CBI DIG bares Govt underbelly

Affidavit accuses NSA, Cabinet Secy, Law Secy, CVC of shielding Asthana from graft probe

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

A day before the scheduled hearing on the fate of CBI Director Alok Verma's petition, agency DIG MK Sinha on Monday filed an explosive affidavit in the Supreme Court accusing National Security Adviser Ajit Doval, Cabinet Secretary PK Sinha, Law Secretary Suresh Chandra, CVC KV Chowdhary and RAW's Dubai Officer Samant Kumar Goel and Minister for State Haribhai Parthibhai Chowdhary for trying to save CBI Special Director Rakesh Asthana from corruption charges.

In his affidavit, the CBI DIG accused Doval of interfering in the bribery investigation against Asthana and preventing searches on the premises of suspects. Sinha, who was transferred while probing charges against Asthana, also claimed that a Union Minister of State took "a few crores" to help a businessman under investigation.

Challenging his transfer to Nagpur, Sinha said he possessed "documents that will shock the court". However, rejecting his request for an urgent hearing on Tuesday, Chief Justice of India Ranjan Gogoi shot back, "Nothing shocks us."

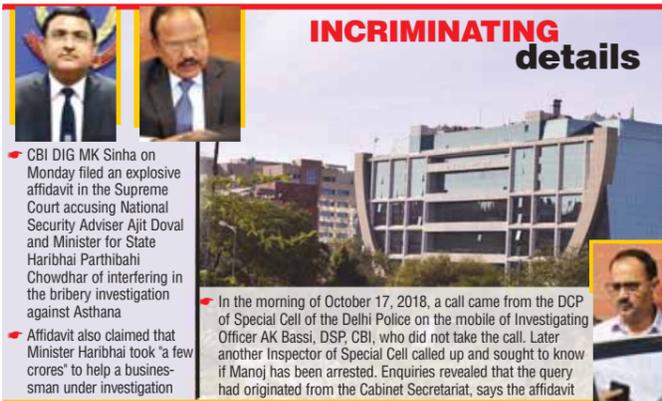

Sinha claimed after the Government sent Verma and Asthana on "forced" leave and transferred the entire team investigating charges against Asthana, he heard an officer telling "things have been managed and everything is fine".

In his affidavit, the CBI DIG also accused the Cabinet Secretary and the Law Secretary of even intervening to scuttle the CVC's probe which is monitored by the Supreme Court. Sinha also detailed the pressure he faced in arresting Manoj Prasad, who is co-accused with Asthana for allegedly accepting bribe from businessman Sana Satish Babu, associate of controversial meat exporter Moyn Qureshi.

"On the morning of October 16, 2018, accused Manoj Prasad was intercepted at Delhi Airport on his arrival from Dubai and brought to the CBI Headquarters. During the first few hours of his arrival on CBI Headquarters, Manoj was garrulous and arrogant, both at the same time and in equal measure. He was interviewed by the applicant (DIG MK Sinha) and others. He tried his best to ward off the investigation by dropping names of 'high and mighty' and mentioning his 'top contacts' to create fear in our mind."

"As per Manoj Prasad, Dineshwar Prasad, father of Manoj and Somesh, who retired as RAW Joint Secretary, has close acquaintance with the National Security Adviser Ajit Doval. This was one of the first things Manoj claimed on being brought to the CBI HQ as he expressed complete surprise and anger as to how the CBI

"He started bragging and claimed that his brother Somesh is very close to an officer in Dubai (name withheld) and to Samant Goel, presently RAW Special Secretary, and he can get us finished off/kicked out. Manoj taunted us that you people have no standing whatsoever and therefore should stay in limits and let him free. He claimed that recently his brother Somesh and Samant Goel helped the NSA on an important personal matter. He further claimed that India opted out of a contest from INTERPOL," said the affidavit filed by Sinha.

Verma files in SC his reply to CVC charges

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Benched Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) Director Alok Kumar Verma on Monday filed his response to the findings of the CVC's preliminary probe report on corruption charges against him in a sealed cover in the Supreme Court. Verma's reply came after the SC told him to do so "as quickly as possible" as the scheduled Tuesday hearing would not be deferred.

Verma, who was asked by the SC to file his response to the Central Vigilance Commission's (CVC) report in a sealed cover by Monday 1 pm, sought some more time from the SC for filing his reply.

However, the Bench, headed by Chief Justice Ranjan Gogoi and comprising justices SK Kaul and KM Joseph, told Verma's lawyer Gopal Sankaranarayanan, "We are not shifting the date (of hearing). You file it as quickly as possible as we will have to read it."

Naidu, Mamata meet to form anti-BJP front

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister Chandrababu Naidu called on his Bengal counterpart Mamata Banerjee on Monday as part of his effort to bring the Opposition parties on one platform to topple the BJP in the next year's Lok Sabha polls.

After the meeting, Mamata said everyone would be the face of a "mahagathbandhan" and they would fight together against the BJP to save the nation.

Naidu said the proposed November 22 meeting of anti-BJP parties in Delhi had been postponed and it will now be held sometime before the Winter Session of Parliament beginning December 11.

"We wanted to meet on November 22 (but) because of elections we want to make it before Parliament (Winter Session)," said Naidu, adding those who were opposing the BJP will join and discuss (the future plans).

"We will chalk out a programme to move forward and take this momentum further on the agenda to protect the nation," he said.

Incidentally Mamata had been among the earliest leaders to call for an Opposition unity through Federal Front against the BJP in which she floated the "one against one" theory according to which she said, "the parties that are strong in a particular place should fight the BJP and the remaining parties should support them."

Talking to the reporters after the meeting, the TDP chief said the BJP Government had crossed all the limits of "intolerance towards the Opposition parties and the minorities" and was using the Central agencies like CBI, ED and Income Tax Department to harass and malign them. In fact these premier institutions, including the Reserve Bank of India and CAG, were under "severe pressure" from the Government to serve its interests, he said.

The two leaders, who met in Kolkata for about an hour and a half, said majority anti-BJP parties have expressed their opinions to unite for the single-most important cause of ousting the BJP from power.

Both leaders are in touch with their Opposition parties' counterpart like Congress president Rahul Gandhi, former Prime Minister HD Deve Gowda, his son and Karnataka

Meanwhile, the Bengal BJP on Monday staged road blockades in Kolkata and district headquarters protesting alleged attacks on State BJP president Dilip Ghosh and senior leader Joy Banerjee. The two leaders were attacked allegedly by Trinamool workers in Hooghly district while they were returning from a meeting.

Blockades were staged at Midnapore, various places in Kolkata, Hooghly, Asansol and elsewhere, sources said.

Cong suffers from Modi phobia: Shah

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Accusing the Congress of suffering with Prime Minister Narendra Modi phobia, BJP president Amit Shah said that the Congress wants to get rid of Narendra Modi while we want to remove poverty, unemployment and darkness.

Addressing an election rally at Narsinghpur, Shah quoted a Whatsapp message from a journalist saying the scribe claimed that he heard a speech of Congress president Rahul Gandhi in which Gandhi mentioned Modi 44 times in a 22 minute speech.

"I am not sure he is campaigning for his party or mine," Shah said laughing. They (Congress) have developed a phobia against Modi, he claimed. "They want to remove Narendra Modi, we want to abolish poverty, unemployment, darkness, illiteracy, smoke and insecurity," claimed the BJP president.

Would you like to vote BJP to power which has given Ladli Laxmi yojana, cooking gas, houses, power and roads or the Congress, Shah questioned.

Attacking the Congress president Rahul Gandhi further Shah claimed Rahul Baba was daydreaming of forming the government in Madhya Pradesh. Saying this he numbered out states where the BJP emerged victorious after 2014.

Calling MPCC president Kamal Nath an exhausted politician, Shah said Nath seeks details of achievements of PM Modi, asking him to pick figures and see himself. UPA had allotted budget of Rs 134000 cr while the BJP after coming to power hiked it to Rs 344000 cr.

Shah named many schemes including Jan Dhan Yojana, Mudra Bank, Make In India, Sukanya Samridhi Yojana, Atal Pension Yojana and others saying the Modi Government besides offering MP Rs four lakh cr works has extended benefits of 129 schemes.

"At Narsinghpur alone, we brought 3.76 lakh hectare land under irrigation, offered 1.16 lakh Soil Health Cards, offered 31,600 power connections, built toilets in 131000 homes, offered houses to 36,000 families and offered 76,000 cooking gas connections and they ask us to offer details of works," he added.

The BJP chief asked Kamal Nath to instead offer details of development that took place in four generation of rule by the Gandhi family.

Attacking UPA government, Shah said earlier the terrorists intruded freely in the country and returned after triggering blasts.

Four killed in laundry fire in Karol Bagh

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Four people, including two women, were charred to death after they were trapped inside a narrow cloth laundering unit in Beadonpura area of Central Delhi on Monday. The tragedy struck when "solvent", a chemical used for ironing clothes made of cotton, spilled on the floor and caught fire.

Delhi Fire Services Chief Fire Officer Atul Garg said fire-fighters received a call at 12.23 pm regarding the fire in a house at street number-3 in Beadonpura following which two fire tenders were rushed to the spot and fire was brought under control by 12.50 pm. However by then the four had died in the blaze.

"The owner of the illegal unit Ajay Khurana (45) has been arrested. The bodies have been handed over to the families concerned after post-mortem. A case under Section 304 of Indian Penal Code has been registered at Karol Bagh police station and investigation is underway," said Amit Sharma, Additional Deputy Commissioner of Police (DCP), Central district.

Expert panel to look into capital surplus issues: RBI Board

Mumbai: Signalling a temporary truce, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) and the Government on Monday agreed to refer to an expert committee the contentious issue of appropriate size of reserves that the RBI must hold, while restructuring of stressed loans of small businesses would be considered by the Central bank.

The setting up of the committee, whose members will be decided by the Government and the RBI, followed a marathon nine-hour meeting of the central board that discussed threadbare issues that had brought the RBI and the Finance Ministry at loggerheads.

"The Board decided to constitute an expert committee to examine the ECF, the membership and terms of reference of which will be jointly determined by the Government of India and the RBI," the Central bank said in a statement.

The capital base of the RBI is ₹9.69 lakh crore, and independent director and Swadeshi ideologue S Gurumurthy and the Finance Ministry have been wanting it to be lowered in line with global practices.

Dubai court orders Christian Michel extradition to India

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

A top Dubai court on Monday ordered the extradition of British national and alleged middleman Christian Michel, who is wanted by the Indian investigative agencies in the ₹3,600 crore AgustaWestland VVIP choppers deal case.

Michel, 54, is currently in jail in Dubai since he was arrested and sent to custody pending the legal and judicial procedure in the UAE.

The Court of Cassation upheld on Monday a lower court order which ruled that Michel could be extradited, dismissing appeals filed by his defence lawyers. PTI quoted Khaleej Times as having reported.

Judge Abdelaziz Al Zarouni, who headed the bench, pronounced the decision in the presence of member judges Musabeh Thaaloub, Mostafa Al Shinawi, Mahmoud Sultan and another judge, report said.

On Monday, Michel's lawyer Abdul Moneim submitted documents showing that courts in Switzerland and Italy had ruled not to extradite his client.

"The judicial authorities there concluded that there was no criminal element in the case," the lawyer argued. Earlier, he argued at Dubai's highest court that the extradition request procedure of Michel would be a "violation" of the international treaty signed between the UAE and India.

HC raps Kerala Govt for excesses on Ayyappa devotees

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ CHENNAI

The Kerala High Court on Monday came down heavily on the State Government while hearing a series of petitions filed by various Hindu organisations challenging the restrictions imposed at Sabarimala, the holy shrine in the Western Ghats.

Justices Ramachandra Menon and N Anil Kumar lambasted police for "blatant violation of human rights" against women devotees and children who were taking rest at the covered walkway at the shrine on Sunday night by pumping water to make them leave the spot.

The State had a sleepless night on Sunday following the crackdown by police on devotees who were taking rest at the walkway and were reciting hymns and Ayyappa devotional songs. Police arrested 69 devotees, threw down their holy "Irumudikettu" (the bundle containing offerings to the deity which could be opened only inside the sanctum of the temple) and assaulted them for reciting Ayyappa hymns.

They were taken to a court in Pathanamthitta, and were remained in 14 days custody under non-bailable sections of the IPC on Monday and sent to Central Jail at Thiruvananthapuram. This led hundreds of Ayyappa devotees to undertake Nama Japa Yatra (rallies in which the participants recite hymns and devotional songs in praise of Lord Ayyappa) at police stations across the State.

The rallies concluded peacefully but not before some of them were assaulted by police. The devotees staged a Nama Japa Yatra in front of

Civil Service Club to start 'Best 100' for Hindi medium

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

To prepare Hindi medium students for civil service examination, a special programme Best 100 will start in city. The special programme will begin for the candidates from January 1.

The programme will be organised by Civil Service Club. It is to be noted that in the Civil Services Examination every year, the number of youth selected through Hindi medium is continuously decreasing. Expert Laxmi Sharan Sharma said that in the total number of competitors who succeed, the number of Hindi medium contestants is barely 4%, while millions of people are still giving these exams through Hindi medium.

Due to the decline in Hindi medium, there is tremendous sense of disappointment in the whole of North India especially the rural background. As a result the candidates have started preparing for other exams except for the IAS, said Mishra.

Elaborating further, he said that 'Civil Services Club' is going to start a mission from January 1 with the aim of finding a solution to this medium of Hindi medium. Under which, in the next two years, the club have to make 100 selections in Hindi medium from IAS Exam. So that the fear of Hindi medium candidates can be overcome and they can showcase their talent and be successful.

The process of entering the first batch under this mission has started. First of all, the 'Civil Services Preliminary Examination-2019', which is to be held on June 2, 2019, has been targeted. For this examination, the club will only give admission to 60 candidates of Hindi medium and work on the strategy to succeed them in the initial examination.

The entry to the 'Best-100' mission, will be on November 25 at 7 a.m. Only 60 youngsters reaching the first place will be admitted in this course this year.

Gas tragedy survivors allege misuses of relief funds by Minister Sarang

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Leaders of four organisations of the survivors of the Union Carbide disaster here on Monday charged Minister Vishwas Sarang of misusing funds meant for economic and social rehabilitation of the survivors.

The organisations presented copies of documents obtained under right to information from the Department of Bhopal Gas Tragedy Relief and Rehabilitation that show that close to 60% of the funds meant for providing employment to survivors and their children have been diverted to build drains, roads and parks. Likewise, documents show that almost one third of the funds meant for housing of residents in the vicinity of the Union Carbide factory is also being diverted for the same purpose.

UP CM addresses gathering in Mhow

YOGI SAID THAT EARLIER GOVERNMENT NEVER APPRECIATED AMBEDKAR

PNS ■ MHOW

Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh Yogi Adityanath on Monday visited Mhow and addressed a huge gathering at cantonment board Mhow indoor stadium ground in support of Mhow BJP candidate Usha Thakur.

Yogi told that earlier Government never appreciated Ambedkar and those Governments tried to limit Ambedkar and tried that Ambedkar should not get proper respect and representation. It was during the time of Atal Bihari Vajpayee that Ambedkar was given Bharat Ratna and during the time of Narendra Modi the panch teeth related to five important places related to the life of Ambedkar is formed.

He thanked the people of MP for electing BJP government in Madhya Pradesh 15 years back. During that time MP was considered a sick nation with no road, electricity, water, education and health in very poor condition and dacoits and naxalites used to threaten the society. During the chief minister tenure of Shivraj Singh Chouhan now MP is developed now no shortage but excess of electricity and all the dacoits and naxalites gangs are eradicated from the land of MP.

Congress is a corrupt party and it was stated by their own Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi that when he sent Rs 100 from Centre, only Rs 10 reached the public. Rajiv Gandhi was in pressure that in spite knowing this fact he could not solve this problem. PM Narendra Modi is not in any pressure and if Rs 100 starts from the government Rs 100 reaches to the bank account of poor in Jan Dhan Yojna.

The terrorism and naxalites problems were in full swing during the congress government. If you see the record of UP itself there is no communal riots in last one and half years of his rule but in previous government there was riot every second day.

Digvijay denies allegation of his number found in letter in Koregaon probe

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Senior Congress leader Digvijay Singh has rubbished allegations of his number being found in the letters recovered by police in connection to Bhima Koregaon police saying he discontinued using the number for four years.

Responding to reports that Pune police could question him after recovering his cell phone number from one of the letters written by the accused in the case, Singh said it was completely baseless and false allegation. While talking to media persons, Singh said, "The said cell phone number was uploaded on Rajya Sabha portal and thousands of persons had it. Besides, I have stopped using this number four years ago."

He also dared PM Narendra Modi, Maharashtra Chief Minister Devendra Fadnis and others to arrest him if he was guilty. Claiming that BJP and RSS were apprehensive of him so they somehow want to create a negative atmosphere against him. Claiming that he earlier was also called traitor and even courted arrest but no action was taken. On being asked about BJP spokesperson Sambit Patra's allegation of him having naxal links, the former Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister called Patra a joke denying to comment on his remarks. Senior officers of Pune police involved in the probe claimed that they have received some phone numbers mentioned in the letters recovered in the probe

Cong expels senior leader Satyavrat Chaturvedi

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

The Congress on Monday expelled senior party leader Satyavrat Chaturvedi over his involvement in anti-party activities.

The former Congress spokesperson has been accused of campaigning for the Samajwadi Party in favour of his son Nitin.

In early November, Nitin Chaturvedi, son of Satyavrat filed nomination as a Samajwadi Party (SP) candidate from Rajnagar in Bundelkhand region of Madhya Pradesh. Irked with the Congress for ignoring his ground level works, Nitin decided to join the Akhilesh Yadav-led party in Madhya Pradesh.

However, Satyavrat later made it clear that he himself is still with the Congress and did not leave the Congress ideologies, adding that Congress has been repeating the same mistake (of ignoring his son) for 15 years. Doing injustice is a sin, and tolerating injustice is equally sinful.

"So my son took the decision to go to the people's court," he said, adding that it was Nitin's own decision to contest on SP ticket. He is an adult and the father of two children, so he can take decisions on his own. "I will help him as much as I can," he added.

The Congress, on the other hand, fielded Vikram Singh Natiraja from Rajnagar seat. Defending the decision to give the ticket to Natiraja, Congress spokesperson Pankaj Chaturvedi cited his record.

"Natiraja is a three-time MLA from Rajnagar. He won two consecutive elections, in 2008 and 2013, on Congress ticket. He was elected as an MLA on SP's ticket in 2003. How can Congress ignore ground reports," Pankaj said.

Last year, Satyavrat was removed as the Congress's chief whip in Rajya Sabha and had been replaced with Bhubaneshwar Kalita.

World Heritage Walk takes a tour of 'Bada Bagh Ki Baodi'

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Observing the World Heritage Week, the Bhopalites took a tour of Bada Bagh Ki Baodi here on Monday. The history lovers of the city gathered in large numbers to take a walk-through of the historical stepwell of the city.

Located at Bhopal Talkies, the tale of Bada Bagh Ki Baodi is still untold and unknown to many people. Archaeologist Pooja Saxena narrated the story of Bada Bagh Ki Baodi to the Bhopalites during the Heritage Walk.

Notably, it is a three-storey deep structure in the middle of graveyard called Bada Bagh. The wide flight steps, which lead into a stepwell was built by Nawab

Wazir Mohammad Khan and later conserved by Nawab Qudsiya Begum. The graves of Wazir Mohammad Khan (1806-1816) and his son Nazar Mohammad Khan (1816-1819) were first built here.

After the death of Nazar Mohammad Khan Qudsiya

Begum built her husband's grave. At that time, the baoli was known as Nazar Bagh. A close look inside shows the ornamental structures that surrounded the well, are colonnade with cusp arches and slender pillars. This step-well was built around 1809 to 1816, she added.

Pooja also informed that Nazir Bagh was sectioned in four parts wherein in four elements i.e. air, water, sky and earth meet.

The Bhopalites also conducted a photo walk there as they were enlightened about Bada Bagh. As many as 35 students of MLB college and heritage lovers were present during the walk.

It is to be noted that World Heritage Week is observed to create a proper thinking about the prevention as well as making the people aware about the importance of the heritage. It is observed from November 19 to 25.

Longewala battle hero

Brig Chandpuri cremated

With full State honour

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

The mortal remains of Brigadier Kuldeep Singh Chandpuri (Retd), the hero of Longewala battle during the 1971 Indo-Pak war, were consigned to flames with State and military honours on Monday.

A large number of civil and military dignitaries turned up to pay their last respects to Brig Chandpuri, an awardee of Mahavir Chakra, the country's second-highest gallantry award, for his heroic deeds at the Longewala battle, an outpost in the Thar desert of Rajasthan.

Western Army Commander Lt Gen Surinder Singh and Chief of Staff Lt Gen P M Bali of the Western Command

Headquarters placed wreaths on the body of the departed war hero to pay homage to him.

Wreaths were also placed by the veterans of 23

Punjab Regiment, Punjab's ex-servicemen cell and many other military and civil organisations.

Brig Chandpuri, whose heroic deeds during the Longewala battle inspired the making of the 1977 Bollywood classic, 'Border', died on Saturday in a private hospital at Mohali. He was 78.

