Schools deserted as Valley edgy

Only 10 students mark attendance in 196 schools in Srinagar

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ JAMMU

Majority of primary schools reported "zero" to very thin attendance on Monday after the authorities decided to re-open 196 schools across Srinagar following two weeks of clampdown in the State in the wake of abrogation of Article 370. In most cases, parents refused to drop their children to schools citing strict security restrictions. Other districts in the Valley too registered zero attendance of students.

The only saving grace was the presence of schoolteachers and other staff who made it to the schools despite facing many hardships en route.

Deputy Commissioner, Srinagar, Shahid Iqbal Choudhary told The Pioneer that out of 196 schools, staff and teachers reported on duty in around 170 schools in Srinagar on Monday, but less than 10 students marked their presence on day one.

He, however, expressed hope that the situation will improve from Tuesday as several private school authorities were approached to re-open their schools.

Choudhary also convened a meeting with representatives of Presentation Convent, DPS, Burn Hall and other schools. The meeting was attended by Education Director, Additional Commissioner, Joint Director Planning and heads/representatives of private schools.

The Government also decided to re-open all middle level schools across Kashmir valley from Wednesday.

Meanwhile, after his two week stay in the Kashmir for monitoring the situation, National Security Adviser Ajit Doval returned to Delhi on Monday and briefed Union Home Minister Amit Shah.

Union Home Secretary Rajiv Gauba, Intelligence Bureau chief Arvind Kumar and other top officials attended the meeting that reviewed the steps taken to maintain the law and order situation in the State. The issues related to restrictions imposed in various parts of Jammu & Kashmir also figured in the meeting.

Bhagwat's quota debate call fires Opp with anger

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat's call for debate on reservation has set off a major political row with several Opposition parties condemning any attempt to dilute the provisions of caste-based quota in Government jobs and educational institutions.

While RSS dismissed as "needless" the row over Bhagwat's remarks, asserting that he merely stressed on the need for talks in harmony within society to address any issue, the Congress, the BSP and the RJD alleged that the "anti Dalit-backward face" of the RSS-BJP has been exposed.

"A needless controversy is being sought to be created over RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat's address at a programme in Delhi. He merely stressed on the importance of addressing issues in society through mutual talks in harmony and called for considering a sensitive issue like reservation in a similar manner," RSS "prachar pramukh" (publicity head) Arun Kumar said in a tweet.

He also said that organisation has made it clear time and again that it fully supports reservation for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, OBC and those getting it on to economic grounds.

Bhagwat had said on Sunday that there should be conversation in harmonious atmosphere between those in favour of reservation and those against it.

"Attack on the rights of the poor, trampling on constitutional rights, snatching the rights of Dalits-backwards. This is the real BJP agenda. The anti Dalit-backward face of the RSS-BJP has been exposed. The conspiracy to end reservation for the poor and the policy of changing the Constitution have been uncovered," Congress' chief spokesperson Randeep Surjewala said.

BSP chief Mayawati asked the RSS to shed its "anti-reservation mindset", saying reservation was a constitutional provision and disturbing it would be an injustice. Mayawati said such a debate would generate a dangerous situation of doubt which was not needed.

"The RSS saying that there should be open-hearted debate pertaining to reservation given to SC/ST/OBC generates dangerous situation of doubt, which is not at all needed," the BSP chief tweeted.

She also said reservation is a humanitarian and constitutional provision, and disturbing it is injustice and improper and it would be better if the Sangh sheds its anti-reservation mindset."

Reacting to the statement, RJD spokesman Manoj Jha questioned whether there is any conducive atmosphere in the country in the present Central regime. "The current dispensation has not left anymore a good atmosphere in the country where anything can be deliberated upon. The reality is that the benefits for SC and ST have not been passed to the beneficiaries and whatever has been shared to them is being looked upon to be reviewed. In the name of brute majority this BJP ruled Centre is attempting to trample the Constitution by all means," Jha said.

Bihar's last Congress CM Jagannath Mishra dies

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Former Bihar Chief Minister Jagannath Mishra, 82, passed away in Delhi on Tuesday after a prolonged illness. Mishra was one of the tallest political leaders of Bihar before Lalu Prasad became the face of the State politics.

Apart from holding the post of Chief Minister thrice as a Congress stalwart, Mishra served as a Union Cabinet Minister.

Mishra was convicted along with 44 others in the infamous fodder scam in 2013. He was sentenced to four years imprisonment. However, he was acquitted by a Ranchi court last year.

Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar has expressed grief on the death of Mishra. Jagannath Mishra was a famous leader and educationist. He made an invaluable contribution to the politics of Bihar and India. His death is an irreparable loss to the field of politics, society, and education," Nitish Kumar said in a statement. The Bihar Government has declared a three-day State mourning in the State.

In the 70s and 80s, Mishra was considered a powerful and mass leader of the Congress in Bihar. However, his popularity dipped after the emergence of the social justice forces under the likes of Lalu in 1990. At one point, Mishra left the Congress to join the Nationalist Congress Party.

Ex-MPs asked to vacate bungalows within week

Advani, Joshi to retain residences due to security reasons

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Centre on Monday asked all former Members of Parliament (MPs) to vacate Government bungalows within a week. Majority of such Government bungalows are located in the posh Lutyens' zone in the national Capital.

A high-level meeting convened by the Housing Committee of the Lok Sabha on Monday decided that if these "squatters" failed to vacate the bungalows, their power, water and gas connections will be cut within three days and heavy penalty will be imposed on them.

Senior BJP leaders and former Deputy Prime Minister LK Advani and Murlu Manohar Joshi will retain their bungalow due to security reasons.

The committee had earlier directed several senior Congress leaders, including Jyotiraditya Scindia and Mallikarjun Kharge, to vacate their Government bungalows since they have lost the Lok Sabha elections last month.

Normally, leaders who lose elections to Parliament are supposed to vacate their bungalows, but over the years there has been a trend among several leaders, including former Ministers, refusing to vacate their bungalows citing various reasons.

CR Patil, chairman of the Lok Sabha Housing Committee, told The Pioneer that the committee called a meeting on Monday where it was decided that in three days, power, water and gas connections will be snapped. Patil said most of them will vacate their bungalow within two three days. However, no MPs have stated that they will not vacate their bungalow, he said.

Sources said those having 'Z' plus security cover will retain their bungalows. "Joshi is also looking for accommodation in Lutyens' Delhi and he will vacate his bungalow soon," said a BJP leader.

According to the rules, former MPs have to vacate their respective bungalows within one month of dissolution of the previous Lok Sabha. In the 2019 Lok Sabha elections, more than 260 candidates were elected to the Lower House of the Parliament for the first time, including cricketer Gautam Gambhir, Union Minister Smriti Irani and Ravi Shankar Prasad and Bengali actresses Mimi Chakraborty and Nusrat Jahan Ruhu.

The Centre has recently passed the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Amendment Bill, 2019. The Government provides residential accommodation to its employees, Members of Parliament and other dignitaries while they are in service or till the term of their office on licence basis. As per the existing allotment rules, after the expiry of the terms and conditions of the licence, the occupants of such residential accommodations become unauthorised for staying in such accommodation and should vacate the same. However, it is often seen that the unauthorised occupants do not vacate the Government accommodation on expiry of the terms and conditions of the licence as per the rules and uses dilatory tactics to withhold the accommodation.

President Ram Nath Kovind had on May 25 dissolved the 16th Lok Sabha with immediate effect on the recommendation of the Union Cabinet after the Modi Government was formed for a second term.

Punjab is virtually under water

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Punjab virtually remained submerged in water on Monday also as intense rains continued to lash the region for the third consecutive day. Troubles poured for the people across the state, especially in Jalandhar, Ropar, Nawanshahr, Moga, and Ludhiana areas as water level in undulating Sutlej river created a flood like situation and threw life out of gear. The schools remained closed and people confined to their houses in the urban areas, while the National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) teams in collaboration with the Army and the District Administration carried out evacuation process in the affected areas.

Even through the Indian Meteorological Department (MET) has predicted heavy rains in isolated places across Punjab, the Bhakra Beas Management Board (BBMB) may be compelled to increase the quantum of water discharge from the Bhakra Dam to prevent the rising of the water level in the reservoir which is already filled beyond the permissible limits.

As the rains subsided by the morning, the Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh on Monday assessed situation in Ropar, and later held detailed meeting with the top officials issuing slew of directions to tackle the situation.

Besides, the state Water Resources Minister Sukhinder Sarkaria had also visited Ropar and Phillaur to review the situation. The state Chief Secretary Karan Avtar Singh maintained that the overall situation was being monitored closely and relief and rescue measures were also being undertaken in full earnest.

The State Government has allotted advance funds to the tune of Rs 20 lakh each to all the Deputy Commissioners to carry out flood protection works.

IndiGo, SpiceJet's T2 flights to shift to T3 from Sept 5

After infrastructure boost, IndiGo and GoAir to resume op from IGIA's T2

SAPNA SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

At a time when Delhi International Airport Limited (DIAL) has initiated work to enhance Terminal-II infrastructure, two major airlines — Spicejet and IndiGo — will shift to Terminal-III of the IGIA from September 5.

On Monday, DIAL in its official statement said the shift is to pave way for infra enhancement of T-II, after which its capacity will increase from 15 million passengers per annum (MPPA) to 18MPPA. "This will enhance the passenger experience at T-II terminal after the movement. GoAir and IndiGo will be the two major airlines operating from T-II," DIAL notification reads. Notably, IndiGo will operate partially from T-III also. IndiGo flights of 5,000 series will shift from T2 to T3 and but flight operations of IndiGo and Spicejet at T1 will remain unaffected.

DIAL official said, "The move comes as part of DIAL's efforts to enhance passenger experience at Delhi Airport at a time when Spicejet, IndiGo and GoAir, operating from Terminal 2, have witnessed a steep traffic growth compounded by the re-allocation of Jet Airways traffic." "The shifting will enable the airport operator to enhance the overall infrastructure of T2, which is being enhanced to handle rising passenger traffic," he added.

When asked what new changes will incorporate for passengers' comfort, DIAL official said, "Under T2 capacity enhancement initiatives, the Security Hold Area (SHA), bus gate hold area, new arrivals area and passengers waiting area would be expanded, while Pre-Embarkation Security Checks (PESC) area would be relocated and Automated Tray Retrieval System (ATRS) would be installed."

Yamuna breaches danger mark

10,000 people in low-lying areas moved to safety

SAPNA SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

Heavy rain in northern India and the release of 8.28 lakh cusecs water from the Hathnikund barrage by Haryana on Monday caused flood-like situation in the low-lying areas of the national Capital with the river Yamuna flowing at 205.36 metres, breaching the danger mark of 205.33 metres.

Around 10,000 people have been evacuated from flood-plain and shifted to relief tents erected by the Government agencies, a senior official said. So far 2,120 temporary shelters have been set up, where food, water and other amenities are being provided by Government agencies. To reach people, the Delhi Government also provides helpline numbers: 22421656 and 21210849. Taking precautionary measures, Delhi Chief Minister

The Yamuna in spate as seen from the Old Yamuna Bridge, also known as Lohe-ka-Pul, in Delhi on Monday

Arvind Kejriwal appealed to residents of Yamuna flood-plains to shift to government tents. "The water level in Yamuna is expected to cross the danger level (205.33 meter) by today evening, since Haryana has released 8.28 lakh cusecs of water," requesting not to panic since the government is taking all possible steps to combat evolving flood situation," Kejriwal said.

"Since Haryana has released 8.28 Lakh cusecs of water on Sunday evening and excess water will reach Delhi within 36 to 72 hours," Kejriwal said.

On the direction of Sub Divisional Magistrate (SDM), Delhi Traffic Police also closed the Old Yamuna Bridge (Lothian bridge) to avoid any casualty.

Recalling past incidents of floods, Kejriwal appealed to people residing floodplains to shift in tents and not to return till water recedes.

RAIN HAVOC IN HIMACHAL

25 dead, over 500 stranded, losses of ₹574 Cr

PNS ■ SHIMLA

At least 25 people have died and over 500 stranded in different parts of Himachal Pradesh as several roads have been blocked by landslides and flash floods, in the state.

Even as heavy rains have already claimed 25 lives in Himachal Pradesh over the past two days, the meteorological department on Monday predicted that the downpour is likely to continue in parts of the state during the next 24 hours.

The local Indian Meteorological Department said the state received the highest ever rainfall for a 24-hour period, since records began almost 70 years ago which caused damage to roads.

"The state as a whole received 102.5 mm and this was 1,065 per cent more than normal for this day," the IMD said in a statement on Sunday. This is the highest ever rainfall in 24 hours over the state, it added.

The higher reaches of Kullu, Kinnaur and Lahaul-Spiti districts experienced snowfall. Keylong town in Lahaul-Spiti district too saw snow.

Officials said efforts are on to clear the roads and restore traffic to move them to safer places. The National Disaster Relief Force is diverting the water accumulated in Kangra district's Nurpur sub-division by digging an alternative route.

Meanwhile, the State Government has released ₹ 15 crore to different departments for undertaking restoration works damaged due to torrential rains during the last two days in the State.

Addressing the Deputy Commissioners through video conferencing from Shimla on Monday, Chief Minister Jay Ram Thakur said that as many as 25 people lost their lives in the State due to heavy rains during the last two days. He said that the State has suffered total losses of about ₹ 574 crore during the current monsoon.

The Chief Minister

PUNJAB UNDER FLOOD

Govt declares natural calamity in flood-hit villages

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Punjab Government on Monday declared the current flood situation in the affected villages of the state as a natural calamity, with Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh directing the Financial Commissioner Revenue (FCR) to issue the necessary notification at the earliest.

Capt Amarinder has asked FCR to officially declare a natural calamity with the village as a unit, in order to facilitate the affected people to claim insurance against loss from various companies. This would also help the banks, especially the state cooperative banks, to restructure and defer the recovery of crop loans from farmers, as per the norms of Reserve Bank of India.

The Chief Minister, chairing a high level meeting to review the flood preparedness in the state, asked the Finance Department to immediately clear the pending relief funds to the tune of around Rs 100 crore, in respect of the previous crops or harvests, for expeditious disbursement by the Revenue Department, through the respective Deputy Commissioner.

Capt Amarinder also directed all the Deputy Commissioners, in close coordination with Police, NDRF, SDRF and all other State Government Departments and entities, to closely monitor the situation with a view to providing not only expeditious rescue and relief operation but also to take pro-active preventive measures.

Compensation as per the prescribed norms should be disbursed expeditiously in case of death, to the next of kin forthwith, the Chief Minister directed, while also ordering temporary subsistence allowance to the migrant labour, who may otherwise not be covered in the existing relief norms of the State Policy, to be paid out of the Chief Minister's Relief Fund.

Capt Amarinder also ordered the Drainage Department to immediately plug the breaches, with the help of the Army if needed, while asking all DCs to remain on high alert in case of additional release from the flood-gates of the dams.

It was also decided at the meeting that the Chief Minister Secretariat as well as Chief Secretary would maintain close liaison with the office of the Army Commander, Western Command, Chandimandir, and pro-actively apprise them of the nature and quantum of Army assistance required. The respective Deputy Commissioners shall make the formal request at their level, as and when the situation so warrants.

The Chief Minister asked the Canal Administration and the Draining Wings of the Irrigation or Water Resources Department to work closely together to ensure that the water released into the canals and rivers are optimally balanced.

In case of Ranjit Sagar Dam on River Ravi, the operation and management of which is with the State Water Resources or Irrigation Department and Powercom, the situation shall be closely monitored so that the appropriate measures to release water can be taken, while widely disseminating the information well in advance as to when the flood-gates are going to be opened.

Capt Amarinder has also directed various Departments, including Health and Animal Husbandry, to continue to provide emergency medicines and animal fodder in the affected villages.

OPPOSITION TAKES ON GOVT

Opposition parties in Punjab have come down heavily on the Congress-led Punjab Government on Monday blaming it for the suffering being faced by the people of the state following incessant rainfall since past three days.

Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD) has demanded an appropriate compensation package, while the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) has demanded immediate 'girdawari' and 100 percent compensation to the victims.

SAD president Sukhbir Badal appealed to the Akali rank and cadre to fan out in flood affected areas to provide immediate succor to the people. At the same time, he asked the Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh to direct the administration to provide immediate compensation to the flood victims.

Sukhbir, addressing public meetings in Ferozepur parliamentary segment, said that he had received reports that the Youth Akali Dal (YAD) had done commendable work in flood affected villages in Nawanshahr and Ropar besides others parts of the State. "I urge the Akali cadre to intensify this stir to provide all possible help to our flood-stricken brethren", he added.

SAD's senior leader and former minister Daljit Singh Cheema said that an appropriate compensation package, reflecting the enormity of the calamity which had befallen farmers of Punjab due to rampant flooding in several districts of the State, be given.

"It is unfortunate the Congress Government is following a piecemeal approach...The relief announced by the Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh is completely inadequate to deal with the damage caused by flooding due to intense rains since the last three days," said Cheema.

He pointed that around 20 villages in Ropar had suffered extensive damage with paddy crop being destroyed even as flood waters entered entire villages. "Flood waters have entered houses destroying furniture and weakening walls which have developed cracks. Besides, food grains stored in houses have been destroyed," he said.

Calling for emergent steps to provide relief to the people including an interim package, Cheema said that special allocation should be made to repair road and the administration should take steps to provide green fodder to affected villages.

CAPT ANNOUNCES RS 100 CR FOR FLOOD HIT AREAS

Punjab Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh on Monday announced Rs 100 crore for emergency relief and rehabilitation measures in the flood-hit regions of the state. At the same time, he said that a special girdawari will be conducted as soon as the water level recedes to ensure adequate compensation for the affected farmers.

The Chief Minister made these announcements during a tour of the flood-affected areas of Rupnagar, where he evaluated the damage caused by the torrential rains of the past 72 hours and met the people who had suffered damage as a result of the flooding. He also faced protests by the locals.

Capt Amarinder also expressed grief over the death of three persons due to roof collapse in Ludhiana district.

The Chief Minister, later, reviewed the overall flood situation in the state with senior officials.

He was informed by the Chief Engineer Drainage that the overall situation in the rivers Beas and Ravi was under control though danger continued to lurk in areas adjacent to the Satluj river and further downstream, at Harike Headworks in Ferozepur.

The flood releases from the Bakhra dam was above its maintainable level, flowing currently at 1681.23 feet, the meeting was informed.

The Chief Minister, who earlier travelled by road from Chandigarh to Rupnagar, described the situation as unprecedented, and assured of all possible assistance from his Government to the local residents.

He was briefed by the local officials on the damage caused to the standing crops, houses, public installations and livestock due to heavy discharge of water from the catchment area of Bhakra dam.

Interacting with IIT students displaced due to heavy flooding on their campus, Capt Amarinder directed the State Administration to ensure their boarding and lodging arrangements in Punjab Bhawan and Kissan Bhawan at Chandigarh till their return. Acceding to a request from the IIT Director, he asked his Chief Principal Secretary Suresh Kumar to work out a strategy to ensure foolproof and efficient drainage system to avert recurrence of flooding incidents in the campus.

Reviewing the ground situation at Shampura village after visiting Rupnagar Head Works, the Chief Minister met slum dwellers in the area and directed the district administration to extend all necessary help to the affected families. He also asked the Deputy Commissioner to keep a tab over the situation till the situation normalises.

The Chief Minister instructed the district officials to organize health camps in cooperation with the Health Department to prevent outbreak of any water borne diseases in the wake of the floods.

He also asked the Animal Husbandry Department to provide veterinary health services to the needy, and to make necessary arrangements to ensure supply of feed and fodder.

Wading through a flooded road at Khairabad village, the Chief Minister also gave a patient hearing to the locals' grievances and assured them of prompt redressal.

Earlier, on his arrival, the Deputy Commissioner Sumit Jarangal apprised the Chief Minister that due to heavy downpour on Sunday, the total release at Ropar Head Works was 2,50,000 cusecs, in addition to unprecedented increase in flow in many rivulets like Swan Nadi (90,000 cusecs), Sirsa Nadi (60,000 cusecs), Budhki Nadi (20,000 cusecs).

The DC said that the district administration, with the help of Police, NDRF and NGOs, was able to rescue more than 600 families from 45 villages. There had been no reports of human life but there was significant loss of crops and cattle which was being assessed, he added.

FLOODS IN NORTH INDIA

Haryana battles flood, IAF rescues 9 people

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

A flood-like situation prevailed in many parts of Haryana where the Indian Air Force on Monday rescued nine persons stuck in Karnal district due to sudden rise of water in the River Yamuna.

While the Meteorological Department said no heavy rainfall was reported in most parts of the two states on Monday morning, the two states had received heavy rains during the past three days. Assisted by the Karnal Police, the Indian Air Force rescued nine persons including women and children who had got stuck in Karnal.

