J&K Guv scuttles Govt formation bids

Assembly dissolved soon after PDP-NC-Cong and Lone-BJP stake claim to form Govt

KHURSHED WANI ■ SRINAGAR

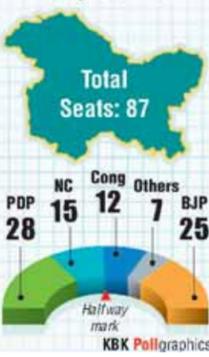

In a controversial move, Jammu & Kashmir Governor Satya Pal Malik on Wednesday dissolved the Assembly and torpedoed the attempt by the People's Democratic Party (PDP), the National Conference (NC), and the Congress to form a coalition Government.

The order for dissolution of Assembly came hours after former Chief Minister Mehbooba Mufti, in her capacity as the president of single largest party with 29 legislators, wrote to Malik to convey that her party would stake claim for the Government formation with the support of the NC and the Congress.

In a separate letter to the Governor, Sajjad Gani Lone of People's Conference (PC) too staked claim to form a Government. Lone, whose PC has two legislators in the Assembly, claimed that he has the support of 26 BJP legislators and 18 others, referring to possible dissenters of the PDP.

"The Governor, Jammu & Kashmir, Satya Pal Malik, has passed an order in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by Clause (b) of sub-section (2) of Section 53 of the Constitution of Jammu & Kashmir dissolving the Legislative Assembly," Governor's Principal Secretary Umang Narula said in an order.

Jammu & Kashmir Assembly Party Position

Mehbooba earlier took to her twitter handle saying, "Have been trying to send this letter to Raj Bhavan. Strangely the fax is not received. Tried to contact HE Governor on phone. Not available. Hope you see it @jandkgovernor."

"Sending the letter also by mail," Mehbooba wrote in another tweet.

FALL AT THE FINAL HURDLE

Mehbooba Mufti, in her capacity as the president of single largest party with 29 legislators, wrote to the Governor to convey that her party would stake claim for the Government formation with the support of National Conference and the Congress

In a separate letter to the Governor, Sajjad Gani Lone of People's Conference too staked claim to form a Government. Lone, whose PC has two legislators in the Assembly, claimed that he has the support of 26 BJP legislators and 18 others, referring to possible dissenters of the PDP

The formation of PDP-NC-Congress "grand alliance" took the formal shape a day after senior PDP leader and Lok Sabha member Muzaffar Hussain Beigh hinted at formation of a "third front" comprising BJP, Lone's PC and PDP's rebel legislators.

The dissolution of the Assembly culminated the political drama that unfolded on Wednesday afternoon after news broke that the PDP would be embracing its arch-rival NC to form a coalition Government to keep the BJP at bay and safeguard the special status of the embattled State.

The surprising developments began unfolding on Wednesday morning when Congress leader Gulam Nabi Azad confirmed in New Delhi that talks on Government formation were going on among the NC, the PDP and the Congress. Senior PDP leader and former Finance Minister Altaf Bukhari told reporters in Srinagar that around 60 legislators were supporting their move and negotiations were on to give a proper shape to the Government formation.

Bukhari said the alliance has been formed to protect the special status of Jammu & Kashmir, Article 370 and Article 35A. "We have to keep communal forces at bay. To Keep the BJP away, we are coming together to form a Government. An alliance has been made with over 60 MLAs together of the Congress the PDP and the NC to protect our special identity. I have no details about the contours of the alliance but it is to protect the special status, 370 and 35A," he added.

Mehbooba wrote to the Governor, "Since I am presently in Srinagar, it would not be possible for me to call on you immediately and this is to keep you informed that we would be seeking your convenience shortly to stake the claim for forming a Government."

The State is under Governor's rule since June 19, a day after Mehbooba-led coalition Government was sacked following the withdrawal of support from the BJP. The Governor's rule is competing its six months on December 19, which would have necessitate implementation of President rule.

Governor Malik had already hinted that he would not allow any Government formation in the State through "backdoor dealings" and also hinted at conduct of Assembly elections. However, last week he had indicated State Assembly, which was under suspended animation, would not be dissolved.

J&K Congress chief Ghulam Ahmed Mir said that his party would support the secular forces to form a Government. "We are ready to support secular forces. The formal meeting will take place soon regarding the formation of a Government in the State as all the three parties are reaching a consensus," Mir said.

"All secular parties have come together for the bigger interest of State and public. For saving Constitution, may it be Article 370 and 35A, we have to rise above party lines especially when eminent dangers are bigger," he said.

The formation of "grand alliance" of the PDP-NC-Congress took the formal shape a day after senior PDP leader and Lok Sabha member from north Kashmir Muzaffar Hussain Beigh hinted at formation of a "third front" comprising the BJP, Lone's PC and PDP's rebel legislators. Even as Beigh did not announce quitting the PDP, he openly criticised several decisions of the party, including the decision to boycott the municipal and panchayat polls in the State.

High-profile cases take hit in absence of CBI top bosses

Probe in Mallya, INX media, IRCTC bribery, Agusta deal cases halted

RAKESH K SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

In the absence of two top CBI Officers, agency Director Alok Verma and Special Director Rakesh Asthana, both benched by the Government last month, probes into several high-profile cases of the agency involving bribery and special crimes have virtually been halted. The registration of cases has also steeply declined in the last one month.

Besides Verma and Asthana, Additional Director AK Sharma has also been virtually made ineffective following the shake-up as he has been given the charge of inconsequential Multi-Disciplinary Monitoring Agency (MDMA) handling the Rajiv Gandhi murder case.

Following the Government's decision to bench Verma and Asthana, interim CBI Director Nageshwara Rao, a Joint Director rank official, transferred 13 officials posted in the headquarters to different places. This has also adversely affected the functioning of the agency.

The Supreme Court has barred Rao from taking any major policy decision in the pendency of Verma's petition challenging his forced leave.

Sources said the major concern is lack of clarity on who will represent the CBI in the UK court which is going to pronounce its order on liquor baron Vijay Mallya extradition case on December 10.

Kamal Nath's remark goes viral, Congress says video doctored

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

A video showing MPCC president Kamal Nath saying it would a loss for the Congress party if the party fails to garner 90 per cent Muslim votes in Madhya Pradesh, went viral on Wednesday.

Political circles believe that the video is the part of an earlier clip in which Kamal Nath was heard cautioning Muslim clerics against attempts of the RSS to polarize voters.

The Congress had complained to Cyber Cell of MP Police then accusing BJP of trying to tarnish state head Kamal Nath's image with doctored and misleading video.

However, Nath in the video clip that went viral on Wednesday is seen analyzing the trend of Muslim voters in last assembly polls data for which according to him is available on internet.

"If there are Muslim booths which voted for 50 or 60 per cent so we need to see why this happened? Why not 100 per cent? A post mortem of this trend is necessary as we would be suffering major loss if Muslim community's 90 per cent votes don't go in our favour," said Nath in the video.

Twitter early in the day erupted when BJP IT Cell in charge Amit Malviya uploaded the said clip on his personal handle with over 6600 users watching the video in next few hours hundreds posting comments.

BJP vice president Prabhakar Jha later in the day told the media, "We will complain against the video to the Election Commission."

Rajnish Agrawal, the BJP spokesperson alleged it is the portion of the video that went viral earlier alleging the Congress deliberately leaked it and now was pointing fingers at BJP. "They openly put tilak on the forehead and behind close doors indulge in Muslim vote bank politics," alleged Agrawal.

Congress spokesperson Pankaj Chaturvedi justified Kamal Nath's statements claiming the party normally urges maximum voter turnout from sections who held meetings with it. The BJP has failed on all the developmental indicators so its indulging in all this, claimed Chaturvedi.

Kushwaha set to dump NDA for Sharad for respectable seats

DEEPAK KUMAR JHA ■ NEW DELHI

Led by Union Minister Upendra Kushwaha, NDA partner RLSP is all set to walk out of the Modi Government and join hands with Sharad Yadav's newly outfit Loktantrik Janta Dal (LJD) next month. The Congress is in touch with the RJD in Bihar to get Kushwaha "respectable" number of seats to change side. Sources said leaders of both the Congress and the RJD are engaged for the seat-sharing talks even as the BJP and the JD(U) indicated they will not spare more than two seats to the RLSP.

Currently the RLSP has three Members of Parliament. For past few months, Kushwaha has been sending signals of leaving the NDA over seat-sharing issue. Hours after BJP chief Amit Shah and Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, in a joint statement last month, announced agreement on seat-sharing for the 2019 Lok Sabha elections, Upendra Kushwaha met RJD leader Tejashwi Yadav fuelling talks of him joining the RJD-led Mahagathbandhan in Bihar.

"In Bihar, the RJD is in the driver's seat and whichever way they drive we have to ride," quipped a top Congress leader. He added that both the Congress and Kushwaha are confident that in present circumstances RJD's Tejashwi Yadav has an upper hand in Bihar in comparison to CM Nitish Kumar.

Half of ATMs may close down by March

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

Nearly 50 per cent of the total Automated Teller Machines (ATMs) across the country may be forced to shut down by March 2019, due to "unviability" of operations owing to "recent regulatory guidelines for ATMs hardware and software upgrades, recent mandates on cash management standards and the Cassette Swap method of loading cash".

Handing out a warning to this effect, the Confederation of ATM Industry (CATMI) said on Wednesday that of the current 2,38,000 ATMs, around 1,13,000 ATMs, including 1,00,000 off-site and more than 15,000 white label ATMs, are expected to shut down.

"The forced closure is on account of unviability of operations brought about by recent regulatory guidelines for ATMs hardware and software upgrades, recent mandates on cash management standards and the Cassette Swap method of loading cash," CATMI Director V Balasubramanian said.

According to a CATMI statement, a large number of ATMs in non-urban locations may be shut down due to unviability of operations. "If this happens, the financial inclusion programme would be severely impacted as millions of beneficiaries under the Government's Pradhan Mantri Jan Dhan Yojana (PMJDY) scheme, who withdraw subsidies in form of cash through ATMs, may find their neighbourhood ATM shut," the CATMI spokesperson said.

The CATMI has predicted the closure of ATMs may result in long queues and chaos at ATMs. "Several hundred thousand jobs ride on this industry and as per CATMI estimates, the closure of ATMs may result in considerable job losses that would be detrimental to financial services in the economy," the ATM industry body said.

"Our members, who include the ATM managed service providers (MSPs), brown-label ATM deployers (BLAs) and White Label ATM Operators (WLAOs), are already reeling under the financial impact caused by huge losses during and post demonetisation as cash supply was impacted and remained inconsistent for months," Balasubramanian said.

He said the situation had further deteriorated now due to the additional compliance requirements that call for a huge cost outlay. "The service providers do not have the financial means to meet such massive costs and may be forced to shut down these ATMs, unless banks step in to bear the load of the additional cost of compliances. Revenues from providing ATMs as a service are not growing at all due to very low ATM interchange and ever-increasing costs". The CATMI, which is a registered non-profit trade association formed by ATM industry leaders to foster the growth of the industry, estimates an additional outlay of about Rs 3,500 crore - only for complying with the new cash logistics and cassette swap method. These compliance costs may also see the 15,000-plus white label ATMs going out of business.

"The ATM industry in India has reached a tipping point, and unless ATM deployers are compensated by banks for making these investments,

AKSHAY KUMAR APPEARS BEFORE PUNJAB SIT

SACRILEGE CASE

Denies meeting Sacha Sauda chief

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Ending speculation, Bollywood actor Akshay Kumar appeared before a special investigation team on Wednesday and dismissed allegations that he arranged a meeting between former Punjab deputy chief minister Sukhbir Singh Badal and controversial godman Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh.

The five-member SIT formed by the Punjab government is probing police firing at Faridkot's Bebbal Kalan and Kotkapura on people protesting over the desecration of the Guru Granth Sahib. Two people had died in the police firing in 2015.

The self-styled godman's supporters were alleged to be involved in cases of desecration, after pages of the religious text were found torn and scattered.

Akshay Kumar's counsel later told reporters that the actor denied having ever met the Dera Sacha Sauda chief, who is currently serving a 20-year jail term in two rape cases. The SIT questioned the actor as his name figured in the Justice Ranjit Singh Commission report on the sacrilege incidents, which was tabled in the Punjab Assembly in August.

It was alleged that the actor brought together Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh and the then deputy chief minister to ensure the release in Punjab of MSG-2, a controversial movie made by the sect chief.

The actor was quizzed for about two hours at the Punjab police headquarters in sector-9 here. He told the SIT that he never met Dera Sacha Sauda chief in his entire life. So the question about any meeting does not arise, the actor's counsel Sant Pal Singh Sidhu told reporters.

He said the claim by former MLA Harbans Jalal before the Ranjit Singh Commission about the meeting are concocted.

Even the Commission report has not placed any reliance on these claims saying these are based on 'hearsay', the counsel said.

Akshay Kumar has not been asked to appear again before the SIT, Sidhu said.

The counsel said the actor told the SIT members that he respected all the religions, particularly the Sikh religion. The counsel was not present with Akshay Kumar when he was quizzed.

Even before his SIT appearance, the actor had denied mediating between the Shiromani Akali Dal president and the sect chief.

The former MLA wrote to the Ranjit Singh Commission on October 9, 2017, claiming that a meeting took place between Gurmeet Ram Rahim

Singh and Sukhbir Singh Badal at the actor's flat in Mumbai in 2015 in connection with the release of MSG-2.

The meeting was allegedly held before the Dera chief was pardoned by the Akal Takht, the supreme temporal seat of the Sikhs, in a 2007 blasphemy case.

After arriving at Chandigarh airport, the actor headed straight to the Punjab police headquarters, reaching there at about 9.30 am. He refused to talk to the media waiting at the airport on his arrival and before his departure.

Heavy security was in place outside the Punjab police headquarters, officials said. The police had earlier asked the actor to appear before the probe team in Amritsar, but later gave him to the option to come to Chandigarh.

The SIT has already questioned former chief minister Parkash Singh Badal and former deputy chief minister Sukhbir Singh Badal.

On Monday, Sukhbir Singh Badal also told the SIT that he had never met Akshay Kumar outside Punjab.

The actor had also issued a denial on November 12 over the alleged meeting.

It has come to my knowledge that some rumours and false statements are being loosely made on social media about my involvement with a person named Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh in the context of a fictitious meeting involving Sukhbir Singh Badal, the actor had tweeted.

I have never ever met Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh in my life, anywhere. I learnt from social media at some point that Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh resided for a while at some place in my locality Juhu in Mumbai but we never crossed each other's paths, he said.

Kumar had then dared anyone to prove it otherwise.

The SIT was set up by the state government in September, soon after it issued a notification taking over some of the desecration-related cases from the Central Bureau of Investigation.

Three major incidents in three days reflects Cong Govt's failure: AAP

PNS ■ AMRITSAR

Alleging that there was total collapse of law and order in Punjab, the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) on Wednesday stated that the three major incidents in just three days reflected the Congress Government's failure.

AAP's senior leader and Sunam MLA Aman Arora raised finger on the jungle raj prevailing in the state and the total collapse of law and order under Capt Amarinder Singh led Government.

"Despite getting inputs from intelligence agencies, the occurrence of three major incidents in last three days shows that the government is in deep slumber leaving fate of the people of the state to destiny," said Arora, while addressing the media after meeting ailing AAP leader and party's Amritsar district's former president Suresh Sharma in Amritsar.

Commenting on the arrest of one accused in Nirankari Bhawan blast case, he said that the incident could have avoided. "There is an alarming situation in the state as the unemployed youth is indulging into drug and anti-social activities due to the Government's apathy. Congress promised to wave off farm debt, providing jobs to youth etc, but is now shying away from the promises," he said while advising Capt Amarinder to utilise energy of youth in positive way by providing jobs.

Immediately announce financial package for Guru Nanak's 550th birth anniversary celebrations, Capt urges to Modi

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Punjab Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh on Wednesday urged the Prime Minister Narendra Modi to immediately announce a generous financial package for the year-long celebrations of the 550th parkash purab (birth anniversary) of Guru Nanak Dev that commence in Punjab from Friday.

Capt Amarinder, in a letter, apprised Modi that his Government was launching a series of developmental programmes to commemorate this historic occasion.

Listing some of the schemes, including establishment of Pind Babe Nanak Da at Sultanpur Lodhi, setting up of a National Institute of Inter-Faith Studies at Guru Nanak Dev University, Amritsar, establishment of a Medical College at Batala, construction of Sri Guru Nanak Dev Ji Marg connecting places visited by the Sikhs' first master, both in Punjab and other States, and development of 47 smart towns or villages associated with the Guru, the Chief Minister said that a financial package should be given to the State forthwith at least for these projects. Referring to his earlier meeting with the Prime Minister, Capt Amarinder said that the State Government had already submitted a memorandum for seeking assistance of Rs 2,145 crore from the Centre for the celebrations.

The Chief Minister also said that he had highlighted the importance of the celebrations in the meeting of the Governing Council of the Niti Ayog held in June 2018.

"All these proposals were included in the Memorandum submitted to the Union Government and were discussed by the National Implementation Committee in its last meeting on November 8. However, the State Government had yet not been conveyed about its outcome," he pointed.

Meanwhile, the Chief Minister has also written to the Union Minister of Railways Piyush Goyal to consider a tri-weekly train from New Delhi to Sultanpur Lodhi in Kapurthala district so that the pilgrims coming to pay obeisance were provided with proper connectivity and ease of travel.

Sultanpur Lodhi would be the epicentre of the yearlong 550th birth anniversary celebrations of Guru Nanak Dev, the Chief Minister pointed out adding that lakhs of pilgrims and general public from across the globe was expected to converge there during these celebrations.

He also requested him to immediately take up the upgradation of the Sultanpur Lodhi Railway Station with special focus on strengthening its passenger facilities for the convenience of large flow of pilgrims.

Delhi CM hands over ₹1 cr cheque to martyr's family

PNS ■ SONIPAT

Delhi Chief Minister and AAP supreme Arvind Kejriwal on Wednesday visited Sonipat in Haryana and handed over an ex-gratia cheque of Rs 1 crore to the family of martyred BSF jawan Narender Singh.

Pakistani troops had slit the throat of the Border Security Force (BSF) jawan after fatally shooting him along the international border (IB) near Jammu on September 18. Narender Singh's mutilated body was found after Pakistani forces had resorted to unprovoked firing in Ramgarh sector of Jammu.

Accompanied by AAP's Haryana unit president Naveen Jaishind, Kejriwal arrived in Sonipat on Wednesday afternoon and met the martyr's family in their native village Thana Kalan.

BLAMES BJP FOR CHILLI ATTACK

Chandigarh: A day after he was attacked with chilli powder at the Delhi Secretariat, Chief Minister and AAP supremo Arvind Kejriwal has pointed fingers at the BJP for allegedly hatching a conspiracy to eliminate him.

Without taking names, Kejriwal said the repeated attacks on him are planned. In an apparent reference to the BJP, Kejriwal, while talking to the mediapersons in Sonipat said, "It is obvious that the attacks are planned. We are an obstacle in their path. They want to kill me."

"They feel if the AAP continues to be in power, people will start questioning them and their credentials," he said.

Kejriwal said, "I feel, in the history of India, there is not even one case where a Chief Minister was attacked four times in two years."

The AAP chief added that the attacks are a result of his party doing a good job in Delhi. On the other hand, his Deputy Manish Sisodia alleged that the top BJP leadership has planned the whole attack to kill Kejriwal. PNS tioned why successive governments do not give befitting reply to Pakistan.

"For how long, brave soldiers such as Narender Singh will keep giving sacrifices and for how long will families lose their near and dear ones? When the country needs such sacrifices, definitely these will be given, but our country is not so weak that we cannot give a befitting reply to Pakistan," the AAP supremo said.

He said, "I think all parties are one on this, then why governments are weak. Why successive Governments don't give a befitting reply to Pakistan?"

Before election, every party says they will give a befitting reply to Pakistan, but they forget all this after coming to the power, Kejriwal alleged.

He added, "People of our country and the Army can give befitting reply but there should be no politics on this issue."

Kejriwal, while addressing a gathering at the village, said, "We are all proud of his sacrifice. Though no amount of money can compensate the loss, but families of martyrs need to know that we stand behind them."

