Schools deserted as Valley edgy

Only 10 students mark attendance in 196 schools in Srinagar

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ JAMMU

Majority of primary schools reported "zero" to very thin attendance on Monday after the authorities decided to re-open 196 schools across Srinagar following two weeks of clampdown in the State in the wake of abrogation of Article 370. In most cases, parents refused to drop their children to schools citing strict security restrictions. Other districts in the Valley too registered zero attendance of students.

The only saving grace was the presence of schoolteachers and other staff who made it to the schools despite facing many hardships en route.

Deputy Commissioner, Srinagar, Shahid Iqbal Choudhary told The Pioneer that out of 196 schools, staff and teachers reported on duty in around 170 schools in Srinagar on Monday, but less than 10 students marked their presence on day one.

He, however, expressed hope that the situation will improve from Tuesday as several private school authorities were approached to re-open their schools.

Choudhary also convened a meeting with representatives of Presentation Convent, DPS, Burn Hall and other schools.

The meeting was attended by Education Director, Additional Commissioner, Joint Director Planning and heads/representatives of private schools.

The Government also decided to re-open all middle level schools across Kashmir valley from Wednesday.

Meanwhile, after his two week stay in the Kashmir for monitoring the situation, National Security Adviser Ajit Doval returned to Delhi on Monday and briefed Union Home Minister Amit Shah.

Union Home Secretary

Rajiv Gauba, Intelligence Bureau chief Arvind Kumar and other top officials attended the meeting that reviewed the steps taken to maintain the law and order situation in the State. The issues related to restrictions imposed in various parts of Jammu & Kashmir also figured in the meeting.

At several places in Anantnag, Shopian, Pulwama, Kulgam, Kupwara, schools reported zero attendance and efforts are being made to motivate people to send their children to schools to restore normalcy.

Meanwhile, some of the State Government offices too started normal functioning in Srinagar, but most of the market places in down town Srinagar and other vulnerable areas were a deserted look.

The communication blockade continued with only land-line services being restored partially.

Mobile phone services remained suspended for the 15th day in succession in different parts of Kashmir valley.

In the wake of repeated incidents of stone pelting and token protests, security forces remained deployed in large numbers while barricades and concertina wires prevented smooth movement of traffic in several parts of Srinagar.

Central Kashmir DIG VK Birdi on Monday claimed minor incidents of stone pelting were reported from some areas in Srinagar but situation largely remained peaceful. No major incident of violence was reported from anywhere in the area, he added.

Addressing a joint press conference, Director, Information and Public Relations, Syed Sehrish Asgar, Deputy Inspector General of Police (CKR) VK Birdi and School Education Director Muhammad Younis Malik said the presence of staff at all the primary level schools on Monday was an encouraging sign and the administration has decided to re-open all the middle schools across Kashmir on Wednesday.

Regarding the availability of supply stock in the Valley, it was informed that the essential services like PHE, PDD, Food & Civil Services, etc, are working smoothly.

It was also informed that Srinagar Civil Secretariat recorded 98 per cent attendance, and it is picking up rapidly in other Government offices.

Bhagwat's quota debate call fires Opp with anger

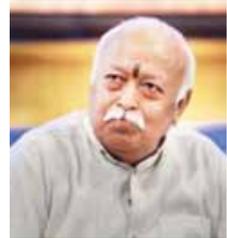

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat's call for debate on reservation has set off a major political row with several Opposition parties condemning any attempt to dilute the provisions of caste-based quota in Government jobs and educational institutions.

While RSS dismissed as "needless" the row over Bhagwat's remarks, asserting that he merely stressed on the need for talks in harmony within society to address any issue, the Congress, the BSP and the RJD alleged that the "anti Dalit-backward face" of the RSS-BJP has been exposed.

"A needless controversy is being sought to be created over RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat's address at a programme in Delhi. He merely stressed on the importance of addressing issues in society through mutual talks in harmony and called for considering a sensitive issue like reservation in a similar manner," RSS' 'prachar pramukh' (publicity head) Arun Kumar said in a tweet.

He also said that organisation has made it clear time and again that it fully supports reservation for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, OBC and those getting it on to economic grounds.

Bhagwat had said on Sunday that there should be conversation in harmonious atmosphere between those in favour of reservation and those against it.

"Attack on the rights of the poor, trampling on constitutional rights, snatching the rights of Dalits-backwards. This is the real BJP agenda. The anti Dalit-backward face of the RSS-BJP has been exposed. The conspiracy to end reservation for the poor and the policy of changing the Constitution have been uncovered," Congress' chief spokesperson Randeep Surjewala said.

BSP chief Mayawati asked the RSS to shed its "anti-reservation mindset", saying reservation was a constitutional provision and disturbing it would be an injustice. Mayawati said such a debate would generate a dangerous situation of doubt which was not needed.

"The RSS saying that there should be open-hearted debate pertaining to reservation given to SC/ST/OBC generates dangerous situation of doubt, which is not at all needed," the BSP chief tweeted.

She also said reservation is a humanitarian and constitutional provision, and disturbing it is injustice and improper and it would be better if the Sangh sheds its anti-reservation mindset.

Reacting to the statement, RJD spokesman Manoj Jha questioned whether there is any conducive atmosphere in the country in the present Central regime. "The current dispensation has not left anymore a good atmosphere in the country where anything can be deliberated upon.

The reality is that the benefits for SC and ST have not been passed to the beneficiaries and whatever has been shared to them is being looked upon to be reviewed.

In the name of brute majority this BJP ruled Centre is attempting to trample the Constitution by all means," Jha said.

Bihar's last Congress CM Jagannath Mishra dies

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Former Bihar Chief Minister Jagannath Mishra, 82, passed away in Delhi on Tuesday after a prolonged illness. Mishra was one of the tallest political leaders of Bihar before Lalu Prasad became the face of the State politics.

Apart from holding the post of Chief Minister thrice as a Congress stalwart, Mishra served as a Union Cabinet Minister. Mishra was convicted along with 44 others in the infamous fodder scam in 2013. He was sentenced to four years imprisonment. However, he was acquitted by a Ranchi court last year.

Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar has expressed grief on the death of Mishra. "Jagannath Mishra was a famous leader and educationist. He made an invaluable contribution to the politics of Bihar and India. His death is an irreparable loss to the field of politics, society, and education," Nitish Kumar said in a statement. The Bihar Government has declared a three-day State mourning in the State.

In the 70s and 80s, Mishra was considered a powerful and mass leader of the Congress in Bihar. However, his popularity dipped after the emergence of the social justice forces under the likes of Lalu in 1990. At one point, Mishra left the Congress to join the Nationalist Congress Party. He also became popular among Muslims after his Government made Urdu the second official language of Bihar in 1980. Before joining politics, Mishra worked as a lecturer and later became a professor of economics at Bihar University.

Ex-MPs asked to vacate bungalows within week

Advani, Joshi to retain residences due to security reasons

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Centre on Monday asked all former Members of Parliament (MPs) to vacate Government bungalows within a week. Majority of such Government bungalows are located in the posh Lutyens' zone in the national Capital.

A high-level meeting convened by the Housing Committee of the Lok Sabha on Monday decided that if these "squatters" failed to vacate the bungalows, their power, water and gas connections will be cut within three days and heavy penalty will be imposed on them.

Senior BJP leaders and former Deputy Prime Minister LK Advani and Murlu Manohar Joshi will retain their bungalow due to security reasons.

The committee had earlier directed several senior Congress leaders, including Jyotiraditya Scindia and Mallikarjun Kharge, to vacate their Government bungalows since they have lost the Lok Sabha elections last month.

Normally, leaders who lose elections to Parliament are supposed to vacate their bungalows, but over the years there has been a trend among several leaders, including former Ministers, refusing to vacate their bungalows citing various reasons.

CR Patil, chairman of the Lok Sabha Housing Committee, told The Pioneer that the committee called a meeting on Monday where it was decided that in three days, power, water and gas connections will be snapped. Patil said most of them will vacate their bungalow within two three days. However, no MPs have stated that they will not vacate their bungalow, he said.

Sources said those having 'Z' plus security cover will retain their bungalows. "Joshi is also looking for accommodation in Lutyens' Delhi and he will vacate his bungalow soon," said a BJP leader.

According to the rules, former MPs have to vacate their respective bungalows within one month of dissolution of the previous Lok Sabha. In the 2019 Lok Sabha elections, more than 260 candidates were elected to the Lower

IndiGo, SpiceJet's T2 flights to shift to T3 from Sept 5

After infrastructure boost, IndiGo and GoAir to resume op from IGIA's T2

SAPNA SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

At a time when Delhi International Airport Limited (DIAL) has initiated work to enhance Terminal-II infrastructure, two major airlines — Spicejet and IndiGo — will shift to Terminal-III of the IGIA from September 5.

On Monday, DIAL in its official statement said the shift is to pave way for infra enhancement of T-II, after which its capacity will increase from 15 million passengers per annum (MPPA) to 18MPPA. "This will enhance the passenger experience at T-II terminal after the movement. GoAir and IndiGo will be the two major airlines operating from T-II," DIAL notification reads.

Notably, IndiGo will operate partially from T-III also. IndiGo flights of 5,000 series will shift from T2 to T3 and but flight operations of IndiGo and SpiceJet at T1 will remain unaffected.

DIAL official said, "The move comes as part of DIAL's efforts to enhance passenger experience at Delhi Airport at a time when SpiceJet, IndiGo and GoAir, operating from Terminal 2, have witnessed a steep traffic growth compounded by the re-allocation of Jet Airways traffic.

"The shifting will enable the airport operator to enhance the overall infrastructure of T2, which is being enhanced to handle rising passenger traffic," he added. When asked what new changes will incorporate for passengers' comfort, DIAL official said, "Under T2 capacity enhancement initiatives, the Security Hold Area (SHA), bus gate hold area, new arrivals area and passengers waiting areas would be expanded, while Pre-Embarkation Security Checks (PESC) area would be relocated and Automated Tray Retrieval System (ATRS) would be installed."

This may be noted that several passengers have complained about the missing sitting area at T-II while T-II operates domestic flight operations where passenger number is relatively higher. After the move, passenger load at T-II will reduce by 27 per cent.

Commenting on the development, Videsh Kumar Jaipuria, CEO-DIAL said, "With Delhi Airport witnessing a surge in passenger traffic, DIAL is enhancing the capacity of T2. The move will ease the pressure of fast growing traffic, so that the capacity enhancement works at Terminal 2 can be carried out effectively and efficiently. We appreciate SpiceJet and IndiGo for their agreement to shift their operations from Terminal 2 to Terminal 3."

Presently, GoAir fully and SpiceJet and IndiGo partially operate their respective domestic flights from T2, while Air India, Vistara and Air Asia India operate completely out of T3. The revamped Terminal 2 was operationalized in October 2017, which saw partial shifting of SpiceJet and IndiGo, and complete shifting of GoAir from Terminal 1.

Yamuna breaches danger mark

10,000 people in low-lying areas moved to safety

SAPNA SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

Heavy rain in northern India and the release of 8.28 lakh cusecs water from the Hathnikund barrage by Haryana on Monday caused flood-like situation in the low-lying areas of the national Capital with the river Yamuna flowing at 205.36 metres, breaching the danger mark of 205.33 metres.

Around 10,000 people have been evacuated from floodplain and shifted to relief tents erected by the Government agencies, a senior official said.

So far 2,120 temporary shelters have been set up, where food, water and other amenities are being provided by Government agencies. To reach people, the Delhi Government also provides helpline numbers: 22421656 and 21210849.

Taking precautionary measures, Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal appealed to residents of Yamuna floodplains to shift to government tents. "The water level in

The Yamuna in spate as seen from the Old Yamuna Bridge, also known as Lohe-ka-Pul, in Delhi on Monday

Yamuna is expected to cross the danger level (205.33 meter) by today evening, since Haryana has released 8.28 lakh cusecs of water," requesting not to panic since the government is taking all possible steps to combat evolving flood situation," Kejriwal said.

"Since Haryana has released 8.28 Lakh cusecs of water on Sunday evening and excess water will reach Delhi within 36 to 72 hours," Kejriwal said.

On the direction of Sub Divisional Magistrate (SDM), Delhi Traffic Police also closed the Old Yamuna Bridge (Lothian bridge) to avoid any casualty.

Recalling past incidents of floods, Kejriwal appealed to people residing floodplains to shift in tents and not to return till water recedes.

Earlier in 2013, Haryana had released 8.06 Lakh cusecs of water that had resulted in raising the water level to 207.3 metres.

"Next two days are very crucial. We are monitoring the situation", said the Chief Minister. He also said that Delhi Government is coordinating with the Central Government and the Lieutenant Governor's office and all concerned agencies. The entire government machinery is focused in tackling this emergency situation in the next two days as every life is precious for the government, the Chief Minister said.

The river was flowing at 205.2 metres in Delhi at 3pm. Haryana released 1.87 lakh cusecs water at 2pm on Monday and 1.79 lakh cusecs was discharged from Hathnikund barrage at 3pm.

Along with Home Minister Satyendar Jain, Transport Minister Kailash Gahlot and Chief Secretary Vijay Kumar Dev, CM Kejriwal conducted high level meeting with all the concerned departments to monitor the situation and review the preparedness.

SC dismisses Tejpal's plea to quash sexual assault charges

SC asks Goa's lower court to complete trial within 6 months

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Monday dismissed a plea by Tejpal magazine's founder Tarun Tejpal seeking quashing of charges framed against him in a sexual assault case filed by a former woman colleague.

A Bench headed by Justice Arun Mishra asked Goa's lower court to complete the trial preferably within six months in the case against Tejpal.

Tejpal is alleged to have sexually assaulted a former woman colleague inside the elevator of a five-star hotel in Goa in 2013. He has denied the allegations.

The court had on August 6 reserved its order on Tejpal's plea. The Goa Police had claimed that there were "contemporaneous" WhatsApp messages and e-mails which showed that the Tejpal magazine founder should face trial in the case. The police, while opposing Tejpal's plea seeking quashing of charges framed against him, had told the court that there was "ample material" warranting trial in the case.

Tejpal had moved the apex court, challenging the Bombay High Court's December 20, 2017, order dismissing his plea seeking quashing of charges.

Earlier, he had claimed that there were inconsistencies in the video recordings and the statements of the victim recorded under section 164 of CrPC before the magistrate. The trial court in Mapusa town of Goa had framed charges against Tejpal under various sections of the Indian Penal Code, including alleged sexual harassment and provisions related to rape.

Probe reveals 13 cattle died in Kanji House

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

The report of the probe which was ordered by Chief Minister Trivendra Singh Rawat through the Dehradun mayor Sunil Uniyal 'Gama', it has been clarified that 13 cattle had died in the Kanji House during July whereas 102 cattle deaths were registered during the same time in the area under the purview of the Municipal Corporation of Dehradun (MCD). Another such probe was ordered by Dehradun district magistrate C Ravishankar.

Municipal commissioner Vinay Shankar Pandey said, "We had stated earlier as well that the cattle MCD rescues and takes to Kanji House are those who are either aged or have been injured in an accident. It is not surprising giving their conditions that they do not survive for longer periods. In the post mortem report of two of the cows we in fact also found large amount of polythene which is injurious for the health of any cattle for that matter."

It is pertinent to mention here that considering the limited capacity of the Kanji

MCD to conduct first meeting on enforcement of polythene ban

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

Municipal Corporation of Dehradun (MCD) has postponed its proposed meeting on enforcement of polythene ban from August 23 to August 27. The meeting with different associations will be conducted in three phases.

MCD Vinay Shankar Pandey said, "The date of the meeting in the first phase is fixed and now it will be conducted on August 27. Members of residents' welfare associa-

House, the MCD with the help of state government has identified a place at Selauqui which is to be developed into a full-fledged Gau-Sadan on the lines of the Mathura Gau Sadan in Uttar Pradesh. It is also important to mention here that the 102 cattle deaths registered in the MCD records are lower than the actual number of cattle deaths in the city. A senior officer at MCD said that this data only includes the number tions, merchant associations, market associations including from Dharmpur, Paltan Bazaar and Moti Bazaar and non-governmental organisations will be invited to this meeting."

He further added, "In the second phase councillors will be invited and in the third phase members of hotel association, petrol pump associations and industries associations will be invited. The idea is to take suggestions from each sector to effectively stop the use of polythene," said Pandey.

of those cattle carcasses which were removed by the employees of MCD from the city area.

Many a time people pay some private individual to bury the cattle, of which MCD has no record. In order to establish some responsibility MCD is working on a proposed plan in which every cattle will be marked with a micro chip so that the owner can be identified if any harm befalls upon the cattle.

SSP's traffic plan fails to decongest Doon city

TRAFFIC JAM REMAINS A PROBLEM FOR PEOPLE IN VARIOUS AREAS OF DEHRADUN

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

About a fortnight ago the district police started working on a new traffic plan for Dehradun. However, even after several experiments and instructions issued by Dehradun Senior Superintendent of Police (SSP) Arun Mohan Joshi, citizens are still facing traffic congestion on some of the main junctions in the city.

According to a district police official, the carrying capacity of the city is limited, but the number of vehicles operating here is increasing every day. Again on Monday, citizens had to face traffic congestion at several junctions in the city especially on Doon Hospital Chowk, MKP Chowk and Buddha Chowk.

Several commuters going from Doon Hospital Chowk said that the intersection is not even half kilometres from the SSP office and collectorate but the traffic situation here is getting worse. Police responsible for regulating traffic at the junction lack coordination. Five roads meet at this junction including the MKP road, court road, Doon Hospital road, road connecting to Tehsil Chowk and the road leading to Buddha Chowk, which results in heavy flow of traffic from all routes at once. The lack of coordination among traffic police personnel at the junction adds to the already existing chaos and congestion at the place.

Another major reason for traffic congestion at such places is encroachment and illegal parking. SSP Joshi though has said that police station in-charge concerned will be working consistently against the encroachers in their area, but parking near MKP college and encroachment done by vendors there till this date has not been addressed by the authorities.

When asked about these issues SSP Joshi said, "We are trying to make the best traffic management plan keeping the existing infrastructure in mind. For this we will soon be having a meeting with the education secretary who is presently not here. For the smooth operation we have instructed the force to accord 95 per cent of its focus on ensuring smooth traffic operation.

As for the enforcement we think it is important to first encourage and inform people about following traffic rules."

It is pertinent to mention here that soon after taking charge SSP Joshi made it clear that making a proper traffic management plan and strict action against drug mafia and con men are his priorities, but the majority of population in the city is still waiting to see some visible change in the traffic plan.

work, Kaushik told officials to expedite appointments to vacant posts. He said that sanitation and solid waste management should be facilitated in new areas brought under the purview of urban local bodies. Urban development secretary Shailesh Bagauli, director Vinod Kumar Suman and other officials were present in the meeting.

Cong holds Sadbhawna Yatra on Rajiv Gandhi's 75th birth anniv

PNS ■ HARIDWAR

To mark the 75th birth anniversary of former Prime Minister, Late Rajiv Gandhi, the Congress party workers launched a Sadbhawna Yatra led by Congress State party president Preetam Singh from Dehpura chowk to Jairam Ashram here on Monday.

Leader of opposition in Uttarakhand Legislative Assembly and other party leaders also participated in the rally. Through the rally, the Congress made an outreach to its party members in the entire country.

A massive turnout of Congress workers raising slogans, hailing the "sacrifice" of Rajiv Gandhi marked the main roads of Haridwar leading to the highway crisscrossing the major intersections in the city.

The Congress party flag was hoisted in Pandit Govind Ballabh Pant park by Congress state party in-charge Anugrah Narayan Singh, leader of opposition in the Vidhan Sabha, Indira Hridayesh and Congress Sewadal state president Rajesh Rastogi followed by singing of Vande Mataram.

Addressing the rally, the party state in-charge said, "On the call made by Rahul Gandhi, the Sadbhawna Yatra has been taken out throughout the country. Rajiv Gandhi had dream of 21st century India. With a spirit of bonhomie, the day is celebrated by Congress party leaders to encourage national integration, peace, love and communal harmony among the people of all religions."

Dressed in white khadi dress and caps the Congress workers pledged for the emotional oneness and harmony of all, irrespective of caste, region, religion or language, resolving all differences through dialogue.

Hridayesh said that Rajiv Gandhi's oft quoted words which inspire every Indian are that India is an old country, but a young nation and like the young everywhere, we are impatient.

She quoted him saying, "I am young and I too have a dream. I dream of an India, strong, independent, self-reliant and at the forefront of the front ranks of the nations of the world in the service of mankind."

Death toll rises to 12 while 14 still missing in Uttarkashi

State undertakes rescue and relief operations in affected areas

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

The death toll due to disaster caused by heavy rain in the Mori Tehsil of Uttarkashi district on Sunday has reached 12 while 14 persons are missing. The State government has launched rescue and relief operations by land and air, using three helicopters to supply relief materials in affected areas and transport the seriously injured to the government Doon Medical College hospital in Dehradun.

According to the State Emergency Operation Centre (SEOC) a total of 12 deaths have been confirmed while 14 persons are confirmed missing. These include three dead and two missing in Arakot village, seven dead and two missing in Makudi village, one dead and four missing in Sanail village, one dead and five missing at Nagwara near Tikochi village and one missing in Snol village. About 60 small and big domesticated animals have also reportedly died in the affected areas. Teams comprising personnel of National Disaster Response Force (NDRF), State Disaster Response Force (SDRF), Indo Tibetan Border Police (ITBP), district quick response team, Disaster Mitigation and Management Centre search and rescue, police from Uttarakhand and Himachal Pradesh, fire service and district officers along with medical team comprising four doctors, three pharmacists and two ward boys and veterinary team have been deployed in the affected areas. Three helicopters including one advanced light helicopter of the Indian Air Force were mobilised for rescue and relief works. Eight injured persons referred to Dehradun were air lifted and admitted to the GDMC Hospital.

Disaster management secretary Amit Singh Negi informed that the heavy rain had caused landslides and road damage in the affected areas. The national highway division and Public Works Department were able to restore the Tyuni-Arakot national highway for traffic. Three helipads have been set up in the affected area with communication set up also being established at Arakot. Three relief camps are being operated in and around Arakot. Rations, medicines, tents and various other basic relief materials were transported to the affected areas. About 12 villages have been directly affected by the disaster. Teams were travelling on foot to establish contact with residents of a few remote villages not contacted yet, he added.

SDRF inspector general Sanjay Gunjal informed that since some of the affected areas border Himachal Pradesh, police and officials from the neighbouring state were also involved in the rescue and relief efforts. The State is in constant touch with the Shimla superintendent of police.

Later in the evening, the chief secretary Utpal Kumar Singh held a meeting to review rescue and relief efforts in the disaster affected areas. He directed officials concerned to ensure that connectivity, supply of drinking water and electricity are restored swiftly. Relief materials and medicines should be air-dropped in areas not yet reached by relief teams. Further, arrangements for cremation of those who have died should be made according to the sentiments of family members, he said.

Shah seeks detailed report on disaster, assures all necessary help

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

Asking Chief minister Trivendra Singh Rawat to provide a detailed report on the status of disaster in Uttarakhand, the Union Minister of Home Affairs, Amit Shah has assured all necessary assistance from the Centre to the State. The chief minister met the union minister in the national capital on Monday. He informed Shah about the loss of lives and cost of damage wreaked by disaster in the state so far this year. While meeting the Union Minister, the Chief Minister informed him that so far a total of 32 people had died in various places due to disaster in the state this year. According to a preliminary estimate, the State has suffered damage amounting to ₹175 crore due to disaster, said Rawat. Seeking a detailed report on the status of disaster in the state, the Union Minister assured the Chief Minister that the Centre would provide all necessary assistance to the State.

Ganga water level recedes after crossing danger mark

PNS ■ HARIDWAR

The water level in the Ganga which had crossed the danger level and reached 295.5 metres on Sunday midnight and at 3 AM on Monday, started receding later on Monday morning. After 9 AM the Ganga water level came down to normal on Monday giving much respite to the city residents. However the situation in areas where water had entered the residential colonies and agricultural fields continued to be problematic. Flood alert sounded in villages continued on Monday and all flood posts continued to monitor the situation during the day with rescue operation in some parts of Aikkad village in Laksar Tehsil.