The rescue operation was carried out by the IAF in the early hours of Monday despite adverse weather. Haryana's Additional Director General of Police (Law and Order) Navdeep Singh Virk said.

In the Yamuna River, water level had risen dangerously at the Hathni Kund barrage in Yamuna Nagar, Haryana on Sunday evening.

Haryana's Department of Revenue and Disaster Management issued a high flood warning on Sunday alerting deputy commissioners of Karnal, Panipat, Sonapat, Faridabad and Palwal.

The Yamuna River discharge at 6 pm on Sunday was 8,28,072 cusecs, which is categorised as a "high flood" situation, officials said.

There were reports that rain water had entered a village in Yamunanagar on Monday and people were being evacuated. All the deputy commissioners of the five Haryana districts have been requested to keep a close watch on the situation and keep their disaster management resources on high readiness to tackle any adverse situation.

HARYANA CONGRESS IN CRISIS

Tanwar says Hooda has committed act of 'Indiscipline'

MANOJ KUMAR ■ CHANDIGARH

A day after 'Parivartan Maharally' of former Haryana Chief Minister Bhupinder Singh Hooda is drawn in Haryana Congress with state party chief Ashok Tanwar dubbing it "an act of indiscipline".

Haryana Congress president Ashok Tanwar on Monday said that he will bring the matter to the notice of the party high command soon. Referring to the rally, he said that conspiracy is being made by some leaders to weaken the Congress party in the state. "The formation of 25-member committee by Hooda, to decide the future course of action regarding the formation of new party, was an illegal act. Hooda has no right as the party leader to constitute a committee. Indiscipline in the party will not be tolerated at any cost," he said, adding State in-charge of the party must take cognizance of this matter.

The State Congress Party chief stated that the announcements made by Hooda in his personal capacity are apparently an attempt to weaken the party. "The poll-related manifesto is a document of a party and not any individual. The announcements which were made in the rally are an attempt to weaken the party," he maintained. "A man who had been chief minister of Haryana for 10 years is lashing out at the Congress which is apparently an act of indiscipline. Indiscipline should now end," he said.

Tanwar said that normally party declares its manifesto and not an individual. Congress is He said Hooda was made Chief Minister by the party for 10 years. "One may be a big leader, but should remain disciplined in the party. It is a pressure tactic. Party will not tolerate it," he said, adding "people of the state are with the Congress Party. Wherever I go people support me. The Congress party will form the government in the state".

The former CM Hooda on August 18 had attacked the Congress party over its stand on the nullification of Article 370 and declared himself as the chief ministerial candidate for the upcoming state election with or without his party. During the rally at his home ground in Rohtak, Hooda also announced a 25-member committee, comprising 12 of the Congress's 17 state legislators and 13 other leaders, to deliberate on his next move.

His sharp criticism of the Congress on that score triggered speculation whether he was on his way out of the party he served for more than four decades. The 71-year-old, however, had said he would not quit the party, but constitute a committee of 13 MLAs who would decide the future course of action.

"My party has lost its way a bit. It is not the old Congress any more. When it comes to issues of patriotism and self-respect, I will never compromise," Hooda had said. In the Rohtak Maharally, Hooda had declared election manifesto, promising the people to raise old-age pension to Rs 5,000 per month; waive off farmers' loans; restoration of pension scheme; provision of Rs2,000 per month to women in the Below Poverty Line (BPL) category; free electricity up to 300 units to BPL families; recruitment of 50,000 sanitary workers and simplification of the GST; free travel for women on Haryana Roadways buses; providing wheat and rice at Rs 2 per kg for BPL families also having four Deputy Chief Ministers, including one from Scheduled Caste (SC) and Brahmin community, on coming to the power.

Class 12 pass in Saksham Yuva Scheme in Haryana now

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

From now on Class 12 pass applicants can also register under Saksham Yuva Scheme being run by Employment department of Haryana government.

Earlier, only postgraduate and graduate unemployed youth were included in the scheme for providing them unemployment allowance and honourarium. So far, 92,519 graduates and post graduate eligible applicants have been financially benefited under the scheme. A spokesman of the department said that the scheme was launched on November 1, 2016 for post-graduate unemployed youth and later, it was expanded to graduates. Now, it has further been expanded to include Class 12th pass unemployed youth of the state, who could also register online on department's portal. Unemployment Allowance of Rs 900 per month and additional Rs 6,000 as honourarium would be given to eligible applicants for maximum 100 hours of honorary work per month. Applicants should have passed Class 12th examinations, as regular student, from any recognized school affiliated to Board of School Education Haryana, Bhiwani, Central Board of School Education (CBSE) Delhi and Indian Certificate of Secondary Education (ICSE) Board, Delhi, situated in Haryana and UT. Applicant's age should be between 18 to 35 years.

Punjab employees to hold dharnas to force Govt to deliver on its promises

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

The Employee Wing Punjab—a representative body of Government employees and pensioners of the State—on Monday announced to hold dharnas in different parts of the state to force the Congress Government to accept employees' demands including release of their DA and regularization of contractual employees.

"Capt Amarinder Singh led Congress Government is deliberately delaying meeting the demands of employees and pensioners despite the assurances of fulfilling them immediately after coming into power.

The government has reneged on all promises it made to the employees and pensioners of the state," said the state president of the employees' body Karamjit Singh Bhagrana.

Giving details of the protest strategy being adopted by the employees' body, Bhagrana said that in the first phase, three dharna will be held at Fazilka, Ludhiana and Phagwara on September 4, 11 and 14, respectively.

"We will remind the deaf government that nothing was done by it to fulfil our demands like release of DA instalments, implementation of sixth pay commission report, regularization of 30,000 contractual employees and removal of professional tax.

We will escalate our agitation in days to come if our genuine demands are not met immediately," he said.

Chandigarh Admn sends recommendations for NEP

NISHU MAHAJAN ■ CHANDIGARH

The Chandigarh Administration has pushed for creation of incubation centres in higher educational institutions, paperless examination system, creation of endowment fund, base line assessment of existing educational colleges before introduction of multidisciplinary B.Ed. programme among other recommendations in the national education policy (NEP) 2019.

In response to the suggestions sought by Union Ministry of Human Resource Development regarding draft national education policy 2019, the Chandigarh Administration has submitted its recommendations last week after the approval of Punjab Governor and UT Administrator VP Singh Badnore.

In its communiqué to the HRD, the Chandigarh Administration while making comments on draft policy for higher education system in the country has suggested that a National Leadership Training Institute for Higher Education should be set up for achieving the desired goals and ensure the capability of teachers in higher educational institutions (HEIs).

One of the key recommendations of Administration is revamping the examination process in HEIs into a complete paperless system using latest Information and Communications Technology (ICT) methods besides constituting a National Examination Reform Council (NERC) for working on examination and testing quality reforms.

Raising objection to the NEP's proposal of transitioning to four-year multidisciplinary B.Ed. programme for weeding out substandard teacher training colleges, the UT Administration has stated that rigorous monitoring of teacher education is required but closure or merger of TELs (teacher training institutions) into multidisciplinary institutions is not a solution.

"Every existing teacher education institution cannot be converted into multidisciplinary higher education institutions. If these colleges are directed to be multi-disciplinary, there may be serious issues of resources both financial and human resources. In such a situation it may be better to do base line assessment of existing education colleges and those acquiring a minimum score lower than the minimum bench mark may be closed," the Administration has suggested.

"Also, the students should not be forced to decide at plus two level (XII class), as some decide at very later stage to become teachers," it further stated in its communiqué.

The Administration has also recommended that a National Testing Agency should be set up to maintain excellence in HEI in the country. On the proposal of constituting a Rashtriya Shiksha Aayog with representation from various fields, the Administration has suggested that proportionate representation of academician amongst the School education, College and University should be given in the Aayog.

"The Principal in seniority or rotation for discharging leadership positions if replaced by identification of an education bureaucracy will be disastrous for administrative and academic functioning," the UT Administration has said while commenting on the membership proposal of RSA in NEP 2019.

When contacted, UT Education Secretary BL Sharma said that the Administration has submitted its recommendations on NEP 2019 to the HRD and focused on the use of latest ICT methods to improve education system.

"The recommendations have been sent after holding discussions with various colleges in the union territory of Chandigarh," he said.

Commenting on institutional autonomy for recruitment in NEP 2019, the Administration has proposed that individual institutions having achieved certain prescribed benchmarks, particularly in respect of state and union territory owned institutions, should be empowered for institutional recruitment. It also suggested a decentralised recruitment policy for timely regular recruitments to be made by the respective states and union territories.

Creation of an endowment fund for funding research projects in HEIs has also been proposed by the UT Administration. Endowment fund would be generated by donations from alumni, business or industrial establishments among other organizations, thereby creating a pool of funds that the institution can use for research, scholarships, enables faculty and students to conduct innovative studies, explore new academic fields, apply new technologies, the UT Administration said.

It has also suggested developing a mechanism to share outcomes of research undertaken by HEIs to industry in the form of transfer of resultant technology and ensure employment of concerned researcher students in similar projects of the industry.

For energizing the faculty and their performance management in colleges and Universities, the UT has recommended at least three months' orientation programme of the new faculty before joining the institution, 7-10 days compulsory in-service residential training programmes for existing faculty in a phased manner in collaboration with institutions of national importance and exposure to international standards and practices in collaboration with foreign Institutes of eminence to outstanding teachers.

Recommending setting up of incubation centres in all HEIs, the Administration has stated that it will provide environment for support to start-ups by students and alumni.

and discussed with the Chief Minister before taking it up emphatically with the Union Government.

Bajwa said that the new policy is being imposed as part of a conspiracy to downgrade Punjab. The draft of the policy is printed in each language of the country except Punjabi, he said.

"The new policy advocates centralization of every aspect of education which would take the education sector out of the ambit of the States... Each state has different needs in the academic sector depending upon their own culture and language, but this aspect would be negated with the new policy," he pointed.

Giving his suggestions regarding the new education policy, the Minister said that the new policy must be pro-poor and strengthening the government institutions sans any restrictions with special emphasis on the teaching about social causes.

At the same time, the Minister also appealed to the private educational institutions to make youth capable of employment in tune with the changing trends at national and international level by imparting quality education instead of commercialisation of education.

Officially said that a breach in the bandh in Bholewal village has caused inundation in five villages each in Ludhiana and Jalandhar districts. "The NDRF personnel conducted the rescue operations and rescued people trapped in their houses. Standing crops in thousands of acres have been destroyed," said the official adding that Ludhiana Deputy Commissioner and local MLA and Cabinet Minister Bharat Bhushan Ashu oversaw the rescue work.

Indian Army and NDRF teams also launched rescue operations in Jalandhar district after major breaches were reported on the Satluj River at

Punjab Minister calls upon all States to raise voice against new education policy

Govt to strive for removing anomalies of new policy

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Expressing grave concern at the draft of the new Education policy released by the Union Government, Punjab Higher Education Minister Tript Rajinder Singh Bajwa on Monday said that if implemented, the policy would pose a challenge to the multicultural, multilingual environment of the country.

Bajwa, addressing a seminar organized by the Joint Action Committee (JAC) of the un-aided colleges, said that though the policy reiterates India as a democratic republic with justice and equal opportunities for everybody, "but the word 'secular' has been omitted which is a cause of concern for the religious and linguistic minorities of the country".

At the same time, Bajwa called upon other states also to raise their voice against this new education policy so as to save the regional languages and cultures.

"Punjab Government would continue to strive for removing the anomalies in the new policy," said Bajwa while exhorting the academicians of the State to send their suggestions in writing about the loopholes of the new policy which would be compiled into a draft four places in Bholewal, Meowal and other villages under Phillaur sub-division.

As per the initial reports, more than 24 people were still trapped even as NDRF teams rescued several people from Nawana Khera village.

Jalandhar's Deputy Commissioner Varinder Kumar Sharma has asked people in at least 13 villages of Phillaur district to be evacuated. Officials said that the situation is under control in Shakhot sub-division of Jalandhar district, where around 63 villages were put on high alert.

Sharma requested residents of Shakhot to move to safer places as around 2.4 lakh cusec of water from the Sutlej is likely to hit the area during the day. The situation also remained under control in the Shaheed Bhagat Singh Nagar (Nawanshahr) district, where more than 65 villages were put on high alert.

"A breach took place at around 3:30 am at Burji number 14, 20, 31 and 32, Deputy Commissioner Sharma and SSP Navjot Singh Mahal rushed to the spot with companies of NDRF, SDRF and Army. Subsequently, a massive operation was launched to protect the lives of people who were stranded in the flood water."

CONG-LED UPA ERA DEAL

ED summons PC in ₹70,000 cr AI scam

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Enforcement Directorate (ED) has summoned former Union Finance Minister P Chidambaram for questioning in connection with its money-laundering probe into the purchase of 111 aircraft for Air India during the Congress-led UPA Government. The deal, made more than a decade ago, saddled the struggling national carrier with mounting losses. Sources said, Chidambaram has been asked to depose before the investigating officer of the case on August 23 at an Enforcement Directorate office here to record his statement. Chidambaram's grilling has been sought in the cases which relate to losses suffered by Air India due to an alleged multi-core aviation scam and irregularities in fixing air slots for international airlines. The senior Congress leader is likely to be questioned regarding the purchase of 111 aircraft, then worth nearly ₹70,000 crore, for Air India. Finance Ministry is responsible for fiscal prudence in expenditure of Government funds. In 2011, the Comptroller and Auditor General (CAG) had questioned the rationale behind the government's decision to order 111 aircraft, 48 from Airbus and 68 from Boeing, for Air India and Indian Airlines for about ₹70,000 crore in 2006.

The ED has already grilled former Civil Aviation Minister Praful Patel in connection with these decisions. The leads gathered from Patel's questioning have prompted the ED to summon Chidambaram in order to take the probe forward, the sources said. Besides being at the helm of the Finance Ministry, Chidambaram was also heading an Empowered Group of Ministers (EGoM) for these deals and his questioning is expected to help the agency in understanding the decision-making process undertaken by the government for the acquisition of the aircraft.

Chidambaram is also being probed by ED in two separate money-laundering cases related to Aircel-Maxis deal and INX Media bribery scam and has been questioned in these cases multiple times in the past.

Chidambaram had earlier described the ED action in the Aircel-Maxis case as a "crazy mixture of falsehoods and conjectures".

The ED and CBI have sought custodial interrogation of Chidambaram in INX Media case. However, he has been granted protection from any adverse action by the Delhi High Court.

Govt prepares action plan to end manual scavenging

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs (MoHUA) on Monday came out with a detailed action plan that included modernising the sewerage system and facilitating mechanical cleaning so as to prevent human entry into sewers and septic tanks. The action plan also suggested storm water drainage tax by the municipal bodies within the maximum capping for Municipal Tax. Manual scavenging takes many forms, from clearing local garbage to 'cleaning' toxic sewers.

The number of deaths of sanitation workers, while cleaning septic tanks and sewers, has risen despite a ban on manual scavenging. 620 cases have been reported since 1993, of which 88 occurred in the past three years. Of the 15 States and Union Territories that submitted details to the Ministry, Tamil Nadu has the highest number of sewer deaths with 144 cases, followed by Gujarat with 131. Of the 88 cases reported in 2017, 2018 and 2019, till June 14, compensation was pending in 52 cases. This is despite the Prohibition of Employment as Manual Scavengers and their Rehabilitation Act, 2013, banning anyone from employing people to clean sewers. Manual scavenging refers to the south Asian practice of humans cleaning dry toilets and sewage systems.

Addressing a workshop at Vigyan Bhawan, Union Social Justice and Empowerment Minister Dr. Thawar Chand Gehlot on Monday said that the action plan envisages identification of appropriate technological interventions in the field of mechanised cleaning so as to eliminate manual entry into sewers and septic tanks. "Swachh Bharat is indeed the first step towards Swasth Bharat," Gehlot said. Union Minister for Urban Development Hardeep Singh Puri said his Ministry has made efforts to devise systems, processes and technolo-

SEWERAGE SYSTEM TO BE MODERNISED, SAYS MINISTRY

As far as action plan for drainage system is concerned, it said that all drains should be desilted thoroughly before onset of monsoon. According to action plan, the CCTV camera can be used for drainage pipes of diameter 100-900 mm. "Above 900 mm diameter (man entry and restricted also), there are limitations due to lighting problems and camera line angles. Continuous advances are being made in the quality and range of TV cameras," the

The agencies should ensure that all the drains are in good condition and works regarding, reshaping or profile correction, wherever required is completed well before the onset of monsoon," the guidelines said. A storm water drainage system consists either network of drains connected with junctions or underground conduits connected with manholes and related appurtenances such as gutters, detention tanks, detention basins, pumping stations and outfall structures. Housing and Urban Affairs Secretary Durga Shanker Mishra, Social Justice and Empowerment Secretary Nilam Sawhney and Municipal Commissioners of 500 cities attended the workshop.

PM to embark on two-day visit to France from Aug 22

Defence, nuke energy key issues

New Delhi: Prime Minister Narendra Modi will pay a two-day State visit to France from August 22 during which he will hold talks with French President Emmanuel Macron to strengthen strategic ties in key sectors such as defence, nuclear energy, maritime cooperation and counter-terrorism. From France, the prime minister will proceed for bilateral visits to the UAE and Bahrain, and will return to the French city of Biarritz on August 25 to attend the G7 Summit where India has been invited as a partner country. Modi will arrive in France on Thursday evening and straightaway head for talks with Macron, who will also host a working dinner for the visiting leader. The next day, he will meet French Prime Minister Edouard Philippe, address an event of Indian community at the UNESCO headquarters in Paris, and also inaugurate a memorial for Indian victims of two tragic air crashes of Air India flights in 1950 and 1966.

The discussions are expected to broadly focus on reaffirming France and India as the key strategic and like-minded partners, strengthening of defence partnership, including future defence acquisitions, progress on setting up of the Jaitapur nuclear power plant, convergent, strategic and political priorities in the Indo-Pacific and related operational needs, Secretary (Economic Relations) T S Tirumurti said.

Strengthening bilateral engagement in key areas of strategic cooperation such as defence, nuclear energy, space, counter-terrorism, maritime security, cyber security, International Solar Alliance, and joint development projects will also be deliberated upon, he said at a media briefing.

The deliverables of the visit are expected to be in the sectors of skill development, space, information and technology and cyber. PTI

Green nod for real estate projects in 60 days soon, says Javadekar

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Union Environment Minister Prakash Javadekar on Monday said the Government is planning to cut down the whole process of environmental clearance to real estate projects to 60 days in a few days to come.

"Environmental clearances used to be stumbling blocks before 2014. Average time taken to clear projects was 640 days. After we took over, we made processes so easy that now it takes only 108 days for a project to get environmental clearance," he said at the 15th National Convention of NAREDCO held here. National Real Estate Development Council (NAREDCO) was established as an autonomous self-regulatory body in 1998 under the aegis of Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs.

Javadekar emphasised that small procedural delays can be done away with, without compromising on environmental clearances. "Our priority is both environmental protection and development, only then our country can become a five-billion dollar economy. That's why the suggestions of institutions like NAREDCO are very important," he said.

The Minister further added that his Ministry is in the process of issuing standard conditions for every project such as waste recycling and water harvesting as per the size of the real estate project. And these conditions will not be more than 10.

"We are bringing about a regime change. We will introduce fewer conditions, but ensure their fullest implementation. If need be, we will amend the law so that you get the ease of doing responsible business. Because freedom is never a one-way street," the minister said.

He further informed that the Union Environment Ministry is also in discussion with states to make the environmental process smoother and less time consuming. "The states must realize that the Centre has delegated environmental protection to them so that they do it with a sense of responsibility," he added.

Manmohan Singh elected unopposed to Rajya Sabha

PNS ■ NEW DELHI/JAIPUR

Former Prime Minister Manmohan Singh was elected unopposed to the Rajya Sabha from Rajasthan on Monday. He was declared elected unopposed as the deadline for the withdrawal of nominations for the bypoll ended at 3 pm. Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot congratulated Singh on his election to the Upper House of Parliament.

Returning Officer and Assembly Secretary Pramil Kumar Mathur made the announcement. The government's chief whip, Mahesh Joshi, received the election certificate on behalf of Singh. The former PM was nominated by the Congress while the BJP did not field any candidate for the bypoll, necessitated due to the death of Rajya Sabha MP Madan Lal Saini.

The former PM had filed the nomination papers on August 13. Singh was a member of the Upper House of Parliament from Assam for almost three decades. He was a Rajya Sabha member for five consecutive terms from 1991 to 2019 and the country's prime minister for two consecutive terms between 2004 and 2014. His tenure in the Rajya Sabha ended on June 14 this year and he could not be re-nominated as the Congress party did not have the strength to send him to the Upper House from Assam again and there was no other vacancy left. Rajasthan has 10 Rajya Sabha seats. Remaining nine seats of Rajya Sabha from the State are with the BJP.

