PC in CBI custody till Aug 26

Considering facts, Chidambaram's police remand justified, says court

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Former Finance and Home Minister P Chidambaram will spend at least four days in the CBI custody. A Delhi court on Thursday allowed the CBI plea for custodial interrogation of Chidambaram in the INX Media corruption case till August 26. The agency had sought a five-day remand to unearth the larger conspiracy in the case.

Special Judge Ajay Kumar Kuhar asked the CBI to conduct medical examination on Chidambaram as per the rules. The court also allowed the family members and lawyers of Chidambaram to meet him for half an hour every day during his CBI custody.

"Considering the facts and circumstances, I am of the view that police custody is justified," said the judge and remanded him in CBI's custody till August 26.

Even if Chidambaram's CBI custody ends on August 26, it will not be the end of his woes. The court could either deny him regular bail and send him to judicial custody, or the Enforcement Directorate could seek his custodial interrogation.

Senior Congress leader and former Finance Minister P Chidambaram after he was produced in a Delhi court in the INX Media case in New Delhi on Thursday

In both the cases, it will be a while before Chidambaram could earn his freedom.

The CBI sources said custodial interrogation was required as the agency gathered inputs indicating prima facie involvement of Chidambaram in other approvals by Foreign Investment Promotion Board (FIPB) in which the former Finance Minister had allegedly received bribes through his son Karti's firms. A number of Letters Rogatory (judicial requests) is pending in certain countries, CBI sources said. Chidambaram's advocates opposed the CBI plea on the ground that all the other accused, including his son Karti, have already been granted bail in the case.

Senior advocate Kapil Sibal, appearing for Chidambaram, argued that the first arrest in the case was of Bhaskar Raman, chartered accountant of Karti, who is presently out on bail. Besides that, Peter and Indrani Mukherjea, also accused in the case, are out on default bail as they are in jail in connection with another matter, Sibal said.

Contending that grant of bail was a rule, he asserted that the issue before the court was of personal liberty. He also contested the demand for five-day custodial interrogation of Chidambaram.

Solicitor General (SG) Tushar Mehta, representing the CBI, told the court that the agency was not extorting confession but it has the right to reach the root of the case.

Besides Sibal, senior advocate Abhishek M Singhvi appeared for Chidambaram and opposed CBI's plea saying that the former Union Minister was not a flight risk. Singhvi said that the entire CBI case was based on the statement of Indrani Mukherjea, who has turned approver in the case.

Chidambaram cannot answer what the CBI wants to hear and added that the agency cannot seek remand on the ground of evasive replies. There was no allegation of tampering of evidence by the CBI, Singhvi asserted.

Singhvi contended that police remand can only be granted in special circumstances and this was a case where there was no new development. He said the agency was asking Chidambaram only old questions since his arrest on Wednesday night.

100 battle-hardened Afghan, Pashtun fighters waiting in wings to infiltrate

RAHUL DUTTA ■ NEW DELHI

In a desperate move to stoke violence in Jammu & Kashmir after the abrogation of its special status under Article 370 and to internationalise the issue, Pakistan has started recruiting battle-hardened Afghan and Pashtun fighters to create trouble in the State.

Nearly 100 of these fighters are now perched at launch pads to infiltrate into the State. At the same time, there is fear that terrorists might plan "spectacular strikes" within Kashmir and other major Indian cities.

Besides this hard intelligence input, reports also indicate that Jaish-e-Mohammad (JeM) has deployed a team of at least 12 terrorists to undertake cross-border raids and target security forces on the Line of Control (LoC).

A boy jumps off a boat in Dal Lake, covered with weeds for being unattended for days due to restrictions, in Srinagar on Thursday Pakistan's Border Action Team (BAT), Afghan militants and highly trained Special Services Group (SSG) of the Pakistan Army may specially target Lipa Valley in North Kashmir.

Giving details of these latest developments across the border after the revocation of Article 370 nearly three weeks back, officials in the security establishment said on Thursday the JeM also held a meeting presided over by Rauf Asghar, brother of JeM chief Masood Azhar, in Bahawalpur on August 19 to draw the strategy to engineer terrorist attacks.

The meeting was also attended by launch commanders of JeM. They oversee infiltration of terrorists after the Pakistan Army gives them cover fire.

As regards to using Afghan fighters hailing from North-West Frontier Province (NWFP), officials said the ISI and the Pakistan Army resorted to it due to depleting strength of local Kashmiri terrorists.

Punjab, Hry, Chd to form two joint panels to check liquor smuggling

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

The State Governments of Punjab, Haryana and the Chandigarh Administration on Thursday decided to constitute two joint committees to deal with the menace of inter-state smuggling of liquor.

Apart from the senior officers of Chandigarh Administration, the meeting was attended by Punjab Additional Chief Secretary MP Singh, Haryana ACS Sanjeev Kaulshar among others.

A senior UT officer said that it has been decided to harmonise the excise duty structure in the two States and their joint capital, Chandigarh.

"It was felt that there is a need to harmonise the excise duty structure and rationalise the price difference among all the States and UT and all the relevant issues will be taken care of at the time of framing the excise policy for the coming year," the officer said.

The inter-state committee has decided that there will be two joint action committees one at the level of AETCs and second at the level of senior officers of the states and UT. The AETCs of States and UT, district in-charges of excise (Chandigarh, Panchkula and Mohali) will meet once in every month and work together to stop smuggling of liquor by sharing of information. Apart from this, the joint action committee at senior officers' level will meet on quarterly basis to deliberate upon the issue, the UT officer said.

It has also been decided that the enforcement agencies of the states and UT will be strengthened to plug the smuggling of liquor.

5 workers suffocate in Gzb sewer

STAFF REPORTER ■ GHAZIABAD

In yet another case of criminal apathy, five sanitation workers who had entered into a sewer died after inhaling toxic gas in Nandgram locality on Thursday. The police have registered a case of negligence causing death and launched an investigation to fix responsibility. Authorities have been asked to submit a report within 15 days.

Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath, while expressing condolence over the death of the workers, announced a compensation of ₹5 lakh to the kin of the deceased who were identified as Damodar (40), Horil (35), Sandip (30), Shiv Kumar (32) and Vijay Kumar (40), all residents of Samastipur in Bihar.

They were working at a project, sanctioned by the Ghaziabad Municipal Corporation, to connect domestic sewer lines with the main drainage system of the city, District Magistrate Ajay Shankar Pandey said.

They were employed by a private contractor, which was carrying out the project under

Around 1 pm, one of the men went inside the sewer line but did not come out. Then one by one the other four men went inside to find the rest. When none of them came out, another man went inside and saw the five men lying in an unconscious state, the official said. The contractor did not provide safety kits to the workers, the DM added.

The men were rushed to nearby Mariam Hospital, where doctors declared them brought dead, the DM said. "Bodies of sanitation workers were taken to hospital with help of locals. A worker went unconscious after inhaling poisonous gas, after which other sanitation workers jumped to save him, however, they also lost their lives in rescue attempt," said a local resident of the area.

A case has been lodged against the contractor, EMS Infracon, and three of its engineers after the civic body filed a police complaint alleging negligence.

Trump wants India to fight terrorism in Afghanistan

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

Countries like India, Iran, Russia and Turkey would have to fight against terrorists in Afghanistan at some point of time, President Donald Trump has said, ruing that the job against the extremists is being done only by the United States some 7,000 miles away. "Look, India is right there. They are not fighting it. We are fighting it. Pakistan is right next door. They are fighting it very little. Very, very little. It's not fair. The United States is 7,000 miles away," Trump said.

The US President said on Wednesday that other nations currently are making very less efforts against the terrorists in Afghanistan. "At a certain point Russia, Afghanistan,

Iran, Iraq, Turkey they are going to have to fight their battles too. We wiped out the caliphate 100 per cent. I did it in record time but at a certain point all of these other countries where ISIS is around they have been decimated by the way, badly decimated," Trump told reporters at the White House while responding to a question on the reemergence of ISIS in Afghanistan.

"All of these countries are going to have to fight them because do we want to stay there for another 19 years? I don't think so. So, at a certain point other countries and that includes Russia and it includes Iran and Turkey and Iraq and Afghanistan and Pakistan and India," he said.

Delhi Assembly resolution pledges to rebuild Ravidas temple at the same spot

DAYATHRI MANI/SAPNA SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

A day after Dalits organised a rally to protest the demolition of Sant Ravidas temple in Tughlakabad by the Delhi Development Authority on the Supreme Court order, the Delhi Assembly on Thursday passed a resolution to reconstruct the temple at the "same spot" and demanded that the Central Government to bring an ordinance to transfer the land right for Sant Ravidas temple.

The Assembly demanded that the Centre should file a review petition before the Supreme Court. The resolution moved by Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal stated, "The site was donated by the Afgan monarch Sikander Lodhi to Sant Ravidas, who is widely worshipped by the Dalit and other communities. This is a historically significant site which for some time and forms a part of Dalit struggle for identity and rights. Demolishing this temple not only crushes the religious sentiments but also the history of Dalit struggle."

Cong, TMC, DMK RJD hold protest in national Capital

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Opposition parties, including the Congress, the TMC, the DMK, the RJD, the Samajwadi Party and the National Conference staged a protest in the national Capital on Thursday seeking immediate release of political leaders put under detention in Jammu & Kashmir after the abrogation of Article 370.

Congress leader Ghulam Nabi Azad, CPI(M) general secretary Sitaram Yechury, CPI general secretary D Raja, SP leader Ramgopal Yadav, Loktantrik Janata Dal's Sharad Yadav, RJD's Manoj Jha and TMC's Dinesh Trivedi were among those who took part in the protest. the opportunity to join the protest after his father was arrested by CBI on Wednesday night in connection with a money-laundering case.

Addressing the protest,

Azad said, "There is something grave happening in the State and the Government is hiding it from us. He also slammed the role of the country's media, saying, "It is being reported by foreign media but not our media." Blaming the Modi Government for perpetrating excesses on the people of the State, Azad evoked the memory of former Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee, saying he was a thorough gentleman, a great parliamentarian and a democrat. "If Vajpayee was at the helm of affairs, this would not have happened," he added. Yechury alleged that the Centre had manipulated the Constitution and the process had started months ago when the ruling BJP withdrew from the coalition Government, headed by Mehbooba Mufti, in Jammu & Kashmir. "All this is a part of a larger conspiracy. They want to make India a 'Hindu Rashtra' (Hindu nation) by abrogating the Constitution itself," he said. In a resolution passed during the protest, the Opposition parties said as a consequence of abrogation of Article 370 without holding consultations with the people of Jammu & Kashmir or their representatives, an undeclared state of Emergency had come to force in the Valley.

Cong walks out from HP Assembly over PC's arrest

PNS ■ SHIMLA

The opposition Congress on Thursday walked out from the Himachal Pradesh Assembly, protesting the arrest of former finance minister P Chidambaram.

Congress MLAs led by Leader of Opposition Mukesh Agnihotri raised slogans before staging the walkout.

Agnihotri rose from his seat soon after the Question Hour at noon and stated that Chidambaram's arrest was a "murder of democracy".

However, Speaker Rajiv Bindal stopped him from raising the issue, stating no notice for discussion was given.

Soon after Congress MLAs started raising slogans "Modi Sarkar Murdabad". Countering them, BJP MLAs raised slogans like "Chor Machaye Shor".

Subsequently Congress MLAs staged a walkout from the House.

Condemning the walkout by the Congress, Chief Minister Jai Ram Thakur said the Centre had nothing to do with Chidambaram's arrest and that he had been arrested after rejection of his bail plea by the high court. The Congress walk-out over the issue amounts to raising questions on the judiciary, he added.

As per the data provided by Thakur in the state Assembly, 1.25 lakh foreign tourists visited the state in the tourist season from April to June last year. The number is over ten per cent less as compared to foreigners visiting Himachal Pradesh in the three months in 2016 and 2017.

In reply to a question by Congress MLA Sunder Singh Thakur, the chief minister said 1.42 lakh and 1.36 lakh foreign tourists had visited the state from April to June in 2017 and 2016 respectively. Similarly, the number of domestic tourists also saw a dip. Only 52.89 lakh domestic tourists visited Himachal Pradesh from April to June in 2018, which is much less as compared to 59.38 lakh and 55.20 lakh who had visited the state during the same period in 2017 and 2016 respectively.

Punjab to canalise its rivers

World Bank, Asian Development Bank support Govt in canalisation of all rivers

PNS ■ SULTANPUR LODHI/JALANDHAR

Punjab Government will soon canalise all the rivers of the state with the technical support from the World Bank (WB) and Asian Development Bank (ADB). The announcement was made by the Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh after reviewing the ground situation in the flood-hit villages for the second time this week.

Capt Amarinder, going around the Sarupwal in Sultanpur Lodhi sub-Tehsil where the overflowing river Sutlej led to a breach in Dhusi bund, affecting 62 villages, also promised due compensation to the affected farmers as soon as the water recedes and special girdawari is completed.

Chief Minister, talking to the media after an aerial survey to assess the damage caused by flooding in Sultanpur Lodhi (Kapurthala) and Jalandhar areas, announced a project to realign river streams and courses, besides strengthening and widening of the river embankments for a permanent solution to the problem of floods.

He also announced dedicated village-relief teams in the affected areas. "Each team would comprise officers of Health, Civil Supply and Animal Husbandry departments, and would ensure regular and timely supply of food, medicines and fodder for all affected families," he said.

The Chief Minister, who earlier on his way to Kapurthala conducted an aerial survey of flood affected areas of Nawanshahr and Ludhiana, told mediapersons in Gidderpindi in Jalandhar district that even if the Central Government fails to extend support, the State would ensure full support to every person affected by the flooding.

Notably, the Chief Minister had written to the Prime Minister a day before, seeking a special flood relief package of Rs 1000 crore for the state.

Capt Amarinder inspected the breach site in Gidderpindi, resulting from release of excess water from Bhakra dam. For the first time, Bhakra, which normally gets filled to its permissible storage level of 1680 feet by September, was overflowing in August, for the first ever time, said the Chief Minister.

Meanwhile, the Chief Minister also directed Chief Engineer Drainage, Sanjiv Gupta, not to leave Lohian until the work of plugging the breaches in Shahkot Sub-Division is completed. The Chief Minister also ordered that the transfer of Superintendent Engineer of Drainage Circle, TP Singh. He would be replaced by Manjit Singh.

Capt Amarinder, who is constantly monitoring the flood situation, further ordered the Drainage Department to immediately identify potential breach points and plug those on priority, engaging the Army, NDRF or SDRF, if required.

Capt Amarinder, who had on Monday visited villages of Ropar district, also directed the Deputy Commissioners to keep tight vigil over the situation and maintain close liaison with the Army authorities and immediately apprise them of the nature and quantum of assistance required.

He also asked Commissioner, Jalandhar Division, B Purusartha to coordinate the relief works in Jalandhar and Kapurthala districts.

Punjab Health Minister rubbishes charge of SAD on Sarbat Sehat Bima Yojna

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

A day after SAD dubbed Punjab Government's Sarbat Sehat Bima Yojna as "the biggest fraud", Punjab Health and Family Welfare Minister Balbir Singh Sidhu on Thursday termed the allegations as "baseless and depicting SAD's frustration".

At the same time, he said that the State Government covered Punjab's 76 per cent population under the scheme to facilitate 1396 health packages which makes Punjab one of the leading State in terms of population covered under this scheme.

It was also decided to reserve only 124 treatment services in Government Health Institutes out of 1396 health packages entailed under the Universal Health Insurance Scheme, he added.

"On one hand, the initiative can elevate the income of Government Hospitals, on the other hand, it would ensure that the patient does not suffer inconvenience in case of emergency, referral would be allowed by Government hospital to the empanelled Private hospital. In case, if the treatment is not available with the Government hospital within the District, the patient can be referred to any empanelled Private hospital," Sidhu clarified.

Sidhu said that at first glance, SAD's statement shows that they are advocating expen-

It was also decided to reserve only 124 treatment services in Government Health Institutes out of 1,396 health packages entailed under the Universal Health Insurance Scheme adding that this path is taken by most of the neighbouring States as well as southern states of the country that have their successful healthcare insurance programs.

For instance, in Haryana around 146 healthcare procedures are reserved, in Tamil Nadu 681 procedures, in Maharashtra 460 procedures, Madhya Pradesh 472 procedures, Kerala 235, Gujarat 200 procedures and in Karnataka 443 procedures are reserved in the Government hospitals, he said.

Sidhu maintained that the government civil hospitals have the required doctors and infrastructure to provide treatment of those packages that have been reserved.

"The packages reserved are those packages that have higher rate of abuse amongst the insurance scheme. The higher tertiary care surgeries such as all heart surgeries, burn treatment, cancer treatment, any other complicated or higher-end surgeries, dialysis, etc all are open in both private and public hospitals," he added.

Replying the another issue raised by SAD, he said that not only 250 listed government hospitals, but all government hospitals in the state are being strengthened at all costs by the State Government so as to ensure the health facilities on the door steps of citizens residing in rural and remote areas.