He said the AAP Government in Delhi took the decision to give the ex-gratia or "Samman Rashi", which he felt the previous governments at the Centre should have done 70 years back.

Notably, the AAP led Delhi Government had approved a proposal to amend a rule on awarding ex-gratia of Rs 1 crore to the kin of slain security personnel to include those who have settled in the national capital after joining service.

Speculation rife over Dilip's rejoining BJD

AUROBINDA DAS ■ ROURKELA

As the general and Assembly elections are drawing close, the future political career of senior BJP leader and Rourkela BJP MLA Dilip Ray has been a talk of the town.

Though Ray was elected in 2014 as MLA Rourkela on BJP ticket but he pulling off in the party as his demands for expediting the two projects such as second Brahmani bridge in Rourkela and upgradation of the IGH to a medical college hospital have been ignored by the Central Government led by BJP.

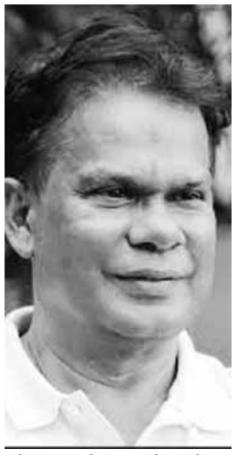

Consequently, Ray has been found rather lukewarm in the party organisation and meetings over last few years. On the contrary, a speculation that he may leave BJP and join the BJD has become rife. Ray had played a key role in the formation of the BJD after the death of former CM Biju Patnaik and had been very close to BJD ideologue till his last breath.

While Ray is visiting the city on November 23, many say he may first resign from the State Assembly and later the BJP after returning from his foreign trip to USA.

Many others said he would resign from the Assembly after its Winter Session which is going on now. But some others say after the results of the ongoing Assembly polls in five States on December 11, Ray may decide his future course of action.

Interestingly, even before Ray has taken a decision on joining the BJD, many people who are close to him have started talking about getting ticket from the BJD by the blessing of Ray. It is because they claim that if Ray joins BJD he will play an important role in ticket allotment for the entire Sundargarh district.

If sources are to be believed, more than a dozen of aspirants claim here that they are assured of BJD ticket in 2019 election though Ray has not ever mentioned about his switchover to BJD anywhere. Besides, many others who are in party since last many years and having good organisational ability also expect the party ticket in coming election. In total now more than 20 aspirants are in steel city to get BJD ticket for the most prestigious Rourkela Assembly seat. A similar situation is also found in Raghunathpalli Assembly segment.

High-profile cases take...

Till now, a team has not been constituted to represent the case, officials said, adding a decision is likely to be taken only after the SC pronounced its verdict on November 29. A decision by the Interpol for issuing a Red Corner Notice against ₹14,000-crore PNB credit fraud case accused Mehul Choksi is also pending in the absence of proper representation by the CBI, sources said. Other cases in which investigation will be affected include the IRCTC bribery case involving Lalu Prasad's family, Agusta Westland case and INX media case. Other high-profile cases being probed by the agency include NRHM scam of Uttar Pradesh and Saradha scam of West Bengal. However, the Muzaffarpur shelter home case and Manipur encounter cases are progressing well as they are being monitored by the apex court. Asthana was handling the IRCTC case, AgustaWestland probe and Saradha ponzi scam case. "In the wake of benching of Verma and Asthana by the Government and SC restraining interim Director from taking any major policy decision, case files are stuck as the officials are not able to seek legal opinion from the Law Ministry or the in-house legal wing when clarity is required," an official said. Officials said the case files move right from the investigation officers, mostly comprising DSPs and ASPs, to the SP, then to DIG, Joint Director, Additional Director, Special Director and the Director. During the course of investigation, the files are also sent to a parallel rank officer of the prosecution wing headed by Director of Prosecution.

Beigh is one of the founding leaders of the PDP who briefly headed the party and rose in ranks to the level of becoming Deputy Chief Minister of the State in 2006.

Observers say that after the dissolution of the Assembly, the State politics would take a dramatic turn and new permutations and combinations would emerge.

Earlier, former BJP leader and Deputy Chief Minister Kavinder Gupta stirred major row by alleging that the PDP, the NC and the Congress were coming together "on the directions from Pakistan". "They boycotted municipal/panchayat polls on the directions of Pakistan and now they are coming together to form a Government in the State on their directions too," Gupta told reporters in Jammu.

In the past these Kashmir-based parties have treated Jammu as "second grade" entity and now we will not allow them to take people of Jammu region for a ride, he added.

This decision of forming a Government, he alleged, was taken in a meeting held in Dubai.

COMMUNAL APPEAL FOR VOTES

BJP wants EC to crack whip on Kamal Nath

Also questions, why Nath was removed as Punjab Cong in-charge?

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Fuelled by the poll season adrenaline, the BJP on Wednesday attacked Congress Madhya Pradesh chief Kamal Nath for pandering to the Muslims and charged his party with working against the victims of 1984 Sikh riots while also pointing out that Nath was removed as Punjab-in-charge following the anti-Sikh killings. The BJP demanded the EC to take legal action against Nath. Making Nath its target in the poll-bound State, where voting is due on November 28, BJP referred to a video figuring him on social media wherein he is purportedly saying that it would be a huge loss if the Congress does not get 90 per cent of Muslim votes. A BJP delegation, led by Union Minister and senior BJP leader Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi, visited election commission and sought suitable penal action against Nath for inciting communal and religious feelings by appealing to a particular religious community. The party also drew EC's attention to the alleged violation of code of conduct by the Congress MP Chief. In the clip, the nine-time Lok Sabha MP from Chhindwara is reportedly urging a gathering of Muslim clerics to account for each and every Muslim vote in the State. He asks them to conduct a postmortem on why only 60 per cent Muslims turn up to polling booths. The veracity of the clip is yet to be confirmed by independent viewers. "In the Muslim booths, what is the percentage of voting that has taken place? If 50 to 60 per cent of voting has taken place, why was it just 60 per cent? Why wasn't it 90 per cent? It is important to do a postmortem of the previous elections. If you want we will get it done to 80 to 90 per cent. If we don't get 90 per cent vote share of the Muslim community today, then it will be a big loss for us," Nath can reportedly be heard saying. In the clip he is seen telling the members in the gathering to 'identify' Muslim booths and target the voters there. "You know which is a Muslim booth. In that booth, what was the percentage of voting that took place? If 60 per cent voting has taken place there, there would be a reason behind it," Nath says. BJP spokesperson Sambit Patra hit out at Congress for practicing 'divide and rule' politics brazenly. He also went on to say that Nath's fresh comments are an extrapolation of Congress president's comment where he allegedly asserted that Congress is a party of Muslims. Patra also implied that the Congress was undermining the votes of backward class and tribals. In another video, circulated in social media earlier, Nath was purportedly commenting on the so-called divisive politics of the BJP and asking the Muslim voters to bear with it until polling concludes. On Wednesday, the BJP also charged the Congress with denying justice to the 1984 Sikh victims and also simultaneously targeted Nath saying he was removed as Congress in-charge for the Punjab Assembly polls following protests by Sikhs. A day after a Delhi court awarded death sentence to an accused and life imprisonment to another in a 1984 anti-Sikh riots case, senior BJP leader Ravi Shankar Prasad said the probe carried out by a Special Investigation Team (SIT) set up by the Narendra Modi Government led to the sentencing. "We (BJP) are very satisfied," the Union Minister told reporters about his party's stand on the verdict and added that people needed to be told that the Congress had, during its rule, tried to ensure that the Sikh riot victims did not get justice. The Opposition party did it to save its own people, Prasad alleged. Targeting Nath, who has been accused by some Sikh bodies of having links to the riots, Prasad noted that the Congress had removed him as its in-charge for the Punjab polls last year following protests by people. The Congress should answer as to why was Nath removed, he said. Nath had in the past rejected the charges against him and said he had no links with the 1984 anti-Sikh riots, following the assassination of then Prime Minister Indira Gandhi by her Sikh bodyguards.

PM mocking DeMo-hit farmers, says Rahul

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Continuing his daily attack on the Modi Government, Congress president Rahul Gandhi on Wednesday claimed that demonetisation had "destroyed" the lives of farmers and accused Prime Minister Narendra Modi of making "fun" of their plight during his poll campaigns. Taking to Twitter, he cited a media report that claimed the agriculture ministry has admitted that demonetisation has hit the farmers hard. The Ministry, however, rejected the claims. "Noteban has destroyed the lives of farmers. Now they do not even have enough money to buy seeds and fertilizer," Rahul tweeted in Hindi. "But, Modi ji is making fun of our farmers' plight. Now his Agriculture Ministry has also said that farmers were badly affected due to demonetisation decision," he said on Twitter referring to Modi's campaigns in Chhattisgarh and Madhya Pradesh. On Saturday, the Congress chief tagged on Twitter a video of the prime minister's speech during the poll campaign in Chhattisgarh, where he alleged that people were hiding their black money under beds and in wheat stocks in their homes before the note ban. He had also asked if absconders like Vijay Mallya, Nirav Modi and Mehul Choksi, who have allegedly committed bank frauds, have ever sown wheat. "Have you seen Mallya, Mehul bhai and Nirav Modi sow wheat. Modiji, don't insult the farmers. You first indulged in a scam by collecting farmers money by noteban and handed it over to your suit-boot friends. "Now you are saying that farmers' money was black money. India will not tolerate this insult of farmers," he had tweeted. Union Finance Minister Arun Jaitley has defended demonetisation, saying it was a "highly ethical" move and not merely a political one. Jaitley also said hard data showed an increase in tax base, greater formalisation of the economy and India retaining the fastest growing economy tag for the fifth year in a row.

Sealing: SC order on contempt proceedings against Tiwari today

New Delhi: The Supreme Court is scheduled to pronounce on Thursday its order on contempt proceedings against Delhi BJP chief and Lok Sabha MP Manoj Tiwari for allegedly breaking the seal of a premises here. The property was sealed by the East Delhi Municipal Corporation (EDMC). A bench headed by Justice Madan B Lokur had on October 30 reserved its order after hearing arguments in the matter during which Tiwari had accused the court-mandated monitoring committee on sealing of "terrorising" people of Delhi. The panel, however, had claimed that he was trying to make the court a "political battleground". An FIR was also lodged against Tiwari by the EDMC for allegedly breaking the seal of the premises in Gokalpuri area in north-east Delhi on September 16. The apex court had on September 19 issued contempt notice against Tiwari, a Member of Parliament (MP) from the north-east Delhi constituency, after taking note of a report filed by the monitoring committee which had alleged that the BJP leader had broken the seal of the premises. Tiwari had claimed before the top court that monitoring committee has exceeded its jurisdiction and conducted sealing drive in unauthorised colonies here that were protected under the law. Senior counsel Vikas Singh, appearing for the BJP leader, had claimed before the bench that "monitoring committee want to terrorise the people of Delhi. This is only for publicity". Countering his arguments, advocate A D N Rao, appearing for the committee, had said the panel does not need any "publicity" and its members were "only performing their jobs entrusted to them by the Supreme Court". 400 paramilitary personnel killed due to firing from Pak in last 3 yrs: Officials

New Delhi: Nearly 400 paramilitary personnel were killed due to firing from across the Indo-Pak border, and terrorist and insurgency violence in the country in the last three years, officials said on Wednesday. The highest number of personnel killed in action were from the Border Security Force (BSF). The force lost 167 personnel between 2015 and 2017, and a majority of them were killed while guarding the highly sensitive border. The Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) has lost 103 personnel in the last three years, mostly while fighting Naxals and militancy in Jammu & Kashmir, a Home Ministry official said. While the BSF lost 62 personnel in action in 2015, 58 in 2016 and 47 in 2017, the CRPF lost nine personnel in action in 2015, 42 in 2016 and 52 in 2017. As many as 48 personnel of the Sashastra Seema Bal (SSB) were killed in action in the last three years of whom 16 were killed in 2015, 15 in 2016 and

17 in 2017, the official said. The SSB guards the Indo-Bhutan and Indo-Nepal border. The troops of the force is also deployed in internal security duties. A total of 40 personnel belonging to the Indo Tibetan Border Police (ITBP), which guards the Sino-Indian border, were killed in action between 2015 and 2017. Among them, 15 personnel were killed in 2015, 10 in 2016 and 15 in 2017. Eighteen personnel of the Assam Rifles were killed in 2015, nine in 2016 and eight in 2017. There were no casualties in 2015 from the CISF, which guards airports, nuclear installations, metro services and other sensitive locations, another official said. PTI

India to host 50th Union World Conference on Lung Health in 2019

New Delhi: The 50th Union World Conference on Lung Health will be held in Hyderabad next year, a global organisation working in this field announced on Wednesday. The conference 'Ending the Emergency: Science, Leadership, Action' which will be held from October 30 to November 2 next year, the International Union Against Tuberculosis and Lung Disease said. It will focus on what is needed to ensure commitments become action and targets are met, the organisation also called The Union said. Tuberculosis (TB), a preventable and curable disease, now kills more people than HIV/AIDS and is the world's largest infectious disease, it said.

India has the highest TB burden in the world with one in four people ill with tuberculosis globally residing in the country, Prabodh Bhambal, Deputy Executive Director at The Union, said. "In Hyderabad we need to be seeing signs that we are seeing real leadership that is translating into both investment in diagnostic tools, new drugs and a vaccine and action on the ground," he said. The 50th Union World Conference is expected to be attended by around 6,000 researchers, policy makers, health practitioners, political leaders, and UN and community representatives. The latest research into prevention, cure and vaccines will be presented at the conference. The Union has its South-East Asia Office in Delhi employing and implements the Declaration they signed at the UN meeting." José Luis Castro, Executive Director at The Union, said. "In Hyderabad we need to be seeing signs that we are seeing real leadership that is translating into both investment in diagnostic tools, new drugs and a vaccine and action on the ground," he said. The 50th Union World Conference is expected to be attended by around 6,000 researchers, policy makers, health practitioners, political leaders, and UN and community representatives. The latest research into prevention, cure and vaccines will be presented at the conference. The Union has its South-East Asia Office in Delhi employing and implements the

Call to Action for a TB-Free India with support from the USAID's Challenge TB project. The Union's Project Axysha, launched in 2010, engages all sectors to strengthen TB care and control in 128 districts across 14 states, Bhambal said. Financed by the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria and partnering with local organisations across India, since 2015, Axysha has reached over 48 million people, identified and tested 643,000 people and placed 70,000 TB patients on treatment and prevented countless cases of infection, he said. The conference's theme resonates with TB, but it will also raise awareness on all threats to lung health, including air pollution and tobacco abuse, The Union said. Dr Vedant Kabra, Head of the Department of Surgical Oncology, Manipal Hospitals Groups, said an estimated seven million people across the globe die each year from exposure to ambient and household air pollution according to the WHO. India accounts for 1.6 million deaths annually, he said. On an average, Indian citizens are exposed to PM2.5 concentrations between 15 and 32 times the air quality guidelines set forth by the WHO. Dr Raj Kumar, Director, Vallabh Patel Chest Institute, Delhi, emphasised that implementing stricter emissions standards in India could save hundreds of thousands of lives each year. PTI

A dignified exit

Sushma Swaraj chooses to assess her political future on her own terms

Grace under pressure. This one value sets apart veteran BJP leader Sushma Swaraj, who has bowed out of the electoral race of 2019 knowing full well that it is better to let go of things not meant to be. Her health may have given her the pretext but she has realised she would rather step back as a protégé of the old guard helmed by Vajpayee-Advani than risk being benched into a retirement home called margdarshak mandal by BJP 2.0. In that sense, she has shown some spark of her old fiery and determined self, going out on her own terms rather than compromising her core beliefs in a system that has its own revamped priorities, starred hierarchies and a strait-jacketed agenda. It is well-known that she was ill at ease in the Modi-Shah party with all her mentors forced into hibernation. She was among the second-rung leaders that BJP rightly has a culture of grooming but didn't have the Sangh's monolithic endorsement which it reserved for Narendra Modi. Yet she survived and re-calibrated her loyalties to her one-time peer and newly anointed leader. But it was a stifling tenure. Though she was the only woman Foreign Minister after Indira Gandhi, she was seldom allowed operating space, the bulk of foreign policy being conducted by the PMO. Still Swaraj pushed the envelope, adding a personal touch to resolving people's procedural problems and holding her own in forum discussions like ASEAN. In fact, Prime Minister Modi even acknowledged her publicly in his assessment of ministerial records. She equally made her presence felt on social media, the new tool of interface, and became a pro in social media diplomacy, helping in cases that users put up for her intervention and attention, something that led The Washington Post to term her the "supermom" of diplomacy. But when she transferred an official for refusing passports to an inter-faith couple, she came into direct confrontation with hardliner trolls, some of whom followed the present leadership and were seen as having their tacit endorsement. With hardly any peer support or defence, that episode highlighted the ideological gap between two generations of the BJP and how she was too different to negotiate a DNA switch. An old BJP leadership, operating in a different contextual dynamic, could afford to be more omnitheistic and share the spotlight democratically. The new leadership, coming as it does on the back of a consolidated verdict, a re-activated cadre base and a distinctly RSS-dominated agenda, will predictably go by what it succeeded with in the first place, a presidential style of operations and one that is aspirational and robust. With Swaraj's departure, the new leaders are expected to reassert this credo more volubly.

Nevertheless, Swaraj will be remembered within the party and even across party lines as a seasoned parliamentarian with many firsts to her credit. And perhaps it was her versatility and magnetic appeal that necessitated her inclusion in the Modi Cabinet, as one who needed to be neutralised rather than be allowed to be free-spirited given her facility with media projection. Besides, among a male-dominated leadership of the BJP, she broke through as the party's first female Chief Minister, Union Cabinet Minister, general secretary and even spokesperson. And that needed acknowledgment. She was perhaps one of BJP's most proactive I&B ministers, ushering in industry status for film producers and propagating community radio. A passionate and arresting orator, she has had Parliament in thrall with her speeches, particularly as the Leader of the Opposition from 2009 to 2014. She famously vowed to shave off her head if Congress supremo Sonia Gandhi was made Prime Minister and took on her creditably from the Bellary Lok Sabha seat. The Lower House will surely miss that fire and brimstone. But Swaraj is a master of reinvention and it would be foolhardy to write her off.

Storm in a Tweepcup

Should the Twitter head honcho have held up a poster that says 'Smash Brahmanical Patriarchy'? Perhaps not. But...

The India visit of Jack Dorsey, chief executive and co-founder of social networking site Twitter, has been compared to the disastrous visit of Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau to our country earlier this year. That might be stretching it but there is no doubt that Dorsey, who posed holding a poster that urged us all to apropos of nothing in particular 'Smash Brahmanical Patriarchy', could have avoided controversy. But some of the hysteria that has followed is downright silly and lacks understanding of Indian social history. Hilariously, an 'editor' went as far as to call him anti-India and a retired Indian Police Service officer suggested that the tweet and picture qualified as evidence fit for a case of sedition to be filed against Dorsey. Frankly, at the risk of offending more people, let us not get so worked up about it. Should Jack Dorsey have posed with the poster? Maybe not. Is the poster offensive? While many and not only from the Brahmin community do find it offensive, and the creator of the poster herself has admitted she meant the slogan as a pejorative, the fact that India still suffers from caste-based patriarchy — along with many other causes — is difficult to deny even by those offended by the poster. Looking at the posts and anger that has followed, however, is like staring down a dark hole of ignorance. Anytime anyone advocates the application of Section 295A of the Indian Penal Code, it must be done very carefully. This newspaper has argued in the past that this section of the IPC is an anachronism that has no place in a modern society and is so vaguely defined that the authorities are liable to misuse it for imagined wrongs. This is exactly what has happened to Abhijit Iyer-Mitra in Odisha where slighted Odia pride has meant that he has spent two weeks in jail on dodgy grounds.