FROM THE SUPREME COURT

CBI granted time till Sep 6 to complete Unnao probe

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday granted to the CBI time till September 6 to complete the investigation into the road accident in which the Unnao rape survivor and her lawyer were critically injured and two of her aunts killed. The apex court, which had earlier given two weeks to the CBI to complete the probe, extended the time while noting that the probe agency has done "extensive investigation" in the case so far. "We have perused the report of the CBI. This court, vide order dated August 1, 2019, granted an outer limit of two weeks to complete the investigation. On perusal of the report, we find that the CBI has done extensive investigation but some loose ends need to be tied up," a bench of Justices Deepak Gupta and Aniruddha Bose said.

"Some of the investigation relates to collating and analyzing the material already collected, especially the electronic records. Most importantly the statements of the victim and her counsel who was driving the car could not be recorded till date, as they are both not in a position to make a statement," the bench noted in its order.

While seeking four more weeks to complete the probe, CBI told the top court that statements of rape survivor and her lawyer have not been recorded yet and it wants to analyse certain electronic evidence collected so far during the probe.

The court also directed the Uttar Pradesh government to pay ₹5 lakh to the lawyer who is in a critical condition and undergoing treatment. PTI

NARCO TEST OF TRUCK DRIVER, HELPER LIKELY

New Delhi: The CBI is likely to carry out narco-analysis on the driver and helper of the truck that hit the Unnao rape survivor's car and may seek their custody in this regard. The CBI had subjected the two to a lie-detector test in its office and brain mapping at Forensic Science Laboratory, Gandhinagar, Gujarat but the report is still awaited.

Ravidas temple demolition orders can't be given political colour: SC

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday said that its orders on the Guru Ravidas Temple in Tughlaqabad forest area here cannot be given a "political colour".

A bench comprising Justices Arun Mishra and MR Shah asked Governments of Punjab, Haryana and Delhi to ensure that no law and order situation is created politically or otherwise during the protests over the demolition of temple.

"Everything cannot be political. Our orders can't be given a political colour by anybody on earth" the bench said.

The Delhi Development Authority (DDA) had demolished the temple pursuant to the orders of the apex court, which had on August 9 observed that "serious breach" had been committed by Guru Ravidas Jayanti Samaroh Samiti by not vacating the forest area as earlier ordered by the top court.

Following the demolition of the 500-year-old temple, protests have been staged at several places in Punjab and Delhi by political parties and members of the Dalit community.

At the outset, Attorney General K Venugopal, who was on August 13 asked by the top court to assist in the matter, said that demolition of the temple has been carried out by DDA in pursuance to the top court order and a total of 18 organisations are staging protests against it.

Venugopal told the bench that since a number of organisations have been agitating against the demolition it is very difficult to pinpoint a particular person behind the protests.

To this, the bench said in case the matter is settled, there is no difficulty but if the issue remains the court will take up the matter for hearing. Venugopal then told the bench that it should direct governments of Punjab, Haryana and Delhi to ensure that the law and order situation is maintained. PTI

Protection from criminal prosecution not available to PSU employees: SC

New Delhi: Protection from criminal prosecution is not available to those public servants who work in Government companies or undertakings, the Supreme Court held on Monday.

Under section 197 of Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC), prior sanction from a competent officer is needed to prosecute a Government servant for alleged criminal act done in discharge of his official duty and "no court shall take cognizance of such offence except with the previous sanction".

A bench of Justices Navin Sinha and AS Bopanna dismissed the appeal of Bharat Sanchar Nigam Ltd (BSNL) against the High Court's order which had held that protection of sanction under CrPC was not available to the officers of public sector undertakings like BSNL even if they fall within the definition of state under Article 12 of the Constitution.

BSNL and its officers, who were of the cadre of Indian Telecommunication Service and later shifted to the PSU, had challenged the order of a trial court initiating criminal prosecution against them in the case. PTI

Delhi CS asked to appear over policy on holding social functions in hotels

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday directed the chief secretary of Delhi to be present before it on August 23 and apprise it of the policy on holding social functions and marriages in hotels, farm houses and low density residential area here. A bench comprising Justices Arun Mishra and Deepak Gupta gave this direction after the counsel appearing for the Delhi Government told the court that they have finalised the policy and the Delhi Development Authority (DDA) would have to notify it. "Our policy is final. Now, the DDA will have to notify it," the Delhi government's counsel told the bench.

The bench then asked the DDA's counsel, "How much time is required to notify this?"

The DDA's counsel said she would have to seek instruction on the issue. She said the policy was not submitted to the DDA yet.

"As per my instructions, we (Delhi government) have sent it to the DDA," the Delhi government's lawyer said, adding, "Within two days, I will make sure that it (policy) is sent to the DDA." PTI

Army was ready for conventional war with Pak after Balakot: Sources

New Delhi: In the run up to Balakot strikes, Army Chief Gen. Bipin Rawat very categorically conveyed to the top brass of the Government that his force was fully ready to deal with any ground offensive by Pakistan and take the battle into the enemy territory, top military sources said.

The Indian Army was prepared for a conventional warfare with Pakistan which would have included going inside Pakistan, the sources told PTI. The Army chief informed the government about preparedness of his force when it was considering various options, including carrying out an aerial raid, to punish Pakistan for the Pulwama terror attack.

Gen. Rawat, at a closed door interaction with a group of retiring Army officials on Monday, said the force was combat ready for any hostilities from Pakistan Army after the Balakot strikes, the sources said.

Explaining Gen. Rawat's comments, a military official said what the Army Chief meant was that Indian Army was ready to take the battle into Pakistan. PTI

Moin Qureshi's aide Satish Babu Sana granted bail

New Delhi: A court here on Monday granted bail to businessman Satish Babu Sana, a close aide of controversial meat exporter Moin Akhtar Qureshi, in a money laundering case.

Granting bail, special CBI Judge Anuradha Shukla Bhardwaj directed him to furnish a personal bail bond of ₹5 lakh and one surety of like amount.

"The accused is, however, directed to co-operate in investigation and make himself available as and when called for by the investigating agency. He shall not leave the country without the permission of the court..." the court said.

Allowing bail to Sana, the court observed that Qureshi, who is the main accused in the case, is already out on bail and Sana's role in the case is no graver than him.

During the course of hearing on Saturday, lawyers KTS Tulsii and Mohit Mathur, appearing for Sana, contended that his statements cannot lead to his arrest as he was a witness and there is immunity provided to a witness that no such answers that a witness is compelled to give can subject him to be arrested.

Tulsii argued that the entire case against Sana is based on his statements given in 2017 and 2019. He argued that ED victimised him for filing complaint against Asthana.

Opposing the submissions, Special Public Prosecutor DP Singh argued: "We made him accused from a witness as the investigation reveals many things against him... we don't want to go to a stage where he is not telling anything and still enjoying the immunity."

In October last year, on the basis of a complaint filed by Sana, CBI registered a case against the Special Director Rakesh Asthana on charges of accepting bribe to dilute the case. This incident led to the tussle in CBI between Asthana and Director Alok Verma. IANS

NO LAVISH WEDDINGS IN KASHMIR

No-frills ceremonies hit mutton sellers, wazwan cooks, jewellers

PTI ■ SRINAGAR

Business in Kashmir's traditional wedding season has taken a massive hit as thousands of couples have opted for simpler ceremonies instead of lavish ones due to the restrictions imposed in the Valley following the scrapping of Jammu & Kashmir's special status.

Mutton suppliers, camping agencies, jewellers, wedding wear outlets and wazwan (traditional Kashmiri cuisine) cooks have seen their business slump due to the no-frills wedding ceremonies after restrictions were imposed on the movement of people.

The local dailies, which have managed to publish a few pages, have a dedicated page for advertisements related to the cancellation of wedding invitations extended to relatives and friends.

"Due to the prevailing situation, the wedding ceremony of my son, Yasir Bashir, will be held in a simple way. The invitation for the walima function (banquet performed after marriage ceremony) is hereby cancelled. Inconvenience caused is regretted," reads an advertisement published in a local Urdu daily.

There are over 25 such advertisements in Monday's edition of the daily, which is being circulated to limited areas in the city. Many families have opted to convey the message of cancellation of wedding feasts through a private television news channel, which has been running both video and text messages free of cost for the benefit of the people.

Abdul Majid, whose daughter is getting married on Saturday, said, Gulistan News is available both on the cable network as well as on various platforms of direct-to-home (DTH) television. "It becomes easier for people like us to reach maximum persons on the guest list as there is no other way to reach them," he said.

The wedding cancellations have severely affected the businesses, which sustained on these occasions.

According to Mushtaq Ahmad, a wazwan cook, an average wedding feast has a guest list of 600-800 people. "But now, we are asked to cook for only 150-200 people, which basically constitutes the close family and friends of the groom or the bride."

Ahmad said his earning had reduced by more than 70 per cent due to the prevailing situation. "This is the fifth wedding season since 2008 that has been hit by turmoil or other reasons, like the flood in 2014," he said.

As the guest lists have shortened significantly, it directly translates to a lesser quantity of mutton being consumed at the weddings, which are usually lavish even in moderation. "I would supply eight-10 quintals of mutton for a wedding usually. But now the demand has reduced to around two quintals," said Mohammad Altaf Ganaie, a wholesale mutton supplier who had stopped importing livestock due to the slump in demand.

Mohammad Iqbal, a jeweller, said gold sales dipped by more than 50 per cent this season as people stopped spending lavishly on jewellery for the weddings. "Gold in our society is normally considered to be an investment, but with earnings already hit and no end in sight to the uncertainty, the bride's family is buying just enough jewellery to make the wedding ceremony look normal," Iqbal said. Bilal Ahmad Rather, who provides tents and decoration to the wedding functions, said people associated with his trade had been the worst hit.

"As the guest lists are very short, people do not need tents and they are avoiding to install decorative lights on their houses in view of the situation," Rather said. "It has effectively meant little to no business for people like me."

How J&K officers are fighting Pak canards

FIANS ■ SRINAGAR

With a full-fledged information war breaking out following the abrogation of Article 370 of the Constitution that gave Jammu & Kashmir special status, several officers of the state have put themselves on the front line of fighting fake news propaganda, mostly emanating from Pakistan.

Among the officers of Jammu & Kashmir busting fake news, the contributions of IPS officer Imtiaz Hussain and Srinagar District Magistrate Shahid Choudhary are particularly noteworthy.

Pakistan's Federal Minister for Maritime Affairs Ali Haider Zaidi on Sunday shared a 2017 video with a caption that falsely mentioned that it showed the sufferings of the people of Kashmir due to the policies of Prime Minister Narendra

Modi-led Indian Government. "Let the world see what @narendramodi Govt is doing in #Kashmir

The #Hitler from the East rises while the world sleeps. @realDonaldTrump should consider imposing trade sanctions on India to control this monster before it's too late! #SaveKashmirFromModi #IndianHitlerModi," read the caption of the video.

Hussain did not take long to expose Zaidi's false propaganda.

"This video is from August 2017 and the location is Panchkula, Haryana and not #Kashmir. People seen in the video are followers of Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh and were protesting against his arrest. @AliHZaidiPTI," he said in a tweet. Hussain also shared the links of the same video which was uploaded on YouTube in 2017.

On Monday, he again exposed how the troll army of the spokesperson of the Pakistan Armed Forces operates.

"If you want to understand how Ghafoora (@OfficialDGISPR) troll Army operates, check out this Twitter handle. There are thousands of these fake Twitter handles employed to create False Twitter trends to deceive the world," he tweeted.

Hussain acknowledged that the rumour mills were working overtime to peddle fake news as the enemies of the country are "disappointed by almost zero violence" following the abrogation of Article 370.

"Having dealt mobsters, rioters making murderous assaults on Cops/SFs during unrests of 2008, 10, 13 & 16 all sponsored aided abetted by Pakistan & its payroll community in Kashmir, this time we had to deal with fake news & rumour assaults: again mostly emanating from across border," he said.

Choudhary is also fighting false claims of scarcity of supplies in the Valley and issues related to administration.

Responding to claims that medical shops are shut in the valley and ATMs have run out of money, he said, "As many as 1166 medical shops are open. Cash machines have disbursed Rs 243.44Cr in last 4 days. All sorts of stocks being replenished as demanded. Agree, some people are still facing difficulties. We are trying to address every single problem flagged. Trust. #Srinagar."

He said officials in Jammu & Kashmir were making every possible effort to reduce inconvenience and enhance facilities in the State.

Didi alleges human rights violation in Valley

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

Alleging gross human rights violation in Kashmir Valley over the past one month or so Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Monday said the people of Jammu & Kashmir were facing untold hardship and that the treatment they were being meted was anything but humanitarian.

Tweeting on the occasion of World Humanitarian Day, Banerjee said human rights had always been a subject close to her heart. Praying for the people of Kashmir the Chief Minister said she could not remain silent watching human rights being violated in the manner it was being violated.

Mamata who is also the president of the All India Trinamool Congress said, "Today is World Humanitarian Day. Human rights have been totally violated in Kashmir. Let us pray for human rights and peace in Kashmir."

The Chief Minister had been critical of the process the Centre's divided Jammu & Kashmir and scrap Article 370 and 35A and said the Centre should have discussed the issue with the local people before scrapping it.

Reminding that she had hit the streets on several occasions in the past for the because that the subject (human rights) was Champala Sardar rape case.

While in the first case Paswan a Congress supporter from Hooghly remained traceless, never to return with allegations doing the round that he was beaten to death in police custody in the later case she launched a massive movement against a woman being raped by alleged CPI(MP) goons.

Incidentally repeated inquires led police nowhere even as the Marxists called the agitations as a part of her rabble rousing politics. During the Singur movement too she launched a massive protest movement against the CPI(M) in Tapasi Malik murder case which was subsequently handed over to the CBI without much breakthrough even as the CPI(M) alleged how a senior party leader was falsely framed and jailed in the case though nothing came out against him.

Security personnel patrol a road leading to Downtown Srinagar during restrictions in Srinagar on Monday

With Kashmir under lockdown, ISPR running Geelani's Twitter handle?

Srinagar: Despite the communications lockdown in Jammu & Kashmir since August 4 night, the Twitter handle of Hurriyat hawk Syed Ali Shah Geelani has apparently been active, putting out anti-India tweets regularly.

Tweets from the handle @sageelani were largely in praise of Pakistan and Major General Asif Ghafoor, the Director-General of the Inter-Services Public Relations (ISPR). The earlier Twitter handle @sageelani was suspended in June for its vitriolic anti-India and separatist content.

The current handle has been active on a daily basis, and there is every likelihood of it being handled from across the border. The handle reflects Pakistan's current thinking regarding the events in Kashmir after the revocation of its special status.

The tweets have no local content, which normally should have been available to a Kashmiri present on the ground.

Take for instance an August 4 tweet. It says "#IndiaUsingClusterBombs Pakistan we need your help!! #KashmirUnderThreat". Pakistan alleged that India had used cluster bombs on its civilians living along the border that day. The tweet is a give-away that the handle is being managed by the ISPR, the media wing of the Pakistan Armed Forces.

The handle specifically eulogises and thanks Asif Ghafoor, who is the head of the media wing. The ISPR is known to run fake pro-Kashmiri and anti-India handles to keep the separatist fire burning among the people of the Valley.

Separatist hawk Geelani is known not to run his Twitter handles. His earlier account, now suspended, was run by the

All Parties Hurriyat Conference (APHC). Geelani was put under house arrest, as numerous other separatist leaders, ahead of revocation of Article 370 that gave special status to Kashmir, and division of the State into two Union Territories — J&K and Ladakh.

LoC bus service from Poonch to Rawalakot suspended, 42 PoK residents stranded Jammu: The weekly Poonch-Rawalakot bus across the Line of Control (LoC) was suspended on Monday, following PoK's apparent decision to call off the service, an official said.

The bus service was suspended after authorities in Pakistan Occupied Kashmir (PoK) did not respond to call from their Indian counterparts to let the bus get across the border, he said.

"The cross-LoC bus service has been suspended. We had sent a message to PoK authorities for bus service today, but they did not respond," the official said.

Out of 42 PoK residents stranded in Poonch district of Jammu & Kashmir, permits of 27 people have expired.

The cross-LoC bus service was started along the Srinagar-Muzaffarabad route in April 2005 and the Poonch-Rawalakot road in June 2006 to facilitate trade and travel between the divided families of J&K and PoK.

BSY all set to expand Cabinet after 20 days

KESTUR VASUKI ■ BENGALURU

Twenty days after he was sworn in as Karnataka Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa got the go ahead from the party high command and is all set to expand his Cabinet on Tuesday.

After a humiliating and unprecedented political drama in the State, Yediyurappa is expected to induct 16 Ministers which include one independent candidate who supported the saffron party. Much to the embarrassment and humiliation to Yediyurappa, the BJP high command has finally given go ahead to expand the one man Cabinet on their terms and conditions.

BJP sources said after this exercise another Cabinet expansion will take place based on the list cleared by the party high command.

Yediyurappa took oath on July 26 as the Chief Minister of the State has to face the wrath of flood fury and single handed worked in the hour of crisis without any Cabinet Minister. He is the first Chief Minister in the State to hold the three Cabinet meetings in 20 days without any Ministers in his Cabinet.

Yediyurappa who was the architect of operation Lotus has decimated the coalition led by the Congress and the JD(S) to take the hot seat and made Karnataka the door to his party BJP second time to enter south India.

Because of Yediyurappa's mass leadership and Lingayat community the saffron party had to dilute the age factor in the party rule book and made him the Chief Minister with many riders and humiliation.

Yediyurappa after getting clearance now has to face the pressure from Lingayat community and their mutts for plum posts in the Cabinet. He has also to take the demands of the Congress and JD(S) rebels who have sacrificed their posts to install the BJP Government.

Yediyurappa literally is walking on the razor edge with pressure from high command and also from other groups.

The saffron party sure to face the demands of the rebel MLAs who's mutiny helped bring down Congress-JDs government in the State. Since they have been disqualified, and are precluded from contesting the election (as and when they are held), the BJP is taking it easy on the issue. But if the court takes a different view from that of the Speaker, this equilibrium will be shattered for the BJP.

However, with no decision yet by the Supreme Court on 17 disqualified Congress-JD(S) MLAs, whose resignation from the Assembly paved the way for the BJP to gain power, the Chief Minister has no immediate compulsion to accommodate them.

West Bengal's 'Ambulance Man' battles eye ailment

Jalpaiguri: Karimul Haque, who won the Padmashree award in 2017 for extending "bike ambulance" services to residents of West Bengal's Jalpaiguri and Alipurdwar districts, is suffering from an eye ailment. According to a private eye institute in Jalpaiguri's Malabar, Haque, who is in his mid-fifties, is having difficulty in binocular vision.

Binocular vision enables a two-eyed animal to perceive a three-dimensional image. The Padmashree awardee, with whom Prime Minister Narendra Modi had clicked a selfie and on whose life a Bollywood flick is being planned, told PTI on Monday that each monthly injection that he needs to cure his ailment costs him around Rs 12,000, and he is unable to bear the expenses.

"Though I am building a hospital in my village with the help of the locals, I have not yet received any help from State or Central Government apart from Rs 3.27 lakh donated by former Jalpaiguri MP Bhoj Chandra Burman," he said.

Journalist KM Basheer had died at the spot after being hit by the luxury car driven by the officer allegedly in an inebriated condition.

Thirty two-year-old Venkitaraman, who was placed under suspension, was arrested and later let off after a magistrate court here granted him conditional bail.

Journo's death: IAS officer's driving licence suspended

PTI ■ THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The driving licence of IAS officer Sriram Venkitaraman was suspended on Monday by the State Motor Vehicles Department, two weeks after a car driven by him had hit and killed a journalist here.

The Regional Transport Officer (RTO) here suspended the licence for one year in the wake of the accident, in which journalist KM Basheer had action would be taken at the earliest.

"The vehicle licence of the officer is suspended for one year. Under the relevant sections of the MV Act, he can appeal within 30 days," SR Shaji, RTO, Thiruvananthapuram, told PTI.

Venkitaraman was arrested on August 3, hours after the car driven by him allegedly in an inebriated condition while returning from a private party knocked down Basheer.

Rahul deserted sinking ship: Shivraj

Jaipur: BJP leader Shivraj Singh Chauhan on Monday likened Rahul Gandhi's resignation as Congress president to the captain deserting a sinking ship and mocked the transfer of power in that party to Sonia Gandhi.

"It is like Ahmed's cap on Mohammad's head and Mohammad's cap on Ahmed's head," he said, commenting on the responsibility shifting to Sonia Gandhi who is now the interim president of the Congress.