The torrential rains which started from Saturday night and continued till Sunday caused havoc in the city. To add to the woes the continuous rainfall in mountainous areas raised the Ganga water level upto the danger mark. Speaking to The Pioneer, Irrigation department executive engineer of upper Ganga canal, Dinesh Kumar said, "At around 3 AM on Monday, the Ganga water level had reached 295.5 metres, a metre above the danger mark of 294 metres. But on Monday morning at 9 AM, it started receding and the water level was reported at 293.90 metres."

The district administration had issued flood alert in low lying areas of Pathri and Aikkad villages. The disaster management team rescued a truck trapped in broken embankment of a seasonal river flowing through Aikkad Kalan village. The villages of Allawalpur, Subhashgarh, Dinarpur, Sehdevpur, Chitti koti, Dandi, Bukkanpur and other villages were. The villagers alleged that despite their complaints for the past two years to Public Works Department the repair of broken embankment was not carried out.

Mohan Sachdeva, of Allawalpur said, "All our Gram Panchayat members had written collectively to PWD for repair works to be carried out along the seasonal river which overflows during monsoon season but no action has been taken. The heavy vehicles like tractors trolleys often get stuck when water level increases making it impossible for anyone to cross the area. After being marooned for two days, there was some relief on Monday afternoon." The disaster management officer Meera Kaintura said, "Due to intermittent rains, no casualty has been reported. On Monday situation has become normalised in most of the areas, barring few low lying areas of Pathri and Laksar Tehsils. The control room is constantly monitoring the water level and villages' situation."

Administration relocates people living on river banks

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

After the alert issued by a state meteorological centre, the Dehradun district administration has taken precautionary steps to temporarily shift people living on riverbanks to safer locations. The level of water in rivers such as Tons, Chandrabhaga, Rispana and Bindal has increased considerably in the past 48 hours. However, many people living on the banks of these rivers are still reluctant to relocate temporarily.

Dehradun district magistrate C Ravishankar said, "After receiving warning of increased water level from several areas instructions were issued to relocate the people residing near the banks to more secure locations. Some of these locations are government buildings, some are Ashrams and few are private."

Dehradun Senior Superintendent of Police (SSP) Arun Mohan Joshi said, "Soon after receiving warning we coordinated with our local units. The relocation in Rishikesh on Sunday evening went on smoothly. The teams are ready and are instructed to stay on high alert."

It is pertinent to mention here that state meteorological centre has stated that this monsoon season already the percent of rain is 125 per cent higher than the usual. The next likely heavy rainfall is to occur on August 23 and 24. Authorities have been asked to stay on high alert.

Dengue menace continues; 17 cases reported

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

With the district health department reporting 17 new cases of the disease on Monday, the menace of dengue in the provisional state capital Dehradun is continuing unabated. The number of dengue affected patients now has jumped to 432.

The district vector borne diseases officer, Subhash Joshi said that teams of the health department visited Dalanawala police station and police lines on the day. He said that the teams detected the larvae of Tiger mosquito from the coolers and other places. Joshi said that the water from coolers was decanted and the information about dengue was provided to the policemen and their families. Incidentally many police personnel of the city have fallen prey to this vector borne disease. Joshi added that teams of health department and Municipal Corporation of Dehradun (MCD) are visiting the affected areas and activities like fogging and spread of insecticides are being undertaken apart from spreading awareness on preventive measures to be adopted for the disease. He said that people should ensure that the breeding places of mosquitoes inside their homes and vicinity are destroyed.

Closed ICU of GDMC to restart from today

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

The Intensive Care Unit (ICU) of the Government Doon Medical College (GDMC) hospital which was closed after water seeped into it, would become operational on Tuesday. The Medical Superintendent (MS) of the hospital, Dr K K Tamta said that the leakage has been repaired and a new pipe line has been laid in the ICU. "We have detected the problem and sorted it out. We have placed the beds again in the ICU and from Tuesday the ICU would start functioning normally."

It is pertinent to mention here that on July 24, the administration and the patients faced problems when water leakage was reported in the ICU. The leakage was detected and repaired then. However on August 15, the leakage resurfaced which forced the hospital authorities to shift two beds out from the ICU. The problem however aggravated later and the hospital administration was forced to shift all the patients from the ICU. The administration now claims that it has fixed the problem and the ICU would start functioning again from Tuesday.

The ICU in the GDMC hospital has five beds. Interestingly apart from All India Institute of Medical Science (AIIMS) Rishikesh, the ICU of GDMC hospital is the only facility in government sector in Dehradun.

Committed to improve academic environment & teaching standard in all Govt schools: Edu Min

Education, Sports and Panchayati Raj Minister Arvind Pandey begin his stint as cabinet minister in the Government of Trivendra Singh Rawat with a series of decisions and actions especially in the education department. Though some of his decisions didn't find favour with many, in the last two and half years he was able to leave his mark with positive and far reaching decisions in the field of education, Panchayati Raj institutions and sports. In June this year, a personal tragedy shattered the Minister known to keep a tough demeanour when his young son died in a car accident but Pandey showed remarkable strength of character in overcoming the shock. In an interview with The Pioneer, the Minister talked about his objectives and achievements.

high priced text books of private publishers. I am committed to improve educational environment and teaching standard in all government schools. Most recently, long standing aspiration of people of state got fulfilled when Uttarakhand got permanent recognition from Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI).

Even after the implementation of Transfer Act, transfer of teachers has remained a contentious issue. In recent transfers, teachers have complained that norms were not followed. How would you address this issue?

The complaints of teachers would be sorted out. On transfers of those teachers who want to remain in schools located in hard to access (Durgam) areas, the department is planning to make change in the act by taking them in the committee headed by chief secretary under rule 27 of the Act. I have made it clear on many occasions that the transfers would be done strictly according to the norms. I am under no pressure on transfer and want to assure everyone that transfers would be fair and transparent.

What are the things which you list as your achievements in last two and half years of being a cabinet Minister?

I am working with dedication to fulfill whatever responsibility is assigned to me. It is for the people to judge my performance. When I took over as a minister, the education department was plagued by strikes and all sort of wrong things were heard on transfers. Our government has brought in transparency in functioning, implemented transfer act and curbed the menace of strikes. To remove disparity between government and private schools we have ensured that all schools compulsorily implement the books of National Council of Education Research and Training (NCERT). It has brought relief to the parents bogged down by the burden of

When one looks at the deployment of teachers it becomes evident that the teachers are disproportionately placed. In the schools located in the cities and peripheral areas more teachers are posted than those located in rural and distant areas. Is there any plan to remove this disparity?

I have sought block-wise data of all primary schools and asked the officers to mark the schools where more than required teachers are posted and those with less number of teachers. The posting of teachers would be made according to student strength and disparity would soon be removed.

You are a strong advocate of putting a rein on the fees of the private schools but nothing concrete is emerging. When will the much talked about Fee Act come into existence?

We have formed district level committees to grade the private schools in accordance with the facilities provided by them and infrastructure they have. It is obvious that we cannot have the same grading for schools located in Dehradun and Chamoli. After we receive report from districts, the Fee act would be brought. We want that the parents get relief from exorbitant fees charged by the private schools.

When would the centralised kitchen scheme, the Akshay Patra Yojana to provide mid day meal to students of government schools start?

Work on construction of these kitchens with the help of Hans Foundation at different places is currently in progress. From January these kitchens would start functioning. Apart from providing hot nutritious meals to students, the scheme would save the time and energy of teachers.

Recent amendment in the Panchayati Raj Act has debarred candidates having more than two children from contesting the elections. A minimum educational qualification norm was also added. What is the purpose behind these changes?

These changes were done with an objective of keeping the interest of the nation on forefront. With online payments and other features, the Panchayats are witnessing a big change in recent times. It is time now for what we call e-Panchayats. By imposing minimum educational qualification we want that educated people become Panchayat representatives. The two child norm would give a positive message of controlling population. It would also have long term positive effect.

Recently the BCCI has given permanent recognition to Uttarakhand. Your role in bringing together cricket association antagonistic to each other is considered instrumental in this development. How do you visualise future of cricket in the state now?

First of all I would like to offer my sincere thanks to the BCCI chief Vinod Rai for understanding the plea of Uttarakhand and granting recognition to Uttarakhand. When I met with the request and told him that recognition to Uttarakhand cricket would help the budding cricketers and stop their migration, he understood our position. Here I want to make it clear that I didn't bat for any cricket association but my only objective was to serve the cricket of Uttarakhand. With BCCI's recognition talented players of the state would get a platform.

You are known to be a fitness freak. How do you keep yourself fit?

I have a habit of brisk walking. Every day I walk at least 10 kilometres. I spend time in the gym too. I believe that only a healthy body can house a healthy mind.

Tanwar: Hooda has committed act of 'indiscipline'

MANOJ KUMAR ■ CHANDIGARH

A day after 'Parivartan Maharashtra' of former Haryana Chief Minister Bupinder Singh Hooda dagers are drawn in Haryana Congress with State party chief Ashok Tanwar dubbing it "an act of indiscipline".

Haryana Congress president Ashok Tanwar on Monday said that he will bring the matter to the notice of the party high command soon. Referring to the rally, he said that conspiracy is being made by some leaders to weaken the Congress party in the state. "The formation of 25-member committee by Hooda, to decide the future course of action regarding the formation of new party, was an illegal act."

Hooda has no right as the party leader to constitute a committee. Indiscipline in the party will not be tolerated at any cost," he said, adding State in-charge of the party must take cognizance of this matter.

The State Congress Party chief stated that the announcements made by Hooda in his personal capacity are apparently an attempt to weaken the party. "The poll-related manifesto is a document of a party and not an individual. The announcements which were made in the rally are an attempt to weaken the party," he maintained. "A man who had been Chief Minister of Haryana for 10 years is lashing out at the Congress which is apparently an act of indiscipline. Indiscipline should not end," he said. Tanwar said that normally party declares its manifesto and not an individual. Congress is He said Hooda was made Chief Minister by the party for 10 years. "One may be a big leader, but should remain disciplined in the party. It is a pressure tactic. Party will not tolerate it," he said, adding "people of the state are with the member committee, comprising 12 of the Congress's 17 state legislators and 13 other leaders, to deliberate on his next move.

His sharp criticism of the Congress on that score triggered speculation whether he was on his way out of the party he served for more than four decades. The 71-year-old, however, had said he would not quit the party, but constitute a committee of 13 MLAs who would decide the future course of action. "My party has lost its way a bit. It is not the old Congress any more. When it comes to issues of patriotism and self-respect, I will never compromise," Hooda had said.

In the Rohtak Mahara, Hooda had declared election manifesto, promising the people to raise old-age pension to ₹5,000 per month; waive off farmers' loans; restoration of pension scheme; provision of ₹2,000 per month to women in the Below Poverty Line (BPL) category; free electricity up to 300 units to BPL families; recruitment of 50,000 sanitary workers and simplification of the GST; free travel for women on Haryana Roadways buses; providing wheat and rice at Rs 2 per kg for BPL families also having four Deputy Chief Ministers, including one from Scheduled Caste (SC) and Brahmin community, on coming to the power.

Hooda's sudden divergence from the party line is seen as move to arm twist the party. Over the last weeks, their supporters have been demanding that the former Chief Minister be made the chief of its State unit, replacing Ashok Tanwar, who currently holds the post.

25 dead, over 500 stranded, losses of ₹574 crore

PNS ■ SHIMLA

At least 25 people have died and over 500 stranded in different parts of Himachal Pradesh as several roads have been blocked by landslides and flash floods, in the State.

Even as heavy rains have already claimed 25 lives in Himachal Pradesh over the past two days, the meteorological department on Monday predicted that the downpour is likely to continue in parts of the state during the next 24 hours.

The local Indian Meteorological Department said the state received the highest ever rainfall for a 24-hour period, since records began almost 70 years ago which caused damage to roads.

"The State as a whole received 102.5 mm and this was 1,065 per cent more than normal for this day," the IMD said in a statement on Sunday. This is the highest ever rainfall in 24 hours over the State, it added.

The higher reaches of Kullu, Kinnaur and Lahaul-Spiti districts experienced snowfall. Keylong town in Lahaul-Spiti district too saw snow. Officials said efforts are on to clear the roads and restore traffic to move them to safer places. The National Disaster Relief Force is diverting the water accumulated in Kangra district's Nurpur subdivision by digging an alternative route. Meanwhile, the State Government has released ₹ 15 crore to different departments for undertaking restoration works damaged due to torrential rains during the last two days in the State.

Addressing the Deputy Commissioners through video conferencing from Shimla on Monday, Chief Minister Jai Ram Thakur said that as many as 25 people lost their lives in the State due to heavy rains during the last two days. He said that the State has suffered total losses of about ₹574 crore during the current monsoon.

The Chief Minister said that the State Government has released ₹10 crore to Public Works department, ₹ 4 crore to Irrigation and Public Health department and ₹1 crore to HPSEBL for undertaking restoration works. He directed the Deputy Commissioners of the State to immediately assess the damages in their respective districts and submit the report to the Government at the earliest. Thakur directed the Deputy Commissioner Shimla to lay special thrust on restoration of roads in the apple belt so that the growers do not face hardship in transportation of their produce to the markets. He said that trees declared as dangerous must also be identified and removed to avoid any eventuality. He directed the Deputy Commissioners to ensure speedy restoration of electricity, water supply and communication networks in their respective districts.

LK Advani among other Mins visit Jaitely in AIIMS

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Veteran BJP leader LK Advani, Union Minister Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi, Uttarakhand Chief Minister Trivendra Singh, UP Governor Anandiben Patel and Bihar Deputy Chief Minister Sushil Kumar Modi visited AIIMS (All India Institute of Medical Science) to enquire former Finance Minister Arun Jaitley's health condition.

Among other prominent leaders Union Ministers Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi and Thaaarchand Gehlot, BJP national general-secretary Arun Singh and party MP Maneka Gandhi also visited the hospital on Monday.

Jaitley has been put on extracorporeal membrane oxygenation (ECMO), which is used for patients whose lungs and heart are incapable of operating on their own, hospital sources said.

The AIIMS administration has not released a single medical bulletin regarding his health condition since August 10.

Till now many leaders from all the parties including Himachal Pradesh Governor Kalraj Mishra, Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) joint general secretary Dr Krishna Gopal and former Samajwadi Party leader Amar Singh, Union Minister Piyush Goyal, Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar and BSP president and former Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Mayawati, Union Health Minister Harsh Vardhan, BJP's Satish Upadhyay, Jammu & Kashmir Governor Satya Pal Malik, Congress' Abhishek Singhvi and Jyotiraditya Scindia and Air Force chief Air Marshal Birender Singh Dhanoa had visited the hospital to know about his well being.

The Additional Principal Secretary to Prime Minister, P K Mishra, and Cabinet Secretary Pradeep Kumar Sinha also visited the hospital in the evening.

Health Minister Harsh Vardhan had said on Friday, "Doctors at AIIMS are doing the best they can."

President Ram Nath Kovind, Union Home Minister Amit Shah and Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath had visited AIIMS on Friday to check on the leader's health.

In May this year, Jaitley was admitted to AIIMS for treatment. Jaitley, a lawyer by profession, had been an important part in Prime Minister Narendra Modi's Cabinet in the BJP Government's first term. He held the finance and defence portfolios, and often acted as the chief troubleshooter of the Government. Jaitley did not contest the 2019 Lok Sabha elections presumably because of his poor health.

He had undergone a renal transplant on May 14 last year at AIIMS with Railways Minister Piyush Goyal filling in for him in the Finance Ministry at that time.

Jaitley, who had stopped attending office since early April last year, was back in the Finance Ministry on August 23, 2018.

In September 2014, he underwent bariatric surgery to correct the weight he had gained because of a long-standing diabetic condition.

House of the Parliament for the first time, including cricketer Gautam Gambhir, Union Minister Smriti Irani and Ravi Shankar Prasad and Bengali actresses Mimi Chakraborty and Nusrat Jahan Ruhi.

The Centre has recently passed the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Amendment Bill, 2019. The Government provides residential accommodation to its employees, Members of Parliament and other dignitaries while they are in service or till the term of their office on licence basis.

As per the existing allotment rules, after the expiry of the terms and conditions of the licence, the occupants of such residential accommodations become unauthorised for staying in such accommodation and should vacate the same.

However, it is often seen that the unauthorised occupants do not vacate the Government accommodation on expiry of the terms and conditions of the licence as per the rules and uses dilatory tactics to withhold the accommodation.

President Ram Nath Kovind had on May 25 dissolved the 16th Lok Sabha with immediate effect on the recommendation of the Union Cabinet after the Modi Government was formed for a second term.

The decision to provide temporary accommodation to new MPs at guest houses has been taken in an apparent bid to reduce the cost of accommodation for the MPs.

Previously, newly-elected MPs were allowed to stay in five-star hotels till the time they were given their officials in Lutyens' Delhi, the sources were quoted as saying.

Solicitor General's wife cell phone snatched near Mandi House

SHEKHAR SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

Cocking a snook at law enforcing agencies in the national Capital, two bikeborne ruffians snatched cell phone of wife of the Solicitor General (SG) of India, Tushar Metha.

The daring incident occurred in front of FICCI auditorium near Mandi House area on late Sunday evening when SG's wife Aparna Mehta was having a stroll.

The snatching in the highly secured New Delhi district sent the cops into a tizzy and police teams were detailed to identify the snatchers and bring them to justice. "Police have registered a case under relevant sections of Indian Penal Code (IPC) at Barakhamba Road Police Station and police teams have initiated manhunt to nab the accused" able with Delhi Police shows that there were around 3,808 cases of snatching reported till this year's July 31st as compared to last year which were around 3,814. There was a minimal reduction of snatching incidents.

According to sources, as cell phones are the easiest to steal, there is an organised chain of thieves and receivers across the city. "Most of the thieves are in contact with engineers who quickly changes IMEI number of the phones to evade police arrest and to get a good price in the market," said the sources.

Investigations carried out by the The Pioneer revealed a well oiled chain of mobile snatchers and receivers. An engineer who did not wish to be identified displayed how the myth about IMEI's invulnerability can be dispelled in just 10 minutes. He arranged a device called a flasher. It resembled a regular Wi-Fi router. He opened the files contained on the disc on a computer and then used the flasher to connect the phone to the computer. After this was achieved, all that needed to be done was to change the digits. "Once the IMEI is replaced with another number, the phone's origin can never be traced. This means there could be two or more devices with the same IMEI in circulation, depending on the number inputted. And all that the unscrupulous operators charge for this work is ₹400-800 per handset. The flasher itself costs ₹3,000-5,000," the engineer added.

"It is easier to junk the IMEI in phones that run on the cheaper MTK processor. Handsets fitted with Qualcomm Snapdragon are harder to crack, though they are not totally tamper-resistant. Changing the IMEI number of Apple handsets is, however, not possible because the flashers do not work on iPhones. Apple phones are almost always dismantled and their parts sold separately," said a police official.

Rashid was filed after she posted a series of tweets on Sunday, claiming that in Kashmir, armed forces are entering house during night, picking up boys, ransacking houses, deliberately spilling rations on the floor and mixing oil with rice.

Rashid in a series of tweet also claimed that she got to know about it from the people coming from Kashmir. "In Shopian, 4 men were called into the Army camp and "interrogated" (tortured). A mic was kept close to them so that the entire area could hear them scream, and be terrorized. This created an environment of fear in the entire area," Rashid had tweeted. Srivastava said the allegations made by Shehla are absolutely false, baseless and concocted, which is evident from the fact that she has not produced any voice recording of the alleged torture or name, date, time or any other specific information about the afore-said alleged incident.

Plaint against Shehla for maligning Army with fake news, probe begins

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

A Supreme Court lawyer, Alakh Alok Srivastava, has filed a complaint with Delhi Police against activist Shehla Rashid, leader of Jammu & Kashmir People's Movement, for allegedly spreading fake news against the Indian Army. Police said they are verifying the facts and investigating the matter.

In a letter to the Delhi Police Commissioner Amulya Patnaik, the lawyer said that Jawaharlal Nehru University's Ph.D scholar Shehla Rashid should be booked for deliberately spreading fake news with intent to incite violence and malign the army's image in Jammu and Kashmir.

Confirming about the letter, Anil Mittal, Public Relation Officer (PRO), Delhi Police said the complaint has been forwarded to special cell of Delhi police who are now verifying the facts mentioned in complaint. The complaint against Rashid was filed after she posted a series of tweets on Sunday, claiming that in Kashmir, armed forces are entering house during night, picking up boys, ransacking houses, deliberately spilling rations on the floor and mixing oil with rice.

Rashid in a series of tweet also claimed that she got to know about it from the people coming from Kashmir. "In Shopian, 4 men were called into the Army camp and "interrogated" (tortured). # Cong to show unity on Rajiv Gandhi's birth anniversary

PNS ■ RANCHI

The Congress party is planning to showcase unity on the 75th birth anniversary of late Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi with several Congress heavyweights likely to attend the function. The State Congress would hold the 75th birth anniversary of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi on August 20 on a grand scale. State Congress in-charge RPN Singh will be the Chief Guest at the function to be held at State Congress headquarters. The Congress leadership through the function will also try to give a unity message as in past few months internal bickering within the Congress has even reached on street. On the first week of August, the two factions of Congress workers fought at the party office gate with one faction trying to force its entry into the office while the second group seeking to stop them. The two factions belong to former State Congress president Ajoy Kumar and other lead by Subodh Kant Sahay and others. The ruckus outside the Congress party office was controlled after police intervened to disperse the two warring factions.

The street fighting at Congress office even reached Congress high command in Delhi with State Congress unit president Ajoy Kumar even tendering his resignation from his post. Ajoy's resignation had once again exposed sharp differences among the party leadership with Ajoy in his letter comparing his Congress colleagues with even worst criminals. The Congress by observing the birth anniversary of Rajiv Gandhi wants to build the bridge. State Congress senior leader and Congress legislative leader in Assembly Alamgir Alam said, "There is no major differences within Congress leadership in State at present as all the differences have been sorted out." Alam said, "Our state in-charge RPN Singh, leaders such as Subodh Kant Sahay, Sukhdeo Bhagat and others are going to attend the function." The optimistic Congress leader claimed that the issue of finalisation of new name of State Congress president will shortly out this week. Alam said, "On August 20, the State Congress is going to observe the birth anniversary of Rajiv Gandhi followed by national level function in Delhi on August 22. After August 22, the names of Congress president will be finalised." The Congress legislative party leader said that Rajiv Gandhi birth anniversary will be celebrated across the State both at district and block level. The Congress is going to celebrate Gandhi's birth anniversary as Digital India as the foundation of Digital India was laid by Rajiv

Gandhi. All India Congress Committee (AICC) general secretary KC Venugopal through a circular to state unit chiefs and general secretary in-charges has conveyed that Rajiv Gandhi's vision for youth, his impetus on science and technology and move to strengthen Panchayati Raj were exemplary.

CONG-LED UPA ERA DEAL

ED summons PC in ₹70,000 cr AI scam

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Enforcement Directorate (ED) has summoned former Union Finance Minister P Chidambaram for questioning in connection with its money-laundering probe into the purchase of 111 aircraft for Air India during the Congress-led UPA Government. The deal, made more than a decade ago, saddled the struggling national carrier with mounting losses. Sources said, Chidambaram has been asked to depose before the investigating officer of the case on August 23 at an Enforcement Directorate office here to record his statement. Chidambaram's grilling has been sought in the cases which relate to losses suffered by Air India due to an alleged multi-core aviation scam and irregularities in fixing air slots for international airlines. The senior Congress leader is likely to be questioned regarding the purchase of 111 aircraft, then worth nearly ₹70,000 crore, for Air India. Finance Ministry is responsible for fiscal prudence in expenditure of Government funds. In 2011, the Comptroller and Auditor General (CAG) had questioned the rationale behind the government's decision to order 111 aircraft, 48 from Airbus and 68 from Boeing, for Air India and Indian Airlines for about ₹70,000 crore in 2006. The ED has already grilled former Civil Aviation Minister Praful Patel in connection with these decisions. The leads gathered from Patel's questioning have prompted the ED to summon Chidambaram in order to take the probe forward, the sources said. Besides being at the helm of the Finance Ministry, Chidambaram was also heading an Empowered Group of Ministers (EGoM) for these deals and his questioning is expected to help the agency in understanding the decision-making process undertaken by the government for the acquisition of the aircraft. Chidambaram is also being probed by ED in two separate money-laundering cases related to Aircel-Maxis deal and INX Media bribery scam and has been questioned in these cases multiple times in the past. Chidambaram had earlier described the ED action in the Aircel-Maxis case as a "crazy mixture of falsehoods and conjectures". The ED and CBI have sought custodial interrogation of Chidambaram in INX Media case. However, he has been granted protection from any adverse action by the Delhi High Court.

