Hollande, Rahul in queer sync: FM

Jaitley questions 'perfect coincidence' of France-India Opps' Rafale barbs

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Finance Minister Arun Jaitley has defended the Rafale deal and said a controversy is sought to be created on the basis of a statement made by former French President Francois Hollande, that the Reliance Defence 'partnership' with Dassault Aviation was entered at the suggestion of the Indian Government.

In Facebook blog titled, "A Questionable statement Which circumstances & facts demolish," Jaitley claimed that in a subsequent statement the former President has sought to suggest that Reliance Defence emerged on the scene after the agreement with the Indian Government was entered into.

"He has, in a subsequent statement, said he is 'not aware' if Government ever lobbied for Reliance Defence and that 'the partners chose themselves'. Truth cannot have two versions," he said.

In an interview to news agency ANI, Jaitley also said there is a "perfect coincidence" between Rahul's tweet of August 30 and Hollande's statements. Rahul, on August 30, tweeted, "Globalised corruption. This #Rafale aircraft really does fly far and fast! It's also going to drop some big bunker buster bombs in the next couple of weeks. Modi ji please tell Anil, there is a big problem in France."

"And then what happens [Hollande's claim] is in perfect

COUNTERPOINTS

- Rahul is in some kind of a revenge mode
- French Government and M/s Dassault Aviation have categorically denied the correctness of the former President's first statement
- French Government has stated that the decision with regard to the offset contracts of Dassault Aviation is taken by the company and not the Government rhythm with what he predicted," Jaitley said.

Adding further, Rahul is in some kind of a revenge mode. We were called corrupt and you brought in evidence.

Back to his Facebook blog, Jaitley said the French Government and M/s Dassault Aviation have categorically denied the correctness of the former President's first statement.

The French Government has stated that the decision with regard to the offset contracts of Dassault Aviation is taken by the company and not the Government, he said.

He went on to add that the Dassault Aviation itself has suggested that they have entered into multiple contracts with several public sector and private sector companies with regard to the offset contracts and the decision is entirely theirs.

"Without commenting on the correctness or otherwise of a controversy in the French media, it may be mentioned that the former French President, Hollande, is countering statement made against him with regard to a conflict of interest in his dealing with the Reliance Defence," Jaitley said.

Cong accuses Modi of breach of oath by leaking info to Anil

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Congress president Rahul Gandhi on Sunday accused Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Finance Minister Arun Jaitley of "lying" on the Rafale issue and persisted the demand for a Joint Parliamentary Committee (JPC) probe for an "uncorrupted truth" to come out.

"Mr Jaitley's speciality is his ability to spin '2 truths', or lies, with fake self righteousness and indignation to defend the indefensible. It's high time he, the RM and our PM stop lying and call a JPC to establish the full, uncorrupted truth

Jaitley said the accuracy of the statements made by the individuals may be questioned but circumstances never lie. This is evident from the following facts:

There is no 'partnership', as suggested by the former President, with regard to the 36 Rafale aircrafts to be supplied by Dassault Aviation to the Government of India.

It was a Government to Government agreement under which the complete weaponised aircraft are to come to the Indian Air Force. No manufacturing is to be done in India. It is, therefore, erroneous about the Rafale Scam)," Rahul tweeted.

Also, he pointed towards media report highlighting how former French President Francois Hollande's charges have hit the Modi Government on the Rafale issue.

The Congress also demanded a clarification from the Prime Minister on the disclosure made by Hollande about the choice of Indian offset partner in Rafale deal and accused the PM of violating the oath of confidentiality by leaking information to Reliance Defence chief Anil Ambani.

for anybody to suggest that there is a 'partnership' in the supply of the 36 Rafale aircrafts.

M/s Reliance Industries Ltd., in February, 2012, had entered into a MoU with Dassault Aviation. This was reported by the PTI on 12.2.2012. This was at a stage when the contract relating to 126 Rafale aircraft, of which 18 were to be manufactured in France and 108 in India, was at an advance stage of consideration by the UPA Government.

Rahul's misplaced criticism could equally apply to the 2012 MoU.

Maoists gun down TDP MLA, ex-legislator in T

OMER FAROOQ ■ HYDERABAD

Maoists gunned down a ruling Telugu Desam Party (TDP) MLA and his associate on Sunday afternoon when they were visiting interior or village in tribal area of Araku in Visakhapatnam district in Telengana, police officials said.

More than 50 armed Maoists targeted MLA Kadri Sarveshwar Rao and former MLA Siveru Soma at around 1 pm at Nimittiputta village under Dumbbriguda mandal of Visakhapatnam district.

The place is just 15 kms from Odisha border and the assailants escaped across the border. Rao was elected to the State Assembly in 2014 from Araku constituency on the Opposition YSR Congress party ticket but later switched to the ruling TDP and became the Government whip in the Assembly. He was survived by wife and two sons.

"The Maoists opened fire from point-blank range first at former MLA Soma and then at the MLA, killing both of them on the spot," DIG Visakhapatnam range Ch Srikant told the reporters.

Earlier, the Maoists overpowered the two gunmen, snatched their weapons and tied them to a tree. Initially, there was discussion between the Maoists and the MLA over his mining activities in the area. The Maoists said the mining activity is damaging the forests and the environment and demanded that it should be stopped forthwith.

According to the witnesses, the MLA told them that if there is any problem it could be sorted out through talks but he will not bow to any threats. Soon after, the Maoists opened fire killing both the leaders on the spot. Later both the bodies were shifted to King George Hospital Visakhapatnam for post-mortem. Police have sounded a red alert in Andhra Pradesh and neighbouring Telangana. Authorities have asked Ministers and elected representatives not to travel in the rural areas without informing police.

"We have launched a combing operation to nab the culprits. A probe is underway into the circumstances in which the attack took place," Srikant said. Police officials suspect that the attack was led by Ramakrishna, secretary, Andhra Odisha Border committee of CPI Maoist.

Ramakrishna who earlier headed Andhra State Committee had narrowly escaped police dragnet in 2005 and was largely based in Chhattisgarh and Odisha since then.

Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu, who is in the United State on an official visit, condemned the attack. In a statement issued through his office Naidu said, "All democratic forces should strongly condemn the dastardly act." He recalled the services Sarveshwar Rao and S Soma had rendered for the tribal people.

Leader of Opposition and YSR Congress president YS Jaganmohan Reddy also condemned the Maoist attack.

It is after a lull of several years that the armed Maoists have carried out such a major attack in Andhra Pradesh and killed a lawmaker.

Modi rolls out Ayushman to serve 10 crore poor families

PNS ■ RANCHI

Not far away from the next general elections, Prime Minister Narendra Modi hailed the schemes launched by the incumbent NDA dispensation at the Centre for their role played in empowering the poor without any prejudice. The PM named some like Ujjawala, PMAY, Saubhagya, Swachh Bharat Mission while adding the latest Ayushman Bharat he launched on Sunday from Jharkhand.

The Prime Minister opening his address in local dialect Nagpuri and remembering the land of great sons of the soil remained critical of the previous regimes, particularly of the Congress while accusing them of discrimination in implementing welfare measures.

"All the schemes we have launched have been empowering to the poor. For the first time any Government is treating the poor not as vote bank based on their caste, religion and regional identity. For the last 40-50 years, the Governments have been using public funds to garner vote bank. We have shunned the

has been renamed as PM Jan Arogya Yojana (PMJAY), the Narendra Modi-led NDA Government aims to provide healthcare facilities to over 10 crore families covering urban and rural poor.

Rajnath hails 'Modicare'

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Launching the ambitious L Pradhan Mantri Jan Arogya Yojana (PMJAY) — Ayushman Bharat scheme — in the state capital on Sunday, Union Home Minister Rajnath Singh said it was a historic day as the world's biggest health insurance scheme would benefit over 100 million poor families of the country by bringing them under health cover.

"Former US President Barack Obama had launched a similar health scheme in his country and people there called it Obamacare. Taking a cue, Indians are terming this scheme 'Modicare'. But to me, it should be named Modi protection for the health of the poor," Singh said while launching the scheme at Indira Gandhi Pratishthan here on Sunday.

The Union Home Minister said that this scheme would fulfil the dream of the Prime Minister to see India as a healthy country where people do not die of curable diseases.

Singh, who launched the Ayushman Bharat scheme along with other leaders, said that it would act as a sankat mochan for the poor families.

"Now, the poor will not have to take loan from sahu-kars (moneylenders) for the treatment of their near and dear ones as it is for the first time that a Union government is spending such a big amount in the health sector, he said.

The Union Home Minister said that the government wanted people of the country to get affordable health facilities and they were committed to providing that.

While Governor Ram Naik, UP Assembly Speaker Hriday Narayan Dixit and several state ministers were present at the launch of the scheme in Lucknow, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath launched the scheme at BRD Medical College in Gorakhpur on Sunday. "The UP government has prepared itself for the successful implementation of the Ayushman Bharat scheme.

Expert committees have been set up in all the 75 districts to monitor the scheme so that its benefits reach the people in need," the Chief Minister said.

In UP, around 6 crore people from 1.18 crore families will be covered by the new health insurance scheme under which the beneficiary will get Rs 5 lakh health cover.

"There are 1,350 medical packages which have been included in this scheme, and they will cover almost all the diseases," the CM said.

Meanwhile, State Minister for Health Mahendra Singh said that over 600 hospitals had been registered in the state for the scheme. "The scheme will benefit majority of the poor as it is the largest scheme in the country," he pointed out.

2 main accused in Haryana CBSE topper gangrape case arrested

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Haryana Police's Special Investigating Team (SIT) on Sunday arrested the two main accused in the Rewari gang-rape case from Satnali in Mahendragarh district.

The accused, Pankaj and Manish, were on the run for almost two weeks. Haryana DGP BS Sandhu said with the arrest of Manish and the Armyman, Pankaj, all the key accused allegedly involved in the CBSE topper gangrape case incident, have now been arrested.

The victim, a 19-year-old college girl was abducted and gangraped after being drugged on September 12 while she was on way to a coaching institute. Earlier, the SIT had announced the arrest of third accused, Nishu and two other men — Deendayal, the owner of a tube well room where the crime took place in Mahendragarh, and Sanjeev Kumar, a medical practitioner who had treated the victim.

Both Deendayal and Sanjeev were booked as they did not inform police despite knowing about the crime.

Parrikar to remain CM, Goa Cabinet rejig soon, says Shah

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

In a move to end political uncertainty in Goa, BJP president Amit Shah on Sunday announced that the ailing State Chief Minister Manohar Parrikar would continue in his office and that reshuffle of the State's Ministers would soon take place in Goa.

"It has been decided during a discussion with the Goa BJP core team that Parrikar will continue to lead the Goa Government. There will soon be a reshuffle of Ministers and their portfolios," Shah tweeted following a discussion with the BJP's core group team from Goa.

Parrikar's poor health had sparked speculation over his continuation as the Chief Minister of the State. Shah had recently sent Central party leaders to speak to allies and take stock of political situation.

The Opposition Congress, which is the single largest party in the State, has also staked claim to form the Government. The BJP has asserted that its Government continues to have the support of majority of MLAs. Currently, Parrikar is admitted at the AIIMS and undergoing treatment for a pancreas ailment.

Shah's announcement is seen as an attempt to prevent the Congress from fishing in troubled waters and destabilise the BJP Government which is deriving support from regional outfits.

In the last Assembly polls, Congress had emerged as the single largest party but BJP formed an alliance and managed the required support to form its Government in the State.

Speeding cab hits, drags man 2 kms to death

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

In yet another incident of hit and run, a 23-year-old man succumbed to his injuries after a speeding cab (Swift Dzire) dragged him for around two kilometers in the national Capital's Pandav Nagar on Saturday night. Two other people riding the scooter were also hit by the cab.

The deceased has been identified as Rahul, a resident of S block in Pandav Nagar. According to eyewitnesses, the cab had first hit two people riding on the scooter. "The cab after hitting the duo on scooter tried to flee when Rahul tried to stop the cab but got stuck in the moving cab and was dragged," said an eyewitness.

"We had received a Police Control Room (PCR) call around 9:45 pm on Saturday regarding the incident following which a team rushed to the spot. Rahul was taken to nearby hospital where he was declared brought dead.

During our initial investigation it was revealed that after hitting the two people riding on scooter, Rahul tried to stop the cab but the driver didn't stop and pressed the accelerator. Rahul was caught unaware and was stuck under the wheels and was dragged to two kilometers, eyewitnesses said. The two other injured persons in the incident were discharged after treatment," said Pankaj Kumar Singh, Deputy Commissioner of Police (DCP), East District.

"We have registered a case and a team is scanning the CCTV footage to identify the accused cab driver. We are yet to ascertain whether it was a private or app-based cab. Further investigation is on," said the DCP.

This is not an isolated incident as in one such incident in August this year, a 50-year-old homeless woman was mowed down by a speeding SUV allegedly being driven by a young woman on the wrong side of the road in the posh Connaught Place area of Lutyens' Delhi. The homeless woman was dragged for nearly 300 metres by the vehicle — a Jeep Compass — on Shaheed Singh Marg.

In another incident, a 26-year-old man had lost his life after a speeding Royal Enfield bullet rider lost control and hit him on Saturday night.

According to police, the incident was reported at around 11:45 pm near Gandhi Colony flyover in Delhi.

"The injured identified as Vijay Yadav was rushed to the hospital where he was declared brought dead," said a senior police official.

"During our initial investigation it was revealed that Vijay and one of his friend Ravinder were returning home with their hand cart when a speeding bike hit their hand cart on Gandhi colony flyover. Due to impact Vijay got his head hit on the roadside divider," said a senior police official.

"After the incident, the biker managed to flee from the spot with his bike. Vijay is survived by 12 days old son and a wife. We have registered a case and we are looking for CCTV footage to identify the accused," the senior police official added.

Cong fleeced people for political gains: Keshav

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Launching a scathing attack on the Congress leadership, Deputy Chief Minister Keshav Prasad Maurya said that the Congress was one of the most corrupt parties that had fleeced people for political gains and diverted government money for personal benefit.

"If you do not believe me ask anyone on the street which is the most corrupt party in India and they will say that it is Congress," the Deputy Chief Minister said while addressing a Gujjar convention here on Sunday.

He said that while on the one hand people knew that Congress was corrupt, on the other, they believed that Prime Minister Narendra Modi was an honest man who was working hard for the welfare of the people.

"The policies of the Union government are meant for the benefit of the poor and downtrodden and the Yogi Adityanath government in Uttar Pradesh is implementing those policies in letter and spirit," Maurya said.

"It is a fact that Congress is projecting Rahul Gandhi as prime ministerial candidate only because he has been born in Gandhi family. Had he been born in a simple family he would not have got ticket or won election. On the other hand, in the Bharatiya Janata Party, even a chai wala's son can climb to the post of prime minister," he said.

Maurya praised the contribution of the members of the Gujjar samaj in making the country strong. "Our party respects these people. On October 21, the Prime Minister will unveil the tallest statue of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel in the country," he said.

Maurya also attacked Samajwadi Party national president Akhilesh Yadav, saying that he had betrayed not only his family members but also the people of the state. "How can a party which has already surrendered to Bahujan Samaj Party face the BJP. This shows the said party does not have a vision or policy," he said.

National president of BJP Backward Cell and senior minister in the Yogi Adityanath government, Dara Singh Chauhan, also spoke on this occasion.

50 injured as bus falls into ditch

Muzaffarnagar: Fifty people were injured when a bus overturned and fell into a ditch on Delhi-Haridwar national highway at Haredi bypass on Sunday morning, according to the police.

Superintendent of Police (City) Omvir Singh said the incident occurred about 25 km from here when a bus was carrying 60 passengers from Govindpuri in Delhi to Haridwar for idol immersion in the Ganga river. The vehicle overturned due to a pothole on the road, Singh said, adding that the police rushed to the spot on receiving information about the accident. Nineteen out of the 50 injured passengers were rushed to a hospital for treatment, the police official said.

Meanwhile, a woman and her five-year-old son were killed after they came under the wheels of a truck on Sheoli Road in Barasirohi locality under the Kalyanpur police station of Kanpur on Sunday early morning.

Big jolt to Shivpal: Mulayam shares stage with Akhilesh

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

A day after Samajwadi Secular Morcha convenor Shivpal Singh Yadav announced to oppose all family members expect Mulayam Singh Yadav in the 2019 Lok Sabha polls, the Samajwadi Party patriarch on Sunday demonstrated that he stood with his son Akhilesh Yadav by joining his political rally at Jantar Mantar in the national capital on Sunday.

Mulayam's decision to share the stage with his son Akhilesh after a long time came as a big blow to the Shivpal who has been claiming that his newly-formed Samajwadi Secular Morcha has the blessings of Netaji (Mulayam). Barely a day earlier, Shivpal Yadav, the estranged uncle of SP chief Akhilesh Yadav, had announced to oppose all the family members expect Mulayam Singh Yadav in the coming Lok Sabha polls.

"I give my blessings to this young and energetic Samajwadi Party. I am very happy to see that so many youngsters have come here to join the cycle rally of the party," Mulayam said in the presence of Akhilesh and party general secretary Ram Gopal Yadav.

Mulayam disclosed that Akhilesh had urged him to come to this function on the conclusion of the SP cycle yatra.

He asked youths to be disciplined and called on girls to actively participate in nation-building.

Attacking Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Mulayam said that SP had never ditched the youths and had fulfilled all the promises it had made.

SP president Akhilesh Yadav also attacked the Bharatiya Janata Party for its policies like demonetisation and implementation of the Goods and Services Tax.

When contacted for his comment on the developments in Delhi, Shivpal refused to say anything. He, however, claimed that Netaji was supporting him with his heart and he was fighting for the restoration of his honour.

"Don't go by where Netaji is going. He will be with the SSM at the crucial stage when it will be required," he commented.

On Saturday, Shivpal had said that the Samajwadi Secular

Morcha, would not support any candidate barring Netaji in the 2019 Lok Sabha election even if the candidate was from the 'family'.

"We are busy expanding our base and more people and leaders are willing to join the SSM. Our new political party will play a significant role in the 2019 Lok Sabha election. We will play a prominent role in strengthening the secular bloc against the Bharatiya Janata Party," Shivpal had said on Saturday.

He added that the time for patch-up or any understanding with SP leadership was over.

"I waited for two years before taking this decision," he added. After breaking away from his nephew-led Samajwadi Party, Shivpal has begun from the scratch. From convincing disgruntled samajwadis to join his party to launching social media campaigns for bringing more youths into the fold, Yadav has been busy in strengthening his party.

According to sources, preparations to make the presence of SSM felt in UP politics are going on in full swing and leaders from all over the state are visiting Shivpal at his house in Lucknow everyday.

Shivpal said he would fight for social justice through his SSM.

Some parties confined Ambedkar to photographs only: Dinesh Sharma

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Accusing some political parties of confining Dr Bhimrao Ambedkar to photographs only, Deputy Chief Minister Dinesh Sharma said on Sunday that no one had worked for the development and self-respect of Dalits.

Addressing a workshop organised by the Bharatiya Janata Party's Scheduled Castes Morcha at the party office in Lucknow, Sharma said Prime Minister Narendra Modi had initiated a number of welfare schemes for the Dalits across the country.

Saying that the country was indebted to the Dalit icon, the Deputy Chief Minister said, "Some political parties have confined Ambedkar to photographs only. No one has worked for the development and self-respect of the Dalits."

Sharma said the welfare schemes started by Modi for Dalits had brought a "visible transformation" in their lives. "Modiji has developed five places related to the life of Babasaheb," he added.

Meanwhile, addressing the

All-India Central Excises Officers' Association here on Sunday, Deputy Chief Minister Dinesh Sharma said on Sunday that the Indian economy was surging ahead and had become the fastest growing economy of the world following the bold reforms introduced by Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

He said it was the positive results of the economic reforms that the gross domestic product (GDP) of the country was growing at an annual growth rate of 8.2 per cent.

Sharma said that the Goods and Services Tax had come as a boon for the Indian economy as it not only eradicated the complicated tax regime but also widened the tax net and significantly improved the tax collections.

Sharma asked the Central excise officers to come forward with their suggestions for simplification of the GST structure so as to help small businesses and traders. The two-day meeting of the officers of the Central excise department concluded here on Sunday.

Dr Kafeel Khan arrested again, now in a 9-year-old fraud case

Gorakhpur (PTI): Dr Kafeel Khan, who is out on bail in connection with the death of infants at a state-run hospital in Gorakhpur last year, and his brother Adeel Khan were arrested on Sunday in connection with a nine-year-old fraud case.

"A case was registered against Dr Kafeel and his brother Adeel under various sections of the IPC in 2009 at the Raighat police station by Muzaffar Alam, a resident of the city's Shekhpur area. Muzaffar Alam in his complaint had accused both the brothers of using his photograph and ID to open a fake bank account in SBI and using the same to carry out transaction of over ₹82 lakh. At that time, Dr Kafeel was pursuing his medical studies at Manipal University," Circle Officer (Cantonment) Prabhat Kumar Rai said. The arrest was made by a team led by Superintendent of Police (City) Vinay Singh and CO Rai, on the direction of Senior Superintendent of Police Shalabh Mathur.

The move comes a day after Dr Kafeel Khan was released on bail after being arrested on charges of creating a ruckus at a district hospital here, police said.

He was arrested on Saturday for allegedly arguing with doctors and "disturbing" the treatment being given to patients at the hospital, they added. Khan is one of the nine accused in a case involving the deaths of several children due to alleged disruption in the supply of oxygen at the Baba Raghu Das Medical College in August 2017.

He was arrested by the UP Police in September 2017. The Allahabad High Court had granted him bail in April this year.

BJP MLA misbehaves with edu officer, video goes viral Lucknow (PTI): BJP MLA Surendra Singh and some of his party's leaders allegedly tried to misbehave with a district inspector of school at an official meeting in Ballia. The incident, a video of which has gone viral, took place on Saturday in presence of the District Magistrate. In the video, the MLA is purportedly seen getting agitated with DIOS Narendra Dev Pandey and moving towards him, and the education officer being allegedly pushed by a BJP leader. The District Magistrate, however, managed to control the situation. District Magistrate Bhawar Singh Khargaut said the DIOS during the meeting said that he was not afraid of anyone due to which the MLA and others got agitated. The MLA however, later, regretted for the incident.

UP CHIEF OF HINDU OUTFIT THRASHED

State president, Hindu Maha Sabha, Yogendra Verma, was allegedly thrashed by some unidentified youths after a confrontation in Shernagar locality of Muzaffarnagar, on Saturday evening. A case was registered at the New Mandi police station. No one has been arrested yet.

Why didn't UPA finalise Rafale deal after starting process: Shrikant

Mathura (PTI): Uttar Pradesh Power Minister Shrikant Sharma on Sunday asked the Congress to explain why the UPA government had not finalised the Rafale deal even after starting the process to procure the fighter jets.

"(Congress president) Rahul Gandhi should explain, why the Congress could not finalise the deal in over seven years, even though it started the process in 2007," Sharma said addressing reporters here.

The BJP leader also asked if the Congress was waiting for some Ottavio Quattrocchi to come and finalise the deal.

Quattrocchi was the key accused in Bofors scam. The Congress chief was unnecessarily raising the Rafale issue, he said.

"It also seems Rahul himself is not sure about the cost of the Rafale fighter aircraft as there is a variation in the cost of the fighter jets mentioned by him from time to time," the minister said.

Quoting Union Finance Minister Arun Jaitley, Sharma said Gandhi claimed a price of ₹700 crore per aircraft in Delhi and Karnataka in April and May, and in Parliament, he reduced it to ₹520 crore per jet.

In Raipur, the Congress chief said the price was ₹520 crore and ₹540 crore per aircraft in the same speech, Sharma claimed.

To a question, Sharma said on moral grounds, Gandhi should answer the questions raised by the Union Finance Minister.

He also asked why the Congress chief was insisting that the government disclose the price of Rafale jets.

"The price is not being quoted as by revealing it, the enemy would not only locate the nature of fighter aircraft, but would prepare accordingly," the minister said.

On former French President Francois Hollande's statements, he said a clarification from the third party was not required when it had come directly from Dassault Aviation.

Hollande was quoted in a French media report as saying that the Indian government proposed Anil Ambani-led Reliance Defence as the partner for Dassault Aviation in the ₹58,000 crore Rafale deal and France did not have a choice.

The French government, however, on Friday said it was in no manner involved in the choice of Indian industrial partners for the deal. In a comment later to a news agency, Hollande seemed to backtrack on his earlier remarks.

Dassault Aviation said the decision to partner with Reliance Defence Ltd (RDL) to fulfill offset obligations of the deal was its own.

Cong 'optimistic' of grand alliance in UP for LS polls: Babbar

Lucknow (PTI): Undeterred by the BSP's recent alliance in Chhattisgarh and declaration of seats for Madhya Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh Congress chief Raj Babbar said on Sunday his party was "optimistic" of a grand alliance in the state for the 2019 Lok Sabha polls.