The irony of the situation is that it is Twitter itself that gives a voice to the easily offended, allowing them to be perpetually offended at some silly thing or another. In fact, one could argue that Twitter, in particular, and Facebook and other social networks in general, have led to the extinction of common sense. Indians should take heed from two people that Jack Dorsey met while in New Delhi, Narendra Modi and Rahul Gandhi. No matter what your politics, the vitriol that these two men catch on a daily basis on Twitter is mind-boggling; yet, they do not lash out as they have both developed a thick skin. This is not to excuse the tremendous violence, virulence and abuse that users, particularly women, face on Twitter on a daily basis which the service has been in largely ineffective in curbing. That needs to change. But screaming and shouting blue murder over a poster in a picture, even if provocative, is a waste of time and energy.

CLAUDE ARPI

The 40th anniversary of "China's reform and opening up" is being celebrated across the country this year as the Chinese propaganda affirms: "Over the past 40 years, the country has transformed itself from a largely agricultural nation into the second largest economy in the world."

One of the most remembered events took place in 1978, when 18 farmers in Xiaogang village in Anhui Province signed a secret agreement to divide collectively-owned farmland into individual pieces and drop the collectivisation of the Great Leap Forward (GLF), which between 1958 and 1960, resulted in some 40 million casualties; in Xiaogang itself, 67 villagers out of 120 had died of starvation between 1958 and 1960.

Forty years later, the name Xiaogang is being used for a different project, which should worry India: The building of a large number of 'model' villages in Tibet, along the border with India.

On October 19, China Tibet News reported that since the beginning of 2018, Tsonga County, north of Arunachal Pradesh's Tawang district, has been "vigorously promoting the construction of border 'Xiaogang' villages" (the literal meaning of 'Xiaogang' is 'moderately well-off').

Tsona County alone has invested 519 million yuan ($74 million) in the construction projects of nine border villages, benefiting 1,961 people from 617 households. More than 40 per cent of the project has been completed and an investment of 2.2 billion yuan ($314 million) has already been spent.

In May, China Tibet News said that Lepo, the first village in Tibet, north of the border in Khenzimane (Tawang district) boasted a rich vegetation and clear waters: "With impressive natural scenery and unique ethnic customs, Magmang ecological civilisation village is also situated in Lepo Valley, Tsona County. ...The construction of Magmang ecological civilisation demonstration village began on March of 2014 and was completed on December." On January of 2015, the village was inaugurated and a year later, Magmang was awarded "China's beautiful leisure village" by the Ministry of Agriculture. China has 26 national key tourist attractions; the Lepo Valley, close to the Thagla ridge, which saw the first clashes between India and China in October 1962, is one of them.

The new tourist scheme, 'Slowing down the speed of tour, enjoying the sea of azaleas in Lepo Valley', prolonged the peak season, explained the Chinese authorities.

Dekyi Tsomo, a 27-year-old villager of Magmang, told the website: "Previously, Doklam redux?

Is China's building of a large number of 'model' villages on the Tibetan side of the Indian border preparation for another stand-off? It's time to discuss this issue with Thimphu houses in the village looked fairly run-down, and all roads leading to the village are muddy. Nowadays, the houses we live in are comfortable and big, with underfloor heating and hot water supply. This kind of house costs more than 400,000 yuan. We only pay 120,000 yuan, the rest is paid by the Government. ...we all feel grateful." Incidentally, on March 30, 1959, the Dalai Lama spent his last night in Tibet in Magmang; he was on his way to India. The next day, he crossed the border at Khenzimane. He would certainly not recognise the hamlet.

To understand the mushrooming of Xiaogang villages, one should remember the words of the Emperor Xi Jinping, who said: "Govern the nation by governing the borders, govern the borders by first stabilising Tibet. Ensure social harmony and stability in Tibet and strengthen the development of border regions."

The villages are officially linked to two themes: 'Poverty alleviation' and 'defence of the borders'. The local populations are said to be the 'Guardians of the Sacred Land and Builders of Happy Homes'.

Senior Communist leaders regularly visit the new villages; whether in the Lohit sector, north of the McMahon Line, where a memorial for the Chinese soldiers, who died in the Walong sector during the 1962 War, has been erected for 'nationalist' tourism; in Metok, near Arunachal's Upper Siang district or in Yume, north of Takshing in Upper Subansari; all these areas have their model villages, like in Lepo.

During the last few years, Beijing has concentrated on the development of the south-eastern prefectures of Nyingchi and Lhoka, bordering Arunachal Pradesh. But now, while the work on the railway line between Lhasa and Nyingchi continues at a quick pace, the development has started shifting westwards, in areas bordering Uttarakhand, Himachal Pradesh and Ladakh.

Beijing wants to duplicate in Ngari what has been done in Nyingchi and Lhoka areas; first and foremost, improving infrastructure of the border and creating Xiaogang villages. Among the three new airports to be soon constructed in Tibet, Purang is located in Ngari prefecture of Western Tibet (one is near Lhunste in Lhoka and the last one, near the Nepal border). The construction should begin in 2019 and it will be functional in 2021.

The objective of these airports is to strengthen the border's communications with surrounding areas. Let us not forget that airports and highways on the plateau legally have a dual use (civilian and military).

There is another aspect to the communist party's policy on the Indian borders: Recalcitrant Tibetans are relocated to places further away from the 'sensitive' Indian borders.

An article recently appeared in the French edition of China Tibet Online, titled: 'Relocation of the villagers of Lhodrak: mission over.'

It affirmed: "After a first wave of successful relocation on October 15, a second wave is now over." Lhodrak is the legendary birthplace of Marpa, the great saint who visited India several times and translated the Buddhist scriptures in the 11th century. It is located north of the Bhutanese border.

"The villagers' relocation project represents the completion of a scheme which is part of the strategy of the CPP's Central Committee for strengthening the border. It is also a good example to illustrate that the party carries the people in its heart, it provides a housing solution to families in need, and a strengthening of the masses on the borders for defence," said the article.

Tibetans in traditional costumes, probably provided for the photo op, are seen on the accompanying pictures. Some of the Xiaogang villages are located north of Bhutan, near the eastern trijunction between India, China and Bhutan, an area which is disputed.

Could it be in preparation of another Doklam? There is, however, a difference with the western trijunction (Doklam). India has no military presence in the area. The time has perhaps come to discuss this issue seriously with Thimphu.

End quotas

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Quota question" (November 20). Instead of indulging in quota politics, the Government must work for the overall development of the people and the country's economy, and for the weaker sections, it must aim to provide better opportunities so that they can rise and prosper.

Reservations are but a reminder to the people that they are weak and cannot rise in life without any support. The Supreme Court, too, had made it clear that reservation is not in the public's interest. In fact, reservations lead to more chaos than delivering on the so-called benefits to the intended people. It is in the country's interest to abolish reservations of all kinds.

RBI must tread cautiously

This refers to the editorial, "An armistice" (November 21). Looking at the present feud between the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) and the Central Government, I am reminded of the Asian Currency crisis of 1997. While the Thai Baht broke its peg with the US dollar, signalling the Asian financial crisis, this led to a full-blown crisis in Thailand, Indonesia and eventually the much larger Korean economy. Domestic financial institutions failed and foreign exchange sources dried up. While almost all the Asian currencies went for a toss, the Indian rupee withstood the onslaught and stayed strong, thanks to the disciplined and stricter policies followed by the then RBI stalwarts, ably supported by the highly knowledgeable financial wizards who were heading the Government.

It is laudable that the present regulators of the RBI have also withstood the pressure mounted on them by the present Government to dilute regulations and support the Government in their attempt to please certain sections of the people, keeping the ensuing Lok Sabha election in mind. The RBI should not yield to relax norms to release loans to MSMEs under the so-called 'loan in 59 minutes' announcement or restructure huge NPAs to bail out defaulters whose aim is only to cheat the banks. Bankers should also come forward to deny such '59 minute loans'. Surely if loans are given in such a hurry, without following norms, it would result in a new chunk of NPAs and later, bankers will be held responsible.

Security lapse

Sir — This refers to the report, "Man throws chilli powder at Kejriwal, arrested" (November 21). Throwing chilli powder in Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal's eyes in a highly secured building of Delhi Secretariat is a matter of serious security lapse. Security persons, who provide security to people who fall under Z-security cover, have a duty to take perfect care of the person.

It is unfortunate that a spokesperson of the ruling party at the Centre, without knowing about the security norms, gave an irresponsible political statement, terming the unfortunate incident as a pre-scripted drama. The Delhi Police and Union Home

Ministry must investigate the matter in a politically unbiased manner and ensure perfect security to the Delhi Chief Minister, even though he may be asked to follow certain norms set for persons under Z-security cover.

Autonomy for CBI

Sir — It is disturbing that the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) stands accused of being used by the Centre to implicate opponents to scuttle dissenting voices. Over-politicisation of institutions is bound to deal a blow to the federal structure.

Such developments can be prevented when a policy, envisaging absolute autonomy to the CBI, is put in place. Its impartiality would be manifested only when it carries out raids also against leaders associated with the ruling party since it can't be presumed that they are all incorruptible.

From poverty to prosperity

While the Government has launched various welfare programmes for the poor, there is something it can do for the middle-income population too

RAJEEV AHUJA

A poor marginal farmer, Kishan, living in a remote Indian village was barely able to subsist. He cultivated cereals and seasonal vegetables on a small piece of land that he owned, and at times worked as a wage-labourer for the so-called 'affluent' farmers in the neighbouring village. His wife would often lend a helping hand in tending the field. His two school-going daughters, too, would regularly partake in the household chorus when not studying. To an urban dweller, Kishan may appear to be living a life of content, but that wasn't the case for him and his family. For them, life had become a daily grind. The same was true of many other families in his village. A slender margin separated calmness from turbulence in their lives, for Mother Nature could easily wreck havoc in their apparently calm lives.

But life started to change for Kishan — as it did for other households of his village — after the Modi Government came to power. Not only does his village now have electricity, but almost every household has a bank account and an LPG facility for cooking. Propagation of scientific agricultural practices has helped these farmers to not only switch over to higher value crops, but also to produce marketable surplus. They are now less dependent on rain. Their crops enjoy protection from other hazards too under the Pradhan Mantri Fasal Bima Yojana. Encouraged by a local NGO, Kishan's wife has started a small enterprise to supplement her family income. She joined hands with a few other women folks to start their own handicraft manufacturing unit, availing loan under the Pradhan Mantri Mudra Yojana.

Nobody had expected their life to take such a sudden turn for the better. Talk to any villager and s/he will acknowledge that there has been a perceptible change in public services too. Quality of rations in the fair price shop improved; school teachers are more dedicated now; students enjoy playing newly-introduced sports — badminton and volley ball; a doctor now regularly sits in the nearest primary health centre. Every resident of the village now has a unique identification (Aadhaar) card needed to avail benefits under various Government programmes.

Kishan's family is hopeful that one day they will be living in a pucca house, as promised by the Village Pradhan under the Pradhan Mantri Gramin Awas Yojana. Also, Kishan is thrilled to have received a letter signed by none other than Prime Minister Narendra Modi himself, assuring him and his family of free hospital treatment of upto five lakh rupees every year in any Government or private hospital under the Pradhan Mantri Jan Arogya Yojana. This, he finds quite reassuring.

All of this is, of course, an imaginary story that may turn into reality if India continues to witness politics of development. The Modi dispensation has introduced a number of programmes for the benefit of the poor and the vulnerable. These initiatives are making visible difference on the ground. It may be too early to find a poor household that has benefited from all schemes and programmes meant for the poor, but finding a poor household that has remained untouched by any of these may be difficult as well. Indeed, the poor should be the focus of the Government welfare programmes. But there is something that the Modi Government could do for the middle-income people, too, without assuming any additional fiscal burden. One such intervention could be to include the Above Poverty Line (APL) population in the Pradhan Mantri Jan Arogya Yojana upon payment of premium. This will be a huge benefit to the informal sector workers and their families that belong to the APL category.

Currently, this section of society has two options: To pay hospital bills out of their own pocket, which can be prohibitively expensive or buy an insurance policy from one of the insurance companies. If they pay hospital bills out of their own pockets, the deadly cocktail of one's needs and emotions gets exploited by the private hospitals. And if one buys an insurance policy, it can be several times more expensive than what could be if they were to join the Pradhan Mantri Jan Arogya Yojana and take advantage of the negotiated discounted prices. Kishan's expected meteoric rise from the BPL to APL category should prove to be a boon, and not bane. However, this will only be so when there is something for the APL population too.

How to kill a dream

The gunning down of Avni is symptomatic of a crisis of governance and brings to the fore one of the most pressing problems of the human-animal conflict which demands professional solutions

VK BAHUGUNA

Social activism is a sign of a vibrant, responsive and progressive society. Indian social activism has assumed gigantic proportions, but often, emotive activism, devoid of objectivity, derails the smooth functioning of institutions of governance and creates confusion. The latest in a series of such instances is the shooting of a man-eating Tigress in Maharashtra's Yavatmal district. For the past few weeks, animal rights activists and organisations have been castigating the Maharashtra Government for the killing of Tigress Avni in Pandharkawada forests of Maharashtra's Yavatmal district. They have charged the forest department for her cold-blooded killing, so much so that Union Minister Maneka Gandhi dubbed her killing as a straight case of crime and raised the hackle by demanding the sacking of Maharashtra Forest Minister Sudhir Mungantiwar.

The State Government on November 10 set up an inquiry committee to prove the death of the tigress. Let us examine the facts from the point of view of rule of law as also from the point of view of overall animal welfare, moral and professional ethos.

Tigress Avni was eliminated on the night of November 2, 2018, with help from a sharp shooter, Asgar Ali. During the last two years, the tigress killed 13 people. Due to public pressure, the Chief Wildlife Warden seemed to have ordered that the big cat be either captured or killed as she was found to be dangerous for human life. Even the Mumbai High Court, after initial refusal, allowed the shooting. The Supreme Court, however, refrained from interfering.

Strictly speaking, the forest department was within the legal boundaries to neutralise the man-eating tigress. Chapter III of the Wildlife Protection Act, 1972, deals with the subject of Hunting of Wild Animals and provisions of Chapter IV under Section 11(a) empower the Chief Wildlife Warden to order elimination of such animals.

Going by the rule book, foresters were within their right to have taken the decision to eliminate the man-eating tigress. However, going by the post-mortem and other reports, several questions arise that need to be answered. Further, the issue is not just about the killing of the tigress but involves larger issues of systemic malfunctioning of our social fibre and governance under which we are surely and certainly destroying the living space of the wildlife by fragmenting their corridors and encroaching on their habitats.

When results of our irrational behaviours are visible, like the killing of 13 people by Avni, and subsequently her elimination, the hue and cry being raised on her death is only emotionally targeting the forest department. There's no discussion about the real causes that led to the situation, which is bound to rise in the near future.

Tiger conservation in India is an internationally acclaimed success story. Since tigers are a prolific breeder, conservation efforts are not going to be derailed by the unfortunate killing of Avni. However, the way this issue was handled and the manner in which she was killed does not absolve the foresters and other officials from criticism. They did handle the case in an unprofessional manner. The moot question here is: Why did the State Government, the district administration and the forest department not take proactive action when the first human killing was reported? The order of the Chief Wildlife Warden, too, needs to be examined. It needs to be ascertained whether the order was to tranquilise or to kill the tigress. If the order was to tranquilise, then why did the forest department lack the basic capacity to fire the dart gun? Why were they not able to train one of their staff? If it was a professional decision to kill her, due to management compulsions, were all protocols in the rule book followed?

According to the shooter, Ali, "We have been roaming in the forests for many days and after two forest guards identified the animal as T1, a forester fired the dart. But in a fraction of a second, she charged towards us with a roar. If I had not opened fire, she would have killed two to three people". But the post mortem report, as reported in the media, said that the tigress was shot when she was facing away from the shooter and the dart found lodges in its left thigh and did not show any impact of being fired from a tranquilising gun. If this statement in the post mortem report is true (subject to verification), it contradicts the self-defence theory of the shooter and is a matter of suppression of facts. The Chief Wildlife Warden has to come clean on criticism.

It was a long pending correct decision to remove the tigress from this forest area. Only an efficient forest manager will be able to suggest if the elimination could have been well-planned and if the tigress could have been captured and sent to a zoo.

If it was a right decision to kill her, the Chief Wildlife Warden should make it clear as to what happened on the night of November 2 and what were the orders of the State Government. Honest professionals must face the public and clear the smoke.

The meat of the story, however, is: Tiger population in India has been steadily rising. In 2006, there were 1,411 tigers in the country, which increased to 2,226 in 2014. The 2018 census data is not yet out. Forest area in Yavatmal district is 19.9 per cent (2,606 sq km) of the geographic area (13,582 sq km), as per the Forest Survey of India's 'State of Forest Report 2017'. Though tigers are increasing, there has been a decrease of six sq km forest areas in Yavatmal district, compared to the assessment in 2015.

The State Government had been diverting forest lands in Yavatmal for the setting up of a cement factory and other projects without assessing its impact on wildlife. Though the tiger population is going up at an average of 30 per cent and conservation measures are bearing fruits, the forest area and the wildlife habitat are shrinking with the net result that young tigers are seeking territories in new fragmented forests, honeycombed by villages with little prey base. Tigress Avni and its two cubs were a victim of circumstances. There was shortage of food and no secure territory.

The killing of Avni has thrown a timely challenge for the foresters, State Governments and the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change to seriously treat the disease of shrinking habitat and fragmentation of forest lands instead of treating the symptoms. They must pull up their socks and find professional solutions for such situations, especially on how to consolidate forest catchments for food and water security, fragmentation of forestlands in tiger and elephant corridors et al.

At the same time, foresters must upgrade their infrastructure and professional capability to meet such challenges, and show their spine in the same way the unsung foresters had shown. For their grit, determination and professional capability had led to tigers, other wild life and forest biodiversity to survive in India in difficult situations. In the end, we must remember that notwithstanding perceived lapses on the part of authorities, which will be clear after a fair inquiry, the intention of governance was correct as we must also feel for 13 poor Indians who lost their lives. Now, the forest department must rehabilitate Avni's two cubs.

Fighting pollution, the Beijing way

There's a lot India can learn from the Chinese capital which has registered tremendous improvement in its air quality. First, we need a political will to fight the bad-air days

KOTA SRIRAJ

In the first week of November 2018, this writer paid a visit to Beijing and came back quite impressed as to how China was managing its air pollution woes. During the peak hours, when the air was anything but healthy, citizens used masks to protect themselves. In contrast, in India, we are yet to understand the threat that air pollution poses to our health. This is evident by the limited use of protective gear, such as face masks, particularly among our children and the elderly. An interesting aspect about pollution management in Beijing was that though the ambient air quality approached unhealthy levels during the day, it did not stay there for long. There was both a natural and man-made reason for this. The natural reason pertained to the geographical position of the city which afforded it a constant minimum wind speed. This aided in blowing away noxious gases. The man-made reason was that Beijing's city administration was acutely aware about the worsening air quality and, thus, ensured that a plethora of measures is taken to clamp down pollution-causing conditions.

For instance, unlike in India, the municipal authorities keep spraying water on busy roads throughout the day at regular intervals. This does not allow the dust to rise. On the other hand, dust vacuum trucks keep tidying up the roadways across the city on a regular basis. The result is a spic and span city infrastructure that does not contribute to pollution.

One amazing aspect of Beijing that would strike everyone is that in spite of the population density, the city bears an unhurried and paced look about it. The main reason for this is the efficacy of the public transport, especially the Beijing subway or the metro. China's underground transport system has evolved tremendously and is now the mainstay of mass transit. The efficacy of the metro could be gauged by the fact that during rush hours, the frequency of the metro improved to four-minute interval between each arrival.

Add to this, the surface transport. The buses running on electric pantographs complement the metro in a pollution-free manner. In order to make vehicular pollution even less, transport authorities in Beijing have limited the number of private cars on the roads by auctioning registration numbers. This has ensured that not everybody and anybody has been able to add to the vehicular sprawl and pollution.

Comparatively, not long ago, Delhi and Beijing were neck-to-neck in handling pollution but this is now a thing of the past. Beijing today stands way ahead — not as much in clean air as it is in its awareness and efforts to clean up its air. Thanks to the 'air purity first' attitude, ambient air quality in Beijing has started to improve steadily; whereas pollution levels in Delhi are rising.