Govt prepares action plan to end manual scavenging

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs (MoHUA) on Monday came out with a detailed action plan that included modernising the sewerage system and facilitating mechanical cleaning so as to prevent human entry into sewers and septic tanks. The action plan also suggested storm water drainage tax by the municipal bodies within the maximum capping for Municipal Tax. Manual scavenging takes many forms, from clearing local garbage to 'cleaning' toxic sewers. The number of deaths of sanitation workers, while cleaning septic tanks and sewers, has risen despite a ban on manual scavenging. 620 cases have been reported since 1993, of which 88 occurred in the past three years. Of the 15 States and Union Territories that submitted details to the Ministry, Tamil Nadu has the highest number of sewer deaths with 144 cases, followed by Gujarat with 131. Of the 88 cases reported in 2017, 2018 and 2019, till June 14, compensation was pending in 52 cases. This is despite the Prohibition of Employment as Manual Scavengers and their Rehabilitation Act, 2013, banning anyone from employing people to clean sewers. Manual scavenging refers to the south Asian practice of humans cleaning dry toilets and sewage systems. Addressing a workshop at Vigyan Bhawan, Union Social Justice and Empowerment Minister Dr. Thawar Chand Gehlot on Monday said that the action plan envisages identification of appropriate technological interventions in the field of mechanised cleaning so as to eliminate manual entry into sewers and septic tanks. "Swachh Bharat is indeed the first step towards Swasth Bharat," Gehlot said. Union Minister for Urban Development Hardeep Singh Puri said his Ministry has made efforts to devise systems, processes and technologies for mechanical cleaning of sewer and septic tanks. In a bid to prevent water logging during monsoon, the Ministry has also issued suggesting regular monitoring at the exit and entry point of water for the presence of undesirable collection of rubbish, polythene/paper bags blocking the passage of water and in every way ensuring free unobstructed flow of rain water during monsoon. The plan also suggests that all storm water management facilities should be inspected by a qualified engineer after every six months. In many cases, it was observed that due to delay in silt collection, significant proportion of the silt finds its way back in the drain. It is necessary that after cleaning of drains, silt should be lifted and transported to the disposal sites. As far as action plan for drainage system is concerned, it said that all drains should be desilted thoroughly before onset of monsoon. According to action plan, the CCTV camera can be used for drainage pipes of diameter 100-900 mm. Above 900 mm diameter (man entry and restricted also), there are limitations due to lighting problems and camera line angles. Continuous advances are being made in the quality and range of TV cameras," the agencies should ensure that all the drains are in good condition and works regarding, reshaping or profile correction, wherever required is completed well before the onset of monsoon," the guidelines said. A storm water drainage system consists either network of drains connected with junctions or underground conduits connected with manholes and related appurtenances such as gutters, detention tanks, detention basins, pumping stations and outfall structures. Housing and Urban Affairs Secretary Durga Shanker Mishra, Social Justice and Empowerment Secretary Nilam Sawhney and Municipal Commissioners of 500 cities attended the workshop.

PM to embark on two-day visit to France from Aug 22

Defence, nuke energy key issues

New Delhi: Prime Minister Narendra Modi will pay a two-day State visit to France from August 22 during which he will hold talks with French President Emmanuel Macron to strengthen strategic ties in key sectors such as defence, nuclear energy, maritime cooperation and counter-terrorism. From France, the prime minister will proceed for bilateral visits to the UAE and Bahrain, and will return to the French city of Biarritz on August 25 to attend the G7 Summit where India has been invited as a partner country. Modi will arrive in France on Thursday evening and straightaway head for talks with Macron, who will also host a working dinner for the visiting leader. The next day, he will meet French Prime Minister Edouard Philippe, address an event of Indian community at the UNESCO headquarters in Paris, and also inaugurate a memorial for Indian victims of two tragic air crashes of Air India flights in 1950 and 1966. The discussions are expected to broadly focus on reaffirming France and India as the key strategic and like-minded partners, strengthening of defence partnership, including future defence acquisitions, progress on setting up of the Jaitapur nuclear power plant, convergent, strategic and political priorities in the Indo-Pacific and related operational needs, Secretary (Economic Relations) T S Tirumurti said. Strengthening bilateral engagement in key areas of strategic cooperation such as defence, nuclear energy, space, counter-terrorism, maritime security, cyber security, International Solar Alliance, and joint development projects will also be deliberated upon, he said at a media briefing. The deliverables of the visit are expected to be in the sectors of skill development, space, information and technology and cyber. PTI

Green nod for real estate projects in 60 days soon, says Javadekar

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Union Environment Minister Prakash Javadekar on Monday said the Government is planning to cut down the whole process of environmental clearance to real estate projects to 60 days in a few days to come. "Environmental clearances used to be stumbling blocks before 2014. Average time taken to clear projects was 640 days. After we took over, we made processes so easy that now it takes only 108 days for a project to get environmental clearance," he said at the 15th National Convention of NAREDCO held here. National Real Estate Development Council (NAREDCO) was established as an autonomous self-regulatory body in 1998 under the aegis of Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs. Javadekar emphasised that small procedural delays can be done away with, without compromising on environmental clearances. "Our priority is both environmental protection and development, only then our country can become a five-billion dollar economy. That's why the suggestions of institutions like NAREDCO are very important," he said. The Minister further added that his Ministry is in the process of issuing standard conditions for every project such as waste recycling and water harvesting as per the size of the real estate project. And these conditions will not be more than 10. "We are bringing about a regime change. We will introduce fewer conditions, but ensure their fullest implementation. If need be, we will amend the law so that you get the ease of doing responsible business. Because freedom is never a one-way street," the minister said. He further informed that the Union Environment Ministry is also in discussion with states to make the environmental process smoother and less time consuming. "The states must realize that the Centre has delegated environmental protection to them so that they do it with a sense of responsibility," he added.

Manmohan Singh elected unopposed to Rajya Sabha

PNS ■ NEW DELHI/JAIPUR

Former Prime Minister Manmohan Singh was elected unopposed to the Rajya Sabha from Rajasthan on Monday. He was declared elected unopposed as the deadline for the withdrawal of nominations for the bypoll ended at 3 pm. Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot congratulated Singh on his election to the Upper House of Parliament. Returning Officer and Assembly Secretary Pramil Kumar Mathur made the announcement. The government's chief whip, Mahesh Joshi, received the election certificate on behalf of Singh. The former PM was nominated by the Congress while the BJP did not field any candidate for the bypoll, necessitated due to the death of Rajya Sabha MP Madan Lal Saini. The former PM had filed the nomination papers on August 13. Singh was a member of the Upper House of Parliament from Assam for almost three decades. He was a Rajya Sabha member for five consecutive terms from 1991 to 2019 and the country's prime minister for two consecutive terms between 2004 and 2014. His tenure in the Rajya Sabha ended on June 14 this year and he could not be re-nominated as the Congress party did not have the strength to send him to the Upper House from Assam again and there was no other vacancy left. Rajasthan has 10 Rajya Sabha seats. Remaining nine seats of Rajya Sabha from the State are with the BJP.

Moin Qureshi's aide Satish Babu Sana granted bail

New Delhi: A court here on Monday granted bail to businessman Satish Babu Sana, a close aide of controversial meat exporter Moin Akhtar Qureshi, in a money laundering case. Granting bail, special CBI Judge Anuradha Shukla Bhardwaj directed him to furnish a personal bail bond of ₹5 lakh and one surety of like amount. "The accused is, however, directed to co-operate in investigation and make himself available as and when called for by the investigating agency. He shall not leave the country without the permission of the court...," the court said. Allowing bail to Sana, the court observed that Qureshi, who is the main accused in the case, is already out on bail and Sana's role in the case is no graver than him. During the course of hearing on Saturday, lawyers KTS Tulsii and Mohit Mathur, appearing for Sana, contended that his statements cannot lead to his arrest as he was a witness and there is immunity provided to a witness that no such answers that a witness is compelled to give can subject him to be arrested. Tulsii argued that the entire case against Sana is based on his statements given in 2017 and 2019. He argued that ED victimised him for filing complaint against Asthana. Opposing the submissions, Special Public Prosecutor DP Singh argued: "We made him accused from a witness as the investigation reveals many things against him... we don't want to go to a stage where he is not telling anything and still enjoying the immunity." In October last year, on the basis of a complaint filed by Sana, CBI registered a case against the Special Director Rakesh Asthana on charges of accepting bribe to dilute the case. This incident led to the tussle in CBI between Asthana and Director Alok Verma. IANS

FROM THE SUPREME COURT

CBI granted time till Sep 6 to complete Unnao probe

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday granted to the CBI time till September 6 to complete the investigation into the road accident in which the Unnao rape survivor and her lawyer were critically injured and two of her aunts killed. The apex court, which had earlier given two weeks to the CBI to complete the probe, extended the time while noting that the probe agency has done "extensive investigation" in the case so far. "We have perused the report of the CBI. This court, vide order dated August 1, 2019, granted an outer limit of two weeks to complete the investigation. On perusal of the report, we find that the CBI has done extensive investigation but some loose ends need to be tied up," a bench of Justices Deepak Gupta and Aniruddha Bose said. "Some of the investigation relates to collating and analyzing the material already collected, especially the electronic records. Most importantly the statements of the victim and her counsel who was driving the car could not be recorded till date, as they are both not in a position to make a statement," the bench noted in its order. While seeking four more weeks to complete the probe, CBI told the top court that statements of rape survivor and her lawyer have not been recorded yet and it wants to analyse certain electronic evidence collected so far during the probe. The court also directed the Uttar Pradesh government to pay ₹5 lakh to the lawyer who is in a critical condition and undergoing treatment. PTI

NARCO TEST OF TRUCK DRIVER, HELPER LIKELY

New Delhi: The CBI is likely to carry out narco-analysis on the driver and helper of the truck that hit the Unnao rape survivor's car and may seek their custody in this regard. The CBI had subjected the two to a lie-detector test in its office and brain mapping at Forensic Science Laboratory, Gandhinagar, Gujarat but the report is still awaited.

Ravidas temple demolition orders can't be given political colour: SC

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday said that its orders on the Guru Ravidas Temple in Tughlaqabad forest area here cannot be given a "political colour". A bench comprising Justices Arun Mishra and MR Shah asked Governments of Punjab, Haryana and Delhi to ensure that no law and order situation is created politically or otherwise during the protests over the demolition of temple. "Everything cannot be political. Our orders can't be given a political colour by anybody on earth" the bench said. The Delhi Development Authority (DDA) had demolished the temple pursuant to the orders of the apex court, which had on August 9 observed that "serious breach" had been committed by Guru Ravidas Jayanti Samaroh Samiti by not vacating the forest area as earlier ordered by the top court. Following the demolition of the 500-year-old temple, protests have been staged at several places in Punjab and Delhi by political parties and members of the Dalit community. At the outset, Attorney General K Venugopal, who was on August 13 asked by the top court to assist in the matter, said that demolition of the temple has been carried out by DDA in pursuance to the top court order and a total of 18 organisations are staging protests against it. Venugopal told the bench that since a number of organisations have been agitating against the demolition it is very difficult to pinpoint a particular person behind the protests. To this, the bench said in case the matter is settled, there is no difficulty but if the issue remains the court will take up the matter for hearing. Venugopal then told the bench that it should direct governments of Punjab, Haryana and Delhi to ensure that the law and order situation is maintained. PTI

Protection from criminal prosecution not available to PSU employees: SC

New Delhi: Protection from criminal prosecution is not available to those public servants who work in Government companies or undertakings, the Supreme Court held on Monday. Under section 197 of Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC), prior sanction from a competent officer is needed to prosecute a Government servant for alleged criminal act done in discharge of his official duty and "no court shall take cognizance of such offence except with the previous sanction". A bench of Justices Navin Sinha and AS Bopanna dismissed the appeal of Bharat Sanchar Nigam Ltd (BSNL) against the High Court's order which had held that protection of sanction under CrPC was not available to the officers of public sector undertakings like BSNL even if they fall within the definition of state under Article 12 of the Constitution. BSNL and its officers, who were of the cadre of Indian Telecommunication Service and later shifted to the PSU, had challenged the order of a trial court initiating criminal prosecution against them in the case. # Delhi CS asked to appear over policy on holding social functions in hotels

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday directed the chief secretary of Delhi to be present before it on August 23 and apprise it of the policy on holding social functions and marriages in hotels, farm houses and low density residential area here. A bench comprising Justices Arun Mishra and Deepak Gupta gave this direction after the counsel appearing for the Delhi Government told the court that they have finalised the policy and the Delhi Development Authority (DDA) would have to notify it. "Our policy is final. Now, the DDA will have to notify it," the Delhi government's counsel told the bench. The bench then asked the DDA's counsel, "How much time is required to notify this?" The DDA's counsel said she would have to seek instruction on the issue. She said the policy was not submitted to the DDA yet. "As per my instructions, we (Delhi government) have sent it to the DDA," the Delhi government's lawyer said, adding, "Within two days, I will make sure that it (policy) is sent to the DDA." PTI

Army was ready for conventional war with Pak after Balakot: Sources

New Delhi: In the run up to Balakot strikes, Army Chief Gen. Bipin Rawat very categorically conveyed to the top brass of the Government that his force was fully ready to deal with any ground offensive by Pakistan and take the battle into the enemy territory, top military sources said. The Indian Army was prepared for a conventional warfare with Pakistan which would have included going inside Pakistan, the sources told PTI. The Army chief informed the government about preparedness of his force when it was considering various options, including carrying out an aerial raid, to punish Pakistan for the Pulwama terror attack. Gen. Rawat, at a closed door interaction with a group of retiring Army officials on Monday, said the force was combat ready for any hostilities from Pakistan Army after the Balakot strikes, the sources said. Explaining Gen. Rawat's comments, a military official said what the Army Chief meant was that Indian Army was ready to take the battle into Pakistan. PTI

NO LAVISH WEDDINGS IN KASHMIR

No-frills ceremonies hit mutton sellers, wazwan cooks, jewellers

PTI ■ SRINAGAR

Business in Kashmir's traditional wedding season has taken a massive hit as thousands of couples have opted for simpler ceremonies instead of lavish ones due to the restrictions imposed in the Valley following the scrapping of Jammu & Kashmir's special status.

Mutton suppliers, camping agencies, jewellers, wedding wear outlets and wazwan (traditional Kashmiri cuisine) cooks have seen their business slump due to the no-frills wedding ceremonies after restrictions were imposed on the movement of people.

The local dailies, which have managed to publish a few pages, have a dedicated page for advertisements related to the cancellation of wedding invitations extended to relatives and friends.

"Due to the prevailing situation, the wedding ceremony of my son, Yasir Bashir, will be held in a simple way. The invitation for the walima function (banquet performed after marriage ceremony) is hereby cancelled. Inconvenience caused is regretted," reads an advertisement published in a local Urdu daily.

There are over 25 such advertisements in Monday's edition of the daily, which is being circulated to limited areas in the city. Many families have opted to convey the message of cancellation of wedding feasts through a private television news channel, which has been running both video and text messages free of cost for the benefit of the people.

Abdul Majid, whose daughter is getting married on Saturday, said, Gulistan News is available both on the cable network as well as on various platforms of direct-to-home (DTH) television. "It becomes easier for people like us to reach maximum persons on the guest list as there is no other way to reach them," he said.

The wedding cancellations have severely affected the businesses, which sustained on these occasions.

According to Mushtaq Ahmad, a wazwan cook, an average wedding feast has a guest list of 600-800 people. "But now, we are asked to cook for only 150-200 people, which basically constitutes the close family and friends of the groom or the bride."

Ahmad said his earning had reduced by more than 70 per cent due to the prevailing situation. "This is the fifth wedding season since 2008 that has been hit by turmoil or other reasons, like the flood in 2014," he said.

As the guest lists have shortened significantly, it directly translates to a lesser quantity of mutton being consumed at the weddings, which are usually lavish even in moderation. "I would supply eight-10 quintals of mutton for a wedding usually. But now the demand has reduced to around two quintals," said Mohammad Altaf Ganaie, a wholesale mutton supplier who had stopped importing livestock due to the slump in demand.

Mohammad Iqbal, a jeweller, said gold sales dipped by more than 50 per cent this season as people stopped spending lavishly on jewellery for the weddings. "Gold in our society is normally considered to be an investment, but with earnings already hit and no end in sight to the uncertainty, the bride's family is buying just enough jewellery to make the wedding ceremony look normal," Iqbal said. Bilal Ahmad Rather, who provides tents and decoration to the wedding functions, said people associated with his trade had been the worst hit. "As the guest lists are very short, people do not need tents and they are avoiding to install decorative lights on their houses in view of the situation," Rather said. "It has effectively meant little to no business for people like me."

How J&K officers are fighting Pak canards

FIANS ■ SRINAGAR

With a full-fledged information war breaking out following the abrogation of Article 370 of the Constitution that gave Jammu & Kashmir special status, several officers of the state have put themselves on the front line of fighting fake news propaganda, mostly emanating from Pakistan.

Among the officers of Jammu & Kashmir busting fake news, the contributions of IPS officer Imtiaz Hussain and Srinagar District Magistrate Shahid Choudhary are particularly noteworthy.

Pakistan's Federal Minister for Maritime Affairs Ali Haider Zaidi on Sunday shared a 2017 video with a caption that falsely mentioned that it showed the sufferings of the people of Kashmir due to the policies of Prime Minister Narendra Modi-led Indian Government. "Let the world see what @narendramodi Govt is doing in #Kashmir. The #Hitler from the East rises while the world sleeps. @realDonaldTrump should consider imposing trade sanctions on India to control this monster before it's too late! #SaveKashmirFromModi #IndianHitlerModi," read the caption of the video.

Hussain did not take long to expose Zaidi's false propaganda. "This video is from August 2017 and the location is Panchkula, Haryana and not #Kashmir. People seen in the video are followers of Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh and were protesting against his arrest. @AliHZaidiPTI," he said in a tweet. Hussain also shared the links of the same video which was uploaded on YouTube in 2017.

On Monday, he again exposed how the troll army of the spokesperson of the Pakistan Armed Forces operates.

"If you want to understand how Ghafoora (@OfficialDGISPR) troll Army operates, check out this Twitter handle. There are thousands of these fake Twitter handles employed to create False Twitter trends to deceive the world," he tweeted.

Hussain acknowledged that the rumour mills were working overtime to peddle fake news as the enemies of the country are "disappointed by almost zero violence" following the abrogation of Article 370.

"Having dealt mobsters, rioters making murderous assaults on Cops/SFs during unrests of 2008, 10, 13 & 16 all sponsored aided abetted by Pakistan & its payroll community in Kashmir, this time we had to deal with fake news & rumour assaults: again mostly emanating from across border," he said.

Choudhary is also fighting false claims of scarcity of supplies in the Valley and issues related to administration.

Responding to claims that medical shops are shut in the valley and ATMs have run out of money, he said, "As many as 1166 medical shops are open. Cash machines have disbursed Rs 243.44Cr in last 4 days. All sorts of stocks being replenished as demanded. Agree, some people are still facing difficulties. We are trying to address every single problem flagged. Trust. #Srinagar."

He said officials in Jammu & Kashmir were making every possible effort to reduce inconvenience and enhance facilities in the State.

Didi alleges human rights violation in Valley

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

Alleging gross human rights violation in Kashmir Valley over the past one month or so Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Monday said the people of Jammu & Kashmir were facing untold hardship and that the treatment they were being meted was anything but humanitarian.

Tweeting on the occasion of World Humanitarian Day, Banerjee said human rights had always been a subject close to her heart. Praying for the people of Kashmir, the Chief Minister said she could not remain silent watching human rights being violated in the manner it was being violated.

Mamata who is also the president of the All India Trinamool Congress said, "Today is World Humanitarian Day. Human rights have been totally violated in Kashmir. Let us pray for human rights and peace in Kashmir."

The Chief Minister had been critical of the process the Centre's divided Jammu & Kashmir and scrap Article 370 and 35A and said the Centre should have discussed the issue with the local people before scrapping it.

Reminding that she had hit the streets on several occasions in the past for the because that the subject (human rights) was Champala Sardar rape case. While in the first case Paswan a Congress supporter from Hooghly remained traceless, never to return with allegations doing the round that he was beaten to death in police custody in the later case she launched a massive movement against a woman being raped by alleged CPI(MP) goons.

Incidentally repeated inquires led police nowhere even as the Marxists called the agitations as a part of her rabble rousing politics. During the Singur movement too she launched a massive protest movement against the CPI(M) in Tapasi Malik murder case which was subsequently handed over to the CBI without much breakthrough even as the CPI(M) alleged how a senior party leader was falsely framed and jailed in the case though nothing came out against him.

With Kashmir under lockdown, ISPR running Geelani's Twitter handle?

Srinagar: Despite the communications lockdown in Jammu & Kashmir since August 4 night, the Twitter handle of Hurriyat hawk Syed Ali Shah Geelani has apparently been active, putting out anti-India tweets regularly.

Tweets from the handle @sageelani were largely in praise of Pakistan and Major General Asif Ghafoor, the Director-General of the Inter-Services Public Relations (ISPR). The earlier Twitter handle @sageelani was suspended in June for its vitriolic anti-India and separatist content.

The current handle has been active on a daily basis, and there is every likelihood of it being handled from across the border. The handle reflects Pakistan's current thinking regarding the events in Kashmir after the revocation of its special status.

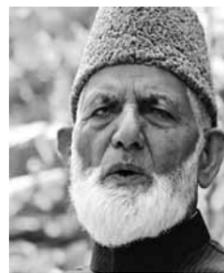

The tweets have no local content, which normally should have been available to a Kashmiri present on the ground.

Take for instance an August 4 tweet. It says "#IndiaUsingClusterBombs Pakistan we need your help!! #KashmirUnderThreat". Pakistan alleged that India had used cluster bombs on its civilians living along the border that day. The tweet is a give-away that the handle is being managed by the ISPR, the media wing of the Pakistan Armed Forces.

The handle specifically eulogises and thanks Asif Ghafoor, who is the head of the media wing. The ISPR is known to run fake pro-Kashmiri and anti-India handles to keep the separatist fire burning among the people of the Valley.

Separatist hawk Geelani is known not to run his Twitter handles. His earlier account, now suspended, was run by the

All Parties Hurriyat Conference (APHC). Geelani was put under house arrest, as numerous other separatist leaders, ahead of revocation of Article 370 that gave special status to Kashmir, and division of the State into two Union Territories — J&K and Ladakh. IANS

LoC bus service from Poonch to Rawalakot suspended, 42 PoK residents stranded

Jammu: The weekly Poonch-Rawalakot bus across the Line of Control (LoC) was suspended on Monday, following PoK's apparent decision to call off the service, an official said.

The bus service was suspended after authorities in Pakistan Occupied Kashmir (PoK) did not respond to call from their Indian counterparts to let the bus get across the border, he said.

"The cross-LoC bus service has been suspended. We had sent a message to PoK authorities for bus service today, but they did not respond," the official said.

Out of 42 PoK residents stranded in Poonch district of Jammu & Kashmir, permits of 27 people have expired.

