. Even N Chandrababu Naidu, often compared to the late CPI-M general secretary HKS Surjeet who played the role of a good-faith mediator in setting up non-Congress non-BJP coalitions at the Centre in the 1990s for his current efforts at building Opposition unity, could easily be co-opted into this arrangement if and when push comes to shove.

Rahul Gandhi's perfectly valid comment during his Press conference on the evening of December 11 as the results of the Assembly polls came in, speaking of the 'resurgence' of the party he heads, has therefore been seized upon by those in the Opposition ranks with a deep vein of anti-Congressism running through them as evidence of the latent hegemonic ambitions of the Congress finding play. And that is the crux of the matter. Not because the AICC does not have an unalienable right to build its organisational strength, reposition aspects of its philosophy to stay in tune with an overarching sense of an Indic heritage and make a concerted effort to recover lost electoral ground over vast swathes of India, but because the political landscape today means these attempts will run into opposition not merely from the BJP, which is the other pan-India political party in the fray, but regional forces that militate in theory and practice against the unitary impulse of the Indian state.

The immediate task for the Congress is to assuage the apprehensions of the regional parties to prevent anti-BJP forces from splintering in the run-up to 2019 while, in the medium term, rebuilding the party on the lines of the Pachmarhi resolution which senior party leaders understandably do not find it politic to mention in public these days. This is obviously not lost on the leaders of the putative Federal Front whose support base and ideological orientation precludes any adjustment with a Narendra Modi-Amit Shah controlled BJP but replace the duo, if you will, with a collective leadership of more moderate faces and all bets are off. After all, apart from the Congress and Communists, there is not a single regional party not counting the comparatively recently founded AAP and TRS, which has not, at some stage over past three decades, been a BJP ally.

So, what can the Congress do and how should it go about doing it? Well, back to the dance floor for answers. The first step: A close cinch in a slow dance is strongly recommended on the principle that one keeps one's friends close and enemies even closer; think BSP. The temptation to break into a waltz will be ever-present but needs to be resisted; remember what happened to the Congress in Uttar Pradesh in the 1990s when the late Narasimha Rao first tried it on with the late Kanshi Ram.

“ IF INDIA IS TO HEAD TOWARDS A TWO-PARTY/ALLIANCE SYSTEM, THERE IS NO BETTER TIME FOR IT TO COME TO FRUITION THAN IN 2019. WITH THE REGIONAL PARTIES ON EITHER SIDE STRONG ENOUGH TO COMMAND RESPECT AND DEMAND AUTONOMY FROM THE NATIONAL PARTY THEY ALIGN WITH, THE PROSPECTS OF SUCH A BIPOLAR POLITY LASTING AND TAKING ROOT ARE MUCH BRIGHTER THAN EVER BEFORE ”

The DMK and Kamal Hassan in Tamil Nadu ought also to be firmly in the close dance embrace. Ditto, the Nationalist Congress Party in Maharashtra and Janata Dal (Secular) in Karnataka.

Next, the Congress needs to jump generations and look at a breakdance where one can do one's own thing but in one's partner's vicinity who is probably more adept at it; and if the number is well-choreographed, it can give the illusion of both dancers being in sync. Telugu Desam Party (TDP), Trinamool Congress, and AAP all probably fall in this category.

The temptress' dance — and the phrase used here in a gender-neutral political sense obviously — is of the essence for the Congress to perfect for the likes of the Janata Dal (United) and possibly even the YSR Congress of Jaganmohan Reddy in Andhra Pradesh if the TDP number goes awry in those parts. Samajwadi Party, too, would perhaps need a bit of the old Vera of the Seven Veils treatment, as it were, in conceding a few seats to it in States other than Uttar Pradesh.

But it can't just be one happy-hippy beach party grind for the Grand Old Party if it is serious about reclaiming its position as the second pole of national politics, the BJP having firmly ensconced itself as the other despite the electoral setbacks in the Assembly polls.

In States where it is still the main Opposition to a ruling regional party and has some organisational heft albeit with the BJP breathing down its neck, the Congress may have to dump its potential dancing partners for the 2019 Lok Sabha poll even while maintaining surface camaraderie. The CPI-M in Kerala and Biju Janata Dal in Odisha are two such.

There will surely be some in the Congress and among those simpatico who will think of the above as a very cynical assessment of the political lay of the land as India heads into a General Election. They would be right. But they would be naïve to think that the regional parties that constitute the opposition to the BJP in many States will be working in anyone's interest but their own, as it's their right.

If India is, at long last, to head towards a two-party/alliance system, there is no better time for it to come to fruition than in 2019. Because with the regional parties on either side today strong enough to command respect and demand autonomy from the national party they align with, the prospects of such a bipolar polity lasting and taking root are much brighter than ever before.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Securing throne

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Rahul's day dawns" (December 12). Congress president Rahul Gandhi must be congratulated for his party's performance, especially in the Hindi heartland States — Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh and Rajasthan. He has proved that he can emerge as a leader.

It is now largely felt that election victories to these States will help the grand old party emerge as a 'fighting force' against the BJP for the 2019 general elections. With the Congress rising to the occasion it is only clear that India will not be Opposition-mukt. All political parties must take lessons from these election results and prepare well for 2019.

M Ratan
Via email

Welcome gesture

Sir — It is laudable that sinking all differences Bahujan Samaj Party supremo Mayawati has readily offered her party's support to the Congress to form a Government in Madhya Pradesh. She also assured that her party would provide support if needed in Rajasthan too. This is the spirit of unity that is required on the part of all Opposition parties to take on the BJP. Post election results to five States, they must all work in tandem for the 2019 general election.

Obsession with casteism

This refers to the article, "High cost of reservations" (December 12) by Prafull Goradia. It is an irony that a large section of the population continues to identify itself on the basis of caste. This is the very reason why caste credential forms the very basis of the Indian election process. Right from the Lok Sabha poll to panchayat elections, candidates are offered tickets after a careful analysis of the demographic picture of the concerned constituency is done. Even poll promises and sops bear shrewd caste angles. Will casteism ever get uprooted if in the name of caste such muscle-flexing is entertained? When a large section of the population has been delivered the taste of gaining entry into a particular sector based on caste, they would never give up this unfair practice that they enjoy over their meritorious counterparts.

It is, therefore, unlikely that reservations can be abolished abruptly or even in a phased manner. Our lawmakers, who enjoy the fruits of electoral dividend by playing on caste factors, would continue bringing more such groups under the ambit of reservation. Unless our leaders and the electorate rise above petty barriers, casteism and reservation will continue to gain more strength in this supposedly united country.

Unpredictable results

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Rahul's day dawns" (December 12). The much-hyped achhe din seem to have come for the Congress even as all exit polls predicted that the grand old party would have an edge over the BJP in the five States that recently went to polls.

The Congress' coming out with flying colours in these Assembly elections has justified that its president Rahul Gandhi suits well as a prime contender to Prime Minister Narendra Modi. Rahul Gandhi deserves to be at the helm of the proposed grand alliance — the mahagathbandhan of non-BJP parties — that aims to take on the BJP-led NDA in the 2019 Lok Sabha polls.

Political pundits have opined that results to the Assembly elections were the semi-finals for 2019 that set the tone and tenor for the crucial parliamentary election. Looks like the grand finale will be played between the UPA and the NDA teams. However, politics is said to be a game of surprises. It can take bizarre twists and turns. Therefore, we must wait. There's long way to go.

Azhar A Khan
Rampur

Don't be mistaken

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Rahul's day dawns" (December 12). Certainly, the Congress has reasons to cheer but the present wins cannot be considered as 'victory'. And if the party believes so, it is deluded. For, the election results have come out as a result of people's anger against the ruling BJP. They are not a reflection of love for or confidence in the Congress.

Ramblings in winter

It is not just the chill but the chilling future that must send down shivers

HIRANMAY KARLEKAR

If autumn, pace Keats, is a season of "mist and mellow fruitfulness", winter, some say, is one of discontent. One would perhaps not be presuming too much if one believes that they have perjured their description from either or both works of literature that are widely known. The English types must have taken it from the Bard of Avon, William Shakespeare's play Richard III, which contains the line, "Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious by the sun of York." Of course, the reference was not to the Yorkshire weather, which is not celebrated for its sunshine, but the House of York, one of the dynasties fighting the House of Lancaster in the Wars of the Roses which wracked England from 1455 to 1485 (according to some historians 1487).

It does not take a great leap of imagination to realise that all that intermittent, but terrible, blood-letting was for England's crown, which the Yorkists and the Lancastrians fought under the symbols of the white and rose respectively. At the end of it, the prize went to Henry Tudor, who became king under the name of Henry VII.