He said the people wanted the opposition to contest the general elections in Uttar Pradesh together. "In the present scenario, irrespective of the party and pressures they might be having from their voters, we have to unitedly contest the Lok Sabha polls," Babbar said.

"In the Lok Sabha elections in UP, I'm optimistic of a grand alliance... Lok Sabha elections are at the national level and there are only two forces. I'm not saying that there are only two parties but there are only two ideologies. One is of Gandhiji on which the Congress runs and other is of the RSS which is in search of credibility," he said.

Babbar claimed the RSS was searching for credibility since 1924 and it had no identity. "They are having a majority government but still Hindus and Muslims are being made to realise their differences. They (BJP) said they got a big majority and have reduced everyone (all other parties) to zero. But, can they bring destroy our ideology completely," he asked.

Referring to a three-day conclave held by the RSS at Vigyan Bhavan in Delhi, the Congress leader alleged the Sangh misused the government and for the first time Vigyan Bhavan was used for a non-government programme. "It's a big lie that they did not take anything from the BJP but only gave advice," he said.

Replying to a question, he claimed Congress president Rahul Gandhi was not invited for the recent RSS event.

The Congress leader said, "A threat is being posed to all of us (by the BJP). We have to face it unitedly."

On being asked to comment on open criticism of the Congress by BSP chief Mayawati on petrol and diesel prices and other issues, Babbar said, "The BSP is a party, it might have an opinion. It also ran government in the state. If state government wants it can reduce petrol/diesel prices."

Last week, Mayawati had held both the previous UPA government and the BJP responsible for the rise in petrol and diesel prices, taking the Congress by surprise.

"We will never say what our government did and what was done during the BSP or the SP regime. We don't want to answer allegations and make counter allegations. At this juncture, we should not point fingers at each other as people have a lot of expectations from us. We have to fulfil them unitedly," he said.

RSS worker was done in by rivals

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

Rashtriya Swayamsewak Sangh (RSS) worker Swapnil Srivastava (19) of Jankipuram was killed following serious differences he and his friends developed with their rival group during WhatsApp chatting. The police believe contents of the chatting may prove a clinching evidence against the miscreants, who were arrested by the police on Sunday, three days after the dispute cropped up and the rival group had attacked Swapnil when he tried to save his friend from being thwacked. Jankipuram SHO Umakant said the police arrested Sooraj and four of his aides who are minor. "Barring Sooraj of Jankipuram, all the accused are minor and so their names cannot be disclosed," he said. He said the attackers had a common intention and they conspired before executing the attack on Swapnil and friends. The SHO said the police had recovered the stick and belt with which the miscreants attacked the victim. "We had also recovered the mobile sets and sent it to the lab for further investigation and retrieving data from it," he said.

Swapnil and his friend Abhay Pratap were attacked when they were busy in chit-chatting with one another near Tikoniya Park in Jankipuram on September 19 night. The attackers intended

The attackers had a common intention and they conspired before executing the attack on Swapnil and friends to attack Abhay initially but they hit Swapnil after he intervened and tried to save his friend.

Interestingly, the SSP had issued a circular to all police stations asking them to curb spread of misleading or derecating messages/posts on the social media which might invite a group clash or pose a challenge on the law and order front. "The Jankipuram SHO himself had posted the circular issued by the SSP some time back. But it seemed that the cops took SSP's order at face value only. Had the police taken any preventive measures, Swapnil's murder case would not have occurred," the sources said. They said the arrest of the miscreants came after SSP Kalanidhi Naithani hauled up the Jankipuram SHO asking the latter to ensure arrest of the miscreants.

Trickster pulls off a fast one

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

Opting to a 'fresh' trick of conning, two miscreants engaged a man in car in futile talks and then stole his purse and mobile phone at city's one of the busiest crossings in Kakori on Saturday evening. The complaint bewildered the cops and they initially mistook him as cooking up a story but later lodged a case.

As per reports, Dr Jata Shanker Verma of Mideoo Colony on IIM road in Madiaon had some work in Kakori and so he drove to the locality on Saturday evening. Around 6.30 pm, when he reached Dubagga crossing, he found the signal red and stopped. Meanwhile, an unidentified man riding a bike and standing close to the car, knocked on the window panes to strike a dialogue with Verma. The unidentified man said that one of the tyres of the car had rolled over his foot and that made Verma tax his brains. Within seconds, another man from other side of the car knocked the window panes and diverted Verma's attention. As Verma turned his head to attend to the other man, the first one took out the purse and the mobile kept on the dash board and sped off. The cops were puzzled when Verma narrated the sequence of the incident to them while lodging a complaint. They initially termed Verma's claim as extension of imaginative skill and showered a volley of questions like why he visited Kakori, why he could not guess wrong. But, later they registered a case for theft and defrauding.

the one lakh letters written by the devotees were also buried along with the idol. He said it was an extremely emotional moment for the devotees. Missing class XII boy found murdered

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

A missing class XII student was found murdered in Nigoha on Sunday afternoon. His body was recovered from a canal by some residents who informed his family and later the news reached the police. The police claimed that the boy ended his life but they failed to produce any suicide note to buttress their claim. The body was sent to morgue for autopsy and an investigation is being carried out in the case.

As per reports, some residents spotted a boy's body floating in the canal in Utrawa village of Nigoha and the news spread thick and fast in the locality with a huge number of residents flocking to the scene. Later, Ram Laxhan of Bhola Kheda locality of Nigoha identified the body to be that of his son Shivam, who was studying at a government-run Intermediate college in Nigoha.

He said that Shivam was missing since he left for his school on Saturday and later he lodged a report at the police station on Saturday evening after waiting for him round the day.

On the revelation, the police started the investigation into the case. Giving details, the officials of the media cell of Lucknow police said no injuries were detected on the body during examination. Police spokesman AK Singh said the police were still uncertain about the sequence of the incident which culminated into the death of the missing student.

He said the police suspected that the boy committed suicide.

But police claim that the boy ended his life did not get well with the findings of the investigation made in the case so far. The sources said no one saw Shivam visiting the bank of the canal on Saturday till dusk. "He, along with some his friends, was seen going towards his school on Saturday morning. The police were yet to find out if Shivam attended the school," the sources said.

Shivam's kin raised doubt over the police investigation and said the boy was murdered or was thrown in the canal. "Police conveniently chose to term the incidents, in which bodies were recovered from canals/ rivers, as cases of suicide or drowning. They should correlate the findings with the circumstantial evidence than jumping to a conclusion," they said and demanded a threadbare probe into the case.

LDA to replace bricks with fly ash blocks

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

The Lucknow Development Authority (LDA) will stop using bricks and will replace the same with fly ash blocks. The use of bricks will be totally discontinued within five years. The cost of the houses built using fly ash blocks will come down manifold.

LDA chief engineer IS Singh said that the procedure of change-over would begin from November when the administration launched its new projects.

It is said the shelters constructed using fly ash would be eco-friendly and also cheaper than those built using bricks. Besides, the lives of the occupants would be more secured during natural calamities.

LDA Vice-Chairman PN Singh said that in its report, the administration had recommended use of fly ash and said that shelters made with fly ash blocks were acceptable all over the world and people in general preferred to stay in such houses in western countries.

The Ministry of Urban Development had in July asked the development authorities and housing development boards, including LDA, to give suggestions on this major change-over. The LDA administration, with the help of its chief engineer and chief town planner NK Mittal, prepared a report and recommended the use of fly ash blocks.

Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath had recently assured brick kiln owners concession but also expressed concern over the fact that brick kilns were a big threat to environment. The CM had hinted that the government would discourage the use of bricks.

‘Horticulture wastes can be used for getting many value-added projects’

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

The ready-to-prepare vegetable curries, canned mushroom and mushroom products, dried fruits and vegetables and fruit juice concentrates generate voluminous quantities of waste in the form of solid waste of peeled skins, seeds, stones and liquid waste. These horticultural wastes are a rich source of nutrients and may be used as raw materials for getting a number of value-added products.

The Central Institute of Subtropical Horticulture (CISH) organised a workshop on horticulture waste management which was attended by its scientists and those of National Bureau for Fish Genetic Resources (NBFGR) on Sunday. Its objective was to brainstorm on different ways by which the horticulture produce residue from mandis, households, farmers' fields and processing factories can be converted into value-added products.

CISH director Shailendra Rajan said that in the recent years, they had witnessed the expansion of horticulture industry, including the processing industry where fruits and vegetables were used as raw materials. "Kitchen gardens are contributing towards the accumulation of a lot of organic waste material. Fruit and vegetable residues from mandis and households are considered to be garbage and generally not utilised for value-addition," he said.

He said that India was one of the largest producers of fruits and vegetables in the world and its production crossed 305 million tonnes during 2017-18. "Presently in India the processing of fruits and vegetables is estimated to be around 5.0 per cent of its total production. Most of the processed items in this segment are fruit pulp and juices, fruit-based ready-to-serve beverages, canned fruits and vegetables, jams, squashes, pickles, chutneys and dehydrated vegetables. The new arrivals in this segment are ready-to-prepare vegetable curries, canned mushroom and mushroom products, dried fruits and vegetables and fruit juice concentrates. These industries generate voluminous quantities of waste in the form of solid waste of peeled skin, seeds, stones and liquid waste," he said.

He said that in some fruits the discarded portion was very high (e.g. mango 30-50 pc, banana 20 pc, pineapple 40-50 pc and orange 30-50 pc). These horticultural wastes/rejections are a rich source of nutrients and may be used as raw materials for getting a number of value-added products.

Neelima Garg delivered a talk on 'Horticultural waste management by microbial interventions'. She emphasised that these wastes were very rich in organic constituents like cellulose, starch, pectin, vitamins, minerals etc and posed serious health hazards due to high biological oxygen demand (BOD) and led to environmental pollution.

"Presently there is no appropriate waste management system for the efficient management of this huge waste generated by horticultural residues and processing waste. One way of managing the situation is to reduce the losses and to utilise the available material for producing value-added products such as dietary fibre, ethanol, tartarates, pigments, seed oil and protein, food, feed, functional foods, cosmetic products, vermicompost etc. through microbial interventions and fermentation. The utilisation of wastes will not only economise the cost of finished products but also reduce the pollution level," she said.

Scientist Ram Avadh Ram delivered a talk on 'Viable solutions to crop and municipal solid waste management in India'. He said that crop residues were natural resources with tremendous value to the farmers. "These residues are used as animal feed, compost, thatch for rural homes and fuel for domestic and industrial use. About 25 pc of nitrogen, phosphorus each, 50 pc of sulphur and 75 pc of potassium uptake by cereal crops are retained in residues making them valuable sources of nutrients. However, a large portion of these residues is burned in field primarily to clear it from straw and stubble after the harvest of the preceding crop," he added.

and added the aim of the organisation was to unite the community and bring it into the mainstream of the country's development. He urged the community members to come forward with dedicated spirit to participate in the national-building.

The function was attended by office-bearers of the Kayastha Vahini as well as leading figures of the community drawn from all over the country as well as abroad.

The Child Welfare Committee (CWC) and District Inspection Unit (DIU) submitted the report of their inspection at Manisha Mandir on September 20 to District Magistrate Kaushal Raj Sharma on Sunday. CWC chairperson Sangeeta Sharma said they had told the DM that an FIR should be lodged against Manisha Mandir for violation of the JJ Act. The CWC, along with the District Inspection Unit, had rescued 14 girls aged between 7-15 years from Manisha Temple and shifted them to two government protection homes. Sharma said that the girls were found in a bad condition with pus oozing out from the boils on their arms. "Manisha Mandir was violating the norms by keeping the girls who were not orphans. The JJ Act states it very clearly that protection home is the last resort and the children should be kept with their parents. These girls were kept on the pretext of education for an amount of Rs 4,000 and they were made to do a whole lot of chores," she added.

MODI ROLLS OUT...

All NDA Chief Ministers launched the scheme from their respective States. The scheme will become operational from September 25 on the birth anniversary of Pandit Deendayal Upadhyay, Niti Aayog member VK Paul said.

The ambitious scheme offers an insurance cover of Rs 5 lakh, which will cover 10 crore poor families or almost 50 crore persons. In his Independence Day speech, Modi had announced that while the scheme would initially cover 10 crore poor families as per the socio-economic census of 2011, it will in the coming days also benefit the lower middle-class, middle-class and upper-middle class by way of jobs in the medical sector as new hospitals will open in Tier-II and Tier-III cities. The scheme can be a big game-changer for Modi as it comes about half a year before the next Lok Sabha elections.

The scheme is targeted at poor, deprived rural families and identified occupational categories of urban workers' families. So, if we were to go by the Socio-Economic Caste Census (SECC) 2011 data, 8.03 crore families in rural and 2.33 crore in urban areas will be entitled to be covered under this scheme, i.e., it will cover around 50 crore people. To ensure that nobody is left out (especially women, children and the elderly), there will be no cap on the family size and age. The scheme will be cashless and paperless at public hospitals and empanelled private hospitals.

Ayushman Bharat may cost the exchequer around Rs 5,000 crore this year because of the time taken to rollout the scheme. The scheme will cost Rs 10,000 crore when it is rolled out across India next year. While this year there are likely to be 8 crore beneficiaries, the target is to cover 10 crore by FY 20.

According to international rating agency Moody's, Ayushman Bharat is credit positive for insurance companies as it will aid in higher premium growth. "The launch of universal health coverage is credit positive for the country's insurers because it will help grow health premiums and provide insurers with cross-selling and servicing opportunities," Moody's said in a report last month.

The PM also laid foundation stone for two medical colleges at Koderma and Chaibasa, and opened 10 health and wellness centres in Ranchi, Bokaro and Jamshedpur in the presence of about 1 lakh people coming from different parts of the State, including large number of ANMs and para-medics.

Reiterating the mantra of his Government 'Sabka Sath-Sabka Vikas', the PM counted some of the features of the public medical insurance scheme which does not need registration of any kind to get treatment and insurance cover and is almost universal in nature.

"Ayushman Bharat is not for people from any particular caste, region or religion. 50 crore people, more than entire population of the European Union or adding of the US, Canada and Mexico would get this. Over 1,300 diseases have been covered. Not only Government but private hospitals have also been brought in. Persons already affected from any disease can also get free treatment. No discrimination can be done with the residents of other States. It shows our commitment to 'Sabka Sath-Sabka Vikas'," said the PM predicting that the model would be a subject of study for the rest of the world and economists.

He further added the Government is working in holistic manner to improve healthcare scenario in the country which was about improved sanitation, quality of drinking water, housing for all and by bringing in more medical facilities in different parts of the country.

Modi on the occasion praised the efforts put in by the team of officials in descending the scheme 'miraculously' on ground within six months of the announcement made in the 2018-19 Budget and also a sign of good governance and commitment. 57 lakh families from Jharkhand are to be brought into the net of Rs 5 lakh yearly health insurance.

"The country is progressing rapidly to become 'Swasthya Bharat', 2500 new hospitals, most of those in tier-II and tier-III cities would be coming up in the next 3-4 years. Jobs are being created in the form of call centers, para-medics, drug-gists and startups are coming up in the health sector in big number. We are working in direction of readying one lakh more doctors in 4-5 years to revolutionise the health sector," he said referring to Jharkhand which is about to take MBBS seats from existing 350 to 1,200 with five new medical colleges and AIIMS coming up.

The PM nevertheless wished may no one need medical attention of any kind while referring to financial drain the illness causes to poor families. "I pray that no one goes to hospital because I feel the pain of the poor who have to spent major chunk of their savings on treatment. But if that happens, here comes the Ayushman Bharat. Now any poor person can get medical facilities as good as affluent peoples have been getting till now. I grabbed this as opportunity to serve the daridranarayan," said Modi, criticising the 'Garibi Hatao' slogans as hollow.

Also present on the occasion was Union Health Minister JP Nadra who said that the scheme would bring systemic changes into healthcare sector in the country.

"India with this has taken a big leap and the entire world is watching with great interest. The scheme has been designed completely as IT-based and digital and without any need of paper work. We are also working on a series of health and wellness centres that would prevent lifestyle diseases and others at primary stages," said the Minister. The PM on the occasion also declared open 10 such centres in Jharkhand.

HOLLANDE, RAHUL...

The offset contract ensures investment by the original equipment supplier i.e. Dassault Aviation, in India, in as much as they make purchases from Indian companies to the extent of fifty per cent (in this case). The choice of the offset partner under the 2005 offset policy is of M/s Dassault Aviation and they have selected several public and private sector companies to make the supplies.

The offset partner is selected entirely by the Dassault Aviation, the original equipment manufacturer, and neither the French Government and nor the Indian Government has any say in the matter.

It is no coincidence that on 30.8.2018 Rahul had tweeted that "Globalised corruption. This #Rafale aircraft really does fly far and fast! It's also going to drop some big bunker buster bombs in the next couple of weeks."

The former French president's first statement rhymes with Rahul's prediction.

The Congress Party's official handle on 31.8.2018 had carried the tweet of one of its leader "It is evident that Anil Ambani bribed President Hollande through his actor-partner to get the Dassault partnership." For the Congress Party to allege that a former president had been bribed by an Indian business group and then use him as a primary witness, particularly when he is facing criticism for an alleged conflict of interest within his own country.

The former French president's first statement that the Indian business group's name was proposed by Government of India has now been substituted by him to the effect that the suggestion he is 'not aware' of the Government of India ever lobbied for Reliance Defence. He further said the 'partners' chose themselves (AFP Report dated 22.9.2018).

Rahul has made an absurd suggestion that the interest of Indian soldiers has been compromised with. By whom? The UPA which delayed the acquisition which would have added to the military's combat ability or the NDA which expedited the same at a lower cost.

Jaitley said that one Reliance Group was a part of this deal since 2012 and it then dropped out of defence production. The other Reliance Group was already in defence. They are not partners in the Rafale deal. They have no contract with either Government of India or Government of France. They were not selected as one of the many offset partners by any Government, he said.

"The partners (Dassault and Reliance) selected themselves' as former president Hollande now says. This contradicts his first questionable statement which the French Government and Dassault have denied. The facts contradict the same. His second statement in Montreal, Canada to AFP makes the veracity of his first statement even more questionable.

police launched a massive crackdown killing dozens of their top leaders and armed members in various operations.

The latest incident is reminiscent of killing of Congress party lawmaker Narsi Reddy and 8 others in a major attack in Narayanpet town of Mehbubnagar district on August 15, 2005.

Since the State was bifurcated and Telangana was formed the Maoists were trying to regroup and return to the region and resumed their activities in the tribal and forest areas adjoining Odisha and Chhattisgarh.

Police suspect that the Maoist attacked the MLA as their demand to stop the bauxite mining in the tribal areas of Visakhapatnam were ignored by the State Government. The local tribal and the Maoists were agitating for a long time to stop the mining as it was destroying the environment.

Maoists had put posters in the tribal area warning the MLA against supporting the mining companies and declared that he was on their hit list. "It was a pre planned attack and somebody had tipped off the Maoists in advance about the visit of the MLA to the area," a police official said. Rumours were rife in the tribal area for last two months that the movement of Maoists had increased and they were planning to carry a major attack.

CONG ACCUSES...

"My direct charge is that the Prime Minister violated the oath of confidentiality. Only he could have told Anil Ambani that HAL will be out and he will strike a deal to buy 36 jets and 'you (Ambani) go and talk to Dassault Aviation (the makers of Rafale jet)," Deputy leader of Opposition in Rajya Sabha Anand Sharma told reporters. The Congress has raised the pitch of its offensive against the Modi Government on the Rafale deal after Hollande claimed that the Indian government proposed Reliance Defence's name as the offset partner for Dassault Aviation.

Armed with the sensation disclosure, Rahul has accused the PM of corruption and said: "Desh ka chowidar chor hai."

The French Government said it was in no manner involved in the choice of Indian industrial partners for the Rafale deal and asserted that the French firms have the full freedom to select Indian companies for the contract. Sao far the Prime Minister has not spoken on this issue.

"We don't want to hear from the Defence Minister, Finance Minister. The one who is supposed to speak is quiet (maun vratt). The Prime Minister has to respond to these questions," Sharma said.

The Reliance group has rejected charges against it made by the Congress and said the government was in no way involved in securing its offset contract with Dassault Aviation.

The accused live in the same village in Rewari and they knew the woman and her family.

The victim's family members and a 'Mahapanchayat' or conglomeration of several villages in Rewari district, which was convened early arrest of the accused. Last week, traders in Kosli town had also observed a bandh to protest against the gang-rape.

The victim's mother, while demanding capital punishment for the prime accused, had earlier told the mediapersons that her daughter was in "acute trauma" after the incident.

Doctors who attended on the victim too had said she was in "severe trauma", though her vital health parameters were said to be stable.

The Haryana police had drawn flak for allegedly not initiating prompt action after the complaint was registered.

After the shunting out of Rewari Superintendent of Police (SP) Rajesh Duggal, a woman assistant sub-inspector had later been suspended over alleged delay in taking action in the gangrape case.

PARRIKAR TO...

The BJP alliance partners have said they are committed to Parrikar and not the BJP, giving a clear message that a change of guard would not guarantee their backing to the BJP Government.

Parrikar, 62, was flown to the national Capital owing to his declining health. He had returned from the US in the first week of September, days after which he was admitted to a hospital at Candolim in north Goa. Earlier this year, he had undergone a three-month-long treatment in the US. Earlier, the BJP had sent its national general secretaries BL Santhosh and Ram Lal and Goa in-charge Vijay Purnik to Panaji to review the situation in the State. Shah's comment on Sunday ended speculations that the BJP might be looking at any other leader to head the coalition Government.

JOHNSON & JOHNSON FAULTY IMPLANT CASE

Govt mulls compensation for faulty device

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Waking up to the faulty implant case that left a many patients dead and disabled, the Centre is mulling to make the medical device manufacturers liable to compensate for injuries caused to consumers by their faulty medical gadgets. Presently companies pay compensation only in case of adverse events during a clinical trial.

"The Government can't close its eyes given that medical devices are now necessary for the longer life of the patients. It's time to plug gaps in the existing rules. The absence of such a law has made it tough for regulators to seek compensation from Johnson & Johnson for patients who had undergone faulty hip implant surgeries," said sources in the Central Drug Standards Control Organisation (CDSCO), a national pharmaceutical regulatory body.

They said that the regulator has proposed changes in the existing law to introduce a compensation provision for approved drugs and medical devices that have an adverse impact on a patient.

An expert panel set up by the Union Health Ministry to probe into the complaints has found that there is no provision as such for compensation to patients for faulty medical devices in the Drug and Control Act, only fines and prosecution which can be initiated by the drug inspector or consumer associations, not patients.

The key findings of the committee, constitute the first official indictment in India against J&J, which imported and sold ASR XL Acetabular Hip System and ASR Hip Resurfacing System in the country — these devices were globally recalled in 2010. The panel found that over 3,600 patients with the faulty implants remain untraceable, and that at least four patients with the implants have died.

In its report, the panel also observed that DePuy Orthopaedics Inc (J&J's subsidiary that manufactured hip implant devices) "appeared to have suppressed certain facts about the implants" from Indian regulators. It recommended that eligible patients should receive a "base amount" of ₹20 lakh as compensation, and proposed mechanisms to identify eligible patients.

Victims are already making rounds of the court, seeking compensation and punishment against the giant pharma. Three patients — Vijay Vojhala, Vinay Agarwal and Shailesh Bachate — has in their letter dated August 27 have urged Union Health Minister JP Nadda to keep them in loop in the matter. They said, "We believe that the investigation of Johnson & Johnson's faulty hip implants and the resulting governmental action should be done in a transparent manner so as to ensure that vested interests do not unduly influence the process."

The letter has also been signed by Jennifer Barucha and Praful Sardesai, the children of deceased patients who used these implants. "We also seek participation in any further deliberations by the Government on the action to be taken on the report," the letter stated.

RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat may have emphasised that the organisation does not control the BJP, but the ruling party has directed its booth managers to be in "regular touch" with the Sangh Parivar, party sources revealed on Sunday.

In the 24-point action plan drafted for its booth managers, the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has underlined that the booth workers should be in "regular touch" with the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) cadre and its affiliates in their respective regions, they said.

Get in touch with the heads and priests of mutts, temples and ashrams in the region, the party said in its directive to the booth managers, the sources said.

The action plan was shared at the BJP's national executive organised earlier this month, they added.

This assumes importance as last week in his three-day lecture series here, Bhagwat had said that the Sangh never asks it volunteers to work for any political party.

The Sangh does not give advice but offers suggestion if it is sought, he said, without naming the BJP or any of its leaders.

Speaking at length about the organisation's stand on politics, the RSS head said the Sangh does not dictate the BJP's politics or policies of its Government, but asserted that it pushes for what it believes to be in the interest of the country.