The BJP national vice-president and a former Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister also said instead of Rahul Gandhi's resignation, the Chief Ministers of the states ruled by the Congress should have quit for "failing" to waive crop loans and provide unemployment allowance.

"We have heard that if any ship sinks, the captain makes efforts to save it till the last breath. But the Congress captain took the first plunge," Chouhan said, adding that there was no Congress president for several days.

SBSP MLA, 138 booked for violence in Kushinagar

Gorakhpur: As many as 139 people, including an SBSP MLA, have been booked in connection with the last week's violence in Kushinagar followed by the rumours of the death of a drug peddler in police custody, officials said on Monday.

On Saturday, protests broke out following the death rumour of drug peddler Naurang Singh. Roads were blocked, shops were ransacked and huts were torched while personnel from three

ISRO to inject Chandrayaan 2 into lunar orbit today

Bengaluru: In a significant milestone for India's Moon mission, ISRO will fire Chandrayaan 2's liquid engine on Tuesday to insert the spacecraft into a lunar orbit.

"It's tomorrow morning (tentatively between 8.30 am and 9.30 am). It's challenging," Chairman of Indian Space Research Organisation K Sivan told PTI on Monday on the operation to put the spacecraft in an orbit around the Moon.

Following this, there will be further four orbit manoeuvres to make the spacecraft enter into its final orbit passing over the lunar poles at a distance of about 100 km from Moon's surface, ISRO has said.

Subsequently, the Vikram lander will separate from the orbiter on September 2, according to the Bengaluru-headquartered space agency.

Two orbit manoeuvres will be performed on the lander before the initiation of powered descent to make a soft landing on the lunar surface on September 7, ISRO said.

Chandrayaan 2, launched on July 22 by GSLV MkIII-M1 vehicle, had entered the Lunar Transfer Trajectory on August 14 after final orbit raising manoeuvre of the spacecraft was successfully carried out.

The health of the spacecraft is being continuously monitored from the Mission Operations Complex (MOX) at ISRO Telemetry, Tracking and Command Network (ISTRAC) in Bengaluru with support from Indian Deep Space Network (IDSN) antennas at Bialalu, near Bengaluru.

All systems on board Chandrayaan 2 spacecraft are performing normal, ISRO said on August 14. According to ISRO, Chandrayaan 2 — India's second lunar expedition — will shed light on a completely unexplored region of the Moon, its South Pole.

"This mission will help us gain a better understanding of the origin and evolution of the Moon by conducting detailed topographical studies, comprehensive mineralogical analyses, and a host of other experiments on the lunar surface," the space agency has said.

"While there, we will also explore discoveries made by Chandrayaan 1, such as the presence of water molecules on the Moon and new rock types with unique chemical composition," it said.

IAF rescues 2 fishermen Several rivers in spate in UP

An IAF chopper approaches to airlift two persons stuck on an under-construction bridge on the flooded Tawi River in Jammu on Monday

PNS ■ JAMMU

Indian Air Force (IAF) helicopter on Monday rescued two fishermen while two others swam to safety on their own, after the ladder which they were climbing snapped prompting them to jump in the gushing stream after losing their balance.

The fishermen, in the absence of any other help, swam to safety on their own. They were left stranded at the bottom of a pillar after water levels in the River Tawi started rising abruptly following incessant rain in the high hills. The IAF was called after State disaster response force (SDRF) and police personnel failed to reach the fishermen.

Defence PRO in Jammu said, "On receipt of request from Divisional commissioner Jammu, IAF had launched a rescue mission. He said the mission was led by Commanding Officer, Wing Commander Mukul Khare, with Co-pilot Squadron Leader Prem Pratik and Garud Commandoes Corporal Pahaar Singh and LAC Kedar.

The IAF team reached the site in two minutes and after making quick assessment of the situation the crew spotted all four civilians who were surrounded by the rising water levels in river Tawi.

During the rescue mission, luck failed two fishermen, as the ladder, lowered by the IAF helicopter snapped and they fell in the gushing stream after losing their balance. The duo swam to safety on their own.

Taking adequate precautions, IAF crew decided to lower a Garud Commando onto the site to help stranded fishermen.

A Garud Commando rappelled down onto the pier. The Garud then attached rappelling harnesses to both of them and then the helicopter lifted them up simultaneously. They were then dropped to a safe location near the Tawi Banks.

The fishermen later thanked IAF personnel for saving their lives. Large number of onlookers and motorists had parked their vehicles in the middle of the road to witness the rescue operations.

Lucknow: The Ganga, Yamuna, Ghaghara and several other rivers were in spate in Uttar Pradesh on Monday due to heavy rain in neighbouring states, leading to floods in low-lying areas that left one person dead. According to the Central Water Commission, the Yamuna is flowing above the danger mark in Auraiya and Jalaun; while the Ganga in Badaun; the Chambal river at Palia Kalan in Lakhimpur Kheri; and the Ghaghara are flowing above the red mark.

According to officials, 16-year-old Anshu drowned in Etawah district due to release of water from the Kota barrage into the Chambal. District Magistrate Jitendra Bahadur Singh said the Chambal river was flowing two metres above the danger level due to the release of 2.5 lakh cusecs of water. "Due to floods, over a dozen villages are cut off from the district headquarters and crops in hundreds of acres have been damaged," he said.

Minister Dharmpal Singh said leaves of all officers and employees related to flood-related works had been cancelled till further orders. While inspecting the central flood control room, the minister said 48 control rooms have been set up in the state to monitor flood situation arising due to release of water from

Farm loan waiver to Maha flood victims

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Loan waiver for farmers, new houses for those who lost their dwellings built under the PM Awas Yojana in deluge and free foodgrains are among the slew of relief measures announced by the Maharashtra Government on Monday for the people affected by the recent floods.

Heavy rain and floods battered several areas of western Maharashtra and the Konkan region earlier this month, with Kolhapur and Sangli districts bearing the maximum brunt.

Addressing a Press conference here, Chief Minister Devendra Fadnis said a committee will ascertain causes for the unprecedented floods and suggest measures to avoid their recurrence.

"The farmers who have lost crops on up to one hectare will get complete loan waiver," he said. The Government has also decided to pay annual rent of Rs 24,000 (rural) and Rs 36,000 (urban localities) in the flood-hit areas, where people have been forced to live in rented accommodation, the Chief Minister said.

The rent will be paid to the flood victims till their houses are rebuilt, he said. A committee is being set up under the chairmanship of a retired state government officer, Nandkumar Wadnere, to study the reasons for the deluge and suggest steps to avoid its recurrence in the future, Fadnis said.

Wadnere is a retired principal secretary of the water resources department. "The State Government will also pursue (with the Centre) its demand of offering relaxation in terms of filing Income Tax and GST returns in the flood-affected areas. We will take up this matter with the Centre," Fadnis said.

He was speaking to reporters at his residence in south Mumbai after holding a meeting with senior bureaucrats. The beneficiaries of Prime Minister Awas Yojana, who lost their houses due to the floods, will get a new house as well as Rs 1 lakh as cash assistance, Fadnis said.

"We will also give foodgrains for the next three months free of cost to the flood-affected people," he said. Small traders and merchants affected by the floods will get 75 per cent amount of their total loss of up to Rs 50,000 as financial assistance from the State, he said. In another step, the Government has relaxed its norms for damage assessment and allowed the reports of talathis (local level revenue officials) and the village sarpanch to be considered as valid for awarding compensation, Fadnis said.

IL&FS case: ED summons Raj Thackeray Opp cries foul, says it is act of vendetta

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

In a move that evoked sharp criticism from the Opposition parties, the Enforcement Directorate (ED) summoned MNS chief Raj Thackeray for inquiries on August 22 in connection with a probe into an alleged IL&FS-related case.

The ED is investigating the alleged irregularities in the IL&FS's loans and investments worth over Rs.860 crore in M/s Kohinoor CTNL, a company funded by former Maharashtra CM Manohar Joshi's son Umesh Joshi.

Joshi has gone to the ED office on Monday. Apart from being issued a notice, the MNS chief has been asked to present himself in the ED headquarters here on Thursday.

M/s Kohinoor CTNL has been under ED scanner for being a prominent defaulter of IL&FS, amounting to an estimated Rs 135 crore.

Umesh along with son along with IL&FS and Raj Thackeray-owned Matoshree Construction had in

MNS calls Thane bandh on Aug 22

Mumbai: The MNS has given a call for a bandh in Thane, a satellite city of Mumbai, on August 22, in protest against the summons issued by the ED to its president Raj Thackeray in connection with the investigations into the alleged irregularities of the IL&FS's loans and investments. Calling for a Thane bandh on Thursday, MNS' Thane-Palghar president Avinash Jadhav said: "The case in which that our president has been summoned is more to do with the EVM scam that our president had flagged last month than the ED investigations. The ED is mounting pressure on our president to go slow on his agitation against the EVMs." PNS 2005 jointly had made a bid and bought for the NTPC's Kohinoor Mill's 4.8-acre property for Rs 421 crore.

In 2008, the IL&FS reneged from the deal and surrendered its shares for only Rs 90 crore, as against an investment of Rs 225 crore made in M/s Kohinoor CTNL. Following the IL & FS's exit, Raj also exited from the venture after selling his shares.

In 2017, M/s Kohinoor CTNL entered into an agreement to sell some commercial and residential properties in the upcoming Kohinoor Square Towers to IL&FS to settle outstanding of around Rs 500 crore in loans. Following this, IL&FS extended another Rs 100 crore to Kohinoor CTNL on which it defaulted. Jr Joshi's company is now under control of another company.

Raj, who was a staunch supporter of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, turned a vociferous critic more than two years ago. Though his party did not contest the Lok Sabha polls this year, Raj campaigned against the Modi-led BJP in the LS polls.

Raj was also instrumental in bringing the Opposition parties on one platform against EVMs. The Opposition parties have planned a morcha to the State Election Commission demanding the use of ballot papers in the State Assembly polls to be held in October this year.

The ED's notice and summons to the MNS chief is being seen as a political vendetta.

AIIMS needs fire lessons

Though lives were saved, poor compliance means years of precious research have been lost at the elite institution

The intensity of the massive blaze at the All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS), New Delhi, and the leaping fury with which it engulfed its floors in a matter of moments can be gauged from the fact that it took nearly three dozen fire tenders over eight long hours to be doused. Had not AIIMS been a prized institution, perhaps the emergency response wouldn't have been activated with as much urgency and wilfulness but the fact remains that even the safety protocols at the most aware of places had not been reviewed in three years, the last time being in 2016. AIIMS is one of the few hospitals in the city that has an interconnecting ramp to move patients in times of disasters. Perhaps this is why lives weren't lost in the country's premier hospital but imagine this in any other government facility and the mind addles to think what could be. Thankfully, the fire was confined to the pre-clinical and teaching blocks in the country's sought after facility but it did have all the hallmarks of a major disaster. And while AIIMS authorities are particular about top-notch research, they ought to be as sharp about protecting them. For though no human life has been lost, there has been immense loss of intellectual property in the long-term. Hundreds of blood samples at the micro-biology lab, rare viruses, crucial research, scholarly papers, case updates and expensive machines have been completely gutted. Findings are the basis of any medical breakthrough and the foundation for that is gone forever. And if administrators of such an evolved centre cannot be far-sighted about basic safety compliances or build efficiencies in awareness, then there is little to be expected of others. The Delhi Fire Department has said that some of the buildings, including the one that caught fire, did not have the requisite No Objection Certificate (NOC). The NOC is mandatory in the fire safety document, which is renewed every three years and certified annually.

Intriguingly, the general apathy to hospital and patient safety persists despite repeated outbreaks of fire at medical facilities across the country claiming scores of lives. Be it the AMRI episode in Kolkata, which claimed 92 lives, the ESIC Hospital in Mumbai or the SMU Hospital in Bhubaneswar, post-mortem has revealed how they blatantly ignored warnings and safety recommendations or pushed them out of the priority list in their greed to acquire more cutting-edge competitiveness in services. Yet patient care and safety in times of earthquakes, fire or floods do not even merit an intra-institution workshop. While the Delhi Police is waiting for the forensic report to deduce what led to this catastrophe, there are too many questions that demand answers. The hospital was not only ill-prepared but failed to adhere to the guidelines on hospital safety as mandated by the National Disaster Management Authority in 2016 and the National Building Code (NBC) 2005, which made the fire safety certificate mandatory for all buildings taller than 15 m. In fact, most Government buildings as also shop owners, restaurants, hotels, and other private buildings openly flout norms. Needless to say, the situation is all the more precarious in a hospital environment, which is home to those who are incapacitated and, thus, movement becomes challenging in case of a fire or any untoward incident. Even so, where building codes like alarms, sprinkler systems, hoses and insulation panels among others are in place, and where the builder claims to have used materials in line with the regulations, the actuals turn out to be about fake compliance, the certificates usually got by greasing palms of local officials. In cases where NOC has been obtained, rarely are fire safety audits carried out. Most post-fire probes have revealed how encroachments and tweaks in open areas have made it really difficult for the firemen to even get into the core zone. They say no tragedy is dark enough that the gloom cannot be lifted. Two babies were born amid the raging fire. Which means going forward, beyond taking action against those responsible for the incident to ensure accountability, there needs to be a strict penal clause, including deregistration of the establishment concerned, if the prescribed safety norms are not met. Third-party audits, too, must be made mandatory to avoid conflict of interest between the municipal authorities and Government officials. Unless a system of checks and balances is put in place, we will never internalise the spirit of risk containment and expose ourselves to unimaginable dangers. And that would be foolhardy indeed.

Concussion protocols

Several sports are taking the risks of head injury seriously. It's time that such norms go to lower levels of cricket as well

The sight of Steve Smith lying low after a bouncer from English bowler Jofra Archer must have sent a chill down the spine of those not only sitting at Lord's but also millions of spectators across the world. It was heartening to see Smith get up, something his Australian companion Phillip Hughes could not when he was struck by a bouncer in a domestic Australian game five years ago. However, nowadays, the worry is not just about immediate injuries but also the long-term consequences of head injuries, particularly concussions.

A concussion occurs when the brain bounces around inside the skull, leading to bruising of the brain tissue. This, as doctors and scientists discovered, particularly with players in America's National Football League (NFL), where there are regular head to head collisions, leads to a condition called Chronic Traumatic Encephalopathy (CTE).

CTE is dangerous as it leads to early onset of dementia and a much reduced quality of life given that brain matter decays after years of physical abuse. The NFL initially ignored the complaints that some players made but after some high-profile suicides and several studies, it quickly rectified its standards to deal with the issue. Soon after the issues with CTE were identified, several other sports — even ostensibly non-contact sports like cricket — took notice. New concussion protocols have been brought in that consider the short and long-term effects of brain injuries. A bruise on the brain takes a while to heal and the Lord's Test set an interesting new first with Marnus Labuschagne becoming the first 'Like for Like' substitution in the history of cricket. In India, cricketers legends Farokh Engineer and Nari Contractor, both Parsis, were one of the earliest to be injured. It was from here that wearing helmets during matches became a common protocol. Other sports like soccer have also brought in concussion norms that force substitutions of players who have had an incident that a doctor feels has them shaken up. These are all positive moves and must be commended. However, one must remember that facilities at the top levels of sport and those at lower levels are often dramatically different. Several of these concussion routines are poorly enforced at lower levels of sport. Sure, the top players in the top leagues and highest echelons of sport face bigger dangers in a more competitive space but that is no excuse to ignore the clear and present danger of head injuries.

Pak in a pincer attack

With the economy sinking and a failed bid at the UNSC, Islamabad is in no position to declare war or embrace peace. It will do well to focus on its internal problems

SANDHYA JAIN

Fortnight after the Modi Government defanged Article 370, scrapped its illegal appendage, Article 35A and split the northern State into the Union Territories of Ladakh and Jammu & Kashmir, Islamabad is groping for a coherent response. In May 1998, when the then Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee stunned the world by testing five nuclear devices (Pokhran-II) and made India a full-fledged nuclear state, Islamabad swiftly showcased its own nuclear capability.

This time, most world capitals overcame their surprise and accepted the changes in Jammu & Kashmir as India's internal matter; Pakistan was supported by the colonial-minded Western media and China, which arranged "closed consultations" (unrecorded) in the UN Security Council. India's action was breathtaking in its simplicity and audacity: Operating within the Line of Control (LoC), it took long-suffering Ladakh to its bosom as a directly-administered Union Territory while Jammu & Kashmir provinces were declared a separate Union Territory with an elected legislature. The Union Home Ministry will have direct supervision of both.

Political parties and dynasties that misused Article 370 to nurture separatist sentiments in the Valley while neglecting Jammu and Ladakh regions have been downsized and separatists put on notice. A zero-tolerance policy towards terrorism was already in place. Caught between a perilous economic situation with the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) breathing down its neck on one side, and its jihadi groups on the other, Islamabad is in no position to declare war or to embrace peace.

Prime Minister Modi's artful jugglery has subtly avenged India's exclusion from the Afghanistan talks, making it difficult for Washington and Islamabad to put the Taliban in power in Kabul, with the acquiescence of Moscow and Beijing. This gives a breather to the Kabul regime that was also excluded from four-party negotiations. Washington is, thus, likely to remain trapped in the graveyard of empires because successive Presidents from George Bush Jr, Barack Obama and now Donald Trump would not consider gifting the impressive American arsenal to the Afghan Army, training it to use the same and making a dignified retreat.

Washington is unconcerned about the fate of President Ashraf Ghani, former President Hamid Karzai, their colleagues and supporters, should Taliban return to Kabul. But for India, this is a matter of deep concern. New Delhi's checkmate has put Islamabad in a bind: It cannot clinch the Taliban deal for Washington: It cannot compensate its jihadi mercenaries with escalated action in Jammu, Kashmir or Ladakh. Its position is unenviable: To exit a cul-de-sac one must go back the way one entered but this route is not open to Pakistan. In the Mahabharata, Abhimanyu did not know how to escape the chakravyu; Imran does but it is just not possible.

Scholars Asma Khalid and Mobein Jafar Mir of the think tank, Islamabad Policy Institute, blame Pakistan for failing to anticipate and challenge India's hollowing of Article 370 despite clear signals. In a report, Abrogation of Article 370: Implications & Policy Choices for Pakistan, they urge Islamabad to launch a diplomatic blitzkrieg against India by emphasising the "disputed status of Kashmir", highlighting India's alleged human rights excesses and the threats to regional stability.

In a clear sign of Islamabad's political bankruptcy and lack of choices, Khalid and Mir urged their Government to work for convening an urgent meeting of the UN Security Council to discuss the situation; at the "closed meeting" the four other permanent members said changing Jammu & Kashmir's Constitutional status is India's internal matter. Islamabad is unlikely to accept the suggestion to move the International Court of Justice (ICJ) after its resounding defeat in the matter of consular access to Indian citizen Kulbhushan Jadhav.

Khalid and Mir bemoan the loss of Jammu & Kashmir's separate Constitution, flag and autonomy in all matters barring foreign affairs, defence and communications. The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), they say, always proclaimed its intentions in its election manifestoes and in 2019, reiterated its determination to annul the Kashmir-specific Articles 370 and 35A.

Article 35A, introduced via Presidential order under Article 370 in 1954, empowered the State Legislature to define permanent residents and barred Indians from outside the state from permanent settling, buying land, holding local Government jobs or winning education scholarships there. It also barred female residents (and their children) from property rights in the event of marriage outside Kashmir. The spirit behind this legislation was to protect the identity and culture of Kashmiris and preserve

Kashmir's demographic character.

Interestingly, the scholars allege that the BJP's agenda is to secure demographic change in the Valley through resettlement of refugees from West Pakistan, Azad Kashmir and Chhamb. It is true that the BJP has been concerned about justice for the refugees, who entered Jammu & Kashmir during Partition and after, and the Scheduled Castes invited by Sheikh Abdullah to clean the city on promise of citizenship. However, Abdullah, supported by former Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, later denied them State subject status and its accompanying benefits. The issue is now redundant with the extension of the Constitution of India in its entirety to the new Union Territory.

Azad Kashmir is a sliver of Jammu Province, where pro-Pakistan radicals created trouble for Maharaja Hari Singh in 1946. Pakistan dubbed it as Azad Kashmir when it seized the area in 1947-48. Chhamb in Hamirpur district of Himachal Pradesh was an area of conflict in the 1965 and 1971 wars. Khalid and Mir charge that India will try to enhance Hindu representation in the Valley to reduce the influence of Kashmiri (read Muslim) political parties in the event of a plebiscite under UN auspices, an idea scotched by Kofi Annan in 2001.