All this was a long time ago. But Shakespeare is an eternal literary eminence and the source perhaps of the majority of literary quotes in English that make the rounds even now. The one cited has had a second coming in the form of the title of Nobel Laureate (literature) John Steinbeck's last novel, The Winter of Our Discontent, published in 1961, which, I believe is the secondary source of the description. Though not a towering, perennial icon like Shakespeare, Steinbeck was a literary stalwart of his time known for novels like The Grapes of Wrath and East of Eden.

That, however, is another matter. An important reason why the description has come to stay is that winter brings, in some parts, bone-chilling cold that sends shivers down to the extremities even when one is swaddled in warm clothes. No wonder the Bard associated the season with rough weather and wrote in As You Like It, "Under the greenwood tree/Who loves to lie with me, / And turn his merry note/ Unto the sweet bird's throat, / Come hither, come hither, come hither:/ Here shall he see/ No enemy/ But winter and rough weather."

The perennially constipated who scan sentences and paragraphs for their most uncharitable interpretation, might claim that the stanza's underlying idea is that winter and rough weather are our enemies. While one cannot rule that out, I would rather believe that this would be stretching matters a bit too far and what we are really witnessing is no more than yet another example of poetic hyperbole.

That this is so would become clear if one looks at the next stanza:

"Who doth ambition shun/ And loves to live i' the sun, / Seeking the food he eats, / And pleased with what he gets, / Come hither, come hither, come hither:/ Here shall he see/ No enemy/ But winter and rough weather."

There is here no trace of anger and rancor that one associates with enmity. Instead one finds an invitation to an idyllic existence in the enchanted Forest of Arden, which, in Shakespeare's As You Like It, transforms every person who arrives, making him or her mellow and relaxed through contact with nature. In fact, the focus is on the charms of such a life and the reference to winter and rough weather as the only enemies one would have to face there, is purely incidental.

Life like the one in Arden, with its simplicity and relaxed pace, doubtless has its charms for many, particularly those long in city pent. Advance of civilisation, however, is constantly expanding the web of demands for essentials, comforts, luxuries and entertainment, arising from production for commerce. It is a web from which it is most difficult for the trapped to extract themselves, particularly in the current age with the growing incidence of psychic manipulation through advertising, the cutting edge of market economy and culture.

The web is increasingly drawing humankind into a pattern of existence that is as bland and pleasurable as it is artificial. Even now, people remain, as Desmond Morris has shown in The Naked Ape, members of a hunting tribe in their defining character orientation. This is the way they first emerged and survived on earth and this is the way in which they had lived for hundreds and thousands of years before urban civilisation began taking giant strides in time. Palliatives like creating social, economic, cultural and political groups that resemble tribes, have not helped much. A life in an unnatural and claustrophobic environment makes homo sapiens fractious and irritable, sometimes setting off sub-conscious accumulation of resentment in explosions of individual and mass violence.

The winter of our discontent, therefore, arises, at the societal plane, from discontent over our existence. The latter needs to be addressed seriously, which, unfortunately, does not seem to be happening.

Enjoyment not for business

The capitalist market economy is investing in generating suspicion and addiction through the social network that seems to be a profitable business of human emotion

MOHIT KUMAR

Slavoj Žižek in a film argues that "in postmodern society, we are obliged to enjoy. Enjoyment becomes a kind of wired perverted duty." These lines point to the existence of new means of profit in human emotions invented by the prevailing capitalist economic structure. Capitalism in its course has developed more effective and violent means of controlling human emotions through Facebook, Twitter, WhatsApp and many more. It is pertinent to any individual attempting to understand contemporary times to know how social networking sites, like Facebook, Twitter, WhatsApp, have fashioned and internalised new rules of enjoyment.

It is relevant to ask ourselves a few questions: Do these new mediums of expression actually address the question of human liberation or simply re-structure our very understanding of liberation?

The systematic deployment of new rules of morality or immorality, good or evil, and right and wrong has given enough reason to its user to believe that the discovery of Facebook, Twitter and WhatsApp has been a great source of entertainment and symbol of a blissful life. It seems as if these social networks of entertainment have empowered them by providing absolute charge to its user on control of its handling that seems to be a spectacular phenomenon. Though the user has a monopoly on the use of social network account in the sense that they can write and post whatever they feel, these domains have also constrained or more importantly violated individuals in several manners.

The social networks have encroached into the personal domain of an individual's secrecy as WhatsApp and Facebook give its user an option to know whether a person is online or when s/he was last seen. This created a new addiction among its user for its use to judge the action, reaction, trust and loyalty of others.

Behind the screen, one plays the role of a detective to watch over the behaviour of their loved ones. It created a kind of suspicion which resulted in animosity and secret revenge that oblige its user to use it not for the communicative purpose but as a mean of surveillance. They start playing the role of a watchman carefully watching the suspicious activities of a concerned person on these platforms.

The complex system of these social networks designed its feature in such a way that suspicion gets internalised as a factor that dominates the activities of its users. It is important to know that suspicion and addiction go hand-in-hand. The capitalist market economy is investing in producing suspicion and addiction through the social network that seems to be a profitable business of human emotion.

Another hidden rule that needs critical reflection is how social networks have imposed new understanding of enjoyment. It means we have reached a stage where we have confirmed certain ways of enjoyment which define whether we are enjoying or not. If one is not part of the confirmed scheme of enjoyment, s/he is not performing his moral duty. Scientifically and psychologically, sense of enjoyment is associated with the mood of an individual. It is interesting to note that enjoyment becomes kind of a burden because mood does not have an independent identity. It has to function in relation with the social factors eg morality, good, bad and evil.

If we study history carefully then we will find that the process of defining, inventing and forming morality, good and evil, is undemocratic because few were assigned this task. If it is so, how can something that comes out of an undemocratic process be democratic?

But it does happen because all those who are not given a share in defining enjoyment are made to believe that the list of enjoyment keeps a good care of all and it is in common interest. The maker and the giver of enjoyment ask the taker of enjoyment not for their opinion but their conformity and through their conformity, they make enjoyment as a part of their duty and not of their right.

The sense of enjoyment shifts from the self to the others. Here, I mean we need others to make ourselves believe that we are happy. In post-modern society, we have become the seller of enjoyment. The interesting psychological fact about the seller is that s/he never consumes or relishes little of what he/she produces or sells. It is because of the burden or duty of selling that we compromise our basic and natural instinct of enjoyment.

Friedrich Nietzsche, in his work "Thus Spoke Zarathustra", argued that "ever since there have been humans, the human being has enjoyed himself too little: that alone, my friend is our original sin." I think that this statement is relevant to the present context of post-modern society. Now the question arises: Where do we sell or buy our enjoyment? Today, we have created several means or networks where we can buy and sell enjoyment eg Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and Whatsapp.

It is interesting to note that we are no longer free to enjoy but we are forced or obliged to enjoy. We check our Facebook and Twitter account to get some enjoyment. The desire of enjoyment is very natural to us and there is nothing wrong to have it. But my problem is with the pretence of enjoyment.

The moment we open our Facebook account, we become subject to certain rules which put limitations on the self-mastery or individuality of enjoyment. For example, sometimes we like those photos or posts of friends that we do not want to like but have to like because we also want to get our posts and photos liked. Therefore, we create a market for those products which give us a sense of enjoyment.

It is because of a discourse that Facebook is always treated as an instrument of spreading happiness. But with a closer psychological analysis we will find that it is at the same time an instrument of spreading jealousy, enmity, and unhappiness. The problem with this new market and its product of enjoyment is that it tells us how we can make ourselves happy, and not how we can make ourselves worthy of happiness.

The need of the hour is to examine the unexamined rules of enjoyment, to challenge the producers of enjoyment discourse who have played an authoritarian role in giving meaning to our emotions without our consent. We need to preserve and protect the individuality of enjoyment to make it worthy.

Advent of inevitable water wars

Water is largely limited and has no alternative. Global demographics are changing and population is spiking like never before. These factors call for a cohesive international effort to forestall the water shortages of the future. And by so, we will be able to forestall the conflicts as well

KOTA SRIRAJ

Each one of us have already experienced the impact of water shortages at some point of our lives and definitely expressed our gratitude when the scarcity passed. However, these instances of water shortages might come back sooner than expected and might, perhaps, stay permanently. Water scarcity is the lack of sufficient available water resources to meet the demands of water usage within a region. It affects every continent and around 2.8 billion people across the world at least one month out of every year. More than 1.2 billion people lack access to clean drinking water.