The impression is "absolutely wrong" that calls from Nagpur (where RSS is headquartered), are made and talks (between it and government functionaries) are held because the likes of President Ram Nath Kovind and Prime Minister Narendra Modi have links with it, he noted.

Senior leaders in the BJP, clearly stated that booth management has been the focal point of the party's poll strategies in various states and it is important for booth workers to maintain coordination with the entire Sangh Parivar.

The party leaders said from time to time top leadership of the BJP and its ideological mentor the RSS meets and discusses the pertaining issues of national importance.

The party takes feedback from the Sangh to get a better idea about the ground realities, a leader said.

Police stations to get special kits to probe sexual assault, rape cases

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Union Home Ministry in a pilot project will supply a special kit to police stations across the country to collect blood and semen samples, besides other evidence, to carry out immediate investigation into sexual assault cases. The Sexual Assault Evidence Collection Kits (SAECK) or 'rape investigation kits' are designed to carry out immediate medico-legal investigation and aid in furnishing evidence in sexual assault and rape cases.

The Home Ministry, as part of a pilot project, will initially procure 3,960 SAECK and to begin with, and 100 such kits will be given to each State and union territory, a Ministry official said. The likely cost budgeted for the procurement of the 3,960 kits is ₹79.20 lakh, while another ₹4.91 crore will be spent in providing training to police personnel and medical staff of local hospitals.

Police and medical officers will be given training on how to use the kits in the event of any sexual assault and rape case happening in their area of jurisdiction. Each of these kits comprises essential items that will aid in furnishing evidence such as blood and semen samples in sexual assault and rape cases, the official said. The kit has a set of test tubes and bottles, which mention about contents and specifications.

These kits also contain instructions on collection of evidence from the crime scene. The SAECKs would be sent to the closest laboratory and within two months the results would be out. "We are planning to keep at least three 'rape kits' in each of the police stations in the country, and when the full project is implemented the number will go up gradually," another official said.

The cost of the project would be shared between the central government (from the Nirbhaya Fund) and respective states in the ratio of 60:40. The kits are expected to help the law enforcement agencies to ensure effective investigation in a timely manner for better prosecution and convictions in sexual assault cases. The first lot of such kits was procured by the Bureau of Police Research and Development (BPR&D) and it has already started imparting forensic training to some police officers, the official said.

WhatsApp appoints 'grievance officer' for India

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Under pressure to clamp down on sinister messages, WhatsApp has appointed a "Grievance Officer" for India and detailed out the process for users to flag concerns and complaints, including those around fake news.

Meeting one of the key demands that India had put on WhatsApp to curb fake messages that triggered mob killings, the Facebook-owned company has updated its website to reflect the appointment of a "Grievance Officer" for India.

The update mentions that users can seek help through the mobile app, send an email or write in to 'Komal Lahiri', who is based out of the US. According to Lahiri's LinkedIn profile, she is senior director, global customer operations and localisation, WhatsApp.

When contacted, a WhatsApp spokesperson declined to comment on the matter but pointed to the public FAQ on the company's website that contains these details.

According to sources, the appointment of the Grievance Officer was made at the end of August. They added that the Grievance Officer for India being based in the US is in tune with similar practices by other American tech giants.

According to the WhatsApp website, users can reach out to the company's support team directly from the app under 'Settings' tab and in case they wish to escalate the complaint, they can contact the Grievance Officer directly.

A section within FAQs read: "You (users) can contact the Grievance Officer with complaints or concerns, including the following: WhatsApp's Terms of Service; and Questions about your account."

The updated FAQs also detailed out the mechanism for law enforcement officials to reach out to WhatsApp. The government has been pressing WhatsApp to develop tools to combat fake or false messages. One of the demands was to name a grievance officer to deal with issues in India.

India is WhatsApp's biggest market with more than 200 million users. It, in July, limited message forwards to five chats at a time and had also removed the quick forward button placed next to media messages to discourage mass forwarding. It has also introduced a 'forward' label to help users identify such messages.

The latest appointment is also significant as the Supreme Court, last month, had agreed to examine a petition alleging that WhatsApp does not comply with Indian laws, including the provision for appointing a grievance officer. The apex court had sought a reply on the matter within four weeks.

With general elections slated for next year in India, the government is taking a tough stance on use of social media platforms like Facebook, Twitter, and WhatsApp for spread of misinformation.

The Government had warned WhatsApp that it will treat the messaging platform as abettor of rumour propagation and legal consequences will follow, if adequate checks are not put in place. In a meeting held with WhatsApp Head Chris Daniels last month, IT Minister Ravi Shankar Prasad had asserted that the company will have to find a solution to track origin of messages on its platform, set up a local corporate entity that is subject to Indian laws within a defined time-frame as well as appoint a grievance officer.

WhatsApp, which has been slapped with two notices with a third one under consideration, has said it is in the process of establishing a local corporate entity.

It has, however, not accepted Government's demand for traceability of messages saying creating such a software will go against the idea of user privacy and end-to-end encryption.

EC to audit voters list, EVMs in poll bound States

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

In a move to bring transparency in the electoral rolls after demands of Opposition parties, the Election Commission (EC) will conduct an audit of poll-related activities and its preparedness in five poll-bound States — Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, Rajasthan, Mizoram and Telangana.

The audit will also reveal whether EC's instructions and directions are being followed in these States. The Opposition parties in all these States have alleged that lakhs of bogus voters have been included in the voters list ahead of the assembly polls due this year.

Top sources in EC said that the audit will include voters lists, polling stations, storage of electronic voting machines (EVMs) and functioning of VVPAT, the systematic voters' education and electoral participation (SVEEP) training activities, training of booth level officers (BLOs), voters' awareness programmes, accuracy of voters list, voters guide, risk management, polling booths and arrangement for disabled friendly voters.

In a letter to Chief Electoral Officers of these States, the EC has directed officials concerned to provide any clarification or information, which the teams may require as part of the audit immediately on the same day. According to EC sources, audit teams will soon visit to these States.

lines or legal provisions and follow it up by remedial actions by field machinery. The audit teams during their visit will deeply look into all aspects of roll management, including but not restricted to carrying out test, checks of records and physical verification," the EC said.

According to agencies report, the Chief Electoral Officer of Madhya Pradesh has asked the EC to postpone the visit, saying the finalisation of electoral rolls in the State is due to end later this month and that they should visit after that.

It is noted that Madhya Pradesh Congress has filed a petition before the EC, alleging that a large number of fake voters were included in the voters' list in connivance with booth-level officers (BLOs) across the state. Earlier, MP Congress unit president Kamal Nath and State Congress election campaign committee head Jyotiraditya Scindia had lodged a complaint with the Election Commission in Delhi claiming that there were about 60 lakh fake voters in Madhya Pradesh. The election commission, however, had said it found no merit in the Congress's allegations. Last month, the Congress in Rajasthan alleged that there were over 42 lakh duplicate entries in the voter list in the State. In Chhattisgarh, the Congress alleged of inclusion of eight lakh fake voters in the electoral rolls. The Congress in Telangana also alleged for 70 lakh bogus voters in the State.

Besides, the Commission also decided to use latest model of M3-type EVMs which is "non-tamperable" and credible. The Commission also directed Returning Officers of States and Union Territories to distribute photo voter slips to the political parties.

Rahul hires Nitish's former confidant as poll strategist

FAIZAN AHMAD ■ PATNA

Days after JD(U) endorsed Nitish Kumar proudd poll strategist Prashant Kishor in his party, his once close confidant Shashwat Gautam has been hired by Congress president Rahul Gandhi. The two sons of Bihar are all set to help Nitish and Rahul in the upcoming crucial 2019 Lok Sabha election as key strategists. Interestingly, Kishor had also worked for Congress while Gautam had worked for JD(U). Both are young, dynamic and foreign educated.

Gautam, who hails from Chaita village in West Champaran, has been appointed as national coordinator in the Data Analytics Department of the AICC and is likely to play a key role in the party's mission 2019. This department of Congress gathers data from across the country and chart out electoral policies. He has been assigned the task of designing communicative narrative and booth level organisation. Gautam was quoted saying, "My sole objective would be to ensure Congress has strong booth presence in 250 Lok Sabha constituencies. The focus would be to strengthen the party at the booth level across the country."

The role of Kishor in JD(U) is not publicly defined but it is strongly expected that he would work in close contact with Nitish and accomplish the mission assigned to him by the party chief. He already has started working and two days back when Nitish went to Delhi to have dialogue with BJP president Amit Shah on seat sharing, Kishor accompanied him and after Nitish returned he went ahead meeting Shah separately. Kishor worked as poll strategist of Nitish in 2015 Assembly election which saw Nitish returning to power in alliance with Lalu Prasad and the Congress by defeating the BJP-led NDA.

Gautam started working for Nitish in 2016-17 when he was heading the mahagathabandhan government and played his role in drawing up JD(U)'s strategy in Bihar and on the national level. But in the beginning of 2017 when some leaders of JD(U) started criticizing the RJD, Lalu and his sons, Gautam became uncomfortable and expressed his displeasure knowing little that they were speaking at the instigation of Nitish who was making strategy to go back to the NDA.

India, Egypt to boost defence, security ties

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

India and Egypt have decided to ramp up their defence and security ties which will include boosting counter-terror cooperation and carrying out joint exercises by their militaries, officials said.

The decisions were taken during talks between Defence Minister Nirmala Sitharaman and her Egyptian counterpart General Mohamed Ahmed Zaki Mohamed in Cairo.

She was on a two-day visit to Egypt from September 20-22. Officials said Sitharaman and Mohamed also deliberated on expanding naval cooperation between the two countries and explored possibilities of joint production of defence equipment.

They said both the sides are working towards holding joint exercises between their militaries. "They reviewed ongoing bilateral cooperation activities and discussed potential opportunities to further deepen ties and exchanges in the defence sphere," the Defence Ministry said.

It said the Ministers decided to explore deeper cooperation in the fields of defence industry including joint production of military equipment.

"Both sides reaffirmed their intent to enhance cooperation in counter-terrorism. Naval cooperation, including cooperation in maritime domain awareness, was identified as an area of potential," it said.

The Ministry said India and Egypt would also intensify training interactions between their militaries.

PTI ■ CHENNAI

Senior Supreme Court advocate Prashant Bhushan Son Sunday said the Rafale deal was the "largest defence scam in India" and urged the Centre to initiate a Joint Parliamentary Committee (JPC) probe into the matter.

Addressing reporters here, he questioned how Anil Ambani's Reliance Defence, the Indian offset partner of French firm Dassault Aviation, could be involved in the project as "most of his companies are in debt."

"This is not only the largest defence scam in India, but is one where national security has been severely compromised. While the IAF wanted 126 flights, it was reduced to 36," Bhushan said.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi had announced the procurement of a batch of 36 Rafale jets after holding talks with then French president Francois Hollande on April 10, 2015 in Paris.

Opposition Congress has accused the government of choosing Reliance Defence over state-run Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd to benefit the private firm though it did not have any experience in the aerospace sector. Lashing out at Modi and Defence Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, Bhushan charged the Centre with making IAF officials "lie" about the deal.

The jawan has been identified as Digambar Madhab (40), who hailed from Mumbai.

IPS officer's wife to contest as 'Independent' against Vasundhara Raje Jaipur: A serving Indian Police Service officer's wife will contest the upcoming Rajasthan Assembly election as an Independent candidate from Jhalrapatan constituency, currently represented by Chief Minister Vasundhara Raje.

Mukul Choudhary, wife of 2009-batch Rajasthan-cadre IPS officer Pankaj Choudhary, said her decision to contest against Raje was the democratic way to fight the "injustice" being faced by the people under the BJP dispensation.

"I will contest the election from Jhalrapatan, which is my birth place, on the issue of corruption and misrule as an Independent candidate. The entire state is suffering under the rule of the chief minister. Corruption is rampant and crime rate is increasing. I have been working on the ground against these issues," she told PTI on Sunday.

Choudhary alleged that her husband was exploited and served chargesheets and faced frequent transfers for doing honest work. PTI

Alagiri to contest from Karuna's constituency

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ CHENNAI

M K Alagiri, the estranged son of former Chief Minister and DMK president the late M Karunanidhi, declared on Sunday his decision to contest the by-poll from Thiruvurur Assembly constituency.

Thiruvurur has been represented by the late Karunanidhi since 2011 and is known as a stronghold of the Karunanidhi family.

Alagiri was expelled from the party in early 2014 for anti-party activities and has been keeping a low profile since then. Early this month, he had held a rally at Chennai to offer floral tributes to his late father and had drawn thousands of followers.

He has been demanding the DMK leadership to reinstate him and his followers in the party. But M K Stalin, his younger brother who is the new president of the party has been stonewalling his efforts to get back into the party.

Addressing his followers at Thiruvurur on Sunday, Alagiri said he would like to contest the bypoll on the Rising Sun symbol of the DMK. "I'll ask the DMK leadership to field me as a party candidate. If they refuse,

Alagiri was expelled from the party in early 2014 for anti-party activities and has been keeping a low profile since then

"I'll contest the by-poll as the son of Karunanidhi," declared Alagiri.

The announcement is sure to rattle the DMK leadership because Alagiri is certain to eat into the DMK votes. "What is interesting is that Alagiri is a specialist in winning elections. Whenever he had stayed away from the DMK, the party had lost the elections," said Raveendran Thiruswamy political commentator with specialisation in DMK politics.

He said Thiruvurur is a personal fiefdom of the Karunanidhi clan and Alagiri has an upper hand in the region. "The DMK had lost the 2011 and 2016 assembly elections and the 2014 Lok Sabha election because of the absence of Alagiri. Stalin will find it difficult to lead the DMK to an electoral victory without Alagiri's cooperation," said Thiruswamy. TN will soon have two by-polls- in Thiruparankundram and Thiruvurur assembly constituencies. The Thiruparankundram seat was held by the AIADMK. Both the AIADMK and the DMK face the possibilities of rebel candidates in these constituencies as TTV Dhinakaran of the Amma Makkal Munnetra Kazhagam too would field his loyalists to take on the ruling AIADMK.

PTI ■ WAYNAD/KOCHI

A Jacobite priest has been warned of disciplinary action and a Catholic nun restrained from church duties in a fallout of their participation in protests in Kochi demanding the arrest of rape accused Bishop Franco Mulakkal.

Sister Lucy Kalapura, who returned to her parish in Wayand Sunday morning from Kochi, claimed she was informed orally by the Mother Superior that she should keep away from holding catechism classes, conducting prayers and other activities related to the Syro Malabar Catholic church.

"No written orders were given to me. I was only informed orally by the Mother Superior not to participate in any church-related activities," the sister told PTI.

However, in a statement Father Stephen Kottakkal, vicar of the St Mary's church Karakkamala in Waynad, said Sister Lucy had been asked to keep away from duties in view of certain concerns expressed by the parishioners.

He denied the church had initiated any retaliatory measure against Sister Lucy for participating in the nuns protest in Kochi.

"The believers had informed us that they had some difficulties in sister Lucy participating in the church activities relating to Holy mass and taking classes for their children," he said.

The vicar said he had only 'conveyed' the general feeling of the parishioners with regard to certain posts of sister Lucy in the social media which they felt were not in consonance with the church beliefs. Many of them had informed him the same, he said.

The Franciscan Clarist Congregation St Mary's province Mananthavady, to which sister Lucy belongs, said she faced disciplinary action for various other reasons.

However, no explanation had been sought or action taken so far against her in connection with the nun's issue. Sister Lucy, however, maintained the restraint order against her was only for participating in the protests at Kochi.

The priest, Bar Yuhanon Ramban, belonging to a dayara in Ernakulam district, said Sunday he had received a 'warning' letter from his church headquarters in Damascus in Syria for supporting the nuns' protest. The letter also said he had campaigned for the implementation of Church Act, he told PTI.

According to the letter, his involvement and public speeches supporting the Catholic nuns were seemingly more than the envisaged living style of church priests.

It further said his activities had caused 'disgrace' to the status of Monasticism and warned that disciplinary measures would be taken if he continued with such deeds.

The priest alleged that some local bishops had conspired against him and sent wrong information to the church higher-ups in Syria and based on which they had issued the warning letter. He has written a letter to the Patriarch of Antioch, Mor Ignatius Aphrem II, the head of the Universal Syrian Orthodox Church, explaining his stand.

Indulekha Joseph, one of the leaders of the Kerala Catholic Church Reformation movement, alleged the action against sister Lucy was an attempt to silence the voices of protest against any form of unjust activities within the church. Social activist Swami Agnivesh condemned the action against sister Lucy and the Jacobite priest for supporting the five nuns. The nuns had protested for 13 days, demanding the arrest of the bishop who was accused of repeatedly raping a fellow nun.

The bishop, arrested on Friday after three days of intense grilling by Kerala police, is now in police custody.

Nun: Asked to keep away from church duties after protest against bishop Wayanad (PTI): A nun belonging to the Syro Malabar Catholic church alleged she was asked to keep away from church duties after she participated in a protest by nuns in Kochi demanding the arrest of rape accused Bishop Franco Mulakkal. Sister Lucy Kalapura, who returned here Sunday morning from Kochi, claimed she was informed orally by the Mother Superior that she should keep away from holding catechism classes, conducting prayers and other church-related duties.

"No written orders were given to me. I was only informed orally by the Mother Superior not to participate in any church-related activities," the sister told PTI. The church could not be contacted for comments. Five nuns had protested near the Kerala High Court at Kochi for 13 days, demanding the arrest of the bishop who was accused of repeatedly raping a nun. There was support for the protest from various quarters and Sister Lucy had also expressed her solidarity. The clergyman, who temporarily relinquished his administrative responsibilities as Jalandhar Bishop, was arrested Saturday after three days of intense grilling by the Kerala Police. The nun said no explanation was given to her for the decision and the restraint message from the vicar was conveyed to her through the Mother Superior. According to media reports, the Mananthavady diocese had recommended disciplinary action against Sister Lucy three months ago for allegedly posting some statements against the church in the social media, for purchasing a car through a loan and not wearing the nun's attire at a public function. However, Sister Lucy denied the charges, saying the restraint order against her was only for participating in the protests at Kochi. "I feel saddened that I have been asked to stay away from church duties. I had conducted holy mass till last Sunday. I got a lot of support from people of the congregation. "I have done no wrong nor said anything against the church. No reason has been given for the decision," she said, adding she would be happy if the church clarified where she had erred.

Filmmaker Kalpana Lajmi dies at 64

IANS ■ MUMBAI

Filmmaker and screenwriter Kalpana Lajmi, niece of the legendary Guru Dutt and acclaimed for making women-oriented films like 'Rudaali', 'Ek Pal', 'Daman' and 'Chingaari', died here on Sunday following a multiple organ failure, said her spokesperson. She was 64.

"Extremely sorry to inform you that Kalpana Lajmi passed away this morning at 4.30 am," the filmmaker's spokesperson Parul Chawla told IANS.

Lajmi breathed her last at the Kokilaben Dhirubhai Ambani hospital here, where she was admitted in the intensive care unit since Tuesday due to kidney-related issues, the spokesperson added. The cremation will take place at 12.30 p.m. at the Oshiwara crematorium.

Lajmi had been undergoing dialysis for a couple of years, and true to her indomitable spirit, had said in an interview last year: "My kidneys have failed, but I haven't."

She had forayed into film-dom as an assistant director under renowned filmmaker Shyam Benegal, following which she made her directorial debut with a documentary film in 1978.

Her feature film debut came with "Ek Pal". Her last directorial was "Chingaari", based on the novel "The Prostitute and the Postman" by the late Bhupen Hazarika, her long-time companion.

Lajmi had also penned a book, "Bhupen Hazarika: As I Knew Him", on Hazarika. It was launched on September 8 by Benegal and Lajmi's mother, painter Lalita Lajmi.

The filmmaker, who was hospitalised at that time too, could not attend the event as her doctors had refused to allow her a long commute.

Known for fearless filmmaking with women in strong roles, Lajmi's 1993 Dimple Kapadia-starrer "Rudaali" was even chosen as India's official entry to the 66th Academy Awards.

Navy aircraft locates vessel of injured naval officer

PTI ■ KOCHI

Indian Naval officer Abhilash Tomy, badly injured while participating in the Golden Globe Race, "rolling excessively," in the Indian Ocean, has been located and expected to be rescued by a French vessel Monday, Defence Minister Nirmala Sitharaman and the Navy said Sunday. Commander Tomy, whose vessel was located by an Indian Navy aircraft earlier, shall be picked up in the next 16 hours by French vessel Osiris, Sitharaman said in a tweet at 7 pm. The Minister also said she had spoken to vice-chief of Naval Staff Vice Admiral Ajit Kumar P regarding the condition of the injured navy officer.

"...The Rescue Mission is being coordinated with the Australian Navy. The injured officer shall be picked up in the next 16 hrs by a French vessel Osiris," Sitharaman said.

Tomy would be brought on board Australian Naval ship HMAS Ballarat, which has already left Perth to rescue him.

Indian Naval Defence Attache in Australia has been camping in the regional Maritime Rescue Coordination Centre (MRCC) monitoring the rescue mission, he said.

Earlier in the day, the spokesman said all efforts were being made to rescue Commander Tomy who had suffered a back injury Friday after his yacht was hit by a vicious storm with 14-metre-high waves mid-way across south Indian Ocean. "INS Satpura and INS Jyoti are heading at top speed to reach Tomy", the spokesman said. However, INS Satpura was expected to reach the location only by Friday. He said the situation was being monitored at Naval Headquarters in New Delhi, as well as by the Joint Rescue Coordination Centre at Melbourne, Australia. The Indian Navy's P8I aircraft, which flew from Mauritius in the early hours Sunday, has located the "mast broken boat rolling excessively", he said. "Commander Tomy responded by ping on EPIRB as the aircraft was flying over him," the spokesman said here. The spokesman said the capability of IAF's P8I aircraft had been a humongous force multiplier which had given a huge input into the state of yacht Thuriya for planning purposes. Quoting Captain Chandras Vivek, pilot of the aircraft which flew from Mauritius this morning, the spokesman said the aircraft established visual contact with the yacht and has landed back at Port Louis Mauritius. The position was relayed to JRCC Australia and the War room in New Delhi through INMARSAT, he said. The aircraft remained for two hours on the task in the area and landed at Mauritius. He said heavy rains have been reported from the area. Tomy can only be rescued by naval ships, he said. He had Sunday managed to get in touch with race organisers in France through messages and had requested for a stretcher as he could not move on his own. He was representing India in the Golden Globe Race 2018 (GGR) on an indigenously-built sailing vessel 'SV Thuriya'. Tomy, who became the first Indian to circumnavigate the globe in 2013, is the only Indian participating in the race that involves a gruelling 30,000-mile solo circumnavigation of the globe. His vessel is in the south Indian Ocean, about 1,900 nautical miles from Perth in Australia. Tomy's vessel was dismasted in extremely rough weather and sea conditions, with wind speeds of 130 kmph. He was in third position in the race and has sailed over 10,500 nautical miles in the last 84 days, since the race started on July 1.

SC-ST Act amended to protect country, Hindu society: BJP leader

PTI ■ INDORE (MP)

BJP leader Babu Singh Raghuvanshi on Sunday said the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act was amended to "protect the country and Hindu society".

"Our Government at the Centre was not under any pressure to amend the Act. We brought amendments to protect the country and Hindu society," said Raghuvanshi, chairman of Madhya Pradesh Small Scale Industry Corporation.

"Had the amendments not been brought, foreign forces would have fomented violence in the country," he told reporters. Asked about the claim that the Act is sometimes misused, he said, "Tell me which law is not misused. Should all laws be nullified then?" "We respect the feelings of upper caste Hindus. That is why Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan has said the amended Act will not be allowed to be misused," Raghuvanshi said. The BJP-ruled Madhya Pradesh has witnessed protests by upper caste organisations against recent amendments in the SC-ST Act.

Decibel levels go down, as Mumbaikars bid adieu to Lord Ganesh

T N RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

In a welcome departure from the past, the decibel levels came down markedly on the streets of Mumbai on the last day of the Ganesh festivities on Sunday, as more than 250 leading Ganapati mandals took out processions to various waterfronts across the metropolis to immerse the idols of the elephant-head God without DJs and Dolby Music systems which would have in the normal course contributed to massive noise pollution.

In a direct fallout of a total Bombay High Court's order banning the on the use of DJs and Dolby sound systems during the Ganesh and Navratri festivals, the revellers had to make do traditional and less noisy dhols and tashas, as they added colour to the Ganesh immersion proceedings in the city and suburbs.

The Ganpati immersion proceedings proved to be a relatively quiet affair, with 250-odd major Ganesh Mandals deciding to obey the order passed on Friday by the Bombay High Court which had put a total ban on the use of DJs and Dolby sound systems for Ganeshutsav and Navratri festivals.