The cross-LoC bus service was started along the Srinagar-Muzaffarabad route in April 2005 and the Poonch-Rawalakot road in June 2006 to facilitate trade and travel between the divided families of J&K and PoK. PTI

BSY all set to expand Cabinet after 20 days

KESTUR VASUKI ■ BENGALURU

Twenty days after he was sworn in as Karnataka Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa got the go ahead from the party high command and is all set to expand his Cabinet on Tuesday. After a humiliating and unprecedented political drama in the State, Yediyurappa is expected to induct 16 Ministers which include one independent candidate who supported the saffron party. Much to the embarrassment and humiliation to Yediyurappa, the BJP high command has finally given go ahead to expand the one man Cabinet on their terms and conditions.

BJP sources said after this exercise another Cabinet expansion will take place based on the list cleared by the party high command.

Yediyurappa took oath on July 26 as the Chief Minister of the State has to face the wrath of flood fury and single handedly worked in the hour of crisis without any Cabinet Minister. He is the first Chief Minister in the State to hold the three Cabinet meetings in 20 days without any Ministers in his Cabinet.

Yediyurappa who was the architect of operation Lotus has decimated the coalition led by the Congress and the JD(S) to take the hot seat and made Karnataka the door to his party BJP second time to enter South India.

Because of Yediyurappa's mass leadership and Lingayat community the saffron party had to dilute the age factor in the party rule book and made him the Chief Minister with many riders and humiliation.

Yediyurappa after getting clearance now has to face the pressure from Lingayat community and their mutts for plum posts in the Cabinet. He has also to take the demands of the Congress and JD(S) rebels who have sacrificed their posts to install the BJP Government.

Yediyurappa literally is walking on the razor edge with pressure from high command and also from other groups.

The saffron party sure to face the demands of the rebel MLAs who's mutiny helped bring down Congress-JDs government in the State. Since they have been disqualified, and are precluded from contesting the election (as and when they are held), the BJP is taking it easy on the issue. But if the court takes a different view from that of the Speaker, this equilibrium will be shattered for the BJP.

However, with no decision yet by the Supreme Court on 17 disqualified Congress-JD(S) MLAs, whose resignation from the Assembly paved the way for the BJP to gain power, the Chief Minister has no immediate compulsion to accommodate them.

West Bengal's 'Ambulance Man' battles eye ailment

Jalpaiguri: Karimul Haque, who won the Padmashree award in 2017 for extending "bike ambulance" services to residents of West Bengal's Jalpaiguri and Alipurdar districts, is suffering from an eye ailment. According to a private eye institute in Jalpaiguri's Malabar, Haque, who is in his mid-fifties, is having difficulty in binocular vision.

Binocular vision enables a two-eyed animal to perceive a three-dimensional image. The Padmashree awardee, with whom Prime Minister Narendra Modi had clicked a selfie and on whose life a Bollywood flick is being planned, told PTI on Monday that each monthly injection that he needs to cure his ailment costs him around Rs 12,000, and he is unable to bear the expenses.

"Though I am building a hospital in my village with the help of the locals, I have not yet received any help from State or Central Government apart from Rs 3.27 lakh donated by former Jalpaiguri MP Bhoj Chandra Burman," he said. PTI

Journo's death: IAS officer's driving licence suspended

PTI ■ THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

The driving licence of IAS officer Sriram Venkitaraman was suspended on Monday by the State Motor Vehicles Department, two weeks after a car driven by him had hit and killed a journalist here.

The Regional Transport Officer (RTO) here suspended the licence for one year in the wake of the accident, in which journalist KM Basheer had died at the spot after being hit by the luxury car driven by the officer allegedly in an inebriated condition.

Thirty two-year-old Venkitaraman, who was placed under suspension, was arrested and later let off after a magistrate court here granted him conditional bail.

There had been widespread protests over the delay in suspending his licence though the MV department officials had said necessary

Gorakhpur: As many as 139 people, including an SBSP MLA, have been booked in connection with the last week's violence in Kushinagar followed by the rumours of the death of a drug peddler in police custody, officials said on Monday.

On Saturday, protests broke out following the death rumour of drug peddler Naurang Singh. Roads were blocked, shops were ransacked and huts were torched while personnel from three

Karti seeks stay on shifting of case

PTI ■ CHENNAI

Congress MP Karti Chidambaram and his wife on Monday approached the Madras High Court terming as "erroneous" transfer of a case against them from an Economic offences court to a special one trying criminal cases related to MPs and MLAs. Karti Chidambaram said he was not a lawmaker at the time of the alleged offence in 2015.

Rahul deserted sinking ship: Shivraj

Jaipur: BJP leader Shivraj Singh Chauhan on Monday likened Rahul Gandhi's resignation as Congress president to the captain deserting a sinking ship and mocked the transfer of power in that party to Sonia Gandhi.

"It is like Ahmed's cap on Mohammad's head and Mohammad's cap on Ahmed's head," he said, commenting on the responsibility shifting to Sonia Gandhi who is now the interim president of the Congress.

The BJP national vice-president and a former Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister also said instead of Rahul Gandhi's resignation, the Chief Ministers of the states ruled by the Congress should have quit for "failing" to waive crop loans and provide unemployment allowance.

"We have heard that if any ship sinks, the captain makes efforts to save it till the last breath. But the Congress captain took the first plunge," Chouhan said, adding that there was no Congress president for several days. PTI

ISRO to inject Chandrayaan 2 into lunar orbit today

Bengaluru: In a significant milestone for India's Moon mission, ISRO will fire Chandrayaan 2's liquid engine on Tuesday to insert the spacecraft into a lunar orbit.

"It's tomorrow morning (tentatively between 8.30 am and 9.30 am). It's challenging," Chairman of Indian Space Research Organisation K Sivan told PTI on Monday on the operation to put the spacecraft in an orbit around the Moon.

Following this, there will be further four orbit manoeuvres to make the spacecraft enter into its final orbit passing over the lunar poles at a distance of about 100 km from Moon's surface, ISRO has said.

Subsequently, the Vikram lander will separate from the orbiter on September 2, according to the Bengaluru-headquartered space agency.

Two orbit manoeuvres will be performed on the lander before the initiation of powered descent to make a soft landing on the lunar surface on September 7, ISRO said.

Chandrayaan 2, launched on July 22 by GSLV MkIII-M1 vehicle, had entered the Lunar Transfer Trajectory on August 14 after final orbit raising manoeuvre of the spacecraft was successfully carried out.

The health of the spacecraft is being continuously monitored from the Mission Operations Complex (MOX) at ISRO Telemetry, Tracking and Command Network (ISTRAC) in Bengaluru with support from Indian Deep Space Network (IDSN) antennas at Bialalu, near Bengaluru.

All systems on board Chandrayaan 2 spacecraft are performing normal, ISRO said on August 14. According to ISRO, Chandrayaan 2 — India's second lunar expedition — will shed light on a completely unexplored region of the Moon, its South Pole.

"This mission will help us gain a better understanding of the origin and evolution of the Moon by conducting detailed topographical studies, comprehensive mineralogical analyses, and a host of other experiments on the lunar surface," the space agency has said.

"While there, we will also explore discoveries made by Chandrayaan 1, such as the presence of water molecules on the Moon and new rock types with unique chemical composition," it said. PTI

IAF rescues 2 fishermen Several rivers in spate in UP

An IAF chopper approaches to airlift two persons stuck on an under-construction bridge on the flooded Tawi River in Jammu on Monday

PNS ■ JAMMU

Indian Air Force (IAF) helicopter on Monday rescued two fishermen while two others swam to safety on their own, after the ladder which they were climbing snapped prompting them to jump in the gushing stream after losing their balance.

The fishermen, in the absence of any other help, swam to safety on their own. They were left stranded at the bottom of a pillar after water levels in the River Tawi started rising abruptly following incessant rain in the high hills. The IAF was called after State disaster response force (SDRF) and police personnel failed to reach the fishermen.

Defence PRO in Jammu said, "On receipt of request from Divisional commissioner Jammu, IAF had launched a rescue mission. He said the mission was led by Commanding Officer, Wing Commander Mukul Khare, with Co-pilot Squadron Leader Prem Pratik and Garud Commandoes Corporal Pahaar Singh and LAC Kedar.

The IAF team reached the site in two minutes and after making quick assessment of the situation the crew spotted all four civilians who were surrounded by the rising water levels in river Tawi.

During the rescue mission, luck failed two fishermen, as the ladder, lowered by the IAF helicopter snapped and they fell in the gushing stream after losing their balance. The duo swam to safety on their own.

Taking adequate precautions, IAF crew decided to lower a Garud Commando onto the site to help stranded fishermen.

A Garud Commando rappelled down onto the pier. The Garud then attached rappelling harnesses to both of them and then the helicopter lifted them up simultaneously. They were then dropped to a safe location near the Tawi Banks.

The fishermen later thanked IAF personnel for saving their lives. Large number of onlookers and motorists had parked their vehicles in the middle of the road to witness the rescue operations.

Flood-affected people shift with their belongings from a low lying area on the banks of the River Ganga in Prayagraj on Monday

Lucknow: The Ganga, Yamuna, Ghaghara and several other rivers were in spate in Uttar Pradesh on Monday due to heavy rain in neighbouring states, leading to floods in low-lying areas that left one person dead.

According to the Central Water Commission, the Yamuna is flowing above the danger mark in Auraiya and Jalaun; while the Ganga in Badaun; the Chambal river at Palia Kalan in Lakhimpur Kheri; and the Ghaghara are flowing above the red mark.

A fisherman is seen caught amid heavy rain on the swollen River Ganga in Prayagraj on Monday

According to officials, 16-year-old Anshu drowned in Etawah district due to release of water from the Kota barrage into the Chambal. District Magistrate Jitendra Bahadur Singh said the Chambal river was flowing two metres above the danger level due to the release of 2.5 lakh cusecs of water. "Due to floods, over a dozen villages are cut off from the district headquarters and crops in hundreds of acres have been damaged," he said.

Minister Dharmpal Singh said leaves of all officers and employees related to flood-related works had been cancelled till further orders.

While inspecting the central flood control room, the minister said 48 control rooms have been set up in the state to monitor flood situation arising due to release of water from

Farm loan waiver to Maha flood victims

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Loan waiver for farmers, new houses for those who lost their dwellings built under the PM Awas Yojana in deluge and free foodgrains are among the slew of relief measures announced by the Maharashtra Government on Monday for the people affected by the recent floods.

Heavy rain and floods battered several areas of western Maharashtra and the Konkan region earlier this month, with Kolhapur and Sangli districts bearing the maximum brunt.

Addressing a Press conference here, Chief Minister Devendra Fadnis said a committee will ascertain causes for the unprecedented floods and suggest measures to avoid their recurrence.

"The farmers who have lost crops on up to one hectare will get complete loan waiver," he said. The Government has also decided to pay annual rent of Rs 24,000 (rural) and Rs 36,000 (urban localities) in the flood-hit areas, where people have been forced to live in rented accommodation, the Chief Minister said.

The rent will be paid to the flood victims till their houses are rebuilt, he said. A committee is being set up under the chairmanship of a retired state government officer, Nandkumar Wadnere, to study the reasons for the deluge and suggest steps to avoid its recurrence in the

Wadnere is a retired principal secretary of the water resources department. "The State Government will also pursue (with the Centre) its demand of offering relaxation in terms of filing Income Tax and GST returns in the flood-affected areas. We will take up this matter with the Centre," Fadnis said.

He was speaking to reporters at his residence in south Mumbai after holding a meeting with senior bureaucrats. The beneficiaries of Prime Minister Awas Yojana, who lost their houses due to the floods, will get a new house as well as Rs 1 lakh as cash assistance, Fadnis said.

"We will also give foodgrains for the next three months free of cost to the flood-affected people," he said. Small traders and merchants affected by the floods will get 75 per cent amount of their total loss of up to Rs 50,000 as financial assistance from the State, he said. In another step, the Government has relaxed its norms for damage assessment and allowed the reports of talathis (local level revenue officials) and the village sarpanch to be considered as valid for awarding compensation, Fadnis said.

IL&FS case: ED summons Raj Thackeray Opp cries foul, says it is act of vendetta

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

In a move that evoked sharp criticism from the Opposition parties, the Enforcement Directorate (ED) summoned MNS chief Raj Thackeray for inquiries on August 22 in connection with a probe into an alleged IL&FS-related case.

The ED is investigating the alleged irregularities in the IL&FS's loans and investments worth over Rs.860 crore in M/s Kohinoor CTNL, a company funded by former Maharashtra CM Manohar Joshi's son Umesh Joshi.

Joshi has gone to the ED office on Monday. Apart from being issued a notice, the MNS chief has been asked to present himself in the ED headquarters here on Thursday.

M/s Kohinoor CTNL has been under ED scanner for being a prominent defaulter of IL&FS, amounting to an estimated Rs 135 crore.

Umesh along with son along with IL&FS and Raj Thackeray-owned Matoshree Construction had in

MNS calls Thane bandh on Aug 22

Mumbai: The MNS has given a call for a bandh in Thane, a satellite city of Mumbai, on August 22, in protest against the summons issued by the ED to its president Raj Thackeray in connection with the investigations into the alleged irregularities of the IL&FS's loans and investments. Calling for a Thane bandh on Thursday, MNS' Thane-Palghar president Avinash Jadhav said: "The case in which that our president has been summoned is more to do with the EVM scam that our president had flagged last month than the ED investigations. The ED is mounting pressure on our president to go slow on his agitation against the EVMs." PNS 2005 jointly had made a bid and bought for the NTPC's Kohinoor Mill's 4.8-acre property for Rs 421 crore.

In 2008, the IL&FS reneged from the deal and surrendered its shares for only Rs 90 crore, as against an investment of Rs 225 crore made in M/s Kohinoor CTNL. Following the IL&FS's exit, Raj also exited from the venture after selling his shares.

In 2017, M/s Kohinoor CTNL entered into an agreement to sell some commercial and residential properties in the upcoming Kohinoor Square Towers to IL&FS to settle outstanding of around Rs 500 crore in loans. Following this, IL&FS extended another Rs 100 crore to Kohinoor CTNL on which it defaulted. Jr Joshi's company is now under control of another company.

Raj, who was a staunch supporter of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, turned a vociferous critic more than two years ago. Though his party did not contest the Lok Sabha polls this year, Raj campaigned against the Modi-led BJP in the LS polls.

Raj was also instrumental in bringing the Opposition parties on one platform against EVMs. The Opposition parties have planned a march to the State Election Commission demanding the use of ballot papers in the State Assembly polls to be held in October this year.

The ED's notice and summons to the MNS chief is being seen as a political vendetta.

AIIMS needs fire lessons

Though lives were saved, poor compliance means years of precious research have been lost at the elite institution

The intensity of the massive blaze at the All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS), New Delhi, and the leaping fury with which it engulfed its floors in a matter of moments can be gauged from the fact that it took nearly three dozen fire tenders over eight long hours to be doused. Had not AIIMS been a prized institution, perhaps the emergency response wouldn't have been activated with as much urgency and wilfulness but the fact remains that even the safety protocols at the most aware of places had not been reviewed in three years, the last time being in 2016. AIIMS is one of the few hospitals in the city that has an interconnecting ramp to move patients in times of disasters. Perhaps this is why lives weren't lost in the country's premier hospital but imagine this in any other government facility and the mind addles to think what could be. Thankfully, the fire was confined to the pre-clinical and teaching blocks in the country's sought after facility but it did have all the hallmarks of a major disaster. And while AIIMS authorities are particular about top-notch research, they ought to be as sharp about protecting them. For though no human life has been lost, there has been immense loss of intellectual property in the long-term. Hundreds of blood samples at the micro-biology lab, rare viruses, crucial research, scholarly papers, case updates and expensive machines have been completely gutted. Findings are the basis of any medical breakthrough and the foundation for that is gone forever. And if administrators of such an evolved centre cannot be far-sighted about basic safety compliances or build efficiencies in awareness, then there is little to be expected of others. The Delhi Fire Department has said that some of the buildings, including the one that caught fire, did not have the requisite No Objection Certificate (NOC). The NOC is mandatory in the fire safety document, which is renewed every three years and certified annually.

Intriguingly, the general apathy to hospital and patient safety persists despite repeated outbreaks of fire at medical facilities across the country claiming scores of lives. Be it the AMRI episode in Kolkata, which claimed 92 lives, the ESIC Hospital in Mumbai or the SMU Hospital in Bhubaneswar, post-mortem has revealed how they blatantly ignored warnings and safety recommendations or pushed them out of the priority list in their greed to acquire more cutting-edge competitiveness in services. Yet patient care and safety in times of earthquakes, fire or floods do not even merit an intra-institution workshop. While the Delhi Police is waiting for the forensic report to deduce what led to this catastrophe, there are too many questions that demand answers. The hospital was not only ill-prepared but failed to adhere to the guidelines on hospital safety as mandated by the National Disaster Management Authority in 2016 and the National Building Code (NBC) 2005, which made the fire safety certificate mandatory for all buildings taller than 15 m. In fact, most Government buildings as also shop owners, restaurants, hotels, and other private buildings openly flout norms. Needless to say, the situation is all the more precarious in a hospital environment, which is home to those who are incapacitated and, thus, movement becomes challenging in case of a fire or any untoward incident. Even so, where building codes like alarms, sprinkler systems, hoses and insulation panels among others are in place, and where the builder claims to have used materials in line with the regulations, the actuals turn out to be about fake compliance, the certificates usually got by greasing palms of local officials. In cases where NOC has been obtained, rarely are fire safety audits carried out. Most post-fire probes have revealed how encroachments and tweaks in open areas have made it really difficult for the firemen to even get into the core zone. They say no tragedy is dark enough that the gloom cannot be lifted. Two babies were born amid the raging fire. Which means going forward, beyond taking action against those responsible for the incident to ensure accountability, there needs to be a strict penal clause, including deregistration of the establishment concerned, if the prescribed safety norms are not met. Third-party audits, too, must be made mandatory to avoid conflict of interest between the municipal authorities and Government officials. Unless a system of checks and balances is put in place, we will never internalise the spirit of risk containment and expose ourselves to unimaginable dangers. And that would be foolhardy indeed.

Concussion protocols

Several sports are taking the risks of head injury seriously. It's time that such norms go to lower levels of cricket as well

The sight of Steve Smith lying low after a bouncer from English bowler Jofra Archer must have sent a chill down the spine of those not only sitting at Lord's but also millions of spectators across the world. It was heartening to see Smith get up, something his Australian companion Phillip Hughes could not when he was struck by a bouncer in a domestic Australian game five years ago. However, nowadays, the worry is not just about immediate injuries but also the long-term consequences of head injuries, particularly concussions.

A concussion occurs when the brain bounces around inside the skull, leading to bruising of the brain tissue. This, as doctors and scientists discovered, particularly with players in America's National Football League (NFL), where there are regular head to head collisions, leads to a condition called Chronic Traumatic Encephalopathy (CTE).

CTE is dangerous as it leads to early onset of dementia and a much reduced quality of life given that brain matter decays after years of physical abuse. The NFL initially ignored the complaints that some players made but after some high-profile suicides and several studies, it quickly rectified its standards to deal with the issue. Soon after the issues with CTE were identified, several other sports — even ostensibly non-contact sports like cricket — took notice. New concussion protocols have been brought in that consider the short and long-term effects of brain injuries. A bruise on the brain takes a while to heal and the Lord's Test set an interesting new first with Marnus Labuschagne becoming the first 'Like for Like' substitution in the history of cricket. In India, cricketers legends Farokh Engineer and Nari Contractor, both Parsis, were one of the earliest to be injured. It was from here that wearing helmets during matches became a common protocol. Other sports like soccer have also brought in concussion norms that force substitutions of players who have had an incident that a doctor feels has them shaken up. These are all positive moves and must be commended. However, one must remember that facilities at the top levels of sport and those at lower levels are often dramatically different. Several of these concussion routines are poorly enforced at lower levels of sport. Sure, the top players in the top leagues and highest echelons of sport face bigger dangers in a more competitive space but that is no excuse to ignore the clear and present danger of head injuries.

With the economy sinking and a failed bid at the UNSC, Islamabad is in no position to declare war or embrace peace. It will do well to focus on its internal problems

SANDHYA JAIN

Fortnight after the Modi Government defanged Article 370, scrapped its illegal appendage, Article 35A and split the northern State into the Union Territories of Ladakh and Jammu & Kashmir, Islamabad is groping for a coherent response. In May 1998, when the then Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee stunned the world by testing five nuclear devices (Pokhran-II) and made India a full-fledged nuclear state, Islamabad swiftly showcased its own nuclear capability.

This time, most world capitals overcame their surprise and accepted the changes in Jammu & Kashmir as India's internal matter; Pakistan was supported by the colonial-minded Western media and China, which arranged "closed consultations" (unrecorded) in the UN Security Council. India's action was breathtaking in its simplicity and audacity: Operating within the Line of Control (LoC), it took long-suffering Ladakh to its bosom as a directly-administered Union Territory while Jammu & Kashmir provinces were declared a separate Union Territory with an elected legislature. The Union Home Ministry will have direct supervision of both.

Political parties and dynasties that misused Article 370 to nurture separatist sentiments in the Valley while neglecting Jammu and Ladakh regions have been downsized and separatists put on notice. A zero-tolerance policy towards terrorism was already in place. Caught between a perilous economic situation with the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) breathing down its neck on one side, and its jihadi groups on the other, Islamabad is in no position to declare war or to embrace peace.

Prime Minister Modi's artful jugglery has subtly avenged India's exclusion from the Afghanistan talks, making it difficult for Washington and Islamabad to put the Taliban in power in Kabul, with the acquiescence of Moscow and Beijing. This gives a breather to the Kabul regime that was also excluded from four-party negotiations. Washington is, thus, likely to remain trapped in the graveyard of empires because successive Presidents from George Bush Jr, Barack Obama and now Donald Trump would not consider gifting the impressive American arsenal to the Afghan Army, training it to use the same and making a dignified retreat.

Washington is unconcerned about the fate of President Ashraf Ghani, former President Hamid Karzai, their colleagues and supporters, should Taliban return to Kabul. But for India, this is a matter of deep concern. New Delhi's checkmate has put Islamabad in a bind: It cannot clinch the Taliban deal for Washington: It cannot compensate its jihadi mercenaries with escalated action in Jammu, Kashmir or Ladakh. Its position is unenviable: To exit a cul-de-sac one must go back the way one entered but this route is not open to Pakistan. In the Mahabharata, Abhimanyu did not know how to escape the chakravyu; Imran does but it is just not possible.

Scholars Asma Khalid and Mobein Jafar Mir of the think tank, Islamabad Policy Institute, blame Pakistan for failing to anticipate and challenge India's hollowing of Article 370 despite clear signals. In a report, Abrogation of Article 370: Implications & Policy Choices for Pakistan, they urge Islamabad to launch a diplomatic blitzkrieg against India by emphasising the "disputed status of Kashmir", highlighting India's alleged human rights excesses and the threats to regional stability.

In a clear sign of Islamabad's political bankruptcy and lack of choices, Khalid and Mir urged their Government to work for convening an urgent meeting of the UN Security Council to discuss the situation; at the "closed meeting" the four other permanent members said changing Jammu & Kashmir's Constitutional status is India's internal matter. Islamabad is unlikely to accept the suggestion to move the International Court of Justice (ICJ) after its resounding defeat in the matter of consular access to Indian citizen Kulbhushan Jadhav.

Khalid and Mir bemoan the loss of Jammu & Kashmir's separate Constitution, flag and autonomy in all matters barring foreign affairs, defence and communications. The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP), they say, always proclaimed its intentions in its election manifestoes and in 2019, reiterated its determination to annul the Kashmir-specific Articles 370 and 35A.

Article 35A, introduced via Presidential order under Article 370 in 1954, empowered the State Legislature to define permanent residents and barred Indians from outside the state from permanent settling, buying land, holding local Government jobs or winning education scholarships there. It also barred female residents (and their children) from property rights in the event of marriage outside Kashmir. The spirit behind this legislation was to protect the identity and culture of Kashmiris and preserve Kashmir's demographic character.