Water scarcity can manifest itself as water stress, shortage or deficits and water crisis. While the concept of water stress is relatively new, it may refer to the difficulty in obtaining fresh water sources and the deterioration and depletion of the available water sources.

Water shortages may be caused due to climate change factors such as altered weather patterns, including droughts or floods, increased pollution, rise in human demand and overuse of water. Water crisis is a situation where the available potable, unpolluted water within a region is less than that demanded by the region. Many countries across the world are already grappling with different manifestations of water problems.

Given the sensitivity of the issue of water scarcity, the World Economic Forum has already listed this problem as one of the largest global risk in terms of potential impact over the next decade. Currently, a mere 0.014 per cent of all water on Earth is fresh and easily accessible. Of the remaining water, 97 per cent is saline and a little less than three per cent is hard to access.

Though there is sufficient amount of freshwater on the global scale, due to unequal distribution and worsening climate change, some geographic locations have ample availability whereas the rest are exceptionally dry. This accompanied by a sharp rise in global freshwater demand in recent decades, driven by industry, is causing humanity to experience water crisis like never before. If this continues, the demand for water is expected to outstrip supply by 40 per cent by 2030. This is bound to give rise to conflicts.

The ongoing tussle between India and Pakistan over Indus waters is an apt example of the conflict that we are increasingly bound to notice in other parts of the world as well. For decades, the Indus Waters Treaty kept the two countries from entering into a full-fledged conflict but that seems to be a thing of the past as exploding population, worsened by climate change, is forcing the neighbours to fight for every bit of the natural resource. So much so that even cross-border terrorism is now a subject of discussion around which the sharing of waters is concerned. This was bound to happen.

Where there is sufficient resource, there is never a conflict but when the same becomes scarce, it brings conflicts of scale. Tired of one-way courtesies from its side in the face of relentless cross-border and state-sponsored terrorism by Pakistan, India is now changing gears and water has become a diplomatic leverage weapon. India recently fast-tracked hydropower projects worth $15 billion in Kashmir. Projects in the form of nine dams will be completed following the due procedures and requisite clearances. These dams will help Pakistan understand that the act of abetting terrorism has led to a cost where an already scarce resource is all set to become even scantier.

Apart from this, many other countries across the world are already locked in conflict over water resources. The Nile basin water, for instance, has been a source of dispute between Egypt and Ethiopia as is the Turkey, Syria and Iraq conflict over the waters of Tigris-Euphrates. These conflicts seem to be only rising.

Even within the country, India has seen ample disputes between various States, such as the Cauvery river dispute between Karnataka and Tamil Nadu. As climate gets worse, aided by global warming, these face-offs will only get worse. The solution is to change the focus from right-based claims on waters to need-based claims.

Countries need to appreciate that some regions have more need for water than the other, purely due to the punishing impact of climate change, population explosion or a recent drought. In these circumstances, stakeholders must put aside matters of rights over waters and adopt a humanitarian approach and let the other side survive through the tough period by getting access to more water.

In order to allow humanitarian spirit guide the water matters, Governments must be strong enough to allow mature dialogue between stakeholders. This will surely dissuade conflicts and discourage warmongers who tend to accelerate resource clashes into bigger conflicts for certain gains.

This, unfortunately, results in armed engagements which results in loss of lives. Water is largely limited and has no alternative. Global demographics are changing and population is spiking like never before. These factors call for a cohesive and united international effort to forestall the water shortages of future. And by so, we will be able to forestall the conflicts as well.

HARPING ON BIAS ALLEGATIONS

Google has gotten ahead of the impending debate by signaling its support for a federal privacy framework, but it's up to lawmakers to turn vague protection principles into meaningful policy. That means ensuring users know and have some say in what data companies are collecting from them, exactly what it is being used for and who else is getting to see it.

India's air connectivity grew fastest in five years, says IATA

PTI ■ GENEVA
India's air connectivity has grown the fastest in the last five years and there is "strong growth" ahead in terms of domestic passenger numbers though there are infrastructure challenges, according to global airlines' body IATA.
India is the fastest growing domestic aviation market in the world, IATA's Chief Economist Brian Pearce said. The country registered double-digit growth in domestic aviation market for the 50th consecutive month in October.
An analysis by the International Airport Transport Association (IATA) showed that air connectivity grew the fastest at 114 per cent in the five-year period from 2013-2018.
"Many of the markets where connectivity has grown fastest, unsurprisingly are in Asia - India (114 per cent), China and Indonesia..." the grouping said in a presentation during the Global Media Day here.
As per the IATA, which is a grouping of around 290 air-

Legacy staff cost, tariff war, absence of 4G service plaguing MTNL

PTI ■ NEW DELHI
The Government on Wednesday said legacy staff cost, cut throat tariff war, and absence of 4G services are some of the major reasons for losses at State-owned telecom firm MTNL.
Telecom Minister Manoj Sinha informed the Lok Sabha that the Department of Telecom has received revival plan of MTNL, which has been declared 'Incipient Sick', as per the Department of Public Enterprises guidelines.
Mahanagar Telephone Nigam Limited (MTNL) has licence to operate in Delhi and Mumbai.
"One of the major reasons for losses of MTNL is huge legacy staff cost. Besides, the service revenue is declining due to intense competition resulting into cut throat tariffs, inability of MTNL to infuse capital expenditure (CAPEX) to upgrade its network. All pri-

Rupee tumbles 16 paise, breaches 72-mark vs USD

PTI ■ MUMBAI
The rupee declined by 16 paise to close at 72.01 against the US dollar Wednesday amid strengthening of the greenback and rising crude oil prices even as the equity markets staged a sharp upmove.
At the Interbank Foreign Exchange (forex) market, the local unit opened lower at 72.10 and fell further to touch the day's low of 72.17.
The domestic currency, however, pared some losses and finally ended at 72.01 per dollar, down by 16 paise against its previous close.
On Tuesday, the Indian rupee had plunged 53 paise to 71.85 per US dollar.
The weakness in the rupee comes amid the prompt appointment of former bureaucrat Shaktikanta Das as the new RBI Governor.
Fitch Ratings on Wednesday said the resignation of Urjit Patel as Reserve Bank Governor highlights the risks to RBI's policy priorities and increased Government influence on the central bank could under-

Axis Bank launches QuikPay Home Loan; a Monthly Instalments Plan

PNS ■ NEW DELHI
Axis Bank, the country's third largest private bank, today launched 'QuikPay Home Loan', a home loan offering that will let home buyers save the interest amount component of the loan. QuikPay Home Loan will offer an alternative repayment structure, wherein the customer repays an equal amount of principal every month along with interest on the outstanding balance.
Thus an equated principal amount combined with reducing interest amount component will lead to reducing monthly instalments. As a result, there will be an overall reduction in total interest amount component paid over the entire tenure of the home loan, thereby benefiting the customer.
Instead of EMIs (equated monthly instalments), the customer will pay reducing monthly instalments. While the initial instalments will be higher (than the EMI on the same loan amount for the same tenure), the instalment amount keeps reducing throughout the loan tenure.
mine the efforts to address bad loan problems.
Forex traders said the rupee came under pressure following strengthening of the dollar against major global currencies overseas and rise in crude oil prices. However, a significant surge in domestic equities capped the fall.
The BSE Sensex zoomed 629.06 points, or 1.79 per cent, to end at 35,779.07, while the broader NSE Nifty rallied 188.45 points, or 1.79 per cent, to 10,737.60.
Brent crude, the international benchmark, was trading at $61.23 per barrel Wednesday, higher by 1.71 per cent.
The Financial Benchmark India Private Ltd (FBIL) set the reference rate for the rupee/dollar at 72.0407 and for rupee/euro at 81.5928.
The reference rate for rupee/British pound was fixed at 90.0393 and for rupee/100 Japanese yen was 63.50.

Sensex soars 630 points, Nifty reclaims 10,700-mark

PTI ■ MUMBAI

The BSE Sensex zoomed 629.06 points, or 1.79 per cent, to end at 35,779.07, while the broader NSE Nifty rallied 188.45 points, or 1.79 per cent, to 10,737.60.