While rejecting a plea for interim relief filed by Professional Audio and Lighting Association (PALA), a HC bench of Justices Shantanu Kemkar and Sarang Kotwal had said: "The police authorities have banned the use of DJ and Dolby sound systems. All these systems have to be operated strictly in adherence with Noise Pollution Rules 2000."

"We are not willing to accept the argument that ambient noise levels in many cities have exceeded permissible limits and, therefore, DJ systems should be permitted, which cause only a marginal increase in the decibel level over the prescribed norms. When laws are in place, they must be strictly followed," the judges had said in their interim order. However, the high court had allowed the use of traditional musical instruments like the dhol and tasha.

Amid rhythmic dhol beats and chants of "Ganpati bappa morya, pudhchya varshi lavkar ya" (Hail Lord Ganesh, do come back early next year), several major Sarvajani Ganesh idols - including Mumbai's prestigious Lalbaugcha Raja Ganapati idoli and "Mumbai Cha Raja" - made their way through their from Lalbaug in south central Mumbai quietly wended their way through the designated to the Girgaum Chowpatty where the immersion proceedings were expected to go on well past midnight.

Like every year, there was a massive turnout of people at various immersion sites across the city, including Girgaum Chowpatty, Dadar Chowpatty, Juhu Chowpatty, Marve beach, Madh Island, Powai lake, Madh Island, Manori Beach, Gorai beach, Mahim beach, Aarey lake, the Mithi River, its branches and various artificial lakes. In all, there were more than 110-odd immersion spots across the city and its suburbs.

Like every year, as many as 12,000 huge idols installed by Sarvajani Mandals, while at least 2,20,000 domestic idols were immersed at 69 natural and 41 artificial immersion spots on various significant days like the second day, fifth day, seventh and the last days during this year.

Under the watchful eyes of the 45,000-odd policemen, 12 companies of SRPF, one company of Rapid Action Force (RAF) and also personnel from the "Force One", Quick Response Team (QRT) and anti-bomb squads of the Mumbai police, the Ganesh immersion proceedings were continuing till in the night.

Through drones and CCTV cameras deployed at various places along the Ganesh immersion procession routes in the city, the police monitored the situation from various control rooms. Several major roads in the city had been fully closed for traffic to facilitate the passage of Ganesh proceedings.

In an effort to ensure against any untoward incidents during the Ganesh immersion proceedings, The Indian Coast Guard (ICG) had deployed shallow water response team on board a hovercraft, an Air-Cushion Vehicle, off the Mumbai coast.

On their part, the Mumbai police had set up as many 58 control rooms set up at major waterfronts, including Girgaum and Dadar chowpatties to keep a close watch of the proceedings. The Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC) had kept in readiness at least 600 life guards and 81 motor boats to ensure against any mishap during the immersion proceedings. The BMC had also installed 1,999 flood lights and 1,301 search lights at various immersion venues. The Railway Protection Force (RPF) and Government Railway Police (GRP) had also made elaborate arrangements along various suburban stations on the Central Railway (CR) and Western Railway (WR). As many as 8,000 BMC employees were present at various natural and artificial immersion venues.

Maharashtra chief minister Devendra Fadnis carried an eco-friendly Ganpati idol installed at his official residence "Varsha" at Malabar Hills and immersed it in an artificial lake.

Like every year, the Kapoor family members, including Rishi Kapoor, son Ranbir Kapoor and uncles Randhir and Rajiv, joined the immersion proceedings of Ganesh idol installed at the iconic RK Studios, where they broke a coconut each before the procession began.

This year's proceedings may perhaps the last of such a kind of Ganesh festivities witnessed at the R K Studio, especially in the light of an announcement made on behalf of the famous family by Rishi Kapoor that his family members had collectively decided to sell to the sprawling studio, built by his late legendary father Raj Kapoor, as they felt it was economically not viable to rebuild the place after a massive fire that broke there on September 16 last year.

Rupee falls due to black money leaving country: Swamy

PTI ■ PANAJI

BJP Member of Parliament Subramanian Swamy Sunday claimed that the value of the rupee was falling in comparison to the United States dollar because black money was "leaving" India.

Swamy was delivering a lecture titled "Indian Cultural Heritage and Its Importance," in Margao Sunday morning.

Stating that the fall in the value of the rupee had nothing to do with the US, Swamy said, "It has got to do with the fact that a large amount of black money is now leaving the country."

"When there is an oversupply of the rupee to the dollar, value is bound to go down," Swamy explained.

The rupee is the worst performing emerging market currency having lost almost 14 per cent since January this year. Between April and September the rupee has plummeted more than 7 to the dollar and has breached the psychological 73 mark last week.

The BJP leader, himself an economist, further claimed that the US dollar would continue to rule the global economy as long as that country remained the most developed nation in the world.

"The day it (USA) ceases to be most developed (nation), some other currency will take its place. But at the moment, there is no challenge to the dollar," he commented.

Speaking on the topic of the lecture, Swamy said that mythological king Ravana was born near Delhi and is not in ancient Lanka as widely believed.

"He was born in a village called Bisraah near Delhi," Swamy claimed.

The MP told the gathering that Ravana, armed with a boon from Lord Shiva for a penance at Mansarovar, proceeded to defeat Kubera to become "Lanka Naresh" there.

Jaish-e-Muhammad militant gunned down in Tral

KHURSHED WANI ■ SRINAGAR

A suspected foreign militant of Jaish-e-Muhammad outfit was killed in a fierce gun-battle with security forces in Tral sub-district of south Kashmir on Sunday. A civilian was also injured in the area when a tear smoke canister exploded during clashes between protesters and riot police.

Security sources said that one militant was killed in the encounter. He was identified as Adnan Bhai, a resident of Pakistan. Sources said other aides of slain militant might have fled from the foothill area situated near Lam forests where militant hideouts have been reported earlier also.

Police said the gunfight erupted in Dar Ganaigund village of Tral on Sunday morning when security forces cordoned off the area following input on presence of militants. The village is native place of Noor Muhammad Trali, a dwarf militant commander whose killing last year was described as one of the greatest achievements of the security forces in recent years. Tantray, who had served more than a decade in Delhi's Tihar Jail in connection with transporting arms to New Delhi, had single-handedly revived Jaish-e-Muhammad outfit in Kashmir Valley.

Sources said the security forces reached the suspected spot as the hiding militants opened fire that triggered a gunfight.

Reports of intense stone pelting and clashes between civilian protesters and the security forces poured in from the area near gunfight site and other areas while as tension gripped the Tral belt after the killing of Jaish commander.

Meanwhile, the mobile internet services continued to remain snapped in several south Kashmir areas including Shopian, Tral and Pulwama. The internet blockade is seen as an attempt to curb an online spree of militants exposing policemen and officers on social media and threatening them to tender resignations through social media. Sources said that over a hundred Special Police Officers (SPOs) have tendered resignations through social networking sites after three police personnel were killed by militants in Shopian district on Friday.

Another resignation by a woman SPO from south Kashmir's Kulgam district through social media networking sites has gone viral. In her video, message the woman SPO Rafiq Akhtar, a resident of Kulgam said that she was working with police for 15 years but was resigning "out of my own will".

The police authorities denied receipt of any formal resignations.

Meanwhile, a civilian abducted by unidentified gunmen in north Kashmir's Sopore area of Baramulla district late Saturday evening was untraced till last reports came in.

The family members of the abducted person have expressed grave concern over his well-being. Security sources said that 45-year Mushtaq Ahmad Mir, a labourer and resident of Harwan Sopore was picked up by unknown gunmen from his house.

Filing of FIR against BJP leader upsets TN Hindus

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ CHENNAI

Hindu leaders are upset over the Dravidian and Tamil chauvinist outfits which attack the community and its Gods. The decision of the federation of employees of the Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowment (HR&CE) Department of the Government of Tamil Nadu to file criminal cases against BJP leader H Raja has been cited by the community leaders as an attempt to stifle opposition to the high-handedness of the Dravidians.

The Federation of HR&CE Department Employees controlled by Left parties has filed a series of complaints against Raja in different police stations across the State for his "derogatory" comments against them. Raja, in a recent public speech, questioned the propriety behind the attitude of the HR&CE Department staff in avoiding the directives by the Madras High Court to submit details of the land owned by the temples administered by the Tamil Nadu Government and also the details of the ancient idols which were stolen/disappeared from the temples.

The Idol Wing of Tamil Nadu Police led by Pon Manickavel had arrested a couple of officials of the HE&CE department including a top rung commissioner. Many senior officials of the HR&CE department are under the scanner of the police following allegations of their complicity in the crimes. TR Ramesh, president, Temple Worshippers Society, a body involved in preparing the inventory of temple properties said that the HR&CE Department has become a cesspool of corruption. "Kapaleeswarar Temple management has purchased two brand new and fully loaded Toyota Innova cars. What is the purpose for squandering the wealth of temples on high end cars? This is not an isolated incident. Another nearby temple has purchased two similar cars for the use of the minister and his secretary," said Ramesh. Raja, who is known for stirring controversies which embarrass the Dravidian parties as well as the followers of E V Ramasamy Naicker, a reformer who fought for the rights of the Backward Castes in the State, leaves no

Dry Gujarat to open 40 more liquor shops

PNS ■ GANDHINAGAR

The State prohibition authority, functioning under the Department of Home, is learnt to have initiated the process to give permission to 40 new liquor shops in dry Gujarat.

At present 58 permit shops are functioning across different cities of Gujarat which are selling alcohol to permit holders and those visiting Gujarat from outside the state. With new permissions to be granted to open more liquor shops, the total number of permit shops would almost touch 100 in the near future.

Sources in the state prohibition authority informed that in the past five years as many as 68 applications were received. "We are in the process to issue notification regarding the new permit shops. Of these 40 new shops, 19 will be given permission soon," said a senior official.

It is worth mentioning that till 2014, there were only 26 official liquor shops in the state, but within the span of just three years the number increased to more than double and now it would be almost four fold by the end of 2018.

In the case of Gujarat's commercial capital Ahmedabad there were only five such shops till 2014, but now the liquor shops have increased to eleven.

Slain TDP MLA's supporters set two police stations on fire

OMER FAROOQ ■ HYDERABAD

Enraged by the killing of TDP MLA Sarveshwara Rao and his associate Soma by the CPI Maoist ultras, their supporters attacked two police stations and set them on fire.

Police officials said that the angry supporters of the two victims targeted the police station in Araku and Dumbriguda and set fire to the police station buildings, its furniture and record. Two wheelers parked outside were also burnt.

The angry mob was shouting against the policemen and held them responsible for the incident. They alleged that negligence by the Dumbriguda sub-inspector was responsible for the killings. Angry protestors also beat up two policemen while others escaped to save themselves.

It was after a gap of one and a half decades that the Maoists have targeted a big tribal leader in this belt. On March 18, 2004 they had killed Venkatraju, husband of State Tribal Welfare Minister M Manikumari.

Death of 2 students

Didi says no to Sep 26 bandh

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

Engaged in a frontal battle with the BJP, which has fast come up as the main Opposition party in Bengal, the ruling Trinamool Congress has vowed to foil the general strike called by the saffron outfit-protesting against the death of two students in firing at Darbhith village of Islampur block in North Dinajpur district.

The BJP has called a 12-hour shutdown in the State on September 26 to protest against the students' death.

The BJP has alleged that the two students died of police firing last week when the students of a local school were protesting against the appointment of Urdu and Sanskrit teachers keeping the more important departments like science, maths and history vacant.

"The deaths have been caused by the RSS-BJP who sent in their goons," Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee said adding the saffron groups were trying to politicise and communalise the issue.

"The RSS-BJP are responsible for the deaths as their masked goons and not the police fired at the students," Banerjee who was presently in Italy to attend a business meeting said, adding "there will be no bandh in Bengal. We will not allow any shutdown in our State. All the offices, educational and other institutions will remain open on Wednesday. No one will be allowed to hold the State to ransom."

CPI(M) members carrying an effigy of West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee during their protest rally against alleged police firing on the students in Kolkata, on Sunday

Sources said the Chief Minister had instructed the police administration to take pro-active steps to stop BJP from forcing the bandh.

"I have told the police brass to take necessary action against who will try to create nuisance. There will be no bandh in Bengal," she said while State Education Minister Partho Chatterjee said Trinamool Congress cadres will also descend on the streets to assist the administration in ensuring peace. "TMC workers will take part in peaceful rallies in all parts of the State and help the administration to keep all institutions open," Chatterjee said.

Warning the saffron organisations "not to play with fire by doing politics on the issue", she appealed to the people of the state not to pay heed to the politics of the BJP and the RSS and foil the shutdown.

Comparing the BJP and RSS with vultures waiting for a death in order to gain political mileage Banerjee said "they have started playing holi with the blood of the people of Bengal, but we will allow that culture to come to this State. "Saffron communalism is not acceptable in our State."

She said that the whole matter was pre-planned to give it a communal angle.

"When we appoint Sanskrit teacher there is no problem but when we appoint Urdu teacher they are creating problem by inciting the poor villagers."

North Dinajpur SP Sumit Kumar said the deaths were caused not on account of police firing. Meanwhile, the villagers refused to burn the corpse. Instead they buried the two bodies demanding repeated post-mortem and a CBI investigation into the killings.

The Left Front that had earlier called bandhs in local schools demanded judicial inquiry into the incident.

Central team probing death of 11 Asiatic lions in Gir

NAYAN DAVE ■ GANDHINAGAR

A Central Government team of wildlife experts has flown in to the last abode of endangered Asiatic Lions - Gir Forest - situated in western Gujarat to probe the deaths of 11 big cats in a span of just eight days.

Though the state forest department is claiming the death as natural, wildlife lovers and environmentalists are expressing doubts over the death of lions. According to top forest officials in the state, the lions died due to infighting and territorial war.

The Central team belonging to the Union Ministry of Forest and Environment has already initiated probe. They are examining autopsy reports of the dead animals and also questioning forest beat guards as well as people residing near Dalkhania and Jashadhar ranges of Gir forest where the lions died," said sources close to the development. According to sources in the state forest department, infact the state government took the incidences of lions' death extremely seriously and decided to take assistance of central government experts to curb any such causality of Asiatic lions in future. The report of central team would decide to further course of investigation, said the sources adding that the report of expert would make it clear the cause of death was due to poison, some diseases or because of infighting as claimed by the state forest officials. It is worth mentioning that Gujarat is steadfastly dragging its feet even after a Supreme Court order to hand over a few lions to neighbouring Madhya Pradesh for an alternative home for this epidemic prone species.

Due to heavy inbreeding, the lions Gir forest and surrounding areas are very susceptible to infection at one end and epidemic at the other. So many deaths in such a short span of time rang alarm bells and needed to be thoroughly probed, opined a retired IFS official from Gujarat forest department. The state forest department carries out a lion census every five years. The 2005 survey counted 359 lions while the number grew to 411 in 2010. The latest census in 2015 found 523 lions, 109 of which were male, 201 female, 140 cubs and 73 sub-adults.

57-foot tall Ganesha leads the way in Hyderabad

OMER FAROOQ ■ HYDERABAD

Thousands of idols of Vinayaka or Ganesh were immersed in Hussain Sagar and other lakes in and around Hyderabad as the ten-day festival came to an end on Sunday.

With more than 20,000 policemen deployed all around the city, specially on the route of the main procession from Balapur to the Hussain Sagar lake, the event passed off smoothly without any untoward incident. Hundreds of people, including women and children thronged the route and the banks of the picturesque lakes as the colourful idols of various sizes and shapes were immersed in the water with the help of more than a dozen cranes.

In a bit departure from the past, the gigantic 57-foot tall Ganesha of Khairatabad mandap was first to start its journey towards the lake. The biggest idol in the entire state was taken in procession at 7 am and by noon it was immersed in the lake. Its laddu weighing 508 kg was distributed among the devotees. As the massive idol used to take a lot of time in transport and create traffic jam on the roads if taken out late, Hyderabad city police commissioner Anjani Kumar had requested the Pandal committee to start the procession early in the morning. Before the main procession started its 20 kms long journey from Balapur in the vicinity of Hyderabad, its laddu was auctioned for Rs 16.16 lakhs at the pandal. The Laddu was fetched by Arya Vysya Sangham of the area. The money which was Rs one lakh more than last year, will be spent on the developmental works in Balapur. Starting from 1994 the auction price of the auspicious Laddu kept increasing every year. As the procession moved through the sensitive areas of old city including Charminar-Mecca Masjid complex and Pathagatti, policemen and the personnel of CRPF and Rapid Action Force kept a close watch on the proceedings.

With more than 450 CCTV cameras installed to cover the entire route, the Commissioner and other officials watched its moment from the command and control room and issued directions to the force on the ground. A large number of idols had gathered at the Moazzam Jahi Market junction before they moved towards the lake. The area around Hussain Sagar lake turned into a sea of humanity with massive crowds gathering to bid adieu to the Ganesha till next year.

Telangana DGP K Mahinder Reddy said that elaborate security arrangements were also made in other districts and towns across Telangana by deploying 65000 personnel. Three persons had a narrow escape in Karimnagar when the crane carrying them along with an idol fell down during the immersion.

Minor tension prevailed in Jagatyal town when some miscreants threw stones at the police after an argument.

An assistant sub inspector Nimma Naik who was deployed in Hyderabad on special duty died on heart attack last night. Naik who hails from Kazipet was posted at Siddipeta and had come to Hyderabad for Ganesh procession arrangements.

French gust of wind

Is the Congress hoping that constant allegations on the Rafale deal will make muck stick to Modi, or is there more to it?

The French name their fighter jets well, an illusion for the Mirage and a Gust for the Rafale. But the deal between India and France to purchase 36 Rafale fighters seems to now be stuck in a political quagmire. The main allegation, constantly repeated by the Congress and its leader, Rahul Gandhi, is that the deal to purchase the Rafales is a corrupt one because the deal involves offsets, and the choice of the partner to conduct those offsets, in this case the Anil Ambani headed Reliance-ADAG Group, was chosen arbitrarily. The ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has been steadfast in denying these allegations, yet has not made public many aspects of the deal, with Union Defence Minister Nirmala Sitharaman saying that she refuses to engage the Opposition on this deal, Rahul Gandhi has accused her of being a "liar" and Arun Jaitley, the Finance Minister called Gandhi a "clown prince". The BJP believes that the Congress is desperate to make the Rafale a key electoral plank ahead of the 2019 Lok Sabha poll and hopes to, by constantly repeating the allegations, make muck stick on Prime Minister Narendra Modi himself. The French have been dragged into this quagmire constantly, first with the current French Prime Minister Emmanuel Macron and now with some apparently explosive revelations by former French President Francois Hollande on the choice of Reliance-ADAG, which have been denied by the current French administration and by the Rafale's manufacturer Dassault themselves.

On one thing there is no doubt, the Congress has managed to put the Rafale deal front and centre in the English-language media, although the deal has been ignored for the large part by regional media. And while all this is going on, the Indian Air Force has started sending its pilots to France to train on their aircraft. The earlier Congress allegations on the apparently inflated price have been answered by Defence journalists who have explained that the higher price is due to modifications made to the India specification aircraft. But the Congress seems determined to make the allegations stick, their leadership wants to do to Modi what the Opposition led by VP Singh at that time, did to Rajiv Gandhi around the Bofors scandal in 1989. But while the allegations raised by the Congress are being answered by private citizens, the seemingly stoic silence of the Government on the scandal is extremely surprising and supporters of the Prime Minister are surprised and even shocked. It is because the BJP is confident that this will not become an electoral issue or is it because they want the Congress to make this the main plank for 2019 instead of other crucial issues, such as the lack of jobs, and then answer the allegations conclusively ahead of the hustings. Whatever the strategy, this issue has been going on for far too long and in these days of short attention spans a sort of fatigue is setting in despite a constant drip in allegations and counter-allegations. It would be smart of the Government to finally put the allegations to bed or for the Opposition to come out with a clinching evidence that proves that Modi himself is corrupt.

50 WORDED IT Consistency is the key

With the Government cancelling the India-Pakistan Foreign Ministers' meet scheduled at the UN General Assembly, hopes for an engagement with our terror-sponsoring neighbour in the near future appear bleak. It should safely be assumed that no movement on this front will occur till the results of the General Election are in and a Government with a fresh mandate is sworn-in. As citizens, consistency in our Pakistan policy regardless of whose in power is all we can hope for.

Surgical politics?

Even those simpatico are puzzled, to say the least, at the Government's ham-handed effort to gain political mileage

There is not an Indian citizen who is not proud of our country's Armed Forces. Certainly, information about their successes and challenges must be — in a respectful and subtle as opposed to in-your-face and hagiographic manner — conveyed to the country's youth in a well thought out campaign which evokes respect for our women and men in uniform in the line of duty but without necessarily promoting a militaristic mindset. That's what it takes to make matters military and issues of national security part of a holistic nation-building process. The University Grants Commission's proposed celebration of 29 September a surgical strikes day at universities and their affiliated colleges in India, on the other hand, does nothing of the sort. This extension of a mindset which thought putting tanks on display on the JNU campus — though leading members of that institution from both the students' and teachers' bodies do in many ways symbolise all that is wrong with the deracinated, entitled liberal elite in our country — is far too crude a ploy for a nation that has had a tradition of sophisticated public discourse or samvada from antiquity.

That the current dispensation thinks the body in charge of higher education in the country should spend its time organising marches by NCC Cadets, speeches by ex-servicemen, cultural programmes and the like next week to commemorate an effective cross-border raid against terror bases by the Indian Army two years ago, betrays just how thin on the ground it feels its achievements record has been. For, if surgical strikes by a professional and superbly led Army is what the Government is reduced to playing up to generate 'nationalist' fervour and the not-so-subliminal identification of the BJP as the party which best represents that emotion, it stands to reason that the party feels its other achievements, of which there have been quite a few, ironically, as there have been some major mistakes, are not gaining enough traction. As for the strike themselves, while the scale and modus operandi of the 2016 cross-border intrusion by our forces may have been different from previous occasions and could arguably (though experts disagree) be considered strategic in nature as opposed to earlier such operations which have been conducted since the 1990s that were more tactical, it is certainly safe to say the wheel in this regard was not invented two years ago. From posters celebrating the strikes to 'going public' with them to leverage support in a lowest common denominator public discourse shaped by the mass media may or may not get the BJP votes. But it will certainly wind up making a tamaras out of one of the last institutions in the country marked by a very necessary degree of discreetness and professionalism.

Unlike India, where the Government's ban on sale/purchase of cattle evoked stiff opposition, the US has taken measures to respect its culture not only within its own confines but beyond as well

A recent event in far away America and complete silence on the part of 'left liberal' pack to it, has exposed their double standards and has also underlined the tenacious relationship between the laws of a country and its culture and traditions. The US House of Representatives in the second week of September unanimously passed two resolutions in a voice vote that would affect the people's choice of 'what to eat'.

The first one was banning Americans from slaughtering dogs and cats for human consumption — a rare practice but that is still legal in 44 states. The other one urged countries like China, South Korea, Thailand, the Philippines, Indonesia, Cambodia, Laos, Vietnam and India to follow suit. Known as the Dog and Cat Meat Trade Prohibition Act, 2018, it also imposes a fine of $5,000 (over ₹3,50,000) for each violation.

The bipartisan Bill by Florida Representatives

Vern Buchanan, a Republican, and Alice Hastings, a Democrat, makes it illegal to knowingly slaughter, transport, possess, buy, sell or donate dogs or cats or their parts for human consumption.

Congresswoman Claudia Tenney said, "Dogs and cats are meant for companionship and recreation. Tragically, more than 10 million dogs are killed for human consumption every year in China." Meanwhile, Taiwan last year became the first Asian country to pass such a law.

Si Lanka is the first country in South Asia that banned the sale of cattle for meat, following a legislative measure. This ban united the two main ethnic groups on the island, Tamils and Sinhalese. In India, there is legislation against cow slaughter in almost all States except Kerala, West Bengal and certain parts of the North-East.

These developments are obviously result of a long evolutionary process experienced by humanity over thousands of years. By mid-first millennium, all three major Indian religions — Buddhism, Hinduism and Jainism — propagated non-violence as an ethical value, and something that impacted one's rebirth.

By about 1000 CE, vegetarianism, along with a taboo against beef, became a well accepted mainstream Hindu tradition. God Krishna and his Yadav kinsmen and Hindus in general, are associated with cows, adding to its endearment. Animal sacrifices have been rare among the Hindus outside a few eastern States. To the majority of modern Indians, respect for cattle and disrespect for slaughter is a part of their ethos and there is no ahimsa without renunciation of meat consumption. Abhorrence for the meat of the bounteous cow as food was regarded as the first step to total vegetarianism.