Moreover, the Security Council Resolution of 1948 is explicit that Pakistan must withdraw all military and civilian personnel from the occupied territory who were not there before August 14, 1947; India is to retain its military in Srinagar to administer the plebiscite. Hence, the Pakistani scholars' attempt to project India as an occupying power in the kingdom of Maharaja Hari Singh is a non-starter.

Pakistanis fear that India's action of August 5, 2019, may impact the Indus Water Treaty as premature as India can achieve much by merely utilising its legitimate share of the Indus waters. As for the occupied territories, Home Minister Amit Shah has reiterated India's claim to the undivided kingdom, including Azad Kashmir, Gilgit Baltistan, and Aksai Chin. Pakistan would do well to focus on its internal problems.

Girl next door

Sir — This refers to the report, "Pati, Pati aur Woh actress no more" (August 16) by TN Raghunatha. In the death of Vidya Sinha, the Hindi film world has lost a talented artiste of yesteryear. Producer-director Basu Chatterjee, who has a number of light comedies to his credit, ventured upon to portray Vidya in middle class love stories through his Rajmangalika, followed by Chhoti Si Baat. Both were big successes.

However, it was difficult for her to get ranked in big budget films as her contemporaries like Rekha, Mumtaz, Zeenat Aman, Hema Malini, Shabana Azmi, Jaya Bachchan, Parveen Babi, Smita Patil, Tanuja, Sridevi and Jaya Pradha, were crowding the field. As a result, she managed to get meagre big films like Inkar (Vinod Khanna), Mukti (Shashi Kapoor), Karm (Rajesh Khanna), Tumhare Lye (Sanjeev Kumar) and Atmaram (Shatrughna Sinha). These circumstances compelled her to switch over to television.

This refers to the editorial, "India wins at UNSC" (August 19). It seems Pakistan's gambit of approaching the UN Security Council (UNSC) with the Chinese fronting for it has predictably ended in a whimper. Nothing came out from the closed door meeting at the UNSC. The panel talked out the special item without any clarity emerging on the collective position of the powerful body for it to be a diplomatic or a public opinion setback for India. The speech by Syed Akbaruddin, India's Permanent Representative to the UN, broke no new ground except helping the nationalist crowd feel good.

Still, 14 of the 15 members of the UN body were of the view that the changes resulting from the suspension of Article 370 were a matter internal to India and that issues arising between India and Pakistan must be resolved bilaterally. India succeeded in securing the support of Governments but this shouldn't mean it can rest on its diplomatic laurels. Sir — More than 63 people have been killed in yet another suicide bomb attack at a wedding hall in Afghanistan. Terrorism has once raised its ugly head there. Given past records and going by the worst of suffering that the civilians have suffered at the hands of

Integrate the Valley

Sir — This refers to the article, "Educational reforms must" (August 19) by CB Sharma. The actual scenario in the Valley will be visible only when restrictions are fully done with. Nevertheless, mainstreaming the youth will go a long way in restoring normalcy in the Valley. The process of counter-radicalisation and de-radicalisation must begin from schools. Nationalism and secularism should form an essential part of school syllabus and parents, too, must be counselled well about the bright future of their wards. And for that to happen, investment must start gradually. There should be job quotas so that the youth can see the positive change.

Creating micro entrepreneurs

The direct selling industry is a major contributor to the economy. Misinterpreting legislation to harass firms amounts to killing the goose that lays the golden egg

HEM PANDE

Direct selling is the business of peer-to-peer sale, in which people earn a commission on goods sold. It is the marketing, distribution and sale of goods and services as part of a network of direct sellers, other than under a pyramid scheme. This industry, which is a major contributor to the economy, is expected to grow at a rate of nearly five per cent every year and be worth ₹15,930 crore by 2021. Additionally, and perhaps more importantly, direct selling creates employment. As of now, direct selling firms employ over 50 lakh people in India, a number that is set to grow to 1.8 crore by 2025. And India needs these jobs. Facilitating job creation, inter alia, is one of the top priorities of the government.

This industry actively encourages the employment of women in large numbers and is a way to empower them by making them economically independent. Over 53 per cent of entrepreneurs engaged in direct selling in India are women. Stand Up India is a government scheme that incentivises female entrepreneurship by facilitating bank loans ranging from ₹10 lakh to ₹1 crore. Direct selling is not only helping create women entrepreneurs, it's also helping the government meet yet another of its stated priorities.

All that India's direct selling industry needs is an enabling ecosystem, one that enables companies to conduct business in an atmosphere free of prejudice and fear. As things stand, there are very few regulations in place for direct selling companies in India. The Model Framework for Guidelines on Direct Selling, issued in September 2016 by the Department of Consumer Affairs, Ministry of Consumer Affairs, Food & Public Distribution, remains the definitive document, guiding regulation of the direct selling industry.

The guidelines address every aspect of the direct selling business. They include detailed conditions for setting up and conducting a direct selling business, rules for protection of consumers, provisions for prohibition of pyramid and money circulation schemes, and for the appointment of a monitoring authority for direct sellers and direct selling companies. The guidelines are advisory in nature and though 12 states have adopted them, all states must do this and frame laws that govern direct selling in a just manner.

The guidelines clearly state that direct sellers and firms shall be guided by provisions of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986.

There are law enforcement agencies that look at direct selling companies through the lens of the Prize Chits and Money Circulation Schemes (PCMCS) Banning Act, 1978. This Act seeks action against any scheme that involves making easy money or getting money as the consideration for a promise to pay money based on enrolment of members to the scheme.

The Act goes on to say that no person shall promote or conduct any prize chit or money circulation scheme, or enroll members to any such scheme or participate in it or receive or remit any money in pursuance of such chit or scheme.

Classifying direct selling companies under this Act is erroneous, as they are not engaged in the business of seeking deposits from people and they do not guarantee returns. Direct selling companies provide people with the opportunity and the skill set to sell products and make a commission on sales.

The business model involves a product that needs to be sold, for any money to be made. Direct sellers have to work hard to make these sales. They have to use skill and intellect to make people buy their products, and they have to make sales continuously, in order for them to keep receiving commissions. Direct selling is by no means a deposit taking scheme and there is no guarantee whatsoever, of returns. It is, therefore, incorrect to see direct selling companies as falling under the purview of the PCMCS (Banning) Act, 1978.

There have been instances in some states where law enforcement agencies have harassed and even jailed representatives of direct selling firms by resorting to such misinterpretation. This is downright unacceptable and must stop. Misinterpreting legislation to harass direct selling companies (and their representatives) amounts to killing the goose that lays the golden egg. This industry can play a vital role in creating large scale employment opportunities to make India a nation of micro-entrepreneurs, a nation that is able to reap its demographic dividend to the full. The Model Framework for Guidelines on Direct Selling was designed because there was no law to regulate the direct selling industry, and in some states, the Act was being wrongly used to regulate direct selling. Direct selling is an industry that is growing fast with the emergence of new players and the guidelines lay a foundation for the industry to function properly. The guidelines are there to protect legitimate direct selling businesses and penalise those businesses that try to circumvent established industry norms.

The decision to abrogate Article 370 was taken amid high tension, lockdown, rumour-mongering and the echo of jackboots in Jammu and Kashmir

PANKAJ SARMA

POPIMONI SHARMA

The process of abrogation of Article 370 has been as controversial as the provisions of the Article itself. In its bid to reshape the political landscape of Jammu and Kashmir, the Modi Government, buoyed by the massive mandate it received to return to the seat of power for a second term, scrapped the special status granted to the volatile state by the Constitution of India.

As is the case with most decisions taken in a democracy, unsavoury or otherwise, in a matter of minutes a political slugfest ensued, following the announcement. While some, mostly those occupying the Treasury benches in the House, saw it as a "glorious day" for India, others called it a "dark day" for parliamentary democracy.

Nonetheless, the decision to abrogate Article 370 was taken amidst high tension, lockdown, rumour mongering and the echo of jackboots in J&K. The Centre restricted public movement by imposing Section 144 of CrPC and several important political leaders of the state were detained and put under house arrest. The Amarnath Yatra was suspended early, tourists were asked to leave and all forms of communication channels were paralysed, isolating the state from the rest of the country, ironically, all in the name of promoting better integration.

Article 370, which granted special status to J&K and Article 35A that empowered the state legislature to define the "permanent residents" of J&K and their special rights and privileges, has long been under the shadow of controversy. It has been a contested constitutional question whether the provisions of Article 370 were that of a temporary nature and was the Parliament ever empowered to abrogate it.

If we revisit history, it becomes evident from clause 7 of the Instrument of Accession signed by Maharaja Hari Singh that the state could not be compelled to accept any future Constitution of India. Furthermore, J&K was well within its rights to draft its own constitution and to decide for itself what additional powers to extend to the Central Government. Article 370 was designed to protect these special rights agreed upon under the Instrument of Accession.

Though Article 370 of the Constitution states that the President may, by public notification, declare that this article shall cease to be operative or shall be operative only with such exceptions and modifications and from such date as he may specify, however, provision to Article 370 clearly states that recommendation of the constituent Assembly of the state referred to in clause 2 of Article 370 shall be necessary before the President issues such a notification. But, since the J&K constituent Assembly later created the State's constitution and dissolved itself without recommending the abrogation of Article 370, the Article was deemed to have become a permanent feature of the Indian Constitution.

The Supreme Court (SC) as well as High Courts of states on several occasions have specifically stated that Article 370 of the Constitution is not a temporary provision. In Kumari Vijayalakshmi Jha vs. Union of India (2017), the Delhi High Court rejected a petition claiming that Article 370 was temporary. In 2018, the SC stated that Article 370 is not a temporary provision. Similarly the apex court in SBI vs. Zaffar Ullah Nehru (2016) held that J&K has a special status and that Article 370 is not temporary.

LOOKING AT THE LOCKDOWN IN THE VALLEY AND THE VIRTUAL IMPRISONMENT OF ITS PEOPLE IN BLATANT DISREGARD OF THEIR RIGHTS IN THE NAME OF GREATER INTEGRATION AND THE SO-CALLED DEVELOPMENT OF THE REGION, ONE IS PROMPTED TO ASK WHETHER WE HAVE PUSHED KASHMIR TO THE POINT OF NO RETURN

On the other hand, Article 3 of the Indian Constitution empowers the Parliament to amend the Constitution by a simple majority to change or alter the boundaries of a state but only when the Bill concerning the same is first referred to the state Assembly concerned for its opinion. But, the decision to create two new Union Territories, J&K and Ladakh, was taken by Parliament without referring the same to J&K Assembly.

As the Assembly was dissolved by an order under Article 356, there was no constitutional body to make the recommendations either under Article 370 (3) or under Article 3.

In such a context, a shortcut was found in the provision of Article 356 (1) (b) that allowed the President to declare that the powers of the state legislature shall be exercisable by or under the authority of the President while President's Rule was in operation in a state.

In the process, perhaps for the first time in the history of state reorganisation in India, a state was converted into two Union Territories, reversing the hitherto existing trend.

Needless to say that Indian federalism became the biggest casualty of our political leaders' desire to create history in one stroke. With the Valley being under lockdown and an unprecedented number of boots on the ground to maintain peace, one is tempted to question the hurried need for abrogating Article 370 without taking the people and the political leaders of J&K into confidence. Can the Centre justify the manner in which all this was done? In law, especially in Constitutional law, procedure is as important as the outcome. It may be recalled that the 1971 election of Indira Gandhi was declared null and void by the Allahabad High Court on grounds of a procedural illegality.

More than the act itself, what is worrisome, is the manner in which it has been dealt with and the subsequent lockdown of the Valley that put curbs on the liberty of citizens of the state.

Such a sensitive matter certainly needed political maturity on the part of the powers that be, who, would have done well to focus on confidence building measure, by way of discussion with key stakeholders.

Unfortunately, neither was the spirit of a deliberative democracy respected, nor was any consensus building attempt made in the frenzied hurry to abrogate Article 370.

The whole episode, therefore, not only undermined the very spirit of democratic functioning but also demonstrated the centralising tendency compromising the framework of asymmetrical federalism that the Constitution of India envisaged.

When the democratic State starts behaving and functioning like a majoritarian and authoritarian one, not only does the constitutional promise get shattered, the future prospects of unity and integrity look bleak.

This, therefore, should be a moment of introspection and not that of celebration. Looking at the lockdown in the Valley and the virtual imprisonment of its people in blatant disregard of their rights in the name of greater integration and the so-called development of the region, one is prompted to ask whether India has pushed Kashmir to the point of no return.

The answer is probably blowing in the wind in the bleeding Valley.

Unfortunately, we have no access to read the writing on the wall of the Valley, with the region being virtually cut off from the rest of the country and both the free movement of the fact finding teams to the state and reporting from the Valley being restricted to a great extent.

However, one can safely assume that in yet another bid to write history in one stroke, the country is going to learn the historic lesson that the project of national integration promoting greater unity and integrity calls for moving beyond the desire of over-centralisation and the idea of forced integration by focussing more on sharing of political power and simultaneously pursuing policies of greater accommodation.

The curious Orientalist paradox

According to the Jamaat-e-Islami chief, late Qazi Hussain Ahmad, there's nothing wrong in looking religious because the West is more appreciative of this. This was Orientalism imposing Orientalism but still looking towards the West for validation

NADEEM PARACHA

Pakistani and Indian cricket fans are some of the loudest and most colourful, especially when faced with TV cameras where they often like to scream with reckless abandon and make the most curious faces. They will tell you they are very passionate about cricket. This comes from how they proudly explain themselves as belonging to a 'very emotional nation' (jazbaati qaum). This is an entirely subjective claim. There is no science behind it, which proves that South Asians as a people are very emotional. Therefore, it is largely a perception. So, where did this perception originate? Most likely, in Britain which ruled India as a colony for nearly 200 years.

Take for instance the famous 1924 novel A Passage to India, by British author EM Forster. Dr Aziz, one of the Indian characters in it, is a Muslim and portrayed as an intelligent but emotional man. Most 19th Century British authors, such as James Mill and Charles Grant, repeatedly describe Indians as being overtly religious, irrational and emotional. The celebrated author and intellectual, the late Edward Said, would have denounced this as being stereotypes invented by Europeans to make Eastern societies seem backward.

Said was the founder of "post-colonial studies," the study of the cultural legacy of colonialism and imperialism. In 1978, he wrote the hugely influential book Orientalism, in which he demonstrated how Western writers have been concocting distorted views of Eastern cultures, especially ever since the 18th Century. According to Said, this 'Orientalism' was enacted as a depictive tool which was closely related to and formed by the West's imperial politics and ambitions.

Said wrote Orientalism when the US had already lost a devastating war in Vietnam and when Britain was facing a series of political, social and economic crises. The predicament in the West, further compounded by the 1973 Oil Crisis, generated an academic onslaught within Europe and the US that fervently attacked the modernist narratives of progress on which European imperialism and then the postcolonial dominance of the US were supposedly built. Such modernism was often critiqued in the context of how the West had distorted the image of Eastern cultures to facilitate political and economic exploitation. But, ironically, almost all of these critiques emerged in the West, even though Said was a Palestinian. However, he wrote his book while he was a professor at an American university. This idea of Orientalism generated great excitement among young 'post-modernist' academics. Nevertheless, when it did leave the confines of American and European academia and reach non-Western regions, mainly through Asian, African and Arab students studying in American and European universities, the idea began to be rapidly adopted by certain segments, who used it to justify violent attacks on anything they deemed 'Western'. The attacks were first intellectual and political in nature, in countries such as India, Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, China, Thailand, South Korea, Turkey, Indonesia, Malaysia, etc. Western civilisations were explained as being devoid of spirituality, morals, roots and values and only driven by sensual pleasures, profit and exploitation. This understanding of the West soon began to colour the rhetoric of Hindu nationalists, 'Islamists' and intransigent dictatorships. This is when some of the first poignant critiques of Said's Orientalism emerged. The most veracious critiques of Orientalism came from British historian Albert Hourani, British author RG Irwin, American scholar Nikki Keddie and, especially, the British-American historian Bernard Lewis. Lewis in 1993's Islam and the West and Irwin in Dangerous Knowledge, argue that Said treated the West the same way he accused the West of treating the East. They lamented that he saw the West as a monolith and in an entirely generalised manner, thus ignoring the different cultures and races which reside there. They also argued that Said cherry-picked his way to present his thesis, disregarding the fact that many Eastern cultures willingly adopt a variety of political, economic and social ideas introduced by the West. According to them, Said also ignored some strictly objective studies of Eastern societies by Western authors that had no 'imperial agendas'. In 2004, the philosopher Avishai Margalit and Dutch author lan Buruma published Occidentalism: The West in the Eyes of its Enemies. They positioned it as an antithesis of Orientalism. They wrote that Orientalism's roots lay in the manner in which conservative and religious nationalists opposed the emergence of secularism, liberalism and capitalism during the colonial era. The Western responses were then appropriated as Orientalism by the 'progressive' intelligentsia in the West as a retort against modernisation. Occidentalism decries Orientalism as a myopic and reductive attack on Western modernity. Orientalism's academic glorification soon paved the way for it to be adopted by reactionary forces. Then there is also the case of "Self-Orientalism." This, too, can be seen as a critique of Orientalism because it sees cultures that have allegedly been 'Orientalised' or imagined by the West, becoming equal participants in the process. Tony Mitchell in the anthology Rogue Flows and WG Feighery in Critical Discourse Studies write that the most fitting way to explore Self-Orientalism is to study tourism industries in various Asian and African countries. To attract Western tourists, these countries gladly appropriate stereotypes supposedly constructed by the West. For example, in Sri Lanka and Thailand, the image of Buddhism as perceived by the West is recreated at specific tourist spots. In India, the region's 'legendary exotic spirituality', revolving around gurus and pundits, has for long been moulded for a Western audience. Self-Orientalism can also include the example of the 'passionate' way Pakistani and Indian cricket fans behave, a 'passion' constantly defined and reinforced by both South Asian and Western cricket commentators. Ultimately, Self-Orientalism actually exposes Orientalism as an idea, which eventually ends up doing what it accuses others of doing. Take for instance a 2003 interview that former chief of Jamaat-e-Islami, the late Qazi Hussain Ahmad, gave to Nawa-i-Waqt. To critique Musharraf's "enlightened moderation", he said there was nothing wrong in behaving or looking religious because the West is more appreciative of this than by those behaving like Westerners. This was Orientalism imposing Orientalism but still looking towards the West for validation. This was a Self-Orientalist idea of how the West appreciates a Muslim. The Orientalist paradox. Sensex, Nifty rise for 3rd day in a row

Equity benchmarks Sensex and Nifty on Monday rose for a third straight session but gains were restricted due to lag-end selling in financial and auto counters amid growing concerns over economic slowdown and health of NBFCs.

After rallying 369 points during the day tracking positive global cues, the 30-share Sensex settled 52.16 points, or 0.14 per cent, higher at 37,402.49. It hit an intra-day high of 37,718.88 and low of 37,358.49.

The broader NSE Nifty too edged 6.10 points, or 0.06 per cent, up at 11,053.90. During the day, it swung between a high of 11,146.90 and low of 11,037.85.

Over the past three sessions, the Sensex has gained 444.33 points, or 1.20 per cent, while the Nifty has advanced 128.05 points, or 1.17 per cent.

However, a sense of caution still prevails among investors who are awaiting some measures from the government to arrest demand slowdown in various sectors which has been pulling down the economy.

Further, lingering concerns over the health of non-banking finance companies (NBFCs) made markets jittery, leading to sell-offs in financial stocks.

Top gainers in the Sensex pack included Sun Pharma, TechM, Axis Bank, L&T, Reliance Industries and ICICI Bank, which rose up to 2.66 per cent. On the other hand, Yes Bank, PowerGrid, ONGC, SBI, Mahindra and Mahindra, Hero MotoCorp, Tata Steel, Asian Paints and HDFC Bank were among the major laggards — losing as much as 3.46 per cent.

Sectorally, BSE consumer durables, capital goods, industrials, healthcare, energy and IT indices ended up to 1.57 per cent higher. While, BSE oil and gas, auto, metal and FMCG indices fell up to 0.59 per cent.

Banking stocks fell after Reserve Bank governor Shaktikanta Das ruled out ordering an asset quality review of the systematically important shadow banks for now.

₹ plunges to over 6-month low of 71.43; skids 29 paise

PTI ■ MUMBAI

The Indian rupee tumbled 29 paise to close at an over six-month low of 71.43 against the US dollar on Monday amid growing worries over economic slump and sustained foreign fund outflows.

Further, rising crude oil prices and strengthening of the US dollar vis-a-vis other currencies overseas also took toll on the Indian currency.

Forex traders said investors are awaiting government intervention to revive the slowing economy. There are expectations that the government would come out with sector-specific stimulus sometime soon.

Economic slowdown 'very worrisome', new set of reforms needed: Rajan

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Former RBI Governor Raghuram Rajan has called slowdown in the economy "very worrisome" and said the government needs to fix the immediate problems in power and non-bank financial sectors and come out with a new set of reforms to energise private sector to invest.