Analysts said the quick appointment of the new RBI governor and expectations of more steps to ease the liquidity situation bolstered trading sentiment. Former economic affairs secretary Shaktikanta Das Wednesday assumed charge as the 25th governor of the RBI. He replaces Urjit Patel, who abruptly resigned amid a faceoff with the government over issues related to governance and autonomy of the central bank. On the appointment, SBI Chairman Rajnish Kumar said: "This will ensure continuity in monetary policy making and regulatory measures even as the global economy is passing through uncertain times. The financial markets will also significantly benefit from the appointment of newly appointed Governor given his rich prior experience in fiscal policies and trade. This will also ensure a convergence of domestic and external policies." Meanwhile, foreign funds sold shares worth ₹2,421.06 crore on a net basis Tuesday, while domestic institutional investors bought equities worth Rs 2,255.68 crore, provisional data showed. Brent crude oil futures was trading 1.86 per cent higher at USD 61.32 per barrel. Elsewhere in Asia, Korea's Kospi rose 1.44 per cent, Japan's Nikkei soared 2.15 per cent, Hong Kong's Hang Seng surged 1.61 per cent and Shanghai Composite Index inched up 0.31 per cent. # Mutual funds log ₹1.4L crore inflows in Nov

New Delhi: Investors pumped in over Rs 1.4 lakh crore into various mutual fund schemes in November, with liquid schemes accounting for most of the inflows. With the latest inflow, the total infusion in mutual fund (MF) schemes reached about ₹2.23 crore in the first eight months (April-November) of the current fiscal, latest data with the Association of Mutual Funds in India (Amfi) showed.

"We appreciate the maturity shown by retail investors in staying invested in the markets, in spite of the volatility over the last few months," Amfi chief eExecutive N S Venkatesh said. "Overall, both inflows and AUM have shown an upward trend. The industry added over 1.5 lakh unique investors last month," he added. According to the data, investors poured in a net ₹1,42,359 crore in MF schemes last month, compared to an investment of Rs 35,529 crore in October. However, they had pulled out ₹2.3 lakh crore in September, which market participants attributed to nervousness among corporate investors following the IL&FS default.

GST evasion worth ₹12,000 cr detected between Apr-Nov

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The government has detected GST evasion worth ₹12,000 crore in 8 months till November, a senior tax official said Wednesday. Central Board of Indirect Taxes and Customs (CBIC) member John Joseph said despite the electronic way or E-way bill mechanism there has been rampant evasion and there is a need to increase compliance. "We started anti-evasion measures from April onwards, and from April-November we have detected ₹12,000 crore of GST evasion. This is huge compared to what happened in central excise or service tax side. There is huge evasion. There are smarter guys out-side who knows how to pocket the money," Joseph said addressing an Assocham event. Joseph, who looks after investigation in the CBIC, said almost Rs 8,000 crore worth GST evasion has been recovered by the tax official. Goods and Services Tax (GST), which subsumed 17 local taxes, including excise duty and service tax, was introduced on July 1, 2017. Since it was a new tax, the government had decided to go slow on enforcement action in the initial months of its implementation. Joseph said only 5-10 per cent of the 1.2 crore assessee are evading GST and bringing a bad name to the industry. "We need to improve compliance mechanism." On industry concerns as to whether a change in government might lead to an overhaul of the GST process, Joseph said: "With all the apprehensions that you have, whether the election results are going to be bad for the GST or not, I can tell you very clearly that the same politicians whether in opposition or ruling party, they all came together to conceive this. "There may be some changes in law, some procedural changes can definitely happen, but it will not be lock, stock, and barrel as in the case of Malaysia." He said the GST Council, comprising the Centre and states, had taken all decision relating to the new indirect tax regime. The CBIC member also said the new GST return forms will have a beta version initially, so that industry has enough time to suggest what could be done to improve the quality of returns. In July, the CBIC had put up in public domain draft GST return forms 'Sahaj' and 'Sugam' and sought public comments.

May to face no-confidence vote

PTI ■ LONDON

Embattled British Prime Minister Theresa May will face a vote of no-confidence on Wednesday triggered by her own party lawmakers over her handling of the controversial Brexit deal, as she vowed to fight the latest challenge to her leadership with "everything I have got".

May is set to face a vote of no-confidence in her leadership after the required 48 MPs from her Conservative Party filed letters with the influential 1922 Committee, which represents rank-and-file Conservative MPs in the House of Commons.

"I will contest that vote with everything I have got," May said in a statement at Downing Street, warning that the leadership challenge will delay or even cancel Brexit.

"I stand ready to finish the job," the 62-year-old Prime Minister said.

May, who has been prime minister since shortly after the UK voted to leave the 28-member European Union in June, 2016, has faced criticism in her party for the Brexit plan she has negotiated.

Theresa May leaves 10 Downing Street to attend the weekly Prime Minister's Questions session, at Parliament in London on Wednesday

The vote, triggered amid ongoing divisions over her Brexit deal, will take place in the form of a secret ballot on Wednesday evening.

May will need to convince a majority of MPs (158 out of 315 Conservative MPs) to be able to win the vote and then her leadership cannot be challenged for at least a year under Tory party rules.

so far at least 147 Tory MPs have publicly said they will vote for her, with many of her Cabinet ministers coming out in her support.

However, if she loses, the party will have to elect a new leader who will then go on to become the next British Prime Minister.

Some possible frontrunners being named in the UK media include former foreign secretary Boris Johnson, current foreign secretary Jeremy Hunt, home secretary Sajid Javid and work and pensions secretary Amber Rudd. But there does not seem to be a candidate with consensus across the pro and anti Brexit wings within the Tory party.

If there are multiple candidates, Conservative MPs hold a series of votes to choose two to go forward to a vote of all party members. As leader of the largest party in the House of Commons, the new Conservative leader would then be expected to be asked to form a government and become Prime Minister, without the need for a general election.

British PM faces angry MPs with Brexit deal in limbo

AFP ■ LONDON

Prime Minister Theresa May faces an angry parliament on Wednesday after delaying a key vote on her Brexit deal in a desperate move that leaves the agreement and her own future in limbo. The British leader toured European capitals on Tuesday in an attempt to salvage the deal, after MPs savaged its provisions on the issue of the Irish border.

May said she wanted "assurances" from EU leaders that if Britain ever entered the so-called "backstop" arrangement for the border, this would only be "temporary".

But she also said it was "the best deal available", adding: "There's no deal available that doesn't have a backstop".

She received sympathy from EU partners but firm rejections of any attempt to reopen the agreement, which was approved by EU leaders last month following tortuous negotiations.

"There is no room whatsoever for renegotiation but of course there is room, if used intelligently, to give further clarification," European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker said ahead of talks with May on Tuesday.

GLOBE TROTTER

UN PUSHES FOR TRUCE CORRIDORS AT YEMEN

Rimbo (Sweden): Mediators in UN-brokered talks on Yemen pushed on Wednesday for a truce between warring parties as a crucial step to allow aid deliveries, with 24 hours left in the negotiations. Mediators are seeking a de-escalation of violence in two flashpoint cities: rebel-held Hodeida, a port city vital to the supply of humanitarian aid, and Taiz, Yemen's third largest city, scene of some of the war's most intense fighting.

27 TERRORISTS KILLED IN SINAI, BORDER WITH LIBYA

Cairo: Egypt says its security forces have killed at least 27 suspected terrorists in the restive northern Sinai Peninsula and along its porous border with Libya.

SWEDEN FREEZES SUPPORT TO UN AIDS

Stockholm: Sweden said on Wednesday it was freezing its support to UNAIDS until its executive director is removed, after an expert report blasted the agency's leadership for systematically failing to address bullying, abuse and sexual harassment. The Swedish Govt has no confidence in Michel Sidibe to lead the organisation.

Malaysian ex-PM slapped with new charge over 1MDB scandal

AP ■ KUALA LUMPUR

Former Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak was charged on Wednesday with tampering with the final audit report on a defunct state investment fund, adding to a long list of corruption allegations against him since his ouster in May elections.

Najib was charged along with Arul Kanda Kandasamy, the former head of the 1MDB fund, which is being investigated in the US and other countries for alleged cross-border embezzlement and money laundering.

Najib pleaded not guilty to abusing his power in ordering the modification of the report in February 2016 before it was presented to the Public Accounts Committee, in order to protect himself from disciplinary and legal action. Kandasamy, who was detained overnight by anti-graft officials, pleaded not guilty to abetting Najib. The charges came after the auditor-general revealed last month that some details had been removed from the 1MDB report.

Blow to Prez as Lankan Parl adopts confidence motion on ousted PM

PTI ■ COLOMBO

Sri Lanka's ousted prime minister Ranil Wickremesinghe emphatically proved his majority in Parliament on Wednesday, weeks after being sacked by President Maithripala Sirisena in a controversial move that plunged the island nation into a political turmoil.

As many as 117 out of 225 lawmakers in Parliament voted to pass a confidence motion in his leadership.

The motion's approval could be seen as a blow to President Sirisena who has steadfastly refused to reapoint 69-year-old Wickremesinghe due to his personal dislike of the ousted prime minister.