THOSE WHO OPPOSE BAN ON COW SLAUGHTER DO SO NOT TO UPHOLD SOMETHING OF GREAT VALUE BUT TO SHOW THEIR CONTEMPT FOR INDIAN ETHOS, SPITE ITS TRADITIONS, AND TO HUMILIATE HINDUS AND PERPETUATE THE DIVISIVE MINDSET OF THE BRITISH

The reverence for cow was one of the reasons for the first Indian war of independence of 1857 against the British East India Company. Hindu and Muslim sepoys in the army of the Company believed that their paper cartridges, which held a measured amount of gunpowder, were greased with cow and pig fat.

Loading the gun by soldiers required biting off the end of the paper cartridge. Muslims and Hindus strongly felt that through the use of these controversial cartridges, the British were conspiring to obliterate their religious identity. A violent revolt by sepoys followed, termed as the first war of independence by Indians against the British.

When did the practice of slaughtering cows for food start in India? Till the arrival of the Europeans, first as traders and later as colonial power, cow was seldom killed for food in India, in spite of Muslims ruling large parts of the country. Reasons are not far to seek.

Islam was born in the deserts of Arabia and it had no cows. Obviously, the Arabs, who fought relentless wars against 'non-believers' across the world (including India) had no traditions of slaughtering cow. So the barbers of Islam from the desert to India through repeated invasions, largely led the venerable cow alone.

After the Islamic rule was stabilised in India, the rulers realised the importance of cow in the social and religious life of the local populace. Cow slaughter was an avoidable irritant to their rule. So many of them (with few exceptions such as bigots like Aurangzeb) made cow slaughter a punishable offence in their regime. After the overthrow of the Company rule in Delhi in 1857, an aged Bahadur Shah Zafar was reinstated as the King Emperor of India. A revolutionary council was constituted to assist and advise the octogenarian blind Emperor. The very first firm signed by Zafar at the instance of the Council, was to declare hurting or killing, cow or its progeny, a capital offence.

Within few months, the British regained Delhi. Though the 1857 revolution failed, it had left the British badly shaken. But they were quick learners. To consolidate their rule, the colonial masters started working on the fault lines of Indian society under their policy of 'divide and rule'.

For Europeans, including the British, beef was a delicacy and a preferred choice for table. Muslims who had shared largely a hostile relationship between themselves, spanning over six centuries. It is against this background that the Directive Principals of the Indian Constitution call upon the state to take all measures to promote and protect cow and its progeny. Essentially, through, this directive, the Constitution is seeking to recognise and respect the unique status cow enjoys in the Indian psyche, tradition and culture. The US has gone ahead and taken measures to respect its culture, not only within its own confines, but beyond as well. There are no reports of 'votaries of freedom' taking to streets against this move to assert their 'right of choice of food' from anywhere.

None has so far killed a cat or dog publicly anywhere in the world to protest against this "liberal" move on the part of the US, the way some Congressmen in India had done on May 27, 2017. They had slaughtered a calf on the road side in Kerala, cooked and served it against the Modi Government's decision to ban sale and purchase of cattle from animal markets for slaughter, which was later rolled back. Why none is coming forward in India or the US to assert his/her choice of food? In Kerala in the wake of the American move to ban Dog and cat meat? The reason is simple. Those who oppose ban on cow slaughter, do so not to uphold something of great value, but to show their contempt for Indian ethos, spite its traditions, and to humiliate Hindus and perpetuate the divisive mindset of the British.

India's stroke epidemiology

Given India's high stroke burden, while significant advancements in treatment have been made the need is for an in-depth study of genetic and epidemiological factors to understand the root of the problem

India is undergoing epidemiological transition and is faced with a daunting dual challenge of both communicable and non-communicable diseases. Notably, while communicable diseases continue to pose intermittent challenges to the country's health care infrastructure with seasonal epidemics, cases of non-communicable diseases are mounting and constitute a much higher disease burden than communicable diseases.

This is largely explainable in terms of increasing life-expectancy, changing demography, rapid urbanisation, the pernicious impact of globalisation, changing lifestyle leading to sedentary work-nature, nuclearised families, rising stress and work-life imbalance.

An intriguing finding emerging from stroke incidence studies in our country is that Indians are more susceptible to stroke than their Western counterparts. The estimated incidence rate of stroke in India has recorded, in different studies, age-standardised incidence rate of 145 and 154 per 1,00,000 per year; whereas in the US, it is 107 per 1,00,000; in Europe 61 to 111 per 1,00,000 per year; and Australia 99 per 1,00,000 per year. A higher incidence of stroke in India, therefore, calls for an in-depth study of genetic and epidemiological factors, which are yet to be fathomed out and elucidated.

It is worthwhile to note and encouraging that for treatment of stroke, significant advances have taken place in terms of technology as well as drugs. Since 2015, a number of research studies have consistently demonstrated that blockage of major artery supplying blood to the brain can be removed with the use of devices which can either suck out or ensnare and pull out the blood clot.

This treatment can salvage the brain tissue at risk, which can be identified through neuro-imaging technology. These technological advances have brought significant success in improving the patient's condition after the stroke.

There are also clot dissolving drugs which can help open the blockage and the affected artery, if used within three to four-and-half hours after the onset of the stroke. Let there be no doubt that sincere efforts are being made to make these technologies and treatments available for patients with stroke.

But it remains a matter of deep concern and worry that even under best circumstances, not more than 10 per cent of the patients with stroke are fortunate enough to get these high-tech and high cost treatments. Moreover, coupled with an acute shortage of accomplished neurologists and neurosurgeons, the problem gets compounded for worse. Obviously, societal impact of these state-of-the-art technologies and treatments is quite small, given the enormity of the problem of strokes and constraints of accessibility and affordability of treatments available.

This calls for further research so as to develop widely applicable and high impact treatment modalities, besides creating an adequate pool of highly specialised and expert doctors.

Remarkably, as pointed out by an Australian study, simple interventions such as control of fever, blood sugar and swallowing can make more difference in patient outcome than clot-dissolving drugs. It is remarkably radical in terms of its engagement with the hitherto untalked about emotionally intimate relationships between people who were attracted towards each other but regressive social circumstances placed them under certain conditions where physical intimacy was absolutely forbidden.

Lily Ray is arguably the most successful and celebrated contemporary writer of Maithili language. Like the veteran Hindi author, Phanishwar Nath 'Renu', she is an exceptionally gifted short-story writer and novelist after her death of her publication in 1954.

Similarly, Ray's magnumopus, Marichika, a Maithili novel about the growing disappointment with and gradual disintegration of the once reigning feudal mindset, generated a great deal of euphoria and jubilation in the Maithili literary universe when it was published by Maithili Academy in 1981. It moved educated Maithili circles and went on to fetch the Sahitya Akademi Award the very next year in 1982. It was one of the most moving moments for Maithili literature since a woman writer was chosen for this prestigious award for the first time.

Initially writing with a pseudonym Kalpana Saran, she rose to instant fame with her famous short story called Rangeen Parida. It is remarkably radical in terms of its engagement with the hitherto untalked about emotionally intimate relationships between people who were attracted towards each other but regressive social circumstances placed them under certain conditions where physical intimacy was absolutely forbidden.

A doyen of Maithili literature

Lily Ray, one of the most celebrated contemporary Maithili writers, has produced some literary gems. Known for her work which reveals the voices and sentiments of the disadvantaged, she rightly deserves the Jnanpith Award

Apart from numerous short-stories spread over two different collections, she has written four novels — Patakshep, Marichika, Upanhar and Jjivikha. Her first novel centred around the idea of a bloody revolution along the lines of Naxalbari movement in a specific village called Tulsiapur of Purnia district. Even after attaining independence, equitable land distribution remained a distant reality and exploitation of the landless villagers a norm rather than an exception.

Such societal disparities were often said to be responsible for the emergence of naxalite leaders, like Shivnarayan, who helped spread awareness among the villagers about the concept of class struggle, never failed to emphasise the immediate aftermath of its publication in 1954.

Young enthusiastic intellectuals like Anil, Dilip and Sujet go and help Shivnarayan and meticulously plan for a revolution. However, certain irreparable gaps and fissures in the organisational structures and ideological imprints led to the sudden extinction of the planned revolution. The novelist is artistically exquisite but in a subtle and surreptitious way suggests the inherent contradictions in the very idea of violent revolutions and its efficacy in paving the way for an egalitarian social system in rural India.

From literary point of view, this novel manifests tremendous potential of a promising novelist who goes on to showcase her extraordinarily outstanding ability to construct a classic called Marichika. Striking a fine balance between craft and content of the novel, we are entertainingly told about the gradual decadence of an apparently strong and powerful socio-political order which is often called feudal system.

Through multi-layered narratives giving distinctly different voices to three successive generations of people and their changing perspectives on life and times they live in, the novelist not only successfully exposes the futility of several worldly machinations and shrewd maneuvering, but also effectively engages with complex relationships between residual feudal practices and emergent modern tendencies in an artistically satisfying manner so as to foreground the inevitable sense of disappointment and dispondency.

Her skillful and entertaining engagement actually defines the ways in which the nuanced socio-political and cultural history of the region called Mithila has been wonderfully written with a profound postcolonial perspective. An eminent, bilingual literary critic, Harish Trivedi, has so succinctly explained the rationale behind his claim to read and interpret Phanishwar Nath Renu as a true postcolonial novelist for his telling depiction of theme of disillusionment in Maia Aanchal.

It is important to mention that Maithili novel Marichika is almost equally telling and effective in its representation of the dominant mood of disenchantment. Interestingly, the writers of both these novels come from similar cultural and linguistic backgrounds. Such common cultural-ly rich backdrops perhaps equipped and enabled them in significant ways with a predominant postcolonial voice to contribute meaningfully to Hindi and Maithili literatures respectively.

Maithili poetry has been quite noteworthy right from the days of Vidyapati, who wrote exhilarating love songs of Radha and Krishna during the late 14th and early 15th centuries. But novel writing in Maithili began rather late. Both Bangla and Hindi writers had already produced terribly good novels before Maithili novels began to dominate the literary horizon.

Konyadan by Harimohan Jha was the first major novel which caught the attention of almost the entire Maithili community. People from diverse walks of life began to read novels. He championed the cause of female education in his path breaking novel and readers seemed to approve the idea.

The kind of trajectories which the genre of novel in Maithili has charted, for instance, from the days of the first major novelist, Harimohan Jha through those of Baidya Nath Mishra Yatri, Rajkamal Chaudhary, Jeev Kant, Lalit to Lily Ray marks its modest beginning but phenomenal growth gradually. Its spectacular evolution exhibits the respective novelists' primary preoccupations with misery and misfortune of women, and the plight of peasants followed by nationalist upsurge of certain ideals and aspirations which were, however, accompanied by a deep sense of disillusionment with these ideals and aspirations.

Lily Ray has always stayed entirely away from petty political-ideological and literary networking which is so entrenched in all kinds of literary spheres. And she has done wonders over the decades. Her literary gems cast a magical spell over the readers who get so charmed and indeed overwhelmed with her enchanting short-short stories and novels.

She has already received both the Sahitya Akademi Award and Prabodh Sahitya Samman for her tremendous contribution to the growth of Maithili novels and short-stories. And there is almost complete consensus about her invaluable output and literary worth among the Maithili literary practitioners who are otherwise deeply divided along caste and gender lines. Almost all are unanimous that this wonderful writer, who reached the pinnacle of literary success without much of formal education, should be conferred Jnanpith award for her enduring contribution to the making of Indian literature through her cutting edge literary craft and powerfully moving content dealing as it does with the central theme of disillusionment of heroic characters like Hira who despite their struggles and consequent material accomplishments get thoroughly disappointed and disenchanted with the painful circumstances prevailing in Maithil region of the nation.

Such capitulating narration of a representative figure of the nation with adequate focus on the struggles but inevitably followed by disappointment and hopelessness of its inhabitants makes Ray a quintessential postcolonial writer entirely worthy of the highest literary award we have in our country.

Policy reset needed to curb fuel prices

All oil companies are rolling in profits though the country is reeling under high fuel prices. This calls for a much-needed shift in policy, globally

High oil prices have put the Indian economy on flames. Rising inflation, though not reflective in statistics, is impacting the price of commodities. Urban voters are judging the Government's policies on the basis of rising market prices and petrol, particularly diesel, and are considering themselves the victims. Are rural voters not concerned? They are. Farm input and output costs have increased. Rural voters are often less vocal. So will this become a political issue? Possibly it will. But people are confused whether the Government's taxing of fuel is prudent or whether it has an alternative. The Government is of the view that it is losing revenue. This is debatable because of the inclusion of the GST, and it has to be made up by continuous and multiple taxing of fuels. In fact, fuel taxing has many dimensions, including raising 'cess' for highways, expressways and rural road construction. Road cess is eight rupee per litre as against the previous two rupee per litre. This has raised the annual collection from around ₹33,000 crore to ₹1.13 lakh crore a year. (This is in addition to other taxes collected that was at ₹88,600 crore in 2013-14.)

The argument in this year's Budget was that since excise collections would be lost due to GST, petro-products must be additionally taxed. It is difficult to say whether it is good economics or not. In fact, regimes that put high taxes remain in popularity and affect the well-being of society. Officially, every Government suffers stoic on inflation. It is even argued to be a common phenomenon. But it forgets the fact that any banker or economist considers inflation as undesirable as it hits the Government the most. Inflation makes budgetary projections awry. At such points, Governments often make stringent rules. It professes that to counter exigencies, people must cope up with difficulties — they should be prepared to pay higher taxes to rescue the Government. Various tax and law and order machineries become oppressive. This adds to corrupt practices in the society. According to the Finance Ministry, the Government expects to mop up more than ₹2,579 lakh crore by levying taxes on petroleum products by the end of this fiscal. This is a massive jump. In the last fiscal, the collection was ₹2,016 lakh crore. These collections stabilised the fluctuating GST collections in the indirect tax kitty. Now when international prices remain at around $80 per barrel, prices have crossed limits when it was around $20 per barrel, four years back. Reasons are definitely higher taxes and cess. A Crises research said that owing to the falling value of the rupee, which has made buying of oil from overseas costlier, India's import bill is likely to surge to $28 billion in 2019. This means trouble for the Government as it has to meet up for more money. As it is, it is saddled with the issue of the US sanctions on Iran. This means India has to look for about 12 per cent of its import from elsewhere.

A shift in policy, globally is needed. It may take time as Russia is also similarly being tormented through sanctions. It has been observed that the Indian currency has become a difficult performer since the world became unipolar. It is strange that many countries, smaller than the size of the smallest Indian State, have stronger currencies. India, now over a two trillion dollar economy, needs to look into this aspect. In the immediate context, the Government should bring down prices by rational pricing. Fuel should not be taxed heavily. Despite growth, it is a fledgling economy and high taxes apart from adding to the costs also create distortions as it affects travel, transport and production. It makes even food grain production uneconomic, adding to farm distress. Ultimately, it is a tax on the country's growth.

Crises study also says that excise duties have risen significantly since 2013-14, accounting for 22 to 25 per cent of the retail prices of petrol and diesel respectively, compared with 12 to 15 per cent earlier. There is a window and the Government can use it. The price of domestic oil production is linked to international prices. While that can have some sense, it is a skewed policy. The production cost of Indian crude is far less than international prices but production has been falling in the last seven years. It has slumped to 32 million metric tons in July 2018 from 38.1 million metric tons in 2011-12. The average cost of production is around $40 a barrel, almost half of the international prices. But the Oil and Natural Gas Corporation and other oil companies make phenomenal profit selling it at international prices, which is unethical.

India imports 195.7 million ton crude. Approximately, domestic production is 20 per cent. The oil companies can create a new Indian price by putting Indian crude price at about two dollar more than production cost, that is at $42 per barrel. This could reduce the actual oil price in the entire imports by about 20 per cent. But this has to be backed up by cut in taxes. If this methodology with some minor changes could be adopted it would be a great lubricant for the economy. Immediately without a loss, prices of petrol can come down to around $60 a litre. It is not happening because somehow the budget word in Indian companies is high profits. All oil companies are rolling in profits though the country is reeling under high petrol prices. India needs rational policy to reset the prices. If it is done, the politics would also change for the better.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

STRIKING THE RIGHT NOTE

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Right note" (September 21). Although the Rashtriya Swamayanek Sangh (RSS) has been in existence for 92 years, it has been working silently to pursue its original mission to get the majoritarian Hindu society rid of major evils of untouchability, casteism, disunity, indiscipline, lack of moral values and patriotic sentiments. However, its pseudo-secular opponents and communists, painted it in worst colours of communalism, bigotry and anti-Muslim tendencies.

The editorial has rightly applauded Bhagwati's "message of moderation" and "successful outreach" that included condemnation of cow vigilantism, support for inter-caste marriages, acceptance of SC/ST quotas in the Constitution and Muslims are Christians as an essential part of the Indian society.

"The day it is said that Muslims are unwanted here, the concept of Hindutva will cease to exist", the RSS chief asserted in his maiden speech at New Delhi's Vigyan Bhawan. He projected a contemporary and 'adaptive' image of Hinduism, a Santan Dharma, not a religious faith, going back thousands of years — the era of epics and Upanishads.

FIR-FLOP ON PAKISTAN

Sir — This refers to the report, "India calls off talks with Pakistan" (September 22). The Indian Government has no consistency in the Pakistan policy. Time and again it reiterates that terror and terrorism cannot take place. This time, too, terrorists came together but every time it backtracks from its stand by talking to Pakistani officials on foreign lands.

India rightly called off peace talks with Pakistan

When Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan offered for a dialogue through a letter addressed to Prime Minister Modi, it was felt that it would not be wrong to resume dialogue and give peace a chance. But history is replete, whenever India has joined hands with Pakistan, the move has been thwarted by terrorists. These outfits take every care to ensure that dialogue does not take place. This time, too, terrorists came together but every time it backtracks from its stand by talking to Pakistani officials on foreign lands.

As if this was not enough, other cops were intimidated to resign for their posts from the police department. The Government denied that the cops resigned to resume dialogue and give peace a chance. But history is replete, whenever India has joined hands with Pakistan, the move has been thwarted by terrorists. These outfits take every care to ensure that dialogue does not take place. This time, too, terrorists came together but every time it backtracks from its stand by talking to Pakistani officials on foreign lands.

Kashmir may opt for resignation. Massive resignations set a bad precedent. Absence of police personnel will pave way for terrorists and criminals to make large inroads to create panic and shake the conscience of the common man. If Imran Khan is serious about a dialogue, he should not only trace those responsible for the abduction and killing of cops, but also ensure condign punishments for them.

KV Sevetharamiah Hassan

New Delhi has called off the bilateral meeting, scheduled on Pakistan's request, between Indian Foreign Minister Sushma Swaraj and Pakistan Foreign Minister Shah Mahmood Qureshi in New York on the sidelines of UN General Assembly, following the latest brutal killings of Indian security personnel in Jammu & Kashmir and the release of a postage stamp glorifying slain terrorist Burhan Wani.

But who did the Government agree for a meeting at all? What changed in the ground situation in Jammu & Kashmir? The fact is that Imran Khan became the Prime Minister of Pakistan due to the military's backing.

The Army-terrorist nexus, which is the villain of India-Pakistan peace process, now rules the roost. All votaries of talks with Pakistan must accept that peace with Pakistan remains a wishful thinking till there is a ruler which would rein the Army and wipe out terrorists.

Curb on imports to bring rupee to 68-70: DEA Secy

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Government will "very soon" implement the second set of measures including curb on imports of non-essential items to shore up rupee to 68-70 level against the US dollar, Economic Affairs Secretary Subhash Chandra Garg said, terming the about 12 per cent slide in the currency as a temporary phenomenon.

The Government had earlier this month announced easing of overseas borrowing norms for manufacturing companies, removal of restrictions on foreign portfolio investors (FPI) investment in corporate bonds and tax benefits on Masala bonds to shore up rupee and check widening of current account deficit.

Now, the Centre has prepared a list of non-essential items whose imports can be curbed and also drawn up a separate list of goods whose exports can be boosted with a little policy intervention, Garg told in an interview.

On the rupee continuing to fall despite the first set of measures, he said "full components of the steps have not been implemented as yet, especially curb on import of non-essential items and boosting some of the exports etc. Those are still to come."

"These measures are at the final stage. Very soon, these should be announced," he said.

A group headed by the Commerce Secretary has "more or less" completed its task on finalising the list, the DEA secretary said.

"Once it gets the nod from higher-ups, it will be announced...It will happen very early," he said.

The rupee has been battered for over a month now amid sell-offs sweeping emerging markets following a rout in the currencies of Argentina and Turkey. The Indian currency has set a string of record lows, dampening some of the optimism about India's world-beating economic growth.

The rupee on last on Friday closed at 72.20 to the US dollar, higher than the record low of 72.91 it had hit earlier this month.

The Government, Garg said, is concerned about the rupee's slump and its adverse impact on the Current Account Deficit (CAD).

The CAD, difference between inflow and outflow of foreign exchange, widened to 2.4 per cent of GDP in the first quarter.

The fall in rupee has shot up oil import bill for the world's fastest-growing oil user by 76 per cent to $10.2 billion in July.

Garg said the appropriate level for the rupee is 68-70 per dollar, with 72 being the reasonable outer limit for depreciation.

With first round of measures not having any desired impact, he said there is no question of government being helpless as there are more measures to be taken to rein in falling rupee.

Garg further said that in view of present circumstances, CAD and present capital flows, 68-70 range appears to be a reasonable level.

"When it suddenly went down from 69 to 72, the Government rightly got concerned that this kind of sudden depreciation is not justified," he said.

Garg added that the Indian economy recorded an excellent growth of 8.2 per cent in the first quarter, inflation is low, macroeconomic fundamentals are good, the Government is strictly maintaining fiscal deficit and expenditure programme is going on well.

"So why on earth should there be such a depreciation of 10-12 per cent in 6 months or 6-9 per cent in two months. That's why the Prime Minister took a meeting (on September 14). The Finance Minister got into the act and several decisions were taken and some of them are under implementation," he said.

Garg expressed confidence that with the measures announced and those in works, the rupee will regain comfortable levels. "I am sure this is temporary and this will come back (to the comfortable level)," he said.

Closely monitoring financial markets along with Sebi: RBI

PTI ■ MUMBAI

The Reserve Bank on Sunday said that it along with Sebi is "closely monitoring" recent developments in financial markets and "ready" to take actions, if necessary, as domestic bourses witnessed sudden mid-session plunge last Friday.

"The Reserve Bank of India and the Securities and Exchange Board of India are closely monitoring recent developments in financial markets and are ready to take appropriate actions, if necessary," the central bank said in a brief statement.

On Friday the BSE Sensex, which opened on a strong footing, suddenly tanked 1,127.58 points, or 3.03 per cent, to hit a low of 35,993.64 in afternoon trade, before staging an equally sharp recovery within minutes.

It finally closed at 36,841.60, down 279.62 points. It saw an intra-day swing of 1,495.60 points. The broader NSE Nifty shed 91.25 points to finish at 11,143.10.

The indices closed in the red for the fourth day in a row, during which investors lost a massive ₹5.6 lakh crore.

Overseas investors have pulled out a massive ₹15,365 crore ($2.1 billion) from the capital markets so far in September, after putting in funds during the previous two months, on widening current account deficit coupled with global trade tensions.

"The RBI and the SEBI are closely monitoring recent developments in financial markets and are ready to take appropriate actions, if necessary"

Foreign portfolio investors (FPIs) remained net sellers and offloaded equities worth ₹2,184.55 crore while domestic institutional investors (DIIs) made purchases worth a net ₹1,201.30 crore Wednesday, provisional data showed.

The Indian currency has also witnessed a massive plunge in the recent past due to rising trade and current account deficits in the wake of rising crude oil prices.

However, the rupee was bullish on Friday for the second day, rising 17 paise to end at 72.20 against the US dollar.

RBI shortlists Infosys, TCS, 3 others to implement CIMS

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Reserve Bank has shortlisted five IT firms including Infosys and TCS for implementation of a centralised information and management system (CIMS) for seamless data collection and validations.

The central bank had invited expression of interest (EOI) in July for identification of solution provider for implementation of CIMS by overhauling the Data Warehouse (DW) of the apex bank.

After evaluation of the responses, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) said "it has been decided to shortlist" five vendors for issuance of 'Request for Proposal' (RFP) for selection of vendor for CIMS development and implementation.

The vendors are: Capgemini Technology Services India, IBM India, Infosys, Larsen & Toubro Infotech and Tata Consultancy Services.

The RBI had proposed a CIMS comprising of DW and Data Lake (DL) which would include, seamless data collection from regulated entities by creating system-to-system interface; system driven data validation and data review; flexible and scalable data repository and providing data dissemination platform.

The CIMS would also include centralised analytics platform to facilitate creation of RBI Data Sciences Lab.