Interestingly, the scholars allege that the BJP's agenda is to secure demographic change in the Valley through resettlement of refugees from West Pakistan, Azad Kashmir and Chhamb. It is true that the BJP has been concerned about justice for the refugees, who entered Jammu & Kashmir during Partition and after, and the Scheduled Castes invited by Sheikh Abdullah to clean the city on promise of citizenship. However, Abdullah, supported by former Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, later denied them State subject status and its accompanying benefits. The issue is now redundant with the extension of the Constitution of India in its entirety to the new Union Territory.

Azad Kashmir is a sliver of Jammu Province, where pro-Pakistan radicals created trouble for Maharaja Hari Singh in 1946. Pakistan dubbed it as Azad Kashmir when it seized the area in 1947-48. Chhamb in Hamirpur district of Himachal Pradesh was an area of conflict in the 1965 and 1971 wars. Khalid and Mir charge that India will try to enhance Hindu representation in the Valley to reduce the influence of Kashmiri (read Muslim) political parties in the event of a plebiscite under UN auspices, an idea scotched by Kofi Annan in 2001.

Moreover, the Security Council Resolution of 1948 is explicit that Pakistan must withdraw all military and civilian personnel from the occupied territory who were not there before August 14, 1947; India is to retain its military in Srinagar to administer the plebiscite. Hence, the Pakistani scholars' attempt to project India as an occupying power in the kingdom of Maharaja Hari Singh is a non-starter.

Pakistanis fear that India's action of August 5, 2019, may impact the Indus Water Treaty as premature as India can achieve much by merely utilising its legitimate share of the Indus waters. As for the occupied territories, Home Minister Amit Shah has reiterated India's claim to the undivided kingdom, including Azad Kashmir, Gilgit Baltistan, and Aksai Chin. Pakistan would do well to focus on its internal problems.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Girl next door

Sir — This refers to the report, "Pati, Pati aur Woh actress no more" (August 16) by TN Raghunatha. In the death of Vidya Sinha, the Hindi film world has lost a talented artiste of yesteryear. Producer-director Basu Chatterjee, who has a number of light comedies to his credit, ventured upon to portray Vidya in middle class love stories through his Rajmangalika, followed by Chhoti Si Baat. Both were big successes.

However, it was difficult for her to get ranked in big budget films as her contemporaries like Rekha, Mumtaz, Zeenat Aman, Hema Malini, Shabana Azmi, Jaya Bachchan, Parveen Babi, Smita Patil, Tanuja, Sridevi and Jaya Pradha, were crowding the field. As a result, she managed to get meagre big films like Inkar (Vinod Khanna), Mukti (Shashi Kapoor), Karm (Rajesh Khanna), Tumhare Lye (Sanjeev Kumar) and Atmaram (Shatrughna Sinha). These circumstances compelled her to switch over to television.

The Damocles sword over Kashmir

This refers to the editorial, "India wins at UNSC" (August 19). It seems Pakistan's gambit of approaching the UN Security Council (UNSC) with the Chinese fronting for it has predictably ended in a whimper. Nothing came out from the closed door meeting at the UNSC. The panel talked out the special item without any clarity emerging on the collective position of the powerful body for it to be a diplomatic or a public opinion setback for India. The speech by Syed Akbaruddin, India's Permanent Representative to the UN, broke no new ground except helping the nationalist crowd feel good.

Still, 14 of the 15 members of the UN body were of the view that the changes resulting from the suspension of Article 370 were a matter internal to India and that issues arising between India and Pakistan must be resolved bilaterally. India succeeded in securing the support of Governments but this shouldn't mean it can rest on its diplomatic laurels. What is amazing is Chinese Ambassador to the United Nations, Zhang Jun, sullied his tongue with human rights. The world knows as to what is happening to the Uighur Muslims — more than a million people are

For the sake of peace

Sir — More than 63 people have been killed in yet another suicide bomb attack at a wedding hall in Afghanistan. Terrorism has once raised its ugly head there. Given past records and going by the worst of suffering that the civilians have suffered at the hands of many actors, including the Taliban and the Islamic State (IS), there seems to be no end to terrorism. Against this scenario, strong political measures and well-planned strategies are required to tackle the menace.

Simultaneously, it has been reported that peace talks have been going on between the US and the Taliban. Let such interesting developments take place. Any attempt at subverting the peace process should be stopped forthwith and nipped in the bud. America has been of great help in this direction and should be so till peace returns in Afghanistan.

A peace deal for Afghanistan must include a long-term strate-locked away in anonymous prisons without any rights to food, water and visits to family members and friends. It is the modern-day version of the Soviet-era Gulag. For better or for worse, India has chosen to walk a course where the Kashmir file will be a Damocles' sword, one that will constantly demand a price for unshathing it.

Integrate the Valley

Sir — This refers to the article, "Educational reforms must" (August 19) by CB Sharma. The actual scenario in the Valley will be visible only when restrictions are fully done with. Nevertheless, mainstreaming the youth will go a long way in restoring normalcy in the Valley. The process of counter-radicalisation and de-radicalisation must begin from schools. Nationalism and secularism should form an essential part of school syllabus and parents, too, must be counselled well about the bright future of their wards. And for that to happen, investment must start gradually. There should be job quotas so that the youth can see the positive change.

Creating micro entrepreneurs

The direct selling industry is a major contributor to the economy. Misinterpreting legislation to harass firms amounts to killing the goose that lays the golden egg

HEM PANDE

Direct selling is the business of peer-to-peer sale, in which people earn a commission on goods sold. It is the marketing, distribution and sale of goods and services as part of a network of direct sellers, other than under a pyramid scheme. This industry, which is a major contributor to the economy, is expected to grow at a rate of nearly five per cent every year and be worth ₹15,930 crore by 2021. Additionally, and perhaps more importantly, direct selling creates employment. As of now, direct selling firms employ over 50 lakh people in India, a number that is set to grow to 1.8 crore by 2025. And India needs these jobs. Facilitating job creation, inter alia, is one of the top priorities of the government.

This industry actively encourages the employment of women in large numbers and is a way to empower them by making them economically independent. Over 53 per cent of entrepreneurs engaged in direct selling in India are women. Stand Up India is a government scheme that incentivises female entrepreneurship by facilitating bank loans ranging from ₹10 lakh to ₹1 crore. Direct selling is not only helping create women entrepreneurs, it's also helping the government meet yet another of its stated priorities.

All that India's direct selling industry needs is an enabling ecosystem, one that enables companies to conduct business in an atmosphere free of prejudice and fear. As things stand, there are very few regulations in place for direct selling companies in India. The Model Framework for Guidelines on Direct Selling, issued in September 2016 by the Department of Consumer Affairs, Ministry of Consumer Affairs, Food & Public Distribution, remains the definitive document, guiding regulation of the direct selling industry.

The guidelines address every aspect of the direct selling business. They include detailed conditions for setting up and conducting a direct selling business, rules for protection of consumers, provisions for prohibition of pyramid and money circulation schemes, and for the appointment of a monitoring authority for direct sellers and direct selling companies. The guidelines are advisory in nature and though 12 states have adopted them, all states must do this and frame laws that govern direct selling in a just manner.

The guidelines clearly state that direct sellers and firms shall be guided by provisions of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986.

There are law enforcement agencies that look at direct selling companies through the lens of the Prize Chits and Money Circulation Schemes (PCMCS) Banning Act, 1978. This Act seeks action against any scheme that involves making easy money or getting money as the consideration for a promise to pay money based on enrolment of members to the scheme.

The Act goes on to say that no person shall promote or conduct any prize chit or money circulation scheme, or enroll members to any such scheme or participate in it or receive or remit any money in pursuance of such chit or scheme.

Classifying direct selling companies under this Act is erroneous, as they are not engaged in the business of seeking deposits from people and they do not guarantee returns. Direct selling companies provide people with the opportunity and the skill set to sell products and make a commission on sales.

The business model involves a product that needs to be sold, for any money to be made. Direct sellers have to work hard to make these sales. They have to use skill and intellect to make people buy their products, and they have to make sales continuously, in order for them to keep receiving commissions. Direct selling is by no means a deposit taking scheme and there is no guarantee whatsoever, of returns. It is, therefore, incorrect to see direct selling companies as falling under the purview of the PCMCS (Banning) Act, 1978.

There have been instances in some states where law enforcement agencies have harassed and even jailed representatives of direct selling firms by resorting to such misinterpretation. This is downright unacceptable and must stop. Misinterpreting legislation to harass direct selling companies (and their representatives) amounts to killing the goose that lays the golden egg. This industry can play a vital role in creating large scale employment opportunities to make India a nation of micro-entrepreneurs, a nation that is able to reap its demographic dividend to the full. The Model Framework for Guidelines on Direct Selling was designed because there was no law to regulate the direct selling industry, and in some states, the Act was being wrongly used to regulate direct selling. Direct selling is an industry that is growing fast with the emergence of new players and the guidelines lay a foundation for the industry to function properly. The guidelines are there to protect legitimate direct selling businesses and penalise those businesses that try to circumvent established industry norms.

The decision to abrogate Article 370 was taken amid high tension, lockdown, rumour-mongering and the echo of jackboots in Jammu and Kashmir

PANKAJ SARMA

POPIMONI SHARMA

The process of abrogation of Article 370 has been as controversial as the provisions of the Article itself. In its bid to reshape the political landscape of Jammu and Kashmir, the Modi Government, buoyed by the massive mandate it received to return to the seat of power for a second term, scrapped the special status granted to the volatile state by the Constitution of India.

As is the case with most decisions taken in a democracy, unsavoury or otherwise, in a matter of minutes a political slugfest ensued, following the announcement. While some, mostly those occupying the Treasury benches in the House, saw it as a "glorious day" for India, others called it a "dark day" for parliamentary democracy.

Nonetheless, the decision to abrogate Article 370 was taken amidst high tension, lockdown, rumour mongering and the echo of jackboots in J&K. The Centre restricted public movement by imposing Section 144 of CrPC and several important political leaders of the state were detained and put under house arrest. The Amarnath Yatra was suspended early, tourists were asked to leave and all forms of communication channels were paralysed, isolating the state from the rest of the country, ironically, all in the name of promoting better integration.

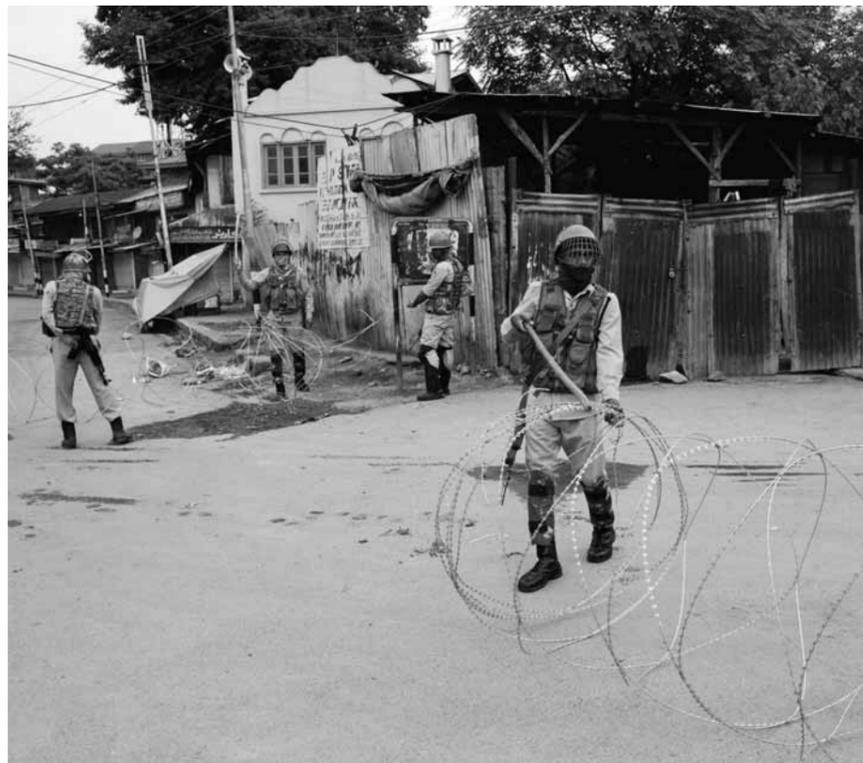

Article 370, which granted special status to J&K and Article 35A that empowered the state legislature to define the "permanent residents" of J&K and their special rights and privileges, has long been under the shadow of controversy. It has been a contested constitutional question whether the provisions of Article 370 were that of a temporary nature and was the Parliament ever empowered to abrogate it.

If we revisit history, it becomes evident from clause 7 of the Instrument of Accession signed by Maharaja Hari Singh that the state could not be compelled to accept any future Constitution of India. Furthermore, J&K was well within its rights to draft its own constitution and to decide for itself what additional powers to extend to the Central Government. Article 370 was designed to protect these special rights agreed upon under the Instrument of Accession.

Though Article 370 of the Constitution states that the President may, by public notification, declare that this article shall cease to be operative or shall be operative only with such exceptions and modifications and from such date as he may specify, however, provision to Article 370 clearly states that recommendation of the constituent Assembly of the state referred to in clause 2 of Article 370 shall be necessary before the President issues such a notification. But, since the J&K constituent Assembly later created the State's constitution and dissolved itself without recommending the abrogation of Article 370, the Article was deemed to have become a permanent feature of the Indian Constitution.

The Supreme Court (SC) as well as High Courts of states on several occasions have specifically stated that Article 370 of the Constitution is not a temporary provision. In Kumari Vijayalakshmi Jha vs. Union of India (2017), the Delhi High Court rejected a petition claiming that Article 370 was temporary. In 2018, the SC stated that Article 370 is not a temporary provision. Similarly the apex court in SBI vs. Zaffar Ullah Nehru (2016) held that J&K has a special status and that Article 370 is not temporary.

LOOKING AT THE LOCKDOWN IN THE VALLEY AND THE VIRTUAL IMPRISONMENT OF ITS PEOPLE IN BLATANT DISREGARD OF THEIR RIGHTS IN THE NAME OF GREATER INTEGRATION AND THE SO-CALLED DEVELOPMENT OF THE REGION, ONE IS PROMPTED TO ASK WHETHER WE HAVE PUSHED KASHMIR TO THE POINT OF NO RETURN

On the other hand, Article 3 of the Indian Constitution empowers the Parliament to amend the Constitution by a simple majority to change or alter the boundaries of a state but only when the Bill concerning the same is first referred to the state Assembly concerned for its opinion. But, the decision to create two new Union Territories, J&K and Ladakh, was taken by Parliament without referring the same to J&K Assembly.

As the Assembly was dissolved by an order under Article 356, there was no constitutional body to make the recommendations either under Article 370 (3) or under Article 3.

In such a context, a shortcut was found in the provision of Article 356 (1) (b) that allowed the President to declare that the powers of the state legislature shall be exercisable by or under the authority of the President while President's Rule was in operation in a state.

In the process, perhaps for the first time in the history of state reorganisation in India, a state was converted into two Union Territories, reversing the hitherto existing trend.

Needless to say that Indian federalism became the biggest casualty of our political leaders' desire to create history in one stroke. With the Valley being under lockdown and an unprecedented number of boots on the ground to maintain peace, one is tempted to question the hurried need for abrogating Article 370 without taking the people and the political leaders of J&K into confidence. Can the Centre justify the manner in which all this was done? In law, especially in Constitutional law, procedure is as important as the outcome. It may be recalled that the 1971 election of Indira Gandhi was declared null and void by the Allahabad High Court on grounds of a procedural illegality.

More than the act itself, what is worrisome, is the manner in which it has been dealt with and the subsequent lockdown of the Valley that put curbs on the liberty of citizens of the state.

Such a sensitive matter certainly needed political maturity on the part of the powers that be, who, would have done well to focus on confidence building measure, by way of discussion with key stakeholders.

Unfortunately, neither was the spirit of a deliberative democracy respected, nor was any consensus building attempt made in the frenzied hurry to abrogate Article 370.

The whole episode, therefore, not only undermined the very spirit of democratic functioning but also demonstrated the centralising tendency compromising the framework of asymmetrical federalism that the Constitution of India envisaged.

When the democratic State starts behaving and functioning like a majoritarian and authoritarian one, not only does the constitutional promise get shattered, the future prospects of unity and integrity look bleak.

This, therefore, should be a moment of introspection and not that of celebration. Looking at the lockdown in the Valley and the virtual imprisonment of its people in blatant disregard of their rights in the name of greater integration and the so-called development of the region, one is prompted to ask whether India has pushed Kashmir to the point of no return.

The answer is probably blowing in the wind in the bleeding Valley.

Unfortunately, we have no access to read the writing on the wall of the Valley, with the region being virtually cut off from the rest of the country and both the free movement of the fact finding teams to the state and reporting from the Valley being restricted to a great extent.

However, one can safely assume that in yet another bid to write history in one stroke, the country is going to learn the historic lesson that the project of national integration promoting greater unity and integrity calls for moving beyond the desire of over-centralisation and the idea of forced integration by focussing more on sharing of political power and simultaneously pursuing policies of greater accommodation.

The curious Orientalist paradox

According to the Jamaat-e-Islami chief, late Qazi Hussain Ahmad, there's nothing wrong in looking religious because the West is more appreciative of this. This was Orientalism imposing Orientalism but still looking towards the West for validation

NADEEM PARACHA

Pakistani and Indian cricket fans are some of the loudest and most colourful, especially when faced with TV cameras where they often like to scream with reckless abandon and make the most curious faces. They will tell you they are very passionate about cricket. This comes from how they proudly explain themselves as belonging to a 'very emotional nation' (jazbaati qaum). This is an entirely subjective claim. There is no science behind it, which proves that South Asians as a people are very emotional. Therefore, it is largely a perception. So, where did this perception originate? Most likely, in Britain which ruled India as a colony for nearly 200 years.

Take for instance the famous 1924 novel A Passage to India, by British author EM Forster. Dr Aziz, one of the Indian characters in it, is a Muslim and portrayed as an intelligent but emotional man. Most 19th Century British authors, such as James Mill and Charles Grant, repeatedly describe Indians as being overtly religious, irrational and emotional. The celebrated author and intellectual, the late Edward Said, would have denounced this as being stereotypes invented by Europeans to make Eastern societies seem backward.

Said was the founder of "post-colonial studies," the study of the cultural legacy of colonialism and imperialism. In 1978, he wrote the hugely influential book Orientalism, in which he demonstrated how Western writers have been concocting distorted views of Eastern cultures, especially ever since the 18th Century. According to Said, this 'Orientalism' was enacted as a depictive tool which was closely related to and formed by the West's imperial politics and ambitions.

Said wrote Orientalism when the US had already lost a devastating war in Vietnam and when Britain was facing a series of political, social and economic crises. The predicament in the West, further compounded by the 1973 Oil Crisis, generated an academic onslaught within Europe and the US that fervently attacked the modernist narratives of progress on which European imperialism and then the postcolonial dominance of the US were supposedly built. Such modernism was often critiqued in the context of how the West had distorted the image of Eastern cultures to facilitate political and economic exploitation. But, ironically, almost all of these critiques emerged in the West, even though Said was a Palestinian. However, he wrote his book while he was a professor at an American university. This idea of Orientalism generated great excitement among young 'post-modernist' academics. Nevertheless, when it did leave the confines of American and European academia and reach non-Western regions, mainly through Asian, African and Arab students studying in American and European universities, the idea began to be rapidly adopted by certain segments, who used it to justify violent attacks on anything they deemed 'Western'. The attacks were first intellectual and political in nature, in countries such as India, Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, China, Thailand, South Korea, Turkey, Indonesia, Malaysia, etc. Western civilisations were explained as being devoid of spirituality, morals, roots and values and only driven by sensual pleasures, profit and exploitation. This understanding of the West soon began to colour the rhetoric of Hindu nationalists, 'Islamists' and intransigent dictatorships. This is when some of the first poignant critiques of Said's Orientalism emerged. The most veracious critiques of Orientalism came from British historian Albert Hourani, British author RG Irwin, American scholar Nikki Keddie and, especially, the British-American historian Bernard Lewis. Lewis in 1993's Islam and the West and Irwin in Dangerous Knowledge, argue that Said treated the West the same way he accused the West of treating the East. They lamented that he saw the West as a monolith and in an entirely generalised manner, thus ignoring the different cultures and races which reside there. They also argued that Said cherry-picked his way to present his thesis, disregarding the fact that many Eastern cultures willingly adopt a variety of political, economic and social ideas introduced by the West. According to them, Said also ignored some strictly objective studies of Eastern societies by Western authors that had no 'imperial agendas'. In 2004, the philosopher Avishai Margalit and Dutch author Ian Buruma published Occidentalism: The West in the Eyes of its Enemies. They positioned it as an antithesis of Orientalism. They wrote that Orientalism's roots lay in the manner in which conservative and religious nationalists opposed the emergence of secularism, liberalism and capitalism during the colonial era. The Western responses were then appropriated as Orientalism by the 'progressive' intelligentsia in the West as a retort against modernisation. Occidentalism decries Orientalism as a myopic and reductive attack on Western modernity. Orientalism's academic glorification soon paved the way for it to be adopted by reactionary forces. Then there is also the case of "Self-Orientalism." This, too, can be seen as a critique of Orientalism because it sees cultures that have allegedly been 'Orientalised' or imagined by the West, becoming equal participants in the process. Tony Mitchell in the anthology Rogue Flows and WG Feighery in Critical Discourse Studies write that the most fitting way to explore Self-Orientalism is to study tourism industries in various Asian and African countries. To attract Western tourists, these countries gladly appropriate stereotypes supposedly constructed by the West. For example, in Sri Lanka and Thailand, the image of Buddhism as perceived by the West is recreated at specific tourist spots. In India, the region's 'legendary exotic spirituality', revolving around gurus and pundits, has for long been moulded for a Western audience. Self-Orientalism can also include the example of the 'passionate' way Pakistani and Indian cricket fans behave, a 'passion' constantly defined and reinforced by both South Asian and Western cricket commentators. Ultimately, Self-Orientalism actually exposes Orientalism as an idea, which eventually ends up doing what it accuses others of doing. Take for instance a 2003 interview that former chief of Jamaat-e-Islami, the late Qazi Hussain Ahmad, gave to Nawa-i-Waqt. To critique Musharraf's "enlightened moderation", he said there was nothing wrong in behaving or looking religious because the West is more appreciative of this than by those behaving like Westerners. This was Orientalism imposing Orientalism but still looking towards the West for validation. This was a Self-Orientalist idea of how the West appreciates a Muslim. The Orientalist paradox. # Sensex, Nifty rise for 3rd day in a row

Equity benchmarks Sensex and Nifty on Monday rose for a third straight session but gains were restricted due to lag-end selling in financial and auto counters amid growing concerns over economic slowdown and health of NBFCs.

After rallying 369 points during the day tracking positive global cues, the 30-share Sensex settled 52.16 points, or 0.14 per cent, higher at 37,402.49. It hit an intra-day high of 37,718.88 and low of 37,358.49.

The broader NSE Nifty too edged 6.10 points, or 0.06 per cent, up at 11,053.90. During the day, it swung between a high of 11,146.90 and low of 11,037.85.

Over the past three sessions, the Sensex has gained 444.33 points, or 1.20 per cent, while the Nifty has advanced 128.05 points, or 1.17 per cent.

However, a sense of caution still prevails among investors who are awaiting some measures from the government to arrest demand slowdown in various sectors which has been pulling down the economy.

Further, lingering concerns over the health of non-banking finance companies (NBFCs) made markets jittery, leading to sell-offs in financial stocks.

Top gainers in the Sensex pack included Sun Pharma, TechM, Axis Bank, L&T, Reliance Industries and ICICI Bank, which rose up to 2.66 per cent. On the other hand, Yes Bank, PowerGrid, ONGC, SBI, Mahindra and Mahindra, Hero MotoCorp, Tata Steel, Asian Paints and HDFC Bank were among the major laggards — losing as much as 3.46 per cent.

Sectorally, BSE consumer durables, capital goods, industrials, healthcare, energy and IT indices ended up to 1.57 per cent higher. While, BSE oil and gas, auto, metal and FMCG indices fell up to 0.59 per cent.