In 2017, the yearly average concentration of PM 2.5, that is the particulate matter with a size of 2.5 microns or less, in Beijing was less than half as that of Delhi. In addition to this, Delhi is also surging ahead of Beijing in yet another unflattering area. The number of "very unhealthy" days, or the period when the pollution levels are very high, is also exceeding four times that of Beijing.

Beijing has now embarked on a fight against pollution and is setting an example for other nations to follow. This, the city has been able to do because of a firm resolve and its air pollution policy. For instance, when the great smog hit central, northern and eastern China in January 2013, it prompted the Chinese Government to launch a comprehensive action plan to tackle air pollution. It was based on a regional approach that identified key polluted regions, such as Beijing-Tianjin-Hebei for a time-bound action plan. It set specific pollution reduction targets and defined

'10 measures' to guide the development of regional action plans. Based on these 10 measures, China's Ministry of Environmental Protection issued implementation rules for Beijing-Tianjin-Hebei region and surrounding areas. Accordingly, Beijing's Government formulated action plans that included setting specific targets, such as restricting the total number of vehicles in the city to six million by the end of 2017, reducing coal consumption by 80 per cent till 2020 and meeting annual average PM 2.5 concentration of micrograms per cubic meter (µg/m³) by 2017.

Beijing is implementing these measures quite seriously. For instance, in 2017, the quota for new vehicles was fixed at 150,000 cars, with 60,000 allotted only to fuel-efficient cars. In 2018, this quota was reduced to 100,000, annually. Similarly, in 2017, coal consumption was reduced to 11 million tonnes as Beijing closed all its big coal-fired power stations. Besides, Beijing has also enforced stringent norms to control industrial pollution. In 2016, its environmental watchdog imposed fines totaling $21.8 million. It has also undertaken a massive greening programme. During the past five years, about 4,022 hectares of urban green spaces have been created.

To effectively reduce Beijing's air pollution, surrounding provinces, such as Tianjin, Hebei, Shandong, Shanxi and Inner Mongolia coordinated and implemented a joint action plan. A combination of Beijing's own action plan and those of its surrounding regions has paid off. In 2017, Beijing recorded 226 blue-sky days having good air quality, compared to just 176 in 2013. In the Beijing-Tianjin-Hebei region, PM 2.5 levels decreased by about 30 per cent between 2013 and 2017. This has helped Beijing meet the PM 2.5 target it had set for itself in 2013.

The ongoing bad air days in Delhi are a reminder that we need to learn our lessons from the fight Beijing is giving to air pollution.

Congress preparing for RaGa's mega show in UP

PREETAM SRIVASTAVA ■ LUCKNOW

Confident of a good show by party candidates in the ongoing Assembly poll in five states, Congress chief Rahul Gandhi has now planned to extensively tour Uttar Pradesh by the year-end and galvanise the party cadres and leaders for the 2019 Lok Sabha polls.

Sources said Rahul would address at least one rally in all five zones, including a grand rally in Lucknow. The Congress mandarins were reportedly busy chalking out a programme for the Congress president with the focus on regional parties — the Samajwadi Party (SP) and the Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) — to not underestimate them.

"Even as we were seriously looking for a grand alliance for next Parliament elections, both Akhilesh Yadav and Mayawati were regularly targeting us or our leaders to drive home the point that the Congress had lost ground in UP," quipped a senior Congress leader referring to some recent speeches of Akhilesh and Mayawati.

Referring anonymity, the Congress leader said both the SP and the BSP were trying to harm the Congress in the ongoing Assembly polls in Central States but the results will show that the Congress is the only party which could dislodge the BJP from the country.

"Once we prove our mettle in these ongoing polls, Rahul Gandhi will start extensive tour of UP to further impress that the Congress was as strong in this large State as it was in other States and the party could be not taken lightly," the Congress leader stressed.

The leader said besides chalking out other programmes for Rahul like roadshows, panchayats, chaupal, the party brass is planning some big rallies. The leader also revealed that while announcing rallies of Rahul Gandhi in mid-December, Congress leaders will not take names either of the SP, the BSP or other outfits but will highlight the motive of rallies to expose Prime Minister's role in Rafale fighter jet deal, rising prices and corruption issues.

"The focus will also be on failure of the Central Government in fulfilling promises made by Narendra Modi during the campaigning for 2014 Parliament elections. Besides, the Congress rallies will aim to clearly send out the signal to the SP and the BSP that our party is the leading force to defeat the BJP in the 2019 poll. Hence, if they want to support the Congress in its 'remove BJP' mission, they should align with it to form a grand alliance," he said.

BJP, Congress make space for defectors in Rajasthan

PTI ■ JAIPUR

Former Union Minister Jaswant Singh's son Manvendra Singh is not the only leader to have switched loyalties in Rajasthan ahead of the December 7 Assembly polls.

Between them, the Congress and the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) have fielded 11 candidates who have changed sides.

Voices of dissent are now being heard within both parties over "sidelined" leaders crossing over to get a chance to contest. Manvendra Singh quit the BJP, citing the treatment handed out to his father who was denied a party ticket in the 2014 Lok Sabha election.

He is now contesting for the Congress against Chief Minister Vasundhara Raje from her stronghold Jhalrapatan.

The ruling BJP alone has fielded seven defectors, including six from the Congress and one from the Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP). BJP nominees Mahesh Pratap Singh from Nathdwara, Ram Kishor Saini from Bandikui, Mamta Sharma from Pipalda, Kalpa Singh from Ladpura, Rajendra Bhamu from Jhunjhunu and Ashok Sharma from Rajkhera crossed over from the Congress to the saffron side.

Abhinesh Mehrishi defected from the BSP and will contest for the Ratangarh seat, now held by BJP minister Rajkumar Rinwa. Congress president Rahul Gandhi, who said in August he will make sure that party workers have their say and no "parachute candidate" gets nominated, also seems to have changed his mind.

His party has given tickets to at least four defectors. Rajasthan State Congress president Sachin Pilot said the decisions were taken by the party high command on a case-by-case basis.

Those who managed to get a Congress ticket just days, or even hours, after leaving the BJP include Harish Meena, Habib-ur-Rehman, Manvendra Singh and Sona Devi Bawri.

Dausa MP Harish Meena quit the BJP a day before the Congress released its first list and has been fielded by the party from Deoli-Uniara.

BJP MLA from Nagaur, Habib-ur-Rehman, also quit the BJP a day before the list was

BJP committed to building Ram temple in Ayodhya: Shah

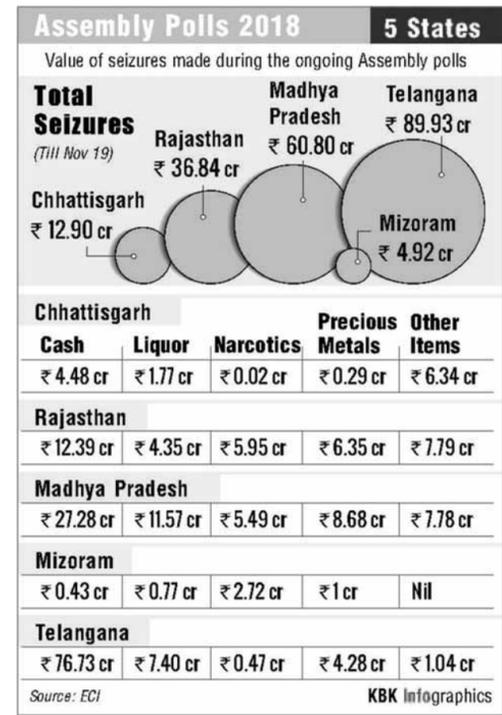

PTI ■ JAIPUR

BJP president Amit Shah on Wednesday reiterated that his party was committed to building a Ram temple in Ayodhya and it would not change its stand.

He also excluded confidence of forming next government at the Centre in 2019 with a majority higher than that of the present one despite the Congress' bid to forge a grand alliance. Shah made the remarks while interacting with youths at a function here. He targeted the Congress and asked youths and party workers to ensure BJP's victory in the State for its unhindered progress.

"The BJP is committed to building the Ram temple in Ayodhya," Shah said, adding there was no question of diluting or changing the party's stand. The BJP president, however, said the matter was in the Supreme Court and the party wanted a 'nyayik samadhan' (judicial resolution) of the dispute.

Bru refugees to vote in Mizoram's Mamit: Official

Aizawl: The Election Commission (EC) has decided to hold polling for Bru refugees in Mizoram's Mamit district, even as the leaders of the tribal community maintained that they fear for their safety in their home State.

The place of voting for 11,232 Bru voters, who are residing in neighbouring Tripura, has been a bone of contention, leading to the replacement of the then chief electoral officer, SB Shashank, less than two weeks ahead of the election to the 40-member House.

Shashank had been accused of facilitating voting by Bru voters in the relief camps of Tripura.

"We have been informed by the Election Commission that the polling for the Brus must be arranged at Kanmnum village inside Mizoram territory. We have started our preparations for that," an official in the CEO office said.

Kanmnum is an interstate border village between Mizoram and Tripura. A written order to this effect is likely to be received by Mizoram CEO Ashish Kundra in a day or two, the official said.

"In the last three years, there was no revision of electoral rolls. This time we did it.

The Bru refugees are registered in nine Assembly seats and we'll place different voting machines accordingly at the special booth in the village," he said.

Kundra had on Tuesday visited Naisingpara — the largest Bru camp in Tripura — to meet the refugees and inform them about the EC's decision.

An election official, who accompanied the CEO to Tripura, said the Bru leaders claimed that the voter turnout from the community might be zero if the EC did not change its decision to hold polling in Kanmnum.

"Kundra tried explaining to them that the decision was taken by the Election Commission, but the Bru refugees said they fear for their lives in Mizoram. They also cited various reasons, including bad-road condition, to justify their demand for polling-booth arrangement in the relief camps," he added.

The six camps of the Bru refugees are located between 2-10 km from the interstate border between Tripura and Mizoram. The highest number of Brus has been registered in Mamit district, which has Hachhek, Dampa and Mamit seats, with 14 per cent of the total voters being refugees.

It is followed by Kolasib district, with 3.5 per cent of its total voters being Brus. The district has Tuirial, Kolasib and Serlui Assembly seats. In Lunglei district, less than one per cent of the total voters are Bru refugees.

Earlier this month, the EC had removed Shashank as the state chief electoral officer, accepting the demands of civil society groups, NGOs, student organisations and political parties. The agitators organised dharnas in front of the CEO's office against Shashank's reported move to facilitate voting by Bru voters in the relief camps of Tripura.

Me Too: Alok Nath booked for rape

Law catches up with on-screen 'sanskari babu' 19 years after he violated a lady television writer-producer

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

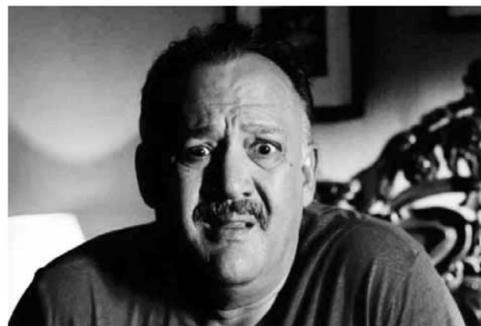

Nearly six weeks after television writer-producer Vinta Nanda went to town accusing him of sexually violating her 19 years ago, veteran actor Alok Nath — known his on-screen "Sanskari Babuji" image — was on Wednesday booked for alleged rape and unnatural sex on the basis of a complaint lodged against him by Nanda.

Acting on a formal complaint lodged by Nanda against the veteran actor on October 17, the Oshiwara police station registered an FIR against 62-year-old Alok Nath under sections 376 (rape) and 377 (unnatural sex) of Indian Penal Code (IPC).

Confirming the development, a senior police officer investigating the case said: "Alok Nath has been booked for rape under sections 376 and 377 of IPC."

After writing a long, heart-wrenching Facebook post on October 8 alleging that Alok Nath had sexually violated her 19 years ago, Nanda had lodged a complaint with the Oshiwara police station on October 17. In her complaint, Nanda had alleged that she had raped by the actor after spiking her drink. "The victim's statement was recorded formally by police on Tuesday evening," Nanda's lawyer Dhruvi Kapadia said.

Expressing her satisfaction over the development, Nanda said in a statement: "The moment I penned the truth on Facebook on 8th October 2018, it felt like I had released myself from the prison of fear. Today, I am glad the FIR has been finally lodged. I trust the Mumbai Police."

"I know that when things have finally come this far, justice will prevail. I have full faith and confidence in the country's judiciary," Nanda added.

It may be recalled that in her lengthy Facebook post that she wrote on October 8 amid a series of allegations of sexual harassment made by prominent women as part of a "Me Too" movement unleashed in the social media, Nanda did not actually name Alok Nath but said that "the predator in question here is the actor par excellence who is known as the most #Sanskari (Cultured) person in the film and television industry."

Nanda, who subsequently confirmed that it was Alok Nath whom she had referred to in her post, had stated: "I have waited for this moment to come for 19 years...He was an alcoholic, shameless and obnoxious but he was also the television star of that decade, so not only was he forgiven for all his bad behaviour, many of the guys would also egg him on to be his worst". She had also alleged that the actor even harassed the show's lead actress who was not interested in him.

Recalling the events that followed after she had left a party at Alok Nath's house at 2 am 19 years ago, Nanda wrote: "I started to walk home on the empty streets... Midway I was accosted by this man who was driving my own car and he asked me to sit in it and said he would drop me home. I trusted him and sat in his car.

"I have faint memory after that. I can remember more liquor being poured into my mouth and I remember being violated endlessly. When I woke up the next afternoon, I was in pain. I hadn't just been raped, I was taken to my own house and had been brutalised.

"I couldn't get up for my bed. I told some of my friends but everybody advised me to forget about it and move on," she wrote and went onto narrate some more unpleasant experiences with Alok Nath subsequently.

On his part, actor Alok Nath initially dismissed Nanda's charge against him as "absurd" as he "made her what she is". "Kuch to log kahenge (People will say something). Neither I am denying this nor do I agree with it. It (rape) must have happened, but someone else would have done it. Well, I do not want to talk much about it. As for the matter, if it has come out, it will be stretched," Alok Nath had told ABP News.

However, a week after Nanda wrote a Facebook post accused him of raping her under sedation, Alok Nath filed a civil suit against writer-director Vinta Nanda in a city suburban court here in connection with her rape accusations against him and demanded an apology and compensation of Re 1 as damages from him.

In another application filed separately before the Andheri Metropolitan Magistrate Alok Nath and his wife Ashu sought a direction to the suburban Amboli police station to take cognisance of the letter sent by them seeking defamation proceedings against Nanda.

Amit Shah among main conspirators of Sohrabuddin encounter: CIO

Mumbai: BJP chief Amit Shah and three IPS officers were the main conspirators behind the alleged fake encounters of Sohrabuddin Shaikh and Tulsiram Prajapati, the chief investigation officer (CIO) of the case claimed in a CBI court here on Wednesday.

CIO Sandeep Tamgade, who deposed during the ongoing trial, however, conceded that his claim was not supported by any documentary evidence in the charge sheet filed by him.

"From the investigation done by us, we found the principal conspirators were Amit Shah, DG Vanzara (former Deputy Inspector-General Gujarat Police), Rajkumar Pandian (SP, Intelligence Bureau) and MN Dinesh (IPS officer, Rajasthan Police)," Tamgade said.

All four have been discharged by the trial court in the case. Tamgade claimed he was not naming Shah and others without evidence, but admitted that the claim was not supported by any documentary evidence in the supplementary chargesheet filed in the case, he said.

Tamgade, then Superintendent of Police (CBI), had prepared a supplementary chargesheet in the Sohrabuddin case and the main chargesheet in the Tulsiram case. Both cases are being tried together before special CBI judge SJ Sharma here.

To a question by the defence lawyer, Tamgade said he also had evidence to conclude that Sohrabuddin Shaikh and his partner Prajapati were "used" by Amit Shah, then Minister of State for Home in Gujarat, for firing at the office of an Ahmedabad-based builder.

He had interrogated Shah, marble trader from Rajasthan Vimal Patni, and Rajasthan minister Gulabchandra Kataria in the case, he said. PTI

BJP: Will continue our battle till Kumaraswamy Govt is brought down

Bengaluru: Declaring the beginning of its battle against the Congress-JD(S) coalition Government in Karnataka, the BJP on Wednesday said it would continue the fight till the HD Kumaraswamy-led administration is brought down and people get justice.

Attacking Kumaraswamy on farmers' issues, the state BJP chief and former Chief Minister BS Yeddyurappa claimed that the Congress too was regretting its decision to support him, just to keep BJP out of power.

"You speak about BJP that has 104 MLAs, lightly. Kumaraswamy, from December 10 Assembly session will begin in Belagavi. As a responsible opposition, it's our duty to keep before people your political drama and the developmental work you have done so far," Yeddyurappa said.

Addressing a protest meeting here, he said the BJP would organise a "huge" agitation by gathering over one lakh farmers, at Belagavi.

"For the last five months we kept quiet, with an intention to give time to the new Chief Minister, but now after six months- people are not ready to tolerate any more. We have given you enough time," Yeddyurappa said.

Alleging that the Kumaraswamy Government has failed on several fronts, he said "our fight has begun from today...Until we bring you down from power and send you home. Unless over 6.5 crore people of this State get justice, our fight will continue." PTI

It's Centre Vs State in Sabarimala

Union Minister insulted by Kerala Police

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ KOCHI

The Sabarimala Temple issue has become a Centre vs Kerala Government tussle by Wednesday as Pon Radhakrishnan, Union Minister of State for Finance, Surface Transport and Shipping disclosing at the shrine that a superintendent of police humiliated him while he was on his way to the shrine.

"I was told by the SP at Nilackel on Wednesday morning that I cannot go to Pamba by car and he asked me to go by the KSRTC bus. When I asked him politely, the SP raised his voice and shouted at me. Can this officer question the Kerala ministers like the way he shouted at me?" Pon Radhakrishnan told reporters after worshipping at the holy shrine.

The high-handed behaviour of Yatheesh Chandra, SP, was telecast live by news channels much to the embarrassment of the Kerala Police. By afternoon, the Kerala Government was in for more trouble as the High Court slammed it over the propriety of deputing officers with shady past at a holy place.

Radhakrishnan who reached Nilackel on Wednesday morning to offer prayers at the Ayyappa Temple was stopped by Yatheesha Chandra, superintendent of police from proceeding to the shrine in his personal car. "You cannot go to Pamba by car. You are allowed to travel only by the KSRTC bus, Minister," the SP told the Minister who listened to him with amusement.

When the Minister asked Chandra, why private vehicles were not allowed beyond Nilackel, 22-km away from Pamba, the latter said there were chances of landslides and hence no private vehicles were allowed. Undeterred by the restrictions, the Minister opted to travel by a KSRTC bus while the BJP leader AN Radhakrishnan who accompanied him said that the police officer could have showed some basic courtesy to the Union Minister.

"The SP told me that private vehicles are not allowed beyond Nilackel as part of a Master Plan the Kerala Government has prepared for Sabarimala. But it is clear that the Master Plan by the Kerala Government is to keep the devotees away from the temple," said Pon Radhakrishnan while speaking to reporters at Sannidhanam.

The Minister said he has been a regular pilgrim to Sabarimala since the age of five and has never experienced in the past this kind of hostility by the authorities. "The intention of the authorities is to make life difficult for the devotees. The principal them of Lord Ayyappa himself is unity and integration. But the police force in Sabarimala is working to destroy and demolish these unifying factors," said the Minister who added that he was like any other devotees and does not require any privileges which other devotees are not entitled to.

The Minister also decried the slapping of Section 144 at a place of worship like Sabarimala.

"See the empty places all over this shrine. This is the proof of public resentment over the Master Plan devised by the Kerala Government to keep Sabarimala inaccessible for devotees," said Pon Radhakrishnan.

Meanwhile, the Kerala High Court on Wednesday expressed its disgust and disapproval over the behaviour of police towards the devotees. "How come officers with criminal records have been deputed at a place like Sabarimala? The Inspector General Vijay Sachare and the SY Yatheesh Chandra have tainted career behind them. While Sachare is an accused in a custodial death case, Chandra figures in a case of assaulting women and children. Why have you deputed such officers at Sabarimala where people require services of benevolent officers and men?" asked Justices Ramachandra Menon and Anil Kumar who continued hearing petitions filed by devotees against alleged police cruelty.

