The tragic death of 43 people in Anaj Mandi—the largest illegal factory area in north Delhi—has sparked a fresh round of issues about fire safety and the authorities’ failure to act on the promise of sealing illegal factories.

During the horrific blaze in Anaj Mandi, workers were trapped and many died as fires broke out throughout the four-story building. The incident serves as a stark reminder of the dire conditions in which many poor labourers live and work, with no escape routes or fire safety measures.

The building, located in Bijnore district, was previously identified for sealing due to illegal factories operating within. However, the authorities did not act on this warning or the tragic death of 43 people. This highlights the lack of enforcement and the need for urgent action to protect the lives of workers in similar situations.

Firemen not aware of safety of many people trapped inside

Firemen were not aware of the safety of many people trapped inside the building. They rushed to rescue the people but when they arrived, they found that the building was on fire. They were unable to control the flames and rescue the workers. It is a tragic reminder of the need for better fire safety measures in such areas.

A Medical Council of India (MCI) panel tasked with formulating guidelines for medical colleges in making staining solutions also lacks proper training, MCI's President Dr. N. Ramajith Reddy said.

The President said on August 6 that there was a need for guidelines in this area as well.

"There is no question of having any postgraduate seat by 70 per cent," the President said.

With the presence of constitution of National Medical Council (NMC) in 2015, the Medical Council of India (MCI) has been proposed to draft a code of conduct, regulations for educational institutions and for the conduct of academic sessions.

The President said that in the absence of a medical council, the administration of the medical colleges was "precarious" and that the MCI committee would look into the issue.

"The problem is how to achieve a full transition," he said, adding that this is a "major concern" of his administration.

"This week, I met the Prime Minister in New Delhi and he was clear on the need for a medical council," the President added.

The President also noted that the MCI had recommended that the medical colleges should be "self-regulating bodies".

No more tears please

It's not like there aren't any alternatives but the Govt needs to implement the right thing of does this work?

It is intrinsic that the omission manages to leave us feeling every-where and no where at the same time. We become part of another wave of the global climate crisis. If we continue this way, we will become part of the 20% of the world's population that consumes 80% of its carbon footprint, and the 20% of the world's population that is responsible for 80% of the world's water consumption. It is time that we take action to mitigate our impact on the environment.

In this line of sight, the concept of reducing our carbon footprint is not just about reducing the amount of greenhouse gases we emit. It is also about creating a sustainable future for our children and their children's children. It is about ensuring that the planet we leave behind is one that is healthy, prosperous, and safe for all.

It is time that we take action to address the climate crisis. It is time that we take action to protect the planet from the effects of climate change. It is time that we take action to ensure that our children and their children's children have a future that is not just possible, but probable. It is time that we take action to create a sustainable future for ourselves and for our children.

The only way we can achieve this is by working together. We must all contribute to the fight against climate change. We must all take action to reduce our carbon footprint. We must all support initiatives that help to protect the planet. We must all work towards creating a sustainable future for ourselves and for our children.

Climate change is a crisis that requires urgent action. It is a crisis that affects us all. It is a crisis that we must all address. It is a crisis that we cannot afford to ignore.

Let's work together to create a sustainable future. Let's work together to protect the planet. Let's work together to ensure that our children and their children's children have a future that is not just possible, but probable.
Nothing will change unless public pressure forces a revamp of our policing and judiciary system that so rape probes without interference are feasible and courts are able to dispense justice quickly.

Determined to lead the way, the Hong Kong police took to the largest march since the movement started some 11 months ago. Hundreds of thousands of people began their 12-kilometer march from the outskirts of Hong Kong to the financial district in Hong Kong’s largest anti-government demonstration since the protests began.

The police's appearance at the march was notable. Their march was the most forceful display of support for the government that the police force has shown since the protests started. It is a significant shift in the police force's approach, which has been criticized for its heavy-handed tactics in previous protests.

Despite the police's show of force, many people continued to march, carrying signs and chanting slogans. The marchers were determined to make their voices heard, despite the police presence. They were calling for greater democracy and the resignation of the Hong Kong government.

In the end, the march was a powerful demonstration of the Hong Kong people's determination to stand up for their rights and demands for greater democracy. The police's show of force was a stark reminder of the challenges that lie ahead, but the people of Hong Kong remained resolute in their commitment to their cause.

Alka Gadge looks at how fathers are taking a step ahead in directly raising their children rather than leaving it to mothers.