AAP demands Dharamsot's resignation

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Aam Aadmi Party on Monday demanded resignation of Punjab Cabinet Minister Sadhu Singh Dharamsot in Nabha nagar council embezzlement case while urging the State Government to hand over the case to the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) for further investigations. Mincing no words, AAP's Nabha Vidhan Sabha president Gurdev Singh (Dev Mann) said that the embezzlement was committed by the office bearers and officers with the involvement of Dharamsot. "Dharamsot is patronizing corruption in the area," he alleged. Religious leaders urge Prez over Ram Mandir

PNS ■ HARIDWAR

Raising the pitch for the construction of the Ram Temple at Ayodhya, the religious fraternity has demanded the President to issue a directive to the Centre to clear decks for the long-awaited construction.

Assembling at Shyampr Gajwali village on Monday, they declared that they would not wait any longer on the matter. A number of ascetics from across the country congregated in Haridwar to deliberate on the temple issue and also to step up pressure on the Centre to take the eagerly awaited initiative in the direction of the temple construction. They said in unison that the long-continuing tangle must be resolved once and for all by initiating the construction.

Jagadguru Shankaracharya Rajrajeshwarashram and Mahamandaleshwar Kailashanand Brahmachari took the BJP-helmed government to task for dithering on the matter. They warned that if things are delayed further there would be unrest. In a stern note, Shankaracharya Rajrajeshwarashram said that if the government does not announce the construction of the temple by December 6 the saints from across the country would reach Ayodhya.

A unanimous resolution pressing for the construction of the temple was passed during the Gajwali Sangh Sammelan. Observers say that the fact that the ascetics considered close to the saffron camp now mounting pressure on the Centre is interesting. "Upping the ante, they are now saying that the government left just with six more months, they must act now without further dithering.

It seems this is part of a saffron strategy to keep things on the boil so as to enable the Centre to do something which would be milked as the principal election plank by the saffron camp for the upcoming Lok Sabha hustings," said an observer. Kailashanand Brahmachari of Kali Dakshin Temple said that those present at the congregation suggested taking the matter to the President. "The President must issue a directive to the Centre to nudge it off its passivity on the issue related to the collective sentiment of the people. The people doubt whether the temple would ever come up if it does not come up now," he said. He further said that the Centre should not wait till 2019 and must act now. If they do not act now they would face debacle during the 2019 poll, he warned.

"Regarding genuineness of this claim of Manoj, no attempt was made to verify the claim regarding NSA Doval," said the affidavit filed by Sinha. He said later he found that Manoj Prasad's information about India opting out from Interpol was factually correct. "When the IO, AK Bassi, came to know that Samant Goel/Somesh had stopped talking and were exchanging WhatsApp messages, he insisted that we need the cellphone sets of the public servants as the evidence is likely to be stored on the device and that search be conducted. The CBI Director did not give immediate permission and reverted that the NSA has not permitted the same," said the affidavit.

The CBI DIG in his affidavit also said that during interrogation they found that Manoj Prasad and brother Somesh Prasad were in regular touch with Rakesh Asthana and Somesh Goel. He said that there were several WhatsApp messages to prove this "dubious links." The officer further said his team has records of conversation between Rakesh Asthana and Samant Goel, when Manoj Prasad was in their custody.

The affidavit filed by Sinha brings to light the role of the Cabinet Secretary PK Sinha in protecting Asthana. "In the morning of October 17, 2018, a call came from the DCP of Special Cell of the Delhi Police on the mobile of Investigating Officer AK Bassi, DSP, CBI, who did not take the call. Later another Inspector of Special Cell called up and sought to know if Manoj has been arrested. Enquiries revealed that the query had originated from the Cabinet Secretariat."

Further, the interesting part is how a Minister in the Modi Government intervened with the DoPT to protect Asthana. "As per Sana, Shri Haribhai (Minister of State) had intervened with the senior officers of CBI through the office of the Minister of Personnel, Public Grievances and Pension, to whom, apparently, the CBI Director reports to," said the CBI DIG.

He also said that CVC Chowdhry also met Sana to save his relative from these issues. The officer said that the CVC and Asthana were also in touch during these days. "Sathish Babu Sana also disclosed that he met CVC KV Chowdhry along with one Gorantla Ramesh (close relative of Chowdhry and owner of Delhi Public School Hyderabad, as per Sana) somewhere in Delhi (exact date and location was not informed) and that they discussed Moin Qureshi's case. As per Sana, in the year 2011, Gorantla Ramesh sold some land and gave around Rs 4 crore out of the said sale consideration to Sana, in the same month, in which Sana had given Rs 50 Lakhs to Moin Qureshi. Therefore, Gorantla Ramesh was examined by CBI in the Moin Qureshi's case.

"As per Sana, subsequently, CVC Chowdhry called Rakesh Asthana to his residence and made enquiries. Asthana informed the CVC that there is not much in evidence against them. There is no illegality in this, but the same is put on record here for the sake of completeness. No verification was undertaken and the same is based on disclosure made by Sana"

"On October 23, 2018, the applicant herein was informed by DIG/DD (SU) that someone spoke to Samant Goel (who was in Chandigarh at that time) and asked to help him to which Samant Goel replied things have been managed with the PMO and everything is fine. The same night the entire investigating team was shifted," said CBI DIG pointing a finger at the PMO.

The CBI DIG also said that on November 8, Sana was advised by Law Secretary Suresh Chandra to save Asthana from the Supreme Court monitored CVC probe. He said that IAS officer Rekha Rani met Sana to contact the Law Secretary. The woman IAS officer was owner of Sana's office premises. According to Sana, Chandra told him that he was talking to him on behalf of Cabinet Secretary PK Sinha. "Sana spoke to him on WhatsApp on the evening of November 8. The Union Law Secretary, Suresh Chandra, said he was in London for some work related to the Nirav Modi case, that he was trying to contact him for last 4/5 days in order to convey message of Cabinet Secretary PK Sinha that the Union Government will offer full protection to him, that there will be a drastic change on Tuesday (13th) and that he (Sana) should meet him (Suresh Chandra) on Wednesday (14th)," the petition says.

Responding to the allegation, the Law Secretary told media that the allegations were totally baseless. "This is all false. I never went to London, I don't know who Satish Sana or Rekha Rani is. It is complete fabrication," said Chandra.

Centre plans year-long events to mark Guru Nanak's 550th birth anniversary

New Delhi: Ahead of the 550th birth anniversary of the first Sikh Guru and founder of the Sikh religion Guru Nanak Dev next year, the Centre has decided to undertake a series of commemorative activities across India and abroad.

The decision was taken at the third National Implementation Committee (NIC) meeting chaired by Home Minister Rajnath Singh on November 8 in the presence of Minister of State for Culture Mahesh Sharma, Governor of Punjab V.P. Singh Badnore, Minister of State for Electronics and Information Technology S.S. Ahluwalia, and Punjab's Minister of Tourism Navjot Singh Sidhu, said a Home Ministry statement on Monday.

The NIC, constituted by Prime Minister Narendra Modi to commemorate Guru Nanak's 550th birth anniversary next year, earlier had two other meetings under the chairmanship of Rajnath Singh with Finance Minister Arun Jaitley and Minister of State for Culture as members.

"It was decided that the event will be commemorated through a series of activities commencing in November 2018 (November 23, the 549th birth anniversary of Guru Nanak) throughout the country and across the globe," said the statement. A commemorative coin and postage stamps will be released by the Department of Economic Affairs, Ministry of Finance, and Department of Posts, it said.

Sultanpur Lodhi, where Guru Nanak spent much of his life, will be developed as a heritage city, also incorporating Pind Babe Nanak Da, by the Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs in collaboration with the Punjab government. The Union Ministry of Railways will upgrade Sultanpur Lodhi railway station with modern amenities.

A national institute of Inter Faith Studies will be set up by the Ministry of Human Resource Development in Punjab for which the state government will provide land free of cost. The Ministry of Electronics and IT will install a high-powered telescope in India for the devotees to view Kartarpur Sahib in Pakistan. A Chair on Guru Nanak Dev will be set up by the Ministry of Human Resource Development in one University each in the UK and Canada. An international seminar on the life and teachings of Guru Nanak Dev will be organised in New Delhi by the Union Ministry of Culture.

States and Union Territories will also be requested to celebrate the 550th birth anniversary of Guru Nanak Dev in a befitting manner. The Ministry of Culture will work with the state governments for this. The Indian Missions abroad shall organise a series of activities as part of the celebrations. The Ministry of Railways will run a train passing through places associated with Guru Nanak Dev.

"Religious activities like kirtan, Katha, prabhat pheri and langar will be organised throughout the year both at national and international level," said the statement, adding that the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee (SGPC)-an organization in India responsible for the management of gurdwaras, Sikh places of worship in three States of Punjab, Haryana, and Himachal Pradesh and union territory of Chandigarh- will draw a calendar of activities and execute it.

Michelle's 'Becoming' story of her journey

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

While the people were engaged in speculating animatedly over the outcome of the civic polls held on Sunday some people gathered at a place at Jakhn on Monday evening to discuss Becoming by the former First Lady of America, Michelle Obama. The book is her memoir, story of her journey from a small town of Chicago to becoming the first African American First Lady. It is about her growing in a black neighbourhood, her marriage and life in the White House. Lead discussant for the evening was senior civil servant Ashish Joshi. The co-founder, The Booknerds, Rohan Raj talked about the book and the role played by Michelle Obama in the United States scenario and also about the country's transition from the Obama era to the Trump era. Joshi talked about Michelle's inspiring story.

While reading from the book, he dwelt on various aspects of her life as detailed in the book. Further, he talked about how unprecedented and unique she was as the First Lady and also why. Rohan mentioned how the former First Lady blasted President Donald Trump in her new book, writing how she reacted in shock the night she learned he would replace her husband in the Oval Office and tried to 'block it all out.'

She also denounced Trump's campaign questioning her husband's citizenship and dubs it as bigoted and dangerous, "deliberately meant to stir up the wingnuts and kooks." The discussion ended with a question and answer session organised by The Booknerds named The Political Standoff. The next event is going to be the book launch Ek Samay Ki Baat Hai by Hema Pandey aka Hansa on December 6, the organisers said.

Verma files in SC...

Verma's reply will deal with the CVC report, which was categorised into four parts by the apex court as "complimentary, very complimentary, not so complimentary, and very uncomplimentary" for the CBI Director. The SC on November 16 had directed Verma, Attorney General KK Venugopal and Solicitor General Tushar Mehta --- who were also supplied with the confidential report of the CVC --- to maintain secrecy, saying it was needed to ensure people's faith in the CBI as an institution. Earlier, the apex court had said the CVC had made some "very uncomplimentary" findings in its probe on corruption allegations against Verma and wanted further investigation into some of the charges which required more time.

Expert panel to look...

expert committee to be set up will now decide about the adequate size of capital base. The central board headed by RBI Governor Urjit Patel, which met amid the on-going tussle between the Finance Ministry and the central bank over various issues, discussed the Basel regulatory capital framework, a restructuring scheme for stressed MSMEs, bank health under Prompt Corrective Action (PCA) framework and the Economic Capital Framework (ECF). Patel and his deputies came face to face with government nominee directors --- Economic Affairs Secretary Subhash Chandra Garg and Financial Services Secretary Rajiv Kumar --- and independent members like S

Gurumurthy to arrive at a middle ground on some of the contentious issues. According to sources, no voting on any proposal took place and a detailed presentation was made by Deputy Governor NS Vishwanathan to the board. Vishwanathan is the incharge of banking regulation and supervision. The Board also advised that the RBI should consider a scheme for restructuring of stressed standard assets of MSME borrowers with aggregate credit facilities of up to Rs 25 crore, subject to such conditions as are necessary for ensuring financial stability. Most of the RBI's 10 independent directors, including Tata Sons Chairman N Chandrasekaran, attended the meeting.

6 N-E States ready to implement RERA

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Nearly two years after the Real Estate Regulation Act (RERA) was enacted by the Parliament, six northeastern States have finally agreed to implement the law, paving way for protecting the interest of homebuyers in these States. Arunachal Pradesh, Meghalaya, Manipur, Mizoram, Nagaland and Sikkim have failed to notify RERA due to land and other issues.

The development comes after a team of the Union Housing and Urban Affairs (HUA) Ministry visited the northeastern States on October 26 and held a workshop with their representatives and discussed the issues coming in the way of notifying the Act.

According to HUA secretary Durga Shankar Mishra, the northeastern States have agreed to implement RERA. We are helping them in notifying the RERA rules.

Sources said representatives of these states had some issues about the implementation of RERA, but the Ministry officials cleared all their doubts in the last month's workshop. The Act, which provides proper protection to homebuyers, was enacted by the Parliament in 2016. The States were given powers to notify their respective rules and appoint regulatory authorities.

All States and Union Territories in the country had notified the rules under RERA, except the six northeastern states and West Bengal. The Act is not applicable in Jammu & Kashmir. "There are 27 States that have established the Authority. Out of them 14 States have set up interim ones. All the States of northern region have established permanent Regulatory Authorities except Himachal Pradesh, Delhi and Chandigarh," an official of HUA said.

According to the Ministry, 33,750 real estate projects have been registered under RERA, while 26,018 agents have been registered across the country. Maharashtra tops the list of States with 18,392 projects registered.

Instead of implementing RERA, West Bengal had notified its own real estate law — the Housing and Industrial Regulation Act, 2017 (HIRA). Mishra had written to the Bengal Government, asking it to repeal its own act as there was already a central law on the subject.

WORLD TOILET DAY PM praises sanitation coverage increase

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

With as many as 60.53 lakh individual household toilets constructed and 4.7 lakh seats of community or public toilets under construction under the Swachh Bharat Mission (Urban), Prime Minister Narendra Modi praised the Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs (HUA) for its remarkable speed of construction on the occasion of World Toilet Day.

Hailing the HUA Ministry, Modi said India is proud of the remarkable speed with which sanitation coverage has increased in the last four years and reiterated his Government's commitment to enhancing sanitation facilities. The Prime Minister said the drive for a cleaner India and ensuring better sanitation facilities is in fact a people's movement.

Modi took to Twitter to thank women and youth for taking the lead in the sanitation

According to the Ministry, around 4.7 lakh public toilet seats have been constructed so far. The target set under the mission was 5.07 lakh public toilet seats drive. World Toilet Day, celebrated on November 19, is about taking action to ensure that everyone has a safe toilet by 2030.

"Today, on World Toilet Day, we reiterate our commitment towards enhancing cleanliness and sanitation facilities across the nation. We in India take pride at the remarkable speed with which sanitation cover has increased in the last four years," he wrote. He said it is the 130 crore Indians, particularly women and youths, who have taken the lead in the movement. "I congratulate all those working to fulfil the dream of a Swachh Bharat," he said.

According to the Ministry, around 4.7 lakh public toilet seats have been constructed so far. The target set under the mission was 5.07 lakh public toilet seats. More than 12,000 public toilets have been built in Delhi since 2015, the ministry said. Speaking at an event here, HUA Secretary Durga Shanker Mishra said 19 states and UTs were already Open Defecation Free (ODF) in their urban areas.

"This has been achieved by the construction of nearly 60.53 lakh individual household toilets (against a mission target of 66 lakhs; i.e. 91.7% constructed and under-construction against target)," Mishra said in an official statement.

"In the area of solid waste management, at least 40 per cent of the total waste generated in the country is being processed, and 52 percent of wards are practising source segregation," the ministry officials said.

On the occasion of the "World Toilet Day", the government also released Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) for cleaning of sewers and septic tanks for field staff who respond to sewer overflows or spills.

The workshop on urban sanitation is aimed at addressing challenges in the urban sanitation space thereby enable participating states and cities in proactively implementing viable, affordable and sustainable sanitation solutions for a Swachh Bharat.

The Swachh Bharat Mission (Clean India Mission) aims to achieve 100 per cent open defecation free (ODF) and scientific solid waste management in India by October 2, 2019, the 150th birthday anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi.

Shah to visit Mizoram for public meet

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

BJP president Amit Shah will be on a day visit to Mizoram on Tuesday, where he will address a public meeting first at Ariopagi, Lawngtlai and thereafter, at Vairengte in the State.

Shah will also address a Press conference and release Vision Document of the BJP for Mizoram at the State BJP Office in Aizawl.

The first public meeting will be at Lawngtlai in the morning followed by Joint YMA playground, Vairengte later in the evening. The battle for votes in Mizoram is a direct fight between ruling Congress which has been in power since 2008 and Mizo National Front (MNF), the biggest regional outfit. An optimist BJP which already penetrated North-East well and succeeded in Assam, Manipur and Meghalaya has fielded 39 candidates for the 40-strong Mizoram Assembly. The State has 87 per cent Christian population.

Amritsar blast: Rajnath reviews security situation

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

In the wake of the "terror" attack in Punjab, where three people were killed and 20 others injured in a grenade blast, Union Home Minister Rajnath Singh on Monday reviewed the security situation in the country.

Senior officials of the Home Ministry and security agencies briefed the Home Minister regarding the explosion at a religious gathering near Amritsar on Sunday, an incident which police are treating as a "terrorist act".

The Home Minister directed the officials to provide all assistance to the Punjab Government in their investigation to nab the perpetrators of the crime, a Home Ministry official said.

Singh was told that a team of the National Investigation Agency has already visited the blast site along with their investigators and explosive experts.

Three persons, including a preacher, were killed and 20 others injured when two motorcycle borne men threw grenade on a religious congregation on the outskirts of Amritsar.

The incident took place inside the Nirankari Bhavan's prayer hall at Adliwal village near Amritsar's Rajasansi, police said.

A religious congregation of the Nirankari followers was being conducted inside the Bhavan at the time of the incident. The Sant Nirankari Mission is a spiritual organisation and the Bhavan lies close to the Amritsar international airport and the Indo-Pak border.

Cong's plea to restrain Swamy from tweeting about Herald case rejected

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The fast track court handling National Herald case on Monday dismissed senior Congress leader Motilal Vora's plea seeking to restrain complainant Subramanian Swamy from tweeting about the case and using "derogatory language" against Congress leaders. Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate Samar Vishal rejected the plea of Vora, also an accused in the case, saying there was nothing to show that the tweets caused any damage to the trial of the case, or any prejudice to the court.

Vora, in his application, had alleged that Swamy was trying to influence the court proceedings with his tweets. He also accused Swamy of using derogatory language against Congress leaders Sonia Gandhi and Rahul Gandhi often on the social media platform. The court said the tweets cited by Vora "cannot be said to interfere or obstruct the administration of justice nor can be said to prejudice the due course of any judicial proceedings, firstly because no such instance due to which the applicant can say this has either been stated in the application, nor has been put forth in the argument".

"The trial is going on and has reached the stage of evidence, and I am unable to find anything on record nor anything has been put forth to show that these tweets may have caused any damage to the trial or any prejudice to the court," the judge said. It said "a court cannot prohibit any person from reporting the proceedings of a case unless it is shown that the reporting is patently and malafidely false".

"The tweets may not be happily worded from the point of view of the applicant or other accused, but how they interfere in the administration of justice or are prejudicial to the defence of the accused is not clear," the court said, posting cross examination of Swamy in the main case to January 11.

Hope RBI Guv shows Modi his place: Rahul

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

In the wake of confrontation between the Government and the RBI, Congress president Rahul Gandhi on Monday hoped that the Central bank gathered the courage to put the onus of liquidity crisis on Prime Minister Narendra Modi. Rahul said if RBI Governor Urjit Patel has a "spine" he will show the Prime Minister "his place".

Later, the RBI's crucial board meeting on Monday took up the liquidity crisis that has triggered a tiff between the government and the central bank. "Mr Modi and his coterie of cronies, continue to destroy every institution they can get their hands on. Today, through his puppets at the RBI Board Meet he will attempt to destroy the RBI. I hope Mr Patel and his team have a spine and show him his place," Rahul tweeted earlier in the day. The Congress has accused the Modi Government of destroying every institution in the country and the latest one being the RBI. The meeting is being held in the background of tension between the Centre and the RBI after Finance Ministry cited the never-used-before Section 7 of the RBI Act which empowers the Government to issue directions to the RBI Governor.

The Government on November 9 had said it was discussing an "appropriate" size of capital reserves that the central bank must maintain but denied seeking a massive capital transfer from the RBI. Economic Affairs Secretary Subhash Chandra Garg had also clarified that the Government wasn't in any dire needs of funds and that there was no proposal to ask the RBI to transfer ₹3.6 lakh crore.

Govt to install high-powered telescope along Indo-Pak border

New Delhi: A high-powered telescope will be installed along the Indo-Pak border for devotees to view Kartarpur Sahib in Punjab, one of the holiest shrines of Sikhs.

The Government on Monday also announced that a commemorative coin and postage stamps will be released as part of a series of activities planned to mark the 550th birth anniversary of Guru Nanak Dev.

The Ministry of Electronics and IT will install a high-powered telescope in India for the devotees to view Kartarpur Sahib in Pakistan, while the Railways Ministry will run a train, which will pass through places associated with the Sikh guru, a Home Ministry statement said.

The issue of Kartarpur Sahib came into focus after Punjab Minister Navjot Singh Sidhu visited Pakistan in August to attend the oath-taking ceremony of his cricketer-turned-politician friend Imran Khan as Prime Minister of that country.

After his return, Sidhu claimed that Pakistan Army chief Qamar Javed Bajwa had told him that Pakistan may open a corridor to Kartarpur Sahib, which is located just across the International Border in Punjab.

Kartarpur Sahib is the final resting place of Guru Nanak

The National Implementation Committee, chaired by Rajnath Singh, also launched events, including the release of commemorative coin and postage stamps. Following this, it was decided that the 550th birth anniversary of Guru Nanak Dev will be commemorated through a series of activities, commencing in November, throughout the country and across the globe, the statement said.