TP Senkumar, former State Police Chief, who was eased out of office by the CPM Government lambasted the police and the Kerala Government over the unfortunate developments at Sabarimala.

"There are good officers and men in the police force who are well trained in crowd management. But the personnel posted at Sabarimala are of dubious nature. This is what we get when officers who are familiar with looking after the children and grandchildren of ministers are posted as police chides," Senkumar said.

BJP leader, 71 others granted bail

Pathnamthitta: A court here on Wednesday granted conditional bail to 72 people, including BJP general secretary K Surendran, who were arrested in connection with the Sabarimala temple row.

Surendran along with two others had been arrested on November 18 from Nilackel as he tried to proceed to the Lord Ayyappa Temple despite being advised by police personnel against visiting Sabarimala due to law and order issues.

The 69 others were arrested after they held a nama japam (chanting Lord Ayyappa mantras) inside the shrine complex late on Sunday, defying prohibitory orders. IANS

Mamata to induct new Mayor for Kolkata

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

In a major development, the Trinamool Congress is known to have taken procedural initiatives to amend the civic laws in order to induct a "seasoned, senior, able and experienced" person as the new Mayor of Kolkata, sources said.

The new development comes after sitting Mayor Sovan Chatterjee was asked to quit his Mayoral chair by Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee. The Mayor — a key aide of Banerjee for past 30 years — who was also doubling up as Fire and Housing Minister suddenly resigned on Tuesday after being reprimanded by Banerjee for lack of performance.

According to inside sources, the Chief Minister is planning to induct either

Firhad Hakim or Arup Biswas two of her trusted ministerial colleagues in Chatterjee's place. As the present law does not for an outsider — who is not a councillor — to be appointed as Mayor the State Government is likely to table a new law in State Assembly that will make provisions for non-councillor to be inducted on the post. "Much like the parliamentary law the amended law will provide for the new person to be elected within six months of one's appointment on the post," a Trinamool Congress MLA said.

Chatterjee who conceded that he had been asked to tender his resignation by the Chief Minister however did not resign on Wednesday.

"I have been asked to resign by the Chief Minister. Though I have not resigned today I will do so at an appropriate moment," he said, adding he "still respect Didi as my mother."

Growing differences between the Mayor and the Chief Minister earlier saw him losing a key organisational post of South 24 Parganas district party president.

The Chief Minister had told him several times about paying more attention to his work and cut down on the time he was spending with a woman who was not his wife. The Mayor, who does not live in his house for close to a year now, has also filed for divorce.

According to sources the Chief Minister had been angry with the Mayor as reports of his extra-marital affairs was bringing the party to disrepute, sources said.

Kerala's Congress MP passes away

Thiruvananthapuram/Kochi:

Senior Congress leader MI Shanavas died on early Wednesday at a private hospital in Chennai, Tamil Nadu after a prolonged illness. He was 67.

The Member of Parliament, who represented the Wayanad constituency twice — 2009, 2014, in the Lok Sabha, breathed his last around 1 am. He had undergone a liver transplant on November 2.

His mortal remains were brought to Kochi in the afternoon and kept for public homage. The funeral will be held on Thursday at Kochi.

Congress president Rahul Gandhi described Shanavas as a "much loved and respected member" of the Congress family. In a tweet, he said "With the passing of Shri M.I. Shanavas, two term Lok Sabha MP from Wayanad, Kerala, the Congress family has lost a much loved and respected member. My thoughts & prayers are with his family & friends in this time of grief."

Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan along with senior congress leader and former Chief Minister Oommen Chandy and Opposition Leader Ramesh Chennithala condoled the death.

Former Defence Minister, AK Antony, KPCC President, Mullappally Ramachandran, Chennithala and former KPCC president VM Sudheeran, were among the hundreds of party workers and leaders who paid homage as the body was brought to the State. PTI

BJP slams demand for Parrikar's resignation, says Nehru too was ill in his last years in office

Panaji: The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) on Wednesday slammed the Congress for demanding Goa Chief Minister Manohar Parrikar's resignation, saying that India's first Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru too was ill in his last years in office.

"Our late Prime Minister Parrikar, in the last three years of his tenure, was ill. He was suffering from paralysis and could not function as a Prime Minister ought to. At that time, our leaders, including Atal Bihari Vajpayee, or the Jan Sangh did not take out a morcha to his house and demand his resignation, as we saw in Goa," State BJP president Vinay Tendulkar said at a Press conference in Panaji.

The Congress on Tuesday organised a march to Parrikar's private residence, demanding that he resign as Chief Minister within 48 hours.

Parrikar is suffering from advanced pancreatic cancer, and has not been seen in public for several months now.

When Nationalist Congress Party leader Sharad Pawar was serving as Agriculture Minister in the erstwhile Congress-led United Progressive Alliance government, neither the Congress nor the BJP demanded his resignation, despite the fact that the Maharashtra politician was abroad for cancer treatment.

"Sharad Pawar was suffering from cancer and was being treated abroad, but the BJP did not make it an issue and the Congress did not drop him from the Union Cabinet either," Tendulkar said.

Parrikar is suffering from advanced pancreatic cancer and has been in and out of hospitals in Goa, Mumbai, New York and Delhi for nearly nine months. He returned from New Delhi's AIIMS on October 14 and has not moved out of his private residence for any official event since.

Maharashtrawadi Gomantak Party chief Deepak Dhavalikar also joined the opposition chorus demanding that the Chief Minister give up the chair immediately. IANS

MUZAFFARPUR SEX SCANDAL

Court remands two Brajesh Thakur aides in 5-day CBI custody

PTI ■ MUZAFFARPUR

Two close aides of Brajesh Thakur, the prime accused in the Muzaffarpur shelter home case in which the girl inmates of the home were sexually abused, were remanded in a five-day CBI custody by a court here on Wednesday.

The special court hearing cases filed under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act passed the order, declining the Central Bureau of Investigation's (CBI) request for a seven-day custody of Madhu and Ashwani Kumar — who allegedly posed as a doctor — and posted the matter to November 26 for further hearing.

Madhu, who was grilled by the police on Tuesday afternoon, was arrested on Wednesday morning and made to undergo medical tests at the Sadar hospital, before being produced before the court, along with Ashwani, who was arrested the previous night. Madhu, who handled many businesses of Thakur, had told reporters on Tuesday that she was not hiding but did not appear before the probe agency as she was never named as an accused nor was a warrant issued against her.

She had also claimed that she knew nothing about the goings on at the Balika Grih (shelter home for girls), was "privy to no secrets" and refuted the media reports that she used to liaison with influential people to promote Thakur's NGOs, newspapers and other businesses.

Kumar, who was arrested from his in-laws place in Fatehpur village under the Kurhani police station in the district, did not have any medical background.

He learnt how to administer injections while sitting in the clinic of his father, a doctor, at Kurhani, about 30 km from Muzaffarpur town.

Ro-Ro ferry vessel stuck mid-sea, towed to safety by tugboats

Ahmedabad: The Ro-Ro ferry vessel, which started transporting people and vehicles between Ghogha in Saurashtra and Dahej in south Gujarat last month, came to a standstill mid-sea due to engine trouble on Wednesday afternoon, officials said.

The vessel, which was carrying over 400 passengers and over 100 vehicles at the time of the incident, was safely towed to Ghogha port by tugboats, a Government official said.

"The Korean-made ship called 'Voyage Symphony' remained stationed in the Gulf of Cambay for around one hour before it was towed to Ghogha port by tugboats," said chairman-managing director of Indigo Seaways Pvt Ltd (ISPL), Chetan Contractor.

ISPL, a Surat-based ferry operator, and the Gujarat Maritime Board (GMB) had entered into an agreement to run the Roll On-Roll Off (Ro-Ro) ferry service on the Public Private Partnership (PPP) model. This ferry service is also called as Ro-Pax (Roll On-Roll Off Passenger), as the ship carries both vehicles as well as passengers.

"While coming to Ghogha from Dahej, the captain of the ship noticed that the engine got overheated. For the safety of the passengers, the captain had decided to stop the engine when the ship was around 3 nautical miles (5.5 km) away from Ghogha port," contractor said.

"The ship remained stationed in the sea for around one hour. Then it was towed to the Ghogha port by tugboats, which were sent from the port. Our technicians are now carrying out an inspection of the engine to find out the cause of the problem," he added.

According to a senior official of the GMB, the ship was carrying 461 passengers and 114 vehicles. "We have been told by the operator that the engine of the ship got overheated. Along with the company, the GMB will also carry out an inspection of the ship before giving a green signal to resume the operations," a senior GMB official said. PTI

Sensex drops 275 pts, Nifty slips below 10,600

PTI ■ MUMBAI

The BSE benchmark Sensex extended losses for the second session on Wednesday by declining over 250 points on heavy selling in IT, tech, metal and auto stocks amid weak global cues.

Besides, fresh foreign fund outflows further hurt trading sentiments. However, crude oil's fall to one-year low in the global market on excess supply concerns, capped the fall in the indices.

The 30-share, after rising briefly to 35,494.25 at the outset, quickly slipped into the negative terrain in line with a weak trend at other Asian markets and touched a low of 35,112.49.

However, it pared early losses on emergence of buying after a higher opening of European shares. The index closed 274.71 points, or 0.77 per cent, down at 35,199.80. The gauge had lost 300.37 points Tuesday.

Also, the broader NSE Nifty, after shuttling between 10,562.35 and 10,671.30 points, finally settled 56.15 points, or 0.53 per cent down at 10,600.05.

Sentiments took a hit after broader Asian markets weakened, following a renewed sell-off on Wall Street Tuesday as energy shares dropped after crude oil prices plunged to a 13-month low amid weak earnings and US-China trade disputes, fuelling worries about economic growth, brokers said. "Wednesday's action accentuates the recent divergence we have witnessed between India and advanced economies. While the Nasdaq Composite is down 7.2 per cent in the past month and the S&P 500 is down 4.6 per cent, the Nifty50 is up 2.8 per cent in the same time," said Sunil Sharma, Chief Investment Officer, Sanctum Wealth Management.

During the day, midcaps rallied strongly while the Nifty ended lower. Separately, the action in PSU banks and financials also suggests that market fears around liquidity and credit rollovers are abating, he added. Persistent fall in technology stocks globally, and rupee appreciating against the dollar in the past few days, are the key factors fuelling the negative sentiment in IT stocks, brokers said.

Stocks of software services exporter such as TCS, Infosys, Wipro and Tech Mahindra were the worst hit on the bourses with shares falling up to 3.55 per cent. Other laggards were PowerGrid, RIL, Bajaj Auto, Tata Steel, M&M, Hero MotoCorp, Vedanta, NTPC, IndusInd Bank, L&T, ONGC, HDFC Ltd, ITC Ltd, ICICI Bank, HUL, Bharti Airtel and Coal India, falling up to 2.77 per cent.

Among the gainers, shares of private lender Yes Bank was the top performer, climbing 2.83 per cent after it reassured that the recent resignations bear no impact on the CEO selection process and that efforts are underway for mutual resolution with co-promoter Madhu Kapur and family.

Axis Bank, Adani Ports, SBI, Asian Paints, Maruti Suzuki, Sun Pharma, Tata Motors, HDFC Bank and Kotak Bank also ended higher with gains up to 2.20 per cent. Shares of aviation and oil marketing companies surged due to sharp drop of nearly 7 per cent in global crude oil prices. Spicejet, Jet Airways and InterGlobe rose up to 5.63 per cent.

Shares of state-run oil marketing companies such as IOC, HPCL and BPCL, gained up to 1.76 per cent. Brent crude, the oil prices international benchmark, fell 6.92 per cent to $62.17 a barrel on Tuesday on excess supply concerns. Sector-wise, the BSE IT index emerged biggest loser by plunging 2.92 per cent, followed by teck 2.47 per cent, power 1.04 per cent, metal 0.78 per cent, capital goods 0.58 per cent and FMCG 0.26 per cent, oil&gas 0.12 per cent and auto 0.08 per cent.

In contrast, realty, health-care, consumer durables, bankex, PSU and infrastructure ended higher, rising up to 1.53 per cent.

WhatsApp appoints Abhijit Bose as India Head

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Popular messaging app WhatsApp on Wednesday named Abhijit Bose as its India Head, meeting one of the key demands made by the Indian Government.

Bose, who will join the messaging platform early next year, will build WhatsApp's first full country team outside of California and will be based in Gurugram, WhatsApp said in a statement. Bose and his team will focus on helping businesses, both large and small, connect with their customers, it added. "WhatsApp is deeply committed to India and we are excited to keep building products that help people connect and support India's fast-growing digital economy," Matt Idema, Chief Operating Officer of WhatsApp, said.

As a successful entrepreneur himself, Bose knows what it takes to build meaningful partnerships that can serve businesses across India, he added.

He joins WhatsApp from Ezetap where he has served as co-founder and CEO. Founded in 2011, Ezetap is an electronic payments company backed by top-tier Venture Capitalists.

The appointment comes at a time when the Facebook-owned company has been under tremendous pressure to put in place a mechanism to curb fake messages on its platform, that incited mob fury. The Government has been pressing WhatsApp to develop tools to combat fake or false messages, and also identify message originators.

Apart from the traceability request, the government had asked WhatsApp to set up a local corporate presence and appoint a grievance officer to address complaints. WhatsApp has recently appointed a grievance officer for India.

Following multiple incidents of mob-lynching across the country, the government had slapped WhatsApp with two notices, with the second one warning that it will treat the messaging platform as an abettor of rumour propagation and legal consequences will follow if adequate checks are not put in place.

Birla flags concerns on liquidity, high spectrum payment to Govt

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Kumar Mangalam Birla, Chairman of Vodafone Idea Ltd, has flagged concerns about severe liquidity crunch in the telecom sector and high spectrum payments at a recent meeting with Telecom Minister Manoj Sinha, an official said. Telecom sector has been battered by falling tariffs, eroding profitability, and mounting debt, in the face of stiff competition triggered by disruptive offerings of Reliance Jio, owned by richest Indian Mukesh Ambani.

Birla, who heads Vodafone Idea — the country's largest mobile operator, raised the issues during a meeting with Sinha, which was also attended by Telecom Secretary Aruna Sundararajan. A senior telecom Ministry official who did not wish to be named said that the meeting took place recently where Birla talked about the severe liquidity crunch in the market, and underscored the need for relief.

The talks were informal and the Department of Telecom will take a view on the issue once a formal representation is made, the official told PTI. Vodafone Idea Ltd declined to comment on an e-mail query sent to the company on the issue.

The Vodafone Idea Chief is said to have expressed concern over ₹30,000 crore that is locked up on account of GST payment under 'reverse charge mechanism'.

Under the GST 'reverse charge mechanism' provision, registered dealers are required to make tax payments in case he procures goods from unregistered businesses. The provision was applicable from July 1, 2017 till October 12, 2017. With companies facing trouble in implementing the provision, the GST Council has decided to keep RCM in abeyance till September 30, 2019.

Amongst other concerns highlighted by Birla was the high upfront payment for radiowaves, the official said adding he has sought that period of payment for spectrum purchases be increased to 18 years from the current 16 years, and favoured a moratorium. High levies in the telecom sector and the recent hike in import duty also figured in the talks, said the official but did not elaborate.

A bruising tariff war sparked by the entry of Reliance Jio into the telecom sector with free voice calls and SMS, bundled with cheap data has led to pressure on margins of incumbents which have scrambled to match competition. Earlier this month, at its maiden earnings announcement as a joint entity, Vodafone Idea Ltd reported a consolidated loss of ₹4,973 crore for the September quarter and announced a fund infusion of ₹25,000 crore to help it take on brutal competition. Bharti Airtel too has reported a drop in consolidated net profit for the 10th straight quarter as losses on mainstay India business widened due to pricing pressure from aggressive competition. Overall, its consolidated net profit of ₹118.8 crore in July-September represented a drop of about 65 per cent from Rs 343 crore in the year ago period.

Airtel's loss from India operations (before exceptional items) mounted to ₹1646.4 crore in the second quarter of the current fiscal compared to about ₹940 crore in the preceding three-month period. In fact, Moody's Investors Service recently placed Bharti Airtel's rating on review for downgrade, following low levels of profitability and expectation of weak cash flow.

Aviation, oil marketing cos rise on lower global crude oil prices

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Shares of aviation and oil marketing companies surged up to 6 per cent Wednesday due to sharp drop in global crude oil prices. The scrip of SpiceJet soared 5.63 per cent, Jet Airways 2.74 per cent and InterGlobe Aviation 1.41 per cent on the BSE.

Among OMCs, shares of IOC rose by 1.76 per cent, HPCL 1.17 per cent and BPCL 1.08 per cent. Crude oil fell to one-year low in the global market.

Indian shrimp exports to see mixed results this year: Report

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Indian shrimp exports is likely to have mixed results this year as demand declines in the European Union and exports to the US continue to grow, according to a report. "Looking at the future, the story of Indian shrimp exports show mixed signs. On one hand, increased competition and decreased EU demand seem to be depressing sales. On the other, analysts expect Indian shrimp exports to the US to grow by 15-20 per cent this year," according to a report by US-based fintech company Drip Capital.

Since many exporters are not currently hedged against currency fluctuation, rupee depreciation has allowed exporters to keep losses to a minimum, it added. "Depreciation of the Indian rupee against the dollar will likely support Indian exporters against those from other markets. As per industry analysts and trade sources, this could boost shrimp exports to the US this year. However, the entry of competing export countries in the global shrimp trade is also a factor to take into account.

Renault keeps Ghosn as CEO despite arrest in Japan

AP ■ TOKYO

France's Renault says it has decided to keep its CEO Carlos Ghosn on despite his arrest in Japan on allegations that he misused assets of partner Nissan Motor Co. And misreported his income. Renault's board of directors announced late Tuesday that the No. 2 at the company, Chief Operating Officer Thierry Bollore, would temporarily fill in for Ghosn. "Mr. Ghosn, temporarily incapacitated, remains chairman and chief executive officer," a statement from Renault's board said.

But while Ghosn deals with his legal issues in Japan, Bollore will have the same authority to run the company as the CEO, it added. Renault's board said its decision was made with an eye toward keeping the company on a steady course "to preserve the interests of the group and the continuity of its operations." Ghosn runs Renault, Nissan and the Renault-Nissan-Mitsubishi alliance that he helped turn into the world's biggest car-seller last year, and both France and Japan want to keep it intact. Renault's move to appoint a temporary leader was in line with a demand by the French government, which owns a 15 per cent stake in the automaker. Finance Minister Bruno Le Maire had said earlier Tuesday that Ghosn was not in position to lead the Renault Group while fighting the accusations in Japan. The French automaker said after an emergency meeting of its board of directors in Paris that it would further consolidate its alliance with Nissan. The two automakers have a partnership, also, with smaller automaker Mitsubishi Motor Corp.

Iran denounces latest US sanctions as 'fruitless'

AFP ■ TEHRAN

Iran's foreign ministry denounced the latest US Treasury sanctions as "fruitless and senseless" in a statement issued on Wednesday. "These fruitless, senseless and ineffective sanctions... Will undoubtedly never achieve the desired outcome of their designers and enforcers," it said. "Sooner or later they will become aware of the futility of their schemes." Washington slapped fresh sanctions on Tehran Tuesday, accusing it of creating a complex web of Russian cut-out companies and Syrian intermediaries to ship oil to Damascus, which in turn bankrolled Hezbollah and Hamas. The US Treasury said in a statement that Tehran, "working with Russian companies, provides millions of barrels of oil to the Syrian Government" of President Bashar al-Assad. "The Assad regime, in turn, facilitates the movement of hundreds of millions of US dollars to the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps - Qods Force for onward transfer to Hamas and Hezbollah," it said, referring to Iran's main foreign military operations unit.