Sri Lanka is going through a major political crisis since October 26 when President Maithripala Sirisena, in a controversial move, removed Wickremesinghe and installed ex-strongman Mahinda Rajapaksa in his place.

Rajapaksa has so far failed to prove his majority in Parliament. The main Tamil minority party TNA voted in favour of the confidence motion. However, the Marxist JVP, which has protested Sirisena's extra constitutional action, abstained from voting.

If the Janatha Vimukthi Peramuna (JVP)'s six lawmakers had voted in his favour, Wickremesinghe would have commanded an unassailable majority in the House despite the president's refusal to reinstate him.

Pope removes 2 scandal-hit cardinals from inner circle

AFP ■ VATICAN CITY

Pope Francis has removed two prominent cardinals from his inner circle months after they were tainted by paedophile scandals.

Australian Cardinal George Pell and Chilean Cardinal Francisco Javier Errazuriz were both removed from the so-called C9 Council of Cardinals, an international advice body set up by Francis himself, the Vatican said Wednesday.

The last time the C9 met in September, Errazuriz, who is accused of ignoring reports of abuse in Chile, and Pell, who faces charges in Australia related to historical child sexual offences, were both absent, and the council said it was considering restructuring.

Pakistan rejects US blacklisting over religious freedom violations

PTI ■ ISLAMABAD

Pakistan on Wednesday rejected as "unilateral and politically motivated" the US' decision to place it on its blacklist of nations that infringe on religious freedom, saying the Muslim-majority country is a multi-religious and pluralistic society where people of diverse faiths live together.

Some 350 people, including police, troops and helicopters were on the heels of the attacker who had "sowed terror" in the city, Interior Minister Christophe Castaner said.

Trump notes Strasbourg shooting to press for US border wall

AFP ■ WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump pointed on Wednesday to the mass shooting at a Christmas market in France to bolster his demands for funding to build a US border wall with Mexico.

Trump's tweet linking the issues came despite the fact that the suspect in Tuesday's attack in Strasbourg, France, is a native of the city with a criminal past and extremist views.

'I am very happy to be receiving the Norwegian award. It's such an honour. Any type of award especially this, really means a lot to me. Any encouragement means the world to me. I hope to keep on doing good work which makes my audience happy.'
—Janhvi Kapoor

Actor SUNIL GROVER, who will be next seen in Ali Abbas Zafar's directorial Bharat, has said that he doesn't know any human being and artist who is as disciplined as Salman Khan in the film industry. Sunil was interacting with the media at the 18th edition of Indian Television Awards (ITA) 2018. Sunil said: "I haven't seen a more disciplined human being and artist than Salman. He does a lot of work at one time. He does shoots for his current films and at the same time, he listens to scripts which he will be doing in the year 2032. He is a very busy artist."

Pratt lost a little weight with fasting

Actor CHRIS PRATT says intermittent fasting has helped him to lose a little weight.

The star, 39, is famously fit after years of training for his various superhero roles, and this time around he is trying out the popular diet plan, which involves fasting for most of the day and eating only during a shortened time period. "I'm doing intermittent fasting; don't eat till noon, try to get my cardio in in the morning. It's super exciting actor stuff," Pratt joked on his Instagram story.

The tech industry is sitting on the edge of a major turnaround with new breakthroughs happening every third day. At this time, it becomes important that we look-out for what the future of industry would be like. We haven't seen an era in which such fast-paced and rapid technological changes took place every day. In 2018, there were overnight transformations in domains like artificial intelligence (AI), cloud computing, machine learning and more. The year 2019, however, is bound to bring even better hopes and prospects for the industry. Moreover, since technology is directly connected to trade and growth in industry, it is bound to have implications on business development on a global scale. Here are six major IT trends to watch out for in 2019.

CHATBOTS WILL GET MAINSTREAM
Owing to Machine Learning, Natural Language Processing (NLP) is taking multiple strides forward. NLP allows companies to gain immense insight into the users and customers so that the customer services can be improved and better products can be built. It is predicted that more than 40 per cent of the companies will adopt it by the end of 2019 for better services and products.

CONNECTED CLOUDS WILL GROW
There seems to be a growing dependence on cloud support for services such as storage, data analytics, optimisation and much more. Organisations such as Amazon and Alibaba have been providing these services for a while now and they are only bound to grow branching into many different domains and verticals. Multi Clouds and Hybrid Clouds seem to be the buzzwords and the major things they provide include seamless, secure and streamlined services.

MILLENNIUM TECH

From facial recognition to autonomous driving, technology has been backed by some overnight changes in the past year. Here are a few IT trends that are predicted to grow big in 2019. By SUMIT PEER

THE ESSENCE OF BLOCKCHAIN

Blockchain technology has been under the limelight for quite some time now and has been projected to be the next big tech break. Although it does seem like blockchain still requires a lot of clean-up before it can be implemented in mainstream markets, especially in financial sectors. This might be the year of realising the better potential of the block chain and in a couple of years, we will see the traction that it has promised.

DATA SAFETY AT FRONTLINE

Data protection regulations such as

GDPR aim to provide a huge layer of data protection to various users. As of now, data protection and safety is still not the priority of various organisations such as news reporting companies, which deal with huge amounts of information. In 2019, however, it would be common as informed customers will understand, require and seek the companies which truly protect their data and can be relied upon.

C-SUITE PROFESSIONALS WILL TAKE CHARGE

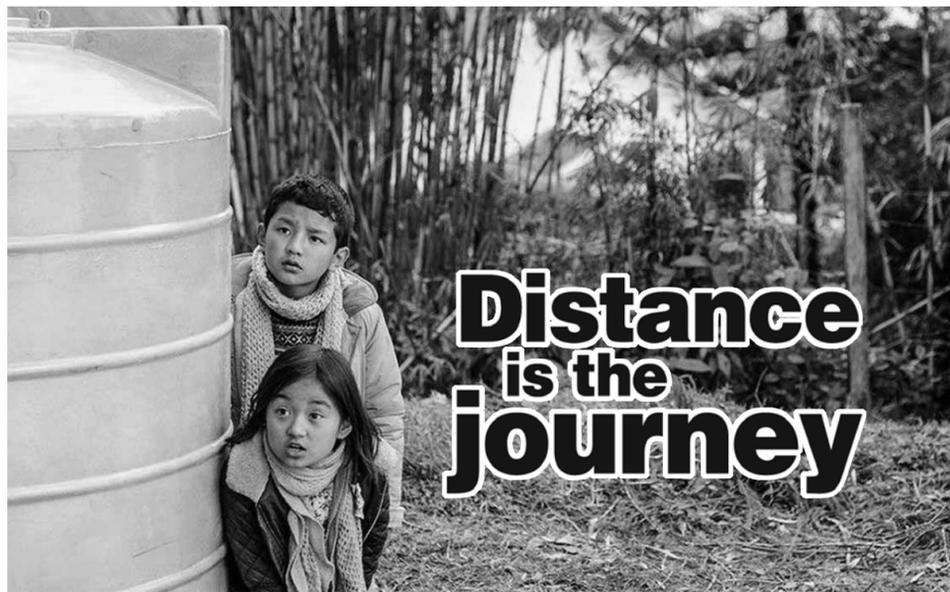

C-Suite professionals are bound to start taking charge according to the demands of digital transformations. The management will make it a priority to hire and take steps in the direction of alignment with the digital transformation.

Furthermore, they would have to understand that they require a critical nature in their organisation that ensures that is geared for change and reformation as and when required by the tech industry.

DUELLING AI

AI and Machine Learning have been growing in the past couple of years and Duelling AI is possibly the next big breakthrough. This concept is termed as "generative adversarial networks" which essentially makes use of two separate learning networks that make each other learn and in the process train each other to become more efficient.

Actor-turned-director, PAAKHI A TYREWALA's unusual viewpoint comes forth in her film Pahuna, The Little Visitors that talks of displacement and identity. By SAIMI SATTAR

What are you telling children when they see Bollywood? You go, fall in love and that is the end of life. Or that you should go find a villain and beat the crap out of him. We are constantly reiterating that either you are a hero or a cricketer or you are no one," says Paakhi A Tyrewala, director, Pahuna, The Little Visitors, a film that looks at displacement from the point of view of two young children and an infant. She feels that her upbringing in Delhi's Press Enclave, where "Bollywood was never a part of the conversation, rather we heard about Nelson Mandela and Africa, academics and theatre music, which made for a rich experience while growing up," has influenced the subject as well as the sensibilities of the films that she prefers to make.