"The year 2019 marks the 550th birth anniversary of Shri Guru Nanak Dev Ji, the great saint and founder of the Sikh faith. Guru Nanak's teachings of love, peace and brotherhood hold universal appeal," it said. PTI

FROM SUPREME COURT

Zakia Jafri case: Plea challenging clean chit to Modi deferred till November 26

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday deferred till November 26 hearing on the plea of Zakia Jafri challenging the clean chit given by the Special Investigating Team (SIT) to Narendra Modi, who was then Gujarat Chief Minister, in connection with the 2002 post-Godhra riots.

Zakia, the wife of Ehsan Jafri, an ex-MP who was killed in one of the worst incidents during the riots, has challenged the Gujarat High Court's October 5, 2017 order rejecting her plea against the SIT's decision.

A bench headed by Justice A M Khanwilkar said, "The matter will take some time for hearing. The plea will be heard on November 26".

At the outset, senior Advocate Mukul Rohatgi appearing for the SIT, said Zakia's plea was not maintainable and social activist Teesta Setalvad cannot be the second petitioner in the case. The bench said it will look into the application before hearing the matter on making Setalvad as the second petitioner in Jafri's plea.

During the previous hearing, Jafri's counsel had said that notice needs to be issued in the plea as it pertains to the aspect of alleged "larger conspiracy" during the period from February 27, 2002 and May 2002 and had also maintained that after the SIT gave a clean chit in its closure report in the case before a trial judge, a protest was filed by the petitioner which was dismissed by the magistrate without considering "substantiated merits".

On February 8, 2012, the SIT filed a closure report, giving the clean chit to Modi and 63 others, including senior government officials, saying there was "no prosecutable evidence" against them. Ehsan Jafri was among 68 people who were killed at the Gulberg Society in Ahmedabad when a mob attacked it on February 28, 2002, a day after the S-6 Coach of the Sabarmati Express returning from Ayodhya at Godhra was burnt, triggering the riots in Gujarat. PTI

Malegaon case: Bombay HC asked to deal with Purohit's plea

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday asked the Bombay High Court to deal with the plea of Lt. Col. Prasad Shrikant Purohit, one of the accused in the 2008 Malegaon blast case, that he was being prosecuted in the matter without any valid sanction.

A bench headed by Chief Justice Ranjan Gogoi directed the High Court that Purohit's plea be dealt with on November 21. A special court on November 2 had commenced the formal trial against Purohit, Sadhvi Pragya Singh Thakur and five other accused after framing of charges under various penal law in the Malegaon blast case.

Purohit, in his plea, referred to the earlier apex court order by which the trial court and the Bombay High Court were directed to deal with the claim of Purohit that he was being prosecuted under penal laws including the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act without any sanction from the authorities.

The plea also alleged that the charges have been framed against Purohit and others by the trial court which had commenced the trial without dealing with the claim on sanction.

Six people were killed and over 100 injured when an explosive device strapped on a motorcycle went off near a mosque in Malegaon, a town about 200 km from north Maharashtra, on September 29, 2008. PTI

3-day 'youth against leprosy' festival begins

PNS ■ INDORE

With an aim to break the myth and stigma surrounding leprosy, a three-day Youth Festival 'Youth against Leprosy' was kicked off from Monday here. Mentionworthy, India accounts for 60 per cent of global cases. Its purpose is to work towards the socio-economic development of those affected by the crippling disease and their families.

Several youths from leprosy colonies across the city have congregated at the festival organised by Sasakawa-India Leprosy Foundation (SILF), an organisation that focuses on creating economic opportunities for leprosy-affected people.

Vineeta Shanker, executive director of the SILF said that idea behind holding the Youth Festival, bringing youth and stakeholders under one roof here, is to make the younger generation aware about the disease. "They have a little idea or understanding on leprosy as a disease. Whatever little they may know comes from family and friends and is often vague and reaffirms the stigma against the disease."

It is unfortunate that despite being non contagious and fully curable, leprosy is still considered as a curse and the myth is still there that whoever will get in touch with these people will get affected, Shanker said. She pointed out that "In 2005, while we were applauding ourselves, we did not look deep enough to see the regional variations. That, in itself, should have given us a pointer that this problem was far from over."

Tehseen Zaidi, Communications and Advocacy Manager with SILF informed that the collaborations like Youth Festival provides a platform for leprosy who are now effacement into running livelihood enterprises. "This initiative has enabled them to make a successful transition from begging to a dignified livelihood," said Tehseen.

The awardees of the 8th Rising to Dignity Awards-2018 are two groups from Indore, Madhya Pradesh and Kamareddy District in Telangana. An all women group of Indore, dealing in Sari retailing project and a mix group of men and women from Vendrikal, Kamareddy running Dairy and Goat Rearing (Agricultural Development and financing) project have won the award.

India still accounts for 60 per cent of new cases reported globally.

In the year 2007, new cases detected in India were 137,685, and nine years later in 2016, the number remained almost the same at 135,485, a significant increase over the 127,326 new cases detected in 2015, according to a study.

India led world in reducing malaria in 2017: Report

New Delhi: India and 10 other countries in sub-Saharan Africa accounted for around 70 per cent of estimated malaria cases (151 million) and deaths (274,000) globally last year, with only India reporting progress in reducing its malaria cases when compared to 2016, a report said on Monday.

India has turned out as the only country among the 11 highest-burden countries to mark progress in reducing its disease burden, registering a 24 per cent decrease in 2017 compared to 2016, according to WHO World Malaria Report 2018.

By leading the world in malaria case reductions in 2017, India is no longer among the top three countries with the highest malaria burdens. However, 1.25 billion Indians remain at risk of malaria. India has set a target of being malaria-free by 2027 and eliminating the disease by 2030. PTI

Change data collection procedure: CIC to RGI

New Delhi: The CIC has directed the Registrar General of India (RGI) to change its practices of data collection, especially with regard to births and deaths.

Information Commissioner Yashovardhan Azad, in an important order, issued directives to make changes in the software and practices of the RGI.

He was hearing a petition filed by an RTI applicant, seeking information about the deaths reported in all the wards of Mumbai in 2016.

The information was not provided to him, following which he approached the Central Information Commission (CIC).

During the hearing, the official representing the RGI said the office was a data aggregator.

He submitted that the States were tasked with the overall implementation under section 3 of the Registration of Births and Deaths (RBD) Act, whereas the ground-level record was maintained by the registrars appointed by the respective States, Azad noted.

Information Commissioner Yashovardhan Azad, in an important order, issued directives to make changes in the software and practices of the RGI

"Despite the contention of the PIO that the CRS (Civil Registration System) Division of the Registrar General, India cannot be held to be the custodian of ward-wise data as sought by the appellant, the commission finds that the role of the Registrar General in the implementation of the RBD Act cannot be lost sight of," he said.

Azad added that the present controversy was limited only to the practices related to data maintenance and preservation.

"There is no legal impediment in creation of two or more equally effective access points of information, both at the central as well as at the state level. It is rather a question of 'data mirroring' and the essential question raised in the present case requires forging new practices of data management, which is in furtherance of the RBD Act as well as the RTI Act," he said.

The PIO's submission that it was comparatively difficult to register the data of deaths with the cause of the deaths, in contrast to the data regarding births, Azad added.

"The judicious aggregation as well as the preservation of the 'data of death' are very important for ensuring the quality of life of the living. The data is a crucial indicator of various factors, which is a key for ensuring good governance and efficient policy planning. PTI

Chilling reminder

The Amritsar blast revives gory memories of a decade of insane terror in Punjab. It must be nipped in the bud

The deadly grenade blast inside Amritsar's Nirankari Sadan last Sunday, which killed at least three and injured 20 persons, is a chilling reminder that the surface calm in Punjab betrays the tensions that lie beneath. It has been known for some time that unwilling to throw in the towel after secessionist terror was mostly quelled, Pakistan's ISI has tried continuously to revive militancy in the border State which has a history of unrest. Although public sentiment never endorsed secessionism in Punjab and all efforts to cause a permanent rupture between Hindus and Sikhs were conclusively defeated, Pakistan has never tired in its bid to avenge its humiliation in the Bangladesh war of 1971. Pakistan has focused on fomenting insurgency on a mass scale in Jammu & Kashmir after getting a bloody nose in the 1980s and 90s, but there too it has not encountered the success it had hoped for as Indian security forces have put up fierce resistance and routinely felled a growing number of militants sent from across the Line of Control.

Since terrorism in Punjab has a bloody history and cost India over 30,000 lives, any fear of a return to gun culture causes alarm bells to ring in Chandigarh and New Delhi. Incidentally, Sikh militancy in the 80s had also begun with wanton attacks on followers of the Nirankaris, a sect not recognized by the Khalsa as being part of the community. Clearly, there is an attempt to fall back on that gory past and invoke memories of bloody clashes with that sect in order to revive the cult of terror in Punjab. No chances, therefore, can be taken with the perpetrators of Sunday's crime. Punishment must be fast and severe in order to nip this mischief in the bud. On a previous occasion political patronage of Sikh radicals by sections of the Congress and Akalis had helped secessionists to proliferate. This time, no quarter must be allowed to them and both the ruling and Opposition parties of Punjab must leave aside political calculations to deal with budding terrorists ruthlessly.

Chief Minister Captain Amarinder Singh faces a serious challenge yet again in his long political career. This time, he is required to remain steadfast in the face of all odds and firmly instruct the intelligence and law-enforcement machinery to root out terrorism in all its manifestations. He also has to ensure that frustrated elements in his party and the bureaucracy don't resume playing footsie with secessionists as they had done in the past. Terrorism cannot flourish without covert state patronage and it is the job of Punjab's rulers to ensure that those suspected of extending such support are weeded out of the system without mercy. For Prime Minister Narendra Modi, too, this is a huge challenge in an election year. Much of his rhetoric against the Congress will sound hollow if he cannot ensure that terrorism in Punjab, which was stamped out by a Congress Prime Minister, PV Narasimha Rao, does not come back to haunt India despite a strong leader at its helm. In many ways, Punjab is a jewel in India's crown, not just its granary or mainstay of its security. We cannot afford to let it drift again.

Quota question

The Maratha community may be rejoicing and the BJP Government exultant but reservations are not the only panacea

In announcing his Government's decision to accept the Maharashtra State Backward Class Commission recommendation to grant reservations to the Maratha community in jobs and education, Chief Minister Devendra Fadnis has opened a Pandora's Box. While political exigencies may have led to the decision to grant privileges to this traditionally dominant community in the countryside, much like the Jats in western Uttar Pradesh, Haryana and parts of Rajasthan and the Patidars (or Patels) in Gujarat, the domino effect of conceding the demand bears thinking about by all responsible politicians.

While it is true that these communities nurse a genuine sense of grievance given the decline in farm incomes over the past few decades compounded by a lack of access to quality education and job opportunities, which has led to a concomitant loss of social status for the current generation, this is by no means a phenomenon exclusive to these communities but a structural issue that impacts all citizens of India in more or less equal measure. Unlike Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, who have suffered well-documented social ostracisation and violent repression, these culturally dominant agrarian communities do not suffer from a comparable disadvantage. Of course, the argument from the pro-quota lot is that comparisons are more apt with the Other Backward Classes (OBC) communities which have been given quotas (albeit with a creamy layer proviso) post the implementation of the Mandal Commission recommendations but that in itself is a highly contentious and controversial discussion.

Of more immediate concern to the BJP Government in Maharashtra is how it will implement Maratha reservations given past judicial pronouncements on the issue of quotas over and above the 50 per cent limit. Its predecessor Congress-Nationalist Congress Party coalition in Maharashtra had also announced reservations for Marathas and Muslims just before the last Assembly election which were struck down in court. The way out being spoken of in Mantralaya, Mumbai, is to introduce a Bill in the forthcoming Winter Session of the State Assembly to create a new, State-specific Backward Classes category in which Marathas will be included for possibly a 16 per cent quota. This will be over and above the current SC/ST and OBC reservation in the State which is already at 52 per cent. Therefore the idea is to add the law, once passed, to the Ninth Schedule of the Constitution as any law in it is non-judicial. The Supreme Court, however, has held that even laws included in the Ninth Schedule will be open to judicial review to the extent that they must conform to the basic structure of the Constitution. In fine-tuning its strategy to implement quotas to win political support from the Maratha community, however, the BJP has shown it is no different from the Congress when it comes to avoiding the root causes of the sense of diminished status prevalent in these communities clamouring for reservations.

Not a model policy

The syncretic Islam traditionally practised in Bangladesh is being undermined as the country embarks on a Saudi-inspired mosque-building project

PRIYADARSHI DUTTA

Bangladesh, in an ironical move, is seeking the cooperation of Saudi Arabia to popularise 'model Islam' amongst her population. The project will crystallise in the form of 560 'model mosques' across the country built with Saudi funds. Paradoxically, in 1971, Saudi Arabia along with other Arab nations, had strongly opposed the independence of Bangladesh. Her war of liberation, actuated by Bangla nationalism, was perceived as anti-theistic to Islam. Even secular Turkey and progressive Egypt had chosen to side with Pakistan.

Tajuddin Ahmad (1925-1975), the Prime Minister of the wartime provisional Government of Bangladesh based in Mujibnagar (district Meherpur), had a tough time convincing the Arab nations that the Pakistani armed forces were not fighting a battle of Islamic righteousness in Bangladesh. They were rather indulging in "well-documented crimes of arson, loot, rape and murder." Ahmad had to remind the Arabs how they had once to fight for their own independence from the Turkish Ottoman Empire albeit Turks were also fellow Muslims.

The professed aim of the 'model mosque' project is to salvage Islam from the hands of radicals and militants. Prime Minister Hasina feels that Islam, a religion of peace, has been usurped by these extreme elements. But how to be sure that the religion is in its pristine and peaceful state in Saudi Arabia? After all, 15 of the 19 citizens involved in the hijacking of airplanes used in 9/11 attacks were citizens of the kingdom.

Being starry-eyed about the project, Hasina has put Bangladeshi Taka 8,722 crore from the public exchequer into the initiative, not having received Saudi funds as yet. But what model of Islam is expected from Saudi Arabia? The desert kingdom is infamous for exporting Wahabism, a rigid and intolerant variant of Islam, worldwide. In September 2015 it had offered Germany to build 200 mosques — roughly one for each of the 100 refugees fleeing Syria.

Susane Schröter, Director, Frankfurt Research Centre for Global Islam, estimates that Riyadh has invested at least 76 billion Euros ($86 billion) in the last 50 years of oil boom to promote Wahabism across the globe. So, Sheikh Hasina should not complain if she finds Bangladesh drifting towards gender segregation, Sharia penal code and prohibition on the public practice of other religions and traditions.

Saudi Arabia could not be the model for Bangladesh, not merely because the former is a retrograde dynastic monarchy. The identity of the desert kingdom is defined merely through its religion. Islam historically originated in the territory of Saudi Arabia (formerly called Hejaz), thus the kingdom is to Islam what a shadow is to an object placed in the sun. But the same is not true of Bangladesh, which is placed in a different geographical, environmental and cultural zone. To make Bangladeshis 'more Muslim' is surely to foment internal trouble.

If, today, to believe Sheikh Hasina, Islam has gone into radical hands, the reason is not because any Government of Bangladesh deliberately promoted radical Islam. The reason is that every Government of Bangladesh has tried to infuse more and more Islam into Bangladeshi society. As a result, Bangladesh, by negating its foundational principles, is en route to becoming a mirror image of Pakistan.

Ironically, the initiative was started by Bangabandhu Mujibur Rahman, the absentee founder of Bangladesh (he was a prisoner in Mianwali jail in Pakistan through the months of the Liberation War). Rahman as the first President (later Prime Minister) of Bangladesh prohibited horse racing, gambling and sale of liquor in Bangladesh in deference to Islamic traditions. Thus, activities that were permitted in the Islamic Republic of Pakistan became haram in secular Bangladesh.

The Pakistani Army, during the Liberation War, heavily damaged the ancient Ramna Kalibari, an iconic Dhaka structure; it also slaughtered most of its residents including the priest. It was expected that sovereign Bangladesh would prioritise rebuilding the temple as a symbol of its heritage and communal harmony. But to everybody's surprise, Mujibur Rahman got the damaged temple disestablished brick-by-brick in 1972.

The huge cleared up space (along with the dismantled Race Course) was converted into a park viz Suhrawardy Uddyan named after Huseyn Shahid Suhrawardy, the architect of the Great Calcutta Killings (1946) who happened to be the mentor of Rahman during his early years in the Muslim League.

What is distinctive about Bangladesh is its language, Bengali. It was consistently seen with suspicion by the Pakistan authorities. They saw it as an impediment to true Islam. The people of Bangladesh (then East Pakistan) refused attempts by Karachi to impose Urdu. The language agitation of February 21, 1952, that led to seven deaths in police firing, left an enduring legacy for Bangladesh.

The UNESCO has honoured the date by recognising February 21 as 'International Mother Language Day'. The Bangladesh Liberation War of 1971 — as against popular misconception in India — was not prompted by the language issue. Yet the demolition of the Shaheed Minar (estd 1963) dedicated to the language martyrs of 1952 by the Pakistan

Army during 1971 war created widespread hurt among Bengalis. It was rebuilt after the war and subsequently expanded it in 1983. It has attained the status of a pilgrimage centre in Bangladesh.

So, why has the Bengali language been exalted to a cult status in Bangladesh? This is because they would be bereft of their cultural moorings to their soil without it. Their religion, Islam, connects them with Arabia, in a psychological sense but it also alienates them from their ancestry, history, culture and environment. Hasina should introspect. Why is only an emphasis on Islam needed for course correction in an already Muslim majority state? Successive Governments have promoted only Islam in Bangladesh, whether out of piety or political expediency, but the result is the deracination of a large section of the population dependent on Islamic curriculum.

Until 1970, says Abul Barkat in his signal book, Political Economy of Madrasa Education in Bangladesh, there were 2,721 madrasas. But by 2008, their number had increased to 14,152. The net effect is that Bangladesh's foundational legacy is under threat. The 'model mosques' project will only contribute to the deracination process.

Restore lost pride

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Whose wings clipped?" (November 19). Undoubtedly, the IT department started questioning and raiding the Telugu Desam Party (TDP) leaders only after the party parted ways with the National Democratic Alliance (NDA). But by revoking general consent to the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI), TDP chief, N Chandrababu Naidu and West Bengal Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, have sent negative signals, hinting that there's a lot more than meets the eye.

It will take some time before the CBI gets its act together as both its chief and deputy are fighting a dirty battle. But the Centre will do well and assure both the leaders that they are not in for a witch hunt. This is the least it can do to restore glory of the investigative body. Police reform has become the dire need of the hour and should not be delayed come what may. It is institutions like these that need to have this pride restored for the larger interest of the country.

Conflicting history in discovery

This refers to the article, "Don't undermine national heroes" (November 19) by Prashant Tewari. The article appears to be a rejoinder to the critics of Jawaharlal Nehru and Gandhiji, alleging "distortion of historical facts" on public platforms and television debates. The writer not only glorifies the two leaders, but also states that the nation that "does not worship its heroes" will head to "the path of disaster."

Both Nehru and Gandhiji had great qualities as well as flaws. No sensible Indian can overlook their tremendous sacrifices in the cause of freedom, and at the same time, one should not ignore their faults. For example, in the case of Jawaharlal Nehru, his policy on Kashmir, agreeing to Mountbatten's proposal to make a referendum was a blunder that continues to bleed the nation till date.

Similarly, his championing the issue of Communist China's membership of the UN Security Council and his over-enthusiastic emphasis on 'Hindi-Chini bhai bhai' culminated in China's invasion of India in the winter of 1962. Nehru's "secularism" and socialistic economic policy were equally flawed. The first was regarded by many as "minority appeasement" and the second as "licence raj".

More than meets the eye

In a power battle between the providers and consumers of electricity, the latter lose, yet again

UTTAM GUPTA

During the first decade of the 2000s, in a bid to boost power generation and to make it available at 'affordable' and 'stable' price to consumers, the then Government had mooted the idea of ultra mega power projects. Two such plants were bagged by Tata Power Ltd (TPL) and Adani Power Ltd (APL) under tariff-based competitive bidding (TBCB), each with an installed capacity of 4,000 MW and 4,620 MW, respectively. While the TPL is based entirely on imported coal, APL uses 70 per cent domestic and 30 per cent imported coal. Under long-term power purchase agreements (PPAs), they committed to sell to power distribution companies at fixed tariff — in case of the TPL, tariff was ₹2.26 per unit and for APL, it was ₹2.35/ 2.94 per unit. The beauty of this dispensation was that unlike all subsisting PPAs, wherein increase in cost of fuel was pass-through for suppliers from UMPPs, they were fully shielded against the hike.

This meant that the projects would have arrangements in place to ensure that they got coal supplies at a fixed price all through. Even if they were to pay more, tariffs would not change. In other words, higher fuel cost would be absorbed by the generator. Indeed, both TPL and APL took steps to ensure an uninterrupted source of coal supply at the desired price. For instance, TPL acquired 25-30 per cent equity in three Indonesian mines. Likewise, Adani acquired a coal mine in Queensland in 2010. Yet, these project promoters left no stone unturned in insisting on pass-through of the fuel price hike. Even worse, the executive, regulators and judiciary, whose prime role is to uphold sanctity of the PPAs and protect the interests of consumers, went out of the way to extend them a helping hand. In 2012, TPL/APL petitioned the Central Electricity Regulatory Commission, seeking the so-called "compensatory tariff" — a sophisticated nomenclature for hike in tariff. Their argument was that in September 2011, the Government of Indonesia imposed a minimum 'benchmark' price below which coal could not be exported from that country, and this event being beyond their control, they had no option but to seek pass-through.