Maruti launches second-generation Ertiga

MD says policies needed to be studied around fuels

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The country's largest carmaker Maruti Suzuki has launched the second generation of their people carrier the Ertiga. The new Ertiga is based on Suzuki's new 'Heartec' platform that also underpins the Baleno and new Swift and according to company officials meet all safety and regulatory norms in India. The Ertiga also features the new K15 petrol engine that was introduced alongside the new Ciaz a few months ago.

The people carrier segment has seen a lot of activity with the new Mahindra Marazzo also recently being launched. The new Ertiga is larger in all respects to the outgoing model and like the Ciaz features Suzuki's new 'Smart Hybrid' system with a new battery pack that gives the vehicle better economy. Prices range from ₹7.44 lakh to ₹9.5 lakhs for the petrol manual. The Diesel version that features the tried and tested DDiS engine ranges from ₹8.84 to ₹10.9 lakh with the petrol automatic that has a four-speed torque converter transmission costs between ₹9.18 to ₹9.95 lakh.

Kenichi Ayukawa, Maruti-Suzuki India Limited Managing Director told The Pioneer at the sidelines of the launch that the news that the Environment Pollution Control Authority (EPCA) was exploring the possibility of banning diesel vehicles from operating on severe pollution days needed more thought. "The automotive industry is not running away from the problem but the fact is that people need to travel, they need transport", he said and added that he hoped the authorities realised the benefits of hybrid vehicles in the short-term and promoted their use. "We are also committed to electri-

Won't 'abandon' Saudi over Khashoggi killing: Trump

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump has defended his decision not to hold Saudi rulers accountable in the killing of dissident journalist Jamal Khashoggi, saying maintaining strategic ties with the kingdom and keeping the global oil prices down were in the best interests of America.

Trump said there will be no punishment for Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman for the killing of Jamal Khashoggi.

The death of Khashoggi, a longtime insider turned critic of the crown prince, Mohammed bin Salman, and a resident of the US, has spurred a wave of international anger against Saudi Arabia and its rulers.

The US last week imposed sanctions on 17 individuals of Saudi Arabia for serious human rights abuse resulting from their roles in the killing of Khashoggi at the kingdom's consulate in Istanbul on October 2.

"Because it's America first to me," Trump told reporters, adding that despite Khashoggi's murder, the US will remain a "steadfast partner" of Saudi Arabia to ensure its interests as well as those of Israel and all other partners in the region.

"It is our paramount goal to fully eliminate the threat of terrorism throughout the world," he said in a statement that immediately drew sharp criticism from his political opponents. "I'm shocked that President Trump said there will be no punishment for Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman for the killing of Jamal Khashoggi," Democratic Senator Dianne Feinstein said as she and several other lawmakers announced their plan to bring in legislations to block arms sales to Saudi Arabia.

Responding to questions from reporters at the White House before leaving for Florida to spend his Thanksgiving holidays, Trump said his decision was all about America first.

"We're not going to give up hundreds of billions of dollars in orders and let Russia, China and everybody else have them. It's all about — for me — very simple, it's America first," he said.

"Saudi Arabia, if we broke with them, I think your oil prices would go through the roof. I've kept them down. They've helped me keep them down. Right now, we've had low oil prices, or relatively I'd like to see it go down even lower.

"But I think that it's a very simple equation for me. I'm about making America great again and I'm about America first," Trump argued.

He denied the allegations that this was at the expense of human rights.

"No, I'm not saying that at all. If you look at Iran... And you look at what they're doing, they are a terrorist nation right now. Although, I must tell you, they're a lot better right now than they were when I took office. When I took office, they were heading in a very, very bad direction.

"At some point, things very positive, frankly, could happen with Iran, but we also need a counterbalance. And Israel needs help also. If we abandon Saudi Arabia, it would be a terrible mistake," Trump warned.

The President refuted The Washington Post's allegations that by taking such a decision, he was putting his personal and commercial interests ahead of national interests.

RUSSIA PROBE Trump's lawyers submit written answers to Mueller

AFP ■ DUBAI

Washington: Lawyers for US President Donald Trump on Tuesday said they have submitted his written response to questions posed by Special Counsel Robert Mueller, who is investigating allegations of Russian interference in the 2016 presidential election and the Trump campaign's collusion with them.

"The President today answered written questions submitted by the Special Counsel's Office. The questions presented dealt with issues regarding Russia-related topics of the inquiry. The president responded in writing," Jay Sekulow, the President's counsel, said in a statement. Trump's personal lawyer Rudy Giuliani also issued a statement.

"It has been our position from the outset that much of what has been asked raised serious constitutional issues and was beyond the scope of a legitimate inquiry. This remains our position today," he said in his statement.

"The President has nonetheless provided unprecedented cooperation. The Special Counsel has been provided with more than 30 witnesses, 1.4 million pages of material, and now the president's written responses to questions. It is time to bring this inquiry to a conclusion," Giuliani said.

Interpol picks S Korea's Kim as president over Russian rival

AFP ■ DUBAI

Interpol announced on Wednesday that Kim Jong-yeon of South Korea had been chosen as its new president, beating a Russian official whose candidacy had unnerved Western nations.

The US-backed Kim, acting president of the global police body, was picked at a meeting of delegates from member nations in Dubai to replace Meng Hongwei, who went missing in his native China in September.

Beijing later said Meng resigned after being charged with accepting bribes.

There had been growing calls within Western nations for Interpol to reject Russian candidate Alexander Prokopchuk — a Russian interior ministry official and current Interpol Vice-President — over fears Moscow could abuse the role to target political opponents.

On Tuesday, US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo threw his weight behind Kim, who will serve out Meng's term until 2020.

"We encourage all nations and organisations that are part of Interpol and that respect the rule of law to choose a leader with integrity. We believe Mr Kim will be just that," Pompeo told reporters.

Kim Jong-yeon

cerns over Russia's previous applications for Interpol "Red Notices", or international arrest warrants, to target those who have fallen foul of the Kremlin. Interpol's president chairs its General Assembly while day-to-day operations are handled by the organisation's Secretary general Juergen Stock.

In an open letter this week, a bipartisan group of US senators said choosing Prokopchuk would be like "putting a fox in charge of a henhouse".

"Russia routinely abuses Interpol for the purpose of settling scores and harassing political opponents, dissidents and journalists," they wrote.

Harriett Baldwin, a minister of state at the British foreign office, told parliament on Tuesday that London would support Kim's bid. Anti-Kremlin figures had also raised concerns, including Alexei Navalny, the Russian opposition leader who has been repeatedly jailed by authorities.

"Our team has suffered from abuse of Interpol for political persecution by Russia," Navalny wrote on Twitter.

"I don't think that a president from Russia will help to reduce such violations."

US National Security Council spokesman Garrett Marquis echoed the endorsement for Kim.

"As recent events show, the Russian government abuses INTERPOL's processes to harass its political opponents," he said on Twitter.

The controversy also comes amid security concerns over accusations of Russian agents attempting to poison an ex-spy in Britain and trying to hack the network of the global chemical weapons watchdog.

Ukraine, deeply at odds with Moscow over its annexation of Crimea and support for separatists, threatened to pull out of Interpol if Prokopchuk prevailed.

Lithuania also said it would consider withdrawing from the network.

Russian presidential spokesman Dmitry Peskov dismissed the US senators' letter as a "vivid example" of an attempt to interfere in the vote.

'China wants to make a deal very badly'

Washington: China "very badly" wants to have a trade deal with the US, President Donald Trump has said ahead of a meeting with his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping in Argentina on the sidelines of the G-20 Summit.

China and the US are currently locked in an ongoing trade war as each country has introduced tariffs on goods traded between each other.

Trump has promised to fix China's "longtime abuse of the broken international system and unfair practices". Over the past six months, Trump has imposed additional trade tariffs on import of Chinese products worth $ 250 billion. He said another tariff of equal amount is in the pipeline.

Trump and Xi are scheduled to meet on the sidelines of the G-20 summit in Argentina on November 30 and December 1. President Trump said that the US was doing very well with China.

"We're doing very well with China. China wants to make a deal very badly. They might not say that to you, but they want to make it very badly," Trump told reporters.

UAE court sentences British student to life for spying

AFP ■ DUBAI

A United Arab Emirates court sentenced British student Matthew Hedges to life in jail on Wednesday after convicting him of spying, a family spokesperson said.

"We can confirm that he was sentenced to life in prison," the spokesperson told AFP.

"The hearing lasted less than five minutes, and his lawyer was not present." British Foreign Secretary Jeremy Hunt said he was "deeply shocked and disap-

He was granted temporary release on October 29 but constantly monitored until Wednesday's court hearing, only his third since his arrest. His wife Daniela Tejada, who had campaigned vigorously for his release, had said last month she could not allow herself to get too excited by his bail until he was fully free.

Committed to protect democracy despite personal abuse: Lankan Speaker

PTI ■ COLOMBO

Sri Lanka's Parliament Speaker Karu Jayasuriya said on Wednesday that he was committed to protect democracy despite personal abuse and slander thrown at him by the government led by disputed Prime Minister Mahinda Rajapaksa.

In a statement, Jayasuriya said the baseless allegations are levelled against him "through regular press conferences by political parties that failed to show their majority in parliament in the proper manner and through political protests organised with the participation of their party members can be observed."

Jayasuriya also filed a complaint with the Criminal Investigations Department (CID) over a fake letter circulating on social media claiming it was sent by him to the Chief Justice, the Colombo Gazette reported. The letter quoted Jayasuriya as requesting the opinion of the Chief Justice on if President Maithripala Sirisena was in a situation where he could not exercise, perform and discharge the powers, duties and functions of his office, the paper said.

Jayasuriya said he had never sent such a letter and has requested the CID to investigate the fake letter.

Sri Lanka is witnessing a political crisis since President Sirisena abruptly sacked Prime Minister Ranil Wickremesinghe and installed ex-strongman Rajapaksa in his place on October 26.

British, EU leaders to meet as Brexit deadline looms

AP ■ LONDON

British Prime Minister Theresa May told skeptical lawmakers on Wednesday that rejecting her divorce deal with the European Union would mean uncertainty and division, before a meeting with European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker to help finalize the Brexit agreement.

The U.K. and the European Union agreed last week on a 585-page document sealing the terms of Britain's departure, but are still working to nail down agreement on future relations before EU leaders meet in Brussels on Sunday to rubber-stamp the package.

But May is under intense pressure from pro-Brexit and pro-EU British lawmakers, with large numbers on both sides of the debate opposing the divorce deal. Brexiters think it will leave the U.K. tied too closely to EU rules, while pro-Europeans say it will erect new barriers between Britain and the bloc, its neighbor and biggest trading partner.

May fended off a barrage of criticism from both opposition and government legislators Wednesday during her weekly Commons question-and-answer session dominated by Brexit.

One lawmaker, Andrew Rosindell, urged her to ditch the plan and remove "the tentacles of the EU over our cherished island nation."

May replied that "we want to ensure we continue to have a close trading relationship with the European union" after Brexit.

She said the alternative to the agreement was either "more uncertainty, more division or it could risk no Brexit at all." As May flew to meet Juncker, some aspects of the future relationship agreement remained unresolved. Spain has said it will vote against if Gibraltar's future isn't considered a bilateral issue between Madrid and London.

Spanish Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez said Tuesday that his government "cannot accept that what will happen to Gibraltar in the future depends on negotiations between the U.K. and the EU."

But May reassured British lawmakers that "we will not exclude Gibraltar from our negotiations on the future relationship." German Chancellor Angela Merkel said on Wednesday that she hoped Spanish reservations could be overcome before Sunday's summit. But, she added, "I can't say how we will solve this issue."

Aid group: 85,000 children may have died of hunger in Yemen

AP ■ CAIRO

A leading international aid group said on Wednesday that an estimated 85,000 Yemeni children under the age of 5 may have died of hunger and disease since the outbreak of the country's civil war in 2015.

Save the Children based its figures on mortality rates for untreated cases of severe acute malnutrition, or SAM, in young children. The United Nations says more than 1.3 million children have suffered from SAM since a Saudi-led coalition went to war with Yemen's Houthi rebels in March 2015.

The aid group said its "conservative estimate" was that 84,701 children may have died, based on historical studies that find that 20 to 30 percent of untreated cases lead to death. Save the Children says it calculated the figure based on the number of cases reported in areas where aid groups were unable to intervene.

"For every child killed by bombs and bullets, dozens are starving to death and it's entirely preventable," said Tamer Kirolos, Save the Children's Yemen director. "Children who die in this way suffer immensely as their vital organ functions slow down and eventually stop."

The war has given rise to the world's worst humanitarian crisis. Three-quarters of Yemen's people require life-saving assistance and more than 8 million are at risk of starvation. Tens of thousands of people are believed to have been killed in the fighting. The Associated Press has reported from areas of Yemen that are on the brink of famine.

Save the Children blamed the widespread starvation on a Saudi-led blockade that was tightened a year ago after the Iran-aligned rebels fired a ballistic missile at the Saudi capital, Riyadh.

The charity also cited recent fighting in and around the port city of Hodeida, a lifeline through which Yemen imports some 70 percent of its food and humanitarian aid.

It said commercial imports through the rebel-held port have fallen by more than 55,000 metric tons a month — enough to meet the needs of 4.4 million people. Save the Children said it had been forced to bring supplies for the northern Yemen through the southern port of Aden, slowing aid deliveries.

The overwhelming poverty in Yemen, the Arab world's most impoverished nation, has compounded the situation.

India fall short by hit

Australia hold their nerve tight in rain-hit game to beat India by 4 runs and take lead

PTI ■ BRISBANE

A sloppy India failed to get an ideal start to the Australia tour, losing the rain-hit opening T20 International by four runs at the Gabba on Wednesday.

India first faltered in the field, letting Australia score 158 for four after rain shortened the contest to 17 overs a side. Glenn Maxwell was the star batsman for Australia, hammering 46 runs off 24 balls.

The 45 minute rain stoppage meant India were set a revised target of 174 runs in 17 overs.

Opener Shikhar Dhawan smashed a sublime 76 off 42 balls in the run chase before Dinesh Karthik came up with a pulsating 30 off 13 balls towards the end but India still finished agonisingly short on 169 for seven.

It was a morale boosting win for Australia, who have endured a dismal run of late in limited overs cricket.

Dhawan got India off to a quick start, putting on 35 off 25 balls for the opening stand with Rohit Sharma (7).

The latter was caught at long on off Jason Behrendorff (1-43) in a bid to accelerate his strike-rate. In keeping with the strategy used during the T20I series in England, KL Rahul (13) came out to bat at number three.

Dhawan and Rahul put on 46 runs for the second wicket, but it was mostly down to the left-hander's belligerence. He hit ten fours and two sixes overall, and reached his ninth T20I half-century off only 28 balls.

Rahul though was patchy at best and struggled for timing. He was stumped off Adam Zampa (2-22) in the ninth over, with the leg spinner also accounting for skipper Virat Kohli (4) who never really got going coming down at number four.

Zampa should have had a third wicket but he dropped a return chance from Dhawan (on 65). The batsman enjoyed another life at 74, when substitute Nathan Coulter-Nile put him

Rishabh Pant (20 off 15 balls) and Karthik with a mountain to climb.

They nearly achieved the impossible, putting on 51 off a mere 24 balls, toying around with the Australian bowling. But what is becoming increasingly frustrating with Pant, he played yet another loose and unnecessary stroke, throwing his wicket away.

It left Karthik to finish off things, but he found the going tough without enough support from the other end. With 13 needed off 6 balls, Krunal Pandya (2) and Karthik holed out off consecutive deliveries off Marcus Stoinis (2-27).

This was after Maxwell hit four sixes in a whirlwind knock before rain came, after Chris Lynn scored 37 runs off 20 balls to help Australia recover from a slow start.

India had won the toss and opted to bowl on a surprisingly green wicket. Kuldeep Yadav was picked ahead of Yuzvendra Chahal as expected, while the hosts also included a spinner in Adam Zampa and left out medium pacer Coulter-Nile.

Bhuvneshwar Kumar (0-15) and Jasprit Bumrah (1-21) got India off to a good start but Aaron Finch (27) pulled things back a bit. Khaleel Ahmed (1-42) got the initial breakthrough as D'Arcy Short (7) was caught at long on. The left-arm pacer proved expensive thereafter.

Kuldeep took a sensational catch running back to dismiss Short, and from there onwards, he had a marked influence on the game.

Later he also picked up 2-24 in his four-over spell. He dismissed Finch and then sent back Lynn as well, thus reducing Australia to 75-3 in the 11th over.

Apart from Yadav's stunning effort, India were rather poor in the field. Skipper Kohli had dropped Finch in the fourth over, a straight chance spilled at cover, and then miss fielded later on as well.

Ahmed too dropped Stoinis (33 not out off 19 balls) late in the Australian innings, while Maxwell should have been run-out.

Finch took advantage of the reprieve and put on 40 runs off 26 balls with Lynn for the second wicket.

But it was Maxwell who stole the show with his belligerent hitting as Australia crossed 150 in the 16th over. He put on 78 runs off 37 balls with Stoinis as Indian bowlers proved expensive even before the death overs began.

Krunal Pandya had a forgettable day with both bat and ball. He went for 0-55 in his four overs before rain intervened, sucking out momentum from the Australian innings and leaving them only five deliveries on resumption of play.

Bumrah bowled cleverly, conceding only five runs after the disruption, while Australia still finished with a challenging total on the board.

Shikhar Dhawan smashed a sublime 76 off 42 balls while Dinesh Karthik came up with a pulsating 30 off 13 balls towards the end but India still finished agonisingly short on 169 for seven

PANT'S DISMISSAL WAS TURNING POINT, FEELS KOHLI

PTI ■ BRISBANE

Young Rishabh Pant's dismissal in the penultimate over "changed things", according to India skipper Virat Kohli after Australia won an exciting first T20 International by four runs on Wednesday.

Australia made 158/4 in 17 overs but India were given a target of 174 in the same number of overs owing to the Duckworth-Lewis method in the rain-hit game.

India looked on course with Pant and Dinesh Karthik adding 51 runs in 3.5 overs before the burly keeper-batsman was dismissed trying to play a cheeky shot off Andrew Tye.

"It was a close game, exciting one for the crowd to watch and for the players as well, was a see-saw battle. We started well with the bat, fumbled in the middle overs, in the end we thought we'll win with Pant and Karthik but it changed again with Pant's dismissal," Kohli said at the post-match presentation.

Kohli lauded opener Shikhar Dhawan's power-packed 76 off 42 balls after a prolonged lean patch that started in England and continued till the second last match of the home series against West Indies.

"He's (Dhawan) a very strong player at the top of the order. He hasn't got a T20 hundred yet, but the way he plays it really benefits the team. That's how it goes in the game. What we can do is learn from them and get back better," the skipper said.

Kohli feels closely-placed remaining two games on November 23 and 25 could be a good thing for the team as it won't be fretting over the loss for a long time.

"On the day, if we can have three-four guys to stand up for the team, that's what we want. Don't have much time to think of things, which can be a good thing as well as a bad thing."

Australian T20 captain Aaron Finch said: "Thought the boys played really well, especially in the middle overs with the bat."

On a lighter note, Finch admitted that he never understands the equations of Duckworth-Lewis method.

Man of the match Adam Zampa was delighted at having picked up the prized wicket of Virat Kohli.

"Really good feeling. Virat being the player he is, just thought he was a big wicket at the time. Getting him out, I was really excited."

'MISSED CHANCES COST'

Opener Shikhar Dhawan on Wednesday said poor fielding cost India the game after the visitors lost by four runs via D/L method at the Gabba.

Dhawan smashed a sublime 76 off 42 balls in the run chase before Dinesh Karthik came up with a pulsating 30 off 13 balls towards the end.

"It was a good game of cricket. It was a very close match and both the teams played really well. We got a lot of confidence from this game and will take it forward to the next game."

"Of course missed chances in the field had their own impacts. The dropped catch and missed run out opportunity but that is part and parcel of the game and we took it in our stride. We conceded a few extra runs (in the middle overs) but otherwise we played well," said Dhawan after the loss.

India were poor in the field on Wednesday. Skipper Virat Kohli and Khaleel Ahmed dropped catches while couple of run out opportunities were even wasted.