Rajan, who was Governor of the Reserve Bank of India from 2013 to 2016 but was denied a second term, also called for a fresh look at the way GDP in India is calculated as he referred to research by Narendra Modi government's former chief economist Arvind Subramanian about overestimation of growth rate.

"There are a variety of growth projections from the private sector analysts, many of which are perhaps significantly below government projections and I think certainly the slowdown in the economy is something that is very worrisome," Rajan told CNBC TV18.

India's economic growth has slowed to 6.8 per cent in 2018-19 - the slowest pace since 2014-15, and various projections by private experts and the central bank estimate that the GDP growth in the current year will be less than government estimate of 7 per cent.

In ominous signs that the slowdown may be deep, the auto sector is facing its worst crisis in two decades with reports suggesting thousands of job losses in the automobile and ancillary industry, real estate sector has huge unsold inventory, while fast-moving consumer goods (FMCG) companies have reported a decline in volume growth.

"You can hear businesses all around worrying and complaining out loud that they need some kind of stimulus," he said. Rajan said "a fresh set of reforms" are now needed to boost the economy and growth rate.

Rajan advocated for a new set of reforms to get the private sector to invest.

The former governor also drew attention to former chief economic advisor Arvind Subramanian's research that GDP growth was overestimated by 2.5 per cent during 2011-12 and 2016-17.

Govt removes debenture reserve requirement for housing finance companies, NBFCs

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Government has removed the redemption reserve requirement for issuance of debentures by non-banking financial companies, housing finance companies and listed firms, a move aimed at reducing cost for raising capital.

Under the companies law, these entities raising money had to create Debenture Redemption Reserve (DRR) and that requirement has now been done away with.

The corporate affairs ministry on Monday said the requirement for a DRR of 25 per cent of the value of outstanding debentures issued by listed companies, Non-Banking Financial Companies (NBFCs) and Housing Finance Companies (HFCs) has been removed.

The changes would be applicable for public issue as well as private placements.

In the case of unlisted companies, the DRR requirement has been reduced to 10 per cent from 25 per cent of the outstanding debentures.

Business Corner

Inaugurating the Swachhta Pakhwada in Bharat Heavy Electricals Limited (BHEL), Nalin Shinghal, Chairman & Managing Director, BHEL, administered the 'Swachhta Pledge' to the company's employees. The CMD exhorted BHEL employees to participate enthusiastically and contribute wholeheartedly to the National Mission of creating 'Swachh Bharat'.

As per the instructions issued by Department of Financial Services, GOI, the first stage of the bottom up consultative process designed to generate ideas and review performance of the branches and their alignment with the national priorities was conducted at the regional level on 17th and 18th of August by Indian Overseas Bank, Delhi Region.

Taking forward the agenda of reforms in the public sector banks, DFS has initiated a Multi-level consultation process and ideation starting from the branch level. In the meet, ideas and suggestions were generated from various branch managers in the presence of Zonal Manager RK Agarwal, Narendra Kumar, DZM.

Economists expect US recession in 2020 or 2021: Survey

AFP ■ WASHINGTON

A majority of economists expect a US recession in the next two years, but have pushed back the onset amid Federal Reserve actions, according to a survey released Monday.

The survey came out after President Donald Trump pushed back against talk of a looming recession as a raft of US data reports last week showed a mixed picture on the economy.

"I'm prepared for everything. I don't think we're having a recession. We're doing tremendously well. Our consumers are rich," Trump told reporters Sunday.

"I gave a tremendous tax cut, and they're loaded up with money. They're buying. I saw the Wal-Mart numbers, they were through the roof," he said. "And most economists actually say that we're not going to have a recession. But the rest of the world is not doing well like we're doing."

His chief economic advisor Larry Kudlow also downplayed talk of a recession.

"I sure don't see a recession," he told NBC's Meet the Press. "Consumers are working at higher wages. They are spending at a rapid pace. They're actually saving all while they're spending... So I think actually the second half, the economy's going to be very good in 2019," he said.

China lost 20 lakhs jobs in short period of time: Trump

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump has claimed that China has lost more than 20 lakhs jobs in a very short period of time, due to his tough policies, including imposing additional import tariffs.

Chinese economy, he said, is doing "very, very" poorly.

"China is eating the tariffs because of monetary manipulation. And also, they're pouring a lot of money into their country because they don't want to lose jobs... They lost over two million jobs in a short period of time," Trump told reporters at Bedminster in New Jersey on Sunday.

Trump said China wants to make a trade deal with the US. Officials of the two countries are having a series of meetings on this for the past several months. "We will see what happens. But they definitely want to make a deal," he said.

He refused to comment on reports that he has spoken to the Chinese President Xi Jinping on this.

FM says corporate tax for firms to be cut gradually

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Monday said corporate tax rate for companies with over ₹400 crore turnover will be gradually cut to 25 per cent and the government will support wealth creators. In her maiden Budget last month, she had cut corporate tax for companies with annual turnover of up to ₹400 crore to 25 per cent from 30 per cent earlier.

Last year, the then Finance Minister Arun Jaitley had cut the corporate income tax rate to 25 per cent for companies with a turnover of up to Rs 250 crore. Speaking at an industry event here, Sitharaman said the corporate tax reduction for the rest of corporates would be gradual. She did not give a timeframe for the reduction.

Echoing Prime Minister Narendra Modi's Independence Day speech, she said Indian wealth creator entrepreneurs will be given all kind of support.

Modi had in his annual Independence Day address to the nation on August 15 had extolled the role of wealth creators and said they must not be viewed with suspicion.

Everything isn't doomed and gloomy about economy: Das

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Admitting that the economy is slowing down and faces many a challenge both from within and outside, Reserve Bank governor Shaktikanta Das Monday urged everyone to look at the opportunities ahead and stop being the proponents of gloom and doom. The statement comes amidst reports that an increasing number of corporate honchos are livid with the Narendra Modi government, especially after a slew of initiatives in the recent budget, including higher taxes on the rich and foreign portfolio investors.

This had FPIs dumping domestic equities and debt like dung since the budget, pulling down the benchmarks by over 13 percent July 5. Continuing their selling spree that began with the budget and amidst the rising uncertainty over the FPI tax and global trade worries, foreign portfolio investors, and as per depository data, have sold equities worth ₹10,416.25 crore between August 1 and 16 and debt worth ₹2,096.4 crore.

Super foods for monsoon woes

Monsoon brings with it a lot of diseases and issues that children may face because of the hygiene problem during the season. To keep kids hale and hearty, one should know what are the common problems that they face during monsoon so that the right food for them can be decided. Some of the common infectious diseases are cough and cold, diarrhea, typhoid, influenza/flu, cholera, and jaundice. Then we have dengue and malaria that happens because of mosquito bites. But others diseases have more to do with the immunity of the body. And immunity can be enhanced by taking the proper food during the season so that body is capable enough to fight the germs.

These days we always hear about the super foods, which are a common marketing term, but basically mean foods that are rich in nutrients and boost immunity. Most of these foods are plant-based and then we have foods such as egg.

All kinds of citrus fruits should be utilised during the season as they improve the immunity system because of the presence of Vitamin C and create alkaline environment in the body that helps in taking care of the inflammation. Lemon and oranges are full of Vitamin C and easily available during the season and is beneficial for the digestive system also.

Then we have Guava — it has high Vitamin A content and good for kids' vision. Then it is also rich in Vitamin C and prevents kids from developing scurvy apart from providing good resistance to cold and congestion. It has antioxidants such as Vitamins A, C and E.

For lunch, one can think of giving children khichdi as pulses and legumes have got everything in them which helps boost immunity

Parents should try to give as much raw green vegetables to kids as possible. Develop a taste of green vegetable salads in kids because after cooking a lot of nutrients get lost. It will have tremendous effect on their immunity and give them energy to perform their tasks well. One should properly wash them and clean before giving it to the kids.

Banana can also be given during the season but one should not over do it as it can cause cold. It is an alternate to burger of these fast foods, it gives much better ingredients like potassium, magnesium and it is anti-inflammatory. In rainy season, you can find everywhere. Nature's way of giving food and if you are having seasonal food then you are with nature.

Coconut water and coconut is also suggested. Because you get wet and humidity is there. Coconut helps in improvement of pH in skin. Then we have tomatoes that give Vitamin E. These are available in raw form and good for kids.

Vitamin C, Vitamin E, B complex and some minerals (Calcium, magnesium, and zinc) are very important. If someone can eat eggs then nothing better than that. Equally important is cooked food.

Vegetable soup has got all important ingredients and should be given regularly to the kids. Then we have chicken, garlic, ginger and corn. Ginger and garlic is good as it take care of inflammation of the throat. It is good for cold and cough. Children also love to have fruit pancake in their tiffin and you can add jaggedy to give them a complete solution for all the necessary vitamins and carbohydrates. For lunch you can also think of giving them khichdi as pulses and legumes have got everything in them which help boost the immunity. You can also give them sprouts with onion to boost their strength.

Most important during the season is to take care of the hygiene near you that means the body, in the surrounding and inside digestive hygiene through these super foods.

BLACK CUMIN: Black Cumin seeds or kalonji are black coloured spices that is widely used in most of the Indian dishes. They are rich in thymoquinone and anti-oxidants which help keep many diseases at bay.

They are also rich in Omega 3 and Omega 6 which helps to smooth blood circulation to the brain and maximise brain function. It helps in improved memory and concentration.

Saponin found in black cumin can cleanse and neutralise toxins in the body to maximise the performance of organs. It can also reduce symptoms of diarrhea and respiratory problems.

Studies also suggest that black cumin seeds are also effective in preventing cancer as they increase the growth of T-cells which destroy the infected cancer causing cells.

Regular intake of black cumin seeds also helps to lower blood pressure levels.

DONATE LIFE

India has the lowest organ donation rate in the world. Hence, there has to be more awareness around the need to donate, says DR ABHIDEEP CHAUDHARY

In India, due to several socio-cultural reasons, organ donation is not encouraged at any level. Hence, organ donation rate in the country is the lowest in the world. The perpetual problem of shortage of organs has led to a growing demand-supply gap. We need to be more aware and extend full support to organ donation programme. It is high time to overcome the challenge.

Every organ donated gives new life to those who need it badly to survive. There are eight organs that can be donated — kidneys, heart, liver, lungs, pancreas and the small bowel. Tissues of your body can be donated to improve the life of a needy person. In tissues, you can donate your skin, corneas, bone tissue including tendons and cartilage, heart valves and blood vessels.

Major facts about organ donation

■ Anyone can donate

Anyone — young and old — people can donate their organs to save the life of a needy person. People ageing 18 and above can register to become an organ donor. People who are ill or on medication can also donate their organ. An illness or medication would render a particular organ unsuitable for donation there will often still be others that could be good candidates for a transplant.

Organ donation is about giving new life which means after death you can donate your organ. It is never too late to donate there is always a chance that you can donate an organ or tissue, whatever your age even after death.

But always remember that any organ should be transplanted within six to 12 hours after removal from the donor's body. The sooner any organ is transplanted, the greater the chances of functioning of that organ. The liver should be transplanted within 6 hours of evacuation and the kidney within 12 hours. The eyes should be applied to the other person within 3 days.

■ Which part of body can be donated?

Eyes/corneas, heart and heart valves, lungs, liver, kidneys, pancreas, intestines, femoral & saphenous veins, bone and tendons in tissues you can donate skin, corneas, bone tissue including tendons and cartilage, heart valves and blood vessels. Mostly organs and tissues donation occurs after the death of donor, if person has registered him/herself as an organ donor. As deceased donor that can donate two kidney, liver, two lungs, heart, pancreas, and intestines.

■ Clarity to be an organ donor or not

If patient has died in the hospital, doctor can consult relatives to decide for donating the organ of dead body. For organ donation doctor will give registration form and there is box of 'yes' or 'no' this registration form makes everything clearer for all concerned to become a donor or not.

Truth be told

■ Myth 1: Organ donation cannot be done in any disease.

Fact: It is not like this, you only need to meet certain medical criteria. If you fulfill those medical conditions then you can donate organs. Sometimes some organs are not suitable for transplantation, but other organs can be donated.

■ Myth 2: Organ donation makes the body unformed.

Fact: Often people feel that the body spoils by donating organs. But this is not true as it is like a routine surgery and the organs are removed in a similar way. The process of removing the limbs is done with utmost dignity and respect and the scars of the surgery are well covered.

■ Myth 3: People of old age cannot donate organs

Fact: Contrary to popular belief, elderly people can also be good donors. Age is only number one! Yes, you are never too old to donate, nor is anyone's age tested. If you meet medical conditions, you can donate organs.

■ Myth 4: You or your family can charge for organ donation

Fact: Organ donation is a great work. You or your family members cannot charge for organ donation. Even the cost to remove the organ is in most cases borne by the transplant recipient.

Know the difference

There is difference between organ donation and tissues donation. Organ donation is when an organ heart, lung, kidney, liver and pancreas is removed from one person and transplanted into another person. Tissue donation is when tissues in the body like eyes, bone, skin, tendons, Heart tissue are removed from one person and transplanted into another person.

Most organ donation happens when a person dies, but some organs and tissue can be donated even when the person is alive. Kidney is the most common organ donated by living people, because the person donating can live a normal life with only one kidney. Anyway, the kidney which is transplanted from a living person, its working capacity is more than that of a kidney, which is taken from a dead body. Most of the kidney transplant cases in India are by alive donor.

The living person can also donate parts of the lung and liver. Apart from this, all other organs including eyes are donated only after death. In case of normal death at home, only eyes can be donated. No other organs can be taken. Any other organ can be taken when a person has brain death and is taken on a ventilator or life support system.

Tissues donation can be used in surgical applications to repairing musculoskeletal structures such as teeth, skin, and spinal components. Also, it can benefit the patients in life-threatening medical situations which includes saving patients with severe burns, torn ligaments or tendons to heal and regain strength, restoring hope and mobility of men and women who have been injured.

People should be encouraged to become a voluntary donor in our society. One should pledge for organ donation during his/her lifetime, because we have the power to bring back life and smile to someone's face through our donation when we are gone.

TEA THAT HEALS

Sipping a hot cup of tea is popular.

RAZI KHAN tells you how switching to herbal is beneficial for one's health

Herbal tea is a popular option amongst individuals who want to upkeep a naturally healthy lifestyle. Whether you want to warm-up in winters or you want to cool down in summers, herbal tea can be consumed all over the year to enjoy the medicinal benefits. Relaxations, pain reduction, improvement of immune system are some of the benefits that one can extract from herbal tea.

■ Helps to unwind

Tea is a popular choice when it comes to calming effects and has been enjoyed for centuries to deal with a long tiring day. Due to pressure and stress of everyday people have started taking medicinal supplements to cope.

Instead one can go for herbal blend to relax and rejuvenate their inner self and can enjoy the natural alternative to deal with stress and anxiety. Peppermint & chamomile tea will be a go to option to provide a holistic benefit to mind and body.

■ Boost the immune system

It's a traditional thing to do — to sip a piping hot cup of tea when one is under the weather. Tulsi tea has been used in Ayurveda to boost the immune system, fight cough and cold and relieve body ache.

Herbal teas with the goodness of natural herbs fight infections as they are rich in vitamins and antioxidants as well as assist in strengthening immunity.

■ Improve the digestive system

Herbal teas with blends of digestion boosting herbs assist in gastro issues and fight indigestion. The warm blend breaks down fat into simple molecules and speeds up the process of digestion. One can have dandelion, chamomile, cinnamon, peppermint and ginger tea, if they want to prevent or cure bloating, vomiting or indigestion.

■ Anti-Ageing

We drink tea when we wake up, when we're sick or even when curling up to a good book. A cup of tea is known for its relaxing effects, but it is also one of the best natural way for anti-aging remedy.

Herbal tea contains high amount of antioxidants, which helps in delaying the process of ageing. In fact, daily consumption of these concoctions can make your skin flawless and healthy.

■ Help in releasing stress and anxiety

Whenever we are stressed out, the first thing that comes to our mind is tea like chamomile as this tea helps soothe the mind by making it calm and relaxed. It can also act as a mild antidepressant for those who suffer from depression. It stimulates the brain to relieve stress and anxiety.

Real beauty lies in detailing. This includes soft, beautiful and crack-free feet be in men or women. ROSHANI DEVI shares simple and easy to follow home remedies to achieve this Unkempt feet say a lot about a person. Of course, it is not always possible to take time out from one's busy schedule to visit a salon for a mani or a pedi. One can't ignore the fact that it is expensive as well. However, this doesn't mean that one can have beautiful, soft and crack-free feet.

Lemon, salt, glycerine, rose water foot mask: You need a tablespoon of raw salt, 1/2 a cup of lemon juice, 2 tablespoons of glycerine, 2 teaspoons of rose-water, warm water and a scrubber. What to do: Dip your feet in warm water and leave it for 10-15 minutes. Then make a paste of glycerine, rose water and lemon juice. Apply it on the feet. Wash the next morning. Do this every night.

To remove dead skin: Make a scrub using oatmeal. Mix equal parts oatmeal with rose water or milk to make a paste. Apply the scrub to your feet and let set for up to 20 to 30 minutes. Use a foot brush to exfoliate your feet. Rinse with cold water and let your feet dry. Apply a foot cream.

To make feet soft: Add two tablespoons of baking soda in warm water. Soak the feet for half-an-hour. One can put bath salt which is available in the market. It helps to soften the skin. Repeat daily.

Researchers have developed a new voice assistant that allows people with visual impairments to get web content quickly and effortlessly from smart speakers and similar devices. The research team from University of Waterloo found a way to merge the best elements of voice assistants with screen readers to create a tool called Voice Exploration, Retrieval and Search (VERSE) that makes web searches easier.

The primary input method for VERSE is voice, so users can say 'next', 'previous', 'go back' or 'go forward'. VERSE can also be paired with an app, which runs on a smartphone or a smartwatch.

"Our prototype adds screen reader-like capabilities to virtual assistants and allows other devices, such as smartwatches to serve as input accelerators to smart speakers," said study researcher Alexandra Vtyurina.

— IANS

According to the team, virtual assistants are convenient and accessible but lack the ability to deeply engage with content such as read beyond the first few sentences of an article, list alternative search results and suggestions.

These devices can serve as input accelerators, similar to keyboard shortcuts. For example, rotating the crown on a smartwatch advances VERSE to the next search result, section or paragraph, depending on the navigation mode.

"At the outset, VERSE resembles other virtual assistants as the tool allows people to ask a question and have it answered verbally with a word, phrase or passage," Vtyurina said.

New research from the Scotland-based University of Dundee has revealed that the worldwide tuberculosis (TB) epidemic is leaving a legacy of chronic lung disease.

Scientists from the University, in partnership with the Respiratory Research Network of India, have reported results from a study of more than 2000 Indian patients with evidence of permanent lung damage. Researchers have found that more than 1/3 of patients who are successfully cured of TB with antibiotics developed permanent lung damage which, in the worst cases, results in large holes in the lungs called cavities and widening of the airways called bronchiectasis.

TB survivors and patients with a history of severe infections such as childhood pneumonia made up the majority of patients with lung damage in India. Patients required further hospitalisations for treatment of their lung conditions in nearly 40% of cases.

Women with obstructive sleep apnea (OSA) appear to be at an elevated risk of getting cancer than men with the condition, warn researchers. The study, published in the European Respiratory Journal, is based on analyses of registry data, collected in the European database ESADA, on a total of some 20,000 adult patients with obstructive sleep apnea (OSA). About 2 per cent of them also had a cancer diagnosis.

"It's reasonable to assume that sleep apnea is a risk factor for cancer or that both conditions have common risk factors, such as overweight. On the other hand, it is less likely that cancer leads to sleep apnea," said Ludger Grote, Professor at the University of Gothenburg in Sweden.

According to the researchers, advanced age was associated with elevated cancer risk, but adjusting the data for age, gender, body mass index (BMI), smoking and alcohol consumption nevertheless showed a possible link between intermittent hypoxia at night and higher cancer prevalence.

"Our results indicate a cancer risk that's elevated two-to three-fold among women with pronounced sleep apnea," Grote said. The condition of sleep apnea is well known to the general public and associated with snoring, daytime fatigue, and elevated risk of cardiovascular disease, especially in men, said the study.

This research paves the way for a new view — that sleep apnea may possibly be connected with increased cancer risk, especially in women. — IANS

HONG KONG PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION 'Tiananmen Square' crackdown would harm trade: Trump

AFP ■ WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump has warned China that carrying out a Tiananmen Square-style crackdown on Hong Kong pro-democracy protesters would harm trade talks between the two countries. "I think it'd be very hard to deal if they do violence, I mean, if it's another Tiananmen Square," Trump told reporters in New Jersey on Sunday. "I think it's a very hard thing to do if there's violence."