In February 2014, the CERC sanctioned hike of 52/41 paise per unit for TPL/APL. The Appellate Tribunal for Electricity — vide an interim order (July 2014) — endorsed it and further confirmed in its final order (December 2016) given under directions from the Supreme Court. The Tribunal used 'force majeure' clause — euphemism for an event beyond control — to justify its order. In its order (April 2017), the apex court rejected the claim of Tata/Adani for compensatory tariff under 'force majeure' clause to an extent the hike was caused by increase in price of coal imported from Indonesia. For domestic supplies, however, it agreed with the interpretation of the APTEL resulting in corresponding relief to the APL, which sources 70 per cent of its requirement locally.

However, in an order dated October 29, 2018, the Supreme Court reversed its own decision by directing the CERC to amend their PPAs to facilitate pass-through of future fuel price escalation, which was subject to a cap. Apart from accepting the main contention of generators viz 'force majeure', this is based on the recommendations of a committee (set up by the Gujarat Government in July 2018), which argued that at tariff allowed under the extant PPA, plants are running at low utilisation forcing the state/PDCs to buy power from other sources at a much higher rate. None of these arguments is sustainable. The change in Indonesian law cannot be given the benefit of 'force majeure' as at the time of bidding and signing PPAs, TPL/APL were expected to be aware of all possible factors (regulatory changes included) having a bearing on the fuel price. Indeed, they were as reflected in their decision to acquire stakes in mines located in foreign jurisdictions. The very rationale of such acquisitions was to immunise the generation cost against fuel price hike. The second argument that PDCs/states will have to pay much more (buying from other sources) if the said projects are rendered unviable is also not tenable. The generators must honour the terms of the contract/PPA by supplying power at the agreed price. If they can't, they should compensate PDCs for excess price paid for purchasing from other sources. Both companies belong to conglomerates which have diversified interests and deep pockets. If their initial projections/calculations went haywire, they must be prepared to pay for it instead of expecting consumers to bear the burden. Yet, they went for the easy option.

Unfortunately, the executive/regulator/judiciary — all have abdicated responsibility. The Gujarat Government, which along with other affected States, had put up a brave fight until last year, is the biggest culprit as it has done all the ground work leading to meek surrender to untenable demands of generators. The apex court's verdict is the last word. Hence, there is no hope for hapless consumers who will have to pay more for electricity. It also forestalls any chance of getting immunity from fuel price hike in the future.

CONGRESS THREW SITARAM KESRI, SOMEONE FROM A DALIT AND MARGINALISED COMMUNITY, ON THE FOOTPATH TO MAKE WAY FOR SONIA GANDHI.
 —PRIME MINISTER NARENDRA MODI

POINT COUNTERPOINT

KESRI WAS A BANIA OBC FROM BIHAR AND NOT A DALIT. HOWEVER, WHEN HAS THE PRIME MINISTER ALLOWED FACTS OR TRUTH TO STAND IN THE WAY?
 —CONGRESS LEADER MANISH TEWARI

Maker of modern India

Nehru taught us to look outward, express solidarity and become, in the process, cosmopolitan. Sadly, contemporary history has not treated this statesman kindly

PRASHANT TEWARI

Jawaharlar Nehru provided India a distinct place of importance in the international sphere with his policy of non-alignment and Panchsheel. He firmly rejected communalism. We cannot think of any state which can be called communal or religious. We can think of a secular, non-communal, democratic state in which every individual, to whatever religion he/she may belong, has equal rights and opportunities. To him, first and foremost, democracy meant individual freedom. On socialism, Nehru said: "Socialism is...not only a way of life but a certain scientific approach to social and economic problems." On capitalism, he said: "The forces in a capitalist society, if left unchecked, tend to make the rich richer and the poor poorer."

During the Nehruvian era, industrialisation became the first fundamental principle for economic development of the country. Nehru had a strong conviction that the well-being of the Indian community lay in rapid industrialisation and the use of science and technology. He preferred to set up key industries in the public sector for sustenance of economic independence and took the public sector to commanding heights of the Indian economy. Nehru said that the application of science and technology is inevitable and unavoidable for all countries and people today. Scientific approach and temper are, or should be, the way of life, process of thinking, method of acting and associated with our fellow countrymen.

Science deals with the domain of positive knowledge but the temper which it should produce goes beyond that domain. It is science alone that can solve problems of hunger and poverty, of insanitation and illiteracy, superstition and deadening custom and tradition, of vast resources running to waste, or a rich country inhabited by starving people. Simultaneously, he worked for 'trained personnel' to effectively implement the policy. Nehru was convinced that modern technology should come in a big way to help India solve many of its chronic problems. The launching of Panchayati Raj was without doubt a great step forward in taking democracy meaningfully to the people in rural areas. The process of institution-building received a further fillip when it was launched.

That people should be actively involved in the process of nation-building and that India's diversity and vastness required a wide institutional framework for developmental work were stressed by Nehru right from the dawn of India's Independence. Thanks to Jawaharlar Nehru's vision, India not only adopted and operated successfully the Westminster type of parliamentary democracy, but created new institutions to meet the challenging demands of speedy development. In this regard, Nehru's leadership was dynamic and innovative.

Nehru's Cabinet colleague, MC Chagla, summed up his personality: "Most people who become Prime Minister or Chief Minister owe the adulation they receive from the people solely to the position they occupy. Nehru's case was quite different. He honoured the office of the Prime Minister by holding it and the prime ministership in itself did not add any further lustre to the reputation which he already enjoyed either at home or abroad."

Nehru was an institutional builder. Most institutions established by him struck roots despite the lack of adequate resources and the number of trained personnel. He paved way for India's educational exaltation by envisioning the country's top-tier institutions, like the Indian Institute of Technology (IIT), All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS), Indian Institute of Management (IIM) and many more world-class commercial public sector undertakings which subsequently became the backbone of the Indian economy.

However, contemporary history has not treated this statesman kindly. This is a pity because today's generation might know what globalisation is but not about cosmopolitanism. Even as our society globalises at a frenetic pace, it has turned inwards and become claustrophobic. History must remember Nehru because he taught us to look outward, express solidarity and in the process become cosmopolitan.

An American research scholar, Granville Austin, brilliantly summed up the Nehru era by publishing in his research work that Nehru and his generation initially created tensions in the seamless web, many of which subsided by the close of the period. It is difficult to imagine how it could have been otherwise. Citizens' expectations were high, and that of their leaders were even higher. But the successes of the period were fundamental. Power relationships were sorted out constitutionally, the parliamentary system became entrenched, democracy not only survived Nehru's charisma but popular participation strengthened it, power was democratically transferred from one Prime Minister to another twice in 16 years. One-party Government combined internal party democracy and political variety with preserving national unity and integrity: The foundation was laid for an industrial economy and the social revolution was set in motion. This was no golden age but the Nehru years set the standards against which others would be measured — and many fell short.

Nehru was a human being perceived to be a demi-god by a large segment of Indians during his life span. It was believed that Nehru could do no wrong but he faltered on Kashmir and China issues. His peace-loving approach and over-dependence on trusted friends caused us deep embarrassment on both the issues. Two significant setbacks in his long distinguished political career were the reason why he never recovered from the trauma. With all its faults, the Indian democracy under Nehru's leadership grew to be the most enduring system in the Third world. Flourishing democracy and scientific temper of the nation were the two greatest gifts of Nehru to his motherland India. Unfortunately, this freedom might be the reason why he is freely abused by a handful of countrymen in his absence without any fear.

Even more depressing is the fact that the Grand Old Party, which was nurtured by the blood and sweat of Nehru, is defenceless against the onslaught from political opponents — reason being that the current Congress leadership is intellectually hollow and is controlled by political advisers, secretaries and peons rather than mass base leaders.

On a positive note, today, when we talk about the state of affairs, which can be best termed as 'Advantage India' that somehow India seems to possess and we hold every single of those attributes needed for economic development in the 21st century, we pause and do a historical analysis of the situation. How did this advantageous state of affairs come about? Clearly, it was not some hidden potential in India that was waiting to be resuscitated from time immemorial. Nor is it simply the economic reforms of the last couple of decades. The roots for this success lie deeper than that. It is in Nehru's vision for India that we need to seek the real root of this development.

The success of India actually owes a lot to the domestic capacities built in India to withstand global pressures and produce completely innovative solutions to important economic challenges. The personality of Jawaharlar Nehru can be scanned by the endorsement he got from the two greatest political giants of his era: "I have wanted to see you (Nehru). If you had not come I would have come to you. You are a man of peace" (Fidel Castro). "This man has overcome two of the greatest failings in human nature — he (Nehru) knows neither fear nor hatred." (Winston Churchill).

Australia must up its Asian literacy

For the long-term future of bilateral relations between India and Australia, creating Constituencies of Country Champions is paramount to shape strategic thinking, influence policy-making and facilitate people-to-people interaction

ASHUTOSH MISRA

President Ram Nath Kovind's maiden visit to Australia comes close on the heels of the release of Peter Varghese's report, 'An India Economic Strategy to 2035: Navigating from Potential to Delivery', a comprehensive and incisive India strategy to be commissioned by any Prime Minister till date. While the report bodes well for economic ties, the future of India-Australia relations hinges on reinventing the 3Cs — Curry, Cricket and Commonwealth — with a new 3Cs approach — nurturing Constituencies of Country Champions — that requires investing in people and institutions. Six years ago, Australian economist Ken Henry was delegated by the then Prime Minister Julia Gillard to develop the 'Australia in the Asian Century White Paper 2012', which recommended Australia to expand its strategic net in Asia, engage with Indonesia and rising power India and shape the future of the region.

The Varghese report, too, said that engaging with India was no more an option but a necessity. Importantly, both reports recognised that policy-making is not a purely Government-task but a joint exercise involving academics, scholars, analysts and institutions, who possess knowledge and expertise on the region and regional matters. Varghese went a step ahead to posit that the Australian Government neither had the capacity nor the inclination to implement a strategy of its own. Let us be mindful that the report is largely an economic strategy. Business and trade strategies remain susceptible to periodic market volatility, domestic politics and ever altering policy priorities. Therefore, for a long-term future of bilateral relations, creating Constituencies of Country Champions is paramount to shape strategic thinking, influence policy-making and facilitate people-to-people interaction.

This requires a three-pronged approach. In the immediate term, focus must be on people and institutions who possess requisite country expertise, lived experiences and professional linkages. In the intermediate term, lessons must be drawn from the recommendations of research works and Government reports, notably, the Melbourne Declaration on educational Goals for Young Australians, 2008, which noted, "India, China and other Asian nations are growing and their influence on the world is increasing. Australians need to become 'Asia literate', engage and build strong relationships with Asia". In the long-term, schools and universities must be encouraged to introduce courses and programmes on India, not only supporting existing institutions specialising in India-Australia studies but also creating new ones. The US and Singapore are two examples where people and institutions, possessing country expertise, have played a vital role in shaping strategic thinking, lobbied as peace advocates during testing times and bolstered a vibrant and well-informed Constituency of Country Champions. Australia must solve its Asian literacy conundrum, which has fuelled debate among academics and policy-makers.

Asian literacy is not just about language proficiency. It is about understanding values, customs, traditions, socio-political and cultural nuances to decode how a nation thinks and acts. It requires familiarising oneself with Asian history, values and culture early in school, alongside developing language skills and undertaking country visits as a part of immersion programmes or other study visits. Unfortunately, a steady decline across Australian primary and secondary schools in Asian language and history teaching has made Australia knowledge-deficient on Asia, especially, India and Indonesia. During school dropout/pickup hours, it is common to see Asian kids conversing with their Asian parents in English than in native language. While English learning is vital, developing Asian multi-lingual proficiency and country knowledge will trigger intellectual curiosity in young minds, which can be tapped and satiated by universities.

But most Australian universities don't offer India studies in their curriculum, an indication of how they perceive Australia's interests in the Asian century. The Ken Henry report has cut little ice in building Asia-oriented university curriculum, at least from the Indian viewpoint. There appears a disconnect between national and institutional visions which can be melded by introducing core and elective courses on India with integrated field study for gaining in-country experience.

Most importantly such courses would serve the domestic Australian students more on whom leadership may be thrust upon at various institutions for developing or leading India strategy. The Commonwealth Government funds several fellowships, such as the New Colombo Plan, which supports over 10,000 research fellowships in 40 Asian countries, including India, producing around 900 Australian undergraduates undertaking research, study and internships in India during 2015-16. The Australia India Council grants, Australia-Indian Strategic Research Fund and Endeavour Leadership grant also fund research projects on India-Australia issues but they develop subject expertise, not necessarily country expertise. As per the Australian High Commission data in New Delhi, there is a 20-30 per cent increase in the enrolment of Indian students, totalling 70,000 in 2017 at Australian universities. But this is good news for Australian literacy in India, as many will return as Australia's brand ambassadors and help nurture the constituency of Australia champions in India. At Indian universities, Australia remains a passing reference in courses on Asia-Pacific. New centres are emerging but Australian literacy in India remains far from satisfactory. In the absence of country champions and specialised institutions, overnight experts assume policy-making responsibilities, which is worrisome. During an interview at a high-profile federal department in Canberra, once a 'expert' in the panel asked this writer whether he spoke 'Hindu, unaware of the distinction between Hindu and Hindi. Such knowledge gaps can only be filled by investing in people and institutions on both sides, and creating Constituencies of Country Champions.

SABARIMALA ROW

PTI ■ NILACKAL/PAMBA (KERALA)

Union Minister Alphonso Kannanthanam on Monday hit out at the Kerala Government for turning the Sabarimala temple complex into a "war zone" and treating the pilgrims like "dacoits". "They have imposed Section 144 (prohibitory orders). The pilgrims are being treated like dacoits. Where is the basic infrastructure... This is pathetic," the Minister, who arrived here to take stock of the facilities at the hill shrine, told reporters.

"The State Government has turned the temple complex into a war zone. The devotees are not terrorists, they are pilgrims," he said.

Restrictions have been imposed at the temple complex following protests by activists of the BJP, RSS and right-wing outfits over the State Government's decision to implement the September 28 Supreme Court order allowing the entry of women of all ages into the shrine.

'THE STATE GOVERNMENT HAS TURNED THE TEMPLE COMPLEX INTO A WAR ZONE. THE DEVOTEES ARE NOT TERRORISTS, THEY ARE PILGRIMS,' HE SAID

"The state government must take responsibility... The Union Tourism Ministry had given ₹100 crore... They have not spent even a rupee..." Kannanthanam said.

The Union minister visited Nilackal, the base camp, Pamba and Sannidhanam Monday morning, hours after police removed around 200-odd people who had gathered at the temple complex late Sunday night. They held "nama japam" (chanting the name of Lord Ayyappa) protest against the police restrictions. The police had also taken into custody 68 protesters on Sunday night.

The CPI(M)-led LDF Government is making life difficult for all the pilgrims coming here, the Minister said. "This is like the Stalin era of the Soviet Union," he said.

"Sabarimala is one of the biggest pilgrims centre in the country. Here, everyone lives peacefully. This Government is determined to ensure that people do not have the right to their belief," the Minister said.

Pointing out that there was no basic facilities at Pamba, he said there were no toilets and all the three sheds at Nilackal are waterlogged.

"What is the intention of the Government? They want to make sure the pilgrims are not provided with basic facilities. What is happening with law and order? Section 144? Is this a democracy?" Kannanthanam said.

5 girls, not 2, died in shelter home

Patna: The Central Bureau of Investigation has discovered that five minor girls, and not two as reported earlier, died in the shelter home in Bihar's Muzaffarpur district.

Their post-mortem examinations were conducted at a Government hospital, police said on Monday.

The CBI, probing the alleged rape of 34 girls at the shelter home, on Sunday searched documents at Shri Krishna Medical College and Hospital and found that the post-mortem examinations of five girls of the shelter home were conducted there.

According to the hospital register, the post-mortems of two girls were conducted in 2013, two in 2015 and one in 2017.

The CBI officials are now trying to find out as to whom the bodies of the girls were handed over after their autopsies and also whether cases were registered in the matter.

"A team of CBI officials is likely to soon interrogate some hospital doctors to collect more details about the case," a district police officer said.

The CBI had earlier found human bones at a cremation ground on October 4 following a tip-off. It had also carried out an extensive excavation at the shelter home premises on suspicion that some inmates might have been killed and buried there, but could not recover anything from there.

Last month, a shelter home employee Krishna Ram, who also ran the press of Brajesh Thakur — the main accused — told the CBI sleuths that some bodies were stuffed in gunny bags and disposed of in the Burhi Gandak river a year ago.

However, the CBI could not recover anything from the river. According to the CBI, Ram disclosed that Brajesh Thakur had ordered the disposal of the bodies. He revealed that two inmates of Thakur's NGO, Seva Sankalp Ewam Vikas Samiti, had died under mysterious circumstances and their bodies were dumped in the river from Akharaghat Bridge with the help of Guddu, another employee of the shelter home, and Vijay Tiwari, Thakur's driver.

Of the 42 girls lodged at the short-stay home run by Brajesh Thakur's NGO, 34 were found to have been sexually assaulted. The crime came to light after a social audit by the Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai, five months ago.

K'taka sugarcane farmers hold protest in Bengaluru for higher price, loan waiver

KESTUR VASUKI ■ BENGALURU

Sugarcane farmers from across the State staged protests here on Monday seeking loan waiver, higher minimum purchase price and relief for losses incurred due to drought in 17 districts, which have been declared drought-hit.

Farmers from Ramanagara, Mandya, Mysuru, Kodagu, Kolar, Gadag, Tumukuru, Shivamogga, Hassan, Haveri, Hubballi, Belagavi and Bagalkot came to Bengaluru to protest against the anti-farmers policies of the JD(S)-Congress Government in the State.

"Farmers from all over the state have come to force the State Government meet our demands on loan waiver, higher price for sugarcane and compensation for kharif crop loss due to drought this year," Karnataka State Farmers Association President Chamaraj Patil told reporters.

"Though Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy announced farm loan waiver in June, the banks have not written off a rupee even after five months. Except for making announcements and giving assurances, nothing has happened. We are also unable to take fresh credit as old loans have not been waived off yet," Patil added.

Bengaluru City Police stopped hundreds of agitators from marching towards the Vidhana Soudha from Freedom Park as prohibitory orders were in place.

The Sugarcane farmers are demanding payment of ₹1,500 crore dues from state-run and private sugar mills for fiscal 2017-18; ₹3,000 per tonne higher minimum support price (MSP) for sugarcane from ₹2,500 per tonne fixed last year; fresh loans from cooperative and state-run banks for the rabi crop, supply of seeds and fertilisers.

Karnataka is the third largest sugarcane producer after Maharashtra and Uttar Pradesh, which had harvested 32 million tonne in 2017-18. The drought has affected 15-lakh hectares of agricultural and horticultural crops in 17 districts across the state, with an estimated loss of ₹8,000 crore.

Meanwhile Chief Minister HD Kumaraswamy had created a controversy by calling farmers goondas and also allegedly abused a woman farmer who was protesting in Belagavi. This has severely hit the pro farmer image of the coalition Government led by Kumaraswamy and also angered the coalition partner the Congress. After Jayashree Gurannavar, a woman farmer who was leading the agitation, called Kumaraswamy "a good for nothing CM", the CM hit back calling them "goondas in the guise of farmers". After his statement farmers were angry and intensified their agitation across the State.

Later the farmers' anger forced Kumaraswamy to retract saying that his statement was misinterpreted.

"My intention was not to hurt anyone. My statement has been misinterpreted by the media. I apologise if the farmers are hurt," Kumaraswamy said. Coalition partner Congress has criticised Kumaraswamy for making such a statement against the farmers. Deputy Chief Minister G Parameshwara said that he would apologise to the farmers for the CM's angry statement.

"I don't know in what context he has used the word 'goondas'. But he should not have said that. The Congress party has always been with the farmers and I personally apologise to them," Parameshwara said.

The BJP was quick to demand an apology from chief minister for his remarks on the farmer. Yeddyurappa said "The Gowdas call themselves a family of humble farmers. But their attitude is exactly the opposite. How could a CM call farmers "goondas"? he demanded a clarification from former Prime Minister HD Deve Gowda.

However JDS chief H D Deve Gowda has blamed a section of the media for Sunday's incident in Belgaum. Meanwhile Chief Minister has called for a meeting of the agitating farmers on Tuesday to resolve the issue. "I appeal to the farmers to be patient as the Government is committed to find solutions to their problems. I held meetings with officials and stakeholders on demands of sugarcane growers. I have directed the district deputy commissioners to resolve their issues," said the statement citing the Chief Minister. Though debt waiver was not a solution to the farmers' woes, Kumaraswamy said the State Government was working hard to waive off farm loans taken from cooperative, scheduled and State-run banks. "I hope the waiver will enable the farmers to seek fresh loans for the next crop. The loan waiver will begin soon as the process is at the final stage," said the Chief Minister.

Claiming that the Janata Dal (Secular)-Congress coalition Government was pro-farmer, Kumaraswamy said a permanent solution was being worked out to ensure that farmers would not have to protest or resort to an agitation.

"I have been always on the side of farmers and don't have bias against those from the northern or southern regions of the State.

"All are equal and same for me. As the loan waiver amount is about ₹48,000 crore, we need time and workforce to verify each account. I want farmers to be patient and not be desperate," said the Chief Minister.

Police warn of action against uploading of execution videos

IAN S ■ SRINAGAR

The Jammu & Kashmir Police on Monday threatened action against those uploading videos on social media of executions carried out by militants.