"The whole reason for creating content for children is to put forth that it does not matter whether you are a hero or a superhero but if you are yourself, you are special. This inculcates self-worth and also gives them good values. My film is about peace," she says. The idea of displacement is emmeshed with that of identity as well as communal disharmony. "The fear of the other — that of Muslims, Hindus or Christians — gets transferred to children." The film tackles all these issues — communal fear, displacement or different language, discord in society and how children suffer on account of it. It was the opening film at the Smile International Film Festival for Children and Youth (SIFFCY) 2018.

The film is shot in Sikkim, which makes for a gorgeous backdrop. Paakhi says, "Like every beautiful woman, it is difficult. The oxygen level is low, the weather is inhospitable and every location is at least one to two hours away. It wasn't easy but was worth it."

The film courted controversy on account of its location as its producer Priyanka Chopra inadvertently said that Sikkim was a disturbed state while it is one of the most peaceful ones in the country. Paakhi says that she is glad that the issue came up because it helped to bring the state on the national TV and map. "Do you know that the average footfall of Sikkim tourism off season was the highest this year? So we are not complaining, neither is Sikkim. It was a mistake she made and sometimes that is a good thing," she says. Paakhi has been a child actor who went on to star opposite actor John Abraham in Jhootha Hi Sahi (2010). She was an assistant director. She believes that each of her profiles added to her craft. "I did not go to a film school. Each of my job was my schooling. When I directed my first song in Jaane Tu Ya Jaane Na, it gave me confidence to direct my first short film, Kajal. Acting made me more sensitive to actors. It is not easy to be natural in front of the camera. Costumes, lighting, everything takes time and since I have worked in each of these, I understand what goes into every department. This has given me not only patience but also taught me how to manage people which is the primary job of a director. One has to get the best out of people and every department," says Paakhi.

While she has worked in different aspects of filmmaking, her family was far-removed from it. "My mother was a theatre actor in Delhi with a group called Abhyant. Then she became a lecturer at NSD. My father was a journalist and my brother went to FTII. So I had always been surrounded by a creative atmosphere. Plus I was a child actor in Doordarshan serials and advertisements," says the director who acted in a movie called Dance of the Wind with Rajan Khosla.

Paakhi is also keen to explore the digital format. "The format is longer and it is much more satisfying. For both the writer and the director, it is amazing to develop a story over seasons while the film is two and a half hours long. It also gives you a platform to tell stories where you can play with the shades of the characters," she says.

However, many of the digital formats have been garnering negative publicity for the lack of censorship and explicit content. "Initially when they were making content, they were only focussing on delivering sex and it did not do well. Indians do not like their women naked. They will watch porn if they want to. Now, everybody is making edgy content with alcohol, cigarettes and violence but not sex," she says.

So does she see content finally having its place in the sun as opposed to the intense focus on superstars? "I hope the story will in the spotlight one day. Even actors like Rajkumar Rao, Sushant Singh Rajput or Vicky Kaushal have now become stars. The producer says that if you can't get the Khans, you can at least cast them. No one is ready to take first timers. Once that happens, I'll believe content is king. So that way things haven't really changed," she says as she signs off to further expand her horizons.

'Acting skills aren't technical'

Kannada actor YASH tells CHAHAK MITTAL how diving into the mindset of the audience helps him select his roles and films

There may be a difference in dal aur roti and sambhar aur dosa, but North and South India is united in its choice of films. People love everything — Bollywood, Tollywood and Kollywood. The popularity of South Indian cinema has peaked in north, with films like Baahubali and Kaala breaking all box office records.

Actor Yash, who will soon be seen in Prashanth Neel's KGF: Chapter 1, believes that South Indian cinema has a lot to offer and with its growing popularity, it is gaining worldwide acclaims.

The film, set in the 1980s in the Kolar Gold Fields of Mysore, showcases him as Rocky, who is "highly ambitious, loves his wife while his mother is his greatest inspiration. He is someone who isn't bothered about the world." The film focusses on slavery and oppression of the downtrodden sections of the society who worked at the gold fields.

Yash explains that even though he could relate to the character who is ambitious and stylish, strong and lovable, there were a number of challenges that he faced. "The biggest challenge while playing any character is to understand it deeply. I related to some of Rocky's elements, emotions, and style, that was not it. Portraying his laidback attitude towards the world, which I had to express through my body language, was a challenging task. It had to be subtle yet strong. There were minimal but very impactful dialogues."

The film's trailer, that was released in November, presents high definition visuals, that would remind one of Rajamouli's Baahubali, which was the most expensive film in South Indian cinema. KGF is also projected to be one of the largest Kannada productions. So will it be as big as Baahubali?

Yash says, "It's great that the trailer was received so well by the viewers. But since the themes and background vary, both the films cannot be compared." KGF will be released pan India in five languages including Hindi, Kannada, Malayalam, Tamil and Telugu on December 21.

The actor is known for his roles in numerous Kannada films like Googly, Lucky, Gajakesari, Modalasala, Thamassu, Jaanu.

So how does he select his roles? Yash explains that understanding the audience's mindset is the most important thing while choosing a particular role.

"I don't just pick up a certain character to play. I first try to become one among the audience, re-read the scripts over and over, understand what they will think about the character and the film, and then choose any particular role."

The actor's point of view is really important because eventually they are the ones who judge a film and determine its popularity. Humans and their emotions are universal. So when you understand the audience's perspective, you understand the film too."

The actor who always "wanted to be a hero," holds a similar approach when it comes to being an actor as well. He says, "It's a filmy story. I always wanted to be an actor since childhood. But I realised that understanding life is the key to becoming an actor. Acting skills aren't technical. You just need maturity to contain them." He laughingly tells how his parents were against sending him to an acting school.

The actor believes that the Indian industry has evolved to a higher discourse from the 'boy meets girl or girl meets boy' film era. "There is a very high level of exposure today. Its source is more international content that is now coming in. The films are based on a more realistic content these days, either on a famous personality or any historical event. KGF is a fictitious film but is based on the realms of the Kolar gold fields which were a great heritage of India."

He believes that with the advent of digital space, "variety of films and genres have expanded."

ZERO WILL CONNECT WITH CHILDREN

Director-producer Anand Rai believes that children will enjoy the film Zero and Anushka Sharma's character is the primary reason.

Anand Rai, throughout the shoot, used to tell us on the sets that Anushka's character will have a huge connect with kids. When he wrote the character, he had this in mind and always called Aafia a very special character. She is a very lovable and smart person, she is a genius and has her heart in the right place. She is full of life despite her disabilities, which is a hugely positive angle in the film and the director always felt that it will be one of the strong emotional reasons why people, especially children will love Aafia," reveals a source.

Anushka has gone all out to prepare for her role in Zero.

She went through a rigorous three month prep and worked with two professional trainers — an occupational therapist and an audiologist — to get into the skin of her character, who is suffering from cerebral palsy. She used wheel-chair all the time on set to stay in her character. The film releases on December 21.

HAIL AND 'HEARTY'

The state-of-the-art technology and expertise of the doctors at the Indraprastha Apollo Hospital ensured that a 20-day old baby boy underwent a successful arterial switch surgery for the treatment of 'transposition of great arteries'

His body was turning blue so, the parents took him to a local doctor in their area where his echo was done. The reports revealed that he has transposition of great arteries. In transposition of the great arteries, the aorta is connected to the right ventricle, and the pulmonary artery is connected to the left ventricle, which is the exact opposite of a normal heart anatomy.

Dr. Muthu Jothi

At the time of admission at the Indraprastha Apollo Hospital, the child was on ventilation and weighed only 2.2 kg. The doctors had earlier decided to allow the child to grow a bit and weigh at least 2.8 to 3 kg before performing the major, open heart surgery. For the same, the baby was kept in critical care on ventilation for a week, but unfortunately his condition didn't improve and he was not able to come off the ventilator. Every time the doctors tried to take him off the ventilation or lower the ventilation, he would experience breathlessness and turn blue. Considering the criticality of the baby's condition, Dr Jothi, along with team of expert cardiologist, anaesthetist and intensivists, decided to perform the five hour-long surgical procedure on the child

"Considering the weight of the child being 2.2 kg, the surgery had a high risk. We had performed many such surgeries before, but this patient weighed the lowest and we generally don't perform a surgery on a patient with this low weight. I had quoted a risk of about 25-40 per cent, which is a huge risk, but considering the child's condition and only after the family's consent, we performed the surgery. In order to treat the disease we performed an Arterial Switch Operation, in which the aorta and the coronary arteries are disconnected from their place and are adjusted in the right place. Along with the arterial switch, the closure of VSD and ASD were done," explained Dr Jothi.