Chasing the stiff target, Dhawan held the Indian innings together but got out at a crucial juncture. Leg-spinner Adam Zampa (2/22) had earlier left the middle-order struggling, dismissing both KL Rahul and Kohli.

"I knew we had to score some big runs in those overs and I was looking for that when I got out. He (Zampa) was influential in this game and his statistics were very good. We needed momentum and he took wickets that moment. From there the game got a bit more away from us when Rahul and Kohli were dismissed. He bowled well and with a lot of control," said Dhawan.

"It was a game where we had to target all the bowlers. We didn't have much time (in the match). We tried to target him (Zampa) but he got us out. Next game, we will have better plans against him and implement them in the middle," he added.

Rishabh Pant and Karthik put on a rollicking stand of 51 runs from 24 balls thereafter and almost dragged India to victory.

But the final turning point in the see-saw battle came when Pant was holed out off Andrew Tye.

Dhawan praised Pant, who was playing at this big ground for the first time.

"Playing at such big grounds is about thinking and experience. We have played here before as well and that experience is quite handy. Rishabh is a youngster and batted here for the first time. So, for him it was vital experience and he came here first time, and played such a knock," he said.

"Brisbane is different because there is extra bounce here. The wicket seemed a bit in the starting as well and so I think we played well. It was an interesting game that we lost by only four runs," he said.

Australia have, thus, taken a 1-0 lead in the three-match series. The second game will be played in Melbourne on Friday.

"Melbourne is like a homecoming. I live there, my family lives there, so I am looking forward to enjoying there. There is no extra motivation as such. I just want to go and enjoy myself," Dhawan signed off.

RANJI TROPHY

DELHI FACE CHALLENGE AFTER HYD POST 460
Hyderabad: Ravi Teja struck his maiden first-class hundred, helping Hyderabad post a daunting 460 against Delhi on day two of the Group B match. Hyderabad, resuming the day at 232 for three, continued to frustrate Delhi who are here without their key bowlers including Navdeep Saini and Ishant Sharma. Opener Tanmay Agarwal could only add eight runs to his overnight 112 before being bowled by Delhi pacer Kulwant Khejroliya. Teja then took the innings forward with an unbeaten 115 off 206 and got help from Chama Milind, who was run out for 58. Pacers Khejroliya and Gaurav Kumar took three wickets each for Delhi and did not concede too many runs. Hyderabad were all out for 460 in 170.3 overs. In response, Delhi were 21 for no loss in seven overs at stumps, facing a stiff challenge of taking the first innings lead. Sarthak Ranjan and Hiten Dalal were batting on six and 14 respectively.

KERALA ON TOP AGAINST BENGAL

Kolkata: Opener Jalaj Saxena hit a second successive century of the season to put Kerala in the driver's seat against Bengal in their Elite Group B match. Starting at overnight 14 with the team's score at 35 for one, Saxena stood tall in a glittering 143 from 190 balls (21x4s, 2x6s) as Kerala surpassed Bengal's first innings score of 147 in the opening session before notching up a sizeable 291 in 83 overs. In their second essay, Bengal lost opener Koushik Ghosh (1) cheaply to be five for one in 2.2 overs — still needing 139 runs to avoid a first innings defeat with two complete day's play remaining. Saxena not only held the Kerala innings together en route to his 14th first class century, but counter-attacked Mohammed Shami with both his sixes coming against the Australia-bound India pacer. BCCI had cleared Shami to play the match subject to him bowling not more than 15-17 overs in an innings. But the star pacer ended up bowling 26 overs returning with 3/100 that aptly summed up Bengal's misery after they opted for a green top in their effort to register the season's first win.

KARNATAKA, MUMBAI IN CLOSE FIGHT

Belagavi: Arch-rivals Karnataka and Mumbai were in a close fight for their first innings honours in their Group A game. Mumbai did well to restrict the hosts to 400 all out, built mainly around rookie Krishnamurthy Siddharth's anchoring 161 after Karnataka resumed at their overnight 263 for 4. Shivam Dubey ended up with a highly creditable seven-wicket haul for 63 runs. In reply, Mumbai made 99 for 2 by stumps on day two, still 301 runs in arrears, with Jay Bista cracking an unbeaten 69. In Nagpur, veteran Wasim Jaffer (153), skipper Faiz Fazal (151) and wicket-keeper batsman Akshay Wadkar (102 not out) steered reigning champions Vidarbha to a massive 529 for 6 declared against Baroda who replied with 41 for no loss. In Raipur, Chhattisgarh managed to restrict Railways to 132 for 4 after putting on 300 in their first innings.

TN REACHES 122 FOR 3 AGAINST ANDHRA

Ongole: Tamil Nadu made 122 for 3 in 50 overs at stumps on the second day after bowling out Andhra for 216 in the first innings of the Elite Group 'B' match. Resuming at 198 for 8, Andhra's innings ended for the addition of 18 runs. Tamil Nadu was provided a solid start by the experienced Abhinav Mukund and M Kaushik Gandhi as the duo added 70 runs for the first wicket. Mukund stroked some fluent boundaries, before being the first man to go for 31. Kaushik Gandhi (38, 7x4) went 10 runs later while skipper Baba Indrajith fell for a 28-ball 7. Baba Aparajith (27 batting, 80 balls, 4x4) and N Jagadeesan (8 batting) ensured that the visiting team didn't suffer any further losses before bad light brought an early halt to the day's proceedings.

BAILEY BATS FOR WADE'S INCLUSION

PTI ■ BRISBANE

Former Australia captain George Bailey feels in-form Matthew Wade must be in the mix when Australia select their playing XI for the opening Test of the four-match series against India beginning at Adelaide on December 6.

The 30-year-old Wade, who played his last Test against Bangladesh at Chittagong last September, has scored 412 runs at an average of 82.4 to lie at the third place in the list of Sheffield Shield run-scorers.

Wade had kept wickets for Tasmania in Shield games against Western Australia and Queensland but since then has played as a batsman.

The wicket-keeper batsman has hit five fifties with his top-score being a 137 in Tasmania's loss to Victoria that earned him a man-of-the-match honour.

Given his run of form, Bailey believes he should be in the mix when selection chairman Trevor Hohns zeros in on Australia's team for the four-Test series opener that starts on December 6.

"I can't speak highly enough of the way he's going about his cricket, Bailey was quoted as saying in the 'Sydney Morning Herald'.

"If you're looking at those numbers he'd very much have to be in the mix for a Test. He's a good fielder, just pick your six best batters, simple.

"He's in complete control of his game."

Bailey also pointed out how Wade has scored some valuable runs with the tailenders and adapted to a different kind of pitches across the country.

"That's been the most pleasing thing this year. I don't think we've given him great situations on a number of occasions," Bailey said.

"His ability to go through the gears, to start his innings, accelerate when he needs to."

Meanwhile former great Shane Warne feels Australia has a lot of great cricketers and it is time to replace under-fire batting coach Graeme Hick with one of them.

He was critical of Hick, under whom, Australia have lost their last 18 matches out of the past 24 matches in all formats, including the loss to South Africa in the one-off Twenty20 on Saturday.

Taking care of your hair

Taking care of your hair becomes more important when you have a coarse, thin, curly, treated, damaged, dry, dull hair, says Team Viva

No matter how strong and beautiful your hair appear to you, pay careful attention to the hair care regimen to grow and keep them at its best. Taking care of your hair becomes more important when you have a coarse, thin, curly, treated, damaged, dry, dull and oily hair. This section has hair care tips for all the hair types. Besides, you get to know more about natural hair care and remedies for hair care. Know about the effective ways of hair care at home using natural ingredients. Also get the expert tips on natural hair care.

Your hair needs a rest from everything it endures during the week. Experts recommend using the weekend to let your hair recuperate. Let your hair air dry if possible, avoid heated styling products, and keep it out of a ponytail or tight headband to avoid any unnecessary pulling on the hair shaft.

If your scalp is itchy, dry, and flaky, it could be because you aren't rinsing all of the shampoo out. Or it could be because you have something called dandruff. If you have dandruff, when you scratch your head, the skin flakes off and lands on your clothes. It's really noticeable if you're wearing dark colours. You can use a special shampoo that your parents can buy at the store. There are many to choose from. Talk to your doctor or a skin doctor (dermatologist) to help you decide on the best shampoo for you.

How often you wash your hair depends on what it's like and what you do during the day. If your hair gets oily quickly, it needs to be washed more often. Straight hair can get oily quickly. Very curly hair is not as oily and can be washed less often. If you have very curly, kinky or thick hair, it might be too dry and look frizzy. Using a conditioner after you wash your hair might help, but that doesn't make it healthier. Remember, hair is already dead, but conditioner can make it look better.

Protein is the building block of hair, because hair is keratinized protein. Hair is considered a non-essential tissue, so the body doesn't send protein to hair follicles first—it focuses on essential organs, like the heart or liver—but if you're eating enough, the body will be able to distribute protein everywhere it's needed. Another nutrient you need? Iron. It's an energy source for the hair. It's a mineral that the hair needs. In fact, iron deficiency has been linked to female patterned hair loss. Don't worry if you're a vegetarian—you can still work protein into your diet.

Even though you condition your hair after every wash, nothing quite works as good as deep conditioning. Every once in a while wash your hair with shampoo, squeeze out the extra water and towel dry it. Then take generous amounts of conditioner and apply it right to the root of your hair. Use a broad toothed comb and run it through your hair to make sure the conditioner reaches everywhere. Now, pull them up and clip them together. Leave the conditioner in for anywhere between 10 minutes to an hour. Pull them down, rinse thoroughly and enjoy silky smooth hair.

A conditioner might work wonders for your hair but oil gives it certain minerals, vitamins and essential fatty acids that don't just strengthen your roots but also boost overall health of your hair. Coconut oil comes most recommended by hair experts and mothers! It can protect your hair from sun damage, dandruff and removes sebum build-up from hair follicles accelerating hair growth. You could also boil some curry leaves in coconut oil, strain the oil and apply. You could also use Chinese hibiscus flowers instead of curry leaves.

Do brush your hair each morning. This will help remove dust, dirt and loose scales. It also stimulates the blood supply and distributes sebum along the hair shaft. Don't use a brush on wet hair. Use a wide-toothed comb instead. Start at the ends, gently working your way up towards the roots. Do brush your hair at night before going to bed. If your hair is long, tilt your head forward and brush from the base of the head forward. Do allow your hair to dry naturally as often as possible. Use a highly absorbent towel to mop up excess moisture then finger dry.

Exposing hair to the sun during the hottest time of the day. Cover up and wear a hat instead and wash hair after swimming in chlorinated water. Never forget to clean your brushes and combs. Let them soak in warm, soapy water once a week. Remember to tone on a regular basis. Toning involves regular massage of the scalp. This stimulates the blood supply to the root of the hair follicle.

Nourish your scalp with oil twice weekly. This will help to soften and strengthen graying hair. Choose from almond, coconut or extra-virgin olive oil. Soak a cotton ball in the oil and dab on to the scalp, leave for half an hour then wash with very warm water. Finish with a cold rinse to flatten the cuticle of the hair. The result? Softer, smoother, manageable hair.

Wet your hair before stepping into the pool. When the hair shaft absorbs regular water, it helps negate the damaging effects of swimming in chlorinated water. Better still, wear a swimming cap. The hairs are fragile and due to which do not tie your hair back too tightly and never when it is wet. This stretches the hair shaft, causing it to break and split.

Eat foods rich in skin and hair enhancing essential fatty acids. By taking care of your diet, the state of your inner health will reflect in the condition of your hair. Be kind to yourself. Experts recommend using a blow dryer only for special occasions. At the end of your styling session, switch to cold air. This closes the hair shaft, leaving the hair smooth, glossy and shiny.

'We've to have gumption as actors'

Actress KAREENA KAPOOR KHAN said that actors or actresses have to have gumption to do whatever they feel like.

She said, "We hear about actresses being turned down for speaking up because we are in the film industry and a lot of reporting is done here. I am sure it's everywhere but today we have lot of opportunities and path-breaking actors, be it Radhika Apte and the girl in Sacred Games Kubra. We have girls who are fighting back and doing brilliant roles. We have to have gumption as actors that this is what we are going to do be it on any medium. An actor's colour, shape or size doesn't matter."

'It (Fraud Saiyyan) is a very interesting film, which is based on a true story. Comedy and humour are not forced deliberately in it. It seamlessly flows on screen. The character that I play in the film is one of those which every actor would want to play.'

—Arshad Warsi

Actor RAJKUMMAR RAO has completed shooting of Mihil Musale's Made in China. Announcing the schedule wrap, Rajkumar took to Twitter and wrote: "Schedule wrap for Made in China. What a fun shoot, can't wait to share it with you guys on the big screen." He also shared an image with his team. The film is hilarious take on a struggling Gujarati businessman and the bizarre journey he undertakes to become a successful entrepreneur. It also stars Mouni Roy.

De Niro splits from wife Grace

Actor ROBERT DE NIRO has split from his wife GRACE HIGHTOWER after more than 20 years of marriage. "Some times things don't work out the way you hope or want them to," said a source.

The actor married Hightower in 1997 after dating for a decade. They share two children together, 20-year-old son Elliott and six-year-old daughter Helen Grace.

This isn't the first time the two have separated. De Niro filed for divorce in 1999 and engaged in a custody dispute over their son. The two eventually smoothed things over and the divorce was never finalised.

In November 2004, the two renewed their vows in front of an A-list crowd such as Martin Scorsese, Meryl Streep, Ben Stiller, Tom Brokaw and others.

With a new doll in the shape of TAIMUR ALI KHAN, the celebrity branding of children seems to have gone to the next level, says TEAM VIVA

HONEY, THEY BLEW UP THE KID

The celebrity-obsessed times that we live in ensure that by extension, the children of people in the spotlight, too, are in the constant glare of the media and more importantly nurtured and grown into a legacy of continuing brand value. Particularly in India, where children are treated second to only god in domestic hierarchy, a dulara commands everybody's attention. Nowhere is this more apparent than in the recent manifestation of a doll in the likeness of a cuteness overload called Taimur Ali Khan. When producer Ashwini Yardi tweeted a photo and said that this was being sold in Kerala, it practically broke the internet. Coming after the 100 plus fan clubs dedicated to the two-year-old on social media, this was certainly the next level in obsession.

However, his father Saif Ali Khan seemed pretty amused as he said, "Maybe I should trademark his name... The least they could do is send me one! I am glad people are benefiting from him. I only ask God for his safety and happiness in return." Kareena on the other hand, did let the emotions of a mother peek out when she said, "Taimur can't run away from his popularity and neither can his parents. When I saw the doll, I wondered what was I supposed to say. But Saif pointed out that it is because people love him so much and such things are a blessing for him. There is so much genuine warmth for our son that it's bad to stop people from clicking his pictures or making his dolls. But they should understand that he is a two-year-old child and needs a normal life. Both Saif and I are struggling to give him that and will continue to do so without telling the media to back off, no matter how annoying it gets after a point. It's tough on him as it's on Saif and me."

Unwavering focus on a child born to celebrity parents is not something unheard of in the West. Within a week of being born, Princess Charlotte, the second child of Prince William and the Duchess of Cambridge Kate Middleton, was splashed on the cover of newspapers and magazines. In another month, a commemorative doll version of the little princess, priced at $100 and made by at least three different companies, appeared in the market. Some collectors had special "reborn" versions of baby Charlotte made, paying thousands of dollars where every vein and hair was perfectly in place.

But this was certainly not the first. The first commemorative doll was probably the Venus of Willendorf and other Venus figures discovered in Europe that are between 25,000 and 40,000 years old. In the 16th century, Margaret Lennox commissioned a painted portrait of her toddler granddaughter, Arabella Stuart, who many considered the rightful heir to Queen Elizabeth I. Incidentally, in the painting, the child holds tight to a small doll, which with its red hair and pale skin looks suspiciously like the Virgin Queen. But it was during the Victorian era that the production of commemorative dolls exploded. In the Western world, the birth of the middle class meant that disposable income was on the rise and dolls were no longer just for the wealthy to perpetuate their physical entity. Owning your own version of a real life idol connected you with the personality at an intimate level and could even be granted the value of a souvenir that could turn into a heirloom meant to be auctioned later.

WITHIN A WEEK OF BEING BORN, PRINCESS CHARLOTTE WAS SPLASHED ON THE COVER OF NEWSPAPERS AND MAGAZINES. A DOLL VERSION OF THE CHILD, PRICED AT $100, APPEARED IN THE MARKET

Says Ashish Chakravarty, chief creative officer, Contract Advertising, "This doll can be seen as a gradual progression from the obsession with Rajesh Khanna's shirts, Govinda's baggies or Aamir's cap. But the obsession with a kid is a first for sure in India. But then we aspire to get a part of the star dust and that is what can be seen here. Once there were the Madonna dolls. Even those of Michael Jackson. But the latter became such a superbrand and a leader of a pop cult that people followed the goings-on of his children, who became minor celebrities even without having done anything. Saifeena is a brand. The mother is the reigning queen of Bollywood and the father is both nawaab and new-age and currently has the entire internet fandom at his feet courtesy Sacred Games. Taimur is a physical manifestation of Saifeena. So it had to happen. Besides, the kid is real cute and draws an aww from everybody."

Remember the kid in the Murphy ad? Or the babies in the Johnson ads? Taimur takes us back to this old world of innocence that we desperately want to hold on to. The Murphy baby featured everywhere. Except Taimur, according to Neeraj Bassi, chief strategy officer and managing partner, Publicis India, comes with the halo of a pedigree. "For Taimur, the curiosity spirals because the paparazzi has limited access unlike his Western counterparts, who even have their social media profiles in place by the time they are born," he says.

Besides, the birth of celebrity children is part of another event in the star's brand persona. "Earlier, the celebrities themselves were protective of their children. Raj Kapoor's children did not interact with the public till the time they appeared in films. The late Sridevi, too, was really protective about her girls. But times have changed and now the extended life of a celebrity, umbra and penumbra taken together, are as much saleable. There's no aura about secrecy. Look at the way that everybody in Bollywood posts intricate details of the growing up years of their children and their naming ceremonies. Business today is dependent on social media hits and recalls. A doll company, therefore, sensed a business opportunity here. Taimur was the top choice because he is the most popular. I won't be surprised if the trend catches on and a clothes company markets a line of what Taimur wears," says Chakravarty.

However, there is a dark social turn to events that everybody overlooks. The Taimur doll imposes the idea of misplaced regality and aspiration among other regular children playing with the doll. Imagine Taimur arrayed between superhero dolls that kids love to play with. It is as if the childhood ideals themselves are part of a huge franchise.

Not only that, there's myth-making around him that can spin out of control vis-a-vis his real personality as he grows into adulthood. As Bassi says, "What we are doing to that kid's life is unfair as is setting unattainable benchmarks for regular kids. Taimur can't have a normal life as every action of his is being watched. His life is a performance art. In such a scenario, the star child gets fixated with that attention and develops personality problems in the long run. Heaven help him if he falls short of the towering expectations of him as an adult." Perhaps that's the reason why Saif himself is wary of Taimur becoming an actor. For if he fails to retain the same level of stardom, it is a crashing fall for anybody to take. If only we knew where to draw the line.

Urban twist to black comedy

As director NAYANA SAGAR adapts Joseph Kesselring's Arsenic and Old Lace, she tells CHAHAK MITTAL how every script needs vigorous editing to bring each character to life and keep the audience glued to the seat

When Arsenic and Old Lace premiered at Broadway in 1941, there were little gasps of breath and whoops of suppressed laughter around. Nobody could imagine getting away with black humour, a few maniacs and some murders on the stage in such a way, but it did turn out to be very very funny. It became Joseph Kesselring's legacy that is still re-incarnated and has been adapted by numerous directors.

Director Nayana Sagar brings in another adaptation of it with her own elements of eccentricities in the "absurdly gruesome yet gloriously funny comedy" play. "This is not the first time I have chosen dark comedy as the genre. The previous play that I directed was August Osage County. But this one is much lighter than that," she says.

However, why did she only choose Kesselring's play? "That's because it excited me and made me want to direct a new project. It is always about finding a subject which has crazy content in it. This time I wanted something lighter and more colourful than August Osage County. May be it was something like rejuvenation of the soul moving away from darkness to some light," says Nayana.