Inspector-General of Police (Kashmir Zone) SP Pani told the media: "Action will be taken against those who upload these videos on social media."

Videos of executions of two youths carried out by the Hizbul Mujahideen outfit in south Kashmir were recently uploaded on the social media.

The outfit accused the youths of providing information about militants to the security forces.

Pani also said that the police were investigating the role of two overground women workers arrested recently.

While one woman was arrested along with ammunition during the search of a vehicle in Lawaypora on the outskirts of Srinagar, another, from Sumbal in Bandipora district, had been detained for luring youths to terrorism through her Facebook account.

Purohit to get copy of photos, videos of Malegaon blast site

Mumbai: A special NIA court here on Monday directed that a copy of photographs and videos pertaining to the 2008 Malegaon blast be provided to Lt. Col. Prasad Shrikant Purohit, who is one of the accused in the case.

Purohit, in an application filed last week, had asked the special National Investigation Agency (NIA) court to give him copies of photographs and videos related to the incident to prepare his defence.

During the argument on Monday, the prosecution objected to his plea, saying no other accused had asked for these documents and that this was a delay tactic.

However, special judge V S Padalkar directed the court registrar to provide a copy of the photographs and videos of the incident to Purohit. The matter was then adjourned till November 21. The photographs and videos are part of the charge sheets submitted by the prosecution in the case.

The special court had on October 30 framed terror charges against Purohit, Sadhu Pragya Singh Thakur and five other accused in the 2008 Malegaon blast case, setting the stage for their trial to commence.

On September 29, 2008, six people were killed and over 100 injured when an explosive device strapped on a motorcycle went off near a mosque in Malegaon, a town in Maharashtra's Nashik district and located about 200 km from Mumbai.

Former Assam Min Chandan Kumar Sarkar passes away

Former Assam Minister and senior Congress leader Chandan Kumar Sarkar died at a hospital at Bongaigaon on Monday following a cardiac arrest, family sources said.

Sarkar was 65 and is survived by wife, two sons and a daughter.

The Congress leader suffered a cardiac arrest at his Bongaigaon home on Monday morning and was immediately rushed to a local hospital, where he passed away.

Mourning his death, Chief Minister Sarbananda Sonowal said the former Minister had worked with commitment and dedication for the welfare of the people and made significant contributions to the political and social life of the State.

"As a Minister of the previous Congress Government, Sarkar had rendered valuable services, which would always be remembered by the people and his death is an irreparable loss to society," Sonowal said in a statement.

Sarkar was elected to the legislative assembly thrice-1991, 2001 and 2011- from Abhayapuri South constituency and served as the irrigation Minister in the third term of the Tarun Gogoi-led Congress Government.

Assam Pradesh Congress Committee (APCC) president Ripun Bora expressed shock at Sarkar's death and offered his condolence to the bereaved family.

"I had held a meeting on the forthcoming panchayat elections only three days ago where he was present and had spoken to him even on Sunday.

It is a big loss for the Congress and during the bad times of the party, it was he along with Bhumidhar Barman who had played a pivotal role in maintaining the party's unity," Bora said.

An APCC delegation, led by Bora, has left for Bongaigaon to attend the last rites of the former Minister.

Finance Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma has also condoled Sarkar's death and prayed for the eternal peace of the departed soul.

Maratha outfit floats political party

Maratha Kranti Sena to contest all 48 LS, 288 Assembly seats in Maharashtra

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

In an apparent attempt to cash in on its popularity gained during its crusade for Maratha reservations for the past two years, the hitherto social outfit Maratha Kranti Morcha (MKM) on Monday floated a political party - Maratha Kranti Sena - (MKS) and announced that the new party would contest all the 48 Lok Sabha and 288 Assembly seats in the forthcoming elections in the State.

A day after the Maharashtra Government accepted the recommendations of the Maharashtra State Backward Class Commission (MSBCC) and announced that it would grant reservations to Maratha community under a new Socially Educationally Backward Class (SEBC) category, MKM convenor Suresh Patil, along with the outfit's senior leaders Bapusaheb Shirsat and Nanasheb Moshre, announced the formation of the MKM and said that it would contest the forthcoming Lok Sabha polls and subsequent Assembly elections in the State.

Addressing a news conference at Kolhapur in western Maharashtra, Patil said: "Our party Maratha Kranti Sena will contest all the 48 Lok Sabha seats and 288 Assembly seats in Maharashtra. We are convening at Vadgaon in Hatkanagale town in Kolhapur district on November 25. At this convention, we will devise a strategy to mobilise cadres for our new political party in the run-up to the Lok Sabha polls to be held in May next year."

As a first step towards roping in a prominent political personality into their party, Patil urged Maratha warrior Chhatrapati Shivaji's descendant and NCP MP from Satara Udayanraje Bhosale to contest the forthcoming Lok Sabha polls on a MKS ticket. "Since he has extended his blessings to our political, we would like to contest the Lok Sabha polls on MKS ticket. We will call on him tomorrow at Satara and discuss issues relating our political party," Patil said.

The significance behind the formation of a political party by the MKS should be seen in the context of massive mobilisation of Marathas as part of as many 58 mammoth silent morchas organised by MKM in various district headquarters and major towns and cities across Maharashtra to demand reservations for Maratha community which accounts of 32 per cent of the state's total population.

It is mainly because of the tremendous pressure mounted by the MKM - which enjoyed the support of the Opposition Congress, NCP and ruling Shiv Sena - on the ruling BJP that the Devendra Fadnis Government has now decided to accord reservations to the Maratha community under an independent SEBC category. During the winter session of the Maharashtra Legislature that began on Monday, the State Government is likely to introduce a bill according reservations to Maratha community.

It may be recalled that after a 15-year-old Maratha girl from their community was gang-raped and murdered allegedly by three Dalit men in Ahmednagar district of western Maharashtra on July 13, 2016, members of Maratha community came together and floated Maratha Kranti Morcha to demand among other things demanding reservations in education and jobs to Marathas, scrapping of the "misused SC and ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, initiation of stern action against the culprits behind the gang-rape of the Maratha girl.

The MKM took out silent morchas in one and district headquarters or major town after another to press for its various demands. Despite being without a prominent leader to head the outfit, the MKM became a force to reckon with in the following months.

The tremendous response that the MKM evoked for its massive silent morchas benumbed the Maharashtra Government and various political parties. What captured the attention of the state government, various political parties and people across the state was the disciplined and peaceful manner in which an apolitical outfit like MKM organised its various silent morchas.

On August 9 last year, more than five lakh Marathas owing allegiance to MKM virtually laid siege to south Mumbai for nearly six hours to press for reservations and other demands, compelling the BJP-led coalition Government to come with a package for Marathas, including concessions in education along the lines of Other Backward Classes (OBCs) and announce its readiness to accord reservations to the community in education and Government jobs.

Mumbai's was the 58th silent morcha that the MKM took out every since the members of Maratha community came together and floated the outfit in August 2016. Later on, MKS also became a party to the public interest litigations in the Bombay High Court which on August 7 2018 directed the Maharashtra State Backward Class Commission (MSBCC) would submit its report to the State Government on the socio-economic status of the Marathas by November 15, so as to expedite the process of according reservations to Marathas.

It remains to be seen if the new political outfit MKS would evoke as much response from the people in the run-up to the Lok Sabha as the MKM evoked during the course of its 58 silent morchas taken out in various parts of the State for a period spanning one full year.

BJP dares Rahul to expel Digvijaya from Cong for alleged Maoist links

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI/UJJAIN

A move by the Pune police to question senior Congress leader Digvijay Singh in connection with the investigations into the activities of the banned CPI (Maoist) took a political turn on Monday with the ruling BJP making an issue in the campaign for the Madhya Pradesh Assembly polls and during the Congress leadership to expel Singh from the party for his alleged Maoist links.

After news reports emanated from Pune that the local police planned to question Singh over the finding that his mobile number was mentioned in one of the letters claimed to have been seized from the arrested Maoist sympathisers, BJP spokesperson Sambit Patra targeted the senior Congress leader for his alleged Maoist links.

Talking to media persons at Ujjain in Madhya Pradesh, Patra alluded to the reported recovery of a letter allegedly linking Singh to the CPI (Maoist) and charged that the senior Congress had links with the outlawed Maoists. He dared Congress president Rahul Gandhi to expel Singh from the party.

"Now that it has become clear that Digvijay Singh has links with the Maoists. The matter is serious and it involves national security. I would like to know if Rahul Gandhi would expel the senior Congress from the party or decorate him as a revolutionary," Patra asked.

Meanwhile, Pune's Joint Police Commissioner Shivajirao Bodkhe confirmed that the team investigating the Bhima-Koregaon riots, which has so far arrested ten human rights activists from various parts of the country for their alleged links with Maoists, might question the senior Congress leader for his links with the arrested activists. "We may call him for questioning, but we have not fixed any time-frame for it," Bodkhe said.

The investigations by the Pune police have revealed that in a letter written on September 25, 2017, one 'Com Prakash' purportedly tells one 'Com Surendra' that Congress leaders were "very much willing to assist" in their efforts to "intensify nationwide protests using students". The letter allegedly mentions a mobile number that 'Com Surendra' can contact "in this regard". This is reportedly Singh's mobile number.

'Com Surendra', according to the investigators, is a reference to Surendra Gadling, a Nagpur-based lawyer who was arrested on June 6. 'Com Prakash' is said to be one of the top CPI(Maoist) commanders. The purported letter, in which there is alleged reference to the senior Congress leader, became public after the Pune police submitted it in court as evidence of the links between the arrested activists and the top Maoist brass.

Singh had earlier dared the Centre and statement to arrest him. Singh was earlier quoted as saying: "If I am guilty, I challenge the Centre and the State Government to arrest me".

On their part, the Pune police claim that they have ascertained the mobile number mentioned in the incriminating letter was that of Singh.

It may be recalled that five Maoist-linked activists Human Rights activists Rona Wilson Jacob, Surendra Gadling, Sudhir Dhawale, Prof Shoma Sen and Mahesh Raut were arrested by the Pune police on June 6, in connection with the Elgaar Parishad and subsequent Bhima-Koregaon caste riots.

Subsequently on June 8, the investigators had claimed that they had recovered from the laptop of Wilson an allegedly incriminating letter, which uncovered an alleged plot by the Maoists to carry out "Rajiv Gandhi-type" assassination of Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

On August 28, the Pune

police arrested five more activists Varavara Rao, Vernon Gonsalves and Arun Pereira, Sudha Bharadwaj and Gautam Navalkha for their association with the Elgaar Parishad held in Pune ahead of the January 1, 2018 Bhima-Koregaon riots and their alleged links with the Maoists. However, the Supreme Court ordered that the five arrested activists be placed under house arrest till September 6.

In a charge-sheet filed in a Pune special court on November 15 against 10 persons, including five activists arrested for their alleged Maoist links, the investigators had said that accused number two Rona J. Wilson had colluded with Shoma Sen and Prashanto Bose, secretary of the outlawed CPI (Maoist)'s Eastern Regional Bureau, along with other underground activists hatched a conspiracy to kill the Prime Minister of India. "All the five (arrested) arrested accused were part of the conspiracy to wage a war against the nation with illegal bombs and arms to topple the government with violent means," the charge-sheet said.

DELAY IN BUNKER CONSTRUCTION

J&K residents along LoC spending sleepless nights

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ JAMMU

Escalating tension between India and Pakistan is keeping border residents worried ahead of a harsh winter season in Jammu & Kashmir.

In the absence of start of construction work on individual/community bunkers along the line of control and International Border in Jammu division, the border residents are spending sleepless nights.

Over 14,000 community and individual bunkers were approved at a cost of ₹415.73 crore for border residents facing Pakistani shelling in Jammu division.

A total of 13,029 individual bunkers and 1431 community bunkers were sanctioned to accommodate border residents during cross border firing.

On ground zero, the border residents of most vulnerable areas, falling in the direct line of firing of Pakistan army, continue to wait for start of construction work.

"We are now tired of hearing big announcements regarding sanction of bunkers from Central Ministers and local BJP leaders but on ground zero the construction work is yet to begin in frontier Rajouri district", border residents of worst affected villages in Nowshera sector told The Pioneer.

Confirming the status of construction work of bunkers,

FACTOID

- Rajouri: 4918 individual and 372 community bunkers
- Kathua: 3076 individual and 243 community bunkers
- Poonch: 1320 individual and 688 community bunkers
- Jammu: 1200 individual and 120 community bunkers,
- Samba: 2515 individual and eight community bunkers

Deputy Commissioner, Rajouri Mohd Aijaz told The Pioneer, "the construction of bunkers is expected to begin soon after the fixation of rates in the district".

He said talks are going on to resolve the issue with the contractors. He said an estimated number of over 5000 bunkers were sanctioned by the central government for the frontier district. Under a pilot project as estimated 100 bunkers were constructed in the district during peak hostilities last year.

Meanwhile, Executive engineer, Public works Department (R&B) Division, Kathua Monday issued a warning to the contractors to start construction of bunkers within seven days time and complete the construction by December 2018.

At least 3076 individual and 243 community bunkers were sanctioned for Kathua.

According to official sources, the construction work of bunkers was sanctioned on political considerations, without ascertaining their credentials.

Speaking to The Pioneer, Deputy Commissioner, Kathua, Rohit Khajuria said, "majority of contractors who have been awarded contracts are not adequately equipped to take up construction work of these bunkers in one go". He said they lack experience and do not even possess capacity to execute the task on this scale.

He said despite repeated reminders they have failed to start construction work on ground zero.

J&K Chief Secretary is monitoring the construction work of bunkers on weekly basis. These contractors have been directed to execute the task within stipulated time period failing which fresh tenders will be floated, official sources said.

Out of 14460 bunkers, 7298 bunkers would be constructed along the LoC in the twin districts of Poonch and Rajouri, and 7162 underground bunkers would be constructed along the IB in Jammu, Kathua and Samba districts.

The body of an arrested Indian fisherman, who died in a Karachi jail, is expected to be sent back to India on November 29, an activist said on Monday.

Nanubhai Kanabhai Solanki, 45, who was arrested in November 2017 by the Maritime Security Agency of Pakistan for allegedly straying into Pakistani territorial waters, was ailing for some time before his death on September 20.

"Solanki hailed from Una tehsil of Gir Somnath district of Gujarat. His body was kept at Edhi Foundation's morgue in Karachi for couple of months. It is expected to be sent back to India to his family on November 29," Pakistan India Peoples' Forum for Peace and Democracy activist Jatinder Desai said.

Besides, another 460 Indian fishermen continue to languish in Pakistani jails for years, as against 90 Pakistani fishermen in Indian jails, he said.

"Both countries need to work out a mechanism through which - if someone dies in the custody of the other country - his body should be immediately returned to his country. The sad reality is it takes minimum one month for this process. In Solanki's case, it took over two months," Desai added.

He said both countries must immediately revive the India-Pakistan Judicial Committee on Prisoners comprising retired judges of higher judiciary on both sides.

Nissan chief arrested over financial misconduct

Ghosn has a high profile in Japan and is known as a major advocate of the country's auto sector

AFP ■ TOKYO

Nissan chairman Carlos Ghosn was reportedly under arrest in Tokyo on Monday, as his firm accused him of "significant acts of misconduct" and said it would seek to oust him.

Japan's public broadcaster NHK and other media outlets said Ghosn had been arrested after being questioned by Japanese prosecutors for various improprieties including underreporting his income.

"The Tokyo District Public Prosecutor's Office arrested Nissan chairman Ghosn on suspicion of violation of the Financial Instruments and Exchange Act," NHK said.

In a statement, Nissan said it had been conducting a probe into Ghosn for several months after receiving a whistleblower report and had uncovered misconduct going back several years.

The Tokyo prosecutor's office had no comment on the reports about Ghosn, who also heads an alliance of Renault, Nissan and Mitsubishi.

Nissan said it had launched an investigation into both Ghosn and Representative Director Greg Kelly several months ago.

"The investigation showed that over many years both Ghosn and Kelly have been reporting compensation amounts in the Tokyo Stock Exchange securities report that were less than the actual amount, in order to reduce the disclosed amount of Carlos Ghosn's compensation," the statement said. "Also, in regards to Ghosn, numerous other significant acts of misconduct have been uncovered, such as personal use of company assets, and Kelly's deep involvement has also been confirmed."

The company said it had provided information to Japanese prosecutors and would propose to the board of directors that it "promptly remove Ghosn from his positions" along with Kelly.

The astonishing news first emerged on Monday evening, when the Asahi Shimbun newspaper reported Ghosn was being questioned by prosecutors and was likely to face arrest.

Public broadcaster NHK reported that Tokyo prosecutors were raiding Nissan's headquarters in the city of Yokohama.

Renault shares plunged 12 percent in late morning trading in Paris on the shock news, which emerged after the end of the Tokyo session. "If he is arrested, it's going to rock the Renault-Nissan-Mitsubishi alliance as he is the keystone of the alliance," said Satoru Takada, an analyst at TIW, a Tokyo-based research and consulting firm.

"He is the man of charisma for the alliance. It is likely to have a negative impact on its brand image," he told. Nicknamed Le Cost Killer, Brazil-born Ghosn, 64, is known for overhauling Renault and Nissan starting in the nineties. Renault came to the rescue of the then-ailing Japanese automaker in 1999 and parachuted in Ghosn, who set about slashing costs and jobs in a huge corporate overhaul.

In 2016, Ghosn also took charge at troubled Mitsubishi after Nissan threw it a lifeline, buying a one-third stake for about $2.2 billion as it wrestled with a mileage-cheating scandal that hampered sales.

Ghosn has a high profile in Japan and is known as a major advocate of the country's auto sector. He has not yet commented on the allegations.

Sensex rallies over 300 pts ahead of RBI board meet outcome

PTI ■ MUMBAI

The BSE benchmark Sensex rallied over 300 points Monday to end at over a six-week high of 35,774.88 as investors widened their portfolios ahead of the RBI's board meet outcome amid foreign fund inflows.

Also, positive cues from other Asian markets and a firm opening in European shares buoyed investor sentiment here. A crucial meet of the Reserve Bank's central board is underway amid a rift between the central bank and the government over future course of policies.

The finance ministry nominees and some independent directors were expected to take on Patel and his team over issues ranging from MSME credit to the central bank's reserves, though both sides are in favour of reaching a common ground. Expectations of a positive outcome boosted market mood after the meeting began.

According to analysts, domestic bourses are focusing on RBI's board meet to get cues on liquidity crunch with non-banking financial companies (NBFCs) and relaxing norms for state-run banks.

The Sensex started off on a high note at 35,647.62 and continued its upward march to hit a high of 35,818.65 as buying activity gathered momentum. It finally settled 317.72 points, or 0.90 per cent, higher at 35,774.88.

This is the benchmark's highest closing since October 3 when it had closed at 35,975.63. The barometer had gained 315.17 points in the previous two sessions.

Also, the broader NSE Nifty raced past the 10,750-mark to touch a high of 10,774.70 before settling at 10,763.40 points, showing a rise of 81.20 points, or 0.76 per cent.

Yes Bank was the star performer among Sensex constituents, jumping 7.19 per cent, its biggest gain in almost three weeks.

ITC, Tata Motors, IndusInd Bank, Vedanta, Sun Pharma, RIL, M&M, Maruti Suzuki, Tata Steel, L&T, Wipro, TCS, Hero MotoCorp, Bharti Airtel, Adani Ports, Kotak Bank, PowerGrid, HDFC Bank, HUL, Infosys, HDFC and Coal India also gained up to 2.77 per cent.

However, ONGC, ICI CI Bank, SBI, Asian Paints, NTPC, Axis Bank and Bajaj Auto all succumbed to profit-booking and ended lower by up to 1.37 per cent.

Jet Airways stock plunged 6.88 per cent, after Tata Sons said on Friday that it was only in preliminary talks with the struggling carrier, but had not made a proposal to acquire a stake.

Trair to meet telcos, others next month to finalise 2019 agenda

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Trair is expected to meet telecom industry players next month, to deliberate on the issues that will be taken up during 2019, its Chairman RS Sharma said Monday.

The discussion — now an annual feature — is however expected to entail a wider set of players in the telecom space this time, spanning operators, infrastructure providers and others.

"The meeting will take place next month. We will talk to them and ask them about the items they think, should be taken up in the next calendar year," Sharma told on the sidelines of an interactive session on 'New Regulatory Framework for Broadcasting and Cable Services'.

This time around, Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trair) discussion would not be limited to telecom service providers alone but expected to include infrastructure providers and "couple of other stakeholders in telecom space" as well, he noted.

"So it will be a broader consultation to figure out the new areas to be deliberated next year," Sharma said.

He noted that the priority areas for 2018, too, were identified through a prior discussion with players.

"We certainly have our own list of areas too, Sharma said.

NSE LAUNCHES MOBILE APP & WEB PLATFORM FOR RETAIL INVESTORS

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

National Stock Exchange of India Ltd (NSE), India's leading stock exchange on Monday announced the launch of its new mobile app and web-based platform 'NSE goBID' for retail investors to buy Government securities. Ajay Tyagi, Chairman SEBI launched the new App at an event held in Mumbai.

The 'NSE goBID' App will be available to all the registered investors with NSE's trading members and will also facilitate trading members in acquiring new retail investors.

It will allow retail investors to make payment directly from their bank accounts using the Unified Payments Interface (UPI) and internet banking. While retail investors will benefit from a convenient payment option, its cost effectiveness will appeal to Trading Members of NSE as the cost associated for setting-up infrastructure is much lower than the existing platform.