Haryana Police to launch crackdown on wanted criminals

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

To ensure smooth conduct of forthcoming Vidhan Sabha elections, Haryana Police on Thursday said it will launch a crackdown on wanted criminals and notorious elements in the state.

"Police will launch a one-and-half month long special drive beginning from August 26 to arrest criminals and to unearth illicit arms/liquor/narcotic substances throughout the State, Additional Director General of Police (Law and Order) Navdeep Singh Virk said. He said that absconding criminals could be one of the biggest challenges for the Police in conducting free and fair elections. The special drive which commence on August 26 would continue upto October 10. DGP Manoj Yadava would personally monitor the progress of the campaign, added Virk.

The special drive would focus on arrest of proclaimed offenders, bail jumpers, parole or furlough jumpers, most-wanted criminals, convicts who have not surrendered after rejection of their appeals by different courts, bad characters, unearthing of illicit arms, seizure of illicit liquor and narcotics substances and execution of non bailable warrants.

Centre ignores flood-ravaged Punjab

MONIKA MALIK ■ CHANDIGARH

Even as Punjab has pegged its initial losses at Rs 1,700 crore due to recent incessant rains and demanded Rs 1,000 crore special package from the Centre, the BJP-led Central Government has virtually ignored this border state while initiating steps to assist the flood-hit states.

The Union Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) has decided to immediately constitute and depute the Inter-Ministerial Central Teams (IMCTs) to Assam, Meghalaya, Tripura, Bihar, Uttarakhand, Himachal Pradesh, Gujarat, Rajasthan, Maharashtra, Karnataka, and Kerala affected by recent floods, while keeping Punjab out of the same.

The decision was taken during the meeting, chaired by the Union Home Minister Amit Shah, on Wednesday — only a day after the Centre had ordered to send the rescue and relief assistance to Punjab along with the rest of the flood-hit states.

Notably, the State Government had estimated the initial loss by the floods in some parts of state at Rs 1,700 crore, including an estimated crop loss of Rs 750 crore.

The Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh on Thursday made it clear that the State Government would ensure full support to every person affected by the flooding even if the Central Government fails to extend support.

It has been learnt that the directions have been issued to the officials concerned to prepare a memorandum for receiving special packages from the Central Government.

According to the official report, as many as 326 villages across the state were affected by the floods, and 1.20 lakh acre has been inundated.

Even as the State Government is yet to order the girdwari (crop assessment), which would be conducted after the water level recedes, the preliminary crop loss has been estimated at Rs 750 crore. Approximately, about 1,000 acres of agriculture land has been affected by the floods in about 150 villages.

Besides, the Government has attributed Rs 200 crore loss to the rural infrastructure including damage to the schools, dispensaries, veterinary dispensaries, streets and drains at Rs 200 crore, Rs 150 crore to repair irrigation infrastructure, Rs 150 crore for repairing the damaged village link roads, Rs 100 crore each for repairing the damages to the highways and bridges, along with municipal and civic infrastructure and power infrastructure.

Preliminary loss to private electric tubewells, diesel pump sets, besides rural water supply has been estimated to be Rs 50 crore each, besides Rs 50 crore to other expenditure.

Already, the Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh had announced Rs 100 crore for emergency relief and rehabilitation measures.

In addition, he has written to the Prime Minister Narendra Modi to provide the state a special package of Rs 1000 crore to address the losses resulting from the flooding.

Declaring the rains as "unprecedented", the Chief Minister had already declared the prevailing flood situation in the affected villages of the state as a "natural calamity". Capt Amarinder had noted that a large number of crops have been destroyed in more than 100 villages especially in Ropar, Ludhiana, Jalandhar and Kapurthala districts, due to heavy rains leading to overflowing of Sutlej river.

During the high-level meeting on Wednesday, the Union Home Minister Shah had decided that the IMCT will, from now on, be constituted immediately in the aftermath of any natural calamity of severe nature, which will visit the affected areas in the state so as to have first-hand assessment of damages caused and relief work carried out by the state administration.

The IMCT will again visit the state after submission of the memorandum for a detailed assessment of the damage and relief operations conducted for making final recommendations for allocation of additional funds. As of now, the IMCT visits the affected state only once after the receipt of a memorandum from the state.

DICCI steps in Punjab, Employment Minister assures support to Dalits

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Realizing the importance of being an entrepreneur to strengthen the national economy, rather than adamant for reservation, the one of its own chamber special — Dalit Indian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (DICCI) opened its Punjab Chapter on Thursday.

Punjab's Technical Education and Industrial Training, Employment Generation and Training, Tourism and Cultural Affairs Minister Charanjit Singh Channi formally launched the chapter in the presence of hundreds of DICCI delegates across the country.

DICCI is aimed at motivating the Dalit youth to enter the business and industry sector as entrepreneurs or start-ups and to carve their own niche for their contribution to the nation's economy through wealth creation and to spread the spirit of enterprise to other fellow members.

Channi applauded the efforts of chamber for uplifting the 'ignorant' class by encouraging the entrepreneurship within the community.

"Government cannot fulfil each household with government jobs. But, it can encourage entrepreneurship and start-ups to make each one self-reliant. Forums like DICCI can play its vital role for the overall development of the state," said Channi.

DICCI founder president Padamshree Milind Kamble said that Punjab constitute maximum percentile of dalit population in the country which is close to 35 percent and will be massively benefited from the chamber.

"DICCI's role is to bring all Dalit entrepreneurs under one umbrella and make it a one-stop Resource Center for existing and aspiring Dalit entrepreneurs and also to promote entrepreneurship amongst Dalits as a solution to their socio-economic problems," he said.

Rajesh Kumar unanimously appointed as the DICCI's Punjab chapter president who lauded the realization of business leaders for the social and national growth. DICCI's Punjab Chapter will soon roll out the mentoring session for youth and start up in various parts of state.

the All India Council of Technical Education.

The Technical Education Minister expressed strong hope that the Union Government would okay the proposal keeping in mind the future of the students.

Channi, during the meeting, said that three to six months training is necessary for the students of the technical education institutes to be prepared for the jobs in keeping with the demands of the emerging trends in the industrial sector.

The issue of students being imparted with just one month practical training was also discussed in a very minute manner.

Chandigarh Admn set to promote car pooling

NISHU MAHAJAN ■ CHANDIGARH

With the vehicle density increasing at a much faster pace in the city, the Chandigarh Administration will soon come up with a legal framework to promote carpooling here.

The UT Transport Department is chalking out a carpooling policy after studying the laws on car sharing in Singapore and other countries.

"We have planned to come up with a carpooling policy for the union territory of Chandigarh. Shared mobility offers the ideal option to deal with the congestion in the city besides being environmentally conscious and also, socially relevant," said a senior officer of the UT Administration while talking to The Pioneer.

He said, "The Administration is studying the Singapore laws and various other models on car sharing or carpooling. Some other cities across the world also have in place regulations regarding car sharing."

"At present, none of the state or city in India has laws related to the carpool. The monetary benefit for carpooling under certain rules and regulations is expected to give boost to this concept in the city," he added.

Singapore laws allow drivers to receive payments for carpools but the drivers cannot offer more than two rides per day.

The senior bureaucrat further said that the UT Administration is focusing on reducing the number of private vehicles on the road and allowing commercial ride sharing by private car owners is one of the solutions for this.

"We have also planned to come up with a mobile app to promote carpooling. The app is proposed to connect private-car drivers and passengers so they can carpool," he said.

At present, the commuters are availing the app-based cab services Ola and Uber in the city.

Notably, the planned city of Chandigarh, which came into existence over five decades back, today faces a challenge to deal with the burgeoning vehicular population that has a widespread impact on health and even, quality of life.

Chandigarh has over 2 vehicle per capita household, making it the city with highest density of vehicles in the country, stated a UT Administration's report while adding that the vehicle emissions have become the major reason of pollution here. The percentage increase in the total number of vehicles in Chandigarh for more than over a decade (2007-2018) has been over 24.5.

As per the records of UT Registering and Licensing Authority Department, a total of 16756 cars or jeeps and more than 27473 two wheelers were registered within the city last year.

Currently, the Chandigarh Transport Department is also conducting a study on road capacity and potential of the city. Road capacity refers to the maximum traffic flow obtainable on a given roadway using all available lanes and is usually expressed in vehicles per hour or vehicles per day. Road capacity values are critical to analyze the capacity potential of roads in a city.

We have worked with honesty: Hry CM

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Haryana Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar on Thursday inaugurated and laid foundation stone of 20 development projects costing about Rs 109 crore in Karnal district during his 'Jan Ashirwad Yatra'.

He inaugurated 10 development projects and laid foundation stone of equal number of projects of the district.

During his yatra, Khattar said that development works to the tune of Rs. 1,300 crore have been carried out in Indri assembly constituency, during the last five years.

Khattar said that when the present government was formed in the state, then opposition party had said that this government is inexperienced and would last only few months. But in the last five years, our government has worked with honesty and transparency and laid emphasis on equitable development of all the regions of the state and have worked to serve the people round the clock. He said that for the purpose of development works, the state government has given crores of rupees to every panchayat in the state.

Demonising PM not going to help: Jairam

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

At a time when the Congress is speaking with a forked tongue on the Government's move to abrogate the special status to Jammu & Kashmir under Article 370, there came a new one on Thursday as senior leader and former Union Minister Jairam Ramesh sought his party to introspect and see reason why Prime Minister Narendra Modi's governance model was not a "complete negative story".

Not recognising his work and demonising him all the time is not going to help, said Ramesh adding it is time we recognise Modi's work and what he did between 2014 and 2019 due to which he was voted back to power by over "30 per cent of the electorate".

Crisis-hit Congress, which remained headless for two and a half months following its president Rahul Gandhi's resignation owing up for the party's Lok Sabha debacle, has been speaking in different voices on the issue of Article 370 with its young turks backing the Modi Government's move. In the Lok Sabha elections, the Congress had run a very personalized campaign against Modi and sought to demolish his model of administration and governance.

Senior Congress leader Ghulam Nabi Azad, CPI(M) general secretary Sitaram Yechury, Polit Bureau member Brinda Karat, CPI leader D Raja, RJD MP Manoj Jha and others during Opposition parties protest, demanding the release of leaders detained in J&K, at Jantar Mantar in New Delhi on Thursday

"We talked about farmers' distress throughout our entire campaign, people realise there was farmers' distress but they did not hold Modi responsible for it. You saw what happened in the elections result thereafter. We have to understand what made him respectable," he said.

The BJP got 37.4 per cent of votes in the 2019 Lok Sabha elections and the NDA, as a whole, secured nearly 45 per cent of votes.

"Let me tell you it is not a completely negative story when it comes to economics of the governance, the politics of the governance is completely different," he said, adding "the social relations that have been created out of his governance model is also completely different".

To prove his point, Ramesh gave the example of the Pradhan Mantri Ujjwala Yojana (PMUJ) and how successful it turned out for Modi. "In 2019, all of us in the political discourse made fun of one or two of his programmes, but it has turned out in all electoral studies that the PMUJ is one single program which has been able to connect him with crores and crores of women and given him the political traction which he didn't have in 2014," he pointed out.

"Now if we are going to run this down and say this is all hocus pocus and say these are wrong numbers, we are not going to confront this guy," he cautioned.

Ramesh made the remarks while launching a book,

"Malevolent Republic: A Short History of the New India" written by Kapil Satish Komireddi, a political analyst.

"He (Modi) talks in a language that connects him with the people. Unless we recognize that he is doing things which people recognise and which have not been done in the past, we are not going to be able to confront this guy," said the Congress leader.

"Also, if you are going to demonize him all the time, you are not going to be able to confront him," warned the former Union minister, who held the portfolios of Rural Development, and Drinking Water and Sanitation in the Manmohan Singh government.

Ramesh, however, sought to clarify that he is not asking anyone to praise or applaud the prime minister, but only wants the political class to at least recognise the traits he has brought to the governance -- particularly the "economics of governance".

Stating that something happened in the last decade, which catapulted Modi from a "non-entity in national politics" in the 2009 general elections to someone who won elections back to back, Ramesh said people of the country -- right or wrong -- are not relating "current distress to his presence".

Sonia: Unity can be maintained by celebrating India's diversity

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Congress president Sonia Gandhi on Thursday said that former Prime Minister late Rajiv Gandhi also got a massive poll mandate in 1984 but he did not use it to create an atmosphere of fear or to threaten people, in an indirect attack on the Modi Government.

Addressing an event marking Rajiv Gandhi's 75th birth anniversary, Sonia said that her husband gave the message that unity can be maintained by celebrating India's diversity.

Sonia said the former Prime Minister's 75th birth anniversary is not a ritual being marked by the Congress, but an occasion to reaffirm its resolve to uphold the values that inspired him. Rajiv Gandhi's birth anniversary is an occasion to resolve to stand up and confront forces determined to destroy the values that inspired him, she said in the presence of former PM Manmohan Singh, senior party leaders including Rahul Gandhi.

"Rajiv Gandhi never posed a threat to democracy, he never suppressed public opinion. His ethics and honesty always inspired him. The work done by the late PM is something that cannot be merely with slogans and pride rather it needs hard work and strong will," Sonia said.

Without naming any particular party or name, she said today there are those who are busy inventing a new past for us, Rajiv was engaged in inventing in preparing for a new future. "To him, the past has to be understood in all its complexities to build pride, not to stoke prejudice, to strengthen social harmony, not fuel antagonism and polarize our society, a society whose heritage has been enriched by multiple streams of faiths, beliefs and culture. He was proud of our past, but, at the same time he held a firm conviction that India has to be a modern Nation," said Sonia.

She recalled how a section accused him of being elitist but it was he who crafted the new education policy in 1986 through which he looked upon rural India especially children and got a chain of Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalyayas in every single district.

"His political adversaries accused him of being out of touch with reality with his fixation for computers. Yet it is this magnificent obsession with technology and modernity that has made millions of youth in our country ready to tackle the challenges of the digital era. I believe that his strategic reasons laid the foundations for prosperity of our country in the coming century," Sonia said.

On the occasion she also asserted that electoral ups and downs are inevitable and challenges facing the Congress are formidable, but it must continue with its ideological struggle against divisive forces. Sonia recently took over as the party's interim President following her son Rahul Gandhi stepping down as party chief owing the dismal performance in Lok Sabha this year.

United to protect corruption, Naqvi takes jibe at Cong

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The BJP on Thursday attacked the Congress for supporting P Chidambaram, arrested in the INX Media case, saying it has "united to protect corruption" and that a court's decision to send him to four-day CBI custody shows a "prima facie case of corruption".

Senior BJP leader and Union Minister Prakash Javadekar also rejected the Congress accusation that the action against the former finance minister is "political vendetta." "In fact, justice is happening," he said.

"The CBI court's decision to send him in remand makes it clear that it is a corruption case. There is a prime facie case and that is why the court has remanded him to the probe agency's custody. Therefore, the Congress accusation that it is political vendetta is wrong. In fact, justice is happening," Javadekar told PTI.

With top Congress leaders, including Rahul and Priyanka Gandhi, strongly defending Chidambaram and accusing the Union government of political vendetta, Javadekar hit back at the opposition party.

The Congress has united to protect corruption. It is synonymous with corruption. When in power, it looted the country left right and centre," he said, and described the INX Media case as a "scam of massive corruption".

He referred to several alleged scams, including those involving coal block allocations, 2G spectrum and the Commonwealth Games, to say the Congress' rule during 2004-14 was "synonymous with corruption. He also spoke of "Jeeja ji scam", an apparent reference to controversial land deals involving Congress leader Rahul Gandhi's brother-in-law Robert Vadra.

Rejecting the Congress' allegation that the government was behind the action of investigation agencies, he said the matter should be left to investigation agencies and courts.

Another BJP leader and Union Minister Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi said on Thursday that the opposition party was trying to convert corruption into revolution.

Govt to relax lease rent of wind power projects

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Union Environment Ministry has decided to do away with the mandatory charging of lease rent of ₹30,000 per MW from wind power projects, a move aimed to boost the sector as well as bring it at par with the solar and hydroelectric power projects to attract investments.

In a review meeting held here on Thursday, Union Environment Minister Prakash Javadekar said the move will boost the investment in wind power projects and will help in providing wind power at cheaper rate.

Currently, to establish wind power project over forest land, the existing procedure requires payment of mandatory charges for compensatory afforestation and Net Present value (NPV). In addition to mandatory charges, the wind power companies had to pay additional lease rent of 30,000 per MW.

"The Government envisages to meet maximum energy requirement by tapping renewable energy resources and, to achieve the target of clean energy in a time bound manner, various policies and regulations are being constantly updated," the Minister added.

This additional cost is not mandatory for other renewable energy projects such as solar power and hydel-electric projects. Additional cost for generation of clean energy through wind power, in turn escalate the per unit cost of power at consumer level, added a senior official from the Ministry.