Hong Kong has been roiled by protests for more than two months and on Sunday hundreds of thousands of democracy activists had marched peacefully in the city despite rising unrest and stark warnings from Beijing.

There have been increasingly stark warnings from Beijing over the protests, and state media has run images of military personnel and armoured personnel carriers across the border in Shenzhen.

China's 1989 crackdown in Beijing's Tiananmen Square saw tanks sent in to end student-led protests, resulting in hundreds if not thousands of deaths. Trump's comments came as Washington and Beijing look to revive pivotal talks aimed at ending their trade war, which has roiled world markets.

Bank of England chief pulls out of Chinese event

London: Bank of England governor Mark Carney has withdrawn from a high-profile business event with China's ambassador to London, sources said Monday, as pro-democracy protests continue in Hong Kong. Carney had been due to speak at the dinner, aimed at boosting Chinese business links, which is scheduled for September 3 at the Guildhall, the administrative centre of the City of London financial district. However he will not now attend because of "diary issues", a source close to the matter told AFP.

Some local politicians are reportedly unhappy at the timing of the event, as Hong Kong police continue to clash with democracy activists. AFP

Sudan's Bashir got $90 mn from Saudi, investigator tells court

AFP ■ KHARTOUM

Sudan's deposed military ruler Omar al-Bashir has admitted to receiving USD 90 million in cash from Saudi royals, an investigator told a Khartoum court on Monday. Police Brigadier Ahmed Ali said at the opening of Bashir's corruption trial, which an AFP correspondent attended, that the former president told him that the latest payment was "delivered by some of Mohammed bin Salman's envoys".

Bashir, whose military Islamist regime ruled Sudan for 30 years, arrived at the Judicial and Legal Science Institute where the trial is taking place in a huge military convoy. Inside the courtroom, he was sitting in a metal cage, unshaven and wearing a white traditional gown.

His relatives in the courtroom chanted "Allahu Akbar" (God is greatest), to which he responded with the same words.

The former strongman was forced from power on April 11 after months of protests.

A transitional constitution meant to guide Sudan towards civilian rule was officially signed on Saturday.

Bashir faces a raft of charges of war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide from the International Criminal Court over his role in the war in Sudan's western Darfur region.

However, the jailed leader appeared in court Monday on charges of receiving and possessing foreign funds illegally. The police investigator told the court that nearly seven million euros (USD 7.8 million) were found at Bashir's residence, as well as smaller amounts in US dollars and Sudanese pounds.

"The accused told us that the money was part of a sum of USD 25 million sent to him by Prince Mohammed bin Salman to be used outside of the state budget," Ahmed Ali said.

The investigator said Bashir had said he also received two previous payments of USD 35 million and USD 30 million from Saudi's King Abdullah, who died in 2015.

The investigator said Bashir had said the Saudi money was exchanged and spent and that he could not remember how nor did he have documents providing further details.

UK to end EU free movement immediately after Brexit

AFP ■ LONDON

Britain said Monday it will immediately end freedom of movement for people from the European Union after Brexit on October 31, in a policy shift under Prime Minister Boris Johnson.

"Freedom of movement as it currently stands will end on October 31 when the UK leaves the EU," a Downing Street spokeswoman said. She added the government planned "tougher criminality rules for people entering the UK" as part of the new headline stance.

"Details of other changes immediately on October 31 for a new immigration system are currently being developed," the spokeswoman said.

The change comes amid growing fears Britain is set to leave the 28-member bloc without a divorce deal in two and a half months. Around 3.6 million EU citizens already in Britain have been told to apply for "permanent settled status", under an interior ministry scheme started by Johnson's predecessor Theresa May.

Controversial General accused of war crimes named as Sri Lanka Army chief

PTI ■ COLOMBO

A controversial Sri Lankan Army general accused of grave human rights abuses during the country's 26-year brutal civil war with the LTTE was on Monday appointed the new Army Commander, evoking strong criticism from the US and the minority Tamils.

President Maithripala Sirisena's office on Monday announced that Lt Gen Shavendra Silva has been named as the new army commander.

Silva, 55, will take charge as incumbent Army chief Lt Gen Mahesh Senanayake's service was not extended.

Silva headed the Army's 58th Division in the final battle against the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) rebels in the final stages of the civil war in 2009.

His brigade was accused of attacking civilians, hospitals and stopping humanitarian supplies to trapped Tamil civilians.

Silva's name was mentioned in the resolution passed by the UN Human Rights Council (UNHRC) in 2013, alleging rights abuses by the Sri Lankan Army. The Sri Lanka Army has denied the alleged rights abuses.

Critics say Silva's appointment as the Army chief may strain Sri Lanka's cooperation in UN Peacekeeping operations and the defence cooperation between the US and Sri Lanka.

Pak Army chief Gen Bajwa gets three year extension

PTI ■ ISLAMABAD

Pakistan Army chief General Qamar Javed Bajwa's term has been extended for another three years by Prime Minister Imran Khan in view of the "regional security environment", an official announcement said on Monday.

General Bajwa, 58, who was appointed as the Chief of Army Staff by former prime minister Nawaz Sharif in November 2016, was to retire in November.

"General Qamar Javed Bajwa is appointed Chief of Army Staff for another term of three years from the date of completion of current tenure," read the brief notification issued by the Prime Minister's Office.

"The decision has been taken in view of the regional security environment," the notification said, citing the decision made by Prime Minister Khan, apparently referring to the fresh tension in India-Pakistan relations and the ongoing Afghan peace talks between the US and the Taliban militants, facilitated by Islamabad.

Commenting on the extension given to the Army chief, Pakistan Foreign Minister Shah Mahmood Qureshi said that it was essential due to the regional situation.

Having served as corps commander of Rawalpindi, Gen Bajwa has vast experience of dealing with issues related to Kashmir and the Line of Control, The Express Tribune reported.

In a country prone to frequent military coups, the army generals who, enforced many years of martial law in Pakistan since independence in 1947, have held power for nearly as long as the civilians.

Athens: An octogenarian Greek Orthodox bishop convicted of inciting violence against gays remained defiant as he stepped down on Monday, calling his sentence a "badge of honour".

Af vows to crush Islamic State havens after attack

Kabul: Afghanistan's President is vowing to eliminate all safe havens of the headline Wahhabi ISIS group as the country marks a subdued 100th Independence Day after a horrific Shia wedding attack claimed by the local ISIS affiliate.

President Ashraf Ghani's comments Monday came as Afghanistan mourns at least 63 people killed in the Kabul bombing.

Many outraged Afghans ask whether an approaching deal between the United States and the Taliban to end nearly 18 years of fighting will bring peace to long-suffering civilians.

A sharply worded Taliban statement questions why the US failed to identify the attackers in advance. AP

19 killed in Uganda fuel truck blast: Police

Kampala: Nineteen people died when a fuel truck barreled into other vehicles in a busy town in western Uganda and exploded, police said Monday. The blast occurred Sunday evening in the Kyambura trading centre, a mountainous area near the Queen Elizabeth National Park.

"Ten people died instantly when the fuel truck lost control and hit three other vehicles, leading to multiple explosions that also burned 25 small shops," said regional police spokesman Martial Tumusiime. AFP

US MULLS LEAVING INTELLIGENCE ASSETS IN AFGHANISTAN AFTER TROOP WITHDRAWAL

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

The US is considering leaving "significant intelligence" assets behind after withdrawing its troops from Afghanistan as it does not want the war-torn country to become a "laboratory for terrorism", President Donald Trump has said.

Trump's comments come after he met with top national security advisers to review a US-Taliban peace plan that could end America's longest running war. "We're talking to Afghanistan, both the government and also talking to the Taliban, having very good discussions. We'll see what happens."

Syria forces enter key town amid fierce clashes: Monitor

AFP ■ BEIRUT

Syrian regime forces entered a key northwestern town on Sunday amid intense fighting with jihadists and their rebel allies which has left dozens of combatants dead, a war monitor said.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights reported "fierce clashes" as it said regime ground troops penetrated Khan Sheikhun in Idlib province for the first time since they lost control of it in 2014. The latest fighting, which broke out overnight Saturday to Sunday, has already killed at least 59 jihadists and allied rebels as well as 28 members of pro-regime forces, the Britain-based monitor said.

Pro-regime forces also called Syrian Arab Army (SAA) have been advancing over the past few days in a bid to encircle Khan Sheikhun from the north and west and to seize a key highway.

KJo ridicules party accusations

Filmmaker KARAN JOHAR has broken his silence over allegations of hosting a drug party for a few A-list Bollywood stars at his residence last month.

He feels that all such charges are baseless and ridiculous. It was an easy night out, the filmmaker says, adding that his mother was also appalled reading about it.

"I toyed with the idea of giving out a statement. I toyed with giving out a thought on the social media. There were achieving members of the industry who were having an easy night out after a hard week of work, having a good time. I took that video with all the earnestness," says Karan.

'The era of the 90s had a charm of its own where sensuality was portrayed with utmost poise and dignity. Item numbers were made back then and even those were termed as sexy but now we live in an era where sexy means revealing. I feel one does not need to be vulgar to be sensuous, look at the song, Ek do teen, it is also an item number but the lyrics, grace and the way it was shot has a recall value even today.'

—Alka Yagnik

Actress MAHIE GILL, who is known for her roles in films such as Dev D, Saheb, Biwi Aur Gangster and Paan Singh Tomar, says that she has been stereotyped for her sensual beauty for long, and adds that just looking good on-screen is boring.

Mahie returns in the hard-hitting digital film, Posham Pa, where she is cast as a Marathi sex worker. She says, "Looking sexy all the time is boring. I am more than my appearance. I am a dancer. I am a performer."

'All about creating balance'

Actor TOM HOLLAND doesn't feel trapped in his Spider-Man avatar, and says it is all about creating a balance in professional life.

He says, "It is a balance of doing other films while doing some big ones. I did The Devil All the Time, which was shot in Alabama. It is a dark film. I am also doing a film with Russo Brothers later this year called Cherry." The actor ensures that he doesn't get trapped in his onscreen superhero avatar. For him, it is about fitting into schedule of new projects which are very character focused.

Make history come ALIVE

Museums are all set to embark upon a journey to make your visits more sensory and experiential, says CHAHAK MITTAL

Do not touch," "Stay away from the exhibit" — these are some of the signs that you are most likely to encounter at museums. But the idea that artefacts, repositories, specimens, sculptures and other objects which represent history should be encased in glass or placed behind frames in order to take care of the basic hygiene is changing. The thought that some of them even require environment-friendly conditions with suitable light and temperature to sustain certainly belongs to the past. As does the belief that if you are really curious to experience the artwork more intensely, you should put your hands behind your back or inside the pockets to ensure that they don't get damaged. It is time now that we take certain measures to throw light on experience than preservation and sustainability.

The idea is borne out of the belief that we can never be really moved by static objects to learn more about history associated to them. There might be description notes ahead of each illustration or visual. But they might not always provide the answers. This is one of the reasons why the concept of interactive museums is coming to fore. So how does it enhance a visitor's experience without taking away the natural, historic and cultural insights that museums work so hard to preserve? Saurav Bhaik, founder and CEO of Tagbin, an initiative to create experiential spaces, says, "It creates a tangible experience for the visitors whilst keeping its preservation untouched. The idea followed after a few museums and art galleries around the world used the technology to create a more interactive and immersive experience." The debate on interactive museums triggered in the city when recently the Archeological Survey of India (ASI) installed the Azaadi Ke Diwane Museum at the Red Fort, which celebrates unsung heroes of the country's freedom struggle. Through multi-sensor technology, the exhibition allows viewers to engage with the exhibits directly through informative and digital visuals.

The Centre for Indian Music Experience (CIME), Bengaluru, the first museum dedicated to music, has made sure it didn't give the audience some monotonous collection to observe and move ahead. It had to be more verbal and aural than just visual, and experiential than material. Suma Sudhindra, director, had enabled and curated the museum through documentaries, interactive games, melodies combining the Western and classical Indian music, sing-along kiosks that explain niche music genres and traditional gharanas. It has touch-sensitive installations of chimes, gongs, bells and reeds that are set to twelve musical notes. The museum allows the viewers to come, "create and experiment their own tunes."

Astral, an illustration by Australian illustrator and designer Stuart Campbell (popularly known as Sutu), which recently featured a sequence of 21st century tableaux gives participants the sense that they are actually stepping into the paintings.

Well, another reason, as Bhaik lists, that there is a need for interactive museums is because they highly attract millennials, which is the most "impatient lot, who get weary of numb and static things." He says, "They are always hunting for something that can trigger and allure them." Indeed, to them, statues can seem aloof in glass cases, paintings might appear bleak in poor lighting and artefacts could look like just some objects from history with information on scraps of paper ahead of them.

So what could be one intelligent way to make the static alive? As Bhaik visited the British Museum Gallery in London, he felt that many visuals were hidden from the view. The "treasures" were displayed in the same manner. He says, "And with each passing object, people seemed disinterested, peering into their mobile screens or moving past the labelled descriptions since it did not make them curious to know more."

Based on his observations at the museum, he suggests, "It's important to improve its informative appeal more than its visual basics. Design a room where we can proactively connect with culture and history. A one-to-one interaction with the visitors could be very informative. Here, linking time and space, past and present with the dynamics of technology can present stories about the significance of history as well as future."

Nilofar Shamim Haja, ex-editor of an architectural magazine, writes in her blog about the future of augmented museums, "Visitors would have digital entry codes embedded in their mobile tickets and a mobile-, AR-, or holograph-based tour would guide them towards exhibits that match their interests (sports, art, textile, cuisines). A home-based audience can browse through a museum's digital collection and augment the exhibition by adding multimedia of significant events from their life that is relevant to the digital exhibit. This level of customisation looks at building multi-generational relationships with the audience."

The 9/11 Memorial, New York, was designed using interactive techniques which walks people through the brutality of 9/11, stories of people, recreating an actual experience of the dark day.

The Santa Cruz Museum of Art and History engages people by making them a part of the past. It welcomes people to write poetry and bottle their memories with a name. It tours an interactive story of objects, rather than standing clueless in front of ancient stones, sculptures or pre-historic rock-arts.

The Jinsha Site Museum in China showcases more than 5,000 gold, jade and ivory artefacts. Its visitors can use an app to explore these relics, see how they look in 3D and learn more about what they were used for. Two particularly important examples on display are — a gold mask that appears to float up and spin in front of the visitor's face, and a gold foil totem with images of the sun and immortal birds.

However, while digitisation has reinvented museums in the West, turning them into vibrant cultural spaces, its presence in India is still limited. And because government-funded museums have gone out of funds, private ones are collaborating with industry experts to equip spaces to make it look more relevant.

The Partition Museum in Amritsar showcases a range of everyday objects and memories of the trauma faced by millions of South Asians. The museum enables the viewers to launch a mobile application where they can access videos and text related to Partition.

While latest technologies are enabling people to create something of their own and make space for imagination and thus, connect with human emotions in a myriad of ways to create an everlasting experience, the questions remains — whether Indian museums will ever be able to bring technological advancements, matching to the level of the West.

A perfect climax

Actor OMARI HARDWICK says that he was doing eight films and 200 songs while playing the ghost mode in his series, Power, and still couldn't really get out of that role. By TEAM VIVA awesome, microscopic look of the female contingent of power and understand what it means to be a female with power, influence, vulnerability, insecurity and brokenness and how that can look. I think she nailed this role.

Will Tariq end up being a criminal just like his dad? Being raised by parents or grandparents we learn through the series of actions that take place in our lives. In life, we often say lies unknowingly. We tend to think that because we didn't say red when it was green it is not a lie. It was a lie when Toshi and Ghost didn't say anything. So, withholding information was detrimental to the kid. Not only Ghost, but even Naturi was interested to watch the teenager's face to make out what he was upto.

has really aided and she also shares a close bond with my actual wife. Ghost is extremely different. I did eight films while doing Power, 200 songs and I still couldn't really get out of the ghost mode. I was totally doing other things, but I was always allegiant to Courtney and to Starz. When I was around Naturi, it was easier for me to go home to my actual family when I had scenes with them. If I had scenes with killers in the show, it was very difficult to go home. She probably helped the best with my methodical insertion as an actor playing ghost and helped me in getting rid of it.

Can you choose a stand-out moment from the past seasons?

Yes, the audacity, the arrogance to say you can't leave the body. As the guy that played ghost, I would try to represent all the people that were so integral. The powerful scene where Naturi comes to visit me in the prison, and the family was behind her. And Raina, played by Donshea (Hopkins) who was no longer on the show at that point, but when she talks to me in the jail and then I tell Tommy to take care of my family, it was also too powerful.

What do you think that the fans will take away from this final chapter in the story?

For me, it is simple, it's to be satisfied. There are shows that have been indelibly placed into our psyche as parts of the cultural shift in Television history and yet at the end they leave fans with a feeling of drift. I hope that we make the fans feel like we climaxed perfectly. At the end we want them to say, "this is great." (The show's Season 6 releases on August 26 on SonyLIV.)

Dwayne marries Lauren Hashian

Hollywood actor Dwayne Johnson has exchanged vows with longtime girlfriend and singer Lauren Hashian in Hawaii.

The actor took to Instagram to share the news of his wedding with his fans and followers. He also shared two photographs of the couple against a romantic setting with the beautiful sunset.

"We do. August 18th, 2019. Hawaii." Johnson wrote alongside the series of the photographs.

For the wedding, Johnson opted for a white shirt and white pants and his bride wore a long white lace gown with a low-cut neckline and long train. In one image, the actor is seen smiling beside his bride, and the second shows the couple kissing against the sunset backdrop with Hashian's veil blowing in the wind.

Johnson met Hashian in 2006 when the actor was filming The Game Plan. They started dating in 2007. The couple share daughters Jasmine and Tiana.

ENVIRONMENT IS THE NEW COOL

Artistic director ARUNA GANESH RAM's play Under Pressure focusses on climate change induced by our endless consumerism, says AYUSHI SHARMA

Despite what politicians might tell you, here's a fact, climate change is real. The summers are getting hotter. The water table is sinking lower. And it's about time we made a choice about how we choose to live. Do you believe that technology will save you? Or do you think that mindful living is the way forward? The earth is yours to fight for. And the question is, will you?

Artistic director Aruna Ganesh Ram has put together a play, Under Pressure, which is a commentary on climate change induced by our endless consumerism. She says, "Let's go back in time. I was born in the 80s. I have lived my life amidst trees and have been bitten by insects. I was so much closer to nature than my son, for example, who is three years old. He is ensconced within the comfort of the community. So we wondered how we could trigger appreciation for nature. It's not like that we don't know that climate change is real. Most of us know it is. But what are we doing? We are thinking of changing our lifestyle but we aren't really doing anything to implement these changes."

The play will examine the effect of the individual and collective choices and their leading environmental consequences. From exploring themes of consumerism, minimal living, indigenous wisdom, the life of trees and the politics of nature, the performance will present multiple perspectives — that of the policy-makers, raggickers, environmentalists, of the 8,000-year-old trees and even the extinct birds.

"One of the questions we want to ask through the play is that how do we reach that appreciation point and love for the environment. Because if that love existed or even exists, we would have done or would do things differently. We have lost it somewhere to this idea of the glamorous consumerist. What is this rampant consumerism that has coloured the way we see life? We are materialistic and we believe it is so cool. So how do we go back and be mindful about the fact that environment is the new cool," says Aruna.

So how did the idea come to her? She tells us that the whole process started two years back when she was listening to a podcast. Author Amitav Ghosh was the speaker and was talking about climate change. He urged artists, journalists, poets and writers to talk about the environment in any way that they could. And she realised that even though climate change is so real, people weren't talking about it. "In that moment I was like 'oh yes'. So I started looking at my own work over the last 15 years. I have been doing theatre since 2003 and I haven't done a single piece related to environment or anything around that. And it just clicked that the quality of air is deteriorating and environmental conditions are worsening. We see waste being dumped on the roads but why I am, as an artist, not engaging with it through my work?" questions the director.

That's when she started reading and getting acquainted with what's going on with the climate crisis movement. Who are the people working in that space? She felt there are so many perspectives one can take. Contaminated water, air pollution, plastics and industrial waste, all of this is contributing to a drastic climate change. The play focusses on three major aspects because, she says, "we couldn't talk about everything due to a limited time." Aruna tells us that the first aspect caters to creating an appreciation of earth through nostalgia, which is the real reason for our existence and how there were times when we knew to live in oneness with the planet. "Using verses, earth poetry and trees as a metaphor of life and growth, we have portrayed the first part," adds she.