WTO's discussion agenda must include old, new issues: Prabhu

'Need to find out a proper substantive agenda'

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Commerce and Industry Minister Suresh Prabhu Monday said that discussion agenda of the World Trade Organisation (WTO) must include both old as well as new issues to maintain the relevance of the global trade body.

He said that there were challenges before the global trade and their impact would have implications on the world economy.

"Today, we must agree that without WTO, we will have a problem because we need global trade...We must make sure that WTO remains intact. WTO has to change and adapt for the better," he said here at a programme organised by law firm Lakshminikumar and Sridharan and an industry chamber.

Prabhu said that based on his discussions with other member countries, an agenda was being prepared which will be forward looking, agreeable to all nations and include substantive issues.

"We cannot forget the issues that have been put on the table with an agreement of all the countries and those issues also need to be taken into account...So, we cannot forget the so-called old issues. At the same time, we cannot just forget inclusion of new issues. So, we must find out a proper substantive agenda which will be encompassing all these important elements," he added.

While developing countries, including India, want issues related to agricultural subsidies to be resolved, developed nations, such as the US, are keen to push forward new matters related to e-commerce and investments.

WTO's relevance is now under question as some countries are taking unilateral measures, which are impacting global trade. The 164-member Geneva-based organisation deals with global trade-related issues.

At its last meeting in Argentina in 2017, the talks collapsed after the US went back on its commitment to find a permanent solution to the public food stockholding issue, a key matter for India.

Govt launches upgraded AirSewa digital platform for all passengers

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Air passengers can now seek help of chatbots to resolve their problems and register grievances using social media, with the Government on Monday launching an upgraded version of AirSewa digital platform.

Passengers will also have access to real-time flight status and schedule for both domestic and international flights with AirSewa 2.0, according to the Civil Aviation Ministry.

Besides, the ministry plans to come out with the next generation of AirSewa 3.0 digital platform in the next few months, wherein air travellers can register themselves under DigiYatra initiative.

DigiYatra seeks to promote paperless and hassle-free air travel. It is biometrics-based digital processing system for passenger entry and related requirements at the airport.

AirSewa 2.0, the upgraded version of the web portal and mobile app, provides chatbot support for faster resolution and personalised traveller experience. Also, passengers can sign up using their Facebook and Google accounts. Generally, chatbots are computer programmes that interact with people through audio or text messages.

Among other features, grievances can be registered using social media with hashtag #AirSewa.

The AirSewa portal and mobile app were launched in November 2016. Since the launch, AirSewa 1.0 has helped resolve significant number of air passenger concerns, as per the ministry.

Maldives to pull out of China FTA: Senior lawmaker

AGENCY ■ MALE

The Maldives' new Government will pull out of a free trade agreement (FTA) with China because it was a mistake for the tiny nation to strike such a pact with the world's second biggest economy, the head of the largest party in the ruling alliance said.

It is the latest sign of a backlash against China in the Maldives, best-known for its luxury resorts on palm-fringed coral islands.

"The trade imbalance between China and the Maldives is so huge that nobody would think of an FTA between such parties," said Mohamed Nasheed, the chief of the Maldivian Democratic Party, which leads the ruling federal alliance. "China is not buying anything from us. It is a one-way treaty."

On Saturday, as he took office, the new President Ibrahim Mohamed Solih declared the state coffers have been "looted" and warned that the country was in financial difficulty after racking up debt with Chinese lenders.

Former President Abdullah Yameen, who lost the election in September, signed the FTA during a visit to Beijing in December, and the same month his parliament ratified the treaty despite opposition protests that he had rushed through the 1,000-page document in less than an hour without any debate.

Nasheed, a former president and now an advisor to Solih, said parliament would not pass the law changes required for the zero tariffs agreement to come into force.

"It was ratified by parliament, but fortunately it calls for different sets of legislation. We are not going to have this further legislation. We can't go with that," Nasheed told Reuters in an interview in the capital Male.

China's embassy in Male did not respond to a request for a comment on the trade pact.

But China's Foreign Ministry said in a statement that Culture and Tourism Minister Luo Shugang, President Xi Jinping's special envoy to the inauguration, told Solih that China paid great attention to developing relations with the Maldives.

The Maldives is among a number of small countries where China has invested billions of dollars building highways and housing as part of its Belt and Road Initiative. Through that initiative, Beijing hopes to improve trade and investment flows with much of Asia and parts of the rest of the world.

China was willing to work with the Maldives to consolidate their traditional friendship, plan their practical cooperation and promote Belt and Road to inject "new impetus" into their future relationship, the foreign ministry cited Luo as saying during Sunday's meeting with Maldivian president.

The statement cited Solih as expressing appreciation for China's long-term support of the Maldives and that he was willing to further deepen cooperation under the Belt and Road framework.

China downplays failure to reach APEC joint statement

Beijing: Beijing on Monday downplayed the unprecedented fall-out from this year's APEC summit, which for the first time ever failed to issue a joint statement after US-China trade tensions boiled over. Clashes between the world's top two economies over the rules of global trade blocked agreement on a formal written declaration by the 21 nations represented at the Port Moresby meeting.

Washington had pressed for leaders to issue what amounted to a denunciation of the World Trade Organization and a call for its wholesale reform — a step too far for Beijing, which would likely suffer in the event of any change to trade rules.

But China on Monday chose instead to focus on the "positive results" of the summit.

EU Ministers agree terms of 'painful' Brexit divorce

Brussels: European ministers signed off Britain's draft divorce deal on Monday as they launched an intense final week of negotiations on future cross-Channel ties.

Brexit negotiator Michel Barnier and the Union's Austrian rotating presidency said the negotiated text would be presented to EU leaders at a signing summit on Sunday.

"The first, difficult step is done," said Austrian minister for Europe Gernot Blumel, whose country holds the rotating EU presidency, after the ministers met.

Meanwhile, detailed discussions continue on a parallel political statement setting out the bloc's ambitions for future relations with post-Brexit Britain — and on a possible extension to the transition period. Britain will leave the Union on March 29 next year, but remain within its single market for a further 21 months as negotiators seek a deal to avoid a potential breakdown in trade between the key economic partners.

If no deal remains in sight within this period, Britain can request a one-off extension. Barnier has suggested that this should expire at the end of 2022, but he admitted that the other 27 member states have yet to sign off on this date.

"I think that during this week we'll have a definitive proposition for this date. The decision will be made jointly between the United Kingdom and the 27," Barnier said.

Neither European member states, who want to protect access to their single market by non-member Britain, nor hard-line British Brexiters, who fear being trapped in a bloc where they don't make the rules, want an endless transition.

Barnier stressed it was Prime Minister Theresa May's

Government that had requested the extension option and that he had agreed to it to reassure nervous businesses, but warned: "It can't be indefinite. It needs to be decided."

Meanwhile, preparations for Sunday's summit, where May and her 27 colleagues will sign the withdrawal agreement, continue apace.

"A painful week in European politics is starting," Blumel said. "We have the divorce papers on the table. Forty-five years of difficult marriage are coming to an end."

Theresa May vows to give Indian software developers fair post-Brexit chance

London: British Prime Minister Theresa May on Monday vowed that Brexit would level the playing field for migrant workers in the UK, with migrants from the EU no longer be able to jump the queue ahead of those from countries like India.

Addressing the Confederation of British Industry annual conference in London, she said the country's post-Brexit immigration system will be based on skills and talent rather than which country the immigrant comes from. "Once we have left the EU, we will be fully in control of who comes here. It will no longer be the case that EU nationals, regardless of the skills or experience they have to offer, can jump the queue ahead of engineers from Sydney or software developers from Delhi," she said in her speech.

"Instead of a system based on where a person is from, we will have one that is built

Lanka parties agree to form panel to conduct Parl affairs

Colombo: Political parties in Sri Lanka agreed on Monday to form a select committee to conduct parliamentary affairs amid a power struggle set off by President Maithripala Sirisena's controversial decision to remove prime minister Ranil Wickremesinghe last month.

Sri Lanka's Parliament, which was convened on Monday for a third floor test against disputed prime minister Mahinda Rajapaksa, was adjourned just ten minutes after its opening as the lawmakers could not decide on the members of the committee.

The decision to form the select committee came a day after an all-party meeting called by President Sirisena to resolve the crisis ended inconclusively.

Trump's tirade against Pak shows he suffers from 'perpetual historic amnesia': Pak Minister Islamabad: Pakistan on Monday reacted angrily to Donald Trump's latest tirade against it for not doing "a damn thing" for America in curbing terrorism, saying the US President "suffers conveniently from perpetual historic amnesia".

Human Rights Minister Shireen Mazari's terse remarks came a day after President Trump defended his administration's decision to stop hundreds of millions of dollars in military aid to Pakistan for not doing enough to curb terrorism and criticised Islamabad for offering a hideout to Laden in Abbottabad.

'Will bar 18 Saudis over Khashoggi murder'

Brussels: Germany will bar 18 Saudis from entering its territory and Europe's Schengen passport-free zone over their alleged links to the murder of Jamal Khashoggi, Foreign Minister Heiko Maas said on Monday. Maas said the move was "coordinated very closely" with France and Britain and the broader EU as they seek more information in Khashoggi's death last month in the Saudi consulate in Istanbul. Berlin has "decided that Germany should impose an entry ban on 18 Saudi citizens, who are presumed to be in connection with this deed, in the Schengen information system," Maas told reporters.

'No reason' for him to hear Khashoggi death tape: Trump

Washington: President Donald Trump said there is no reason for him to listen to a recording of the "very violent, very vicious" killing of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi, which has put him in a diplomatic bind: how to admonish Riyadh for the slaying yet maintain strong ties with a close ally.

Trump, in an interview that aired on Sunday, made clear that the audio recording, supplied by the Turkish Government, would not affect his response to the October 2 killing of Khashoggi, a columnist for The Washington Post who had been critical of the Saudi royal family.

"It's a suffering tape, it's a terrible tape. I've been fully briefed on it, there's no reason for me to hear it," Trump said.

WE'RE READY FOR AUSSIE CHALLENGE, SAYS ROHIT

Indian deputy feels the side is determined to change things this time despite hosts pacers tough challenge

PTI ■ BRISBANE

Australia's towering pacers are at an advantage against the "not that tall" Indian batsmen, says visiting vice-captain Rohit Sharma but insisted that his team is ready to rewrite the script of the battle this time. India start the tour with the T20 Internationals from November 21 here and Rohit said it would be a tough task to counter the fast pitches. "India have always played either at Perth (venue for second Test from December 14-18 this time) or Brisbane. These two conditions are challenging and the Australians have tall bowlers who exploit those conditions and use it to their advantage," he said. "Indian batsmen are generally not that tall, so it is not easy for us but the guys are determined to change things this time, we are ready to accept the challenge," he asserted. "It is challenging for our batsmen...But most of the guys have come to Australia before. So they understand the conditions. Of course their bowling attack will challenge us whichever format we play but as a batting unit, we are prepared," Rohit said. India will start with a three-match T20I series, followed by a four-match Test series and a three-game ODI

Series. The visitors have never won a Test series in Australia, drawing three and losing eight of their previous 11 outings. "Whenever we travel outside India there is always a special feeling and Australia is one place where we want to leave our mark and do well as a unit," Rohit said after India's practice session at The Gabba. "Last time we played a Test series here, although we lost two games and drew one, but I thought we played few close games, especially at Brisbane. "We want to make it count this time around, there is a real good feeling

BESIDES KOHLI, WARY AUSTRALIA PLAN TO STOP ROHIT

BRISBANE: Trap him in front of the stumps with a sharp inswinger or test him with a short ball: These could be the tactics employed by Australia against dangerous India opener Rohit Sharma, says pacer Nathan Coulter-Nile. Besides India captain Virat Kohli, Rohit is another batsman that could give the home team plenty of headache in the limited overs leg of the series beginning Wednesday. "He's an unbelievable player. His record speaks for itself. He's got a good record all around the world, so he's a definite player to watch," Coulter-Nile said at the Gabba. "But we've also had a bit of success against him with the new ball as well - I think 'Dorf' (Jason Behrendorff) got him out last time we played him - rapped him on the pads - so we'll look to do that again early." Coulter-Nile also fancies bowling short to Rohit, who has an impressive record in Australia and has scored 810 runs at an average of 62.31 in the last eight years. Behrendorff could be Australia's trump card as he had troubled the Indians with a sensational spell of four for 21 in a T20 played in Guwahati last year. PTI inside the group. The motive is to seize all the moments and win."

Stressing on the significance of putting up a good performance in Australia ahead of the 2019 World Cup, Rohit said: "When you do well in Australia, you feel good as a team and thinking about the World Cup ahead, it can only give you confidence winning in places like Australia."

Rohit said everybody in the team needs to step up against a formidable side like Australia.

"Australia in Australia will always be dangerous without a doubt. In places like Australia you want the whole unit to come together, that is our focus," he said.

"We don't want few individuals to step up, we want whole lot of guys to put their hands up and take up the challenge. So, we want everybody to step up and make it count.

"We have some quality bowlers, in particular, spinners, so we will try to challenge them with our spinners. They still have a quality batting lineup, so let's see how we go."

Rohit has an impressive record against Australia in one-day cricket Down Under, having scored 805 runs in 16 matches at 57.50. The Indian opener said the pace and bounce of Australian pitches helps his game.

"I had a good time playing white ball cricket here. In places like Brisbane and Perth, the good bounce allows me to play my game because I have grown up playing on cement pitches back home," he said.

"I have done well in limited overs here but the challenge obviously is red ball cricket which right now I am not thinking of, just want to do well in T20 format and take it forward where we go.

SINGLES

ANJUM WINS 10M AIR RIFLE, 4 GOLD FOR MEHULI

ALGERIA QUALIFY FOR CUP OF NATIONS

LOME: Manchester City star Riyad Mahrez scored twice as Algeria trounced Togo 4-1 in to qualify for the 2019 Africa Cup of Nations finals in Cameroon. Mauritania, for the first time, Guinea and the Ivory Coast later raised to 13 the number of qualifiers for the biennial tournament. Cameroon, Egypt, Madagascar, Mali, Morocco, Nigeria, Senegal, Tunisia and Uganda had booked places before Sunday. That leaves 11 places up for grabs during matchday 6 next March with former champions Congo Brazzaville, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Ghana and South Africa among the contenders. Mahrez, the 2016 African Footballer of the Year, netted either side of a Youcef Attal goal to give the Desert Foxes a three-goal advantage within 30 minutes. Kodjo Fo-Doh Laba pulled one back for Togo in the second half before Baghdad Bounedjah completed the scoring in stoppage-time.

ASHMITA GRABS GOLD IN DUBAI CHALLENGE

NEW DELHI: Nineteen-year-old Shuttler Ashmita Chahla defeated Jeon Jui of Korea 21-19, 21-15 to win the women singles title in the Dubai International Challenge on Sunday. But Subhankar Dey had to settle for a Silver medal after going down in the final to Vladimir Malkov 10-21, 15-21 in men singles. The Indian-Malaysian pair of Tarun Kona Lim Khim Wah also had to satisfy with a Silver medal in men's double when it went down to Kim Sang Soo and Yoo Yeon Seong 13-21, 16-21 in the final. Ashmita, who has six career wins, took just 33 minutes to dispose of the Korean, who is ranked 29 in the world.

GOVEAS, MANISH CRASH OUT IN 1ST ROUND

PUNE: India's Aryan Goveas and Manish Sureshkumar got a taste of Challenger-level tennis and made hasty first-round exits along with two seeded players in the KPIT-MSLTA Challenger here Monday. Local wild card Goveas played well in patches before losing 3-6, 4-6 to Canada's Brayden Schnur in 69 minutes. Third seed and world number 132, Elias Ymer from Sweden, handed wild card entrant Manish a good tennis lesson with an easy 6-4, 6-1 win. In the doubles, local boy Arjun Kadhe and Saketh Myneni, progressed to the quarterfinals with a crushing 6-1 6-1 win over the wild card pair of Dakshinেশ্বর Suresh and Parikshit Somani.

LOBERA PENS FC GOA CONTRACT EXTENSION

MARGAO: FC Goa on Monday announced that head coach Sergio Lobera has extended his stay at the Indian Super League club. The Spaniard put pen to paper on a one-year contract extension that will see him stay with the club till the end of the 2019/20 season. Under Lobera, FC Goa reached the semi-finals in 2017/18 and now in his second season, the Gaurs find themselves at the top of the leader board heading into the second international break. With the Head Coach preaching a philosophy of attack, FC Goa scored 43 goals last season and look set to challenge the mark in this season after having already bagged 21 goals in their first 7 games. Test specialists shine in draw against NZ A

PTI ■ MOUNT MAUNGANUI

Australia-bound Test specialists — veteran Murali Vijay and youngsters Prithvi Shaw and Hanuma Vihari — helped themselves to half-centuries on the final day of India A's first unofficial Test against New Zealand A, which ended in a tame draw.

India A scored 247 for 3 in 65 overs in their second innings when the match was called off. However, openers Shaw (50, 53 balls) and Vijay (60, 113 balls) got good enough match time as they added 74 runs for the first wicket, largely due to the contribution of the young Mumbaier, who hit eight fours and a six.

Test vice-captain Ajinkya Rahane (41 no, 94 balls) and Vihari (51 no, 63 balls) added 86 runs for an unbroken fourth-wicket stand.

On the final day with little chance of a result, the two seniors Vijay and Rahane put their heads down and showed a lot of application.

Young Shaw didn't last long as he was out soon after completing his second century of the match. Shaw was caught by

Will Young off Doug Bracewell's delivery.

In-form Mayank Agarwal (42) then joined Vijay and the duo added 81 runs for the second wicket with Agarwal being the aggressor. The Karnataka right-hander hit six boundaries and a six.

Blair Tickner got rid of Agarwal, breaching through the defence, and Vijay soon followed, offering a catch to Theo van Woerkom.

Rahane and Vihari then batted out the next 25 overs. Vihari, in fact, was more aggressive with three fours and three sixes in 63 balls as the match meandered towards a draw.

B'DESH CALL ISLAM FOR WI TEST

AFP ■ DHAKA

Bangladesh selectors on Monday called up uncapped opening batsman Shadman Islam for the first Test squad against the West Indies starting later this week.

The left-hander was rewarded for a strong showing with the Bangladesh Cricket Board XI in a two-day match against the visitors that ended in a draw in Chittagong on Monday.

Shadman hit 73 off 169 balls with 10 fours and a six in the match, sharing 126 runs with opening partner Soumya Sarkar. The 23-year-old has been a prolific run scorer in domestic cricket. He tallied 648 runs at an average of 64.80 in the domestic first-class National Cricket League and played for the Bangladesh Under19 team.

Bangladesh were looking for an opener after veteran batsman Tamim Iqbal was injured during a recent training session, delaying his Test comeback.

The first match of the two-Test series starts in Chittagong on Thursday.

The West Indies will also play three ODIs and three Twenty20 matches during their month-long tour.

SQUAD

Shakib Al Hasan (Capt), Soumya Sarkar, Imrul Kayes, Mohammad Mithun, Mominul Haque, Mushfiqur Rahim, Ariful Haque, Mahmudullah Riyad, Mehidy Hasan, Mustafizur Rahman, Taijul Islam, Shadman Islam, Khaled Ahmed and Nayeem Hasan.

ENGLAND TO FACE INDIA IN SEMIS

PTI ■ GROS ISLET

India will face a formidable England in the second semifinals on Friday after the West Indies defeated 2009 champions by four wickets in their last group match of the ICC Women's World T20.

India have been invincible so far in the tournament, winning all their four games in the group stage. The in-form team will also have revenge on its mind, having lost to England in the 50-over World Cup final last year. En route to the semifinals, Harmanpreet Kaur's side also hammered three-time former champions Australia in its last pool match.

Defending champions West Indies, on the other hand, topped group A with eight points after beating England in the last-over thriller to set up a clash with Australia in the first semifinals in Antigua on November 22.

In the last group A match, the West Indies dished out a disciplined performance as they first restricted England to 115-8 and then overhauled the target with three balls to spare, riding on Deandra Dottin's 52-ball 48.

After winning the toss, West Indies opening bowler Shakeria Selman picked up two early wickets.

A mid-innings collapse then reduced England to 50 for six before Sophia Dunkley (35) and Anya Shrubsole (29) put on a 58-run partnership.

The pair was only separated in the penultimate over, helping England to 115 for eight.

And it seemed it would be enough when Shrubsole picked up two wickets in her first over, sending back Hayley Matthews and Stafanie Taylor, both bowled.

Then Deandra Dottin and Shemaine Campbelle combined for a 68-run partnership.

Dottin (46) was dismissed with the home team still needing 45, but some bold hitting from Campbelle kept them in the hunt.

Needing 26 off the last 18 balls, Campbelle was dropped twice in the penultimate over, but she helped the West Indies get close enough; they hit the five runs that remained in the last over, much to the delight of the crowd.

West Indies' Deandra Dottin, who was adjudged Player of the Match.

Delhi face Hyderabad without Gambhir, Ishant

PTI ■ HYDERABAD

Having missed out on a golden opportunity to log full points in the opener, Delhi, sans senior stars Gautam Gambhir and Ishant Sharma, will face Hyderabad in an away encounter of the Ranji Trophy from Tuesday.

Delhi failed to win outright in their opening group league match at home against Himachal Pradesh and Hyderabad were no better, having conceded first innings lead in both their matches.

However, Delhi will miss Gambhir more as they were always aware that Ishant was available for only one match as per BCCI's specific workload management programme.

