Agri, food processing MoUs signed with Russia: Yogi

Prime Minister Narendra Modi held talks with his Russian counterpart during his visit to Russia and also signed MoUs.

Yogi said that India was the largest producer of foodgrains.

Modi, a large Indian delegation got the opportunity to visit Vladivostok in Far East Russia. The delegations signed 13 MoUs, including one for the setting up of an industrial area for the production of plywood, and MoUs in the fields of agriculture and food processing sectors between UP and Zabaykalsky Krai region of Far East Russia.

The MoUs have been signed in agriculture and food processing sectors between UP government and Zabaykalsky Krai government of Russia. One MoU has been signed between Agriculture Department of Uttar Pradesh and Far East Federal University of Russia in education and research with the aim of increasing academic and cultural exchange.

Yogi clarified that India and Russia can benefit from the expertise on rice in vegetables, horticulture, agriculture, meat processing and various other fields. Russia has abundant natural resources, which can be a boon for UP.

The MoUs will help the state in diversifying its agriculture base and create avenues for UP's farmers to sell their produce in the foreign market.

SP set to overhaul party organisation

Pratap Singh Parihar, a senior leader of the SP, is going to contest in the upcoming elections. Parihar was earlier the leader of the party's minority cell in the UP Assembly.

Parihar has been associated with the SP for a long time. He had also been the leader of the party's minority cell in the UP Assembly.

The party is set for a major overhaul of its organisation.

MP Dipak Pratap Singh will contest in the Gorakhpur bye-poll. This is the first by-election in the constituency since Yogi Adityanath was elected chief minister of the state.

The by-election in the constituency was necessitated by the death of the sitting MLA, Sanjay Singh, who died in a road accident in Gorakhpur.

Parihar, who has been associated with the SP for a long time, is likely to contest in the Gorakhpur by-poll.

“I welcome the decision of Pratap Singh, a senior leader of the SP, to contest in the Gorakhpur by-poll. This is the first by-election in the constituency since Yogi Adityanath was elected chief minister of the state.

The SP is set for a major overhaul of its organisation. The party is likely to launch a membership drive to bring new members into the party and strengthen its organisation.

The SP will also focus on training its leaders and workers to make them more effective in their role.

The party will also focus on strengthening its organisational structure at the grassroots level to ensure that it can contest in all the seats in the next assembly elections.

Highest Police medal eludes UP cops

UP Police has failed to get any Police Medal for Gallantry (PPMG) awardee this year, for the second consecutive year.

Out of 1777 police officers selected for FPMP this year, no one from UP has been awarded the highest police medal for bravery. In 2017 too, UP Police failed to get any PPMG.

A total of 256 UP Police officials have been recommended for President’s Medal for Distinguished Services this year.

Besides, 951 policemen have received President’s Medal for Outstanding Services. The Lucknow district policemen alone have been recommended for President’s Medal for Outstanding Services.

No harm in J&K becoming UT if people benefit: Ex-PDP leader

Gandhakar (JK) - Dismissing worries over Jammu and Kashmir becoming a Union Territory, Ex-PDP leader Akbar Wani said there was no harm in J&K becoming a UT if the people benefited from it.

He said the current political scenario of the state was not conducive for the law and order situation in the state.

However, he noted that a stable political situation could only be brought by returning to the democratic process of elections.

The issue of Article 370 was a separate issue and was not on the table currently, he added.

He said the central government should have a clear idea of what it wanted to do with Article 370 before taking any decision on the matter.

Wani said the government had failed to bring about any changes in J&K even after the introduction of Article 370 in the state.

Emphasising the need for a stable political situation, he said that the government should focus on development and other welfare schemes.

In a recent statement, he had said that the government had failed to bring about any changes in J&K even after the introduction of Article 370 in the state.

Jal Shakti Ministry launches rural sanitation survey

In recent years, the Jal Shakti Ministry has been working towards improving access to basic sanitation and hygiene in rural areas. The Ministry has launched various initiatives and programs to promote clean and healthy living conditions. These efforts have been aimed at achieving the goal of Swachh Bharat Abhiyan, or the Clean India Movement, which was launched by the Prime Minister of India in 2014.

The Ministry has launched the Swachh Survekshan App, which helps in monitoring and assessing the progress of sanitation improvement activities. The Ministry has also been actively involved in promoting the use of clean cookstoves, which can help reduce air pollution and improve health outcomes.

The Jal Shakti Ministry has been working closely with state governments and local bodies to implement these initiatives. The Ministry has also been engaging with civil society organizations and other stakeholders to promote awareness and encourage participation in these efforts.