The second section deals with what human beings have done post the industrial age, rampant consumerism, mass production, capitalism and how all of that has influenced the way we live today, which is the throwaway life or #2minutelife, where we want quick gratification from everything we do. The director says that this part will be done through masks and behavioural gestures.

Third, it shows what we have unleashed into this world — plastic, which we absolutely do not know how to deal with. "It is getting dumped in the oceans because of which marine animals are struggling. Also, any kind of plastic takes over 50-60 years to decompose or maybe even never. Next, it deals with how we have created a problem that is way bigger than we have imagined it to be. So we do this by creating a dystopian world, which is what really happens when we become plastic humans," says Aruna.

Facts and figures have been a part of her research. For instance, she tells us that one of the facts that they keep repeating are the performances of the timeline of 2050, a time about which most of the scientists predict that there will be more plastic in the oceans than fishes. "We keep going back to it."

The synopsis of the play tells us that the story is narrated through the perspective of an 8,000-year-old tree. So what's the idea? How do you tell a story from the perspective of a tree? She says, "See, we are humans but we know that the tree has life and it has seen so much more time than you and I have. So what does it mean to embody that spirit of tree into your body. We have tried to do that by embodying the spirit of the tree by being resilient, which is where we have recreated that perspective from the movement. The average lifespan of a tree is 300-400 years whereas our average span is 75-80 years at max. And see how much damage we're doing to the earth."

The performance is a sensory montage moving between the realms of reality and surrealism, inviting the audience to question and reflect upon their own viewpoint and their relationship with the earth. "The play is embodied with facts that the audience can take back as what they can change in their life. If the play becomes preachy then it's not going to resonate with the audience because each one of us has been on a different journey of understanding environment. If I explain you something, you'll be like who are you to tell me that. We are operating in an economy of individual choices and you have to exercise that yourself because only you know what you can do," she says.

(The play, as a part of the Old World Theatre Festival, will be staged on August 23 at 7.30 pm at Amaltas Hall, IHC.)

PILLARS OF HISTORY

Interactive border wall mural tells stories of deported people

Lizbeth De La Cruz Santana returned to the Mexican beach, where her father entered the US illegally before she was born, this time to put final touches on a mural of adults who came to the US illegally as young children and were deported. Visitors who hold up their phones to the painted faces are taken to a website that voices first-person narratives.

There is a deported US veteran. There are two deported mothers with children who were born in the US. There is a man who would have been eligible for an Obama-era programme to shield people who came to the US when they were very young from deportation but was deported less than a year before the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals programme, known as DACA, took effect in 2012.

The project blends Mexico's rich history of muralists with what can loosely be called interactive or performance art on the 1,954-mile (3,126-kilometer) US — Mexico border. At the same Tijuana beach during an art festival in 2005, David Smith Jr, known as "The Human Cannonball," flashed his passport, lowered himself into a barrel and was shot over the wall, landing on a net with US Border Patrol agents nearby. In 2017, professional swimmers crossed the border from the US in the Pacific Ocean and landed on the same beach, where a Mexican official greeted them with stamped passports and school-children cheered.

Border mural depicts adults who came to the US illegally as children and were deported. The mural uses scanning codes to tell the stories including, that of a deported US veteran and two mothers with children who were born in the US. Last month, an artist installed three pink seesaws through a border wall that separates El Paso, Texas, from Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

De La Cruz Santana, 28, conceived the interactive mural as part of a doctoral dissertation at University of California, Davis, in Spanish with a focus on literature and immigrant experiences. The faces are affixed with barcodes that link to audio on the project website. Her dissertation will include written arguments for DACA-style benefits to anyone who comes to the US as a young child, without any of the disqualifiers like criminal history that former President Barack Obama included.

"Technology is one of the best ways and venues for people to tell their stories," said De La Cruz, whose parents obtained legal status through former President Ronald Reagan's amnesty law.

With a $7,500 grant, De La Cruz, who was born and raised in California, directed about 15 people who painted on polyester canvases at a Tijuana art gallery called "House of the Tunnel," which was once used to smuggle drugs in a secret underground passage to San Diego. She partnered with Mauro Carrera, a longtime friend and a muralist who lives in Fresno, California.

The project is also deeply personal for Carrera, 32, who was born in Mexico, crossed the border illegally as a toddler, and obtained legal status through his father, who had amnesty. He grew up with friends and neighbors in the US illegally.

Carrera said the project aims to "see the people behind the politics." The deportees painted at least 80 per cent of their own faces under his direction.

"I feel I'm right in the middle of the issue," he said as others rolled canvases over steel poles that were topped with coiled wire installed after Donald Trump became president.

Last year, many Central Americans in a large caravan of asylum seekers gravitated to the beach, which is downhill from a light tower, bull ring and restaurants. The US side of the beach is usually empty, except for Border Patrol agents parked in their vehicles and occasional hikers.

De La Cruz Santana is struck by the lively atmosphere on the Mexican side and quiet in the US.

"If you look past this wall on the US side, there's nothing," she said. "I wanted to erase the border."

In order to take a closer look at other realms of artistic expressions, one must observe an emerging artist's work to understand what occupies her/him.

Artist Pallav Chander's show at Alliance Francaise represents the emotional meaning of geometric shapes and their relationship with one another in his own life. To some extent, it seems like a point and line to planar levels, more like a logical extension of the principles of intuitive and experiential patterns that the artist has come across during his emotional odyssey.

SPACE AND FORM

Pallav creates a kitsch combination of geometric abstractions that seem to be precisely engineered. For him, art is a medley of moulded and mixed drawings that build a unity of space and form between its shapes and motifs like some architectural diagram showcasing a tangent of possibilities. A conscious product of Pallav's bizarre-looking utopia brings us to his own theories, yet some works of rare beauty which represent an artist's blue-print of a dream coming to reality.

DRAMA IN TITLES

Pallav has used dramatic titles — Broken Chords, Mad World — and each of them have a rare resonance to each other. He says, "Whenever I title my work, I have a theatrical approach to it. It's either a statement or just one or two words defining my work and mainly manipulating the viewer to not get a straight answer regarding the definition of the painting. It is left for the viewer to extract his/her own interpretation."

A closer look at the artworks speaks of material foundations by focussing on

An emotional odyssey

Artist PALLAV CHANDER's show at Alliance Francaise reflects the chaos in society due to the growing dependence of people on social media. By UMA NAIR these works depict some part of the hypocrisy in our society today. While on the other hand, the title Broken Chords Can Sing a Little reflects hope. The artwork has been given an organised yet a chaotic street art feel to it. It aims to give out messages of hope from a subjective angle.

TEXTURAL TERRAIN

Art should reflect the modern industrial world and above all, be accessible to the masses. Pallav's art is relevant in a rapidly changing world. It's free from academic tradition and devoid of any ambiguous, fashionable or subjective properties. Textures are replete in his canvases.

He says, "The textures in my works are a major part of my art process as most of the time, I paint more than three things on the same canvas. So the texture from my previous works leave an impression on the new one. This process leaves kind of a chaotic but a balanced impression in the work, which I feel is a satisfactory result in terms of its visual appeal."

The show presents an entirely new language of colours and movements. Pallav has a very keen idea of spatial, light and design details to create works that draw a fine line between non-figurative and decorative art. An unforgettable suite of works comes as no surprise because he is the son of the versatile and talented Kanchan Chander.

al and three-dimensional in form, were characterised by their austere, angular geometric shapes. Pallav goes beyond that in using deeper and wider spectrum of shapes and colours.

He explains, "For example, Mad World is trying to define the chaos in our society due to the information age we live in, where social media has become a platform where people are craving for likes and follows from strangers just to get approval. It represents the peer pressure and people's demand for an external validation for their moves."

Explaining other titles, The Double Face, The Fake World, The Selfie Couple, The Pout Expert, he says that all

Two Day Brain-Storming Session of Banks To Help Various Sectors

PNS / Chandigarh: The first stage of the bottom-up consultative process designed to generate ideas and review performance of bank branches and their alignment with national priorities concluded in various branches, regional and zonal offices of Public Sector Banks.

The banks conducted the exercise on August 17 and 18. This was a first of its kind consultation where the branches were themselves asked to review their performance, deliberate on the issue before the banking sector, and ideate on future strategy and the way forward. The meet focused on the ways and means to increase credit to various sectors of the economy, enhance use of technology to bring about innovation and enable big data analytics, and make banking citizen-centric as well as more responsive to the needs and aspirations of senior citizens, farmers, small industrialists, entrepreneurs, youth, students and women.

All the banks in the region discussed nine thematic papers on various challenges facing the banking sector with a view to suggest reforms in Public Sector Banks (PSBs), and the future roadmap for them.

These were increasing digital payments, Corporate Governance in PSBs, Credit for India's MSMEs, Use of Technology in PSBs, Retail Lending - A Great Opportunity, Agriculture Credit, Export Credit in India, Need to Establish Financial Grid and Enabling Bank Credit towards a $5 Trillion Economy.

The meetings by the various banks also reviewed the bank's performance and its alignment with national priorities in areas such as Credit support for economic growth Infrastructure/industry, Farm sector and Blue economy, Jal Shakti, MSME sector and MUDRA loans, Education loans, Export credit, Green economy, Swachh Bharat, Financial inclusion and women empowerment, Direct benefit transfers, Less cash/digital economy, Ease of living, Alignment with local priorities and Corporate social responsibility.

As a result of the consultations, a number of implementable and innovative suggestions came up on how PSBs may improve their performance and what the roadmap for the future should be. These suggestions were collated and have been sent to the zonal level for further discussions at the SLBC/State level, along with comparative performance assessment of the branches under each Circle. After the SLBC level, final consultations will be held at the national level to compare both intra and inter-bank performances, and to finalise the suggestions regarding the way ahead for implementation across PSBs.

Keys locks up Cincy title

AFP ■ CINCINNATI

Madison Keys came from a break down in both sets to defeat Svetlana Kuznetsova 7-5, 7-6 (7/5) on Sunday to win the WTA Cincinnati crown.

The 2017 US Open finalist notched her fifth career title and second this season after a win in Charleston in April.

She'll return to the top 10 in the world rankings with the US Open a week away.

Kuznetsova, a two-time Grand Slam champion working her way back up the rankings after a series of injuries, was broken back in the 10th game of each set by 16th-seeded Keys — who fired 13 aces on the way to victory.

"If my team had told me a week ago that I would be here, I would have laughed in their face," admitted Keys, who had endured two opening-match defeats since a second-round exit at Wimbledon.

Keys belted a total of 43 winners with 33 unforced errors and broke Kuznetsova three times.

Kuznetsova was the fourth Grand Slam winner Keys beat during the week, a string that included Spain's Garbine Muguruza, reigning Wimbledon champion Simona Halep and Venus Williams.

"It was a tough draw from the very start," Keys said. "I definitely think I played some of my best tennis consistently this week."

"I'm obviously really happy and really proud of myself," she added, while stressing she won't let the performance put more pressure on her at the US Open.

Madison Keys holds the Rookwood Cup after defeating Svetlana Kuznetsova in the women's final

"It's definitely more of a building block," she said.

Former world number two Kuznetsova, who received a wildcard into the draw, beat top seed Ashleigh Barty, world number three Ashleigh Barty and 2017 US Open champion Sloane Stephens on her way to the final.

"I had a lot of matches where they could have gone either way, including this one," said Kuznetsova, who will jump from 118th to 31st in the rankings and said she had a "great week."

the ball well and was more aggressive. I'm happy with how I played, I'm feeling great."

"It could give me more motivation in the future," Kuznetsova added. "I just want to rest and get ready for the Open."

Prajnesh advances in Winston Salem Open

PTI ■ NORTH CAROLINA

India's top singles player Prajnesh Gunneswaran advanced to the second round of the Winston Salem Open ATP 250 tournament with a straight set win over Cedrik-Marcel Stebe here.

Prajnesh, ranked 89th in the world, beat his German rival 6-3, 6-4 in a match that lasted one hour and 13 minutes on Sunday night.

The Indian utilised two of the five breakpoints he earned while holding his serve throughout the match.

He will next face top seed Benoit Paire of France, who received a first round bye. Paire is ranked 30 in the world.

The Indian will fancy his chances in the next round as earlier this year, Prajnesh had stunned Paire at the Indian Wells ATP Masters event for one of the biggest wins of his career. In the doubles event, the Indian pair of Divij Sharan and Rohan Bopanna crashed out in the first round.

The Indian duo lost to American pair of Nicholas Monroe and Tennyson Sandgren 3-6, 3-6.

Meanwhile, wild card entrants Leander Paes and his Israeli partner Jonathan Erlich, will take on the duo of Rajeev Ram and Joe Salisbury in the opening round.

Medvedev in top five

AFP ■ CINCINNATI

Daniil Medvedev, coming off back-to-back ATP finals defeats, held off David Goffin 7-6 (7/3), 6-4 on Sunday to win the ATP Cincinnati Masters.

The ninth-seeded Russian finished with an ace after saving break points in the final game, lifting a first Masters 1000 trophy after setting for runner-up finishes to Nick Kyrgios in Washington and Rafael Nadal in Montreal last weekend.

"These have been the best three weeks of my life," Medvedev said. "My mentality was the best, my serve was the best, my tennis has been really consistent."

"I didn't have one bad match, I hope to continue this way for next few weeks."

After his full-on post-Wimbledon schedule, the winner admitted: "I'm so exhausted, I almost can't talk now."

Medvedev, who only recently gained the ATP Top 10, now will find himself ranked fifth as a result of his three-week run of form.

"I don't check the rankings every two minutes, but I do look after I do well at a tournament," he said. "If I had lost I'd be seventh, now I'm fifth." Medvedev followed up his semi-final upset of defending champion Novak Djokovic as he controlled feisty Belgian Goffin to win an ATP leading 31st hardcourt match.

He has the most match wins on any surface this year with 43.

Spanish superstar Nadal, who did not play this week — is second with 41, followed by Roger Federer on 39.

Medvedev stamped himself a contender for the US Open, the final Grand Slam of the season that starts in Flushing Meadows in a week.

Goffin was competing in his second final of 2019 after losing to Federer in Halle.

"Congratulations to your team," he told Medvedev. "Once again, an unbelievable week for you, fantastic."

"I think you are ready for New York."

HADDIN JOINS SRH AS ASST COACH

ZURICH: Indian Premier League (IPL) side Sunrisers Hyderabad (SRH) on Monday announced former Australian vice captain and wicketkeeper Brad Haddin as their assistant coach. The former IPL champions made the announcement via their social media handles. Haddin thus joins Trevor Bayliss in the SRH backroom staff. Bayliss was named the SRH head coach in July, replacing Tom Moody in the role. Haddin replaces Simon Helmot, who was assistant to Moody. Bayliss has previously led Kolkata Knight Riders to two IPL titles between 2012 and 2015, while Haddin was with KKR as a player in 2011. Haddin has prior coaching experience with Australia, having been appointed fielding coach of the side in 2017 after coaching Australia A that year.

33 PROBABLES ANNOUNCED FOR CAMP

NEW DELHI: Hockey India on Monday named the 33 core probables' list for the upcoming junior women's national coaching camp which will focus on preparing the team for a tri-nation tournament involving Australia and New Zealand to be held Down Under later this year. The probables will undergo a training and conditioning camp till September 14 under the supervision of coach Baljit Singh Saini. "We have called up all the core probables for the national camp keeping an eye on the three-nation tournament that is scheduled for the end of this year," Saini said. "We will be focused on making sure that the players keep their fitness levels high, and are in the rhythm of playing intense hockey at the highest level. We will also have the chance to identify the key areas where we need to work on, and we have enough time together to make sure that we work on those areas before the tournament in Australia later this year," he added.

DANNI WYATT SCRIPTS WCSL HISTORY

LONDON: Danni Wyatt has scripted history as she became the first ever English player to score a ton in the Women's Cricket Super League (WCSL). Playing for Southern Vipers, Wyatt scored 110 off 60 balls. Meanwhile, her score is the second-highest of all time in the competition, after Suzie Bates' 119 in 2017. "It was a tricky wicket," Wyatt was quoted as saying after the game. "Me and Suzie [Bates] struggled a bit in the first few overs. It was one of those wickets where you have to just back yourself and slog it really. I came off the pitch thinking, 'Wow, how did I manage that?' "Once I was in, I wasn't thinking and just wanted to hit boundaries. Anything up there and full I tried to get my hands through. I've not hit a 100 for about 15 months so it's nice to get another one!" she added.

DANI ALVES SCORES WINNER ON DEBUT

SAO PAULO: Brazil veteran Dani Alves scored the winning goal on his debut for Sao Paulo on Sunday, weeks after signing a three-year deal with the club. Alves, 36, found the back of the net in the 40th minute to score the only goal of the game against Ceara. Alves and Spanish international Juanfran, 34, are the stars for Sao Paulo, who snapped up both players after their contracts with European clubs expired. Alves' return to Brazil after 17 years playing for top clubs in Europe has had a big impact on his home country.

RAIN SPOILS DULEEP TROPHY OPENER

BENGALURU: Heavy overnight rain washed out the entire third day's play in the Duleep Trophy opener between India Blue and India Green here on Monday. The rain resulted in a wet outfield and the conditions didn't improve through the day, forcing the officials to call off play without a ball being bowled for the second straight day. The second day's proceedings on Sunday had been washed out due to wet ground conditions. With only 49 overs having been bowled so far and no innings completed, the match is headed for a stalemate. India Green had reduced India Blue to 112 for 6 in 49 overs on a truncated opening day on Saturday.

Trippier, Felix star on debut

AFP ■ MADRID

Atavous Kieran Trippier cross to ensure a new-look Atletico Madrid beat Getafe 1-0 on Sunday and made a winning start in La Liga. Trippier looked right at home at the Wanda Metropolitano when his bending ball was nodded in by Morata before two red cards in four minutes, one for each team, made it 10 against 10 before half-time.

Getafe striker Jorge Molina and Atletico left-back Renan Lodi were the players sent off and then Morata missed a penalty, earned after a mesmerizing run from Joao Felix, Atletico's 126 million euro signing from Benfica.

It was enough for Felix to depart to a standing ovation and Atletico held on, even if this was perhaps not the statement opening to the season that Diego Simeone might have hoped for.

Getafe were stubborn opponents, showing again why they finished fifth last season, only narrowly missing out on a place in the Champions League to Valencia on the final day.

Felix aside, Atletico's other debutants impressed, including Lodi, before he was sent off, and Trippier, the first Englishman to play for Atletico since the Spanish Civil War and 20th in the history of the Spanish top flight.

The former Tottenham defender's pin-point cross was the highlight of a confident performance that earned regular praise from the home fans.

First, referee Cuadra Fernandez turned a yellow card into a red for Molina after consulting VAR, the striker catching Thomas Partey late down the back of his heel. Then Lodi was handed a second yellow for planting his hand in the face of Damian Suarez.

Kandola shines in Steelers win

PTI ■ CHENNAI

Star raider Vikas Kandola did the star turn as Haryana Steelers beat U Mumba 30-27 for an important win in a Pro Kabaddi League match at the Jawaharlal Nehru Indoor Stadium here on Monday.

The closely fought contest saw the Mumbai side match the Steelers till the very end, but Kandolas nine-point game and some uncharacteristic errors from the U Mumba defence handed Haryana victory.

Both sides went into the match with identical records (four wins and four losses in eight matches), but Haryana Steelers started aggressively, with coach Rakesh Kumar recognising the lack of raiding quality in U Mumba's ranks.

The defence kept a high line, strangling U Mumba's opportunities to pick up Bonus Points, thereby forcing them to make mistakes while Vikas Kandola picked up the points with his raids in the three-point Super

Coutinho joins Bayern on loan

AFP ■ MADRID

Barcelona's Philippe Coutinho has joined Bayern Munich on a one-year loan worth 8.5 million euros ($9.5 million) with an option to buy, the Spanish club confirmed on Monday.

"The agreement provides for an option for Bayern to buy at a 120-million-euro fee," Barcelona said.

The 27-year-old Brazilian joined Barcelona from Liverpool in January 2018 for an initial 120 million euros in a deal that included another 40 million euros in potential add-ons.

But the midfielder's stint at Barcelona never worked out as hoped despite huge excitement around his arrival at the Camp Nou.

Initially tried in midfield where he plays for Brazil, Coutinho was pushed into the front three by Ernesto Valverde last season but the switch never paid off.

"For me, this move means a new challenge in a new country with one of the best clubs in Europe," Coutinho said on Bayern's website.

"I'm very much looking forward to that. Like FC Bayern, I have big ambitions and I'm convinced that I can achieve them together with my new teammates."

The German club hope he will provide reinforcement in attack following the departure of veteran duo Arjen Robben and Franck Ribery at the end of last season. "With his creativity and outstanding skills, Philippe is a player who will immediately strengthen our attack," Bayern CEO Karl-Heinz Rummenigge said.