Gambhir, who scored 44 and 49 in the opening game, is suffering from a shoulder niggle and had excused himself from this away encounter.

"It's always nice if an experienced player like Gautam is around. He will certainly be missed as he also guides the juniors. But at the same time, I would look at it as an opportunity where a junior player will get a chance to make a mark," Delhi coach Mithun Manhas said on Monday.

"There is still a bit of grass cover on the pitch and let's see how it pans out on Tuesday. We will take a call on the playing XI on Tuesday," the coach said.

While the coach didn't reveal who will be Gambhir's replacement, it was learnt that Sarthak Ranjan is expected to open the innings along with Hiten Dalal.

While Hyderabad will not have pace spearhead Mohammed Siraj (on India A duty) in their ranks, Delhi's opening pair, with a collective experience of one first-class game, could be a worry for young captain Nitish Rana.

Rana and Himmat Singh will be aiming to come out all guns blazing against the likes of left-arm spinner Mehidy Hasan and pacer M Ravi Kiran before they also leave on national duty (for Emerging India in U-23 Asia Cup).

There could be a couple of more changes in the playing XI with Ishant being replaced by either Gaurav Kumar or Simarjeet Singh.

The two left-arm spinners Varun Sood and Vikas Mishra looked pedestrian on a helpful fourth day track at the Kotla. With off-spinner Pulkit Narang in the squad, Rana might be tempted to drop one of the two slow left-arm orthodox from the playing XI.

In other Elite group B clash at Eden Gardens, Mohammed Shami will feature for Bengal against Goa. Shami's inclusion in the squad has revived Bengal's hopes for season's first win after they secured six points from two matches on basis of their first innings lead.

Spain beat Bosnia after heartache

AFP ■ LAS PALMAS

Spain responded to their Nations League disappointment by beating Bosnia 1-0 on Sunday but an unconvincing victory will have done little to lift the mood.

Luis Enrique's side needed 21-year-old debutant Brais Mendez, on as a substitute, to score the only goal of a scrappy game at Estadio Gran Canaria, in which neither side would have been unfairly represented by a stalemate.

Spain already knew their hopes of progressing to the Nations League finals were over after England snatched top spot in Group 4 following a last-gasp win at Wembley over Croatia.

A thrilling conclusion, which would have sent Spain through had Croatia held on for a point, was a feather in the cap for the inaugural tournament and came in stark contrast to this rather underwhelming friendly a few hours later. "Bad luck and mistakes we made meant we didn't make the finals," Luis Enrique said. "I would have liked a draw (between England and Croatia) but I'm focused on qualification for the European Championship and I think the team looks good."

A narrow win over Bosnia came with a rotated and youthful line-up, in which only Isco and Dani Ceballos survived from Thursday's defeat by Croatia in Zagreb.

Harry Kane's late winner against Croatia had the Spanish press swooning for a striker of his calibre and another erratic performance from Alvaro Morata hardly promoted the Chelsea striker's cause.

Stand up for yourself

Learning to stand up for yourself will help you take charge of your life, believe in your own power and embolden you to reach for your dreams, says TEAM VIVA

Every day we make dozens of little choices that either benefit us by asserting our ideas or diminish us because we hesitate in making our views or desires known.

Sometimes it seems easier to go with the flow to avoid potential conflict. But the truth is that letting people walk all over you can increase feelings of stress and anxiety, and it might eventually lessen your feelings of self-worth and play to your insecurities.

Learning to stand up for yourself will help you take charge of your life, believe in your own power and embolden you to reach for your dreams. The stronger you feel, the stronger you will become.

It might be difficult at times, but if you learn to express yourself openly and honestly, it will feel like a weight has been lifted from your shoulders. So often, we hide behind a halfhearted smile and nod instead of saying what we think. It takes practice, but learning to be authentic and open about what you are feeling or thinking is the first step. Once you get in the habit of making yourself heard without being overly accommodating or defensive, people will be more open to hearing you.

As you grow more confident in expressing yourself, you're also going to have to learn to face those who want to override you. There will always be people whose personalities are set to attack mode. It's important that you remain calm but assertive if you feel like someone is trying to bully you. Don't allow yourself to get frazzled or react with low blows. Don't cater to them or allow them to browbeat you either. Walk the high road but stand your ground.

You're less likely to get defensive or hurt over something when you know for sure that it's not true. Being secure in yourself is one of the greatest gifts you can give to yourself because you won't need to be validated by anyone else besides yourself. Being a self-confident person allows you to be able to handle those harsh criticisms, broken promises, or miscommunications with others. This can resolve a lot of issues when someone criticizes you, because of instead of jumping to conclusions, you can talk to them calmly without feeling like you have to defend yourself every minute.

Being in an argument with someone doesn't mean that you should be thinking about your next attack move while they are talking. You should try to genuinely listen to all of their points and see where they are coming from. When people get defensive, sometimes they automatically think that the other person is wrong. While that may be the case, there's a way to explain your part without completely ignoring what they have to say. The next time you're in an argument, take a moment to actually listen without strategizing your next thought process so you can defend yourself, because the less you try to protect your identity, the more better you may feel.

Have a clear indication as to why you feel defensive. Once you can understand why you feel the way you do, the person

BEING SECURE IN YOURSELF IS ONE OF THE GREATEST GIFTS YOU CAN GIVE TO YOURSELF BECAUSE YOU WON'T NEED TO BE VALIDATED BY ANYONE ELSE BESIDES YOURSELF. BEING A SELF-CONFIDENT PERSON ALLOWS YOU TO BE ABLE TO HANDLE THOSE HARSH CRITICISMS, BROKEN PROMISES, OR MISCOMMUNICATIONS WITH OTHERS. THIS CAN RESOLVE A LOT OF ISSUES WHEN SOMEONE CRITICIZES YOU, BECAUSE OF INSTEAD OF JUMPING TO CONCLUSIONS, YOU CAN TALK TO THEM CALMLY WITHOUT FEELING LIKE YOU HAVE TO DEFEND YOURSELF EVERY MINUTE

you're arguing with may be able to comprehend your emotions better. Once you start getting the hang of what it means to stand up for yourself, it's time to practice asking for what you want as often as possible. When someone says something you openly disagree with, or you feel pushed into doing something you don't want to do, say something.

Learning to stand up for yourself won't happen overnight. It takes time to grow comfortable with being assertive. While you are in the learning stage, it might help to imagine that you are an actor learning to play a new role.

When you're getting defensive, start to contemplate on the end goal. Being impulsive with your emotions means you're only thinking about how you feel at the moment. Strategize your thinking so you can accomplish long-term goals instead of trying to win the battle.

Remember the benefits of getting feedback even when you don't want it. Take the time to listen to what they're expressing to you, ask them why they are feeling this way, and strategize how you can use this to benefit you as a person or an employee. Even if you don't believe what they say is true, you can still be the bigger person, thank them, and walk away. You don't need to worry about what others think about you because you already know how you feel about yourself. While it can be a negative situation for a few moments, you can always turn it around into a positive by letting the negative feeling go.

Standing up and speaking up for yourself doesn't mean you need to have a screaming match or an all-out brawl. It means having a clear head and enough confidence to defend yourself against someone. Always be polite, and maintain a calm tone of voice.

Be straightforward. Being straightforward doesn't have to be rude, and if done right, it won't be. It just means being direct in what you say, what you want and how you want it. Be polite but firm. You can say and ask for things in a polite way while also being firm. To do this, you have to say it in a way that is assertive but not demanding, aggressive or mean. Don't Get Angry. Getting angry can make you lose control of your emotional intelligence, and is not a good way to stand or speak up for yourself. Doing this might lower the way you're seen by your boss and colleagues and won't make them listen to you or take you seriously.

Trust your instincts. You have them for a reason, so use them and trust them. Doing this is a great way for you to speak up and stand up for yourself because your instincts will tell you when something isn't right and that you should say something. Learn to say no. Saying 'no' isn't always a bad thing and can be a great way for you to stand up for yourself because it says that you won't be bullied into doing things.

Be among the first to speak. Being one of the first people to speak in a situation can be a great way to stand up for yourself because it means that you are a go-getter and are always ready and willing to get stuck into things and participate.

DEEPIKA PADUKONE and RANVEER SINGH's surreal wedding in Italy at Lake Como has incited a new controversy among the Sikh community. It has been alleged that the couple's Anand Karaj ceremony has violated the Sikh code of conduct as the Akal Takht sternly prohibits taking Guru Granth Sahib to any place outside a gurdwara, particularly a hotel, resort or a pleasure palace. The president of an Italian Sikh organisation has taken up this matter further to the Akal Takht Jathedar for action. The latter has said that once they receive a formal complaint, the matter will be forwarded to five high priests, who will then take a decision.

'When Akhand Bharat was agreed upon, Rani Laxmi Bai really believed in a new-age India and fought for it. We need to value what we have today. She was a true patriot who wanted her country to be a glorious one. To pursue this would be the best way to pay her a tribute.'

India is back on track towards acknowledging its creative heritage as a specimen of luxury thanks to a movement by designer RITU BERI. By ASMITA SARKAR

PRIDE OF THE NATION

Luxury has been synonymous with hand-made crafts and customised comforts in India, a boutique quality of living that was quite commonly ingrained though exaggerated as a showpiece by the royalty. But somewhere along the ages, the Indian concept of luxury had lost its lustre when juxtaposed with the Western flood of couture. Our pashminas, handlooms, silverware or even the leatherwork have been products of immense skill and opulence that continue to be the pride of our creative heritage. With multiple fora and exhibitions, The Luxury League, helmed by Ritu Beri, is reintroducing us to our own intellectual property.

"The definition of luxury has certainly changed through the years. There was a time when luxury was available only to the rarefied and aristocratic world of old money and royalty. Luxury isn't simply a product, it is a lifestyle, one that denotes a history of tradition, superior quality and offers a pampered buying experience. For me true luxury is exclusive, unique and not easy accessibility," said Beri who will be organising The Luxury Symposium 2018. "Promoting Indian artisans and revival of a lost pride in our creative heritage lie at the foreground of a symposium of this scale," she told us. Beri herself will bring khadi in a new couture avatar. "The look is about voluptuous indulgence — essentially an eclectic blend of modern and traditional," said she. "I always try to bring design elements from our heritage in my creations. Khadi for me still is an effective and powerful symbol of the futility of 'Western imitation' and the need for a revival of local textiles. This gets me back to the idea of khadi as more than just a mere cloth but something that always brings us back to our history and heritage," she added. In that sense, the revival of lost arts is also akin to the "Make in India" process. Apart from Beri, other brands too will be making a point or two at the symposium. PASHMA, a luxury brand, will be selling shawls, scarves, knitwear and suiting fabrics sourced from the Changtham goat, which is the source of the rarest and finest Pashmina fibres. The Changpa tribe of Ladakh herds the purest breed of Changra goats at an altitude of 14,000ft. These natural, pristine, undyed shawls in both traditional and modern weaves are also embellished with precious stones and pearls. Complementing the shawls is the range of pure pashmina hand crafted knitwear, displaying the most intricate needle craft of cables, tuck knits and intarsia. One can also find products of practical use and grandeur, from coasters in leather, to ornate silverware and handwoven shawls that can be heirloom pieces. External Affairs Minister Sushma Swaraj told Shilu Kumar from PASHMA during a courtesy call that India lacks official agencies to certify real pashmina. She hoped that issues like these would be raised at the symposium and that The Luxury League could lead the industry and relevant stakeholders to move in a definite direction. She also proposed facilitating necessary guidance to the relevant brands through The Luxury League. She agreed with brand representatives who pointed out that there is a need to boost robust mechanisms in the market to avoid exploitation of the weavers and artisans.

NITI Aayog CEO Amitabh Kant discussed the possibility of reviving the lost grandeur of the monuments of India by creating boutique heritage shopping hubs in their premises. He felt a need for the participation of more start-up brands in the luxury business.

"Our heirloom textiles are a product of in-depth research on the finest Indian textiles and architecture. We translate the finest weaving techniques into contemporary renditions by infusing colour palettes, silhouettes and design layouts which resonate with modern Indian," said founders of Ohfab, Aanchal Sagar and Akshita Sagar. They try to revive forgotten elements of our heritage by studying designs and techniques used in antique textiles and assimilate them. Threesixty, a leather store, which too is taking part, creates products that are an amalgamation of the contemporary styles and the customary. They promote local artisans through their brand. "In that way, the whole emotion behind the products is a home-narrative as the craftsmen bring into light their own distinct design styles inspired from design traditions across India," said Vikash Gupta, Kalyani Chawla of Rezon, a silverware brand, said. "Every element that is used is intrinsically Indian, whether it's the lotus or the craft of enamelling or the elephant and peacock designs used in various forms."

Highway." "Board exams." "Donald Trump." "Basket ball." Seemingly disparate words thrown by the large audience were strung together in an impromptu story by film director Imtiaz Ali in an open-air spin-a-yarn contest. Since storytelling was an essential part of the Kathakar - International Storytellers Festival at Indira Gandhi National Centre for Arts, the film maker, who has incidentally made a film Tamasha with one as the protagonist, also wove a tale with these words. And of his felicity with story-telling, he attributed it to his life of ordinariness which he dressed up from childhood with his imagined details to look and sound good. "I was average in sports. But at school I excused myself from games saying I played higher levels at the neighbourhood competitions and vice versa. You could say it all began from there. Also, I am always fascinated by the outsider's perception of the insider."

Imtiaz played raconteur to the hilt as he recalled stories from the time that the songs from his movie were being recorded at AR Rahman's studio in Chennai. Prodded by festival director Prarthana Gahlote, he recounted incidents which gave an insight into the exclusive music director's sense of humour. "Mohit had been recording Sadda Haq for 16 hours inside the recording room while the two of us sat outside. I asked Rahman sir if he wanted a coffee and when he agreed, I slipped in the suggestion that we should give one to Mohit too. He refused and said, 'the pain of denial would show in his voice', which in turn would reflect Janardhan/Jordan's state of mind, without missing a beat," recalled the director.

He also recounted incidents, where during a drive back post-dinner, the team was caught by the local police. "Since Rahman sahab was the only one who knew Tamil, he was talking to the cops but did not want to say that he was AR Rahman. However, finally one of the police personnel figured out who he was and let us go," said Imtiaz.

Asked how different it was working with Rahman and Pritam, both of whom have done the music scores for him, the filmmaker said, "Pritam is a friend. We knew each other for a long time. But Rahman sir, he was someone we looked up to much before, since school. But one thing he made clear at our very first meeting that I was the director and at the helm of the project. So I would have to give the direction. Both of them are organic in the way they work. There is no script in the way they work. While recording Sadda Haq, we continuously worked on these two words and the innumerable ways to say it while the remaining song was still being written."

With the discussion returning to Rockstar every few minutes, it was not surprising that singer Mohit Chauhan, who is co-curating the festival as well, belted out two of the numbers from the film, Kun Faya Kun and Tum Ho Sath Mere and the way the audience was transported by the voice that was soaked with the feel of the mountains was what memorable moments are made of.

'Technology is nothing but story-telling in images. So do not abhor it but use it as your tool'

But even as people professed love for the film, Imtiaz could not help pick holes in it. "There is a fideyeen squad in defence of Rockstar who would not like it if I say anything against the film," he said with a laugh and added, "But I find there are many portions in the movie which are hollow." Despite the November chill gradually seeping in, the audience was unwavering and wanted to hear more. And he obliged. When Gahlote expressed her regret that she could not meet the original rockstar, Shammi Kapoor, while they were shooting the movie, Imtiaz had a story ready to qualify the description. "There is a scene in the movie where Shammi sees the poster and realises that Ranbir is a big star now. When we shot this, he was nearing the end of his life. He was suffering from a debilitating condition, had lost two toes, undergone blood transfusion and was in a lot of pain which could be seen in his eyes during the shot. I approached him and told him as much and asked him, 'kya karna hai?' and he replied, 'karna kya hai, let's do it again.' That's the measure of a star," said Imtiaz.

Going on to Job We Met and his much-loved character Geet, the director recalled how the idea came about. "A friend of mine suggested a character of a man who wants to commit suicide. I came up with a counterpoint of a girl who talks endlessly and is on a train. And then I decided to put this man on the train and the girl saves him. While my friend moved on to more tragic stories, convinced that I would try and make any sad story happy, I made the movie."

Many in the audience wanted to know why a sad character always embedded himself/herself in his films, be it Rockstar or Job We Met or the more recent Laila Majnu. Imtiaz replied, "Don't go looking for pain or unhappiness to be successful. Many people in real life have had really tough lives before they could be successful but others haven't. So you do not have to go looking for a heartbreaker like Heer to be successful." On the same note when someone asked why did Jordan, who was initially looking for success in music, put his career at stake on several occasions for his love? Imtiaz said something that most of us identify with: "We always want what we can't have while we ignore what we have got."

There were aspiring filmmakers in the audience who wanted to know more about filmmaking to which Imtiaz said, "You do not need to relocate to Mumbai to start making films. Start with short ones, make use of the social media and if you are good, you will be spotted." Mohit too added, "When I made my first album, Dooba Dooba as part of Silk Route, I was very much in Delhi. You can do the same." And like all good story-tellers, Imtiaz is cooptive and doesn't consider technology a burden. "That's story-telling in images. So do not abhor it but use it as your tool."

'Maa you can do it'

PARIDHI SHARMA and ASHNOOR KAUR tell TEAM VIVA what makes the mother-daughter relationship special in their new show, Patiala Babes

Life doesn't come with a manual, it comes with a mother. It holds true for any child, especially a daughter. A girl always sees a role model, a friend and a confidant in her mother. But can this work the other way around? Can a mother find inspiration in her daughter and turn to her for life lessons? One such mother-daughter duo, Paridhi Sharma as Babita Khurana a.k.a Babes and Ashnoor Kaur as Mini Khurana, are all set to be a part of the small screen through Patiala Babes. It's a journey where the daughter not only gives wings to her mother but helps her take the leap of faith.

"I am excited to be a part of Patiala Babes. This show has redefined my relationship with my own mother in many ways. As children we tend to take our parents for granted without realising the fact that since their world revolves around us, they are more dependent on us. I am proud to say 'Maa you can do it' to all the mothers out there. The best part about the show is that I'm playing my age, because before this I was getting offers for roles that were above my age. I'm just 14 in real life, so I was really thrilled when I got to know about Patiala Babes. I enjoyed the story and the way they have portrayed a mother-daughter relationship," says Ashnoor, who has been a part of shows like Jhansi Ki Rani, Na Bole Tum Na Maina Kuch Kaha, Yeh Rishta Kya Kehlata Hai, and many more.

She adds that the character finds resonance in real life as well. She says, "Mini is completely Ashnoor as Mini loves her mother and so does Ashnoor. Mini is really outspoken, what's on her mind is on her lips, nothing's filtered. She's very blunt, short-tempered, and same is true about me as I feel that when you know you're right, you have to fight for it. She's really bubbly, chirpy and Punjabi, so I really feel the character is like me which is why it was effortless and natural to play it on-screen."

The story is set against the backdrop of Punjab where Babita is an ideal home-maker who feels everything is perfect in her life. But is it really true or is she living a life of denial? "Babes usually forgets herself, her aspirations and dreams while managing her relationships. She draws strength from her daughter Mini, who constantly tries to teach her the power of self-reliance. Patiala Babes also has a tag line which says Janam maa ne diya par jeena beti seekhayegi. I'm wise beyond my age and that sure helped in enactment. I think every individual will be able to relate and connect with the show as the story is entirely based on realism," adds the 14-year-old.

Paridhi feels happy and excited to face the camera once again after a long gap as she's a mother of a daughter now. Says the actress who became a household name as Jodha, "It was not that challenging for me to play the role of a mother because now I'm a mother in real. Earlier when I portrayed Jodha in the show Jodha Akbar, I was the mother of Salim but at that time I just had an understanding of what motherhood would evoke in me. But now being a mother, I have the actual experience. My actions come naturally as I feel them even while acting. I know what all it takes to be a mother now."

"Acting is my passion and it feels good to live it. Initially, I was bit apprehensive as I had to play a mother's role. But, when I sat for the narration and heard the story, I was completely sold on the relationship that the character has with her daughter. I am glad to have had the opportunity to portray Babes." After her initial hesitance Paridhi was won over because of how versatile the role was. The actor had catapulsed to fame with her portrayal of Jodha in Jodha Akbar, the TV show that began in 2013 and went on for two years. The show is slated to release on November 27 on Sony TV.

MAN IS SUPERMAN

Artist GIGI SCARIA walks CHAHAK MITTAL through an exhibition of sculptures that urges the human civilisation to look beyond itself and at the destruction that man's actions are causing to the world

Who is an ideal superman? Why has it always been a man-centric world? Don't we need to consider other perspectives than that of the human to view this cosmos? Defying Friedrich Nietzsche's theory of a superman, artist Gigi Scaria brings together sculptures that remind one of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. "When one thinks about a superhuman, one shouldn't go beyond Christ," says Scaria. He believes that our bodies are a bridge between the animal and the Nietzschean superman. And Christ is the process of that elevation.

Christ, who faced a lot of troubles in his life and yet remained a very humble person throughout, is an ideal man for Scaria. "A man could go weak, but can go higher to control everything if he wishes to and without even causing any harm to any other being," says Scaria.

The exhibition of sculptures, paintings and video works, titled Ecce Homo: Behold the Man or How One Becomes What One is, is taken from German philosopher Friedrich Nietzsche's final book. The philosopher believed that a superhuman has the ability to conquer through all the challenges he is going through. However, Scaria questions, "One can have everything s/he wants but at what cost?" There could be consequences that a man could go through and suffer while following the Nietzschean model.

