The proposal is expected to deter FPIs from selling shares, with an aim of reducing market volatility and increasing liquidity in the equity segment. FPIs, who have been key players in the Indian capital market for the past decade, have been facing increasing scrutiny from the government. The move is seen as a move to protect domestic investors and increase the role of domestic investors in the market.

India’s tax revenues have been under pressure in recent years, with the country’s economy slowing down and businesses facing challenges. The government is facing a budget deficit and needs to find ways to raise more revenue to fund its spending plans. The tax on FPIs is expected to raise additional revenue for the government, which can be used to fund various projects.

However, the move is likely to be unpopular with FPIs, who have been providing much-needed liquidity to the market. They have been key players in the market, helping to stabilize it during times of volatility. The government needs to tread carefully and ensure that the move does not lead to a sharp fall in FPI inflows, which could have negative implications for the market.

North Korea says latest test was ‘new weapon’

AFP

North Korean leader Kim Jong Un has announced the successful test-firing of a new short-range ballistic missile at the Institute for Far Eastern Studies in the capital, Pyongyang.

Kim, who is accompanied by his aides, was shown in the video watching the launch of the missile, which is said to be capable of carrying multiple nuclear warheads.

The test-firing comes as tensions remain high on the Korean Peninsula, with North Korea and South Korea both increasing their military activities in recent weeks.

The launch of the missile is likely to be seen as a response to the recent announcement by South Korea of plans to deploy a new anti-missile system.

North Korea has threatened to carry out more tests if South Korea goes ahead with its plans.

The project aims to reduce the use of synthetic pesticides and promote the use of natural, safe, and effective alternatives. The students have planted various medicinal plants and herbs, including rosemary, lavender, and basil. These plants have been used traditionally to repel insects and provide a natural barrier against pests. The students have also been involved in raising awareness among peers and the community about the benefits of using natural methods to control pests. This project not only helps in reducing the use of harmful chemicals but also promotes a healthier, more sustainable approach to pest management.

The students have shown remarkable dedication and enthusiasm in their project. They have been involved in various activities such as planting, harvesting, and even organizing workshops and seminars to educate others about the benefits of using natural methods. The project has also received support from local organizations and officials, who have recognized the importance of this initiative.

In conclusion, the school project on natural pest management is an excellent example of how education and innovation can lead to positive change. By adopting natural methods, the students are not only protecting the environment but also setting a positive example for others to follow. This project demonstrates that with commitment and effort, we can make a difference in our communities and contribute to a more sustainable future.

"We have been highlighting the team's need for a win. It's a decent one, hopefully the rain doesn't get too far. I don't think we have ever had a very good run in the ODI series. We have got to take it and look forward to the Test series," Ganguly said. According to the sources, PCB chairman Ehsan Mani rejected Imran Khan's request for Arthur's extension as head coach. "It's so infectious." Sourabh, who had won 10,405 runs in the first 50-ODI games, is seen as a potential replacement for the head coach. "It's a fantastic player who can take on the onus of batting at the lower order and that will give his team a victory," Sourabh said. The 24-year-old fastest bowler in the world, Sourabh, has been playing tournaments on his own. He reached the semi-finals at the Dutch Open and the British Open in August. He has also been playing tournaments in other countries. "I don't have any sponsor or any help from anywhere. Nothing has changed for me. I play for the tournament and we don't get any support from anywhere," Sourabh said.