The government has set an ambitious target of having 175 GW of clean energy capacity by 2022, including 100 GW solar and 60 GW of wind energy.

Also, "promotions of such projects also strengthen government's commitments towards international agreements, and one of the national commitments pledged in Paris in 2015 was to have 40 per cent of the power from renewable resources by 2030.

"It is noteworthy that currently India has over achieved the target and is well on track to ensure that more than 50 per cent of our installed capacity will come from renewable by 2030," said the official.

Hindus kept worshipping at disputed site in Ayodhya: Litigant to apex court

HE ALSO SAID THAT BABRI MASJID WAS BUILT AFTER DEMOLISHING RAM TEMPLE

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Babri Masjid was built after demolishing a Ram temple at the disputed site in Ayodhya and Hindus kept worshipping there without giving up its possession, a Hindu litigant Thursday told the Supreme Court, while seeking enforcement of right to worship there.

Devotee Gopal Singh Visarad, who filed the lawsuit in the lower court in 1950 seeking right to pray, died in 1986 and is now represented by his son Rajendra Singh.

The five judge Constitution bench headed by Chief Justice Ranjan Gogoi heard the arguments on the 10th day in the decades-old politically sensitive land dispute.

"The mosque was built after demolishing the Ram temple, and despite that Hindus continued worshipping there and did not give up possession...Moreover, Muslims were never in possession of the site," senior advocate Ranjit Kumar told the bench which also comprised Justices SA Bobde, DY Chandrachud, Ashok Bhushan and SA Nazeer.

"I am making my submissions with reference to Parasaran's and Vaidyanathan's submissions (both lawyers represented the deity) that the place is itself a divine site and that I being the worshipper, my right to worship, which is a civil right, should not be curtailed," he said.

Referring to records, the senior lawyer said magistrate Markandey Singh on December 29, 1949 had initiated proceedings to attach the disputed structure under the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC) following communal disturbances.

The magistrate had sought responses from Hindu and Muslim parties in support of their claim and counter claim over the property.

Twenty affidavits were filed in 1950 by persons from both sides before the magistrate and they are also part of the judicial records of the Allahabad High Court.

"Filing affidavits, per se, is not enough to prove them. The deponents will have to appear to prove them... No court can say that the facts of these affidavits are proved," the bench said.

These affidavits were filed in 1950 and the trial on lawsuits took place "much much later", the lawyer said.

The high court did not accept the affidavits saying that the deponents were not available for cross examination, he said, adding that they are part of the judicial records and be accepted by the apex court as the magistrate had verified the statements and identity of the deponents (makers of the affidavits).

Salem-Chennai road project is of national importance: NHA to SC

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The National Highways Authority of India (NHA) told the Supreme Court Thursday that the Rs 10,000 crore Salem-Chennai 8-lane green corridor road project is of "national importance" and the Madras High Court had erred in quashing the land acquisition process.

The ambitious 277.3-km greenfield project connecting Salem and Chennai under the central government's 'Bharatmala Pariyojana' scheme aims to cut travel time between the two cities by half, to about two hours and 15 minutes.

The NHA told a bench headed by Justice NV Ramana that the high court had held that environmental clearance (EC) was mandatory for the project.

"The reasons given by the high court (in the judgement) are factually incorrect," Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the NHA, told the bench which also comprised Justices M M Shantanagoudar and Ajay Rastogi.

Mehta said the high court erred in saying that grant of prior environmental clearance was necessary for the project.

"If we have to take environmental clearance first and then go for land acquisition then it will be like putting the cart before the horse," Mehta told the bench.

He said there was no dispute on the fact that EC is required before commencement of construction work for the project.

One of the advocates, appearing for the farmers who had moved the high court challenging land acquisition proceedings, told the bench that initially the project was for connecting Chennai and Madurai but later it was changed to Salem-Chennai.

The bench told Mehta that he should give a flow chart referring to legal questions as well as the factual matrix of the case.

MoEF's empowered group grants approval to road widening project

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Regional Empowered Committee (REC), formed by the Environment Ministry, has granted approval to a road widening project from Pathankot to Kullu on the condition that it will involve minimum felling of trees. As per the project proponent, the road widening work involves felling of 1,537 trees.

The REC granted the Stage-I approval to the project, asking the State Public Works Department (PWD), the proposer, to deposit with it the Net Present Value of the forest land being diverted for non-forestry purpose. The project requires diversion of 7.67 hectare of protected forest land, the panel noted.

"Legal status of the forest land will remain unchanged. Efforts should be made to fell minimum number of trees. The trees should be felled under strict supervision of the state forest department," the REC said, adding that no damage should be done to the adjoining forest land. Clearance under the Forest Conservation (FC) Act, is granted in two stages.

While in Stage-I, the proposal is agreed to in-principle in which usually compensatory afforestation, funds for raising compensatory afforestation thereof, realisation of Net Present Value (NPV) of forest are stipulated and after receipt of compliance report from the state government in respect of the stipulated conditions, formal approval under the FC Act is issued.

The in-principle agreement and formal approval under the FC Act are commonly referred to as stage-I and stage-II approval under the FC Act respectively.

"The User Agency (PWD) shall raise strip plantation on both sides and central verge of the road at the project cost with maintenance of seven to ten years," the panel directed while approving the project.

The PWD, in its proposal, had submitted that the proposed alignment does not pass through any national park or wildlife sanctuary and involves felling of 1,537 trees. It said that compensatory afforestation has been proposed at 15.34 ha in Pathankot.

Plea filed in SC challenging constitutional validity of UAPA

Argues that it infringed upon the fundamental rights of citizens

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

A plea was filed in the Supreme Court on Thursday challenging the constitutional validity of the amendments to the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) on the ground that these infringed upon the fundamental rights of citizens.

The bill for amendments to the UAPA was passed by Parliament on August 2 and it received the President's ascent on August 9. The amended Act allows the Centre to designate individuals as terrorists and seize their properties.

The Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Amendment Act, 2019 also provides for putting a travel ban on such individuals once they are declared as terrorists. The petition has been filed by the Association for Protection of Civil Rights (APCR), an NGO, which said the amendments infringed upon the fundamental right to reputation and dignity under Article 21 of the Constitution, without substantive and procedural due process.

PNS/AGENCIES ■ NEW DELHI

The Enforcement Directorate has attached properties worth over ₹19 lakh of a man booked under the anti-money laundering law for allegedly duping people by promising them secure admission in an Uttarakhand medical college.

Rohit Singh Chauhan is being probed for cheating people to the tune of ₹1.29 crore by dishonestly inducing them in getting admission in post-graduate courses under the management quota in HIHT Medical College, Dehradun, an official said.

The properties attached under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA) are a 0.138-hectare plot valued at ₹4.83 lakh and a flat in New Delhi worth ₹14.69 lakh.

The plot is in the name of Chauhan and his father and the plot, in addition to the two, is in the name of his mother, the official said.

The ED had initiated the probe on the basis of an FIR and chargesheet filed by Uttarakhand police against Chauhan and other accused in the case.

Chauhan played an active role in duping the complainants and collected funds from them. He transferred the money to his and his family members' account and utilised it for personal use, the official said.

Chauhan and his associates fraudulently collected ₹1.29 crore from the complainants in cash and through banking channels and credited them into the account of a company he was a director of, he said.

MCI raps varsity administration

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Medical Council of India (MCI) has taken exception to the alleged mass ragging at Saifai Medical University in Etawah asking it why it should not be fined and declared ineligible for new admissions for a minimum period of one year.

"Why exemplary fine of Rs 1 Lakh for each incident of ragging, that of 150X1 Lakh, that is equal to Rs 150 Lakhs be not imposed upon the institute," asked the Board of Governors in Supersession of Medical Council of India (MCI BoG).

Stating that the incident brings out the "complete failure of the College authorities in addressing the menace of ragging," the MCI has given the university 24 hours to reply in the matter.

It also asked why the senior batches admitted to MBBS course be not suspended from attending classes for a minimum period of one month.

According to reports, several first-year students of the university were made to parade on the campus with their heads tonsured. A purported video clip on social media showed the students in white coats walking in a single file, bowing their tonsured heads and also making 'salaam' gestures. Another clip showed them in rows.

Democracy in bad shape, Mamata on PC's arrest

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee broke her silence on Thursday linking the arrest of senior Congress leader P Chidambaram to the "sagging democratic culture" and the "suffocating political climate" in the country.

Speaking to reporters, the Chief Minister said, "I will not say much about the legality of the matter as I am not the right person to do that but I am certainly concerned about the process of arresting such a senior politician... the way he was arrested," reminding, "he was the former Finance Minister and Home Minister of India and a senior parliamentarian" who deserved a dignified treatment.

The high drama around Chidambaram's arrest was not worth it, the Chief Minister said, adding, "the way his matter was handled was sad and bad. It was really very bad and made me extremely sad."

All the pillars of Indian democracy were under attack under the present Government, Banerjee said reminding how the "Indian democracy is in a bad shape. It is literally crying in the wilderness."

Incidentally, a number of Trinamool Congress leaders, including Ministers and MPs, were facing corruption charges and were being investigated by the central investigating agencies like the CBI and ED.

Condemning the way the former Union Minister was arrested, another Trinamool leader and Minister Firhad Hakim said "this Government will not allow the Opposition to thrive in India. They have decided to put all the dissenting voices behind the bars."

Attacking the Narendra Modi Government for taking the entire Opposition hostage, Congress leader in Lok Sabha Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury said "there is a deep-rooted conspiracy behind Chidambaram's arrest. He is the person who has been challenging the Government's policies at various forums including parliament. He was exposing the Government through his columns in various Indian and foreign journals which they are finding difficult to counter, and so they have silenced him by putting him behind the bar."

Chowdhury also said that "the country is heading towards political insolvency and big economic slowdown against which this Government has no answer. In order to turn the people's attention from these burning issues they are creating new political drama... but the Congress will take the issue to the people of India and fight it tooth and nail."

CBI scaling walls of Chidambaram's home an insult to India: Stalin

Chennai: DMK president MK Stalin on Thursday lashed out at CBI officials for scaling the walls of Congress leader P Chidambaram's bungalow at Delhi on Wednesday to gain entry, saying he considered it as an "insult to India".

Stalin, whose DMK is an ally of the Congress, backed Chidambaram, reiterating his charge of "political vendetta" behind the former Union Minister's arrest.

"I saw on TV, the CBI officers scaling the walls (at Chidambaram's Delhi residence). I consider it as an insult to India. It is condemnable," he told reporters here.

On Wednesday, a CBI team had first knocked at the gates of Chidambaram's Jor Bagh residence to gain entry, but finding no response, had scaled the nearly five-ft high walls to get inside. Once three officers reached inside, they opened the gates to allow entry to other team members waiting outside.

Responding to a query on CBI's handling of the entire Chidambaram episode, Stalin recalled that he had already dubbed it as "political vendetta" on Wednesday.

He said Chidambaram had appeared earlier when summoned by them in connection with the case.

Stalin also pointed out that the Supreme Court has decided to hear on Friday the Congress leader's petition, seeking a stay of the Delhi High Court order that had dismissed his anticipatory bail plea. "His arrest which has happened in the meantime has an intention of political vendetta," Stalin added.

Referring to the protest in Delhi over the Kashmir issue on Thursday, he said the struggle "led by the DMK" and attended by various political parties, including Congress, TMC, CPI(M) and NC, was a "success".

Restoration of normalcy in Jammu & Kashmir post abrogation of Art 370 of the Constitution, resumption of telecommunication services in the Valley and immediate release of all political leaders detained were the key demands made at the protest in the national capital, Stalin said.

Yediyurappa to meet BJP top leadership on portfolio allocation

Bengaluru: Having a tightrope to walk by pacifying disgruntled MLAs who missed out on Cabinet berth, coupled with allocation of portfolios to new Ministers, Karnataka Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa on Thursday decided to consult BJP central leadership to deal with the situation.

Some disqualified former legislators of the Congress and JD(S) who helped bring down the coalition Government headed by HD Kumaraswamy reportedly are piling pressure on Yediyurappa, seeking their pound of flesh and plum portfolios.

"Today evening I will go to Delhi and meet our national President Amit Shah and Prime Minister Narendra Modi and will come back tomorrow evening or the day after morning," Yediyurappa said.

Asked whether the allocation of portfolios would take place after his return from Delhi, Yediyurappa said: "Today we will discuss and take a decision."

More than three weeks after he was sworn in as the Chief Minister, Yediyurappa expanded his cabinet last Tuesday, inducting 17 Ministers.

Though the expansion brought an end to the nearly month long wait for the cabinet to take shape, it led to some heartburn in a section of the party as several MLAs continued to make no secret of their displeasure after missing the bus.

With several MLAs openly expressing displeasure over being left out, Yediyurappa has been making attempts to douse the embers, by reaching out to them.

The Chief Minister on Thursday too tried to pacify miffed legislators including Sullia MLA Angara S, even as the Bunt community threatened protest citing lack of representation in the ministry, and Bovi community members staged protest in front of his residence seeking induction of a minister from their community.

Even as attempts are on to pacify sulking MLAs, a phone conversation between eight time Hukkeri MLA Umesh Katti, around whom several disgruntled MLAs are reportedly rallying, with Congress legislator party leader Siddaramaiah led to speculation about the former's next political move.

Speaking to a news channel Katti confirmed his talk with Siddaramaiah last night, but ruled out joining the Congress and clarified that he was with BJP.

He (Siddaramaiah) called me last night and addressed me as minister, I told him I'm not minister to which he said he was aware of it and hence called.

He is my good friend... I may meet whenever we are both in Bengaluru. But, I'm not joining Congress leaving BJP, I'm 100 per cent in BJP," he added.

Yediyurappa has kept 16 ministerial posts vacant to accommodate some more BJP members and from among those 17 disqualified former legislators who helped him come to power.

However, the disqualified MLAs seeking plum portfolios is said to be causing delay in the allocation of portfolios for the new ministers, despite rooms being allotted to them at Vidhana Soudha, the state secretariat.

Reflecting the situation by stating that this government too was a coalition government in a way, Minister V Somanan in response to a question about S A Ramdas not being made minister, in Mysuru said, "Now 17 of us have become ministers, still 16 berths are remaining."

When filling those 16 positions who all have to be considered that our state and national leaders will decide," he added.

Disbelief grips Chidambaram supporters in Sivaganga

Sivaganga (TN): A sense of disbelief and outrage was palpable among supporters of Congress leader P Chidambaram in and around his native village of Karaikudi in Sivaganga district over his arrest, even as a section of people expressed indifference and some outrightly opposed him.

The former Finance Minister was arrested by the CBI on Wednesday night from his residence in Delhi in connection with INX media corruption case.

In the sleepy hamlet of Kandamur, about 10 km from Karaikudi, though life appeared to go on as usual, the arrest of Chidambaram set tongues wagging.

Expressing disbelief, V Nelliyan told PTI "this is nothing but an act of political vendetta." Condemning the arrest, the young man, before proceeding to a protest demonstration held by Congress against the Centre, said the only hope was the judiciary. "The vindictive action has incensed the common man," he claimed, adding that the courts would render justice and the BJP-led government would be exposed for targeting "an honest gentleman."

Similar was the response from a couple of others, including Rajaratnam and Avudayappan, who also lauded the senior leader for maintaining "poise and cool" despite the government "perusing vindictive politics."

Congress functionary E M S Abhimanyu of nearby Tirupattur said this is a "brutal murder of democracy," adding the arrest was shocking.

"Ilakiya" Natarajan, a long-time associate of Chidambaram here expressed disbelief and shock over the former minister's arrest. "He is a respected Parliamentarian and a former Minister. What is the tearing urgency to arrest him by scaling the walls of his house? I just cannot believe that this can happen to him. I am shocked and outraged," he said.

G Vimal, who runs a construction material retail outlet in downtown Karaikudi said "Chidambaram is not a resident of our place. He is usually either in Chennai or Delhi. Only some party workers are agitated here and not the general public."

The trader alleged that the former Minister visited Karaikudi or Sivaganga only during elections.

A couple of men in the periphery of the very quiet Managiri, where the stately bungalow of Chidambaram is located though eager to know about the INX case declined to offer comments.

Sivaganga is the native constituency which Chidambaram represented for decades. His son Karti emerged victorious in the recent Lok Sabha elections. PTI

Assam man held for threatening to kill Indian cricket players

Mumbai: The Anti Terrorism Squad (ATS) of Maharashtra Police has arrested a man from Assam for allegedly threatening to kill Indian cricket players, an official said on Thursday.

Braja Mohan Das (19), resident of Shantipur in Morigaon district, was arrested by a team of ATS with the help of Assam police on Tuesday, the official said.

Das allegedly sent an e-mail to the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) on August 16, threatening to kill Indian cricket players, he said. The Mumbai ATS started probe as the cricket body has its headquarters in the city. The ATS registered a case under IPC section 506 (criminal intimidation).

The investigating agency traced the IP address from which the email had been sent to Das, and arrested him.