A nation in treatment

The government has launched several programs to improve access to healthcare and medical treatment. The Ayushman Bharat Yojana, also known as the Pradhan Mantri Jan Arogya Yojana (PMJAY), is a government scheme that aims to provide health insurance cover to over 100 million vulnerable families in the country.

The scheme offers free treatment in government hospitals and private hospitals empanelled under the scheme. The scheme also includes a cashless transfer of funds directly to the beneficiaries' bank accounts.

The Ministry of Health and Family Welfare has also been working on improving the quality of public health facilities and strengthening health care systems. The government has been investing in the construction and renovation of hospitals and health centers, as well as in the training of health care professionals.

A nation in treatment

The government has been working on improving access to clean water and sanitation facilities. The Jal Jeevan Mission is a flagship program of the government to provide tap water connections to all rural households by 2024.

The program aims to provide safe and reliable drinking water to every household in rural areas, thereby improving the overall health and well-being of the population. The government has been investing heavily in the construction of water supply networks and the rehabilitation of existing systems.

The Jal Shakti Ministry has been working closely with state governments and local bodies to implement these initiatives. The Ministry has also been engaging with civil society organizations and other stakeholders to promote awareness and encourage participation in these efforts.

A nation in treatment

The government has been working on improving access to electricity and telecommunication services. The Pradhan Mantri Gramin Dhan Yojana (PMGDY) is a government scheme that aims to provide financial inclusion to all rural households.

The scheme offers a range of financial services, such as savings, insurance, and credit, to rural households. The government has been investing in the construction of rural Chattisgarh.

A nation in treatment

The government has been working on improving access to education and training. The Pradhan Mantri Gramin Upaaj Yojana (PMGU) is a government scheme that aims to provide education and training opportunities to rural households.

The scheme offers a range of education and training programs, such as vocational training and adult education, to rural households. The government has been investing in the construction of rural educational institutions and training centers.

The Jal Shakti Ministry has been working closely with state governments and local bodies to implement these initiatives. The Ministry has also been engaging with civil society organizations and other stakeholders to promote awareness and encourage participation in these efforts.

A nation in treatment

The government has been working on improving access to employment and entrepreneurship opportunities. The Pradhan Mantri Gramin Babu Yojana (PMGBY) is a government scheme that aims to provide employment and entrepreneurship opportunities to rural households.

The scheme offers a range of programs, such as microfinance and skill development, to rural households. The government has been investing in the construction of rural employment and entrepreneurship centers.

The Jal Shakti Ministry has been working closely with state governments and local bodies to implement these initiatives. The Ministry has also been engaging with civil society organizations and other stakeholders to promote awareness and encourage participation in these efforts.

A nation in treatment

The government has been working on improving access to social security and welfare programs. The Pradhan Mantri Gramin Yojana (PMGY) is a government scheme that aims to provide social security and welfare programs to rural households.

The scheme offers a range of programs, such as pension and insurance, to rural households. The government has been investing in the construction of rural social security and welfare centers.

The Jal Shakti Ministry has been working closely with state governments and local bodies to implement these initiatives. The Ministry has also been engaging with civil society organizations and other stakeholders to promote awareness and encourage participation in these efforts.
New India must understand that maximum power is also about minimum ambition, but that does not mean that we should not dream. When our nation turns 73 today, one old criterion—considering its liabilities that have marched in a steady march—should be revised to suit the times. India is on the rise, its power should reflect that. But the question is how we utilize this power, and consider our actions, not just the strategic narrative. And a healthy democracy demands that we have a strong and robust network of checks and balances to prevent the empowerment of one group from becoming unaccountable.

One reason why China has not been able to chide India on Article 370 is because it is facing a crisis in Hong Kong.

Hong Kong troubles

One reason why China has not been able to chide India on Article 370 is because it is facing a crisis in Hong Kong. The Chinese government feels threatened by the protests, which have been happening for months now. The protests were sparked by a controversial extradition bill, which would have allowed for the extradition of criminals to China. The protests have since spread to other issues, such as land reform, education, and labor rights. The protests have caused many businesses to shut down, and the economy has been hit hard. The Chinese government has been trying to quell the protests by using its military and police force, but they have not been effective. The protests have also caused many Hong Kong residents to feel that their rights are being threatened by the Chinese government.

India, China must respect each other’s core concerns: Jaishankar

India and China should find ways to respect each other’s core concerns, External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar said on Sunday.

“The two countries should find ways to respect each other’s core concerns,” Jaishankar said on the sidelines of the conference on ‘Asia’s Maritime Future: Opportunities and Challenges’ that was hosted by the Shangri-La Dialogue in Singapore.