History has inhabited various versions of man yet we stand at the cusp of time anticipating a post-human cyborg in the future.

The sculpture, Hesitant Attempt, shows Icarus, a Greek mythological character, standing at the top of various crooked urbanised structures like buildings and broken homes with wings on his shoulders. Icarus was known to be the creator of the labyrinth. His wings signify a "labyrinth of possibilities" that life could be if seen through the perspectives of beings other than just humans.

While one bronze sculpture takes two to three months to be prepared completely, Scaria reveals that the biggest one, Human Pull, took approximately five months to be finished.

Another sculpture titled Fall shows a man lying on a mattress that, as per Scaria, shows the "unsettled" plight of a human today. "It is a mattress, the surface of which shows the instability of the human race as it is always in a hurry, packing their bags every now and then," says the artiste.

His sculpture Ringa Ringa Roses would remind someone of the famous nursery rhyme, but to Scaria, it reminds him of the brutalities of World War II and the plague that hit Europe during the time, taking numerous lives. The sculpture shows women holding hands and standing in a circle, who are all "Indian women supporting each other during difficulties."

Striking a symbolism through images and commenting on the urban lives, Conviction is a set of three drawings that shows the torso of a man resembling the torso of Hindu deity Hanuman who split his chest open to show an image of Ram residing inside his heart. However, Scaria's drawings interpret the torso that doesn't show Ram, rather buttons of play, pause and play on the three chests. The drawings remind one of the urban life that is ruled by the internet and social media.

A video Disclaimer was inspired by the news of the recent lynchings. In it the magician is playing Three Cup Shuffle in which one places different objects under different bowls and the viewer has to guess what is placed underneath each as the bowls are shuffled. "I made the video in such a way that it seems it is the magician who is doing all these tricks," says Scaria.

His small sculptures are placed on the walls. "I knew that I wanted sculptures but on the walls of a gallery because it is the high-relief style that I really like," says Scaria.

The bronze sculpture titled Human Pull displays the figure of a man with one wing. Scaria says, "Human beings do so much effort to reach the top but what if they find nothing at the top. They are sometimes just trying to grasp the emptiness. All these ideas are my own anxieties and my personal issues which are actually reflecting through images."

Scaria's works embody the existential angst about the future of human body and humanity at large. (The show is on display till November 24 at Vadhra Art Gallery.)

SKODA award-winner NAVIN THOMAS takes UMA NAIR through an inward-looking journey of his latest collection

What sets Navin Thomas apart is his originality and his ability to keep art lovers guessing about what he will unravel next.

When he won the SKODA Award in 2011 he said, "There are a couple of things which I have been preoccupied with over the last few years — beta-testing on the possible afterlife of salvaged electronic junk, mostly discarded transistors and smaller objects, with a possible audio capacity. I love to observe how pets and smaller species react to magnetic fields."

MELDING MOORINGS

Seven years hence, Navin's exposition at Gallery SKE in Delhi is the stuff of melding and meandering moorings which create corollaries in conversation and complexities of transcending sound in myriad ways through recycled wood. "Out here in the exosphere," he is more than curious, more than quaint and it holds up a host of narratives from the past to the present to the Sappers Band in Madras and the tide of time.

In the past, he has created works by degrees having a penchant for discovering the beginnings of his installations and films in and around the discarded detritus of scrapyards, recycling plants and flea markets. He uses "rough" technology to construct his poetic and philosophical art from the salvage of rapidly transforming 21st-century economies.

PHANTOM ORCHESTRA

Here at Gallery SKE, it is the brass band instruments, The Phantom Orchestra, that catch your gaze. References and memories come floating by, think of Louis Armstrong and eternal enchanting melodies like What a Wonderful World, As Time Goes By, La Vie en Rose and all Navin does is smile because he goes off on a tangent with sound.

"The main work of this show, The Phantom Orchestra, is an ensemble of wind instruments, (tuba, french horn, euphonium and so on) which were originally retrieved from the local metal recycling unit when the instruments were cast off by the local military brass band," he adds.

"I have always been known for my sound sculptures in the past. Earlier they were about built architecture and ecology and now, with this new show it's more about aural form and the mechanics of it," he says. "These instruments were reconstructed to become The Phantom Orchestra and for this show they are playing a rendition of the Weather Report, which is a score that is written in three parts. The first part of this piece is an orchestration of instruments 'tuning'. The idea of the instrument that can never be tuned is the foundation of this piece. I am not going to get into the details of the remaining two parts as I don't want to ruin it for people visiting the show," he affirms.

SENTINELS IN TIME

The other larger sculptural work, which is titled Sentinels in time, comprises wooden chambers of sorts. In the artist's opinion, it is to further explore the process of calibrating what cannot be tuned and then ultimately turning inwards to tune oneself. It is uncanny how he creates an entire vocabulary of designed elements around sound and its intricate references that run through memory and time and tide.

QUIXOTIC TITLES

Tangential narratives and metaphors spill out of his very reckoning. Navin is perhaps a visionary in the many conversations he creates. His titles set you thinking about his voracious appetite for reading and his powers of observation that go back and forth through the grids of decadence and history itself. "Most often the empty space of a would-be title is a chance at a separate text work by itself. When I was younger, it would be to play a trick on your sensibilities, to label a cheap red rubber ball as human spirit, some fun and game to get thrown out of Bible studies class and go fishing. Now that I am older and more accommodating, the role of the title would be to gently guide the spatial experience of the person without having to drop too much of cultural appropriation," he adds in sheer humility.

"When I first conceived The Phantom Orchestra, I knew for sure that the dead members of the local military brass band wouldn't be playing music as you traditionally knew it. I was keen to make a piece on the climate, mostly the sounds of ecological disaster," elucidates Navin. "It was beginning to sound more like a Hollywood science fiction film score. I trashed it and finally came back to a question of representation and that's how I arrived at the ping pong ball — a smashing object, courageous, battered, uncertain and then symphonic. The final score is called The Weather Report, which is in three parts."

ACOUSTIC ALCHEMY IN WOOD

When you look around the room and take in the different paradigms in wood that speak about design dynamics, you know how preserving and passionate Navin is about what he creates. Sheet Music for Table Tennis is as enchanting as the two flattened violin prototypes bringing about a host of memories and moods.

"I use wood in some of my sculptural work not for its aesthetic quality but for its inherent acoustic capacity. In the choice of timber I have a preference for, what is locally called jungle. It usually means trees that are data-deficient, basically trees that have no name and then in terms of its construction. I do a lot of the joinery, mostly because I enjoy doing it and the dynamics of colour are honestly just a system of chance. I will stretch out to what is closest to me," clarifies Navin. Throughout his career he has experimented with the reverberant and percussive effects of insects, birds, animals and people as they react and co-exist with invisible electronic fields. For his installations at Gallery SKE he uses powerful modern symbols— hybrid wooden designs —and creates between them an unfamiliar anthology which is at once dense with sound, memory and sensation.

Israel to be country of focus

IFFI will be screening 10 films and hosting high-powered delegation

BREAKTHROUGH

● Israeli filmmaker Dan Wolman will be presented with a lifetime achievement award and will give a Masterclass session on November 25.
● The Country of Focus will be opened with a gala evening dinner, hosted by the Israeli consulate in Mumbai, where the Indian-Israeli singer Liara Itzhak will perform few of her Bollywood-inspired pieces. A short Israeli animation film in Hindi will be launched during the event. The film, A Revival of a Nation, depicts 4,000 years of Jewish history.
● On November 22, the consulate will host a seminar dedicated to discussing opportunities for collaborations between Israeli and Indian cinemas, where renowned Indian producers Apoorva Mehta and Vishesh Bhatt, together with Tanuj Garg, will share from their experiences on their work-visit to Israel.

On this occasion, Israel's Consul General in Mumbai, H.E Mr. Yakov Finkstein said: "Israel is proud to be in focus at this year's IFFI, and is glad for the opportunity to be able to present to Indian cinema-lovers. We hope the focus on Israel will serve as a good introduction to its cinema but also to the vibrant Israeli society. We believe this festival will promote joint work between Israeli and Indian film artists, as we think that both sides can learn a lot from each other. I invite you all to come and watch the films and then come and visit Israel itself, to enjoy at first hand the Israeli experience, for seeing is believing."

Israel will be the "country of focus" at the 49th edition of the International Film Festival of India in Goa with 10 screenings and a delegation of leading Israeli film personalities, including popular actor Alon Abutbul, will be present.

The opening film is The Other Story by Avi Neshet with production by David Silber. It will be screened on November 21 and will be followed by a press conference. Other known films are Academy Award candidates Footnote, Waltz with Bashir and the internationally well-esteemed The Bubble. Newer films that will be screened are Unorthodox, Red Cow, Working Woman, Longing, Redemption and Shalom Bollywood: The untold Story of Indian Cinema.

Film-making in Israel has undergone major developments since its inception in the 1950s. In the last few years, Israeli films have won reputed awards, including nomination for the Best Foreign Language films at the Academy Awards. Israeli film-makers produce films on themes that appeal to the global market, and Israel, known by many as the Start-up Nation, is home to cutting edge technologies in animation and film production.

India-Israel diplomatic relations, which completed 25 years in 2017, are gathering momentum in various fields such as trade, fin-tech and agriculture and also in the area of cinema and film production. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu addressed the galaxy of stars in Mumbai during his trip in January 2018. At the climax of his India tour, he invited Indian actors and filmmakers to come and make films in Israel. At the same event, India's mega-star Amitabh Bachchan expressed his hope that "May cinema further fortify the strength of ties between India and Israel."

A film co-production agreement between Israel and India, signed during Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's state visit to India in January, has come into effect in September 2018. As per the agreement, a joint selection committee will be set up to consider collaboration proposals submitted by film-makers from both countries. Expedited visas, financial grants and tax exemptions are some of the benefits the Israeli government agreed to extend in order to help joint productions.

India continue brilliant run

Sonia, Pinki and Simranjeet join five others in quarterfinals lineup to boost India's hope of repeating 2006 feat in World Championship after Saweety loses in second round

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Judging controversy couldn't stop the Indian juggernaut from rolling with as many as eight pugilists reaching the quarterfinals in the ongoing AIBA Women's World Boxing Championships on Monday.

Sonia Chahal (57kg), Pinki Rani (51kg) and Simranjit Kaur (64kg) won their respective pre-quarterfinal bouts to place themselves just a step away from assuring a medal while Saweety Boora (75kg) was the lone Indian boxer to lose her bout on an eventful day at the K D Jhadav Stadium.

MC Mary Kom (48kg), Manisha Moun (54kg), Lovlina Borgohain

(69kg) and Kachari Bhagyabati (81kg) booked their quarterfinals on Sunday while Seema Poonia will directly begin her campaign at the last-eight stage on Tuesday against Xiaoli Yang of China.

Former champion L Sarita Devi (60kg) was the second Indian boxer to bow out of the tournament in the pre-quarterfinals after losing to 2016 World Championship Silver medalist Kellie Harrington of Ireland in a split 3-2 verdict on Sunday.

The best show for the Indians was in the 2006 edition at home when the country won 8 medals. The country won just two and one medal in the last two editions and this one may turn out to be the best in recent times.

The fifth day's proceedings were, however, marred by a judging controversy when 2014 Gold-medallist Stanimira Petrova of Bulgaria (57kg) accused the judges of "corruption" after losing her pre-quarterfinal to India's Sonia Chahal.

"I want to say only one thing, it is corruption by the judges. It is not a fair result," the 27-year-old Petrova, who won a Gold in 54kg in the 2014 edition, told reporters after losing to Sonia.

Indian coach questions referee's decision

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Indian boxing coach Shiv Singh on Monday questioned the referee's decision to award standing counts against Sarita and Saweety Boora but refused to term it the reason for their losses.

Former world champion Sarita, who lost a close bout in 60kg against Kellie Harrington in a 3-2 split decision on Sunday, Sonia was announced the winner and also waved his index finger in displeasure.

Her coach Petar Yosifov Lesov threw a water bottle inside the ring and the world body AIBA later withdrew his accreditation and barred him from the ringside.

The 21-year-old Sonia, daughter of a Haryana farmer, was trailing after the second round but recovered well in the final round to win the close bout on 3-2 split decision.

All the five judges gave 10-9 points in favour of the Indian in the third round and that sealed the win for the local hope.

Sonia, on her part, said it was a fair result.

"How can all the five judges go wrong? It was a fair decision," she said.

This was Sonia's first major international event having risen to senior level by winning a Gold in the National Championships in 2016.

Last year, she won a Gold in the Serbia Cup. She won a Bronze in the Ahmet Comert Boxing Tournament this year. Sonia next faces Arias Castenada Yeni Marcela of Columbia in the quarterfinals on Tuesday.

Pinki and Simranjit, on the other hand, notched up easy wins with all the judges giving unanimous 5-0 verdicts in their favour.

The 28-year-old Pinki was trailing behind her English opponent Alice Ebonie Jones in the first round but recovered in the next two to emerge victorious in the end. It was a close call on the part of four judges who gave 29-28 in favour of the Indian while the fifth judge gave a clear 30-27.

"It was an easier one than my earlier (opening round) bout. Today's opponent was young and inexperienced while my previous opponent (Armenia's 2014 youth world champion Anush Grigoryan) was more experienced," she said.

Pinki next faces Pang Chol Mi of North Korea in the quarterfinals on Tuesday.

The 23-year-old Simranjit's 5-0 win against Megan Reid of Scotland, was the most impressive among Indian bouts of the day as she won all the rounds for an a 30-27, 30-27, 29-28, 30-27, 30-27 win.

Simranjit, who won Gold in the Ahmet Comert tournament in Turkey this year, was taking the ring three months after he father passed away. She said on Sunday that she would try hard to win a medal for him.

Simranjit from Chakar village in Ludhiana next faces Amy Sara Broadhurst of Ireland in the quarterfinals on Tuesday.

India, however, suffered a jolt with Saweety Boora losing her opening to Elzbieta Wojcik of Poland in 75kg in a unanimous decision.

The 23-year-old Saweety won Silver in the 2014 World Championships in 81kg but was competing here in 75kg.

All the five judges were not in favour of the Indian in all the three rounds with the Polish boxer winning 30-26, 30-27, 30-26, 30-27, 30-27.

Zverev beats Djoker in ATP Finals decider

AFP ■ LONDON

Alexander Zverev emphatically announced his arrival at the top of the men's game by overpowering Novak Djokovic 6-4, 6-3 to win his first ATP Finals title.

The 21-year-old German, making his second appearance at the end-of-season showpiece, outlasted six-time champion Roger Federer in the semi-finals and repeated the feat against the world number one on Sunday.

Djokovic had not been broken once in the tournament coming into the match, winning all 36 service games and only facing two break points but Zverev wrecked his numbers, breaking four times in the match.

The German, coached by Ivan Lendl, faltered just once when Djokovic broke him early in the second set but that was the only blemish on an extraordinary performance of power and skill.

"I really can't describe it," said Zverev.

"It is the biggest title I have ever won. Firstly, I want to congratulate Novak and we may never have seen the tennis he has played in the last few months before. He barely lost a match but thankfully he did to me."

"We (Djokovic and Zverev) had so many talks, not only about tennis but all different types of subjects — I won't mention what — but you are a sharing person and you have shared some titles with me. I appreciate you letting me win one today."

The Serbian top seed, 31, came into the match seeking to equal Federer's record of six ATP Finals wins but was immediately aware he had a fight on his hands at London's O2 Arena.

Djokovic beat Zverev 6-4, 6-1 in their round-robin match on Wednesday but it was a different story in front of a packed and vociferous crowd on Sunday.

With both players going toe-to-toe from the back of the court, the first set went with serve until the ninth game, when Djokovic dumped a forehand into the net to concede the break.

ACE COUNT

Roared on by the crowd, Zverev hit three aces on his way to sealing the first set 6-4.

Still on a high, the third seed broke an out-of-sorts Djokovic immediately at the start of the second set to leave the top seed with a mountain

SAINA, SRIKANTH START FAVOURITES

PTI ■ LUCKNOW

Saina Nehwal and Kidambi Srikanth will start favourites when they spearhead the Indian challenge at the Syed Modi International tournament, which has lost a bit of sheen with the pullout of Olympic Silver medallist P V Sindhu.

The tournament begins here on Tuesday.

With Sindhu missing, India will have two defending champions in the tournament with Sameer Verma looking to retain the title to enhance his chances of qualifying for the year-ending World Tour Final. The mixed doubles pair of Pranaav Jerry Chopra and N Sikki Reddy, too, will eye a repeat.

Sindhu decided to skip the event to focus on next month's World Tour Finals in China but there won't be any shortage of star power when the World Tour Super 300 event gets underway with the qualifiers.

In Sindhu's absence, Saina will be the cynosure of all eyes and the celebrated Indian has been in decent form this year having won a Gold at the Commonwealth Games and a Bronze at the Asian Games. She will look to secure her maiden BWF title of this season when she begins her campaign against Mauritius' Kate Foo Kune in the opening round.

With a host of Indians making up the draw, Saina is likely to face little resistance till her journey to the finals, where she is expected to meet former Olympic champion China's Li Xuerui, who has won at Canada, US and the China Masters after making a comeback.

Srikanth, too, will be looking for his first title of the season after being in ram-paging form last year, winning four titles. The Indian has been in decent form, winning a Silver at the Commonwealth Games and reaching the quarterfinals consistently.

The Indian will hope to claim the men's singles title after winning it in 2016 following three final appearances. However, he will face tough resistance from second seed H S Prannoy and Sameer, who won titles at Swiss Open and Hyderabad Open.

Srikanth is likely to meet Parupalli Kashyap in the second round if the 2014 Commonwealth Games champion manages to beat Tanongsak Saensomboonsuk in the opener.

While, Prannoy will start against Thailand's Adulrach Namkul and is likely to meet 2014 Commonwealth Games Bronze medallist R M V Gurusaidutt in the third round.

For that, Guru, who is trying to make a comeback after recovering from a career-threatening ankle injury, will have to fight his way against Germany's Jonathan Persson and probably Misha Zilberman of Israel to enter the quarterfinals.

nals.

Fourth seed B Sai Praneeth, who had won the Singapore Open last year, will square off against Russia's Sergey Sirant in the opening match, while Subhankar Dey, who claimed his maiden title at SaarLorLux Open, will open against China's Zhou Zeqi.

Seventh seed Sourabh Verma, who won titles at Russia and Dutch Open, will start against China's Zhou Zeqi.

Also in action would be eighth seeded India's top men's doubles pairs of Satwiksairaj Rankireddy and Chirag Shetty, who are the Silver medallists at the Commonwealth Games, and National champions Manu Attri and B Sumnesh Reddy.

The women's doubles pair of Ashwini Ponnappa and N Sikki Reddy will also look to put their best foot forward, while Ashwini will also pair up with Satwik in mixed doubles.

Seferovic scripts Swiss comeback

AFP ■ LUCERNE

Harris Seferovic starred with a hat-trick as Switzerland staged a sensational comeback to thrash Belgium 5-2 in Lucerne on Sunday and qualify for the Nations League finals in dramatic fashion.

Thorgan Hazard's early double left Switzerland needing to win by two goals to qualify for Group A2 but the hosts quickly fought back, with Ricardo Rodriguez's penalty and Seferovic's first two goals seeing them into a 3-2 half-time lead.

Nico Elvedi nodded home a Xherdan Shaqiri cross in the 62nd minute, and Vladimir Petkovic's men sealed a stunning win when Seferovic completed his treble late on.

"I want to congratulate each player, there was a big mental reaction, the players never gave up, they always believed," said Swiss coach Petkovic. "They played with will, intelligence and with their heads."

After a thrilling match that continued a trend of goal-filled encounters in the inaugural edition of the Nations League, Switzerland will play at the finals in June next year, alongside European champions Portugal and England, with the final spot going to either France or the Netherlands on Monday.

Roberto Martinez's men saw their six-match unbeaten run since reaching the World Cup semi-finals brought to an shuddering halt.

"We forgot to defend well, we gave Switzerland the opportunity to get back in the game," said Spanish coach Martinez.

"We had a lot of excitement, we really wanted to finish top of the group. The disappointment will make us more focused when the (Euro 2020) qualification starts." Earlier on Sunday, Valentino Lazaro

Spain beat Bosnia after heartache

AFP ■ LAS PALMAS

Spain responded to their Nations League disappointment by beating Bosnia 1-0 on Sunday but an unconvincing victory will have done little to lift the mood.

Luis Enrique's side needed 21-year-old debutant Brais Mendez, on as a substitute, to score the only goal of a scrappy game at Estadio Gran Canaria, in which neither side would have been unfairly represented by a stalemate.

Spain already knew their hopes of progressing to the Nations League finals were over after England snatched top spot in Group 4 following a last-gasp win at Wembley over Croatia.

A thrilling conclusion, which would have sent Spain through had Croatia held on for a point, was a feather in the cap for the inaugural tournament and came in stark contrast to this rather underwhelming friendly a few hours later. "Bad luck and mistakes we made meant we didn't make the finals," Luis Enrique said. "I would have liked a draw (between England and Croatia) but I'm focused on qualification for the European Championship and I think the team looks good."

A narrow win over Bosnia came with a rotated and youthful line-up, in which only Isco and Dani Ceballos survived from Thursday's defeat by Croatia in Zagreb.

Harry Kane's late winner against Croatia had the Spanish press swooning for a striker of his calibre and another erratic performance from Alvaro Morata hardly promoted the Chelsea striker's cause.