The ATS obtained his transit remand after producing him before a local court in Assam and brought him here. Probe revealed that he had sent the same threatening mail to cricket boards of some other countries too.

The Mazgaon court here sent him in ATS custody till Monday, the official said, adding that further probe was on.

BJP clocks 77 lakh membership in WB

Surpasses its 60L members target

Kolkata: Buoyed by its stupendous performance in the last Lok Sabha polls, the West Bengal BJP has clocked a record membership of 77 lakhs in the State, party leaders claimed on Thursday.

The Bengal BJP has surpassed the target set by the central leadership to enroll 60 lakhs members when the countrywide membership drive began on July 6, according to the party sources. "As per the latest data, the membership drive has been immensely successful in Bengal. The central leadership initially had set a target of 50 lakhs for Bengal, later it was increased to 60 lakhs."

It is a massive jump from the membership campaign that was done a few years back when the party had managed to enroll 42 lakh members in its fold, he said. Sinha said although the membership drive has closed in other parts of the country, but in a few states such as West Bengal, which are priority states for BJP, the exercise will continue till December this year.

MNS chief grilled by ED in money laundering case

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

MNS chief Raj Thackeray was grilled for more than eight hours by the Enforcement Directorate (ED) officials about his financial involvement in M/s Kohinoor CTNL which is being investigated for alleged irregularities in the IL&FS's loans-cum-investments case.

Raj, whose questioning by the ED officials began around 12 noon and continued till well past 8 pm, emerged out of the ED office at around 8.15 pm.

Raj, who looked a bit tired, waded once at the crowd gathered there and stepped inside his car without interacting with anybody and drove to his "Krishna Kunj" residence located near Shivaji Park at Dadar in north-central Mumbai. When Raj returned to his residence at around 9 pm, a huge crowd had gathered there to greet him.

Given that he had also only co-operated but also spent quite some time with the investigating officials, official sources said that he would not be returning to ED office for further questioning on Friday.

The MNS chief, who had left from his Shivaji Park residence at 10.30 am along with his wife Sharmila, daughter Urvasi and son Amit, appeared before the ED officials an hour later.

Raj was responding to summons issued to him last week in connection with the investments that he had made in M/s Kohinoor CTNL, a company funded by former Maharashtra CM Manohar Joshi's son Unmesh Joshi. The ED is investigating the alleged irregularities in the IL&FS's loans and investments worth over ₹860 crore in M/s Kohinoor CTNL.

M/s Kohinoor CTNL has been under ED scanner for being a prominent defaulter of IL&FS, amounting to an estimated ₹135 crore.

Unmesh along with son along with IL&FS and Raj Thackeray-owned Matoshree Construction had in 2005 jointly had made a bid and bought for the NTPC's Kohinoor Mill's 4.8-acre property for ₹421 crore.

In 2008, the IL&FS reneged from the deal and surrendered its shares for only ₹90 crore, as against an investment of ₹225 crore made in M/s Kohinoor CTNL. Following the IL &FS's exit, Raj also exited from the venture after selling his shares.

CO-OP BANK SCAM HC orders FIR against Ajit Pawar, 70 others

Mumbai: The Bombay High Court directed police to register FIR against NCP leader Ajit Pawar and over 70 others in the Maharashtra State Cooperative Bank scam on Thursday, observing that they seemed to have "complete knowledge" that their actions would cause a huge loss to the bank.

The court asked Mumbai police's Economic Offences Wing to register an FIR against the accused within five days. Prima facie there was "credible evidence" against the accused, it added. Pawar, PWP leader Jayant Patil and several former directors of the bank are accused of violating banking and RBI regulations while disbursing loans to sugar mills at very low rates and selling off assets of defaulter businesses at throw-away prices. Such sale of assets, disbursement of cheap loans and a failure to ensure repayment resulted in losses of over Rs 1,000 crore to the bank between 2007 and 2011, it is alleged.

The accused also forged records and fudged figures to show the bank was making profits, it is alleged.

Pawar was a director of the bank during the relevant period. Inquiries by the National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development and a charge sheet filed by a quasi-judicial inquiry commission under the Maharashtra Cooperative Societies Act had blamed Pawar and other accused for the bank's losses.

Restrictions eased in most Kashmir areas

Market still shut and mobile services suspended

Srinagar: Restrictions were eased in most areas of Kashmir with barricades being lifted and the movement of people and traffic increasing gradually, but markets remained shut and mobile and internet services suspended for the 18th day on Thursday.

Officials said the situation was peaceful and no untoward incident was reported from anywhere in the Kashmir Valley on Wednesday.

In view of the improving situation, the movement of people and traffic was slowly increasing in the city and other district headquarters of the Valley, they said.

Public transport stayed off the roads, but a few inter-dis-

A boy jumps from a boat in the waters of Dal Lake, covered with weeds for being unattended for days due to restrictions, in Srinagar on Thursday trict cabs and auto-rickshaws were seen plying in some areas.

The attendance of teachers in schools up to middle class-level and employees in government offices was also improving. However, most students stayed away due to the prevailing situation, they added. The Government ordered the reopening of primary schools across the Valley from Monday and middle schools from Wednesday.

The officials said restrictions have been eased in several areas of Kashmir, including in most parts of Srinagar. Barricades have been removed from uptown and civil lines areas of the city as well as from most areas in other districts. However, the deployment of security forces continues to avoid any law and order problems, they said.

The officials said markets were shut in most places in the Valley, as they have been since August 5 when the Centre revoked Jammu & Kashmir's special status under Article 370 and bifurcated the state into two Union territories — Jammu & Kashmir, and Ladakh. Shops and other business establishments remain shut though there is no strike call by any separatist group or other organisation.

Mobile services and internet remain suspended, the officials said, adding that landline telephone services have been restored at most places. However, they continue to be suspended in several areas, including in Srinagar's commercial hub of Lal Chowk and Press Enclave. PTI

700 eminent Kashmiri Pandits support Centre's decision on Article 370: Panun Kashmir

Jammu: Convener of Panun Kashmir, an organisation advocating the cause of displaced Kashmiri Pandits, Agnishekhar released a memorandum on Thursday in support of the abrogation of provisions of Article 370 and said that over 700 eminent Kashmiri Pandits have endorsed it.

He claimed that all Kashmiri Pandits are on one page in support of the Centre scrapping provisions of Article 370 "to pave the way for a new dawn of free environment in Jammu & Kashmir".

"Over 700 top Kashmiri Pandits, including Padma Shri awardees, vice-chancellors, academicians and doctors, across the world have signed a memorandum in support of the abrogation of provisions of Article 370 and reorganisation of Jammu & Kashmir," Agnishekhar told reporters here.

He said that Panun Kashmir was battling strongly for a Union Territory for the Kashmiri Pandits... And the demand has been finally met.

"It was an outcome of the struggle of Panun Kashmir for last 30 years. We welcome the decision of the Central government," Agnishekhar said.

Panun Kashmir Chairman Ajay Chrungoo said that some Kashmiri Pandits, giving statements opposing the decision of the government of India do not represent Kashmiri Pandits at all.

"We condemn them... They do not represent any of Kashmiri Pandit organisation," he said. PTI

AMU student arrested over Modi poster on Facebook

Aligarh (UP): An Aligarh Muslim University student was arrested after his Facebook page showed an objectionable poster on Prime Minister Narendra Modi carried recently by anti-India protesters in London, police said.

Mohammad Zaid Rashid (20), admitted at the university's off-campus centre in Bihar's Kishanganj this year, was here when he downloaded a picture from the protests over the scrapping of the special status for Jammu & Kashmir.

Some former AMU students complained online to the police after Rashid's post surfaced on social media.

In their complaint on Tuesday they alleged that the poster had been put up on the AMU campus here, but the local police and the AMU authorities found that this was not correct.

They traced the local address of the youth, a resident of the city's Hamdard Nagar.

AMU spokesman Shafiq Kidwai said the incident was wrongly linked to the campus in Aligarh.

"We found that the youth had just been admitted to the off-campus centre in Bihar. We promptly traced him to his residence and filed an FIR," he told reporters.

"We will take further appropriate action in this matter after the investigation is complete," he said. Senior Superintendent of Police Akash Kulhari said a case under the IT Act and for promoting social discord has been filed against Rashid. PTI

Opposition parties mock Nitish Govt over gunshot fiasco at ex-CMs funeral

Patna: Opposition parties in Bihar on Thursday took a dig at the Nitish Kumar Government over the embarrassing incident during former Chief Minister Jagannath Mishra's funeral when guns carried by police personnel for salute failed to fire a single shot.

The spectacle took place on Wednesday at Mishra's ancestral village Balua Bazar in Supaul district, where the Chief Minister was himself present.

Video clips beamed by news channels showed a senior official frantically testing guns of a couple of personnel before giving up helplessly.

The police headquarters here has, meanwhile, taken a strong note of the incident and sought an explanation from the Supaul police.

However, the occasion provided the opposition with fresh ammunition to train its guns at the ruling dispensation, which takes pride in its claim of having brought rule of law to a state after over a decade of alleged lawlessness.

When the guns of the police fail at a ceremonial function where the Chief Minister is in attendance, can these be expected to be of any use while chasing criminals. It is a testimony to the fact that Nitish Kumar has no control of law and order, Rashtriya Lok Samata Party chief Upendra Kushwaha said in a statement.

Congress MLC- Prem Chandra Mishra- echoed similar sentiments on twitter, saying when the Bihar police lacks the capability to fire gunshots during a guard of honour, would it not boost the morale of criminals. Not a single gunshot was fired when there should have been 21. What type of honour did you accord to the late Jagannath Mishra @NitishKumar.

RJD Rajya Sabha member and Lalu Prasad's daughter Misa Bharti also sought to have some fun as she shared a news clipping of the fiasco that has left the government headed by her fathers arch rival red-faced on her twitter handle without adding any comment. PTI

ISRO releases first Moon image captured by Chandrayaan-2

Bengaluru: The first picture of Moon captured by India's Chandrayaan-2 satellite, currently in the lunar orbit, was released by space agency ISRO on Thursday.

The picture of Moon was taken by Chandrayaan-2's LI4 Camera from an altitude of about 2,650 km from the lunar surface on August 21, the city-headquarters Indian Space Research Organisation said.

"Take a look at the first Moon image captured by #Chandrayaan2 #VikramLander taken at a height of about 2,650 km from Lunar surface on August 21, 2019. Mare Orientale basin and Apollo craters are

The space agency had on August 4 released a first set of images of the earth captured by Chandrayaan-2 satellite.

ISRO had on Wednesday performed second lunar bound orbit maneuver for Chandrayaan-2 and said all spacecraft parameters are normal. There will be three more orbit manoeuvres before the lander's separation from the Orbiter on September 2 and eventual soft landing in the south polar region of the Moon, planned on September 7.

India's Geosynchronous Satellite Launch Vehicle, GSLV MkIII-M1, had successfully launched the 3,840-kg Chandrayaan-2 spacecraft into the earth's orbit on July 22. PTI

Pak Army shells forward posts, villages along LoC in Poonch for 3rd day

Jammu: Pakistani troops violated ceasefire for the third consecutive day on Thursday and resorted to firing mortars and small arms on forward posts and villages along the Line of Control in Jammu and Kashmir's Rajouri district, inviting a befitting reply from the Indian Army.

"Pakistan initiated unprovoked ceasefire violation by firing of small arms and shelling with mortars in the Sunderbani sector of Rajouri district at about 2045 hours Thursday," a defence spokesman said.

He said the Indian Army is retaliating befittingly and the exchange of fire between the two sides was continuing when last reports were received.

On Wednesday, Pakistan troops fired mortars and small arms on villages and forward posts along LoC in the Sunderbani sector.

Mohammad Abdul Karim was critically injured when a mortar shell, fired by Pakistan Army, hit his house at village Dabraj in Mendhar sector late Tuesday night, officials said, adding he was immediately shifted to a nearby hospital where he was declared dead.

Mendhar and Krishna Ghati sectors witnessed heavy mortar shelling and firing from across the LoC on Tuesday, resulting in the death of Army soldier Naik Ravi Ranjan Kumar and injuries to four other personnel.

Nearly half a dozen houses were also damaged in the Pakistani firing, which had forced closure of schools within the firing range in the two sectors. PTI

First case under triple talaq law registered in Guj

Surat: A case under the new law which bans instant triple talaq was registered in Surat on Thursday against a Muslim man for allegedly divorcing his wife on phone.

This was first case under The Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Marriage) Act, 2019 filed in Gujarat after the law was passed by Parliament, said Deputy Commissioner of Police Panna Momaya.

As per the complainant woman, her husband Mohammad alias Vasim Pathan and his mother were ill-treating her for the last one and half years.

In June, following a quarrel, Pathan took her to her parents' house and left her there, she said.

On the same night he called her on phone and uttered talaq thrice, she alleged. She filed the complaint on Thursday. PTI

ACTIVIST BLAMES MAHA GOVT

Flood lines of Panchganga river 'redefined' to provide benefits to construction sector

Pune: An activist from Pune has blamed the Maharashtra Government for the recent deluge in Kolhapur, alleging that flood lines of the Panchganga river there were "redefined" to provide benefits to the construction sector.

Hundreds of villages in Kolhapur and neighbouring Sangli were flooded after heavy rains earlier this month. While 55 people died in flood and rain-related incidents, lakhs were evacuated in these western Maharashtra districts.

Environmentalist Sarang Yadwadkar, who claimed to have accessed some documents of the irrigation department through RTI, said around 500 hectares land along the Panchganga river, which should have been in the flood-affected area (prohibited zone), was marked as residential zone in Kolhapur's development plan (DP) by "redefining" the flood lines.

There are two types of flood lines - blue for the flood level that occurs once in 25 years and the red for that happens once in 100 years, he said.

The irrigation department issued a circular in 1989 to mark the flood lines for all rivers in Maharashtra, but it was ignored. Instead of the flood lines, flood levels (general level of a particular flood) were marked and these levels were later superimposed on the DP maps of Kolhapur," he claimed.

In one of the cases in 2015, the National Green Tribunal (NGT) issued directives to the irrigation department to mark both the flood lines over rivers across the state, the activist claimed.

"The irrigation department started the survey work in 2017 and by 2018 it identified the flood lines (considering water flow at 2.14 lakh cusec for blue line and 3.22 lakh cusec for red line) for the Panchganga river and submitted it to the Indian Institute of Technology Bombay," he said.

He said the IIT Bombay also verified the report and stated that the flood lines were correct.

But, when the Kolhapur chapter of the Confederation of Real Estate Developers Association of India (CREDAI) came to know about it, it found around 500 hectares land going below the blue line and by default becoming a 'no development' zone, Yadwadkar said.

The CREDAI, Kolhapur, in October 2018 wrote a letter to the chief minister, stating that the work of demarcation of flood lines is done by a private agency, Yadwadkar

Trumping logic

The US President's attempt to buy Greenland and call off his Danish visit for being rebuffed is outrageous

US President Donald Trump has got away with making bewildering, puzzling and impossible statements by virtue of the high office he holds, giving his administration officials heartburn whether to treat them as an American sitcom joke or interpret them as layered diplomacy. For they simply cannot leave the words hanging there, especially when they impact relations between nations. Now that the world's most important man has escalated an international spat, by calling off his trip to Denmark because its Prime Minister rejected his idea to buy Greenland as an absurdity, eggs are splattered all over their faces. One, Denmark is well within its rights to decide on Greenland, its semi-autonomous Arctic island with a 50,000 plus population, and air views on its territorial sovereignty whenever anybody tries to belittle it. And Trump is trying to grab it by standards of a defunct barter economy, proposing an outright land deal. But to be told off by the US President, who impudently threatens a hitback with comments like "nasty" and "You don't talk to the United States that way, at least under me," can assume serious proportions, considering that Trump has not only upended conventions but has also followed through with his absurd statements with a fair bit of doggedness and whimsy. This has surprised Denmark all the more because it is a key partner in the North Atlantic alliance, and was among the first countries to pledge military support in Iraq and Afghanistan. More than 40 Danish troops died in Helmand province, fighting alongside American and British soldiers. So it certainly doesn't deserve this blow-off.