Banking stocks fell after Reserve Bank governor Shaktikanta Das ruled out ordering an asset quality review of the systematically important shadow banks for now.

₹ plunges to over 6-month low of 71.43; skids 29 paise

PTI ■ MUMBAI

The Indian rupee tumbled 29 paise to close at an over six-month low of 71.43 against the US dollar on Monday amid growing worries over economic slump and sustained foreign fund outflows.

Further, rising crude oil prices and strengthening of the US dollar vis-a-vis other currencies overseas also took toll on the Indian currency.

Forex traders said investors are awaiting government intervention to revive the slowing economy. There are expectations that the government would come out with sector-specific stimulus sometime soon.

Economic slowdown 'very worrisome', new set of reforms needed: Rajan

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Former RBI Governor Raghuram Rajan has called slowdown in the economy "very worrisome" and said the government needs to fix the immediate problems in power and non-bank financial sectors and come out with a new set of reforms to energise private sector to invest.

Rajan, who was Governor of the Reserve Bank of India from 2013 to 2016 but was denied a second term, also called for a fresh look at the way GDP in India is calculated as he referred to research by Narendra Modi government's former chief economist Arvind Subramanian about overestimation of growth rate.

"There are a variety of growth projections from the private sector analysts, many of which are perhaps significantly below government projections and I think certainly the slowdown in the economy is something that is very worrisome," Rajan told CNBC TV18.

India's economic growth has slowed to 6.8 per cent in 2018-19 - the slowest pace since 2014-15, and various projections by private experts and the central bank estimate that the GDP growth in the current year will be less than government estimate of 7 per cent.

In ominous signs that the slowdown may be deep, the auto sector is facing its worst crisis in two decades with reports suggesting thousands of job losses in the automobile and ancillary industry, real estate sector has huge unsold inventory, while fast-moving consumer goods (FMCG) companies have reported a decline in volume growth.

"You can hear businesses all around worrying and complaining out loud that they need some kind of stimulus," he said. Rajan said "a fresh set of reforms" are now needed to boost the economy and growth rate.

Rajan advocated for a new set of reforms to get the private sector to invest.

The former governor also drew attention to former chief economic advisor Arvind Subramanian's research that GDP growth was overestimated by 2.5 per cent during 2011-12 and 2016-17.

Govt removes debenture reserve requirement for housing finance companies, NBFCs

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Government has removed the redemption reserve requirement for issuance of debentures by non-banking financial companies, housing finance companies and listed firms, a move aimed at reducing cost for raising capital.

Under the companies law, these entities raising money had to create Debenture Redemption Reserve (DRR) and that requirement has now been done away with.

The corporate affairs ministry on Monday said the requirement for a DRR of 25 per cent of the value of outstanding debentures issued by listed companies, Non-Banking Financial Companies (NBFCs) and Housing Finance Companies (HFCs) has been removed.

The changes would be applicable for public issue as well as private placements.

In the case of unlisted companies, the DRR requirement has been reduced to 10 per cent from 25 per cent of the outstanding debentures.

Business Corner

Inaugurating the Swachhta Pakhwada in Bharat Heavy Electricals Limited (BHEL), Nalin Shinghal, Chairman & Managing Director, BHEL, administered the 'Swachhta Pledge' to the company's employees. The CMD exhorted BHEL employees to participate enthusiastically and contribute wholeheartedly to the National Mission of creating 'Swachh Bharat'.

As per the instructions issued by Department of Financial Services, GOI, the first stage of the bottom up consultative process designed to generate ideas and review performance of the branches and their alignment with the national priorities was conducted at the regional level on 17th and 18th of August by Indian Overseas Bank, Delhi Region.

Taking forward the agenda of reforms in the public sector banks, DFS has initiated a Multi-level consultation process and ideation starting from the branch level. In the meet, ideas and suggestions were generated from various branch managers in the presence of Zonal Manager RK Agarwal, Narendra Kumar, DZM.

Economists expect US recession in 2020 or 2021: Survey

AFP ■ WASHINGTON

A majority of economists expect a US recession in the next two years, but have pushed back the onset amid Federal Reserve actions, according to a survey released Monday.

The survey came out after President Donald Trump pushed back against talk of a looming recession as a raft of US data reports last week showed a mixed picture on the economy.

"I'm prepared for everything. I don't think we're having a recession. We're doing tremendously well. Our consumers are rich," Trump told reporters Sunday.

"I gave a tremendous tax cut, and they're loaded up with money. They're buying. I saw the Wal-Mart numbers, they were through the roof," he said. "And most economists actually say that we're not going to have a recession. But the rest of the world is not doing well like we're doing."

His chief economic advisor Larry Kudlow also downplayed talk of a recession.

"I sure don't see a recession," he told NBC's Meet the Press. "Consumers are working at higher wages. They are spending at a rapid pace. They're actually saving all while they're spending... So I think actually the second half, the economy's going to be very good in 2019," he said.

China lost 20 lakhs jobs in short period of time: Trump

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump has claimed that China has lost more than 20 lakhs jobs in a very short period of time, due to his tough policies, including imposing additional import tariffs.

Chinese economy, he said, is doing "very, very" poorly. "China is eating the tariffs because of monetary manipulation. And also, they're pouring a lot of money into their country because they don't want to lose jobs... They lost over two million jobs in a short period of time," Trump told reporters at Bedminster in New Jersey on Sunday.

Trump said China wants to make a trade deal with the US. Officials of the two countries are having a series of meetings on this for the past several months. "We will see what happens. But they definitely want to make a deal," he said.

He refused to comment on reports that he has spoken to the Chinese President Xi Jinping on this.

FM says corporate tax for firms to be cut gradually

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Monday said corporate tax rate for companies with over ₹400 crore turnover will be gradually cut to 25 per cent and the government will support wealth creators. In her maiden Budget last month, she had cut corporate tax for companies with annual turnover of up to ₹400 crore to 25 per cent from 30 per cent earlier.

Last year, the then Finance Minister Arun Jaitley had cut the corporate income tax rate to 25 per cent for companies with a turnover of up to Rs 250 crore. Speaking at an industry event here, Sitharaman said the corporate tax reduction for the rest of corporates would be gradual. She did not give a timeframe for the reduction.

Echoing Prime Minister Narendra Modi's Independence Day speech, she said Indian wealth creator entrepreneurs will be given all kind of support.

Modi had in his annual Independence Day address to the nation on August 15 had extolled the role of wealth creators and said they must not be viewed with suspicion.

Everything isn't doomed and gloomy about economy: Das

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Admitting that the economy is slowing down and faces many a challenge both from within and outside, Reserve Bank governor Shaktikanta Das Monday urged everyone to look at the opportunities ahead and stop being the proponents of gloom and doom. The statement comes amidst reports that an increasing number of corporate honchos are livid with the Narendra Modi government, especially after a slew of initiatives in the recent budget, including higher taxes on the rich and foreign portfolio investors.

This had FPIs dumping domestic equities and debt like dung since the budget, pulling down the benchmarks by over 13 percent July 5. Continuing their selling spree that began with the budget and amidst the rising uncertainty over the FPI tax and global trade worries, foreign portfolio investors, and as per depository data, have sold equities worth ₹10,416.25 crore between August 1 and 16 and debt worth ₹2,096.4 crore.

Super foods for monsoon woes

Monsoon brings with it a lot of diseases and issues that children may face because of the hygiene problem during the season. To keep kids hale and hearty, one should know what are the common problems that they face during monsoon so that the right food for them can be decided.

These days we always hear about the super foods, which are a common marketing term, but basically mean foods that are rich in nutrients and boost immunity.

All kinds of citrus fruits should be utilised during the season as they improve the immunity system because of the presence of Vitamin C and create alkaline environment in the body that helps in taking care of the inflammation.

Then we have Guava — it has high Vitamin A content and good for kids' vision.

For lunch, one can think of giving children khichdi as pulses and legumes have got everything in them which helps boost immunity Parents should try to give as much raw green vegetables to kids as possible. Develop a taste of green vegetable salads in kids because after cooking a lot of nutrients get lost.

Banana can also be given during the season but one should not over do it as it can cause cold. It is an alternate to burger of these fast foods, it gives much better ingredients like potassium, magnesium and it is anti-inflammatory.

Coconut water and coconut is also suggested. Because you get wet and humidity is there. Coconut helps in improvement of pH in skin.

Vitamin C, Vitamin E, B complex and some minerals (Calcium, magnesium, and zinc) are very important. If someone can eat eggs then nothing better than that.

Vegetable soup has got all important ingredients and should be given regularly to the kids. Then we have chicken, garlic, ginger and corn. Ginger and garlic is good as it take care of inflammation of the throat.

BLACK CUMIN: Black Cumin seeds or kalonji are black coloured spices that is widely used in most of the Indian dishes. They are rich in thymoquinone and anti-oxidants which help keep many diseases at bay.

They are also rich in Omega 3 and Omega 6 which helps to smooth blood circulation to the brain and maximise brain function. It helps in improved memory and concentration.

Saponin found in black cumin can cleanse and neutralise toxins in the body to maximise the performance of organs. It can also reduce symptoms of diarrhea and respiratory problems.

Studies also suggest that black cumin seeds are also effective in preventing cancer as they increase the growth of T-cells which destroy the infected cancer causing cells.

Regular intake of black cumin seeds also helps to lower blood pressure levels.

DONATE LIFE

India has the lowest organ donation rate in the world. Hence, there has to be more awareness around the need to donate, says DR ABHIDEEP CHAUDHARY

In India, due to several socio-cultural reasons, organ donation is not encouraged at any level. Hence, organ donation rate in the country is the lowest in the world. The perpetual problem of shortage of organs has led to a growing demand-supply gap.

Every organ donated gives new life to those who need it badly to survive. There are eight organs that can be donated — kidneys, heart, liver, lungs, pancreas and the small bowel. Tissues of your body can be donated to improve the life of a needy person.

Major facts about organ donation

Anyone can donate

Anyone — young and old — people can donate their organs to save the life of a needy person. People ageing 18 and above can register to become an organ donor.

Organ donation is about giving new life which means after death you can donate your organ. It is never too late to donate there is always a chance that you can donate an organ or tissue, whatever your age even after death.

But always remember that any organ should be transplanted within six to 12 hours after removal from the donor's body. The sooner any organ is transplanted, the greater the chances of functioning of that organ.

Clarity to be an organ donor or not

If patient has died in the hospital, doctor can consult relatives to decide for donating the organ of dead body. For organ donation doctor will give registration form and there is box of 'yes' or 'no' this registration form makes everything clearer for all concerned to become a donor or not.

and cartilage, heart valves and blood vessels. Mostly organs and tissues donation occurs after the death of donor. If person has registered him/herself as an organ donor. As deceased donor that can donate two kidney, liver, two lungs, heart, pancreas, and intestines.

Clarity to be an organ donor or not

If patient has died in the hospital, doctor can consult relatives to decide for donating the organ of dead body. For organ donation doctor will give registration form and there is box of 'yes' or 'no' this registration form makes everything clearer for all concerned to become a donor or not.

Truth be told

Myth 1: Organ donation cannot be done in any disease.

Fact: It is not like this, you only need to meet certain medical criteria. If you fulfill those medical conditions then you can donate organs. Sometimes some organs are not suitable for transplantation, but other organs can be donated.

Myth 2: Organ donation makes the body unformed.

Fact: Often people feel that the body spoils by donating organs. But this is not true as it is like a routine surgery and the organs are removed in a similar way. The process of removing the limbs is done with utmost dignity and respect and the scars of the surgery are well covered.

Myth 3: People of old age cannot donate organs

Fact: Contrary to popular belief, elderly people can also be good donors. Age is only number one! Yes, you are never too old to donate, nor is anyone's age tested. If you meet medical conditions, you can donate organs.

Myth 4: You or your family can charge for organ donation

Fact: Organ donation is a great work. You or your family members cannot charge for organ donation. Even the cost to remove the organ is in most cases borne by the transplant recipient.

Real beauty lies in detailing. This includes soft, beautiful and crack-free feet be in men or women. ROSHANI DEVI shares simple and easy to follow home remedies to achieve this Unkempt feet say a lot about a person. Of course, it is not always possible to take time out from one's busy schedule to visit a salon for a mani or a pedi. One can't ignore the fact that it is expensive as well. However, this doesn't mean that one can have beautiful, soft and crack-free feet.

Lemon, salt, glycerine, rose water foot mask: You need a tablespoon of raw salt, 1/2 a cup of lemon juice, 2 tablespoons of glycerine, 2 teaspoons of rose-water, warm water and a scrubber. What to do: Dip your feet in warm water and leave it for 10-15 minutes. Then make a paste of glycerine, rose water and lemon juice. Apply it on the feet. Wash the next morning. Do this every night. To remove dead skin: Make a scrub using oatmeal. Mix equal parts oatmeal with rose water or milk to make a paste. Apply the scrub to your feet and let set for up to 20 to 30 minutes. Use a foot brush to exfoliate your feet. Rinse with cold water and let your feet dry. Apply a foot cream. To make feet soft: Add two tablespoons of baking soda in warm water. Soak the feet for half-an-hour. One can put bath salt which is available in the market. It helps to soften the skin. Repeat daily.

Researchers have developed a new voice assistant that allows people with visual impairments to get web content quickly and effortlessly from smart speakers and similar devices. The research team from University of Waterloo found a way to merge the best elements of voice assistants with screen readers to create a tool called Voice Exploration, Retrieval and Search (VERSE) that makes web searches easier.

The primary input method for VERSE is voice, so users can say 'next', 'previous', 'go back' or 'go forward'. VERSE can also be paired with an app, which runs on a smartphone or a smartwatch. "Our prototype adds screen reader-like capabilities to virtual assistants and allows other devices, such as smartwatches to serve as input accelerators to smart speakers," said study researcher Alexandra Vtyurina.

According to the team, virtual assistants are convenient and accessible but lack the ability to deeply engage with content such as read beyond the first few sentences of an article, list alternative search results and suggestions.

These devices can serve as input accelerators, similar to keyboard shortcuts. For example, rotating the crown on a smartwatch advances VERSE to the next search result, section or paragraph, depending on the navigation mode.

"At the outset, VERSE resembles other virtual assistants as the tool allows people to ask a question and have it answered verbally with a word, phrase or passage," Vtyurina said.

New research from the Scotland-based University of Dundee has revealed that the worldwide tuberculosis (TB) epidemic is leaving a legacy of chronic lung disease.

Scientists from the University, in partnership with the Respiratory Research Network of India, have reported results from a study of more than 2000 Indian patients with evidence of permanent lung damage. Researchers have found that more than 1/3 of patients who are successfully cured of TB with antibiotics developed permanent lung damage which, in the worst cases, results in large holes in the lungs called cavities and widening of the airways called bronchiectasis.

TB survivors and patients with a history of severe infections such as childhood pneumonia made up the majority of patients with lung damage in India. Patients required further hospitalisations for treatment of their lung conditions in nearly 40% of cases.

TEA THAT HEALS

Sipping a hot cup of tea is popular.

RAZI KHAN tells you how switching to herbal is beneficial for one's health

Herbal tea is a popular option amongst individuals who want to upkeep a naturally healthy lifestyle. Whether you want to warm-up in winters or you want to cool down in summers, herbal tea can be consumed all over the year to enjoy the medicinal benefits. Relaxations, pain reduction, improvement of immune system are some of the benefits that one can extract from herbal tea.

Helps to unwind

Tea is a popular choice when it comes to calming effects and has been enjoyed for centuries to deal with a long tiring day. Due to pressure and stress of everyday people have started taking medicinal supplements to cope.

Instead one can go for herbal blend to relax and rejuvenate their inner self and can enjoy the natural alternative to deal with stress and anxiety. Peppermint & chamomile tea will be a go to option to provide a holistic benefit to mind and body.

Boost the immune system

It's a traditional thing to do — to sip a piping hot cup of tea when one is under the weather. Tulsi tea has been used in Ayurveda to boost the immune system, fight cough and cold and relieve body ache.

Herbal teas with the goodness of natural herbs fight infections as they are rich in vitamins and antioxidants as well as assist in strengthening immunity.

Improve the digestive system

Herbal teas with blends of digestion boosting herbs assist in gastro issues and fight indigestion. The warm blend breaks down fat into simple molecules and speeds up the process of digestion. One can have dandelion, chamomile, cinnamon, peppermint and ginger tea, if they want to prevent or cure bloating, vomiting or indigestion.

Anti-Ageing

We drink tea when we wake up, when we're sick or even when curling up to a good book. A cup of tea is known for its relaxing effects, but it is also one of the best natural way for anti-aging remedy.

Herbal tea contains high amount of antioxidants, which helps in delaying the process of ageing. In fact, daily consumption of these concoctions can make your skin flawless and healthy.

Help in releasing stress and anxiety

Whenever we are stressed out, the first thing that comes to our mind is tea like chamomile as this tea helps soothe the mind by making it calm and relaxed. It can also act as a mild antidepressant for those who suffer from depression. It stimulates the brain to relieve stress and anxiety.

STUDYCENTRE

Women with obstructive sleep apnea (OSA) appear to be at an elevated risk of getting cancer than men with the condition, warn researchers. The study, published in the European Respiratory Journal, is based on analyses of registry data, collected in the European database ESADA, on a total of some 20,000 adult patients with obstructive sleep apnea (OSA). About 2 per cent of them also had a cancer diagnosis.

"It's reasonable to assume that sleep apnea is a risk factor for cancer or that both conditions have common risk factors, such as overweight. On the other hand, it is less likely that cancer leads to sleep apnea," said Ludger Grote, Professor at the University of Gothenburg in Sweden.

According to the researchers, advanced age was associated with elevated cancer risk, but adjusting the data for age, gender, body mass index (BMI), smoking and alcohol consumption nevertheless showed a possible link between intermittent hypoxia at night and higher cancer prevalence.

"Our results indicate a cancer risk that's elevated two-to three-fold among women with pronounced sleep apnea," Grote said. The condition of sleep apnea is well known to the general public and associated with snoring, daytime fatigue, and elevated risk of cardiovascular disease, especially in men, said the study.

This research paves the way for a new view — that sleep apnea may possibly be connected with increased cancer risk, especially in women. — IANS

HONG KONG PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION ‘Tiananmen Square’ crackdown would harm trade: Trump

AFP ■ WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump has warned China that carrying out a Tiananmen Square-style crackdown on Hong Kong pro-democracy protesters would harm trade talks between the two countries. “I think it’d be very hard to deal if they do violence, I mean, if it’s another Tiananmen Square,” Trump told reporters in New Jersey on Sunday. “I think it’s a very hard thing to do if there’s violence.”

Hong Kong has been roiled by protests for more than two months and on Sunday hundreds of thousands of democracy activists had marched peacefully in the city despite rising unrest and stark warnings from Beijing.

There have been increasingly stark warnings from Beijing over the protests, and state media has run images of military personnel and armoured personnel carriers across the border in Shenzhen.

China’s 1989 crackdown in Beijing’s Tiananmen Square saw tanks sent in to end student-led protests, resulting in hundreds if not thousands of deaths. Trump’s comments came as Washington and Beijing look to revive pivotal talks aimed at ending their trade war, which has roiled world markets.

Bank of England chief pulls out of Chinese event

London: Bank of England governor Mark Carney has withdrawn from a high-profile business event with China’s ambassador to London, sources said Monday, as pro-democracy protests continue in Hong Kong. Carney had been due to speak at the dinner, aimed at boosting Chinese business links, which is scheduled for September 3 at the Guildhall, the administrative centre of the City of London financial district. However he will not now attend because of “diary issues”, a source close to the matter told AFP.

Some local politicians are reportedly unhappy at the timing of the event, as Hong Kong police continue to clash with democracy activists. AFP

Sudan’s Bashir got $90 mn from Saudi, investigator tells court

AFP ■ KHARTOUM

Sudan’s deposed military ruler Omar al-Bashir has admitted to receiving USD 90 million in cash from Saudi royals, an investigator told a Khartoum court on Monday. Police Brigadier Ahmed Ali said at the opening of Bashir’s corruption trial, which an AFP correspondent attended, that the former president told him that the latest payment was “delivered by some of Mohammed bin Salman’s envoys”.

Bashir, whose military Islamist regime ruled Sudan for 30 years, arrived at the Judicial and Legal Science Institute where the trial is taking place in a huge military convoy. Inside the courtroom, he was sitting in a metal cage, unshaven and wearing a white traditional gown.

His relatives in the courtroom chanted “Allahu Akbar” (God is greatest), to which he responded with the same words.

The former strongman was forced from power on April 11 after months of protests.

A transitional constitution meant to guide Sudan towards a civilian rule was officially signed on Saturday.

Bashir faces a raft of charges of war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide from the International Criminal Court over his role in the war in Sudan’s western Darfur region.

However, the jailed leader appeared in court Monday on charges of receiving and possessing foreign funds illegally. The police investigator told the court that nearly seven million euros (USD 7.8 million) were found at Bashir’s residence, as well as smaller amounts in US dollars and Sudanese pounds.

“The accused told us that the money was part of a sum of USD 25 million sent to him by Prince Mohammed bin Salman to be used outside of the state budget,” Ahmed Ali said.

The investigator said Bashir had said he also received two previous payments of USD 35 million and USD 30 million from Saudi’s King Abdullah, who died in 2015.

The investigator said Bashir had said the Saudi money was exchanged and spent and that he could not remember how nor did he have documents providing further details.

UK to end EU free movement immediately after Brexit

AFP ■ LONDON

Britain said Monday it will immediately end freedom of movement for people from the European Union after Brexit on October 31, in a policy shift under Prime Minister Boris Johnson.

“Freedom of movement as it currently stands will end on October 31 when the UK leaves the EU,” a Downing Street spokeswoman said. She added the government planned “tougher criminality rules for people entering the UK” as part of the new headline stance.

“Details of other changes immediately on October 31 for a new immigration system are currently being developed,” the spokeswoman said.

The change comes amid growing fears Britain is set to leave the 28-member bloc without a divorce deal in two and a half months. Around 3.6 million EU citizens already in Britain have been told to apply for “permanent settled status”, under an interior ministry scheme started by Johnson’s predecessor Theresa May.

Controversial General accused of war crimes named as Sri Lanka Army chief

PTI ■ COLOMBO

A controversial Sri Lankan Army general accused of grave human rights abuses during the country’s 26-year brutal civil war with the LTTE was on Monday appointed the new Army Commander, evoking strong criticism from the US and the minority Tamils.

President Maithripala Sirisena’s office on Monday announced that Lt Gen Shavendra Silva has been named as the new army commander.

Silva, 55, will take charge as incumbent Army chief Lt Gen Mahesh Senanayake’s service was not extended.

Silva headed the Army’s 58th Division in the final battle against the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) rebels in the final stages of the civil war in 2009.

His brigade was accused of attacking civilians, hospitals and stopping humanitarian supplies to trapped Tamil civilians.

Silva’s name was mentioned in the resolution passed by the UN Human Rights Council (UNHRC) in 2013, alleging rights abuses by the Sri Lankan Army. The Sri Lanka Army has denied the alleged rights abuses.

Critics say Silva’s appointment as the Army chief may strain Sri Lanka’s cooperation in UN Peacekeeping operations and the defence cooperation between the US and Sri Lanka.

Pak Army chief Gen Bajwa gets three year extension

PTI ■ ISLAMABAD

Pakistan Army chief General Qamar Javed Bajwa’s term has been extended for another three years by Prime Minister Imran Khan in view of the “regional security environment”, an official announcement said on Monday.

General Bajwa, 58, who was appointed as the Chief of Army Staff by former prime minister Nawaz Sharif in November 2016, was to retire in November.

“General Qamar Javed Bajwa is appointed Chief of Army Staff for another term of three years from the date of completion of current tenure,” read the brief notification issued by the Prime Minister’s Office.

“The decision has been taken in view of the regional security environment,” the notification said, citing the decision made by Prime Minister Khan, apparently referring to the fresh tension in India-Pakistan relations and the ongoing Afghan peace talks between the US and the Taliban militants, facilitated by Islamabad.