Post the surgery, the child recuperated enough to be sent home after 10-12 days which is not usually the case. The child is now doing absolutely fine and is also gaining weight gradually, informed the doctor.

The father of the baby boy, Vinod, commented, "We cannot thank Dr Jothi enough for the miracle that he has done. He successfully performed the surgery even when our child was underweight and today, he is alive, all because of him. Our child has got a new life at the Apollo Hospitals."

Identifying some of the causes to such a disease, Dr Jothi elaborated, "There is no specific cause behind this disease. However, factors such as, an elderly primi i.e. mother is of an old age, consanguineous marriage i.e. marriage with a close cousin or within the family, poor nutrition during pregnancy, or if the mother catches an infection and is on antibiotics in the initial three months during foetus development, or women who smoke or drink excessively, have higher chances of giving birth to babies with this condition."

Rooting out child marriages in Bihar

India continues to be home to the highest number of under age brides globally and Kishori Clubs are trying to address the issue in Bihar, says PRIYANKA SHAH

Adolescent-led girls' groups in Bihar have shown leadership to deal with an issue that affects them directly—child marriage. Over 3,000 girls are a part of the Kishori Clubs set up by the Population Foundation of India, in four blocks of the Nawada and Darbhanga districts in Bihar. The groups have been galvanised as part of a programme to improve the health and rights of the adolescents.

The adolescent girls of the Kishori Clubs raise awareness in their communities and families, and take action to stop child marriages. They have successfully prevented at least 92 child marriages in their villages.

Mausam Kumari, a Kishori Club member from the Nawada district, recounts one instance where they intervened to stop a child marriage. She says, "One day, I received a call from my mother while in college, years. Mausam says that her life changed after joining the Kishori Club. "Earlier, we were not allowed to leave the house but now, we travel more freely. We have had to be stubborn and fearless to deal with the people judging us, but we have been able to convince others to join the Club as well. The Club allows us to talk about issues we cannot discuss at home. It has given us confidence to be self-reliant," adds Mausam.

Child marriage robs one of their childhood, an education and the right to live a healthy and safe life. Despite child marriage being a criminal offence, India is home to the highest number of child brides in the world. Approximately 20 per cent girls (15-19 years) in Bihar were married off before the age of 18 years, according to the 'India Child Marriage and Pregnancy Report' based on the National Family Health Survey-IV (NFHS) data. Despite all odds, Mausam and her friends continue to exemplify valour in the face of deep-seated prejudice and violence. Safe spaces, like the Kishori Clubs, play an important role in harnessing youth leadership in hard-to-reach communities and empower girls to have a voice of their own.

When the families refused to call off the wedding, the girls involved the police. They then managed to prevent the marriage, along with a signed undertaking, stating that the family will not get their daughter married before she turns 18

INDIA CHASE SLICE OF HISTORY

Manpreet & boys look to capitalise golden opportunity against Netherlands and seal semifinal spot

PTI ■ BHUBANESWAR

Their shoulders are burdened with weight of expectations but it won't be easy for India to end a 43-year long wait when they take on mighty Netherlands in the quarterfinal on Thursday.

Boasting a rich hockey legacy, India last played in the semi-final of the World Cup way back in 1975 when they went on to lift their maiden title.

Of late, the game has witnessed an upward trend in the country but the history does not favour the hosts against the mighty Dutchmen, whom the Indians have never beaten in the World Cup.

In the six earlier meetings at the quadrennial event, Netherlands defeated India five times while one ended in a draw.

And if Manpreet Singh and his men get past the Dutch on Thursday, they will not only break a jinx but also rewrite history and ink their names in the one of the golden chapters of the Indian hockey.

Going by present form and rankings, there is hardly anything to differentiate between the two sides.

While Netherlands are placed fourth in the current world rankings, India are a rung below in the fifth position.

The last time India and Netherlands faced each in the Champions Trophy earlier this, the match had ended in a 1-1 draw.

The over-all head-to-head record belongs to Netherlands. In the 105 games played between the two sides so far, India have won 33, lost 48 while the rest ended in draws.

However, the two sides have shared the spoils since 2013. India and Netherlands have faced each other nine times since 2013, winning four apiece while one game finished in a draw.

And for India captain Manpreet Singh past results hold significance.

"The past results matter a lot because Netherlands have a better result against us. But, we have played well against them recently. We have also beaten them, drew against them at the Champions Trophy. Indian hockey has improved a lot. The match will be tough and whichever team plays better will win," Manpreet said.

The India-Netherlands duel is expected to be a fast-paced, attacking encounter with both the teams heavily relying on their goal scoring abilities to come out winners.

Both India and Netherlands have scored heavily in the poll stages. While India have scored 12 goals and conceded three, the Dutch have pumped in 13 goals and conceded five.

In the likes of captain Billy Bakker, Seve van Ass, Jeroen Hertzberger, Mirco Pruijser, Robert Kemperman, Thiery Brinkman, the Dutch have got plenty of experience in the midfield and its strike force. It will be a real test for the Indian defence on Thursday.

The Indians too would be relying on their strikers - Mandeep Singh, Simranjeet Singh, Lalit Upadhyay and Akashdeep Singh - to continue their good work.

With the Kalinga Stadium expected to be packed to its full capacity, there will also be tremendous pressure on the Indian team and the Dutch will be more than happy to exploit any mistake.

"This will not be the first time. We have played in front of big crowds in pool games and in the past as well. We are used to playing in front of big crowds," Netherlands coach Max Caldas said.

"We always try to play in our own pace, whether it is fast or slow. We like to dictate. We are not concerned about India because we can't influence what India will do."

Netherlands skipper Bakker added: "The Indian team also has lot of pressure. They need to perform in front of their home crowd. So I feel the pressure is more on the Indian team than us."

Meanwhile in the first quarterfinal, Germany will take on Belgium.

Mohamed's first-half strike prove decisive as Liverpool manage to beat Napoli 1-0 in final group fixture to avoid early exit; Spurs leapfrog Inter after Barca stalemate

AFP ■ LIVERPOOL

Mohamed Salah's first-half goal and a stunning late save from goalkeeper Alisson saw Liverpool edge into the Champions League knockout stage after a tense 1-0 win over Napoli on Tuesday, while Lucas Moura's late strike saw Tottenham progress with a draw at Barcelona.

Last year's runners-up Liverpool knew victory by two goals or a 1-0 triumph would put them through to the last 16 from Group C, and Salah's cool 34th-minute strike proved enough as they finished ahead of Napoli on goals scored.

"Wow, what a game. I am not sure a manager could be prouder of a team than I am," Reds boss Jurgen Klopp told BT Sport.

Paris Saint-Germain reached the knockout rounds as group winners thanks to a 4-1 victory over Red Star Belgrade, with Neymar, Kylian Mbappe and Edinson Cavani all on the scoresheet.

Liverpool grabbed the crucial goal at a raucous Anfield, as Salah jinked past Kalidou Koulibaly inside the area and slotted the ball beyond goalkeeper David Ospina.

Salah, who had already wasted an earlier chance with a heavy touch, continued to run Napoli ragged early in the second half, but Ospina saved from Jordan Henderson and James Milner curled wide as Carlo Ancelotti's men stayed a goal from turning the group on its head.

The atmosphere around Anfield became increasingly tense as the Premier League leaders continued to miss opportunities, with Ospina springing to his left to tip away Salah's attempted lob before denying Mane from point-blank range.

Senegal forward Mane was guilty of two further snatched efforts in front of goal, and Napoli almost made the Reds pay in the dying moments.

The ball fell for substitute striker Arkadiusz Milik unmarked in the area, but Alisson raced from his line to keep out the Pole's strike with his legs.

"I have no idea how Alisson made a save like this," gushed Klopp. "It was amazing."

PSG went into their match in Belgrade knowing that victory would send them through, and Edinson Cavani gave the French champions the perfect start by tapping in after an excellent run and pass by Kylian Mbappe.

Neymar's strike five minutes before half-time appeared to have put the game to bed, but Red Star, who had already beaten Liverpool and held Napoli in Serbia earlier in the campaign, pulled one back before the hour mark through Marko Gobeljic.

But PSG finally sealed their spot in the last 16 as Marquinhos headed in Angel Di Maria's free-kick with 16 minutes to go and Mbappe added further gloss to the scoreline in added time.

"We made mistakes, but I really liked the reaction after Belgrade's goal. We controlled the match," PSG coach Thomas Tuchel told RMC Sport.