Of course, the world's largest island comes with its strategic value in the Arctic region. Global warming and melting ice caps are making Greenland more accessible for harnessing potential oil and mineral resources. All the big powers — Russia, China, the US, Canada — are in a tussle to stake their claim on Arctic lands, hoping to own and leverage future riches. But would the US go so far with its Nordic conquest as to sink its perennial allies like the Titanic? Of course, the Washington Post reported that Trump had been peddling the idea for weeks and had "even discussed taking over Denmark's annual $600 million subsidy to Greenland in perpetuity, and possibly tossing in an additional large payment to sweeten the deal." Considering that the US already has a military base in Denmark, one fails to understand the urgency of land acquisition. For by cancelling his trip, he has upset the royal household, which had formally invited Trump. He has also upset climatologists and scientists who say Greenland's massive ice sheet has seen one of its biggest melts on record this summer and economic exploitation would only worsen the scenario. Though this may not break down the cordial relations with the US yet, its Prime Minister assuring continuity despite the cancellation of Trump's visit, Danes have been put off by what they call a "farfetched" and "grotesque" behaviour. Some observers have also speculated that Trump was looking for a pretext to call off his visit considering his predecessor Barack Obama was also scheduled to visit the country and enjoys more popularity and the former didn't want to appear dwarfed by comparison. But to go so far out, no matter what the strategic or personal intent, only makes the US fall from grace globally and its allies question the price of loyalty. For long, the US has been perceived as a global bully, can it afford to be more obnoxious now? Most importantly, nobody thought that Greenlanders should be asked what they want considering many wonder if Trump indeed remembered the location of Greenland from his geography lessons.

Saving the economy

Scapegoats for the economic contagion will be found, but that there is a problem remains a fact

To be fair to Indian policy-makers, it is true that the economic slowdown is impacting countries across the world, and they could potentially use that as a crutch to explain away India's current problems. That would be wrong, because while global issues do impact India, particularly Indian exports, the fact is that the Indian economy is more self-contained than most people imagine. Besides many of our problems have been created by a combination of poor policy, poor implementation and poor management. It is also true that a lot of the current trouble with reduced credit offtake can be traced back to the profligacy of banks during the UPA era, with politically connected people getting loans at extremely favourable terms. However, the task of fixing the mess has meant that the banks are now at the other extreme and routinely turn down loan requests even to viable corporations and entrepreneurs as well as private individuals. Yes, the fiasco of demonetisation and the chaotic implementation of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) have a role to play in the situation that India finds herself in, but it is the extreme reticence of banks to lend money that is causing the contagion to worsen. Banks are rightly scared, and they will need assurance from the Government and the bureaucracy that they will not be punished for business failures. Now the RBI Governor's statement that our service sector is sluggish and the trough is a combination of multiple factors only deepens the sense of foreboding.

A lot of reassurance will need to come from smart policy makers, and there is seemingly a lack of smartness when it comes to economic and industrial policy. Half-baked ideas, such as the talk of abolishing income tax, a wet dream of certain 'economists' are being talked about. On the other hand, half-baked ideas such as additional surcharges on income tax for high income earners became a reality in the budget but papers lack details on having sums unaccounted for. The Economic Survey in parts reads like a theological text rather than what it was meant to be. The Government really needs to bring in some proper experts, even if those people might be opposed to some of the policies followed by the Government in other areas. There is no doubt that the Indian economy is a challenge, we have a lot of poor people and they have to be taken care of. However, the best way to do that is to ensure employment and grow the economy so that incomes rise across the board and social sector spending can also improve. It is a challenge that requires the cumulative brainpower of thousands of economists, statisticians and social scientists. The alacrity with which this government is dealing with national security issues is welcome but frankly it needs to show that concern for a sputtering economy and the fallout of lower growth, or perish the thought, a recession, could be more severe than any of us can imagine.

Culling corruption

AJOY KUMAR

India's reputation as one of the world's most corrupt bureaucracies is well-documented. On the Corruption Perceptions Index, India ranks 78th and this outlook is with merit and cause. What is surprising, however, is that the civil services examination and the post of a civil servant are still one that attracts great attention and fanfare. Any aspirant, who "cracks" the examination, is treated with great respect. This is, perhaps, why lakhs of young aspirants spend days together, working towards the goal of being part of the Indian bureaucracy.

A large number of these students are from prestigious institutes like the Indian Institute of Technology and various National Law Schools, among others. As a former civil servant, I find that this desire to join the civil services, surprisingly, has not dwindled. A few pessimists would say that these young aspirants join the bureaucracy to extract their pound of flesh. As Theodore Roosevelt said, "A man who has never gone to school may steal a freight car; but if he has a university education, he may steal the whole railroad." But levity aside, I think this is unduly harsh and frankly not true. In fact, as is true in most avenues of life, corruption in the Indian bureaucracy, too, follows the Pareto principle (also known as the 80/20 rule) that is 80 per cent of all corruption in the bureaucracy is carried out by 20 per cent of the people. The problem is to identify and punish this 20 per cent, which is bringing the entire country and the service immense shame and disrepute.

Corruption has no rigid definition, but the most common academic connotation, which defines it as "the misuse of public office for private gain", seems to be the most appropriate. While most times the media appears to cover the "headline" scandals and/or instances of corruption — ie, the kind of scams that attract most eyeballs — rarely do we realise just what the magnitude of everyday corruption is in our country. Transparency International estimates that Indians end up paying bribes of over ₹21,000 crore (approx $3.5 billion) every year to access Government services. Therefore, there are different types of corruption, which differ from service to service. MR Venkatesh, a Chartered Accountant-turned lawyer, said it best in these lines, "IAS officers are after the rich people, IRS officers are after the middle class and IPS officers are after the poor. This is the new varnashrama created by the bureaucracy." While this looks like oversimplifying a complex issue, the crux of the problem does ring true.

So what are the causes of corruption? There are a number of people who have endlessly theorised on the reasons why the Indian bureaucracy suffers from corruption. One such reason is the country's complex legal and regulatory framework. India remains an extremely difficult place to do business. To set up or operate any business here, an entrepreneur or businessman has to jump through various hoops and then hope to gain favour from the relevant bureaucrat even before starting his/her business. It is, therefore, no coincidence that India's low ranking on the Corruption Perceptions Index corresponds with its low position in the World Bank's indicators for doing business.

Just to give an idea about the ease of doing business in India, according to a World Bank survey, the act of obtaining a single construction permit in India involves 27 discrete procedures, takes 162 days and costs 46 per cent of the total outlay to a construction firm building a warehouse. The keyword here is "discretion." The minute it is brought in, the corrupt official gets an opportunity to make a quick buck.

Another reason as to why corruption persists in our country is the lack of respect towards entrepreneurs and businessmen. While we often get to hear praises about a Narayana Murthy or an Azim Premji, these examples are an exception rather than the norm. This because we, as Indians, have been encouraged to treat a business as an entity that makes money by stealing someone else's buck. This is why any new business is looked at with suspicion first and then with admiration. While the conduct of some Indian promoters does indicate that there is some truth to this perception, our lack of openness and admiration towards entrepreneurs does the country more harm than good.

So what can be done? We need to change our attitudes towards businesses. There is no denying the fact that there should be a strict framework within which all businesses flourish. However, a strict framework does not necessarily mean that any new business ought to be treated with contempt. For example, it is important that every business operates within the realm of the law and obtains all relevant approvals. However, bureaucrats must not be given any reason to place more hurdles in helping them establish a business than those that are already present. It is evident that this Government needs cash and, therefore, is on a tax collection spree. However, in the long-run, it is impossible for any Government to collect taxes if it continues to act in a targeted and adversarial manner. It is, therefore, crucial for the Government to intimate and drive home the point to bureaucrats that their role is to facilitate the lives of honest citizens rather than acting as impediments.

Another way to mitigate the effects of corruption is to improve information dissemination and use technology. While the former is crucial and must be encouraged with zeal, the latter must be approached with greater care in a country like India where technology is really only to the benefit of a few rather than most. The best example of how this can provide benefit is the recent change in the law which allows drivers to carry scanned copies of their driving licences and RCs. Most people, however, have not heard about this change in the rules.

I have personally heard of many stories of traffic cops taking bribes from unassuming drivers merely because they tell them that they are required to carry physical copies of their documents. In such a case if people are informed about the change in rules and technology is used meaningfully, instances of bribes will automatically be reduced.

While the problem of corruption is huge, we can at least start adopting a different approach to tackle it. Bringing about a change in mindset will be of great help. This should be coupled with other innovative solutions. With these changes, I think, we will find that the problem of corruption is not as insurmountable as we think.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Save the forests

Sir — It is a matter of concern that there has been a 83 per cent increase in forest fires in the Amazon rainforest area in Brazil. Conservationists have blamed Brazilian President Jair Bolsonaro for its plight, saying that he encouraged loggers and farmers to clear the land. Bolsonaro on the other hand has blamed non-governmental organisations, saying that they may have set the fires to embarrass his Government after it's decision to cut funding for them. Ironically, Bolsonaro has no evidence to support his claim.

Spread across millions of hectares in multiple countries, the Amazon basin not only hosts massive sinks of carbon that helps bring down the pace of global warming but is also home to three million species. The situation today is depressing. First and foremost, the Brazilian Government must realise the need to protect the forests. The international community must put diplomatic pressure on Brazil to convince it on the need to protect the forests and also help it seek higher funds.

Idea of India needs fresh outlook

This refers to the article, "Reunification of India a necessity" (August 21) by Markandey Katju. The learned writer has put forth a very noble idea, the successful implementation and sustainability of which will be a boon for the entire sub-continent. However, a look back into the history of Partition of India will reveal that ground realities are different and do not offer much hope on the lines of Vietnam or Germany or Italy where, unlike India's religious bigotry, differences were political in nature. In this connection, I would like to make two points.

First, noting the facts of history and the extent of communal discord in the country during the last 70 years, it will be incorrect to put the blame of India's Partition entirely on the British. At best, it can be said that the British took advantage of communal discord. In this connection, it would be worthwhile to recollect what Mahatma Gandhi had said during a prayer meet on the day the vital decision of Partition was taken. He said: "It is no use blaming the Viceroy for Partition. Look to yourselves and in your hearts for an explanation of what has happened." Second, it will also be worth recalling that the seeds of Two-Nation Theory were sown in the 19th Century. Ironically, after the formation of the Indian National Congress (INC), the queering pitch for Independence raised alarm bells in the minds of Muslims

Damage already done

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Chidambaram in a spot" (August 22). After a day-long drama, P Chidambaram did show up for a surprise Press conference at the Congress headquarters, but by then, the damage had been done. During the Press conference, he claimed that no formal chargesheet was filed against him in the INX

Media case and that there was no question of him evading the law.

Had Chidambaram said the same thing after the Delhi High Court rejected his bail plea, he would have done much good not only to himself but also to his party. The Congress leadership, too, had been crying hoarse, terming the action taken against Chidambaram a "political witch hunt" but the High Court has sound evidence against him. The case against him appears to be water-tight. All eyes are now on the courts. Only time will uncover the truth but certainly, the Congress has further lost credibility among the masses.

Clarity needed

Sir — This refers to the article, "Upping deterrence ante?" (August 22) by Vivek Mishra. The Government must come clear if it is contemplating a change in its 'No First Use' policy to checkmate Pakistan or is this just another exercise to make the people believe that it can go to any extent to protect the nation's interests? This issue demands wider debate and discussion.

Disable the plastic bomb

An awareness campaign in regional languages, riding on social media platforms, must be undertaken by the Centre and pushed down to the panchayat level

KUMARDEEP BANERJEE

Mariam, an orphaned, baby dugong died somewhere in Thai waters this week. While she lived, 'Sleepyhead', so fondly nicknamed by the social media, ensured engaging moments for millions of her fans. Sadly, Mariam's life story ended tragically with her demise due to intestinal blockage caused by plastic waste. The little marine creature's suffering once again put the spotlight on the grave issue of plastic debris polluting our oceans.

A ticking bomb, that will inevitably lead to our destruction, microplastics, particles that are smaller than five millimeters, are making their way into our food and drinking water, yet, very little prevents us from asking the vegetable vendor for a plastic carry bag. Let's take a look at some eye-popping statistics in order to understand the magnitude of the problem that we, with our callous attitude towards the environment, have created.

It is estimated that an average Indian ingests around five grams of microplastic every week, the equivalent of a credit card. A study conducted a few years ago by the Central Pollution Control Board (CPCB) found that major Indian cities generate nearly 4,100 tons of plastic waste daily, which for the whole country translates to nearly 30,000 tons per day, out of which Delhi tops the chart at nearly 700 tons of plastic waste generated daily.

According to estimates, nearly 90 per cent of this untreated and non-recyclable plastic ends up in the soil, forests, mountains, landfills and oceans, harming humans and unsuspecting birds, marine creatures, cows and other animals.

Given the detrimental impact of plastic waste on human lives, particularly children, our oceans and the planet at large, it is commendable that a clarion call to defuse this bomb has come from Prime Minister Narendra Modi himself. Modi, during his Independence Day address urged citizens to eliminate single-use plastic and use cloth and jute bags instead. He asked for the first big step in this direction to be taken from October 2, 2019, to mark the 150th birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi.

Thankfully, many government agencies and large private sector players have taken cognizance and have started taking steps to reduce or eliminate plastic under the Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) policy approach. While the Parliament has banned use of non-reusable plastic items within the complex, the Indian Railway Catering and Tourism Corporation (IRCTC) a subsidiary of the Indian Railways, has also banned plastic use from October 2. It has issued a circular which prevents vendors from using plastic carry bags and will ensure the return of plastic drinking water bottles by passengers. Encouragingly, some private firms like Mahindra and Hindustan Lever have also announced plastic reduction measures.

On the policy-making front, the CPCB is slated to submit a consolidated report on the use and management of plastic waste, after it gets data from State Pollution Control Boards (SPCBs). The recommendations of the CPCB will make it likely to bring in more norms on top of the Plastic Waste Management (Amendment) Rules, 2018.

However, good intentions and new guidelines are not enough to tackle this menace. There are a couple of measures that need to be implemented without any compromise to ensure compliance.

A mass awareness campaign in regional languages, riding on all social media platforms, needs to be undertaken by the central government and pushed right to the municipal and village panchayat level. Only mass campaigns on the lines of Swachh Bharat Abhiyan will create awareness at the grassroots and prevent indiscriminate and irresponsible plastic use. A key issue which needs urgent attention is coordination between the CPCB and SPCBs. Most often, like other areas of Federal Vs State policy overlaps, we find SPCBs passing "Shut with Immediate Effect" kind of orders that are not in line with Plastic Waste Management (Amendment) Rules, 2018.

A nodal ministry, looking into plastic waste management rules and their implementation, the Ministry of Environment and Forests (MoEF) should urgently set up a national-level co-ordination task force comprising state and CPCB representatives. There should be significant private sector and civil society representation as well. This body should be given targets to reduce plastic waste and co-ordinate on key matters between the Centre and states. In the absence of such a body, interpretation of key laws remains ambiguous and lands in No Man's Zone. This leads to non-compliance and missed targets. Finally, citizens need to get religious about plastic waste management. The festive season is approaching and tons of plastic will be used, that will most likely end up in the nearest water body. A conscious, collective effort has to be made by all to cut down plastic use. In fact, a zero plastic festival would be a welcome idea this season.

Breaking barriers

Vatsalya, an initiative to improve the health and nutritional status of women and children, was undertaken in 22 villages in Amreli's Rajula Block

SWAPNA MAJUMDAR

The small boat at Gujarat's bustling Pipavav Port bobs up and down as it waits to ferry passengers to Shiyal Bet Island barely 600 metres away. It's a rainy morning and the waters of the Arabian Sea are beginning to turn choppy. Fifty-year-old Dakuben jumps onto the boat with ease, having undertaken the 12-minute journey innumerable times to visit her daughter in Shiyal Bet. However, this time, her visit is mired in sorrow as she is going to mourn the death of her newborn granddaughter.

Gujarat's Infant Mortality Rate (IMR) is 30 deaths per 1,000 live births and the state ranked tenth in the country according to the NITI Aayog's 2016 IMR report. According to statistics 69 per cent of infant deaths in Gujarat were neonatal, higher than the national average of 67.60 per cent.

Anaemia is one of the major factors responsible for the rising neonatal, infant and maternal mortality in Gujarat, especially among rural women. According to the fourth National Family Health Survey (NFHS-4) conducted in 2014-15, 54.9 per cent women in the age group of 14-49 years are anaemic and 51.3 per cent of pregnant women have anaemia.

The NFHS-4 placed Gujarat among the top 15 states with the highest incidence of anaemia as the percentage of anaemic women there was higher than the national average of 53 per cent.

The survey revealed that lack of education played a major role and anaemia was particularly high among illiterate women due to lack of awareness about health-related issues.

At 31.2 per cent, Shiyal Bet's literacy rates are much lower than the state's 78.3 per cent (2011 census). With the island's female literacy rate being just 15.48 per cent, it's no surprise that awareness about anaemia and other health issues is low.

In order to change this scenario, Vatsalya, an initiative to improve the health and nutritional status of women, children, and adolescents was undertaken in Shiyal Bet and 21 villages with similar poor health and development indicators in Rajula Block in Amreli district. Launched in 2016 by the Centre for Health Education, Training, Nutrition Awareness (CHETNA), a not for profit organisation, the three-year programme has been able to bring down undernutrition, improve antenatal and postnatal care and ensure safe motherhood.

It has also been able to break myths related to early breastfeeding, promote healthy feeding practices, timely immunization and increase access to basic health services.