Commenting on the extension given to the Army chief, Pakistan Foreign Minister Shah Mahmood Qureshi said that it was essential due to the regional situation.

Having served as corps commander of Rawalpindi, Gen Bajwa has vast experience of dealing with issues related to Kashmir and the Line of Control, The Express Tribune reported.

In a country prone to frequent military coups, the army generals who, enforced many years of martial law in Pakistan since independence in 1947, have held power for nearly as long as the civilians.

19 killed in Uganda fuel truck blast: Police

Kampala: Nineteen people died when a fuel truck barreled into other vehicles in a busy town in western Uganda and exploded, police said Monday.
The blast occurred Sunday evening in the Kyambura trading centre, a mountainous area near the Queen Elizabeth National Park.

“Ten people died instantly when the fuel truck lost control and hit three other vehicles, leading to multiple explosions that also burned 25 small shops,” said regional police spokesman Martial Tumusiime. AFP

US MULLS LEAVING INTELLIGENCE ASSETS IN AFGHANISTAN AFTER TROOP WITHDRAWAL

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

The US is considering leaving “significant intelligence” assets behind after withdrawing its troops from Afghanistan as it does not want the war-torn country to become a “laboratory for terror”, President Donald Trump has said.

Trump’s comments come after he met with top national security advisers to review a US-Taliban peace plan that could end America’s longest running war.
“We’re talking to Afghanistan, both the government and also talking to the Taliban, having very good discussions. We’ll see what happens.”

Syria forces enter key town amid fierce clashes: Monitor

AFP ■ BEIRUT

Syrian regime forces entered a key northwestern town on Sunday amid intense fighting with jihadists and their rebel allies which has left dozens of combatants dead, a war monitor said.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights reported “fierce clashes” as it said regime ground troops penetrated Khan Sheikhun in Idlib province for the first time since they lost control of it in 2014. The latest fighting, which broke out overnight Saturday to Sunday, has already killed at least 59 jihadists and allied rebels as well as 28 members of pro-regime forces, the Britain-based monitor said.

Pro-regime forces also called Syrian Arab Army (SAA) have been advancing over the past few days in a bid to encircle Khan Sheikhun from the north and west and to seize a key highway.

KJo ridicules party accusations

Filmmaker KARAN JOHAR has broken his silence over allegations of hosting a drug party for a few A-list Bollywood stars at his residence last month.

He feels that all such charges are baseless and ridiculous. It was an easy night out, the filmmaker says, adding that his mother was also appalled reading about it.

"I toyed with the idea of giving out a statement. I toyed with giving out a thought on the social media. There were achieving members of the industry who were having an easy night out after a hard week of work, having a good time. I took that video with all the earnestness," says Karan.

'The era of the 90s had a charm of its own where sensuality was portrayed with utmost poise and dignity. Item numbers were made back then and even those were termed as sexy but now we live in an era where sexy means revealing. I feel one does not need to be vulgar to be sensuous, look at the song, Ek do teen, it is also an item number but the lyrics, grace and the way it was shot has a recall value even today.'

—Alka Yagnik

Actress MAHIE GILL, who is known for her roles in films such as Dev D, Saheb, Biwi Aur Gangster and Paan Singh Tomar, says that she has been stereotyped for her sensual beauty for long, and adds that just looking good on-screen is boring.

Mahie returns in the hard-hitting digital film, Posham Pa, where she is cast as a Marathi sex worker. She says, "Looking sexy all the time is boring. I am more than my appearance. I am a dancer. I am a performer."

'All about creating balance'

Actor TOM HOLLAND doesn't feel trapped in his Spider-Man avatar, and says it is all about creating a balance in professional life.

He says, "It is a balance of doing other films while doing some big ones. I did The Devil All the Time, which was shot in Alabama. It is a dark film. I am also doing a film with Russo Brothers later this year called Cherry." The actor ensures that he doesn't get trapped in his onscreen superhero avatar. For him, it is about fitting into schedule of new projects which are very character focused.

Make history come ALIVE

Museums are all set to embark upon a journey to make your visits more sensory and experiential, says CHAHAK MITTAL

Do not touch," "Stay away from the exhibit" — these are some of the signs that you are most likely to encounter at museums. But the idea that artefacts, repositories, specimens, sculptures and other objects which represent history should be encased in glass or placed behind frames in order to take care of the basic hygiene is changing. The thought that some of them even require environment-friendly conditions with suitable light and temperature to sustain certainly belongs to the past. As does the belief that if you are really curious to experience the artwork more intensely, you should put your hands behind your back or inside the pockets to ensure that they don't get damaged. It is time now that we take certain measures to throw light on experience than preservation and sustainability.

The idea is borne out of the belief that we can never be really moved by static objects to learn more about history associated to them. There might be description notes ahead of each illustration or visual. But they might not always provide the answers. This is one of the reasons why the concept of interactive museums is coming to fore. So how does it enhance a visitor's experience without taking away the natural, historic and cultural insights that museums work so hard to preserve? Saurav Bhaik, founder and CEO of Tagbin, an initiative to create experiential spaces, says, "It creates a tangible experience for the visitors whilst keeping its preservation untouched. The idea followed after a few museums and art galleries around the world used the technology to create a more interactive and immersive experience." The debate on interactive museums triggered in the city when recently the Archeological Survey of India (ASI) installed the Azaadi Ke Diwane Museum at the Red Fort, which celebrates unsung heroes of the country's freedom struggle. Through multi-sensor technology, the exhibition allows viewers to engage with the exhibits directly through informative and digital visuals.

The Centre for Indian Music Experience (CIME), Bengaluru, the first museum dedicated to music, has made sure it didn't give the audience some monotonous collection to observe and move ahead. It had to be more verbal and aural than just visual, and experiential than material. Suma Sudhindra, director, had enabled and curated the museum through documentaries, interactive games, melodies combining the Western and classical Indian music, sing-along kiosks that explain niche music genres and traditional gharanas. It has touch-sensitive installations of chimes, gongs, bells and reeds that are set to twelve musical notes. The museum allows the viewers to come, "create and experiment their own tunes."

Astral, an illustration by Australian illustrator and designer Stuart Campbell (popularly known as Sutu), which recently featured a sequence of 21st century tableaux gives participants the sense that they are actually stepping into the paintings.

Well, another reason, as Bhaik lists, that there is a need for interactive museums is because they highly attract millennials, which is the most "impatient lot, who get weary of numb and static things." He says, "They are always hunting for something that can trigger and allure them." Indeed, to them, statues can seem aloof in glass cases, paintings might appear bleak in poor lighting and artefacts could look like just some objects from history with information on scraps of paper ahead of them.

So what could be one intelligent way to make the static alive? As Bhaik visited the British Museum Gallery in London, he felt that many visuals were hidden from the view. The "treasures" were displayed in the same manner. He says, "And with each passing object, people seemed disinterested, peering into their mobile screens or moving past the labelled descriptions since it did not make them curious to know more."

Based on his observations at the museum, he suggests, "It's important to improve its informative appeal more than its visual basics. Design a room where we can proactively connect with culture and history. A one-to-one interaction with the visitors could be very informative. Here, linking time and space, past and present with the dynamics of technology can present stories about the significance of history as well as future."

Nilofar Shamim Haja, ex-editor of an architectural magazine, writes in her blog about the future of augmented museums, "Visitors would have digital entry codes embedded in their mobile tickets and a mobile-, AR-, or holograph-based tour would guide them towards exhibits that match their interests (sports, art, textile, cuisines). A home-based audience can browse through a museum's digital collection and augment the exhibition by adding multimedia of significant events from their life that is relevant to the digital exhibit. This level of customisation looks at building multi-generational relationships with the audience."

The 9/11 Memorial, New York, was designed using interactive techniques which walks people through the brutality of 9/11, stories of people, recreating an actual experience of the dark day.

The Santa Cruz Museum of Art and History engages people by making them a part of the past. It welcomes people to write poetry and bottle their memories with a name. It tours an interactive story of objects, rather than standing clueless in front of ancient stones, sculptures or pre-historic rock-arts.

The Jinsha Site Museum in China showcases more than 5,000 gold, jade and ivory artefacts. Its visitors can use an app to explore these relics, see how they look in 3D and learn more about what they were used for. Two particularly important examples on display are — a gold mask that appears to float up and spin in front of the visitor's face, and a gold foil totem with images of the sun and immortal birds.

However, while digitisation has reinvented museums in the West, turning them into vibrant cultural spaces, its presence in India is still limited. And because government-funded museums have gone out of funds, private ones are collaborating with industry experts to equip spaces to make it look more relevant.

The Partition Museum in Amritsar showcases a range of everyday objects and memories of the trauma faced by millions of South Asians. The museum enables the viewers to launch a mobile application where they can access videos and text related to Partition.

While latest technologies are enabling people to create something of their own and make space for imagination and thus, connect with human emotions in a myriad of ways to create an everlasting experience, the questions remains — whether Indian museums will ever be able to bring technological advancements, matching to the level of the West.

A perfect climax

Actor OMARI HARDWICK says that he was doing eight films and 200 songs while playing the ghost mode in his series, Power, and still couldn't really get out of that role. By TEAM VIVA awesome, microscopic look of the female contingent of power and understand what it means to be a female with power, influence, vulnerability, insecurity and brokenness and how that can look. I think she nailed this role.

Will Tariq end up being a criminal just like his dad? Being raised by parents or grandparents we learn through the series of actions that take place in our lives. In life, we often say lies unknowingly. We tend to think that because we didn't say red when it was green it is not a lie. It was a lie when Toshi and Ghost didn't say anything. So, withholding information was detrimental to the kid. Not only Ghost, but even Naturi was interested to watch the teenager's face to make out what he was upto.

has really aided and she also shares a close bond with my actual wife. Ghost is extremely different. I did eight films while doing Power, 200 songs and I still couldn't really get out of the ghost mode. I was totally doing other things, but I was always allegiant to Courtney and to Starz. When I was around Naturi, it was easier for me to go home to my actual family when I had scenes with them. If I had scenes with killers in the show, it was very difficult to go home. She probably helped the best with my methodical insertion as an actor playing ghost and helped me in getting rid of it.

Can you choose a stand-out moment from the past seasons?

Yes, the audacity, the arrogance to say you can't leave the body. As the guy that played ghost, I would try to represent all the people that were so integral. The powerful scene where Naturi comes to visit me in the prison, and the family was behind her. And Raina, played by Donshea (Hopkins) who was no longer on the show at that point, but when she talks to me in the jail and then I tell Tommy to take care of my family, it was also too powerful.

What do you think that the fans will take away from this final chapter in the story?

For me, it is simple, it's to be satisfied. There are shows that have been indelibly placed into our psyche as parts of the cultural shift in Television history and yet at the end they leave fans with a feeling of drift. I hope that we make the fans feel like we climaxed perfectly. At the end we want them to say, "this is great." (The show's Season 6 releases on August 26 on SonyLIV.)

Dwayne marries Lauren Hashian

Hollywood actor Dwayne Johnson has exchanged vows with longtime girlfriend and singer Lauren Hashian in Hawaii.

The actor took to Instagram to share the news of his wedding with his fans and followers. He also shared two photographs of the couple against a romantic setting with the beautiful sunset.

"We do. August 18th, 2019. Hawaii." Johnson wrote alongside the series of the photographs.

For the wedding, Johnson opted for a white shirt and white pants and his bride wore a long white lace gown with a low-cut neckline and long train. In one image, the actor is seen smiling beside his bride, and the second shows the couple kissing against the sunset backdrop with Hashian's veil blowing in the wind.

Johnson met Hashian in 2006 when the actor was filming The Game Plan. They started dating in 2007. The couple share daughters Jasmine and Tiana.

ENVIRONMENT IS THE NEW COOL

Artistic director ARUNA GANESH RAM's play Under Pressure focusses on climate change induced by our endless consumerism, says AYUSHI SHARMA

Despite what politicians might tell you, here's a fact, climate change is real. The summers are getting hotter. The water table is sinking lower. And it's about time we made a choice about how we choose to live. Do you believe that technology will save you? Or do you think that mindful living is the way forward? The earth is yours to fight for. And the question is, will you?

Artistic director Aruna Ganesh Ram has put together a play, Under Pressure, which is a commentary on climate change induced by our endless consumerism. She says, "Let's go back in time. I was born in the 80s. I have lived my life amidst trees and have been bitten by insects. I was so much closer to nature than my son, for example, who is three years old. He is ensconced within the comfort of the community. So we wondered how we could trigger appreciation for nature. It's not like that we don't know that climate change is real. Most of us know it is. But what are we doing? We are thinking of changing our lifestyle but we aren't really doing anything to implement these changes."

The play will examine the effect of the individual and collective choices and their leading environmental consequences. From exploring themes of consumerism, minimal living, indigenous wisdom, the life of trees and the politics of nature, the performance will present multiple perspectives — that of the policy-makers, raggickers, environmentalists, of the 8,000-year-old trees and even the extinct birds.

"One of the questions we want to ask through the play is that how do we reach that appreciation point and love for the environment. Because if that love existed or even exists, we would have done or would do things differently. We have lost it somewhere to this idea of the glamorous consumerist. What is this rampant consumerism that has coloured the way we see life? We are materialistic and we believe it is so cool. So how do we go back and be mindful about the fact that environment is the new cool," says Aruna.

So how did the idea come to her? She tells us that the whole process started two years back when she was listening to a podcast. Author Amitav Ghosh was the speaker and was talking about climate change. He urged artists, journalists, poets and writers to talk about the environment in any way that they could. And she realised that even though climate change is so real, people weren't talking about it. "In that moment I was like 'oh yes'. So I started looking at my own work over the last 15 years. I have been doing theatre since 2003 and I haven't done a single piece related to environment or anything around that. And it just clicked that the quality of air is deteriorating and environmental conditions are worsening. We see waste being dumped on the roads but why I am, as an artist, not engaging with it through my work?" questions the director.

That's when she started reading and getting acquainted with what's going on with the climate crisis movement. Who are the people working in that space? She felt there are so many perspectives one can take. Contaminated water, air pollution, plastics and industrial waste, all of this is contributing to a drastic climate change. The play focusses on three major aspects because, she says, "we couldn't talk about everything due to a limited time." Aruna tells us that the first aspect caters to creating an appreciation of earth through nostalgia, which is the real reason for our existence and how there were times when we knew to live in oneness with the planet. "Using verses, earth poetry and trees as a metaphor of life and growth, we have portrayed the first part," adds she.

The second section deals with what human beings have done post the industrial age, rampant consumerism, mass production, capitalism and how all of that has influenced the way we live today, which is the throwaway life or #2minutelife, where we want quick gratification from everything we do. The director says that this part will be done through masks and behavioural gestures.

Third, it shows what we have unleashed into this world — plastic, which we absolutely do not know how to deal with. "It is getting dumped in the oceans because of which marine animals are struggling. Also, any kind of plastic takes over 50-60 years to decompose or maybe even never. Next, it deals with how we have created a problem that is way bigger than we have imagined it to be. So we do this by creating a dystopian world, which is what really happens when we become plastic humans," says Aruna.

Facts and figures have been a part of her research. For instance, she tells us that one of the facts that they keep repeating are the performances of the timeline of 2050, a time about which most of the scientists predict that there will be more plastic in the oceans than fishes. "We keep going back to it."

The synopsis of the play tells us that the story is narrated through the perspective of an 8,000-year-old tree. So what's the idea? How do you tell a story from the perspective of a tree? She says, "See, we are humans but we know that the tree has life and it has seen so much more time than you and I have. So what does it mean to embody that spirit of tree into your body. We have tried to do that by embodying the spirit of the tree by being resilient, which is where we have recreated that perspective from the movement. The average lifespan of a tree is 300-400 years whereas our average span is 75-80 years at max. And see how much damage we're doing to the earth."

The performance is a sensory montage moving between the realms of reality and surrealism, inviting the audience to question and reflect upon their own viewpoint and their relationship with the earth. "The play is embodied with facts that the audience can take back as what they can change in their life. If the play becomes preachy then it's not going to resonate with the audience because each one of us has been on a different journey of understanding environment. If I explain you something, you'll be like who are you to tell me that. We are operating in an economy of individual choices and you have to exercise that yourself because only you know what you can do," she says.

(The play, as a part of the Old World Theatre Festival, will be staged on August 23 at 7.30 pm at Amaltas Hall, IHC.)

PILLARS OF HISTORY

Interactive border wall mural tells stories of deported people

Lizbeth De La Cruz Santana returned to the Mexican beach, where her father entered the US illegally before she was born, this time to put final touches on a mural of adults who came to the US illegally as young children and were deported. Visitors who hold up their phones to the painted faces are taken to a website that voices first-person narratives.

There is a deported US veteran. There are two deported mothers with children who were born in the US. There is a man who would have been eligible for an Obama-era programme to shield people who came to the US when they were very young from deportation but was deported less than a year before the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals programme, known as DACA, took effect in 2012.

The project blends Mexico's rich history of muralists with what can loosely be called interactive or performance art on the 1,954-mile (3,126-kilometer) US — Mexico border. At the same Tijuana beach during an art festival in 2005, David Smith Jr, known as "The Human Cannonball," flashed his passport, lowered himself into a barrel and was shot over the wall, landing on a net with US Border Patrol agents nearby. In 2017, professional swimmers crossed the border from the US in the Pacific Ocean and landed on the same beach, where a Mexican official greeted them with stamped passports and school-children cheered.

Border mural depicts adults who came to the US illegally as children and were deported. The mural uses scanning codes to tell the stories including, that of a deported US veteran and two mothers with children who were born in the US. Last month, an artist installed three pink seesaws through a border wall that separates El Paso, Texas, from Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

De La Cruz Santana, 28, conceived the interactive mural as part of a doctoral dissertation at University of California, Davis, in Spanish with a focus on literature and immigrant experiences. The faces are affixed with barcodes that link to audio on the project website. Her dissertation will include written arguments for DACA-style benefits to anyone who comes to the US as a young child, without any of the disqualifiers like criminal history that former President Barack Obama included.

"Technology is one of the best ways and venues for people to tell their stories," said De La Cruz, whose parents obtained legal status through former President Ronald Reagan's amnesty law.

With a $7,500 grant, De La Cruz, who was born and raised in California, directed about 15 people who painted on polyester canvass at a Tijuana art gallery called "House of the Tunnel," which was once used to smuggle drugs in a secret underground passage to San Diego. She partnered with Mauro Carrera, a longtime friend and a muralist who lives in Fresno, California.

The project is also deeply personal for Carrera, 32, who was born in Mexico, crossed the border illegally as a toddler, and obtained legal status through his father, who had amnesty. He grew up with friends and neighbors in the US illegally.

Carrera said the project aims to "see the people behind the politics." The deportees painted at least 80 per cent of their own faces under his direction.

"I feel I'm right in the middle of the issue," he said as others rolled canvases over steel poles that were topped with coiled wire installed after Donald Trump became president.

Last year, many Central Americans in a large caravan of asylum seekers gravitated to the beach, which is downhill from a light tower, bull ring and restaurants. The US side of the beach is usually empty, except for Border Patrol agents parked in their vehicles and occasional hikers.

De La Cruz Santana is struck by the lively atmosphere on the Mexican side and quiet in the US.

"If you look past this wall on the US side, there's nothing," she said. "I wanted to erase the border."

In order to take a closer look at other realms of artistic expressions, one must observe an emerging artist's work to understand what occupies her/him.

Artist Pallav Chander's show at Alliance Francaise represents the emotional meaning of geometric shapes and their relationship with one another in his own life. To some extent, it seems like a point and line to planar levels, more like a logical extension of the principles of intuitive and experiential patterns that the artist has come across during his emotional odyssey.

SPACE AND FORM

Pallav creates a kitsch combination of geometric abstractions that seem to be precisely engineered. For him, art is a medley of moulded and mixed drawings that build a unity of space and form between its shapes and motifs like some architectural diagram showcasing a tangent of possibilities. A conscious product of Pallav's bizarre-looking utopia brings us to his own theories, yet some works of rare beauty which represent an artist's blue-print of a dream coming to reality.

DRAMA IN TITLES

Pallav has used dramatic titles — Broken Chords, Mad World — and each of them have a rare resonance to each other. He says, "Whenever I title my work, I have a theatrical approach to it. It's either a statement or just one or two words defining my work and mainly manipulating the viewer to not get a straight answer regarding the definition of the painting. It is left for the viewer to extract his/her own interpretation."

An emotional odyssey

Artist PALLAV CHANDER's show at Alliance Francaise reflects the chaos in society due to the growing dependence of people on social media. By UMA NAIR these works depict some part of the hypocrisy in our society today. While on the other hand, the title Broken Chords Can Sing a Little reflects hope. The artwork has been given an organised yet a chaotic street art feel to it. It aims to give out messages of hope from a subjective angle.

TEXTURAL TERRAIN

Art should reflect the modern industrial world and above all, be accessible to the masses. Pallav's art is relevant in a rapidly changing world. It's free from academic tradition and devoid of any ambiguous, fashionable or subjective properties. Textures are replete in his canvases.

He says, "The textures in my works are a major part of my art process as most of the time, I paint more than three things on the same canvas. So the texture from my previous works leave an impression on the new one. This process leaves kind of a chaotic but a balanced impression in the work, which I feel is a satisfactory result in terms of its visual appeal."

The show presents an entirely new language of colours and movements. Pallav has a very keen idea of spatial, light and design details to create works that draw a fine line between non-figurative and decorative art. An unforgettable suite of works comes as no surprise because he is the son of the versatile and talented Kanchan Chander.

He explains, "For example, Mad World is trying to define the chaos in our society due to the information age we live in, where social media has become a platform where people are craving for likes and follows from strangers just to get approval. It represents the peer pressure and people's demand for an external validation for their moves."

Jofra Archer celebrates after taking the wicket of David Warner caught Rory Burns during day 5 AP

Living up the hype

Root glad to see Archer 'shake up things' on Test debut

AFP ■ LONDON

England captain Joe Root said fast bowler Jofra Archer had "lived up to the hype" with a dramatic Test debut against Australia at Lord's.

Archer, who replaced the injured James Anderson in team for the second Ashes Test, took five wickets in the drawn match, including 3-32 in Australia's second innings on Sunday.

But Archer's display, which almost helped England achieve an unlikely and series-leveling win in a match severely affected by rain, was about much more than economical figures.

The 24-year-old quick's sheer speed gave England's attack a new cutting edge.

Archer hit several Australians, with a fearsome bouncer that slammed into Steve Smith's unprotected neck leading to a concussion that kept the star batsman off the field on the last day at Lord's and could rule him out of the third Test in Leeds starting on Thursday.

"He's come in and he really has made a massive impact, added a different dynamic to our bowling group and has given Australia something different to think about," said Root.

"It's really pleasing to see someone come in on Test debut and really shake up things and live up to the hype — even some of the hype that he put on himself.

"He makes things happen when not many others in world can. Such a unique action and way of bowling, and obviously natural pace, which is always going to be in the game on any surface."

Root added: "When you've got that and the skill of other guys around it, it makes for a tasty combination and I think that's one of the reasons why we always felt we were in the game.

"It makes for a very interesting last three games."

England unchanged for Headingley Test

AFP ■ LONDON

England named an unchanged squad on Monday for this week's third Test against Australia at Headingley.

The injured James Anderson, England's all-time leading Test wicket-taker, will continue his bid to return later in the series by playing in a county 2nd XI match starting from today.

England's selectors kept faith with the XI that drew the rain-affected second Ashes Test at Lord's, with the hosts having the better of an exciting last day before Australia held out to preserve their 1-0 lead.

Surrey left-arm seamer Sam Curran, who did not play at Lord's, retained his place in a 12-man squad for the third Test, which starts at England captain Joe Root's Headingley home ground on Thursday.

With just a four-day turnaround between Tests in London and Leeds, major changes were always unlikely.

Now England will hope that is sufficient time for World Cup-winning fast bowler Jofra Archer to recover from the 44 overs he sent down at Lord's.

Anderson did not play in the second Test because of a calf injury will step his rehabilitation this week by playing for Lancashire 2nd XI against Leicestershire in a three-day friendly match in Liverpool.