The central bank had invited of expression of interest (EOI) in July for identification of solution provider for implementation of CIMS by overhauling the Data Warehouse (DW) of the apex bank

The RBI, in April, had announced to gainfully harness the power of big data analytics by setting up a data sciences lab that will comprise experts and budding analysts, internal as well as lateral, who are trained inter alia in computer science, data analytics, statistics, economics, econometrics and/or finance.

One of the functional requirements for CIMS, as per the EOI, was establishing system-to-system interface for automated element based data collection from about 130 banks/entities.

Over 40% firms feel RBI may further hike rates: CII survey

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Over 40 per cent of Indian companies surveyed by industry chamber CII are expecting that the Reserve Bank will go in for a further hike in interest rates in the current fiscal.

The survey, conducted during July-September 2018, covered nearly 200 firms of varying sizes, the CII said while releasing its 104th edition of quarterly Business Confidence Index (BCI).

The BCI also shows that companies are more than just optimistic "about the return of good times" during the second quarter of the current fiscal, an indication of rising confidence about the future growth trajectory and business prospects.

After the 50 basis points interest rate hike by the RBI in the previous two monetary policy review meetings, the sentiment about further monetary policy action seems to have changed, the industry chamber said in a statement.

"In the current survey, about 42 per cent of the respondents felt that the RBI will engage in further interest rate hikes in 2018-19 as compared to the previous survey where a majority of the respondents anticipated a cut or no change in policy rates in 2018-19," it said.

RBI Governor Urjit Patel-headed Monetary Policy Committee will start deliberation on the fourth bi-monthly monetary policy for 2018-19 on October 3 and announce its decision on October 5.

As per the industry body, BCI has touched the series high of 64.9 as against 60.1 in the last quarter.

"The significant uptick in the index, for the fourth consecutive quarter, is an indicator that business sentiment is upbeat," it added.

Commenting on rise in business confidence, CII Director General Chandrajit Banerjee said there is a definite improvement in the tempo of business activity, powered by expectations of improved consumption and investment growth.

No concern on liquidity of NBFCs: SBI chairman

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Assuring lending support to non-banking financial companies, SBI Chairman Rajnish Kumar on Sunday said there was no concern on liquidity of such firms, amid ongoing debt crisis in IL&FS Group.

Shares of housing finance companies came under sudden heavy selling pressure on Friday as investors raised concerns over rising cost of borrowing for the companies amid crisis at IL&FS.

Experts attributed the fall in NBFCs' scrips to tightness in money market and a lack of clarity on IL&FS exposure.

"Some comments are being attributed to SBI about the Bank being wary of lending to NBFCs. The rumours are baseless. SBI lends support to NBFCs in private and public sector within the regulatory policy framework and will continue to do so," Kumar said in a statement.

In fact, the recent regulatory guidelines on the co-lending model opens up further opportunities for collaboration between SBI and non-deposit taking NBFCs to increase lending to priority sectors, he added.

"There is no concern on liquidity of NBFCs in view of their liquid cash position and availability of committed lines," said the top official of the country's largest lender.

Shares of Dewan Housing Finance Corporation (DHFL). The company lost nearly ₹10,000 crore worth in market cap. The scrip of DHFL plummeted 59.67 per cent to ₹246.25 — its 52-week low — on the BSE.

Earlier this month, it came to light that IL&FS group defaulted on a short-term loan of ₹1,000 crore from Sidbi, while a subsidiary has also defaulted ₹500 crore dues to the development finance institution.

While IL&FS has nearly ₹35,000 crore consolidated debt, IL&FS Financial Services has ₹17,000 crore of debt, which sits as standard asset for most of the lenders, according to a Nomura India report.

The group has seen its various long-term and short-term borrowing programmes downgraded to 'default' or 'junk' grades by credit rating agencies, even as the regulators are also probing alleged delay in disclosure about certain loan defaults.

Among others, capital markets regulator Sebi, the Reserve Bank, the Corporate Affairs Ministry and the Finance Ministry have received complaints about alleged wrongdoings at Infrastructure Leasing & Financial Services Ltd (IL&FS) and its various group entities, including the listed ones.

PTI ■ HYDERABAD

"The EAC, after deliberations, recommended the project for grant of environmental clearance, subject to compliance of terms and conditions as under," the EAC said in the minutes of meeting held on August 30.

The standard Terms of Reference for the project was granted on January 29, 2016.

BSNL inks deal with Softbank, NTT to roll out 5G, IoT service

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

State-run telecom firm BSNL has inked a pact with Japan's Softbank and NTT Communications to roll out 5G and internet of things technology in India, a top official has said.

"We have signed agreement with Softbank and NTT Communications to roll out 5G and IoT products and services in India. Under the agreement, we will look at solution specially for the smart cities," BSNL chairman and managing director Anupam Shrivastava said in an interview.

He said most of the BSNL competitors are still looking at monetising their 4G services and hence leading companies have started looking at the state-run firm for 5G services roll out.

"We have benefitted by lead taken by our minister (Manoj Sinha). He has held various meetings at global level on 5G. We capitalised on those opportunities and signed agreement for the next generation technology," Shrivastava said.

Telecom minister Sinha has said that 5G service launch in India will happen at par with other leading nations.

"3G was launched in India after seven years the technology was available in other foreign markets and 4G services after four years lag but 5G will be launched in India in 2020 as soon the standards are freed by ITU," Shrivastava added.

He said that BSNL is working to finalise test cases where 5G can be used in India.

"We are in advance stages of starting 5G field trials. Government is in agreement to provide us 5G spectrum for trials. We expect to start field trials very soon," Shrivastava said.

The Telecom Regulatory Authority of India has recommended auction of about 8,644 MHz of telecom frequencies at an estimated base price of ₹4.9 lakh crore. The Government is yet to finalise details of allocation of spectrum for 5G services.

Govt mulls ordinance to fast track settlement of commercial disputes

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Seeking to improve India's ranking on ease of doing business index, the Government is mulling an ordinance which provides for time-bound settlement of commercial disputes and make arbitrators accountable, a senior Government functionary has said.

The Government plans to bring the ordinance based on a bill cleared by Lok Sabha during the monsoon session.

As it is pending in Rajya Sabha and may get cleared in November or December during the winter session, the government has planned the ordinance as it feels that an early measure to settle commercial disputes at a faster pace will help improve India's ranking on ease of doing business index, the functionary explained.

The bill seeks to help India become a hub for domestic and global arbitration for settling commercial disputes. The draft law provides for a time-bound settlement of disputes as well as accountability of the arbitrator. The Government feels that there is a need for robust mechanism to deal with institutional disputes.

The amendments to the Arbitration Act will facilitate achieving the goal of improving institutional arbitration by establishing an independent body to lay down standards, make arbitration process more friendly, cost-effective and ensure timely disposal of arbitration cases.

It provides for setting up of an independent body — Arbitration Council of India (ACI), which will frame arbitral institution and accredit arbitrators by laying down norms.

The ACI will frame proper rules as to how institutions would be graded, norms to be followed, monitoring of quality and performance, and encourage training of arbitrators.

Experts have time again suggested that unless India has a strong regulatory mechanism, judges, lawyers and arbitrators, the arbitration process will not gain speed.

The bill, which amends the 1996 Act, is part of the government's efforts to encourage institutional arbitration for settlement of disputes and make India a centre of robust Alternative Dispute Resolution Mechanism.

A large number of arbitration cases are conducted outside India in locations such as Singapore, London and Paris and around 30 million cases are pending before the courts here.

Due to globalisation, industrialisation and liberalisation, the disputes have increased manifold even bilateral investment trade related issues are also referred to the Hague, London and Paris.

Porsche first German carmaker to abandon diesel engines

AFF ■ BERLIN

Sports car maker Porsche said Sunday it would become the first German auto giant to abandon the diesel engine, reacting to parent company Volkswagen's emissions cheating scandal and resulting urban driving bans.

"There won't be any Porsche diesels in the future," CEO Oliver Blume told the newspaper Bild am Sonntag.

Instead, the company would concentrate on what he called its core strength, "powerful petrol, hybrid and, from 2019, purely electric vehicles".

The Porsche chief conceded the step was a result of the three-year-old "dieselgate" scandal at auto giant Volkswagen, the group to which the luxury sports car brand belongs.

VW in 2015 admitted to US regulators to having installed so-called "defeat devices" in 11 million cars worldwide to dupe emissions tests. It has so far paid out more than 27 billion euros in fines, vehicle buybacks, recalls and legal costs and remains mired in legal woes at home and abroad.

Diesel car sales have dropped sharply as several German cities have banned them to bring down air pollution — a trend that Chancellor Angela Merkel was due to discuss with car company chiefs in Berlin later on Sunday.

Stuttgart-based Porsche in February stopped taking orders for diesel models, which it had sold for nearly a decade.

Blume said Porsche had "never developed and produced diesel engines", having used Audi motors, yet the image of the brand had suffered.

"The diesel crisis has caused us a lot of trouble," he said, months after Germany's Federal Transport Authority ordered the recall of nearly 60,000 Porsche SUVs in Europe.

Govt now begins consolidation of regional rural banks, to bring down tally to 36

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Government has also initiated consolidation of regional rural banks along with the public sector lenders and intends to bring down their number to 36 from the existing 56.

In this regard, the Centre has begun consultations with states as they are one of the sponsors of the regional rural banks (RRBs) in the country, a senior Finance Ministry official has said.

Besides, sponsor banks are also preparing road map for the amalgamation of RRBs within a state, the official said.

The development assumes significance in the light of Government earlier this month announcing decision to merge Bank of Baroda, Vijaya Bank and Dena Bank to create another global size bank.

The proposed consolidation of RRBs and bringing down their tally from the existing 56 to 36 will usher in better scale-efficiency, higher productivity, robust financial health of such banks, improved financial inclusion and greater credit flow to rural areas, the official said.

Besides, the move will enable RRBs to minimise their overhead expenses, optimise the use of technology, enhance the capital base and area of operation, the official added.

These banks were formed under the RRB Act, 1976, with an objective to provide credit and other facilities to small farmers, agricultural labourers and artisans in rural areas.

The Act was amended in 2015 whereby such banks were permitted to raise capital from sources other than the Centre, states and sponsor banks. Currently, the Centre holds 50 per cent in RRBs, while 35 per cent and 15 per cent are with the concerned sponsor banks and State Governments, respectively.

Even after stake dilution, the shareholding of the Centre and the sponsor public sector banks together cannot fall below 51 per cent, according to the amended Act.

As a result, the ownership and control would remain with the government. In order to improve the financial health of RRBs, the government initiated consolidation of RRBs in a phased manner in 2005. The number of RRBs came down to 133 in 2006 from 196 at the end of March 2005. It further came down to 105 and subsequently to 82 at the end of March 2012. Further consolidation brought down number of such banks to 56.

RRBs operating through about 21,200 branches witnessed a 17 per cent rise in net profit to ₹2,950 crore in 2016-17. Their loans and advances outstanding under various schemes rose 15 per cent to ₹3.5 lakh crore as of March 2017.

US may deny green cards to beneficiaries

Will affect hundreds of thousands of Indians living in US

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

The Trump administration may deny green cards to immigrants who have availed or may avail Government benefits, including food and cash assistance under new rules which could negatively affect hundreds of thousands of Indians living in the US.

The proposed rule signed by the Homeland Security Secretary on September 21 and posted on the website of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) was slammed by the Silicon Valley-based tech industry and political leaders.

According to the rule, foreign immigrants who "seek adjustment of status or a visa, or who are applicants for admission, must establish that they are not likely at any time to become a public charge" unless determined by Congress. Public charge means receiving Government benefits.

The latest move to crack down on immigration comes days after the Trump administration told a federal court that its decision to revoke work permits to H-4 visa users, a significant majority of whom are Indian-Americans, is expected within the next three months, a move which will have a major impact on Indian women as they are the major beneficiary of the Obama-era rule.

The DHS proposes to require all immigrants seeking an extension of stay or change of status to demonstrate that they have not received, are not currently receiving, nor are likely to receive public benefits as defined in the proposed rule.

"Under long-standing federal law, those seeking to immigrate to the United States must show they can support themselves financially," said Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen.

"The department takes seriously its responsibility to be transparent in its rulemaking and is welcoming public comment on the proposed rule. This proposed rule will implement a law passed by Congress intended to promote immigrant self-sufficiency and protect finite resources by ensuring that they are not likely to become burdens on American taxpayers," she said.

Expressing its opposition to the proposed rule, FWD.US, which represents companies like Facebook, Microsoft, Dropbox, Yahoo and Google, said it "is a backdoor" administrative end-run to substantially reduce legal immigration that, if implemented, will hurt the entire country.

"This policy will cost the United States in the long run by limiting the contributions of hardworking immigrants who could become legal residents, and no one is better off because of it," FWD.US president Todd Schulte said.

It would create a subjective criteria and overly-bureaucratic process when making a public charge determination. It is "another underhanded attempt to force cuts to legal immigration, ultimately hurting our communities and country," Schulte said.

As of April, there were 632,219 Indian immigrants and their spouses and minor children waiting for green cards. According to US Citizenship and Immigration Services, in all 306,400 primary Indian applicants are waiting for their green cards. Clubbed with their spouses and children numbering 325,819; as many as 632,219 Indians in all are waiting for their green cards.

Iran points finger at US allies over deadly attack

AP ■ TEHRAN

Iran's President on Sunday accused an unnamed US-allied country in the Persian Gulf of being behind a terror attack on a military parade that killed 25 people and wounded 60, further raising regional tensions.

Hassan Rouhani's comments came as Iran's Foreign Ministry also summoned Western diplomats over them allegedly providing havens for the Arab separatists who claimed Saturday's attacks in the southwestern city of Ahvaz.

The Iranian moves, as well as promises of revenge by Iran's elite Revolutionary Guard, come as the country already faces turmoil in the wake of the American withdraw from Tehran's nuclear deal with world powers. The attack in Ahvaz, which saw women and children flee with uniformed soldiers bloodied, has further shaken the country.

Rouhani's remarks could refer to Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates or Bahrain — close U.S. military allies that view Iran as a regional menace over its support for militant groups across the Middle East.

"All of those small mercenary countries that we see in this region are backed by America. It is Americans who instigate them and provide them with necessary means to commit these crimes," Rouhani said before leaving for the UN General Assembly in New York.

Iran meanwhile summoned diplomats from Britain, Denmark and the Netherlands early Sunday for allegedly harboring "members of the terrorist group" that launched the attack. Danish Foreign Minister Anders Samuelsen condemned the attack and stressed that there would be "consequences" if it turns out that those responsible have connections to Denmark.

The ministry later summoned the UAE's envoy as well over what it called the "irresponsible and insulting statements" of an Emirati adviser, according to the semi-official ISNA news agency. The UAE did not immediately acknowledge the summons.

Iran sees threats from abroad after parade attack

Dubai: On the same day Arab separatists killed at least 25 people in an attack targeting a military parade in southwestern Iran, President Donald Trump's lawyer mounted a stage in New York to declare that the Government would be toppled.

"I don't know when we're going to overthrow them. It could be in a few days, months or a couple of years, but it's going to happen," former New York Mayor Rudy Giuliani said Saturday. "They are going to be overthrown. The people of Iran obviously have had enough."

For Iran's Shiite theocracy, comments like these only fuel fears that America and its Gulf Arab allies are plotting to tear the Islamic Republic apart.

Those threats so far haven't led to a military confrontation or violence, but the risk is rising.

"Undoubtedly the Islamic Republic of Iran will not ignore this crime. It is absolutely clear for us who did that, what group they are and with whom they are affiliated," Iranian President Hassan Rouhani warned before leaving for New York for the United Nations General Assembly.

Rouhani is a relative moderate who was elected twice on promises to improve relations with West, and who signed the 2015 nuclear agreement. AP

US condemns attack but says 'needs to look at own base'

New York: The United States on Sunday condemned the deadly attack on a military parade in Iran but said the country's clerical rulers needed to look at reasons for unrest.

The United States condemns any terrorist attack anywhere, period. We've always stood by that," Nikki Haley, the US ambassador to the United Nations, told CNN.

At least 29 people were killed when suspected Arab separatists in southwestern Iran opened fire Saturday on a parade commemorating the start of the 1980-1988 Iran-Iraq war.

Iran pinned the blame on an unnamed US-backed Gulf state for allegedly supporting the militants.

AP ■ WASHINGTON

Plans to hold a high-stakes hearing next week with testimony from Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh's accuser, Christine Blasey Ford, teetered with uncertainty on Sunday as a Senate panel scrambled to resolve potentially make-or-break details, such as potential witnesses who could corroborate her decades-old sexual assault claim.

Sen Lindsey Graham, a Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee, said lawyers for Ford are contesting two GOP conditions of the proposed 10 am on Thursday hearing — that Ford and Kavanaugh will be the only witnesses and that an independent counsel will ask the questions.

"If they continue to contest those two things, there won't be a hearing," Graham said. "We're not going to let her determine how many people we call" and on outside counsel. "I hope she comes."

A final accord could bring a close days of brinkmanship that have roiled Washington ahead of midterm elections and threatened to jeopardise Kavanaugh's confirmation to the court, even as some Republicans say the additional hearings may do little to change their support for him.

TIGER POPULATION IN NEPAL INCREASES
Kathmandu: Nepal's Tiger population has gone up to 235 from 198 in 2013 as the country plans to increase the number of wild cats to 250 by 2022, according to a latest tiger census report unveiled here on Sunday.

MEET WITH TRUMP NOT ON TABLE: ERDOGAN
Istanbul: Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan said on Sunday that meeting with his US counterpart Donald Trump during the 73rd United Nations General Assembly meeting in New York next week is not currently on the table. "If a demand comes from Washington, we will evaluate it," Erdogan said in Istanbul, prior to his departure for New York, Xinhua reported.

EGYPT SENTENCES BADIE TO LIFE
Cairo: An Egyptian court on Sunday sentenced the Supreme Guide of Muslim Brotherhood Mohamed Badie to life imprisonment over storming a police station in the Upper Egypt's province of Minya in 2013, the media reported. A total of 64 other members of the Islamic group were also handed life sentence, which is 25 years in jail in Egypt.

SCHOOLS MUST FIGHT EXTREMISM: UNESCO
Paris: The head of the UN education agency says schools are ground zero in the fight against anti-Semitism and extremist violence — and she will push world leaders meeting in New York this week to invest more in teaching tolerance. "No one is born a violent extremist," Azoulay said in an interview.

Russia blames Israel for downing of plane by Syrian forces

Moscow: The Russian Defence Ministry on Sunday again blamed Israel for the downing of a Russian plane by Syrian Government forces and said Israel appeared "ungrateful" for Moscow's efforts to rein in Iran-backed fighters in Syria.

Syrian Government forces mistook the Russian Il-20 reconnaissance plane for an Israeli jet and shot it down on Monday, killing all 15 people aboard. While the Russian military initially blamed the plane's loss on Israel, President Vladimir Putin later attributed it to "a chain of tragic, fatal circumstances." The Russian Defence Ministry on Sunday presented its latest findings on the Il-20's downing, laying the blame squarely on Israel.

Air Force and those who were making decisions about these actions are fully to blame for the tragedy that happened to the Russian Il-20 plane," Maj Gen Igor Konashenkov said in a statement.

For several years, Israel and Russia have maintained a special hotline to prevent their air forces from clashing in the skies over Syria. Russia has provided key air support to President Bashar Assad's forces since 2015, while Israel has carried out dozens of strikes against Iran-linked forces. Israeli military officials have previously praised the hotline's effectiveness.

But Konashenkov on Sunday accused Israel of using the hotline to mislead Russia about its plans. AP

AP ■ BRIDGEWATER, NJ

President Donald Trump is poised to redouble his commitment to "America First" on the most global of stages this week.

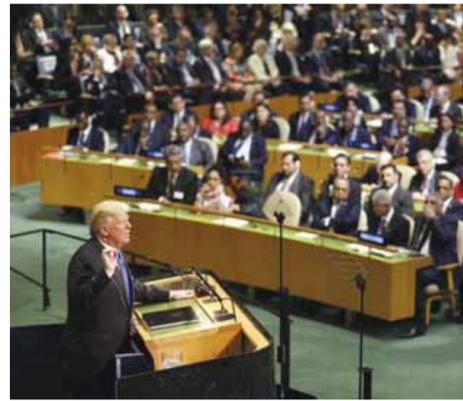

In the sequel to his stormy UN debut, Trump will stress his dedication to the primacy of US interests while competing with Western allies for an advantage on trade and shining a spotlight on the threat that he says Iran poses to the Middle East and beyond.

One year after Trump stood at the rostrum of the UN General Assembly and derided North Korea's Kim Jong Un as "Rocket Man," the push to denuclearise the Korean Peninsula is a work in progress, although fears of war have given way to hopes for rapprochement. Scores of world leaders, even those representing America's closest friends, remain wary of Trump. In the 12 months since his last visit to the UN, the president has jolted the global status quo by pulling out of the Iran nuclear deal, starting trade conflicts with China and the West and embracing Russia's Vladimir Putin even as the investigation into the US President's ties to Moscow moves closer to the Oval Office.

Long critical of the United Nations, Trump delivered a warning shot ahead of his arrival by declaring that the world body had "not lived up to" its potential.

"It's always been surprising to me that more things aren't resolved," Trump said in a weekend video message, "because you have all of these countries getting together in the still-evolving Trump doctrine on foreign policy, it is that the president will not subordinate American interests on the world stage, whether for economic, military or political gain.

Nikki Haley, the US ambassador to the United Nations, told reporters in a preview of Trump's visit, that the president's focus "will be very much on the United States," its role and the relations it wants to build.

"He is looking forward to talking about foreign policy successes the United States has had over the past year and where we're going to go from here," she said. "He wants to talk about protecting U.S. sovereignty," while building relationships with nations that "share those values."

NC river swirls with gray muck near flooded coal ash dump

AP ■ WILMINGTON, NC

Gray muck is flowing into the Cape Fear River from the site of a dam breach at a Wilmington power plant where an old coal ash dump had been covered over by Florence's floodwaters.

Forecasters predicted the water will continue to rise through the weekend at the LV Sutton Power Station. Duke Energy spokeswoman Paige Sheehan said the utility doesn't believe the breach poses a significant threat of increased flooding to nearby communities.

Sheehan said the company can't rule out that ash might be escaping the flooded dump and flowing through the lake into the river.

Inspectors with the state Department of Environmental Quality travelled to the plant by boat on Sunday to collect water quality samples. Environmental Secretary Mike Regan said aerial video of the site show "potential coal ash" flowing into the river.

"When the environment is conducive, we will put people on the ground to verify the amount of potential coal ash that could have left and entered those flood waters," Regan said.

Burqa ban: Swiss region overwhelmingly votes

Geneva: A second Swiss canton will introduce a regional "burqa ban," after voters in St Gallen on Sunday emphatically backed prohibiting all face-covering garments in public spaces.

At the same time, voters across Switzerland resoundingly rejected initiatives aimed at boosting local farming and promoting more ethical and environmental standards in food production, amid fears of cost hikes and reduced consumer choice.

In the northeastern canton of St Gallen, nearly 67 per cent of voters came out in favour of introducing the implicit "burqa ban," according to official results, which showed turnout was 36 per cent.

That paves the way for the canton to follow the example of the southern region of Ticino, where a law was introduced two years ago that appeared to be aimed at burqas and other Muslim veils. Three other cantons — Zurich, Solothurn and Glarus — have rejected introducing such bans in recent years. A text stipulating that "any person who renders themselves unrecognisable by covering their face in a public space, and thus endangers public security or social and religious peace will be fined" was adopted by lawmakers in St Gallen late last year.

Maldives strongman Yameen seeks second term amid rigging fears

AFP ■ COLOMBO

Voting was extended in the Maldives presidential election on Sunday amid technical glitches, after police raided the Opposition's campaign headquarters, fuelling fears of rigging in favour of China-friendly incumbent President Abdulla Yameen.

The Elections Commission said balloting was extended by three hours until 7pm (local time) because of technical glitches with tablet computers containing electoral rolls, and officials had to use manual systems to verify voters.

Many voters said they stood in line for over five hours to vote in many parts of the Indian Ocean archipelago, as well as in neighbouring Sri Lanka and India where expan-riate Maldivians voted. "Eight hours & counting. Waiting to exercise my democratic right! Let's do this, Insha Allah!" former foreign minister Dunya Maumoon said on Twitter. Maumoon, who is also the estranged niece of Yameen and daughter of former President Maumoon Abdul Gayoom, voted at a polling booth in the Maldivian embassy in Colombo.

New robot may help in harvesting crops

IAN S ■ NEW YORK

Researchers have developed an advanced sweet pepper harvesting robot that is designed to operate in a single stem row cropping system, with non-clustered fruits and little leaf occlusion.

The findings showed that by using a commercially available crop modified to mimic the required conditions, the robot harvests ripe fruits in 24 seconds with a success rate of 62 per cent.