The intervention, supported by Gujarat Pipavav Port Limited (GPPL) APM Terminals under their corporate social responsibility initiative, used a multi-pronged strategy including games, Q&A sessions and street theatre to engage the community. Sustained efforts, coupled with community participation helped to bring down the number of children suffering from undernutrition from 30 per cent in 2016 to 14 per cent in 2019. The number of children who attained normal body mass index also rose.

The intervention marked up registration of pregnancies by almost 42 per cent and increased the number of women receiving antenatal care, tetanus injections and folic acid tablets. A rise in institutional deliveries by 9.42 per cent was also seen at the end of the three years.

“THE MONTHLY VATSALYA SAMWADS PROVED TO BE A GOOD MOVE AS THEY HELPED BREAK THE ICE ON MANY UNCOMFORTABLE ISSUES LIKE THE TRADITION OF EARLY MARRIAGE, MENSTRUATION AND FAMILY PLANNING IN ALL 22 VILLAGES. BESIDES EXPLAINING THE CONSEQUENCES OF EARLY MARRIAGE ON THE HEALTH OF ADOLESCENTS, THE IMPORTANCE OF ANTENATAL CARE AND POSTNATAL CARE VISITS FOR PREGNANT AND LACTATING WOMEN WERE DISCUSSED. ALSO ADDRESSED WERE MYTHS RELATED TO EARLY AND EXCLUSIVE BREASTFEEDING

“We are committed to bringing change in the lives of marginalised communities. Therefore, empowering them with factual information and linking them to government schemes and programmes was imperative. This intervention was more challenging because we had to work in difficult-to-reach villages like Shiyal Bet and with migrating populations and communities that were isolated and neglected. But we were able to make a difference in their lives thanks to our dedicated field team, and our partnership with the community, frontline health workers and panchayat leaders,” said Pallavi Patel, Director, CHETNA.

A key to this success was the strategy to train women from the community as Vatsalya mitras (friends). This gave the community a sense of ownership and led to increased participation. So when Shantubhen Chauhan became a trained Vatsalya mitra, she used her influence as an anganwadi worker (AWW) to reach out to pregnant and lactating women. Chauhan, an AWW for the last 15 years, is a popular face in Shiyal Bet. With both her marital and natal home being in Shiyal Bet, Chauhan was able to mobilise the community very effectively.

However, when the CHETNA team first visited Shiyal Bet, they found that although Chauhan was articulate and good at her work as an AWW, she, like most of the others, believed in many myths related to reproductive and sexual health. One of the biggest misconceptions she had was related to menstruation. Not only was it a taboo subject, but neither she nor her three daughters practiced menstrual hygiene. Considering that only 54 per cent of rural women use a hygienic method of menstrual protection (NFHS-4), this was not surprising.

The fact that women with at least 12 years of schooling were more than twice as likely to be using a hygienic method (79 per cent) as against women with no schooling (34 per cent) meant that Chauhan who is uneducated, didn't get access to information which could help her practice menstrual hygiene.

So the first step was to demystify menstruation. The team knew that once they were able to get Chauhan on board then she would get the others. “I was ashamed to discuss this issue. The training helped me understand why I should not be ashamed and why menstrual hygiene is important. I used the scientific information to convince other women and adolescents during Vatsalya samwads (dialogue),” recalled Chauhan.

For Vatsalya mitra Vandanaben Goswami, the training cured her of the belief that she was 'impure' during her periods and going to the temple or kitchen was wrong. “After I became better informed, I no longer forced my daughters to follow these customs. I used my own example to convince other women and girls,” contended Goswami.

The monthly Vatsalya samwads proved to be a good move as they helped break the ice on many 'uncomfortable' issues like the tradition of early marriage and family planning in all 22 villages. Besides explaining the consequences of early marriage on the health of adolescents, the importance of antenatal care and postnatal care visits for pregnant and lactating women were discussed. Also addressed were myths related to early and exclusive breastfeeding. According to NFHS-4, just 50 per cent women in Gujarat start breastfeeding in the first hour of life as recommended by the World Health Organisation, thus depriving newborns of the highly nutritious first milk, colostrums, and the antibodies it contains. In fact, about one in five children who were ever breastfed were given something other than breast milk during the first three days.

Raziben's three children were among them. She had followed the custom of feeding her children goat's milk or hot water mixed with jaggery immediately after birth. It was only after attending the Vatsalya samwads that she understood why this was not healthy for the newborn. This helped her initiate early breastfeeding for her fourth child born last year. Inspired by this, her friend and neighbour Manjuben also breastfed her daughter within 24 hours of her birth in June this year. In fact, there was an 22 per cent increase in early breastfeeding by the end of the project.

A big factor in the improving health and nutrition indicators was the partnership with local leaders and panchayats. Leaders like Gangabhai, the sarpanch of Kundaliya Village, played an active role in mobilizing the community and promoting awareness.

“There has been a big change in my village after CHETNA began their work. The AWWs have become more informed and active. More women are attending the monthly Mamta Divas. Earlier only 7-8 women had health cards, now 60 of them have cards. I also pay visits to support and motivate them,” he said.

While the success has been encouraging, challenges remain. Considering the entrenched patriarchy and caste barriers in Gujarat, sustaining behavioural change requires greater investment of time and resources. Only then, will no one be left behind.

In denial of converging global crises

Artificial Intelligence and climate emergency are the two biggest threats facing economies today. We know a good deal about both but not enough to be confident about our choices – and besides, they may well mutate and head off in unforeseen directions

GWYNNE DYER

Maybe we can get through the climate crisis without a global catastrophe, although that door is closing fast. And maybe we can cope with the huge loss of jobs caused by the revolution in robotics and Artificial Intelligence (AI) without a social and political calamity. But can we do both at the same time?

We should know how to deal with the AI revolution because we have been down this road before. It's a bit different this time, of course, in the sense that the original industrial revolution in 1780-1850 created as many new jobs (in manufacturing) as it destroyed (in cottage industries and skilled trades). The AI revolution, by contrast, is not producing nearly enough replacement jobs but it is making us much wealthier. The value of manufactured goods doubled in the United States (US) in the past 30 years even as the number of good industrial jobs fell by a third (eight million jobs gone). Maybe we could use that extra wealth to ease the transition to a job-scarce future. The climate emergency is unlike any challenge we have faced before. Surmounting it would require an unprecedented level of global cooperation and very big changes in how people consume and behave, neither of which human beings have historically been good at.

These two crises are already interacting. The erosion of middle-class jobs and the stagnation (or worse) of real wage levels generates resentment and anger among the victims and is already creating populist, authoritarian regimes throughout the world. These regimes despise international cooperation and often deny climate change as well (Trump in the US, Bolsonaro in Brazil).

And there is a recession coming. Maybe not this year, although almost all the storm signals are flying: Stock markets spooked, a rush into gold, nine major economies already in recession or on the verge of one, an "inverted yield curve" on bonds and trade wars spreading. Even US President Donald Trump is worried, which is why he postponed the harsher American trade tariffs against China, which were due next month. Economists have predicted nine of the past five recessions as they say in the trade, so I'm not calling the turn on this one. But a recession is overdue and a lot of the damage done by the Great Recession of 2008 has still not been repaired. Interest rates are still very low, so the banks have little room to cut rates and soften the next one. When it arrives, it could be a doozy.

So what can we do about all this? The first thing is to recognise that we cannot plot a course that takes us from here and now, through all the changes and past all the unpleasant surprises to ultimate safety, maybe 50 years from now.

We can plan how to get through the next five years and we should be thinking hard about what will be needed later on. But we can't steer a safe and steady course to the year 2070 any more than intelligent decision-makers in 1790 could have planned how to get through to 1840 without too much upheaval. They might have seen steam engines but they would have had no idea what a railroad was.

We are in the same position as those people with regard to both AI and the global environmental emergency (which extends far beyond 'climate change', although that is at its heart). We know a good deal about both issues but not enough to be confident about our choices – and besides, they may well mutate and head off in unforeseen directions as the crises deepen.

But there are two big things we can do right now. We need to stop the slide into populist and increasingly authoritarian Governments (because we are not going to stop the spread of AI). And we have to win ourselves more time to get our greenhouse gas emissions under control (because we are certainly going to go through 450 parts per million of carbon dioxide equivalent, which would give us +2°C higher average global temperature). The best bet for getting our politics back on track is a guaranteed minimum income, high enough to keep everybody comfortable – whether they are working or not. That is well within the reach of any developed country's economy and has the added benefit of putting enough money into people's pockets to save everybody's business model.

And the best way to win more time on the climate front is to start geo-engineering (direct intervention in the atmosphere to hold the global temperature down) as soon as we get anywhere near +2°C. To be ready then, we need to be doing open-air testing on a small scale now. There will be howls of protest from the right about a guaranteed minimum income and from the greener parts of the left about geo-engineering. However, both will probably be indispensable if we want to get through these huge changes without mass casualties or even civilizational collapse.

FOREIGN EYE

ON GREENLAND

As the seriousness of the climate crisis becomes more obvious, so does the fact that it can only be solved by coordinated international action, while competing nationalisms can only exacerbate it and make the easily foreseeable end worse for all competitors. A rules-based international order is the counsel of enlightened self-interest, not idealism. But today the most powerful nation is in the hands of a man who can recognise neither his own nor anyone else's legitimate self-interest. (The Guardian editorial)

Trump flip-flops on tax cuts

Says US has 'strong economy'

AP ■ WASHINGTON

A day after considering cutting taxes to promote economic growth, President Donald Trump changed course and said he would abandon the idea because the nation already had "a strong economy."

Trump's flip-flop on Wednesday came after recent market volatility and economic uncertainty, and amid a debate about whether the United States was heading for a slowdown that would imperil his reelection chances.

Trump earlier this week acknowledged, for the first time, that his China trade policies may mean economic pain for Americans, though he insisted the tariffs are needed for more important long-term benefits. But his consideration of cutting payroll taxes appeared short-lived.

"I'm not looking at a tax cut now," he told reporters at the White House.

"We don't need it. We have a strong economy."

Trump also knocked down the idea of indexing to the capital gains tax, which applies when investors sell assets, to inflation. He said he feared "it will be perceived, if I do it, as somewhat elitist."

Analysts have warned that a slowdown, if not full-blown recession, could hit before next year's election. Trump, however, has largely praised the economy's performance and his handling of it.

He has often blamed the Federal Reserve (and Chairman Jerome Powell) and the global slowdown for creating dark clouds at home.

"Jay Powell and the Federal Reserve have totally missed the call. I was right and just about everybody admits that," Trump said Wednesday.

"He raised interest rates too fast, too furious, and we have a normalised rate. And now we have to go the other direction."

Some White House advisers fear Trump has undercut Powell's credibility.

They worry that the president's calls for rate cuts and his discussion of indexing or a payroll tax cut could spook, rather than reassure markets.

Trump indicated he had no choice but to impose the trade penalties that have been a drag on US manufacturers, financial markets and, by some meaasures, American consumers. "Somebody had to do it. I am the chosen one," Trump said on the White House lawn, looking skyward.

"Somebody had to do it. So, I'm taking on China. I'm taking on China on trade."

China, though, said trade with the US has been "mutually beneficial" and appealed to Washington to "get along with us."

A foreign ministry spokesman, Geng Shuang, expressed hope Washington can "meet China halfway" in settling disagreements.

The US economy appears to be showing vulnerabilities after more than 10 years of growth. Factory output has fallen and consumer confidence has waned as he has ramped up his trade fight with China. Trump rattled the stock and bond markets this month when he announced plans to put a 10 per cent tax on $300 billion worth of Chinese imports.

The market reaction suggested a recession might be on the horizon and led Trump to delay some of the tariffs that were scheduled to begin in September, though 25 per cent tariffs are already in place for $250 million in other Chinese goods.

UAE to be first Middle East country to launch RuPay Card

PTI ■ DUBAI

The UAE will be the first Middle East country to launch the RuPay Card during Prime Minister Narendra Modi's visit to the Gulf nation on Friday, according to a media report.

The RuPay card is a first-of-its-kind Indian domestic Debit and Credit Card payment network, with acceptance at ATMs, POS devices and e-commerce websites. It was launched in 2012.

"A Memorandum of Understanding to establish a technology interface between the payment platforms in India and UAE, would be exchanged between the National Payments Corporation of India and UAE's Mercury Payments Services," Navdeep Singh Suri, the Indian Ambassador to the UAE, told the UAE's state-run WAM news agency.

"This will enable the RuPay card to be used at point-of-sale terminals across the UAE," he said. "The UAE is the largest and most vibrant business hub in the region. It hosts the largest Indian community, receives the largest number of Indian tourists and has the largest trade with India. By becoming the first country in the region to introduce the RuPay card, we expect that each of these elements of tourism, trade and the Indian diaspora will benefit," Suri said.

India has already launched the RuPay card in Singapore and Bhutan.

Prime Minister Modi's third official visit to the UAE on August 23-24 is another important milestone in the bilateral comprehensive strategic partnership, the Indian envoy said.

During the visit, Modi will receive the Order of Zayed, the highest civil decoration of the country for "giving a big boost to bilateral relations between the two countries."

Modi would also meet the Crown Prince of Abu Dhabi, Sheikh Mohammed bin Zayed Al Nahyan to discuss bilateral, regional and international matters of mutual interest.

The India-UAE bilateral trade touched almost $60 billion last year with a fairly balanced profile of about $30 billion of exports and $30 billion of imports, the envoy said.

"On the investment side, we have already seen sizeable inflows from India to the UAE in free zones like Jebel Ali, Hamriyah Free Zone Sharjah and Ras Al Khaimah Economic Zone and also in sectors ranging from manufacturing and real estate to trade and services," he said.

Goyal: WTO reforms should be holistic, comprehensive

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal on Thursday made a case for holistic and comprehensive reforms of the World Trade Organisation (WTO) without ignoring the ground realities, especially the stark inequality among developed and developing nations.

He said instead of going for a piecemeal reform, the members should take on board issues of all countries of the WTO. "It is the time when all members of the WTO start looking at some of those reforms that have been pending for long. When we look at reforming the WTO, (it should be done) holistically and comprehensively. It cannot be pick and choose," Goyal said.

He was speaking at a programme of South-South and Triangular Cooperation here.

"I do hope that as we look at reforming the WTO, a little bit more relevance to today and 21st century realities will come into play," he added.

The statement comes at a time when the US has called for reforming the world trade body. The US wants formulation of some guidelines regarding special and differential treatment (S&DT), which is meant for developing nations.

Govt classifies ocean power as renewable energy

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Power and New & Renewable Energy Minister R K Singh on Thursday approved a proposal to declare ocean energy as renewable energy.

The Ministry of New and Renewable Energy (MNRE) has clarified to all stakeholders that energy produced using various forms of ocean energy, such as tidal, wave, ocean thermal energy conversion, shall be considered as renewable energy and shall be eligible for meeting non-solar renewable purchase obligations (RPO), a statement by the MNRE said.

This step has been taken by the MNRE after some renewable energy developers sought clarification in this regard, according to the statement.

Under the RPO, distribution companies (discoms) are required to have certain proportion of clean energy supplies. The proportion is fixed by state power regulators. The discoms can also buy renewable energy certificates in lieu of mandated clean energy supplies, from the developers or renewable power generators.

Oceans cover 70 per cent of the earth's surface and represent an enormous amount of energy in the form of wave, tidal, marine current and thermal gradient.

A variety of different technologies are currently under development throughout the world to harness this energy in all its forms.

Deployment is currently limited but the sector has the potential to grow, fuelling economic growth, reducing carbon footprint and creating jobs not only along the coasts but also inland along its supply chains.

As India steps up its effort to contemplate its renewable energy and climate change objectives after 2022, it is opportune to explore all possible avenues to stimulate innovation, create economic growth and new jobs as well as to reduce our carbon footprint, the statement said.

Sensex sinks 587 pts as stimulus hopes dim; Yes Bank dives 14 pc

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Equity markets closed deep in the red on Thursday after top government officials virtually ruled out a stimulus package for slowdown-hit sectors, triggering another round of selling in banking, auto and metal stocks.

A weakening rupee, which hit its lowest level in eight months, and lackluster global cues further weighed on investor sentiment, traders said. The 30-share BSE Sensex sank 587.44 points, or 1.59%, to finish at 36,472.93. The broader NSE Nifty slumped 177.35 points, or 1.62%, to 10,741.35. Both the key indices closed lower for the third straight session.

Chief Economic Adviser Krishnamurthy Subramanian on Thursday said using taxpayers' money to bail out companies going through a 'sunset' phase would create moral hazards and such a step was an anathema to the market economy.

Power Secretary Subhash Chandra Garg also said low interest rates and availability of credit to private sector were better tools than a fiscal stimulus.

The comments have dashed hopes of some sort of a stimulus package from the government to boost growth and revive

GOLD CONTINUES BULL RUN

New Delhi (PTI): Continuing the record-setting trend, gold price on Thursday hit a new high of ₹38,970 per 10 gram by gaining ₹150 in the national capital, according to the All-India Sarafa Association, mainly on account of a weaker rupee and safe-haven buying from investors due to weak equity market. Gold prices have been hitting a fresh high everyday since Tuesday. Silver advanced by ₹60 to ₹45,100 per kg on increased offtake by industrial units and coin makers.

flagging consumer sentiment, analysts said.