SPURS COME BACK

Spurs went into their final Group B game at the Camp Nou needing to match Inter Milan's result against PSV Eindhoven in Italy, but Mauricio Pochettino's side fell behind in only the seventh minute as Ousmane Dembele scored a wonderful individual goal.

Hirving Lozano gave PSV a shock early advantage at the San Siro, though, to leave Tottenham heading through as it stood.

The English club had plenty of half-chances against a much-changed Barca, who had already won the group, but Philippe Coutinho almost made it 2-0 when his low shot struck the post.

Mauro Icardi levelled for Inter against PSV with 17 minutes left to leave Spurs needing to score at least once.

Tottenham, who were facing an early elimination when trailing

PSV in their fourth group match before rallying to win and then beating Inter, continued to push and Moura met Harry Kane's low cross in the 85th minute to cap a dramatic group-stage revival.

"I always believed it was possible to win the game," Spurs manager Pochettino told BT Sport. "We fully deserved to go through with Barcelona. We were the best (two) teams in a difficult group."

Borussia Dortmund snatched top spot in Group A with a 2-0 win over rock-bottom Monaco, as Atletico Madrid were held to a goalless draw at Club Brugge.

Raphael Guerreiro tapped in Maximilian Philipp's low cross in the 15th minute against Thierry Henry's crisis-hit Monaco, before slamming in a second late on.

"It's a perfect evening. On the whole it was a deserved victory," said Dortmund coach Lucien Favre.

Earlier on Tuesday in Group D, Galatasaray secured a Europa League last-32 place despite losing 3-2 to Porto in an entertaining game which saw two of three penalties scored.

The likes of Ritsu Doan of Groningen, Shoya Nakajima of Portimonense and Takumi Minamino of Salzburg will lead Japan's bid for a record-extending fifth title. "It was an option in my contract that I signed a few years ago now, and it's an extra year, which is fantastic for me and my family," Noble told West Ham's website. "I've been at this club all my life. I've always said I wanted to be at this club and I think we're moving in the right direction." Agencies

'Dhoni must play domestic cricket to be eligible for India selection'

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Former India all-rounder and selector Mohinder Amarnath feels M S Dhoni and other senior players must play domestic cricket to be eligible for selection in the national team.

Having being dropped from the Twenty20 side recently and retired from Tests long ago, Dhoni now is a certainty in only ODI cricket.

Despite having the time, the former captain did not play the 50-over Vijay Hazare Trophy this year and will go into the three-match series in Australia next month without any match practice.

"Every individual is different but one thing I have always believed in is that if you want to play for India you have to play for your state as well. I think they (BCCI) should change this policy altogether. A lot of senior players don't play domestic cricket," Amarnath said on sidelines of an event organised by Royal Stag in collaboration with the ICC.

"The BCCI should make it an eligibility criteria. Not only a number of games, you should be playing regularly for your state if you are not playing for India and not only just before the India selection. Then only you can judge how good the guy is playing. Whatever you have achieved is all in the past. What is important is current form," said the hero of India's World Cup triumph in 1983.

"Even if you are playing one format, you should be playing all formats at least in domestic cricket to be considered for selection," the former selector said.

'AUS WILL GIVE TOUGH FIGHT'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Talking about the ongoing Test series in Australia, former great Mohinder Amarnath feels India are a superior unit but the depleted hosts are capable of giving them a run for their money.

"Australian cricketers think differently. It is not the first time they are going through this kind of phase. They are in the process of building a new team. But from what I watched in the first Test, some of the players are really good. You can't just rule Australia out of the series. Of course India are more superior but again they have to continue playing good cricket."

"First Test was a fantastic Test match from a cricketing point of view. The only difference was Cheteshwar Pujara. It shows we are here for a thrilling series with advantage India," said the 68-year-old, who played 69 Tests and 85 ODIs.

How will India do in the second Test starting Friday in Perth?

"It depends on nature of wicket. If the wicket is doing a bit, some of the batsmen struggle with their technique. It is not how aggressive you play, the key in Test cricket is that only when you leave good deliveries, you occupy the crease for a long time. It is not that they don't have that in them but they have to adapt."

Pacers need to be protected like race horses: Arun

PTI ■ PERTH

The impressive Indian fast bowlers are like race horses, who need to be protected and handled carefully, says India's bowling coach Bharat Arun, who avowed that the current lot is one of the best the country has seen.

The Indian pacers, and the entire attack as a whole, has been impressive on all overseas tours this year.

"I can say that not only now for what they did in Adelaide but what they've done over a period of time in South Africa, in England and now in Australia. This is probably one of the best group of fast bowlers India has ever had," Arun said ahead of the second Test against Australia.

"Fast bowlers are a precious commodity and they need to be taken care of, like what you do with a racehorse and that's exactly what's happening," he said.

Arun said the pacers — Jasprit Bumrah, Mohammed Shami, Bhuvneshwar Kumar and Ishant Sharma — have improved because they have found consistency.

"Consistency was a bit issue (on previous tours) and that's something we've addressed with the bowlers. It's something we've really worked hard on. We insist on one-person form factor even during practice, and the bowlers have responded exceptionally well. That's showing dividends right now."

Australian opener Marcus Harris said he didn't feel out of depth during his debut Test at Adelaide even though there was hardly any margin of error against a quality side like India in the opening match.

"You always doubt yourself as a person, you're not sure if you're going to fit in Test cricket. So, it was good to spend time in the middle in both innings. I didn't feel out of my depth at all," said Harris, who scored a matching 26 in both the innings on debut.

"But I realised pretty quickly they don't bowl any crap and they don't miss any chances that you give them. So you've got to be switched on from ball one. "I felt like my game stood up to it, it's probably just a decision-making thing and being able to occupy the crease for long periods of time, but I didn't feel like I was out of my depth at all," he added.

Outwitted by R Ashwin and Mohammed Shami in the two innings, Harris said he is working on his plans to tackle the Indian bowlers at the Perth Test beginning on Friday.

"I worked hard in between the first and second innings on some plans against Ashwin and now I'm just working on guys coming around the wicket and stuff like that to work on plans India will use against me," he said.

"It has given me great confidence to be able to bat a decent period of time and occupy the crease for a bit."

Australia lost the first Test narrowly by 31 runs and Harris said the hosts will take confidence from the close finish and the onus will be on the top-order

India never miss chances: Harris

Australian opener Marcus Harris said he didn't feel out of depth during his debut Test at Adelaide even though there was hardly any margin of error against a quality side like India in the opening match.

"You always doubt yourself as a person, you're not sure if you're going to fit in Test cricket. So, it was good to spend time in the middle in both innings. I didn't feel out of my depth at all," said Harris, who scored a matching 26 in both the innings on debut.

"But I realised pretty quickly they don't bowl any crap and they don't miss any chances that you give them. So you've got to be switched on from ball one. "I felt like my game stood up to take responsibility from the batting exploits of their tail-enders.

"I think we took some good confidence from the fight we showed, it got down to 30 runs. I know when I looked at it as a batter I thought 'I wish I could've got 60 or 70'. So we got pretty close and hopefully we could take some momentum into the game on Friday," he said.

"I think the wicket will suit us a little bit more with the conditions, that's taking nothing away from India, but I just think a little bit of momentum."

"We would've loved to win the game, but the boys bowled really well and they also batted really well. It's probably on us batters to take a bit of the weight from them."

WFI upgrades Sushil, Sakshi's contracts

MUMBAI: Terming it as a mistake, the Wrestling Federation of India (WFI) on Wednesday announced that the contracts of star grapplers Sushil Kumar and Sakshi Malik have been upgraded to Grade A from B.

When the WFI announced the contracts, both Sakshi and Sushil, Olympic medalists were given grade B contracts. However, rectifying the error, an announcement to upgrade their contracts was made by WFI President Brijbhushan Sharan Singh on Wednesday.

"With your support, we implemented the grading system for the players A, B, C, D, E and F grades.

"We all unanimously agreed that such players like Sushil (Kumar) and Sakshi Malik, who gave the country the first medal when Indias medal tally (at the Rio Olympics was empty) should not be kept in B grade," Singh said while explaining the WFI's change of mind.

"So I would like to admit that it was a mistake (on our part) and we are rectifying the mistake and are now including both the players (Sakshi and Sushil) to A grade, added the WFI President.

"After Singh's announcement in Grade A, there are five wrestlers Bhangra Punia, Vinesh Phogat, Pooja Dhanda, Sushil Kumar and Sakshi Malik. The players in Grade A will get ₹ 30 lakh annually.

"Players did not complain about it (grades), neither the media did. But we have rectified the mistake," Singh informed.

Now there are no players in Grade B.
