HYDERABAD: Chief Minister YS Jaganmohan Reddy on Thursday announced creation of a Chief of Defence Staff (CDS) office under his autonomy. The Union government has reportedly promised to have a Chief of Defence Staff, which will help the three services to work together as the country cannot afford to be isolated in its thinking.

A high-level constitution committee appointed to examine the right to the country’s security system in the last 73 years had called for having a Chief of Defence Staff as a single-point military adviser to the Prime Minister to ensure synergy among the three services.

Addressing the gathering after unfurling the national tricolour on Thursday, the chief minister said the country will now have a Chief of Defence Staff that will ensure synergy among the three services in the next five years.

CENTRE'S DECISION ON ARTICLE 370 UNSHACKLED KASHMIRIS: YOGI

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday congratulated Jammu and Kashmir on Independence Day, describing the occasion as “a historic step” that will ensure no one over there is dependent on anyone for their safety, as he asserted that corruption law would be enforced in the new setup.

"For the Kashmiri brothers and sisters, for the Kashmiri brothers and sisters, this is a historic day. On this day, there will not be any problem, there will not be any threat," he said in a tweet.

"Their first point was against corruption. Our first point is against corruption.,” he said, referring to the Corruption Amendment Act, 2020.

There are expectations that the government would go further in Article 370 assembly elections, and that the governor would lift the National Green Tribunal (NGT) ban on coal mining in Meghalaya. Meghalaya Chief Minister Conrad Sangma has been keen on helping the state’s coal industry get back on track, and has been lobbying for months to lift the ban on coal mining.

Sangma, who has been in power since 2018, has been a vocal advocate for the state’s coal industry and has been working closely with the Centre to ensure that the state’s economic development is not affected. The Centre, on the other hand, has been cautious in its approach to the issue, given the sensitive nature of coal mining in the state.

On the political front, the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has been working to strengthen its base in the state, and has been focusing on issues like infrastructure development and tourism.

In the last few months, the Centre has been working to ensure that the state’s coal industry is able to operate smoothly, and has been providing financial assistance to the state government to help it meet its financial obligations.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi’s 1-Day speech was about consolidating past gains and deciding targets that need to be met by 2022 in mission mode.

No longer Indipendence Day speeches by Prime Ministers are consid- ered a routine affair. Prime Ministers over the years have been known to convey the feeling that the going is good and that national well-being has been entrusted in capable hands.

The speech was well received, and the mood was positive. On the return flight to Delhi, Prime Minister Modi added: ‘I must add there is a tremendous desire for change in the country and the people are waiting for a change, and I am glad to say that I have been able to convey that sentiment and that we are going in a very positive direction.”

This was after the big move of Article 370 being abrogated and the abolition of the special status in J&K. Prime Minister Modi’s tour of J&K and Ladakh was a reflection of a mood that he had conveyed to the people directly the day before.

Even before the abrogation of the special status in J&K, the Prime Minister had a long meeting with the 30 Chief Ministers of the country and later held a meeting with the 12 Union Territories. It was a convincing message to the people of India that the Government was determined and serious in its approach to the issue.

The mood was positive and the Prime Minister was able to convey the sentiment that change is in the air and that the people are waiting for it.

The Prime Minister also mentioned the various initiatives that have been taken to ensure that the people of India are able to get basic necessities like food, clothing, and shelter. He also mentioned the various schemes that have been launched to ensure that the people of India are able to get quality education, healthcare, and jobs.

The report underscores the importance of maintaining and restoring habitats for wildlife, including forests, wetlands, and other natural ecosystems. It notes that wildlife populations are declining at an alarming rate, with many species facing extinction due to habitat loss, climate change, and other threats.

The report highlights the need for urgent action to protect wildlife habitats and biodiversity, urging countries to:

- Implement stronger laws and regulations to protect wildlife habitats and biodiversity.
- Increase funding for wildlife conservation and restoration efforts.
- Implement sustainable land-use practices to reduce habitat loss.
- Reduce greenhouse gas emissions to mitigate climate change and its impacts on wildlife.
- Increase public awareness and education about the importance of wildlife and biodiversity.

The report calls for a global commitment to protect wildlife habitats and biodiversity, noting that this is not only necessary for the survival of species but also for the health and well-being of people. It highlights the interconnectedness of wildlife, ecosystems, and human well-being, and the need for urgent action to protect the natural world.

The report concludes that the time for action is now, and that urgent and ambitious efforts are required to protect wildlife habitats and biodiversity. It urges all countries to take action to protect the natural world for the sake of future generations.
ONGC to boost oil production, invest Rs 83 K cr in 25 years

ONGC envisions a natural gas output of over 25 bcm by FY24, Shander said in his speech which was counter signed by four other company chairmen, according to a company statement.

The directive of ONGC comes as the government is seeking to turn around the flagging fortunes of the country’s biggest crude oil producer. The government in April had invited sealed bids for a 20 per cent stake in the company, which was later withdrawn due to lack of interest.

While the company is struggling to turn around, the world oil market is tightening with the passing of time, with the OPEC production cut already starting to take effect. Market experts believe that OPEC’s production cut, coupled with US-China trade war, which has further depressed global growth, will result in tightening of crude oil in the market.

The OPEC production cut of 1.2 million bpd from January 1, 2019, is set to have a strong impact on the global oil market. The resulting tightness in the market, at a time when US-China trade war is causing uncertainty in the market, will further add to the OPEC production cut.

The company, which has a significant presence in India’s refining, marketing, and distribution segments, is expected to benefit from the higher crude oil prices.

The company is expected to see an increase of 40 per cent in its market share, Shander said.

Over the next five years, ONGC will invest Rs 83 K cr in various projects and will focus on increasing its crude output by 15 million tonnes a year to 45 million tonnes by 2025.

The company also has a world-leading position in polymer and intermediates, as well as strong presence in the chemical sector at four locations in India.

For the ONGC, this is a major step forward as the company has been looking to increase its refining capacity.

Shander also announced that ONGC is planning to invest in the logistics segment, which is expected to see a major growth in the near future.

The company will also focus on improving its market share in the domestic market, which is currently around 25 per cent.

Flavours seep in

Here are a few tips on how to marinate just about anything:

TIP 1: Marinate in a bag

Marinate your food in a ziplock plastic bag. This helps keep the marinade more concentrated around your food. Put the bag in a container and place in the refrigerator. Note: This method is only suitable for meat in a marinade that will not go bad due to the slight blandness of the marinade.

TIP 2: Marinate the night before

Prepare your marinade the night before, then cover and refrigerate. This helps flavor the food much better than if you were to marinate it in the morning or after lunch.

TIP 3: Marinate at room temperature

If you have time and are able to do so, try marinating your pork, beef, or chicken at room temperature the day before you plan to use it. This method will help the meat absorb the marinade much better, and you’ll get more flavor out of your dish.

TIP 4: Marinate for less time

If you’re short on time, don’t worry. Marinating for a shorter period of time can still help improve the flavor of your dish. However, if you’re marinating for longer than the recommended time, your dish may become too flavorful and overpowering.

TIP 5: Marinate in a sealed container

Marinating in a sealed container can help prevent the food from becoming mushy or soggy. Use a sealable plastic bag or airtight container to marinate your food.

TIP 6: Marinate in a refrigerator

Marinating in the refrigerator is the best way to ensure that your food stays fresh and flavorful. Make sure to wash your hands after handling the marinade, and don’t use the same utensils for the marinade and the food.