Yes Bank was the biggest laggard in the Sensex pack, plummeting 13.91%, followed by Vedanta, Bajaj Finance and Tata Motors, which declined up to 7.76%.

ONGC, SBI, Hero MotoCorp, ICICI Bank, Tata Steel, HDFC twins and RIL also closed with losses.

Tech Mahindra, TCS, HUL and HCL Tech were the only gainers, surging up to 1.57%.

"Benchmark indices continue to remain weak with rupee hitting fresh lows and lack of news on the economic stimulus by the government... Investor sentiment was further dampened by statement made by Chief Economic Adviser that Indian economy doesn't need fiscal stimulus to tackle slowdown."

"Besides policy uncertainty on the domestic front, weak global cues, foreign bond flow, currency and oil price movement would further determine the trend of the market," said Hemang Jani, head (advisory), Sharekhan by BNP Paribas.

Speaking at an event in Delhi, Subramanian stressed on the cyclical nature of a market economy.

"Since 1991 we are a market economy, and in a market economy there are sectors which go on sunrise and then go through sunset phase.

"If we basically expect the government to use taxpayers' money to intervene every time when there are some 'sunset', then I think you introduce possible moral hazards from 'too big to fail' and as well as the possibility of a situation where profits are private and losses are socialized which is basically an anathema to way the market economy functions," he said. Speaking at the same event,

Power Secretary Subhash Chandra Garg said reduction in interest rates and availability of credit to private sector are better tools than a fiscal stimulus. Garg, who was Finance Secretary till last month, also said the first quarter GDP number are likely to be lower than the same period last fiscal.

Meanwhile, BSE Realty index was the biggest sectoral loser, cracking 6.01%, followed by metal, financial, oil and gas, bank and energy.

IT index was the sole gainer, rising 0.30%, buoyed by a weak rupee.

The broader BSE midcap and smallcap indices followed the benchmarks, closing up to 2.19% lower.

Globally, markets were jittery after edgy comments from Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell at Jackson Hole, Wyoming, US.

Elsewhere in Asia, Shanghai Composite Index and Nikkei ended on a positive note, while Hang Seng and Kospi settled in the red. Equities in Europe were trading lower in their respective early sessions.

The Indian rupee depreciated 33 paise to 71.88 against the US dollar intra-day.

Brent crude futures, the global oil benchmark, rose 0.65% to USD 60.69 per barrel.

NITI Aayog for extraordinary steps to deal with slowdown

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Government think tank NITI Aayog on Thursday made a case for extraordinary steps to deal with the unprecedented stress in the financial sector which has resulted in an economic slowdown in the country.

The government needs to take steps which eliminate apprehension from the minds of private sector players and encourage them to step up investments, NITI Aayog Vice Chairman Rajiv Kumar said. He also said private investments will drive India out of the middle income trap.

Termining the stress in the financial sector as unprecedented, he said nobody had faced this sort of situation in the last 70 years where entire financial system was under threat.

"Nobody is trusting anybody else... within the private sector nobody is ready to lend, everyone is sitting on cash... you may have to take steps which are extraordinary," he said at an event here.

Elaborating further, Kumar said some of the steps had already been announced in the Union Budget to address stress in the financial sector and give a push to economic growth which hit a 5-year low of 6.8 per cent in 2018-19.

Commerce min to soon come out with new foreign trade policy

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Commerce Ministry will soon come out with a new foreign trade policy, which provides guideline and incentives for increasing exports, for the next five financial years 2020-25, an official said.

The ministry is giving final touches to the new policy as the validity for the old one will end on March 31, 2020.

"We have taken views of all stakeholders. The new policy is likely to be announced by September-end or early-October," the official said.

The new policy would focus on simplifying procedures for exporters and importers besides providing incentives to boost outbound shipments.

The ministry's arm, Directorate General of Foreign Trade (DGFT), is formulating the policy.

At present, tax benefits are provided under merchandise export from India scheme (MEIS) for goods and services export from India scheme (SEIS).

In the new policy, changes are expected in the incentives given to goods as the current export promotion schemes are challenged by the US in the dispute resolution mechanism of the World Trade Organisation (WTO). In this backdrop, the government is recasting the incentives to make them compliant with global trade rules, being formulated by Geneva-based WTO, a 164 member Geneva-based multilateral body.

The Commerce Ministry has also floated a cabinet note for a new export incentives scheme — Rebate of State and Central Taxes and Levies (RoSCTL) — that would be compliant with the WTO norms.

The RoSCTL scheme is available for exports of garments and made-ups. It would now be proposed to extend it to all exports in a phased manner.

The new scheme would replace the existing MEIS, which was challenged by the US last year in the WTO. It would ensure refund of all unrebated central and state levies and taxes imposed on inputs that are consumed in exports of all sectors.

Major un-rebated levies are state VAT/central excise duty on fuel used in transportation, captive power, farm sector; mandi tax; duty of electricity; stamp duty on export documents, purchases from unregistered dealers; embedded CGST and compensation cess coal used in the production of electricity. Exporters are demanding incentives based on research and development, and product-specific clusters under the new policy.

Ludhiana-based Hand Tools Association President SC Ralhan said the new policy should have provisions for refund of indirect taxes like on oil and power, and state levies such as mandi tax.

"Sectors like engineering should be promoted as they create huge number of jobs. There should be relaxation for obtaining licence under Export Promotion Capital Goods for modernisation of industry," Ralhan said.

Assistant professor and expert on agriculture economics Chirala Shankar Rao has said the policy should look at ways to promote agri exports as it holds huge opportunities.

During April-July 2019-20, the country's exports dipped 0.37 per cent to USD 107.41 billion.

Since 2011-12, India's exports have been hovering at around USD 300 billion. During 2018-19, overseas shipments grew 9 per cent to USD 331 billion.

The government is targeting to increase the exports to USD one trillion in the coming years.

Macron, Johnson set for bruising Brexit talks

AFP ■ PARIS

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson heads to Paris on Thursday for talks with French President Emmanuel Macron who is expected to rebuff his last-ditch efforts to renegotiate the UK's withdrawal from the European Union.

Macron, who has said previously he is happy to be the "bad guy" on Brexit, roundly rejected Johnson's calls to scrap a key plank of a deal negotiated between the EU and former British premier Theresa May.

"Renegotiation on the terms currently proposed by the British is not an option that exists, and that has always been made clear by (EU) President Tusk," Macron told reporters on Wednesday evening.

At stake is the so-called "backstop", an arrangement guaranteeing that border checks will not return between EU member Ireland and Northern Ireland which is part of Britain.

Johnson considers the backstop to be "anti-democratic" and an affront to British sovereignty because it will require London to keep its regulations aligned with the EU during a transition exit period. The EU argues this is necessary to avoid the re-emergence of border checkpoints which could lead to a return of fighting on the divided island where anti-British violence has claimed thousands of lives.

More evidence of deadlock on Thursday would raise the chances of a "no deal" Brexit, which France now sees as the most likely scenario despite the expectation that it will wreak economic damage on Britain and the EU.

"The EU and member states need to take the possibility of a 'no deal' outcome much more seriously than before," a senior EU official told reporters in Brussels on Thursday on condition of anonymity.

The Paris visit is the second leg of Johnson's first foreign trip since he became prime minister a month ago.

On Wednesday, he told German Chancellor Angela Merkel in Berlin that the backstop has "grave defects for a sovereign, democratic country like the UK" and insisted the provision "has to go".

'Seriously looking' to end birthright citizenship: Trump

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

President Donald Trump has threatened to end what he called the "ridiculous" US policy of birthright citizenship, which gives citizenship automatically to those born in America, as he sought ways to check illegal immigration.

"We're looking at that very seriously, birthright citizenship. It's frankly ridiculous," Trump said Wednesday outside the White House while responding to a question on the birthright citizenship, which grants automatic citizenship to those born in the US.

His comments echoes his administration's previous vow to unilaterally end the process by which babies born in the country automatically become US citizens.

"Birthright citizenship where you have a baby on our land, you walk over the border, have a baby, congratulations, the baby is now a US citizen. We're looking at it very, very seriously," Trump said.

During his 2016 presidential campaign, Trump had said that he will end the birthright citizenship.

The 14th Amendment of the US Constitution guarantees birthright citizenship and states: "All persons born or naturalised in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside."

Indian-origin Presidential candidate Kamala Harris, a Democratic senator from California, mocked Trump's comments on Twitter Wednesday, stating the President "should 'seriously' consider reading the Constitution."

Trump's statement came as the administration announced a proposal to detain undocumented families together indefinitely, replacing the agreement that set a 20-day limit for holding children, The Hill reported.

China 'will not sit idly by' over US arms sale to Taiwan

AP ■ BEIJING

A senior Chinese officer says the country "will not sit idly by" if the US proceeds with a sale of advanced F-16V fighter jets to Taiwan, and warned of other potential countermeasures in addition to punishing foreign firms involved in the deal.

Col. Chen Rongdi, chief of the Institute of War Studies at the Academy of Military Sciences, said at a defense forum Thursday that Beijing considered the sale a violation of previous US commitments to China regarding the island it considers its own territory to be annexed by force if necessary.

He did not elaborate on what additional measures China might take.

Beijing has repeatedly said it will levy sanctions against US companies linked to a planned USD 8 billion sale and demanded Washington cancel it immediately.

Iran's Prez says 'talks are useless' in dealing with US

AP ■ TEHRAN

Iran's President struck a musical tone on dealings with the US, saying Thursday that "talks are useless" as Tehran's nuclear deal with world powers crumbles further. President Hassan Rouhani made the comment in a speech in Tehran during the unveiling of the Bavar-373, a long-range surface-to-air missile system that he described as an improvement to the Russian S-300.

"Now that our enemies do not accept logic, we cannot respond with logic," Rouhani said in the televised speech.

He added: "When the enemy launches a missile against us, we cannot give a speech and say: 'Mr. Rocket, please do not hit our country and our innocent people. Rocket-launching sir, if you can please hit a button and self-destruct the missile in the air!'"

On Wednesday, Iran's state TV reported that the Bavar-373 is able to recognize up to 100 targets at a same time and confront them with six different weapons.

Since 1992, Iran has developed a homegrown defense industry that has produced light and heavy weapons ranging from mortars and torpedoes to tanks and submarines.

N Korea dismisses nuclear talks if US 'hostile military moves' continue

AFP ■ SEOUL

North Korea said Thursday it has "no interest" in dialogue unless Washington stops "escalating hostile military moves", as a senior US envoy visited Seoul with an eye on reviving nuclear talks with Pyongyang.

Talks between Pyongyang and Washington have stalled since a second summit between US President Donald Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong Un in Hanoi collapsed without an agreement.

The pair met again in June in the Demilitarised Zone and agreed to restart working-level dialogue. Meanwhile, North Korea has carried out several short-range missile tests in recent weeks in protest against annual US-South Korea joint military drills that it sees as a rehearsal for invasion.

Stephen Biegun, the US special envoy for North Korea who leads the working-level talks, arrived in Seoul late Tuesday for a three-day trip, and said Washington was "prepared to engage" as soon as it hears from Pyongyang.

Merkel gives Britain until Oct 31 for Brexit solution

AFP ■ THE HAGUE

German Chancellor Angela Merkel said Thursday that Britain could have until the day of its scheduled EU departure to avoid a chaotic no-deal Brexit, clarifying that she had not set London a 30-day deadline. Merkel had appeared to lay down the 30-day rule to solve the vexed issue of the Irish border "backstop" when she met British Prime Minister Boris Johnson in Berlin on Wednesday.

"I said that what you want to do in three or two years, you can do in 30 days -- or rather, you would have to say: you can do it by October 31," Merkel said at a press conference in The Hague with Dutch premier Mark Rutte.

"So it's not about 30 days, but they were symbolic for the fact that you can do it in a short period of time."

Merkel said she was giving the new date "because Great Britain said they would like to leave the European Union on 31 October."

"And until then we have to work on it -- work on it if the will exists on both sides."

The German leader said the aim was to find a regime that both respects the two-decade old peace agreement in the British province of Northern Ireland "and at the same time we can ensure the integrity of the (EU's) internal market."

In Berlin on Wednesday night, Merkel had appeared to give London its biggest glimmer of hope in weeks when she said that "we have said we would probably find it in the next two years, but maybe we can do it in the next 30 days, why not?"

Hong Kong students plan class boycott for protest demands

AP ■ HONG KONG

Hong Kong university student leaders said on Thursday they'll call for a boycott of the start of classes to pressure the government to respond to the protest movement gripping the city since June.

Student union leaders from 10 universities said they want students to skip the first two weeks of classes in September.

They vowed to escalate their action if the city's Beijing-backed leader, Carrie Lam, fails to respond by Sept. 13.

Young people have been at the forefront of the Chinese city's protest movement, which was sparked by calls for the withdrawal of an unpopular extradition bill.

The bill, which would have allowed suspects to be extradited to mainland China where the judiciary is not indepen-

Second day of Italy crisis talks after PM resigns

Rome: Italy's President began a second day of talks Thursday aimed at solving the political crisis shaking the country after the disintegration of the populist government.

President Sergio Mattarella was set to meet all the main parties, including the anti-establishment Five Star Movement (M5S) and far-right League. Prime Minister Giuseppe Conte resigned Tuesday after months of alliance sniping and a bid by League leader and Interior Minister Matteo Salvini to force a snap election, just 14 months after coming to power. Turkey to host Syria summit with Russia, Iran on Sept 16

AFP ■ ANKARA

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan will host his Russian and Iranian counterparts for a summit on Syria in Ankara on September 16, the presidential spokesman said.

Despite being on opposing sides in the Syrian conflict, Syria regime backers Iran and Russia have worked closely with rebel supporter Turkey to find a political solution.

"The president will host a three-way summit with the participation of Russia and Iran in Ankara," spokesman Ibrahim Kalin said late Wednesday.

The announcement of the meeting between President Vladimir Putin, Iranian President Hassan Rouhani and Erdogan comes at a time when Syrian forces have made advances into the last rebel stronghold of Idlib in Syria's northwest.

Actress CHITRANGDA SINGH is all set to make her digital debut as an actress and a producer, with a musical drama web series. The shoot of the series begins at the end of the year.

"I will be starting to shoot for a web series at the end of the year or the beginning of next year. I am excited because I was waiting to do something interesting. It's been a long time since I have acted in a project," said Chitrangda.

The actress was last seen onscreen in Bazaar. She played Saif Ali Khan's wife in the film.

The War team tried to create a visual spectacle for the trailer launch but no matter how big the plans were, the event was not able to match the scale of the film. An event for a film like this needs to be at par with what we are promising to the audience. It's impossible to create it from an event viewpoint. So we have scrapped the idea of the launch.

Did you know dabu or daboo is an ancient mud resist hand block printing technique from Rajasthan? The practice almost died in the last century but was revived and is a flourishing business today. Day two of the Lakme Fashion Week Winter/Festive 2019, saw designer Alka Sharma with her sustainable label of Udaipur, Aavaran. She presented her collection Miniature Moon, which has been done by the same old-age dabu technique. It has been embraced for printing intricate motifs on the finest natural fabrics like mushru, mulberry silk and chanderi. Delicate and ethnic embroidery like pit-tan have been used for embellishing the clothes. Regalia inspired silhouettes have been blended with modern designs to create this timeless and aesthetic collection.

The contemporary clothing label specialises in dabu mud resist, hand dyed and block printed apparel. The fabrics were eco-friendly, organic and natural, which were in perfect sync with the brand's ethics of sustainability.

The process of dabu printing is quite complicated, involving many workers and multiple stages of printing, washing and dyeing. First, the plain fabric received from the mills is carefully washed to remove any impurities which may interfere with the dyeing process. Then, designs are meticulously and painstakingly hand printed on to the fabric using blocks which are dipped into fast dyes. The next and crucial step involves the use of the mud resist which makes this print so unique. Ingredients like mud, gum, lime and waste wheat chaff are combined to make the 'dhabu' or mud resist paste which is then patted over certain parts of the design. The paste is dried with sprinkled sawdust. This covering essentially protects these parts of the fabric from the dye used later on, creating a unique and colorful effect.

After this process of printing, the fabric is spread out in the sun where it completely dries out. It is then dipped into a vat of dye, dried again and finally given a thorough washing to remove the paste and any excess dye. The dyes used are typically natural vegetable dyes and pastes. Thus the unprotected parts of the fabric catch the colour while the dhabu covered bits remain plain. The fabric may be dyed more than once in different colors to give each part of the design a different hue.