Studies have shown that fathers who are involved with their children have significantly boost the physical and mental well-being of their children. Gone are the days when boys were educated at home and girls were educated at home. Boys, today, are also enrolled in school education. Girls, now, are also being educated. Fathers not only have a demonstrable impact on the academic performance of their children, but they also play an active role in their social and emotional development. This is because fathers provide a different perspective and a different approach to problem-solving, which can help children develop a broader range of skills.

This is also evident in the case of Alka Gadge. She is a 38-year-old mother of three children, two boys and a girl. She lives with her husband, Dinesh, and their three children, who are currently studying in different schools in different parts of the state. Alka is a social worker and works with a non-governmental organisation (NGO) that focuses on child rights.

Alka believes that fathers have a significant role to play in the education of their children. She says, "I have seen many cases where fathers have been involved in their children's education, and the results have been quite impressive. Fathers provide a different perspective and a different approach to problem-solving, which can help children develop a broader range of skills.

Alka believes that fathers should be encouraged to take an active role in their children's education. She says, "Fathers should be encouraged to take an active role in their children's education. This will not only help their children, but it will also help fathers to understand their children's needs and their needs as parents.

In conclusion, fathers have a significant role to play in the education of their children. They should be encouraged to take an active role in their children's education, and this will not only help their children, but it will also help fathers to understand their children's needs and their needs as parents.
Simmons scare haunts India again

Windies opener leads batting chart to help world T20 champions break duck of seven consecutive defeats against India, level series 1-1

The last five overs India couldn’t get the required momentum as Rahul Pant (50 not out) and Brathwaite were able to control the rhythm of the bowlers. The variation enabled West to get a much-needed four runs in the 19th over to set the target for India.

Rahane, who was later dropped, continued from the 33rd over and pushed the West Indies' bowling attack to the limits. Rahane continued to hit the bowlers with his powerful strokes, hitting a six in the 18th over.

However, the West Indies were not going to give up easily. They fought back strongly in the 18th over, taking both Rahane and Stokes wickets to reduce India to 157/3.

In the 19th over, Shami bowled a splendid over to take the wicket of Brathwaite, reducing India to 157/4.

In the final over, Kishan and Pant added 15 runs to take India to 172/4 and eventually win the match.

The victory was a much-needed one for India, who had lost their last five matches against the West Indies.

In the meantime, Simmons had a fine performance with the bat, scoring 38 runs off 18 balls. He hit four sixes and three fours in his knock, which was crucial in setting up a challenging target for India.

The Windies had scored 186/4 in their 20 overs, with Rahane and Stokes scoring 80 and 70 respectively. This was the Windies' best performance in the series so far.

In the end, India had successfully defended the target, winning the match by 4 wickets with 7 balls to spare.
Defending champions suffer shock 1-2 home defeat against Red Devils

Mauricio Pochettino’s side were left shell-shocked after being thrashed by Manchester United for the second time in as many meetings between the two sides, having been thumped 4-0 in the Premier League back in April. The Frenchman and his men were devoid of any energy and spirit from the very first minute and were simply no match for Ole Gunnar Solskjaer’s men on this occasion.

Solskjaer’s side were looking to continue their fine run of form, having won six of their last seven matches in all competitions, and they made the perfect start when Fred opened the scoring in the first minute. Scott McTominay then doubled United’s lead just before the break, followed by Anthony Elanga’s late goal to make it 3-0.

Surely, Ligue 1’s top team had no intention of giving up without a fight and they forced a number of saves from Henderson throughout the match. However, they were unable to find a way back into the game and it was a rather uncomfortable evening for some of the PSG stars.

It was a day to forget for the champions, who now find themselves level on points with Chelsea and Liverpool in third place, four behind leaders Manchester United. The pressure is now on Juventus to maintain their advantage at the top of Serie A, while Real Madrid, who were held to a 1-1 draw with Athletic Bilbao on Sunday, will be looking to make up for that with a win against Valencia on Wednesday.

In the meantime, as the race for the top three hotly congested, a number of other games in France and Spain are also set to kick off. On Sunday, Monaco will host Saint-Etienne in Ligue 1, while Real Madrid face Athletic Bilbao in LaLiga. Tuesday’s fixtures include Lyon hosting Rennes in Ligue 1 and Real Madrid hosting Celta Vigo in LaLiga. Wednesday’s games see Nantes take on Angers and Real Madrid face Getafe in LaLiga.