The robot, named "Sweeper," picks methodically and accurately, said co-author Polina Kurtser from the Ben-Gurion University of the Negev in Beersheba, Israel.

"When it is fully developed, it will enable harvesting 24/7, drastically reduce spoilage, cut labour costs and shield farmers from market fluctuations," Kurtser added.

Based upon these latest results, the "Sweeper" consortium expects that a commercial sweet pepper harvesting robot will be available within four to five years, and that the technology could be adapted for harvesting other crops, the researchers said.

The robot was introduced last week at the Research Station for Vegetable Production at St. Katerijne Waver in Belgium.

Robotic harvesting will revolutionise the economics of the agriculture industry and dramatically reduce food waste, the researchers said.

The team spearheaded efforts to improve the robot's ability to detect ripe produce using computer vision, and has played a role in defining the specifications of the robot's hardware and software interfaces, focusing on supervisory control activities. The team says that additional research is needed to increase the robot's work speed to reach a higher harvest success rate.

Combining multiple CCTV images can help catch suspects

PTI ■ LONDON

Combining multiple poor quality CCTV images into a single, computer-enhanced composite could improve the accuracy of facial recognition systems used to identify criminal suspects, a study has found.

Researchers from the University of New South Wales in Australia and University of York in the UK created a series of pictures using a 'face averaging' technique — a method which digitally combines multiple images into a single enhanced image, removing variants such as head angles or lighting so that only features that indicate the identity of the person remain.

They compared how effectively humans and computer facial recognition systems could identify people from high quality images, pixelated images, and face averages.

The results showed that both people and computer systems were better at identifying a face when viewing an average image that combined multiple pixelated images, compared to the original poor-quality images.

Computer systems benefited from averaging together multiple images that were already high in quality, and in some cases reached 100 per cent accurate face recognition. The results have implications for law enforcement and security agencies, where low quality, pixelated images are often the only pictures of suspects available to use in investigations.

The image averaging method offers a standardised way of using images captured from multiple CCTV cameras to create a digital snapshot which can be better recognised by both people and computer software systems.

"We know that not all CCTV systems have the luxury of high quality cameras, meaning that face identifications are often being made from poor quality images," said Kay Ritchie, from the University of Lincoln in the UK.

INCLUSIVITY IS THE CALL OF THE HOUR

Many organisations, which require a declaration of 'spouse' to provide medical or insurance coverage, are now altering it to 'partners.' This is a minor change but has set the ball rolling for the LGBTQ communities, says

SANJAY LAKHOTIA

India is currently going through a phase of historic inclusivity propelled by Supreme Court's verdict on Section 377 of the Indian Penal Code that now decriminalises homosexuality. Sexual orientation has been lawfully accepted as a natural phenomenon and thus any discrimination on these lines is deemed unconstitutional.

However, non-inclusivity of LGBTQ community in the public sphere has affected the economic statistics of the country to a great extent.

According to the Indian LGBTQ Workplace Climate Survey 2016, 48 per cent of LGBTQ Indians said they could be legally fired from their jobs for belonging to the community. Around 87 per cent do not have access to formal LGBTQ Employee Resource Groups within their organisation. The World Bank has further estimated that homophobia has cost India 31 billion dollars a year because of lower educational achievements and loss of labour productivity.

The law has been rightfully liberal in its outlook of treating the LGBTQ community with equality. Indian society has, in general, not been very accepting of or welcoming to people who are different in any manner. It is time for a change in the status quo and for us to begin respecting the right of an individual irrespective of any difference. One of the most important areas for this change is the workplace and creating an indiscriminately-inclusive work environment where equal work opportunities, promotions, insurance, wages, benefits and leaves are extended to the LGBTQ community as well — in short, inclusivity in everything from hiring to firing.

THE RIPPLE EFFECT

In 2018, Accenture conducted a study of more than 22,000 men and women in 34 countries to identify the factors deemed necessary to thrive and advance at work. The survey identified 40 such factors including the freedom to be innovative and creative, employees never being asked to change their appearance to conform to company culture and feeling comfortable reporting sex discrimination/sexual harassment(s) to the company. Employees are more likely to advance to a senior management position in organisations where these 40 factors are most common, irrespective of their orientation or any other differences. Such employees are also more satisfied with their careers and have greater career aspirations. Change can happen only when the mindset of people deviates from ignorance and narrow thoughts. A sense of understanding must be weaved into organisations to create a welcoming environment for the community — in fact, an environment where they are not treated as a separate community at all. Indian government and corporate entities are gradually maturing in terms of moulding their HR policies to create such engaging environments.

For instance, most organisations require a declaration of 'spouse' to provide medical or insurance coverage. However, this terminology has been altered to 'partners' by some companies such as Microsoft, Citibank, Godrej, and Royal Bank of Scotland among others, transferring the benefits to same sex partners as well. Companies like Deutsche Bank and Bank of America Merrill Lynch are also determined to follow suit. Though this is a minor change but has set the ball rolling. Sometimes the smallest step in the right direction can make a world of difference rather than a big step in the wrong direction.

Organisations would do well to implement clear anti-discrimination policies to ensure that all employees feel safe and comfortable. Research indicates that when clear instructions are given against stereotyping, it is effective in reducing even unconscious bias. It is prudent to include an equality statement in the company's mission and train staff on diversity and inclusion.

However, it is imperative to not become over-enthusiastic or arbitrary about the matter as the whole point of inclusivity can get lost in the grand scheme of things. For example, there should not be a cap on the number of people to be employed based on sexual orientation, caste, disabilities, color, etc. This then becomes akin to reservation and may start creating margins. The slate of recruitment and work environment must be plain and open to all with only one line of division — merit and skills.

THE COURSE FOR THE FUTURE

Justice Dhananjaya Y Chandrachud, during the judgment, rightly said, "It is difficult to right a wrong by history. But we can set the course for the future. This case involves much more than decriminalising homosexuality. It is about people wanting to live with dignity." It therefore becomes the responsibility of everybody involved in the workplace to create an atmosphere where people can live and breathe with dignity and respect in the air. A staggering 80 per cent of India's workforce belonging to the LGBTQ community have reported domination, homophobic comments, gestures, actions or even physical threats of violence, according to various surveys. These numbers reveal the true inequalities that the community has faced in the workplace alone.

Every individual in an organisation has a role to play in contributing to a welcoming and harmonious environment of equality and respect. It is our moral duty as human beings to make changes, whether big or small, towards the welfare of humanity and peace.

Sow seeds of kindness

By sharing and using our inner virtues for others, we learn to value ourselves without comparing our contribution to that of others, says RAJYOGI BRAHMAKUMAR NIKUNJJI

Mark Twain once said, "Kindness is the language which the deaf can hear and the blind can see." As dictionaries define, kindness is the virtue of showing love as well as having the qualities of a sympathetic, affectionate, warm-hearted and considerate nature. For many of us kindness may be a simple thing like saying 'please', 'thank you', 'excuse me', or 'I am sorry'. It could also be offering a helping hand, patiently waiting for your turn, returning a phone call or a favour, or even cheerfully responding to someone with a smile. As the Greek philosopher Sophocles said, kindness gives birth to kindness. Within each and every human is a mine of wonderful virtues and qualities, but they lie dormant in many of us. Valuing and using these virtues is the key to a fulfilled life. By reconnecting with and valuing these parts within us, we learn to see ourselves in the same way that divinity does. When we start sharing and using our inner virtues for others, we learn to value ourselves, without comparing our contribution to that of others.

Dalai Lama has said, "My religion is kindness." If anybody has ever felt a deep sense of satisfaction while being unconditionally kind to another person, then the person would know what the spiritual leader means by that phrase. If you are compassionate to others and also, most importantly, to yourself, you plant kindness in the atmosphere as well. There is a difference between sharing joy and providing materialistic satisfaction. One must understand that donating money is valuable, but it is limited in terms of the benefit it might bring to our hearts and to that of others. On the other hand, by sharing what is good and true — love, joy and a sense of lightness — even with those in our immediate vicinity, the feeling that our life is valuable to the world, begins to grow. Kindness is a well of sustenance worth diving into each day. The nectar of kindness is a sanctuary for the heart and a refuge for peace of mind no matter how large or small the gift is.

Time teaches us to view ourselves with harshness. But unlike family, we can choose our teachers. We could either listen to the stories of our past or to our precious, often silenced voice and with love we could rekindle that inner spark which was lost due to confusion and lack of self-worth. But how can we reconnect with the voice inside without retreating to an isolated mountain-top escaping the noise of the madding crowd? It is very simple indeed. By gathering strength in silence, while meditating, we could learn to forgive the pebbles and express the jewels within, choose to live honestly with confidence rather than out of duty and become liberated from the sorrow which comes with our old thinking and self-restricting behaviours.

Dedicating a few minutes to meditation every day is a meaningful expression of caring for yourself that can help you move through the quagmire of feeling unworthy. Meditation enables a person to discover or re-discover the self and to have a channel for heart-to-heart communication with the Almighty. It enables a person to penetrate deeply and progressively into deeper levels of the mind and peep into the hidden world of reality. It involves the turning of a person's mind and the flow of their love in the direction of Almighty, giving them the hot-line to communicate with him.

Thus, it is a technique of self-exploration, leading to the experience of heightened and expanded awareness, reaching god and bringing him into the focus of the soul's awareness. The principal object of meditation is to bring the self in conscious touch with Almighty, making it increasingly aware of its divine origin, destiny and peaceful nature. This practice of awareness opens greater orbits of being. One does not only get first-hand vision and experience of the ultimate truth and the reality behind all realities but also that one is not merely the creature but also creator of his environment.

As a 15-year-old, she convinced her parents not to marry her off so she could fulfill a childhood dream of becoming a doctor and treating the poor. Now, two years later, Priyanka Bauri strives to make other girls and their parents conscious of the perils of child marriage.

"I had stopped my own marriage by convincing my parents that I want to study and become a doctor. I would like to treat the downtrodden and neglected people. I told my mother that marrying early and conceiving early can be detrimental to our health," Bauri, now 17, confidently said.

Bauri, a resident of Neturia block in Parbatpur village of West Bengal's backward Purulia district, said her parents wanted her to get married at the age of 15 to fight against poverty. She made them understand that she wanted to study, which would enable her to look after the needs of the family.

"Now I make other girls understand," Bauri said.

She is not alone. Other brave girls, aided by UNICEF, have fought off marital atrocities to return to the world of

Journey of a rebel

As a 15-year-old from Bengal's Purulia, PRIYANKA BAURI stood fiercely against child marriage convincing her parents to not get her married off. Today she strives to make other girls and their parents conscious as well books and lead by example in Purulia, where almost 38.3 per cent of young females get married before the age of 18.

The female literacy rate in the district is an abysmal 50.52 per cent, a figure much lower than the state average of 70.54 per cent.

Nabami Besra and Renuka Majhi from the interiors of Purulia were forced to quit their studies and marry at tender ages. But neither of them tolerated the misbehaviour of their in-laws. They are now back with their parents and studying further.

"I want to be independent and join the police force," said Besra.

UNICEF, with the support of the district administration, initiated the Adolescent Empowerment Program (AEP) to carry out various activities in 10 blocks and three municipalities of Purulia in 2015. These programmes include empowerment through life skill education, promoting sports and self-defence, et al.

"I am amazed to see the awareness level among young girls in Purulia. The National Family Health Survey (NFHS)-4 of the year 2015-16, shows the rate of child marriage in Purulia as 38.3 per cent, but I am sure the present data will show a decline as various government schemes are being implemented very effectively," said Mohammad Mohiuddin, chief of UNICEF's West Bengal unit.

Talking about proper execution of existing government policies, Swapnadeepa Biswas, Child Protection Officer, UNICEF, said, "There are lots of empowerment programmes, but what was needed was a holistic approach that took into account all factors — health, nutrition awareness, the safety of oneself, education, earning a livelihood and maintaining of hygiene."

"There are initiatives for both boys and girls, but girls are given a little more support due to their social conditions," Biswas added.

For instance, the Kanyashree Football Tournament (KFT) initiated in 2015 helped in mobilising 5,400 Kanyashree girls from 183 Clubs.

"Through our Kanyashree Swabalambi project (Kanyashree self-dependence project) inaugurated in July 2017, we are providing training in tailoring, nursing, handicrafts, etc. We are coming up with buildings in each block headquarters named 'Kanyashree' where there will be books, computers with high-speed internet — and a training centre for vocational skills," District Magistrate Alokesh Prasad Roy said.

There will be dormitories for the ones who want to stay back if they get late, Roy added.

BREAST MILK BOOSTS BRAIN GROWTH

Premature babies fed with breast milk are more likely to have better brain development than those fed on formula milk, a new study has found. According to studies, pre-term birth is associated with changes in the part of the brain's structure that helps brain cells to communicate with one another, known as white matter. However, this research showed that pre-term babies who exclusively received breast milk for at least three-quarters of the days spent in hospital showed improved brain connectivity, compared to babies who consumed less. "Our findings suggest that brain development in the weeks after pre-term birth is improved in babies who receive greater amounts of breast milk," said James Boardman, director of the Jennifer Brown research laboratory at the University of Edinburgh.

NEW BATTERY MAY HELP CUT CO2 EMISSIONS

Researchers at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) have developed a new battery made partly from carbon dioxide captured from power plants. While still based on early-stage research and far from commercial deployment, this battery could continuously convert carbon dioxide into a solid mineral carbonate as it discharges, said the study published in the journal Joule. The researchers believe that the new battery formulation could open up new avenues for tailoring electrochemical carbon dioxide conversion reactions, which may ultimately help reduce the emission of the greenhouse gas into the atmosphere. The battery is made from lithium metal, carbon, and an electrolyte that the researchers designed.

NOVEL BLOOD TEST TO PREDICT AUTISM IN BABIES

Researchers have developed a novel blood test for pregnant mothers that can, with nearly 90 per cent accuracy rate, predict the probability of having a child that will be diagnosed with autism. According to studies, if a mother has previously had a child with autism, the risk of having a second child with the developmental disorder is approximately 18.7 per cent, whereas the risk in the general population is approximately 1.7 per cent. In the study, led by Juergen Hahn, professor at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in New York, pregnant mothers were measured to determine whether or not the risk of having a child with autism could be predicted by her metabolic profile. The results in the Research in Autism Spectrum Disorders showed that while it isn't possible to determine if a child will be diagnosed with autism by the age of 3, the differences in the plasma metabolites are indicative of the relative risk.

GENETIC DISORDER SPOT IN HUMANS

US researchers have identified a new genetic disorder, which was previously described in animal models, in a human patient. Researchers from the Michigan State University found that the disorder is caused by mutations in a gene known as ornithine decarboxylase 1 (ODC1). It is defined by a number of clinical features including large birth weight, enlarged head size, hair loss, reduced muscle strength, skin lesions, hearing loss and developmental delays. "This remarkable case represents the first human example of a disorder that was described by researchers in a transgenic mouse model more than 20 years ago," said Andre Bachmann, professor at the varsity. The disorder was first identified on an 11-month-old baby girl in Michigan.

INSULIN TREATS BOWEL INFLAMMATION

Insulin, which plays a key role in managing blood sugar, also has potential against colitis — a chronic bowel inflammation, finds a study. The study, conducted on mice, showed that chronic bowel inflammation can be treated effectively by injecting insulin into the rectum. Insulin works because it activates a gene inside the bowel cells, which has an antioxidant effect and thus may be able to protect the bowel cells from inflammation. "Existing treatments attack the bowel's immune system, dampening it, instead our method strengthens the bowel cells' own defence. It appears to work equally well, and it can probably be used in combination with existing treatments," said Jorgen Olsen, professor at the University of Copenhagen in Denmark.

NEW AVATAR

Designer RITU BERI unveils a new Khadi collection showcasing how it can be anything from pret to couture. By ASMITA SARKAR

Coarse, utilitarian, rough, fabric of freedom - words that the Khadi fabric had been associated for long. Till some designers came along and turned the descriptions over their head. All-weather fabric, natural, modern, comfortable and stylish is what Khadi looks like, increasingly. Today, the silhouettes that can be made with the fabric have been reinvented. The straight kurtas and pajamas have been replaced with imaginative asymmetrical and modern silhouettes.

The fabric, popularised prior to Independence by Mahatma Gandhi, was once a symbol of self-reliance of the Indian people as opposed to depending on British products. But now there are persistent efforts to revive the pride associated with it. One such effort was when fashion designer Ritu Beri became associated with Khadi India in 2016. In her latest collection, the Khadi couture show at a fashion week in Delhi she presented floral motifs, gold and bronze embroidery on white, purples, reds, yellows and more.

The show began with a young child dressed like the Mahatma walking down the ramp while the screens behind showed the original icon with the Charkha, which was popularly used to make the fabric.

The ramp soon saw a series in white followed by colourful kurtas and dhoti pants, which then progressed from pret to couture and had something for everyone as it covered a wide range. The collection focussed on women and children rather than men. Beri said, "This collection shows Khadi can be couture as well. These clothes can be worn during festivals and weddings. It is an all-weather fabric, keeps us warm in winters and cool in summers."

Young children also walked the ramp in her colourful creations of ruffled jackets, long jackets, lehengas and dresses. One model walking with two children showed a family dressed in Khadi - as an example of its everydayness.

Contemporary Western silhouettes could be seen along with the traditional Indian. There were long jackets with embroidered patches, images of sneakers in sequins and of Frida Kahlo with floor length kurtas that gave a modern twist to the traditional attire.

In a modern take on the lehenga-choli, the latter was bunched up in pleats below the bustier on one side while the rest of the midriff was bare. Three backless gowns in red and black took Khadi to another level of innovation.

Italian ambassador to India Lorenzo Angeloni, MLA Meenakshi Lekhi, politician Najma Heptulla also walked the ramp in clothes designed by Beri.

"The worst is yet to come. Sacred Games will be back for Season 2," read a post from the official Netflix India Twitter account.

Based on author Vikram Chandra's best-selling novel, the first season of the series - produced by the Anil Ambani-led Reliance Entertainment's Phantom Films joint venture - received viewer appreciation and critical acclaim worldwide for its gritty plot and power-packed performances.

The series, available in local languages in different markets, tells the tale of Sartaj, a seasoned and cynical Mumbai police officer who is summoned one morning by an anonymous tip which promises him an opportunity to capture the powerful Ganesh Gaitonde, criminal overlord of the G-Company.

The season two will be back with a new trail of betrayal, crime, passion, and a thrilling chase through Mumbai's underbelly.

Retrograde on the iPhone

Does the hefty price tag of the latest iPhone make sense when there are older models available at a lesser cost in the market?

The $1,100 price tag on Apple's latest iPhone turned heads when the company announced it last week. But for less than half as much, you can still get a good camera, a decent-sized screen and other popular features.

Just buy a two-year-old iPhone 7.

That phone was Apple's first to come with water resistance and its first to lose the standard headphone jack. Its 4.7-inch screen is adequate and on par with other smartphones, even though its resolution falls short of high definition. And the phone still has a fingerprint sensor and a home button, both of which have vanished in the latest iPhones.

Or, if you want to pay more for wireless charging, there's the iPhone 8. An edge-to-edge screen? You'll need the upcoming budget iPhone XR or one of its more expensive siblings. And if you want a supersized display, that's where the $1,100 iPhone XS Max comes in. That model and a smaller version start selling in the U.S. and several other countries on Friday.

If you're shopping for a new phone, it pays to think hard about what you really want and what you're willing to pay for it. Improvements over the previous generation tend to be incremental, but can add up over time - and so do the sums you'll pay for them.

iPhone 7 ($449)

The big jump in iPhone cameras came a generation earlier with the iPhone 6S, when Apple went from 8 megapixels to 12 megapixels in resolution. With the iPhone 7, the front camera goes from 5 megapixels to 7 megapixels, so selfies don't feel as inferior. Headphones go into its Lightning port, which is used for both charging and data transfer. It's a pain when you want to listen to music while recharging the phone. For that, you need $159 wireless earphones called AirPods. Apple no longer includes an adapter for standard headphones; one will set you back $9 if you need it.

iPhone 7 PLUS ($569)

This larger version of the iPhone 7 has a second camera lens in the back, allowing for twice the magnification without any degradation in image quality. It also lets the camera gauge depth and blur backgrounds in portrait shots, something once limited to full-featured SLR cameras. The dual-lens camera alone is a good reason to go for a Plus, though the larger size isn't a good fit for those with small hands or small pockets.

iPhone 8 ($599)

New color filters in the camera produce truer and richer colors, while a new flash technique tries to light the foreground and background more evenly. Differences are subtle, though. The year-old model, similar in size to the iPhone 7, restores a glass back found in the earliest iPhone 7 and 8. Improved display technology means vivid colors and better contrasts, including black that is black rather than simply dark. You also get a dual-lens camera and software improvements for regular shots.

iPhone XS MAX ($1,099)

This is essentially the "Plus" version of the iPhone XS. The phone itself is about the size of the Plus, but with more room for the display. This phone won't feel big for existing Plus users, but think twice if you have small hands or small pockets.

Coming soon

Consider waiting a month for the iPhone XR. Its display lacks the vivid colors, contrast quality and resolution of the XS, but the price tag is nicer at $749. As with the XS models, you'll get an edge-to-edge screen to minimize wasted space. There's more display than the regular XS, but the phone itself is also larger - just not as large as the Max. The XR won't have the dual-lens camera, though Apple says it can offer the blurred-background effect with software.

While supplies last

Apple quietly discontinued the iPhone SE, which is essentially a three-year-old iPhone 6S, packed in a body that's smaller but thicker than the iPhone 7 and 8. Though the trend in phones has been to go bigger, some people preferred the smaller size - and the $350 price tag. Apple no longer sells it, though you can get it from some wireless carriers and other retailers, at least for now.

All in the memory

If you get an SE, 7 or 7 Plus, consider spending another $100 to quadruple the storage. Those phones come with a paltry 32 gigabytes, just half of what's standard these days. If you don't upgrade, you risk filling up your phone quickly with photos, video, songs and podcasts.

AFP ■ MADRID

Real Madrid moved top of La Liga after Marco Asensio's goal proved the difference in a scrappy 1-0 win over Espanyol.

Their victory at the Santiago Bernabeu may only give Madrid 24 hours above Barcelona, who play Girona with their perfect record still intact.

More pressing for Julen Lopetegui will be the defensive slackness that made this arguably the least assured of the six competitive games he has overseen so far, including last weekend's draw away to Athletic Bilbao.

There were changes, with Gareth Bale, Marcelo and Dani Carvajal all rested, the latter not even included on the bench, following Real's win over Roma in the Champions League on Wednesday.

But if they gift Atletico Madrid the same chances in the city derby next weekend, they may not find their opponents so generous. Atletico had earlier ground out a 2-0 win away to Getafe.

"The game was nervous and in the last 15 minutes we lacked control," Lopetegui said.

"These post-Champions League games are always really dangerous and we know it."

Carvajal's absence meant a debut for Alvaro Odriozola, who joined from Real Sociedad in the summer, while Thibaut Courtois replaced Keylor Navas to continue Lopetegui's rotation strategy in goal.

Espanyol twice could have scored on the counter-attack.

The first sprung from a poor header from Raphael Varane but Pablo Piatti dragged his finish wide.

Soon after they were in again, as Hernan Perez's shot had to be parried by Courtois and Didac Vila's rebound blocked by Casemiro.

The hosts were more impressive going forward and in the 41st minute, they took the lead.

Luka Modric's scuffed shot landed kindly at the feet of Asensio and he did brilliantly to harpoon the ball into the far corner.

Referee Mateu Lahoz ruled the goal out for offside but Real were saved by VAR and then later the crossbar, as Borja Iglesias' scooped finish was denied late on.

"We are not going to win 5-0 every game," Varane said.

LEMAR LIFTS ATHLETICO

Atletico's victory was more comfortable and they had Thomas Lemar

to thank after the Frenchman scored his first goal for the club and instigated another against Getafe.

The result was all but secure when Getafe's Ivan Alejo was sent off shortly after the hour for a dangerous tackle on Saul Niguez.

Atleti had not lost to Getafe, or even conceded a single goal, in 13 previous meetings but victory meant more to Diego Simeone's side after just one win from their opening four league games.

This was also the first time Lemar looked like the player Atletico must have hoped they bought when they spent 72 million euros ($84 million) on him in the summer.

"It's something big, I will never forget it," Lemar said.

"The coach trusts me and it's the least I can do to repay his faith."

The first goal was almost a cracker as Lemar collected the ball off Antoine Griezmann 30 yards out and let rip with his left foot. Soria was beaten but the crossbar was not, and it needed an unfortunate deflection of the goalkeeper to find the net.

There was no doubt about the second after half-time. A sweeping move saw Atletico move the ball from right to left, with Koke applying the final pass in behind. Lemar touched it around Soria and made no mistake.