She finds that as per today's audience, it is also a kind of relaxation to their minds that when they come to watch a play, they don't leave with heavy hearts and a story that is so intense. This one has a lot of farce, slapstick, easy and laughable jokes, on which "may be in real life, you won't laugh out that loud. But here, you would because you are not in those circumstances. Someone else is."

No one would laugh if s/he finds herself/himself in a house full of dead bodies, but the "farical quotient" in the play would make them laugh at such nuances.

While the play has been adapted by many directors and theatre geeks, Nayana applauds the adaptation by Ranjit Kapoor, Ek Jaam Auntyyon Ke Naam or Auntyyon Ka Taykhana, which was "beautifully adapted."

The play, staged in the early 1940s, showcased an American English set-up. Ranjit's adaptation translated the verses to a complete Hindi one but in an Anglo-Indian setup. However, Nayana explains how she has tried to bring the Anglo-

Indian dialect in the play to "bring characters to life."

In Nayana's adaptation, set in the late 1980s sub-urban Bombay, the play revolves around two ladies of the D'Silva family of Vasai, who are habitual of killing old and lonely men who arrive at their doorstep looking for rental accommodation by tipping a pinch of arsenic in their red wine.

"Most of the stories that you hear, whether Italian, American, French, Dutch, Hindi or any other language, the stories are always the same. The emotions are universal. In Ranjit's adaptation, I didn't like the language, which was vintage and a proper Hindi in an Anglo-Indian setup from near sub-urban Bombay. I thought that Hindi is not something they speak properly in their common language. They always speak Hindi in fragments. Hence, I have been very sincere to the lingo of how they talk. Because only then the character becomes more believable. Just like the dialect in films like Julie and Amar Akbar Anthony," she says. The dialect should go like, "Hum toh yehi karega, Apun toh usko jaake bolega, Humne tumhara kitna wait kiya na baba." With such "into-the-skin" dialogues, the characters appear real. Hence, "I edit a lot," says Nayana.

She believes that the current audience doesn't have the "fursat" or the time to be glued to the stage. "They set their schedules considering that a play won't be more than an hour or 90 minutes. Hence, I feel that to transform a written play into a stage performance, a lot of improvement in the script and editing is needed. It should be made interesting but there shouldn't be any dilution of the existing plot. We don't have much scope to play but we can edit it to make it crisp, which I usually do too."

One of her directions were Yasmina Reza's God of Carnage, which was also made into a film, Carnage, by Roman Polanski starring Kate Winslet and Jodie Foster. Kate had revealed that Polanski gave the cast only a weekend to prepare for the scenes and all the dialogues to be enacted. This, Nayana feels, is one of the examples of immortality of theatre. She says, "We feel that theatre has not been patronised much. But that is a misconception because there is still a sizeable chunk of audience which finds theatre appealing."

She gives her own example saying that her visit to London is never complete without a visit to West End. "How can I miss going to West End and watching a play when in London? In every city, there are such theatre geeks who want to see live performances. Hence, the madness around theatre is never going to get diminished. It has been there for years and will stay for much more decades to come," says she.

The play stars actress Sohaaila Kapur, who is known for films like Daas Dev and Land of the Gods, as one of the four protagonists. Playing the role of an old maniac woman who murders people for social service was something that she had "never imagined about." She says, "It was a challenge to embody the role of someone who kills people and doesn't even regret doing that. The play can simultaneously make people laugh, wonder and also surprise, which is the beauty of this repertoire."

If we ask Nayana's inspiration behind her directions, for her, there would be no particular playwrights or directors that she follows. What appeals to her is "rather stories and something that can make someone glued to the seat for 90 minutes."

The play will surely be a "mesmerising experience" for the audience as she calls it. This comes from someone who has directed several plays by always adding her own new elements, just like she portrayed a Punjabi family of Delhi in her adaptation of God of Carnage, which was originally set up in a French backdrop.

(The play will be staged at 7pm at the Sri Ram Centre for Performing Arts today.)

'An artiste is always a struggler'

While singer RICHA SHARMA belongs to the old music school, she does not shy away from using technology to gather an audience, says C MITTAL

Singer Richa Sharma, who recently replaced compatriot Sona Mohapatra, as a judge on Zee TV's Sa Re Ga Ma Pa, believes that contestants remain strugglers in the industry despite the early exposure. "I have been a struggler and still remain one. So does the young talent here. You've got to be patient, therefore. As a young performer in Delhi, everyone waited for me to sing. In Mumbai, the scenario changed as I waited for everyone to hear me sing. It was an ocean of talent. Hence, an artist is always a struggler," she tells us.

And that's the one crucial lesson she is imparting to contestants on the show as she values the student-mentor bonding. "No matter who they are or where they come from, they become like our own kids in a few days as we become emotionally attached to them. They become our responsibility as well," says Richa, who finds herself transiting a flux in the music industry where stars rise and fall in days, depending on the fan following for peppy numbers, millions of YouTube hits, overnight born virtual sensations, self-made artists, remixes and remakes. She belongs to the old world which was once dominated by the father-son duo of SD/RD Burman and Kishore Kumar. "Arijit Singh's songs are the only ones which throw us back to the glorious era of love songs," she says. Similarly, she recalls that the Neeraj Shridhar-led band

Bombay Vikings, which was prominent in the mid-1990s, was the perfect example of how remixes and remakes should be composed and created. She says, "The way they recreated Woh Chali and Kya Surat Hai, brought a new spice to those old songs. They felt completely new yet so nostalgic. Now that's how remakes should be made."

However, the singer also applauds technology and social media in helping out young singers and aspirants, who have emerged on their own strength. She herself uses technology as a tool for gathering audience. "If I want to sing today, I don't need a composer or a lyricist to write a song for me. I can just open a social media app in my phone, go live and sing for the audience who wants to hear me. Who will wait for a new song when there is such instant gratification?" she asks.

Deputy Chief Minister, Govt of NCT Delhi, Manish Sisodia, released a book Veda-Tattvanusheelana written by Dr Asha Goswami, a Krishna scholar and prolific creative writer, at his residence. The author, who has been associated with a large number of publications, said the book in ten chapters highlights the importance of the Vedas and the Vedic Mantras for present-day life. It provides very informative knowledge to the present-day generation about their past heritage, and the basic truths associated with their favourite gods or goddesses such as Mother Durga, Rudra, Shiva and Vishnu.

INDULGE IN A TRIBAL EXTRAVAGANZA

Encapsulating the tribal ethos of India—Aadi Mahotsav, being held from November 16-30 in the capital—is the perfect platform for artisans and cultural performers from the marginalised communities to showcase their craft. The Managing Director of the Tribal Cooperative Marketing Development Federation of India (TRIFED), PRAVIR KRISHNA, in an interview with ANKITA SAXENA reveals the organisation's plan to further their revenue potential

TRIFED, an organisation of the Ministry of Tribal Affairs, hosts the 'Aadi Mahotsav' to provide an opportunity to the families of the tribal communities to display their products to a wider audience and increase their incomes. PRAVIR KRISHNA talks about the overwhelming response to this fair and how it is helping the tribes of India live a better life through this initiative. Excerpts from the interview:

How has the response been to Aadi Mahotsav?
The fair has become bigger in scale from last year and is much brighter and better. This year, there are around 1,000 tribal artisans from 27 states of India who are showcasing their skills, cuisine, culture, music and dances. It is the perfect way to showcase the tribal ethos and has already attracted around 80,000 people till now. There are over 250 stalls and the participants have already done business worth over ₹1 crore. We plan to organise around 200 such festivals all over the country in the coming time.

What is the objective of this fair?
The aim of Aadi Mahotsava is very simple—it is to provide the tribals with market access. These communities have some of the finest craftsmen and artisans but they are weak in marketing their products. They usually get stuck in the vicious net of the middlemen who buy these products at a very low cost from them and sell it in bigger markets at higher prices, thus robbing the tribals of the fair price for their products. We have tried to bring the producers closer to the big markets through this exhibition. To encourage them, we sponsor each participant by paying for their travel, lodging and even transportation of their goods. This is an important exhibition as the organisers do not seek to make any profit out of it, rather the earnings out of the sales here, all belong to the producers.

How else does TRIFED market

the tribal products?
We create opportunities for marketing of tribal products through establishing a network of TRIFED Indian retail outlets. We are on an expansion drive and have recorded a phenomenal leap from 29 retail store to 105 outlets. Our expansion has grown by 200 per cent and our procurement has grown by 375 per cent. We believe that the tribal community now needs to take the second step towards value addition to their raw materials in order to increase their incomes. We are also engaging with the e-commerce platforms and have tied up with players like Amazon, Snapdeal, Flipart and the government agency, GeM, to take the tribal products on the digital platform.

value to the tribal products?
We want to turn the tribal commerce on its head and this can be done by adding value to the raw materials the tribal communities procure from the forest. They are dependent on products like handlooms, artifacts made from metal, wood, bamboo and textiles, which we are promoting through retail outlets. The minor forest produce is however equally valuable and can be used to increase the incomes. For example, mahua when sold in the market, fetches a lower price than a squash made out of it, which adds around 100 per cent value to the raw product. Similarly, tamarind can be turned into a chutney or sauce to increase its worth five times and thus benefiting the community more. We want the tribal community to get at least 70-80 per cent of the total value chain instead of the current 20-30 per cent because of the middlemen. We are also in talks with the Ministry of Food Processing Industries to set up pilot projects in Maharashtra and Chhattisgarh for the same.

What is the TRIFED Van Dhan Brigade?
We feel that the opportunity of livelihood for the tribes is not to be provided to them by any gratis or support from the government. It is in fact, their right to trade as given by the Forests Rights Act and we are the vehicles to further this. The government is playing its role by identifying the tribes, training them to fine-tune their craft according to market needs, procuring the products and then distributing them. The TRIFED Van Dhan Brigade is our initiative to help the tribal communities achieve better lives. We have asked ISRO to help with satellite images to map the tribal areas. Also, in order to make this initiative successful, we have to decentralise the mechanism and use the district magistrate machinery to deliver the benefits to the right people in the remotest areas.

TAT is very pleased that Michelin has recognised this and has been helping to enhance the awareness among travellers from around the world." MARY, LOVLINA TARGET FINAL SPOT

Five-time champion eyes getting closer to record sixth Gold; Borgohain looks to enter maiden final

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Already assured of a record seventh medal at the Women's World Boxing Championships, celebrated MC Mary Kom would look to go one step closer towards her sixth Gold when she takes the ring in the 48kg semifinals here Thursday.

Out of the four Indian semifinalists, five-time champion Mary Kom (48kg) and Lovlina Borgohain (69kg) will take the ring on Thursday while Sonia Chahal (57kg) and Simranjit Kaur (64kg) will have their semifinal bouts on Friday.

The four Indians cannot get a better chance to emerge champions on home conditions, but a lot will depend on the celebrated Mary Kom, who have already become the most successful woman boxer in history of the championships by assuring herself of a seventh medal.

Undoubtedly, all eyes will be on the 35-year-old mother of three when she enters the ring at the KD Jhadav Hall for her semifinal bout against Kim Hyang Mi of North Korea.

The 'Magnificent Mary' had beaten Kim in their last meeting at the summit clash of the Asian Championships last year and the Manipuri veteran sounded confident of a win again.

"I am confident. I also know when to drop guard and when to attack. I have worked with the coaches and have a plan in place to counter her," said Mary Kom, after a strenuous practice session on Wednesday.

Mary Kom, who is chasing her sixth Gold, will draw her strength from the vast reservoir of nearly two decades of boxing while the North Korean's USP is her aggression and quick movement which was witnessed on Tuesday when she pummeled her South Korean opponent Chorong Bak.

Equally important will be Lovlina Borgohain's performance as the country would be looking at young pugilist to beat her Chinese Taipei opponent Chen Nien-Chin and progress to the final round. The welter-weight category (69kg) boxer had done extremely well throughout the championships and was particularly good against Australia's Kaye Frances Scott, a Commonwealth Games Bronze medal winner, in the quarterfinals.

The Assamese boxer will also get a chance to avenge her only loss to the Chinese Taipei opponent. Borgohain feels she has matured as a boxer and can think on her feet now.

"I was inexperienced last time when I took on her. But I now know how to tackle her. I did watch some of the video clips to know her style of boxing," said 21-year-old.

Two other Indians in fray, Sonia (57kg) and Simranjit Kaur (64kg) will turn out in their semifinals on Friday, and both were prepared for their respective bouts.

"I have beaten my North Korean opponent (Jo Son Hwa) once before.

MARY HAD BEATEN KIM IN THEIR LAST MEETING AT THE SUMMIT CLASH OF THE ASIAN CHAMPIONSHIPS LAST YEAR AND THE MANIPURI VETERAN SOUNDED CONFIDENT OF A WIN AGAIN

But both of us know each other's style. I am confident of winning because I have worked with the coaches on my strategies," said Sonia. Simranjeet added: "I have worked hard and am prepared well for my bout." In Thursday's semifinals, bouts in five weight categories — 48kg, 54kg, 60kg, 69kg and 81kg — will take place while the remaining five are slated for Friday.

Dipa eyes Olympic berth with good show at WC

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Indian gymnast Dipa Karmakar would be aiming to put behind the injury-marred disaster that was the Asian Games when she aims for a positive start to her Olympic qualification bid with the World Cup of artistic gymnastics in Cottbus, Germany from Thursday.

The four-day showpiece is part of an eight-event qualifying system under which the gymnasts will make the cut based on the aggregate of their top three scores.

The four-member Indian team, which also comprises B Aruna Reddy, Ashish Kumar and Rakesh Patra, will look to make it count with good performances.

Dipa, who finished fourth at the Rio Olympics, will be India's best bet in the tournament after clinching the Gold at the Artistic Gymnastics World Challenge Cup at Mersin, Turkey in July this year.

The 25-year-old from Tripura endured a poor comeback from injury in the Jakarta Asian Games where she had to pull out midway after her knee problem flared up again. Aruna, on the other hand, won a Bronze medal in one of the earlier world cups this year in the women's vault event in Melbourne and she too will fancy her chances.

Among the men, Ashish has been India's brightest with a Bronze in floor exercise at the 2010 Asian Games in Guangzhou, China.

He also won a Bronze and Silver medal at the 2010 Commonwealth Games in floor exercise and vault respectively.

Rakesh also had some decent performances this year, a fourth-place finish in the ring apparatus finals at the Commonwealth Games being the highlight. He also narrowly missed a medal at the Melbourne World Cup in February, finishing fourth.

The run-up to the event, however, has been chaotic with the showdown between the Sports Authority of India (SAI) and the de-recognised Gymnastics Federation of India (GFI) affecting the athletes. The bitter war between the two bodies led to the Indian gymnasts missing the world Championship in Doha last month.

In fact, ahead of the Cottbus event, the Sports Authority of India refused to bear the cost of Yogeshwar Singh and Pranati Das, while clearing the other four gymnasts to participate in the tournament.

This prompted Pranati and Yogeshwar to express their grievances to SAI in a letter early this month.

Politano's winner lifts Italy past USA

AFF ■ GENK

Late substitute Matteo Politano scored an injury-time winner to lift a new-look Italy to a 1-0 win over the United States in an international friendly in Genk on Tuesday.

Roberto Mancini's side had looked set for another goalless draw after crashing out of the Nations League with a 0-0 stalemate against Portugal in Milan on Saturday.

But Politano came on three minutes from time and slotted home in the 94th minute.

It got Italy belatedly off the mark in a match they had dominated but which demonstrated Mancini's side's difficulty converting opportunities into goals.

"We had so many chances, the important thing is that it was a good performance," said Mancini.

"It was the first time we were playing together, so we couldn't think of playing like the first half for 90 minutes. We got a little stretched as we pushed harder to find the breakthrough. I would have minutes for Domenico Berardi. "Sensi did really well, so did Kean and Grifo. Acerbi and De Sciglio impressed me too," said Mancini. "The Euro qualifiers are coming up next year, so we've had a few too many draws and defeats lately, here's hoping we get all victories." Federico Chiesa and Leonardo Bonucci missed early chances as Italy dominated the first half and let the United States have few opportunities. Ethan Horvath got his fingers to a curling Berardi shot from the edge of the box, and then got down low to keep out a Marco Verratti free-kick. Walker Zimmerman had a rare chance for the United States on 65 minutes from a free-kick, but home goalkeeper Salvatore Sirigu saved his header. With the clock ticking down, Mancini brought on Politano for Kevin Lasagna and he found a way through by finishing off an excellent move after Roberto Gagliardini and Verratti combined in the area.

Neymar injured as Brazil beat Cameroon

AFF ■ MILTON KEYNES

Neymar could be an injury doubt for Paris Saint-Germain's Champions League clash with Liverpool next week after limping off during Brazil's 1-0 friendly win over Cameroon on Tuesday.

The forward suffered an apparent groin problem and was replaced in the eighth minute, to boos from the crowd in the central English town of Milton Keynes.

Everton's Richarlison, Neymar's replacement, headed in on the stroke of half-time for his third Brazil goal on his sixth appearance to secure victory for the Selecao.

A mixture of cheers and jeers welcomed Neymar, his World Cup theatrics in Russia providing ammunition for his detractors.

And there was little sympathy when the star attraction went off after making little impact. Richarlison appeared dangerous from the moment he was introduced and Roberto Firmino went close three times. The Liverpool striker almost turned in Willian's cross but Andre Onana made a fine instinctive save. Firmino next sent a free header wide from Richarlison's cross and was then denied by the goalkeeper from point-blank range. Richarlison scored from the resulting corner, powerfully heading in Willian's set-piece. Cameroon might have levelled after 52 minutes, but Stephane Bahoken could not get a touch on Karl Toko Ekambi's cross.

Penalty corners remain our strength, says Peillat

The Olympic Champions' tag wouldn't matter and Argentina will have to produce their best at the upcoming men's hockey World Cup, believes dragflick sensation Gonzalo Peillat, who said converting penalty corners will remain the team's strength.

"I don't think being World No 2 or the Olympic Champions would matter here in this tournament as every other team would have come with the intention to win. We have to focus on every game and play our best hockey," Peillat said after arriving on Wednesday.

"Everybody knows penalty corners will be our strong point and it's important to give our 100 per cent in all aspects," he added.

World No 2 Argentina on Wednesday arrived for the World Cup beginning on November 28.

"It will be a great tournament, playing in Bhubaneswar again in front of a crazy crowd, the entire team is looking forward to it and are very excited to be back," said Peillat, who was part of the Argentina team that won the

The Olympic Champions have a new chief coach in German

Mariano Orozco, who replaced Carlos Retegui in early 2018 and is a former defender for Argentina having played the Olympic Games in 2000 and 2004.

"I think experience in the team is very good. We have played quite a few tournaments in the lead up to the World Cup under a new coach German Mariano Orozco and we have been performing well under him," said a confident Peillat.

Argentina in the previous World Cup in 2014 at The Hague, Netherlands had finished third behind winners Australia and runners-up the Netherlands and went on to win the Olympic Gold in Rio.

France see off Uruguay

PARIS: A shoulder injury to Kylian Mbappe overshadowed France's 1-0 friendly win over Uruguay at the Stade de France on Tuesday as Didier Deschamps' world champions ended the year on a high note.

Mbappe had to be replaced in the first half after a nasty fall, continuing a miserable night for his Paris Saint-Germain coach Thomas Tuchel. PSG face Liverpool in a crucial Champions League clash at the Parc des Princes on November 28.

When asked if he could give "reassuring news" about Mbappe in his press conference, France coach Deschamps said: "Not necessarily reassuring, but not worrying either."

"He had some shoulder pain after his fall and he has to have tests Wednesday morning, but there is no serious concern." After the disappointment of seeing the Netherlands pip them to a place at the Nations League finals with a late Virgil van Dijk goal in Germany on Monday, Olivier Giroud's 52nd-minute penalty gave France victory in a repeat of the two teams' WC quarter-final meeting.

"It was important to finish on a positive note, even in the last defeat (by the Netherlands) saw us miss out on the (Nations League) semi-finals," Deschamps told M6. AFP