Anderson's fitness will be assessed continually ahead of the fourth Test at his Old Trafford home ground starting on September 4.

Steve Smith assessed continually ahead of the fourth Test at his Old Trafford home ground starting on September 4.

While England's fallible top order remains a concern — opener Jason Roy has made just 40 runs in four innings this series — the selectors have resisted the temptation to bring in new faces.

They were under less pressure to make changes after the uncapped duo of Dom Sibley and Zak Crawley, considered to be of the best young openers in England, were both out for low scores on Sunday.

Sibley got a duck for Warwickshire against Somerset on Sunday and Kent batsman Crawley was dismissed for just five against Essex.

Smith closes gap as Kohli maintains top spot

PTI ■ DUBAI

Australian batsman Steve Smith pipped New Zealand skipper Kane Williamson to second spot with only nine points separating him and the top-ranked Virat Kohli in the latest list for ICC Test list released on Monday.

The Indian captain, with 922 points, is on top of the list while Smith, after his twin Ashes hundreds in Birmingham and 92 at Lord's, is on 913 points.

The other Indian in the top-10 is Cheteshwar Pujara, who stayed put at his fourth position.

Sri Lanka captain Dimuth Karunaratne made rapid strides, entering the top-10 at eighth with a jump of four ranking places. South Africa's Aiden Markram also improved upon his ranking to be positioned sixth while England captain Joe Root paid for his slight slump in form to be at ninth.

In the bowlers' list, Pat Cummins remained firmly entrenched on top of the table while Ravindra Jadeja improved from sixth place to fifth. His spin bowling partner Ravichandran Ashwin remained 10th.

Jadeja also remained third in the all-rounders' list, led by West Indies' Jason Holder, with Shikhar Dhawan placed second.

Meanwhile, India could lose their pole position in the ICC Test Team rankings, as even a 1-0 defeat by the West Indies in their upcoming series will see them slip to 108 points. That margin will be enough for the West Indies to overtake Pakistan to seventh position at 88 points.

India are on top of team table with 113 points followed by New Zealand (111 points) and South Africa (108 points).

Rahane gets runs ahead of first Test

PTI ■ COOLIDGE

Indian vice-captain Ajinkya Rahane got much needed runs under his belt ahead of the first Test as the visitors reached 174 for five at lunch on the final day of the three-day warm-up game against the West Indies A here on Monday.

Rahane, who has not scored a hundred in more than two years, made a fighting 54 off 162 balls before a reverse sweep led to his dismissal. Rahane, who is the stand-in captain in this game, had come to open the innings after failing in the first essay.

The Mumbai batsman had looked horribly out of touch during his 35 overs at the crease on day two. His 20 not out on Sunday had three boundaries but he played more than 80 dot balls, a testimony to his struggles.

Rahane and Hanuma Vihari had resumed the innings at 84 for one and both batsmen managed to score half-centuries. Vihari, who was on 48 overnight, went on to make 64 off 125 balls in an innings comprising nine fours and a six with India extending their lead to 279 runs.

Off-spinner Akim Frazer removed both Rahane and Vihari while Rishabh Pant and Ravindra Jadeja were the other batsmen to be dismissed. Wriddhiman Saha (6) and R Ashwin (5) were in the middle when lunch was called.

On day two, Senior-most pacer Ishant Sharma bowled a fiery opening spell while left-arm wrist spinner Kuldeep Yadav promised to pose stiff competition for Ravichandran Ashwin as India dominated proceedings against West Indies A.

Having declared on their overnight score of 297 for 5 at the end of the first day, India bowled out the home team for 181 in 56.1 overs with Ishant (3/21), Kuldeep (3/35) and Umesh Yadav (3/19) sharing the spoils.

Senior off-spinner Ashwin and speedster Mohammed Shami didn't bowl in the first innings but might bowl in the second.

The second day was about the Indian bowlers trying to find their groove after switching formats.

Ishant, India's red ball specialist, hit the right length straightaway in his first spell dismissing Jeremy Solozano (9) and Brandon King (4) with a hint of away movement.

For Jasprit Bumrah, it was more about getting overs under his belt and he bowled 11 of them.

Umesh, who hasn't been among the top three pacers in the starting line-up, also gave a good account of himself rocking the A team's middle-order.

However, with Bumrah, Shami and Ishant being the top-three choices, it will be difficult for him to break into the side unless Virat Kohli decides upon playing four specialist fast bowlers.

For Kuldeep, getting three wickets will keep him in a good headspace and if India happen to play five bowlers with two spinners, he is sure to play his part.

The first Test begins here on Thursday. Brief Scores: India 297/5 decl and 174/5 in 70 overs (Hanuma Vihari 64, Rahane 54), West Indies A 181 all out in 56.1 overs.

Saini stays as cover for Tests

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Impressed with his skill-set, the Indian team management has decided to keep speedster Navdeep Saini as a net bowler for the two-Test series against the West Indies, aiming to groom him for future red-ball assignments.

Saini, who plays domestic cricket for Delhi, made his T20 International debut against the West Indies in Florida and won the man of the match award in his maiden appearance.

He has earlier been the Indian team's net bowler and a cover for Bhuvneshwar Kumar during the ICC World Cup in England as well.

"Yes, Navdeep saini has been asked to stay back by the team management for the Test series. He will stay back primarily as a net bowler, they want to groom him for the Test format keeping an eye on the future," a senior BCCI official said on Monday.

Saini, in fact, bowled six overs during the West Indies A first innings in the ongoing practice match to give relief to Ishant Sharma, Jasprit Bumrah and Umesh Yadav. Mohammed Shami and Bhuvneshwar Kumar didn't bowl in the first innings.

"Saini has been a performer in red ball cricket for the past few years. He has the pace, and ability to hit the deck, move the ball both in air and off the pitch.

"If he is groomed well, it will only increase our pool of fast bowlers for the top tier cricket. That's how the team management is looking at him," the official said.

It is believed that if Saini stays back, it will help bowling coach Bharath Arun to invest more time in the 26-year-old Karnal-lad, who has taken 120 wickets from 43 first-class games with three five-wicket hauls.

"One can't ignore the effort that Arun has put in to make India's fast bowling unit the best that has emerged from the country. Rather than playing domestic cricket, he now needs to be in and around the international scene and learn the tricks of the trade for the next level," he said.

India will play five Test matches at home this season with three against South Africa and two against Bangladesh in October and November.

It will not be a bad idea to blood Saini against Bangladesh since the management would be monitoring Jasprit Bumrah and Mohammed Shami's respective workloads.

Pandey, Iyer to share India A captaincy

The five one day matches against South Africa A will be played at The Sports Hub in Thiruvananthapuram on August 29, 31 and Sept 2, 4 and 8

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Manish Pandey was on Monday named India A captain for the first three one-dayers against the touring South Africa A, while Shreyas Iyer will lead in the last two matches of the series beginning August 29 in Thiruvananthapuram.

Rising talent Shubman Gill is there in both Pandey's and Iyer's teams and so are Vijay Shankar, Anmolpreet Singh, Ricky Bhui, Shardul Thakur, Axar Patel and Nitish Rana.

Ishan Kishan was picked as wicketkeeper in the team led by Pandey, while the immensely talented Sanju Samson will do duty behind the stumps under Iyer's captaincy.

India leg-spinner Yuzvendra Chahal is part of the team for the first three matches.

The matches will be played at The Sports Hub in Thiruvananthapuram on August 29, 31 and September 2, 4 and 8.

The All-India senior selection committee picked the teams here.

Team for first 3 one-day: Manish Pandey (Captain), Ruturaj Gaikwad, Shubman Gill, Anmolpreet Singh, Ricky Bhui, Ishan Kishan (wicket-keeper), Vijay Shankar, Shivam Dube, Krunal Pandya, Axar Patel, Yuzvendra Chahal, Shardul Thakur, Deepak Chahar, Khaleel Ahmed, Nitish Rana.

Team for last two one-day: Shreyas Iyer (Captain), Shubman Gill, Prashant Chopra, Anmolpreet Singh, Ricky Bhui, Sanju Samson (wicket-keeper), Nitish Rana, Vijay Shankar, Shivam Dube, Washington Sundar, Axar Patel, Rahul Chahar, Shardul Thakur, Tushar Deshpande, Ishan Porel.

Shastri names Iyer for No 4 spot

IANS ■ ST JOHNS

Head coach Ravi Shastri has for the time put an end to the debate over the No 4 spot in the Indian batting line-up by identifying Shreyas Iyer as the man for the job.

Impressed with the pool of talented youngsters coming up the ranks in Indian cricket, Shastri — while speaking to Times of India — said Iyer will continue to bat at No 4 in ODIs for India.

"One of the areas we concentrated on over the last two years was to blood as many youngsters as possible. Shreyas Iyer, for instance, he is going to stay at No 4," said Shastri who has been reappointed as the head coach till World 2021 T20.

Iyer batted at number five during the just-concluded ODI series against the West Indies and scored 71 and 65 in the two innings he played.

Wicketkeeper-batsman Rishabh Pant was India's number four but he failed to grab the opportunities and scored 20 and 0 in the two ODIs.

Kohli, after the third ODI against the West Indies, said that 24-year-old Iyer has presented a strong case for himself to be a regular feature of the team in the limited-overs format.

Earlier, former India skipper Sunil Gavaskar also advocated for Iyer to bat at No 4. "In my view, Rishabh Pant is much better like MS Dhoni at 5 or 6 as a finisher because that's where his natural game and natural flair will come into play," Gavaskar had said.

"If it's a question of batting for 30-35 overs, then I think it should be Shreyas Iyer at No 4 and Pant at No 5," he had said.

Support staff selection begins, announcement on Thursday

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Ignored for the head coach's position, Lalchand Rajput was among the aspirants appearing for interviews on Monday to pick the support staff of the Indian cricket team, joining heavyweights such as Venkatesh Prasad.

The senior selection committee, led by former stumper MSK Prasad, started an extensive process to pick the support staff.

The 57-year-old Rajput entering the fray means competition for the batting coach's position could only get tougher with former Test opener Vikram Rathour already emerging as a strong contender to replace incumbent Sanjay Bangar.

Among the incumbents, bowling coach Bharat Arun and fielding coach R Sridhar have emerged favourites to retain their posts after head coach Ravi Shastri stressed on retaining the staff.

However, Bangar still faces a tough challenge with most of the applications received for the batting coach's post. The former India all-rounder has been with the team since 2014 during which India have played 50 Tests and 119 ODIs.

The process is expected to be completed only by Thursday after all the interviews for various positions including batting, bowling and fielding coach are done with.

Also eyeing the batting coach's job are Pravin Amre, Mumbai stalwart Amol Mazumdar and Saurashtra's batting bulwark Sitanshu Kotak.

It was learnt that former India batsman Hrishikesh Kanitkar and ex-Delhi batsman Mithun Manas also appeared for interview before the five-member panel.

One of the candidates said that giving presentation was not mandatory.

For the position of bowling coach, former India pacers Venkatesh Prasad, Paras Mbabrey and Amit Bhandari appeared for the interview.

As per the criteria for batting, bowling and fielding coach, the three personnel should have played at least 10 Tests or 25 ODIs and be less than 60 years of age.

The process to choose the support staff will continue on Tuesday.

Keys locks up Cincy title

AFP ■ CINCINNATI

Madison Keys came from a break down in both sets to defeat Svetlana Kuznetsova 7-5, 7-6 (7/5) on Sunday to win the WTA Cincinnati crown.

The 2017 US Open finalist notched her fifth career title and second this season after a win in Charleston in April.

She'll return to the top 10 in the world rankings with the US Open a week away.

Kuznetsova, a two-time Grand Slam champion working her way back up the rankings after a series of injuries, was broken back in the 10th game of each set by 16th-seeded Keys — who fired 13 aces on the way to victory.

"If my team had told me a week ago that I would be here, I would have laughed in their face," admitted Keys, who had endured two opening-match defeats since a second-round exit at Wimbledon.

Keys belted a total of 43 winners with 33 unforced errors and broke Kuznetsova three times.

Kuznetsova was the fourth Grand Slam winner Keys beat during the week, a string that included Spain's Garbine Muguruza, reigning Wimbledon champion Simona Halep and Venus Williams.

"It was a tough draw from the very start," Keys said. "I definitely think I played some of my best tennis consistently this week."

"I'm obviously really happy and really proud of myself," she added, while stressing she won't let the performance put more pressure on her at the US Open.

Madison Keys holds the Rookwood Cup after defeating Svetlana Kuznetsova in the women's final

"It's definitely more of a building block," she said.

Former world number two Kuznetsova, who received a wildcard into the draw, beat top seed Ashleigh Barty, world number three Ashleigh Barty and 2017 US Open champion Sloane Stephens on her way to the final.

"I had a lot of matches where they could have gone either way, including this one," said Kuznetsova, who will jump from 118th to 31st in the rankings and said she had a "great week."

"I had chances but she hit the ball well and was more aggressive. I'm happy with how I played, I'm feeling great," she said.

"It could give me more motivation in the future," Kuznetsova added. "I just want to rest and get ready for the Open."

Prajesh advances in Winston Salem Open

PTI ■ NORTH CAROLINA

India's top singles player Prajesh Gunneswaran advanced to the second round of the Winston Salem Open ATP 250 tournament with a straight set win over Cedrik-Marcel Stebe here.

Prajesh, ranked 89th in the world, beat his German rival 6-3, 6-4 in a match that lasted one hour and 13 minutes on Sunday night.

The Indian utilised two of the five breakpoints he earned while holding his serve throughout the match.

He will next face top seed Benoit Paire of France, who received a first round bye. Paire is ranked 30 in the world.

The Indian will fancy his chances in the next round as earlier this year, Prajesh had stunned Paire at the Indian Wells ATP Masters event for one of the biggest wins of his career. In the doubles event, the Indian pair of Divij Sharan and Rohan Bopanna crashed out in the first round.

The Indian duo lost to American pair of Nicholas Monroe and Tennyson Sandgren 3-6, 3-6.

Meanwhile, wild card entrants Leander Paes and his Israeli partner Jonathan Erlich, will take on the duo of Rajeev Ram and Joe Salisbury in the opening round.

Medvedev in top five

AFP ■ CINCINNATI

Daniil Medvedev, coming off back-to-back ATP finals defeats, held off David Goffin 7-6 (7/3), 6-4 on Sunday to win the ATP Cincinnati Masters.

The ninth-seeded Russian finished with an ace after saving break points in the final game, lifting a first Masters 1000 trophy after settling for runner-up finishes to Nick Kyrgios in Washington and Rafael Nadal in Montreal last weekend.

"These have been the best three weeks of my life," Medvedev said. "My mentality was the best, my serve was the best, my tennis has been really consistent."

"I didn't have one bad match, I hope to continue this way for next few weeks."

After his full-on post-Wimbledon schedule, the winner admitted: "I'm so exhausted, I almost can't talk now."

Medvedev, who only recently gained the ATP Top 10, now will find himself ranked fifth as a result of his three-week run of form.

"I don't check the rankings every two minutes, but I do look after I do well at a tournament," he said. "If I had lost I'd be seventh, now I'm fifth." Medvedev followed up his semi-final upset of defending champion Novak Djokovic as he controlled feisty Belgian Goffin to win an ATP leading 31st hardcourt match.

He has the most match wins on any surface this year with 43.

Spanish superstar Nadal, who did not play this week — is second with 41, followed by Roger Federer on 39.

Medvedev stamped himself a contender for the US Open, the final Grand Slam of the season that starts in Flushing Meadows in a week.

Goffin was competing in his second final of 2019 after losing to Federer in Halle.

"Congratulations to your team," he told Medvedev. "Once again, an unbelievable week for you, fantastic."

"I think you are ready for New York."

SINGLES

HADDIN JOINS SRH AS ASST COACH

ZURICH: Indian Premier League (IPL) side Sunrisers Hyderabad (SRH) on Monday announced former Australian vice captain and wicketkeeper Brad Haddin as their assistant coach. The former IPL champions made the announcement via their social media handles. Haddin thus joins Trevor Bayliss in the SRH backroom staff. Bayliss was named the SRH head coach in July, replacing Tom Moody in the role. Haddin replaces Simon Helmot, who was assistant to Moody. Bayliss has previously led Kolkata Knight Riders to two IPL titles between 2012 and 2015, while Haddin was with KKR as a player in 2011. Haddin has prior coaching experience with Australia, having been appointed fielding coach of the side in 2017 after coaching Australia A that year.

33 PROBABLES ANNOUNCED FOR CAMP

NEW DELHI: Hockey India on Monday named the 33 core probables list for the upcoming junior women's national coaching camp which will focus on preparing the team for a tri-nation tournament involving Australia and New Zealand to be held Down Under later this year. The probables will undergo a training and conditioning camp till September 14 under the supervision of coach Baljit Singh Saini. "We have called up all the core probables for the national camp keeping an eye on the three-nation tournament that is scheduled for the end of this year," Saini said. "We will be focused on making sure that the players keep their fitness levels high, and are in the rhythm of playing intense hockey at the highest level. We will also have the chance to identify the key areas where we need to work on, and we have enough time together to make sure that we work on those areas before the tournament in Australia later this year," he added.

DANNI WYATT SCRIPTS WCSL HISTORY

LONDON: Danni Wyatt has scripted history as she became the first ever English player to score a ton in the Women's Cricket Super League (WCSL). Playing for Southern Vipers, Wyatt scored 110 off 60 balls. Meanwhile, her score is the second-highest of all time in the competition, after Suzie Bates' 119 in 2017. "It was a tricky wicket," Wyatt was quoted as saying after the game. "Me and Suzie [Bates] struggled a bit in the first few overs. It was one of those wickets where you have to just back yourself and slog it really. I came off the pitch thinking, 'Wow, how did I manage that?' 'Once I was in, I wasn't thinking and just wanted to hit boundaries. Anything up there and full I tried to get my hands through. I've not hit a 100 for about 15 months so it's nice to get another one!' she added.

DANI ALVES SCORES WINNER ON DEBUT

SAO PAULO: Brazil veteran Dani Alves scored the winning goal on his debut for Sao Paulo on Sunday, weeks after signing a three-year deal with the club. Alves, 36, found the back of the net in the 40th minute to score the only goal of the game against Ceara. Alves and Spanish international Juanfran, 34, are the stars for Sao Paulo, who snapped up both players after their contracts with European clubs expired. Alves' return to Brazil after 17 years playing for top clubs in Europe has had a big impact on his home country.

RAIN SPOILS DULEEP TROPHY OPENER

BENGALURU: Heavy overnight rain washed out the entire third day's play in the Duleep Trophy opener between India Blue and India Green here on Monday. The rain resulted in a wet outfield and the conditions didn't improve through the day, forcing the officials to call off play without a ball being bowled for the second straight day. The second day's proceedings on Sunday had been washed out due to wet ground conditions. With only 49 overs having been bowled so far and no innings completed, the match is headed for a stalemate. India Green had reduced India Blue to 112 for 6 in 49 overs on a truncated opening day on Saturday.

Trippier, Felix star on debut

Alvaro Morata headed in a sumptuous Kieran Trippier cross to ensure a new-look Atletico Madrid beat Getafe 1-0 on Sunday and made a winning start in La Liga.

Trippier looked right at home at the Wanda Metropolitan when his bending ball was nodded in by Morata before two red cards in four minutes, one for each team, made it 10 against 10 before half-time.

Getafe striker Jorge Molina and Atletico left-back Renan Lodi were the players sent off and then Morata missed a penalty, earned after a mesmeric run from Joao Felix, Atletico's 126 million euro signing from Benfica.

It was enough for Felix to depart to a standing ovation and Atletico held on, even if this was perhaps not the statement opening to the season that Diego Simeone might have hoped for.

Getafe were stubborn opponents, showing again why they fin-

Felix aside, Atletico's other debutants impressed, including Lodi, before he was sent off, and Trippier, the first Englishman to play for Atletico since the Spanish Civil War and 20th in the history of the Spanish top flight.

The former Tottenham defender's pin-point cross was the highlight of a confident performance that earned regular praise from the home fans. Getafe had struggled to find a way into the match but two red cards in four minutes threatened to shift the balance.

First, referee Cuadra Fernandez turned a yellow card into a red for Molina after consulting VAR, the striker catching Thomas Parthey late down the back of his heel. Then Lodi was handed a second yellow for planting his hand in the face of Damian Suarez.

India's Sai Praneeth and H S Prannoy made convincing starts at the BWF World Championships to advance to the second round here on Monday.

Praneeth, ranked 19th, defeated 66th-ranked Jason Anthony Ho-Shue of Canada 21-17, 21-16 in a first round clash lasting 39 minutes. In another men's singles first round match, world number 30 Prannoy fought back to beat 93rd-ranked Eetu Heino of Finland 17-21, 21-10, 21-11.

India got a favourable result in the women's doubles also with Meghana Jakkampudi and S Poorvisha Ram getting past the Guatemala pairing of Diana Corleto Soto and Nikte Alejandra Sotomayor 21-10, 21-18 to enter the second round.

Star raider Vikas Kandola did the star turn as Haryana Steelers beat U Mumba 30-27 for an important win in a Pro Kabaddi League match at the Jawaharlal Nehru Indoor Stadium here on Monday.

The closely fought contest saw the Mumbai side match the Steelers till the very end, but Kandolas nine-point game and some uncharacteristic errors from the U Mumba defence handed Haryana victory.

Both sides went into the match with identical records (four wins and four losses in eight matches), but Haryana Steelers started aggressively, with coach Rakesh Kumar recognising the lack of raiding quality in U Mumba's ranks.

The defence kept a high line, strangling U Mumba's opportunities to pick up Bonus Points, thereby forcing them to make mistakes while Vikas Kandola picked up the points with his raids in the other end.

Coutinho joins Bayern on loan

AFP ■ MADRID

Barcelona's Philippe Coutinho has joined Bayern Munich on a one-year loan worth 8.5 million euros ($9.5 million) with an option to buy, the Spanish club confirmed on Monday.

"The agreement provides for an option for Bayern to buy at a 120-million-euro fee," Barcelona said.

The 27-year-old Brazilian joined Barcelona from Liverpool in January 2018 for an initial 120 million euros in a deal that included another 40 million euros in potential add-ons.

But the midfielder's stint at Barcelona never worked out as hoped despite huge excitement around his arrival at the Camp Nou.

Initially tried in midfield where he plays for Brazil, Coutinho was pushed into the front three by Ernesto Valverde last season but the switch never paid off.

"For me, this move means a new challenge in a new country with one of the best clubs in Europe," Coutinho said on Bayern's website.

"I'm very much looking forward to that. Like FC Bayern, I have big ambitions and I'm convinced that I can achieve them together with my new teammates." The German club hope he will provide reinforcement in attack following the departure of veteran duo Arjen Robben and Franck Ribery at the end of last season. "With his creativity and outstanding skills, Philippe is a player who will immediately strengthen our attack," Bayern CEO Karl-Heinz Rummenigge said.

Edinson Cavani scored after less than 15 minutes of play for the visitors in Brittany before Mbaye Niang and Romain del Castillo responded for the home side.

PSG were without forward Neymar for a third successive game this term.

Angolan-born 16-year-old Eduardo Camavinga starred in Rennes midfield, and proved to be key in his team's winning goal, along with experienced playmaker Clement Grenier.

first player born since January 2002 to feature in Europe's top five leagues, had continued to improve since making his first team debut in April.

"It's more than six months he's been training with the professionals. He's settled in well with the squad," he told broadcaster Canal+.

"We've prepared him with the players, the staff and the whole club so he can evolve in the right conditions.

"He started doing it at the end of last season and he's confirming all the talent we think he has at the start of this season," he added.

PSG skipper Thiago Silva admitted his side stepped off the gas after their good start through Cavani's effort.

"We started well but we eased off a bit, I don't know why, we lost concentration," he told Canal+.

"It wasn't the real PSG. Rennes played well, they were solid defensively, they were more careful than us," he added.

Elsewhere Saint-Etienne salvaged a late point at home against Brest with new signing Denis Bouanga's 83rd minute effort claiming a 1-1 draw and it finished goalless between Reims and Strasbourg.