Lacazette, Aubameyang score for Gunners in 2-0 win against Everton, Chelsea play draw

AFP ■ LONDON

Alexandre Lacazette fired Arsenal to a fourth successive Premier League win as the French forward's superb strike inspired a hard-fought 2-0 success against Everton on Sunday.

Unai Emery's side rode their luck in the first half at the Emirates Stadium as Everton wasted a host of chances to punish a sloppy opening from the Gunners.

But Lacazette ensured that lethargic spell wouldn't prove costly when he smashed a sublime opener in the second half.

Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang doubled Arsenal's lead moments later when the Gabon forward was allowed to slot home despite being clearly offside.

That controversial effort shattered Everton's resolve as Arsenal celebrated a flattering victory that lifted them to sixth place in the Premier League.

The north Londoners have now won their last five games in all competitions, yet, not for the first time, this was a far from convincing display.

A first clean sheet of the Emery era was a welcome sight for the Arsenal manager, but he will know there is still plenty of room for improvement in all areas.

Everton, without a win in their last 25 visits to Arsenal, could consider themselves unlucky, but their first half profligacy proved decisive.

Marco Silva's team have lost their last two matches and have won only one of their six league games this season.

WEST HAM HOLD CHELSEA

Chelsea dropped their first points of the season on Sunday as West Ham held Maurizio Sarri's team to a 0-0 draw at the London Stadium.

Chelsea had won all five of their Premier League matches before the weekend, going toe to toe with Liverpool, who won again on Saturday to make it six wins out of six.

Olivier Giroud won his battle with Alvaro Morata for a starting spot up front for Chelsea, keeping his place for the second Premier League match in succession.

But Marko Arnautovic, West Ham's leading goalscorer this season, missed out after failing to recover from an injury he sustained against Everton last week.

Chelsea enjoyed more than 70 percent of possession in the first half but West Ham were dangerous when they were able to break out, Michail Antonio proving a real handful.

After a cagey opening spell, Chelsea established control but the home side could have taken a lead against the run of play just before the half hour.

Felipe Anderson was quick to seize on a loose ball and played in Antonio, who blasted over with his left foot.

That chance breathed new life into the home crowd and the players and Antonio drew a smart save from Kepa Arrizabalaga in the West Ham goal just two minutes later after a fine run from Andriy Yarmolenko.

As the sun came out at the London Stadium, Chelsea again established control and nearly took the lead when N'Golo Kante headed wide.

The match fell into a similar pattern in the second half, Chelsea searching for openings around the West Ham box but Felipe Anderson and Yarmolenko looked dangerous when the home side broke forward.

The home side dealt well with the threat of Willian and Eden Hazard and Giroud -- picked for his more physical threat -- struggled to make a big impression on the game.

The Frenchman was replaced 20 minutes into the second half by Morata, who went close to breaking the deadlock moments after coming on only to see Lukasz Fabianski pull off a stunning stop from close range.

But with about 13 minutes to go West Ham had a wonderful chance to win the match, when the unmarked Yarmolenko headed just wide at the far post after a cross by Robert Snodgrass.

Fabianski pulled off another fine save as the clock ticked into injury time, diving to his left to deny substitute Ross Barkley and Willian blazed wide as Chelsea applied intense late pressure.

FRUSTRATED IBRA COY ON GALAXY FUTURE

LOS ANGELES: Zlatan Ibrahimovic plans to discuss his future with Los Angeles Galaxy chiefs after a frustrating first season in Major League Soccer. Swedish star Ibrahimovic has made a prolific start to his MLS career, scoring 17 goals in 22 games since joining the Galaxy from Manchester United in March. However the 36-year-old striker's efforts have not been enough to transform the Galaxy's fortunes, with the club languishing in the bottom half of the Western Conference and struggling to make the playoffs. Ibrahimovic, who has a contract through the 2019 season, was reluctant to confirm his plans for next year, according to comments in the Los Angeles Times. "I don't know. This I have to discuss," Ibrahimovic said when asked about 2019. "This is not the moment to talk about that. It's something I'll discuss with the club. What they want, what I want. So let's see."

JAMES STARS IN 2-0 WIN OVER SCHALKE

BERLIN: The Colombian James Rodriguez scored the first goal for Bayern and provoked the penalty that led to the second, scored by Robert Lewandowski, in a 2-0 home stadium victory over Schalke that put the Bavarians on top of the Bundesliga. Coach Niko Kovac showed once more how much he believes in rotating his players and made four changes in the starting lineup on Saturday from the one that downed home-team Benfica in the Champions League. James was first on the scoreboard in the eighth minute with a header that turned a right-side corner kick by Joshua Kimmich into a goal. And then in the second half Bayern slightly outpaced its rival, and at 63rd minute the Colombian player was knocked down inside the box by Alexander Schopf, after which Lewandowski converted the penalty kick into the final score of the game that ended with a 2-0 victory of Bayern over Schalke.

MARADONA SUFFERS FIRST DEFEAT

OAXACA: The Oaxaca Alebrijes edged the Sinaloa Dorados 1-0 in Mexican Second-Division football action, handing the squad its first loss under Argentine legend Diego Armando Maradona. Emilio Sanchez scored the match's lone goal for Oaxaca in the 27th minute on Saturday, taking advantage of a Dorados squad that seemed to be out of synch. Manager Ricardo Rayas's Alebrijes dominated the middle of the field in the first half, controlling the ball against the Dorados. Sanchez scored off a pass from Edgar Alafitta, catching the Sinaloa goalkeeper out of position. On Wednesday, Sinaloa will play Queretaro in the Copa MX round of 16 and will take on the Leones Negros on September 29. On September 17, Ecuadorian Vinicio Angulo scored three goals in Sinaloa's 4-1 blowout of Tapachula, making the club's debut under Maradona a success.

WOODS TAKES 3-SHOT LEAD AT TOUR C'SHIP

ATLANTA: Tiger Woods is one round away from ending his five-year victory drought after storming into a three-shot lead on day three of the Tour Championship here Saturday. Woods, 42 looked in a class of his own as he carded a five-under-par 65 to leave himself on 12 under for the tournament at Atlanta's East Lake Golf Club. After an opening birdie on the par-four first, Woods went surging clear of the field with a run of five straight birdies from the third hole. The run came with a mix of superb iron play and rock-solid putting, including a 21-foot birdie putt on the fourth. There was also a moment of magic from the former world number one on the seventh, when he drilled a 172-yard approach shot to five feet and then tapped in for birdie. He was denied a bigger lead after bogeys on the ninth and 16th holes. "I got off to a nice start and made some nice putts. Good Lord," Woods said afterwards. A Woods victory would be an 80th PGA Tour triumph and take him to within two wins of Sam Snead's all-time 82 Tour victories.

Insigne bags brace, setback for Roma

AFP ■ MILAN

Lorenzo Insigne bagged a brace to inspire Napoli to a 3-1 win over Torino and join Juventus at the top of Serie A on Sunday, as Roma plunged further into crisis with a 2-0 loss at Bologna.

Carlo Ancelotti's Napoli have 12 points from five games, equal with champions Juventus who can pull ahead again when they travel to promoted Frosinone.

But Roma coach Eusebio Di Francesco is under increasing pressure after a fourth league game without a win sees last year's third-placed team slump to 12th with five points from as many games.

Federico Mattiello and Federico Santander scored in either half to give Bologna, who occupy the first relegation spot of 18th position, their first goals and win of the season.

"I'm not the type to look for excuses, I need solutions and I can not find them," said Di Francesco.

"The facts condemn us, they condemn me."

In Turin, Ancelotti switched things around following Napoli's uninspiring goalless draw at Red Star Belgrade in the Champions League midweek.

Insigne played a more central role along with Dries Mertens as defender Sebastiano Luperto got his first start for the Serie A runners-up.

"I'm satisfied, we dominated in Belgrade but we couldn't finish things off like we did today," said Ancelotti.

"Insigne was decisive, but everyone put in a strong performance."

Simone Verdi added the second with a half-volley on 20 minutes, with Torino pulling one back after the break when Andrea Belotti slotted in a penalty.

But Insigne restored Napoli's two-goal lead after 59 minutes when a Jose Callejon shot bounced off the inside of the far post and into the path of the Italian forward. It gives Napoli a boost ahead of next week's trip to reigning seven-time champions Juventus.

"We won there last season and still finished second," said Insigne.

"If we don't win the midweek game with Parma, then the result with Juve is irrelevant, so we have to take it one at a time."

Torino are in 13th position with five points from as many games.

'NO INNER FIRE'

In Bologna, Roma plunged further into crisis after a summer which saw Di Francesco's side lose goalkeeper Alisson to Liverpool with midfielders Radja Nainggolan and Kevin Strootman also exiting the Italian capital.

Mattiello curled in Bologna's first goal of the season after 36 minutes with Paraguayan Santander adding the second after 59 minutes.

Roma — last year's Champions League semi-finalists — also fell 3-0 at Real Madrid midweek, and have not won a league game since their first game against Torino. "There's no inner fire," lamented the Roma coach. "Something is wrong."

Next weekend Roma face bitter city rivals Lazio, who saw off Genoa 4-1 on Sunday with Ciro Immobile scoring a double, to move up to fifth place.

Before the derby Roma will try to boost morale against Frosinone midweek with Lazio heading to Udinese, who won 2-0 at Chievo.

AFP ■ PARIS

From a deeper than usual playmaker role Brazil's Neymar pulled the strings as Paris Saint-Germain came from behind to beat Rennes 3-1 in Ligue 1 on Sunday helping to dispel midweek memories of a European flop at Liverpool.

Hosts Rennes took a surprise 11th minute lead when PSG midfielder Adrien Rabiot nodded past his own 'keeper Gianluigi Buffon from a corner before goals from Angel di Maria, Thomas Meunier and Eric Maxim Chupot-Moting gave them a hard-fought sixth straight Ligue 1 win.

PSG critics had suggested the French giants had overspent on strikers and forgotten about the midfield after a tame 3-2 defeat in the Champions League at Anfield this week.

With superstar striker Kylian Mbappe banned after his red card there was room for both Di Maria and

A young fan ran onto the pitch as Neymar was leaving as a late sub and the youngster crumpled in tears as his hero hugged him and gave him his shirt in touching scenes bound to glorify the former Barcelona striker when they go viral on social media.

DI MARIA CRACKER

After Rabiot's earlier upset Neymar seemed to be at the origin of almost everything the visitors threw at Rennes including when Cavani hit the post from a sumptuous set up.

On the stroke of half time Draxler cut back from the by-line and Cavani dummied setting up di Maria to crack a precise jab into the bottom right-hand corner from a good 25 metres out.

The 26-year-old Neymar was at the origin of both Meunier's go ahead goal on 61 and for Chupo-Moting's first goal for the Parisians since joining from Stoke.

Buffon had his work cut out in the second half as Rennes playmaker Clement Grenier fed the speedy Senegalese strike-pair M'Baye Niang and the 20-year-old Ismaila Sarr.

Rennes coach Sabri Lamouchi threw on ex-PSG midfielder Hatem Ben Arfa for one last roll of the dice but PSG went home with all three points and ideas about a new format for coach Thomas Tuchel.

Shikhar, Rohit slam tons as India thrash Pak

India beat Pakistan by nine wickets in a Super Four encounter of the Asia Cup here on Sunday with Rohit Sharma and Shikhar Dhawan scoring hundreds.

India chased down a victory target of 238, India reached the target in 39.3 overs with Rohit hitting an unbeaten 111 while Dhawan scored 114.

Earlier, Veteran Malik scored 78 off 90 balls and added an invaluable 107 runs for the fourth wicket with skipper Sarfraz Ahmed (44 off 66 balls) to enable Pakistan post a fighting total.

The Pakistan innings could be segregated into three distinct parts. A slow start where India made inroads followed by solid middle-overs batting before failing to utilise the launch pad fully with Jasprit Bumrah (2/29 in 10 overs) being brilliant at the death.

India once again started well with Mahendra Singh Dhoni's penchant for getting DRS reviews right after Yuzvendra Chahal (2/46 in 9 overs) got his first wicket by trapping Imam ul Haq (10) in front of the stumps.

Fakhar Zaman (31) was set but lost his footing trying to sweep Kuldeep Yadav (2/41 in 10 overs) to get leg before. The replays showed that the ball hit his gloves first but Pakistan didn't take a review.

Babar Azam was run-out when his skipper got a call for single wrong as Pakistan were reduced to 58 for three.

their sensible approach during the middle overs.

boundaries and sixes whenever given an opportunity.

Yuzvendra Chahal for a slog sweep and also played Kedar

Jadhav (0/20 in 3 overs) well. Jadhav was hit for a couple of boundaries in a single over as he dropped short.

Without trying to defend, Malik-Sarfraz got singles at will against Jadhav, prompting Rohit to take him off attack after only three overs.

Ravinda Jadeja (0/50 in 9 overs) after a good match against Bangladesh was flat and Malik used his feet to perfection lofting him straight into the VIP stands for a six.

Sarfraz, who played second fiddle to perfection was finally dismissed when he tried to hit Kuldeep over cover only to be snapped by Rohit Sharma.

Malik was joined by Asif Ali (30 off 21 balls), who teed off by smashing Bhuvneshwar Kumar for two sixes and a boundary in the 42nd over, that fetched Pakistan 22 runs.

However, there was another twist left as Jasprit Bumrah, coming back for his final spell got an inside edge off Malik's bat to get him caught behind. His innings had four boundaries and two sixes.

Asif, who looked like cutting loose, missed a googly from Chahal to get bowled as Pakistan lost the momentum.

Bumrah was phenomenal at the death, bowling block-hole deliveries at will. In all he bowled 39 dot balls in his 10 overs and Pakistan could score only 38 runs in their last seven overs.

BRIEF SCORES:

Pakistan 237/7 in 50 overs (Shoaib Malik 78 off 90 balls, Jasprit Bumrah 2/29, Kuldeep Yadav 2/41)

India 238/1 in 39.3 overs (Shikhar Dhawan 114 off 100 balls, Rohit Sharma 111 off 119 balls)

LUCKNOW: In a big blow to India, Asian Games gold medallist Vinesh Phogat was on Sunday ruled out of the World championship after suffering an elbow injury during practice in Lucknow. "I'm sad to inform you all that I wouldn't be participating in the upcoming World Championships in Hungary. Unfortunately 2 days ago, I injured my elbow during training. The doctor has advised me to rest it out for 4-6 weeks," Vinesh tweeted after initially being reluctant to talk about the injury. "It is a big setback for us. During sparring she injured her elbow and the MRI scans done in Mumbai revealed the ligaments are torn. It will be very risky to compete in the Worlds," a WFI official said. Vinesh, who was exempted from the World Championship trials, was to compete in the 50kg category and was a medal favourite.

She was also one of the favourites to win a medal at the Rio Olympic Games but a leg injury had ended her campaign. National coach Kuldeep Malik, under whose supervision the national camp is being conducted in Lucknow, refused to comment on the development. The Wrestling Federation of India (WFI) will have to look for a replacement but interestingly the next best grappler in the 50kg category Ritu Phogat has now been selected to represent the country in the 53kg.

Originally Pinki was to compete in 53kg but when she was asked to appear in a re-trial with Ritu, the Yasar Dogu International gold medal winner had refused.

B'desh manage 249/7 after poor start

PTI ■ ABU DHABI

Afghanistan bowlers could not capitalise on a dominant start upfront and allowed Bangladesh to score a competitive 249 for seven with Mahmudullah and Imrul Kayes repairing the innings with fighting half-centuries in an Asia Cup Super Four match, here on Sunday.

Mahmudullah (74) and Kayes (72 not out), playing his first ODI in almost a year, shared a 128-run stand for the fifth wicket to lift their side from a precarious 87 for five after electing to bat.

The inexperience of Afghan bowlers showed yet again as they allowed the rivals to free themselves from their clutches.

Mahmudullah played aggressive after completing his 20th ODI, twice lofting star Afghan spinner Rashid Khan over the ropes.

Rashid was well handled by the two batsmen. He could get only one wicket today and gave away 46 runs in his 10 overs. It was key in Bangladesh's revival.

Mahmudullah's knock came off 81 balls with three fours and two sixes while left-hander Kayes consumed 89 balls for his calculative unbeaten knock, which had six shots to the fence.

caught by Rashid.

At the top, only Liton Das could make his presence felt with a 41-run innings while Mushfiqur Rahim (33) frittered away a good start by running himself out.

The pace trio of Aftab Alam, Muejeb ur Rahaman and Gulbadin Naib had succeeded in straight-jacketing Bangladesh batsmen, keeping them under a tight leash with disciplined line and length.

Alam got the better of Nazmul Hossain (6) while Mohammad Mithun (1) was done in by Muejeb ur Rahaman.

Boundaries were far and few. Making it tougher for the Bangladesh was some terrific fielding by the gritty Afghans.

After the top-order was removed, run outs of Shakib ul Hasan (0) and Rahim only added to their woes.

PTI ■ BENGALURU

Shreyas Iyer and Prithvi Shaw hit blistering hundreds to help Mumbai pile on 400 for five in fifty overs and defeat Railways by 173 runs on Sunday to record a third successive win in the Vijay Hazare Trophy here.

After opting to bat, it was a dominant show from Mumbai. Iyer (144 in 118 balls) and Shaw (129 in 81 balls) brutally punished a listless Railways attack.

After that they bundled out the opposition for 227 in 42.4 overs, with Shams Mulani returning with figures of 3-26.

Mumbai is only the second side in domestic cricket to record 400 or plus score after Madhya Pradesh's 412/6 versus Railways in 2010.

After Mumbai skipper Ajinkya Rahane (3) departed early, it was the Iyer-Shaw duo who stole the limelight at the famed M Chinnaswamy Stadium.

While Iyer smashed eight fours and ten sixes, teen-sensation Shaw had 14 fours and six other hits over the fence. The two conjured a 161-run stand for the second wicket to lay foundation for a big total.

18-year-old Shaw, who missed a hundred by a whisker in the first game, completed his maiden List-A century for Mumbai. And it just took 61 balls for the right-handed Shaw to complete his breath-taking hundred.

After Shaw departed, Iyer continued the onslaught before being caught by Harsh Tyagi off Anupreet Singh. Experienced Surya Kumar Yadav (67) and Siddesh Lad (30 not out) helped Mumbai reach the 400-run mark.

Shreyas Iyer and Prithvi Shaw during DD practice session

It was an uphill task for Railways and they were never in the fray. They kept losing wickets at regular intervals before being bundled out for 227.

Railways skipper Saurabh Wakaskar (48), Prashant Awasthi (41) and Ankit Yadav (35 not out) showed some resistance, but that wasn't enough to take their side home. In the first two games, Mumbai had defeated Baroda by

SAURASHTRA, KERALA WIN RAIN-HIT MATCHES

NEW DELHI: Saurashtra defeated Hyderabad by seven wickets via VJD method in a rain-hit Group B match of the Vijay Hazare Trophy here on Sunday.

Pacer Jaydev Unadkat picked up four wickets helping Saurashtra limit to 196 for nine in 45 overs. Bavanaka Sandeep top-scored for Hyderabad with 76 and Kolla Sumanth contributed with 47.

Set a revised target of 110 runs in 20 overs due to rain, Saurashtra had little difficulty in getting home. They completed the task in 18.5 overs with opener Robin Uthappa scoring 35.

In another rain-hit Group B match, Kerala beat Chattisgarh by six wickets via VJD method at the Ferozshah Kotla.

All-rounder Jalaj Saxena picked up four wickets with his off-spin as Kerala skittled out Chattisgarh for 138 in 39.5 overs. In the other two Elite Group A matches, Himachal Pradesh put on a splendid performance to outclass Goa by four wickets in a low-scoring match at Alur.

Pliskova upsets Osaka to win Tokyo crown

AFP ■ TOKYO

Naomi Osaka's dominant run came to an end on Sunday in a 6-4, 6-4 loss to fourth-seeded Karolina Pliskova in the final of the Pan Pacific Open.

Playing in her first tournament since upsetting Serena Williams to win the US Open on Sept 8, third-seeded Osaka hadn't dropped a set previous to Sunday's final but was frustrated from the outset by the big-serving Czech player.

Pliskova came into Sunday's final having won her last four dating to the Brisbane International in January 2017 - and kept that streak alive while putting an end to Osaka's 10-match winning streak.

Pliskova needed three dramatic sets in each of her matches to reach her second final of the season.

The 20-year-old local favorite was barely tested in her first three matches of the tournament but faced a much sterner challenge against Pliskova.

The frustration boiled over when Osaka double faulted in the ninth game of the second set to set up Pliskova's second break. The 20-year-old tossed her racket to the ground before collecting her composure, but it was too

Despite being encouraged by the sold-out crowd at Tachikawa Arena, Osaka wasn't able to stage a comeback. She finished with 26 unforced errors and admitted to being exhausted after the match. "I've literally never felt more tired in my entire life," Osaka said. "To play the final of the US Open and then to come here, I think I did pretty well. So if there is anything I can take from this it is that I am proud of myself."

Federer, Zverev put Europe on top

AFP ■ CHICAGO

Kevin Anderson avenged a Wimbledon finals loss to Novak Djokovic as Team World dominated the night session Saturday to climb back into contention at the 2018 Laver Cup.

Anderson's surprise win, combined with a doubles victory by World's Jack Sock and Nick Kyrgios over Grigor Dimitrov and David Goffin, slashed Europe's overall lead to 7-5 heading into Sunday's third and final day of the exhibition tournament.

Earlier Saturday, Roger Federer and Alexander Zverev powered Europe into a commanding 7-1 lead by winning their singles matches to set a daunting task for the underdog World team in Chicago.

South Africa's Anderson got the fight back started by upsetting reigning Wimbledon and US Open champ Djokovic 7-6, 5-7, 10-6 to earn two points for Team World at the United Center arena.

"We've had some really close matches that haven't gone our way and I really wanted to put us back in there," said Anderson.

"It's not easy playing one of the best players of all time, but what an amazing atmosphere."

"It's just fantastic, for so many reasons. I felt I played a great match - beating Novak on any stage is great and here in Chicago makes it extra special."

Under the scoring system for the Laver Cup, victories on day two are worth two points each, with victories on day three rising to three points.

Defending champion Europe needs 13 points to take the title, which is being held for the second time.

Djokovic, who was making his Laver Cup singles debut, partnered with Roger Federer in doubles on Friday night where they lost to Anderson and Sock.

Heading into Saturday's match, 14-time grand slam winner Djokovic held a 6-1 career advantage, including a 6-2, 6-2, 7-6 (7/3) win over Anderson in July at Wimbledon. This was Anderson's first singles win over Djokovic in a decade.

On Saturday, they played the fourth 10 point tiebreaker of the tournament and it was the first win for Team World. Under the format being used for the tournament, a tiebreak is used instead of a decisive third set.

FEDERER ON FIRE

World number two Roger Federer was barely ruffled as he cruised to a 6-3, 6-2 win over Kyrgios.

"I felt good from the beginning of the match and that's not usual," said Federer. "Usually you need matches to get going and play your best in the third round or quarters of a tournament."

Earlier, Zverev saved a match point to defeat John Isner in day two's opening singles rubber.

Zverev, 21, dug deep to hold off the big-serving Isner to win 3-6, 7-6 (8/6), 10-7.

Ginting, Marin finish best in China

AFP ■ CHANGZHOU

Japan's Kento Momota suffered a shock loss in China on Sunday as he was bested by Indonesia's Anthony Sinisuka Ginting in just two sets.

The third seed, who took the Japan Open title on home ground last week, was beaten by world number 13 Ginting 23-21, 21-19.

In a closely fought final, Momota had been leading in early moments but Ginting persisted to bring the score to 21-11.

The 22-year-old went on to comfortably take the second game, collapsing in joy when a miss by Momota sealed his win.

Ginting last beat Momota at the Asian Games in Jakarta last month. His spirited takedown of reigning Olympic champion Chen Long also gave the Games some of its most riveting badminton.

Indonesia's newest poster boy has already gained a reputation as a giant slayer - en route to the final, he beat top seed Viktor Axelsen, number six Chen Long and number five Chou Tien Chen. The men's doubles was won by the Danish duo of Kim Astrup and Anders Skarup Rasmussen, who beat Chinese duo Han Chengkai and Zhou Haodong in a three-game match, 21-13, 17-21, 21-14.

Spain's Carolina Marin beat China's Chen Yufei 21-18, 21-13 in 47 minutes to take the women's singles title.

An all-Japanese women's doubles final saw Misaki Matsutomo and Ayaka Takahashi defeat newly-crowned world champions Mayu Matsumoto and Wakana Nagahara.

The badminton fraternity has also been reacting to Saturday's revelation that one of its biggest stars, Malaysia's Lee Chong Wei, has early-stage nose cancer and is being treated in Taiwan.