The Lakme Fashion Week has seen designers use forgotten techniques while extending their frontiers further

Speaking about her debut at the fashion week, Alka said, "The label was launched to sustain and revive the ancient, traditional craft of dabu print and provide economic empowerment to the indigenous craftsmen of the region. The designs are very similar to the motifs used in all traditional Rajasthani textiles, since the 'blocks' used for printing are common to most of these techniques. They tend to be nature inspired designs of plants, birds, flowers, fruits as well as artistic ethnic motifs."

Actresses Mrunal Thakur walked the ramp for Aavaran. She said, "I am excited to be walking the ramp for Aavaran. This is truly thrilling as it will be a debut for us both at the week."

Designer Amit Aggarwal on Wednesday launched his luxury pret collection, Flux, with cricketer Hardik Pandya and actress Lisa Haydon walking on the ramp as showstoppers. Aggarwal, who is known for engineering recycled products in the garments he designs, has this time tied up with Reliance Industries' textile arm — to create the grandeur pieces in fluid, free flowing fabrics.

The designer used recycled polymer strips to add structure to the gowns, dresses and skirts that comprised the collection. Sheer wraps, exaggerated sleeves, power shoulders and billowing skirts were the highlight of the show. There was the use of techniques like plisse, fine draping and three-dimensional embroidery that added texture of the pieces.

Use of electric colours, shiny metallic shades of silver, blue, purple and green, hues of emerald, petrol, neutrals like gold, blush and ivory made the collection pop up.

Speaking about his collection, Aggarwal said, "The entire collection is about free flow. The fabric had a such a large plethora of different colourations... It never really stopped inspiring me. Going ahead and creating 100 more looks."

Haydon, who wore a purple drape gown said, "I really admire what Amit does. And especially this collection. It's a great play of contrasts, structures. Each time a model walked the ramp wearing one of his pieces, I felt like 'Oh my gosh, I want to wear that. And that's always a great sign, it means this is an excellent collection.'"

'I don't want to lose my rawness'

Actress RAGINI KHANNA tells SAKSHI SHARMA that her role in Posham Pa made her inhabit a scary headspace which grossed her out and intrigued her in equal measure

Imagine yourself in a situation where your mother forces you to become a murderer and you can only survive by hunting food like animals and eating it from dustbins.

When Sasural Genda Phool fame Ragini Khanna heard the script of her short film, Posham Pa, it fired a million questions in her head and caught her attention like nothing else had before. She knew that it was going to be one of her most challenging roles but was sure of doing it as she wanted the audience to see her in characters with different shades and break her established image of a happy bubbly girl next door.

When asked as to what appealed her the most? She said, "The script. As I read it, it generated a lot of emotions in me which I can't even express in words. I was grossed, I was intrigued, I was curious that how can something so dark be true?"

Posham Pa is a psychological thriller inspired by true events. It talks about a disturbed mother who forces her daughter to be a part of heinous crimes and murders which in turn leads them to be charged with death penalty. The film, naturally, forces one to think.

Ragini feels that the film plunges you into such depths that you start questioning everything. She was impressed by simplistic storytelling which sends a deep message. Ragini said, "I always wanted to work with Sumon Mukhopadhyay Sir (director). He has done films that have redefined various conventions. In this film, it is pure and honest story telling. The truth is kept intact and very little is left to imagination. The way he has retained the authenticity of characters was on point." The actress is happy with the creative liberty the film offered. She shared that during the shoots everyone was on the same page in terms of creativity and there was a smooth exchange of ideas. You subconsciously unite when your cause is bigger and you have a similar motive, the universe just conspires to bring you together. "That's what happened with this film, we shared an unsaid bonding which was magical. This translated on camera beautifully as it sensitive and catches your aura and energy," she added. This helps the film to connect closely to the audience and impact deeply," she explained.

Talking about her character in the film, Shikha Deshpande, Ragini shared, "My journey is from an infant to a 30-32 year old. I have played a street child who is raised with no sense of societal boundaries. She is raised like an animal at the cost of her relationships and is willing to go to any extent for her survival." She questioned, "How can someone have an animalistic motivation towards their choices? It is extremely scary." But, the other side of Shikha is that she is an extremely intelligent girl with a brilliant mind. If she had been raised as a child and not animal, things would have been different. It's all about how you nurture. Ragini shared that the writers wanted to point out the concept of nature versus nurture. Giving birth to a child is very different from raising him/her. The former is a natural process but the latter is a life long commitment. Unbringing and education empowers you as it gives you a sense of right and wrong. The dark role that the film offered made it challenging for the actor to get into the skin of the character. Ragini said, "While playing this role I developed an unsaid bonding with Shikha. In the process of trying to understand what she has gone through I experienced immense pain as it was difficult for me to analyse my own behaviour. Half the time I was shocked by my own acts. I had mood swings, I used to laugh and cry on the set without reason." She talked about a scene of the film where she says, "Maine kachre ki peti mei se khaana nikaal ke khaaya," which involved a lot of self-pity. She also tried to justify herself that "I am so because of what I am going through and not by choice." Ragini further shared that the role made her inhabit a scary headspace and she wanted to let go of this character very soon as it was troubling her. "When I was traveling for the shoot on the second day, I felt Shikha in my skin. I was grossed by that because I am raised on a moral conditioning which doesn't belong to the value structure Shikha comes from," she added.

In recent times we have seen that more and more films are inspired by true events. Ragini's last one, Gurgaon, was also one such. She said,

"We live in a fast moving world where something is always happening somewhere. This is enhancing real story telling. However, there are also stories which the human mind has not experienced and are a fragment of the directors' imagination."

Short films have a very limited time frame to leave the audience with thought-provoking ideas but they are still gaining attention in today's scenario. "They require a low attention span as it is only asking for 20 minutes from you. A three-hour film or series is a long commitment while short films are quick," said she. This digital era has paved the way for newer platforms and opportunities. Ragini feels that it is giving her the opportunity to play negative roles which she is not sure would have been possible in television. It as a blessing for her as she feels it provides her the chance to explore herself as an artist. She also emphasised on the responsibility attached to digital content in the past three to four years. Ragini said, "There is a lot of good work happening. We are directly competing with the international content." With this increasing competition the content is getting better and everything with higher accessibility.

Talking about her journey she shared that her mind has expanded with it she has led and the people she has been with. "The more I get enriched with life's experiences, the better my art will be. It will have far more depth and intensity. But at the same time I don't want to lose my unabashed rawness and candidness," she added. (The film is streaming on Zee5.)

Ayushmann's fan in frenzy

Actor Ayushmann Khurrana is riding high on a success of all his films. The actor who won a National Award, (Best Actor) for Andhadhun, was celebrating the success of the film at a party when, in a surprising event, he came across a fan who had gatecrashed the party.

Directed by Raaj Shandilya, produced by Ekta Kapoor, Shobha Kapoor and Aashish Singh, the film is set to release on September 13.

TAPPA explores and blends the flavours in dishes to offer something familiar while extending food boundaries, says DHRUVIKA BHANOT

Five point dimsums

The essence of Tappa lies in the name itself, which implies to bounce back. It also makes one reminiscent of a game from childhood days. And in the array of dishes that gracefully crowd the menu, the knowledge of a well-travelled chef is present but so is the taste of the food we had as children.

While there was a separate 'bloggers menu' which catalogued the dishes that the chefs were most proud of, we oscillated between that and the a la carte menu to diversify the dinner as well as to have panoramic view of the delicacies that are prepared at the restaurant. Six months went in curating the menu which reflected in the most enticing array of dishes. I had never felt as blown away, figuratively speaking.

One of the best things, apart from the food, which will shortly be on the receiving end of my evaluation, were the chefs who were more eager than ever to describe the menu to us, and acquainted us with the fusion dishes, an amiable mix of the Indian and international flavours.

I have seldom had the experience of what people quote as bad service and my luck seemed to be on my side this time around too the flawless service meant that the record remained unscathed. A pleasant smile and an incredibly hospitable attitude made our evening more special, a little corny but the truth nonetheless.

Before our ordered dishes were brought, chef Parul served us amuse bouche, which I have only ever heard Monica Geller rave about, in a little wooden box. It had the flavour of the Indian chat put on a tart and it was in that moment that I knew that this dinner would soar past any expectations that I harboured. And close behind were our dim sums. The chef who makes the dim sums has about 17 years of experience and it showed in the variety that he showcased.

The cream cheese, water chestnut and chilli oil dim sums were suggestive of a cheesy encounter but it's not it. Instead of the chewy cheese the soft skin of the dough was filled with warm cream cheese which completely melts in the mouth, and I say it without an ounce of exaggeration. They were served with chilli oil, so the spiciness is not too far behind the warmth of the cheese.

There was five spice chicken dimsums but if you are looking for an 'authentic' Chinese flavour from this dish, it is not the one for you. But then, that's exactly the aim of the chefs. The five spices used were not just Chinese but also Indian where the kick of the latter flavour was quite prominent. It was interesting to know that the blend was made by the chef himself rather than being a store-bought concoction which many rely on. You will taste the Indian-ness as well as the Chinese-ness in the dim sums.

One of my most favourite dishes of the night, undoubtedly, were the dim sums, had I sat there longer, I would have waxed poetry of how soft and appetising they were, delicately wrapped, and the chopsticks dug in the skin of the dim sums so deliciously. I could feel the softness even before they had the opportunity to sit on my tongue.

Chillas were up next, and as chef Parul shared with us, they were a product of endless trials and errors. Initially, chillas were planned like soft crepes but the chef did not want to design and make something borne out of imitation.

We chose goat cheese chilla, it was crispy and you might get a feel of a dosa, but this was not quite that. It was made from sprouted wheat flour and though different from the besan ones that are made at home, it still hits a nerve there. It was made in vinegar and enveloped capicum, spinach goat cheese and beet root, which gave it a slight pungent taste. And though the chef had warned that it would be spicy, it had a balanced flavour. It was a different experience altogether. While I did not find any flavour amiss, the chilla gave me flashbacks of the beet root and kale salad I had at La Roca.

I have said it before, most of my excursions at restaurants are incomplete without pizza. And what is different about Tappa's menu is that instead of the classic round style, they offer pide which is a rich bread from Turkey. And from the plethora of options, we picked Chauka which was a four cheese pizza and farmhouse. The chefs must fancy goat cheese, because a lot of the dishes have it. Chauka was a cheesy affair, obviously and I loved it and I could sing paean's to it but I prefer to quote Lady Gaga "brilliant, incredible, amazing, show stopping, spectacular."

The farmhouse pide, on the other hand, reminded me of the sour dough pizza I had in Earls Court in London. The chefs don't hold back on the toppings, and we were presented with a generous topping of broccoli, corns, tomato, zucchini, jalapenos. Absolutely abundant in flavour.

Another favourite was Dosa a la Tappa. It had the taste of the regular dosa but the flavours were different. It was served with goat cheese sauce and green tomato chutney. The dosas were not full-fledged, rather they were rolls and miniature ones. It wasn't a messy affair. One thing that is noticeable and commendable about Tappa was the presentation of the dishes, which offer a vibe of it's own. They were not simply served on plates, but have a creative twist even in the presentation. The brownie points which remained after the incredible service were given for the style of serving.

The green chutney, tangy in taste and spicy in flavour, complemented the dosa exceedingly well. The spiciness sits on the tongue, but that's what makes it good. The flavour isn't passable, rather it was impressive and establishes its taste well enough. Definitely a must try.

I ordered three things for mains of which Dosa a la Tappa was also one along with Kladi Kulcha and Manglore fried chicken. Each stuffed kulcha on the menu had a different preparation, different style and the taste of a different city all together.

The chicken was marinated in Manglorean flavours, deep fried and was topped with lemon yogurt on top with some jalapenos and chillis. The chicken was tender, super soft. If I would call something that is absolutely flavour, it would be this dish.

I was a little perplexed when it came to dessert but sided with dark chocolate and litchi fudge. A great judgement on my part. The fudge was buried under a thick spread of meringue, and pieces of litchi coated in dark chocolate served with a scoop of ice-cream. If I think hard enough, I might still be able to taste the fudge.

Tappa also offers in-house ice cream and the special of the evening was bourbon and fig. The bitter taste of the bourbon found a truce with the sweetness of the ice cream, I couldn't hold myself it was such a delight. This restaurant has engraved itself on my recommendation list.

CHEF TALK

A disruptive fusion

As chef OSCAR BALCON goes against convention by pairing Italian cuisine with whisky rather than wine, he says that food connoisseurs should always be open-minded to give space to culinary adventures. By TEAM VIVA

When you decide to indulge in authentic Italian cuisine, you have to pair wine with it. And it cannot be just any wine. The idea is that the flavour of your drink should match the intensity of the meal's sauce. However, ever heard of authentic Italian meal being paired with whisky?

Angad Singh Gandhi, Glenfiddich brand ambassador, celebrated the disruptive fusion of a fine single-malt whisky with modern Italian cuisine, prepared by Artusi Ristorante chef Oscar Balcon. The idea was to create an "unusual pairing for today's consumers," who are looking for experiences that are extraordinary, and such practices also pave a way for experimentation for both consumers and chefs.

Here's a take of chef Balcon who has carefully handcrafted the four-course dinner, which married the flavours of the versatile Glenfiddich's 12-year-old, 15-year-old and 18-year-old variants.

Tell us about the special four-course menu.

The menu includes a journey that takes us through different time and places. Just like fine whisky, it has firm roots in traditional methods, a foundation that is built on the quality of natural ingredients. But at the same time, it has a bright-eyed glance of contemporary possibilities. It is a menu that showcases how wide-ranging the pairing options in Italian cuisine truly are.

How did you curate it? What inspired this special menu?

At the Artusi Ristorante, our culinary inspiration is always the traditional cuisine of the Emilia Romagna region in Northern Italy as it has a rich and incredible quality of natural products. But this time we chose to look beyond the borders and the quality of some of the finest whiskies from Scotland, such as Glenfiddich, fascinated me and inspired this spirit-paired dinner.

Just like fine wine, the tasting notes of fine whisky also cuisine is the one that perfectly balances the nutrition and sensuous elements.

How do you source your ingredients?

Mostly from Italy but also other great sources of top-notch ingredients globally. Also, from the small farmers in India who are growing and creating a market for high-end specialist produce, when in season.

European and Italian cuisines are known to be blended or tasted with wine. But here, you have blended your menu with whisky. Why? What was the idea behind it. Did it turn out to be as amazing as the regular menu tasted with wine?

Wine is the traditional pairing beverage for a fine Italian meal and I believe that will never change. However, every now and then, I think we should be open-minded enough for culinary adventures. And, more often than not, we end up with a positive surprise and great memories, much like the innovative partnership with Glenfiddich.

How do you think such experiments can help bring a change in the way people look at the Italian cuisine?

Like often in life, an individual act rarely propels a long-lasting change, yet we know that repeated adventures are the spice of life and as humans, we become richer with each new one. So, I would say, it's a toast to breaking barriers and to new and exciting discoveries.

guide us in understanding its aroma, taste and finish. Hence, we will deduct that smoky elements that pair well with grilled meats, while more mellow, round and sweetish notes might make a match with the dessert. And thus, layer by layer, we have curated a menu that marries cheese, vegetables, home-made pasta and flaming desserts with the corresponding notes of peat, smoke or round honey. We were indeed very pleased with the resulting symphony.

What has shaped your food logic while growing up? Any anecdotes to share...

Family, traditions and good fortune. My food logic has been shaped with the fortune to be living in the vortex of the "age of great food" (nowadays, you can get great food anywhere in the world) and the good fortune to have had the possibility to experience the best dishes both in my home country as well as with extensive travels and living all over the world.

Which cuisine in the world would you say comes closest to the perfect sensory and nutritional balance?

Apart from our own, perhaps the traditional Japanese

MESSI BACK IN BARCELONA TRAINING

AFP ■ BARCELONA

Lionel Messi gave Barcelona a timely boost on Wednesday by returning to training with the rest of the squad after a calf injury.

Messi trained alone in the morning before joining his team-mates in the afternoon, increasing hopes that Barca's captain could play a role against Real Betis in La Liga on Sunday.

He strained his calf on August 5 in his first training session back following the Copa America and subsequently missed the club's pre-season.

It would be a surprise if Messi started at Camp Nou, but Barcelona coach Ernesto Valverde will be eager to have his star available again, particularly after his team suffered a surprise 1-0 defeat by Athletic Bilbao in their opening league game last weekend.

Messi's absence has been compounded by injuries to other strikers.

Luis Suarez is expected to be out for around a month after hobbling off with a calf problem against Bilbao. Ousmane Dembele injured his hamstring and will need five weeks to recover.

Antoine Griezmann, the 120 million summer signing from Atletico Madrid, is the only fully-fit forward, with Rafinha and 21-year-old Carles Perez possible options to play behind him.

The shortage up front has intensified speculation that Paris Saint-Germain's Neymar could return to Barcelona before the transfer window closes in Spain on September 2. PSG sporting director Leonardo admitted earlier this month that the club were in "advanced negotiations" to sell Neymar but a deal is yet to be agreed with Barca, who have already spent around 250 million euros this summer.