The conference is attended by diplomats, politicians, business leaders and other stakeholders from around the world. It is a platform for discussion and exchange of ideas on various aspects of international relations, including trade, security, and regional cooperation.

Jaishankar’s comments come at a time when India and China are involved in a border dispute, with both countries accusing the other of militarizing and obstructing necessary patrols.

“India is committed to finding a peaceful resolution to the border issue, and we believe in dialogue and diplomacy to resolve differences,” Jaishankar said.

The visit came just days after India and China held talks to resolve their border standoff. The talks were described as “constructive” but no breakthrough was announced.

The border dispute between India and China has been a major source of tension between the two countries. The dispute has escalated in recent years, with both sides accusing the other of provocations.

India and China are major economic partners, with trade between the two countries reaching $70 billion in 2019. However, the border issue has cast a shadow over their economic relationship.

In his comments, Jaishankar also reiterated India’s commitment to the principle of “peace and stability through dialogue and negotiation.”

The dialogue was attended by a number of prominent figures from India and China, including Indian Foreign Minister S Jaishankar, Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi, and Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

India and China are both major powers in Asia and their relationship is significant for regional and global stability. The two countries share a number of common interests, such as economic development and counterterrorism.

However, their relationship has been marred by periodic border disputes, including the current standoff in the Ladakh region.

In conclusion, India and China must find ways to respect each other’s core concerns and work towards resolving their differences through dialogue and negotiation.

I went to PREETHISHA, a transgender, just for a little strength and self-reliance to step ahead, fight her family at 15 and take charge of her life. She tells CHAHAT MITTAL that her fight was not for her gender identity but her basic right to live the way she wanted.

"I don't know the future today there is no point in fighting even if she is a trans very much part of the LGBTQIA community. I’m not saying that other should fight. If a girl is just starting school and she deeply her doctors and parents to help her but rather than doing it give it public. There people don’t care much and even her friends can help someone like her. Because when trans people look to the girls and fight for their community it is a different fight for their fight is their fight. Today, no one has freedom to do. She has the right to be on public announcement, they do not release any information. It will still not come true. So let them fight for their rights."

Roger, Djoker advance

CINCINNATI: Roger Federer and Novak Djokovic overwhelmed opponents at the WTA-ATP Cincinnati Masters on Tuesday, where Serena Williams withdrew because of back trouble. Williams had hoped to rebound from the back spasms that forced her out of the WTA final in Toronto on Sunday, where she lasted only four games before retiring. But the 23-time Grand Slam champion said her back was "still not right" casting a further shadow on her chances at the US Open starting in Flushing Meadows on August 26. For Djokovic and Federer, back in action for the first time since the Serb's victory over the Swiss in the Wimbledon final, it was a smooth start to their US Open build-up. Federer, seeded third, remained unruffled by a one-hour rain interruption at 2-2 in the second set, eventually defeating Argentina's Juan Ignacio Londero 6-3, 6-4 to reach the third round at the event he has won seven times. "I'm very happy, even if it was a bit tricky with the rain delay," Federer said. "I'm happy to be back on court. This is the start of a long, long hardcourt swing. It's good to begin with a win. I didn't know that much about my opponent — he's new to the tour — but at the end you have to concentrate on your own game."

Defending champion Djokovic double faulted three times as he dropped serve in the opening game against Sam Querrey but quickly put things right and pulled away for a 7-5, 6-1 victory over the American.

Last year's semi-finalists Ajax reached the Champions League playoffs on Tuesday after seeing off PAOK Thessaloniki 3-2 in a tense encounter in Amsterdam to go through 5-3 on aggregate. Two Dusan Tadic penalties, the second five minutes from time, and Nicolas Tagliafico's late header kept Erik ten Hag's side alive with a chance to relive the dreams of last season, when they reached the semi-finals. "We had a tough time," said Marc Overmars, Ajax's chief operating officer. "But we managed to break through."

"The first half was a bit difficult for us, but the second half was much better. We played well and deserved to win," added Ten Hag. "It's a big step towards the European Champions League. We can be happy with the performance."

Serb Tadic, who had already missed once from the spot for Ajax, slotted home the equaliser two minutes before the break after Diego Biseswar had silenced the Johan Cruyff Arena with a fine strike for PAOK midway through the half. Tagliafico left the Greeks needing to score twice within six minutes to go through, but were unable to create clear-cut chances with a powerful header and shot. The Dutch added a third on the night through Tadic from the first leg with a 2-0 win on aggregate thanks to goals from Tomás de Vreven and Ousmane Ndiaye.
