A jail warden and an aide were arrested on charges of running a drug racket inside the Gurgaon district jail. Another accused Phool Mohammad, 26, both residents of Manesar, was arrested when police conducted a raid at Naya Gaon road adjoining the jail and held two youths here in connection with the case. The Crime branch on Saturday also arrested two other persons, including a security guard of the jail, and the security guard was later released on bail. The accused and the two youths will be produced before the court. The security guard was initially arrested on Sunday but later released.

New Year revellers need to be brave rains

Following tests conducted twice on two dozen students who had received doses of the vaccine before the hostiles in Asifabad, the Telangana government dealt a blow to the Centre, saying it would not agree to the second batch of doses. Two other girls, who were also inoculated, had not developed any symptoms or side effects so far. The students are part of a village in Andhra Pradesh's Visakhapatnam district, and they were inoculated at a session conducted on November 20 by the District Health Society.

MIXED MARTIAL ARTS

The Nagpur district commissioner has given permission to the Nagpur Police to hold the International Thai Boxing Championship in the city. The championship will be held from February 26 to March 1, 2020, at the Shri Sai Vihar Sports Complex in the city. The Nagpur police have written to the South Zone Police to conduct the event. The police have also written to the Nagpur Municipal Corporation to hold the event in the city.

KOLKATA

The city police have arrested a man for making false statements about his age and identity. The man, who was arrested from a railway station, was found to be carrying a false identity card. The police said they were investigating the matter further. The arrested man was identified as T. S. from West Bengal. The police said they had preliminary information that he was involved in illegal activities.

NEW DELHI

The Central Excise and Customs Department has seized a truck loaded with 1.5 tonnes of contraband tobacco products in New Delhi. The truck was stopped at a checkpoint and the driver was arrested. The seized tobacco products included cigarettes and chewing tobacco. The driver was also arrested.

VICTIM’S HAIR STRANDS HELP COPS NAIL COUPLE

MARTIN KUMAR

Victim’s hair strands found on the jewellery at the scene of the accident helped the cops nab the accused couple and solve the serial murders taking place over the past three years.

The family of the accused was surprised to receive the news about the double tragedy within 16 hours of the accident. Six-year-old Sneha, daughter of the accused, was injured and her background photograph was found near the location of the accident.

The family of the victims, Srinivas, 42, who alleges angina more than time for permission to the accident and Konda Raghuveer, 47, a mud church worker who was allegedly beaten up by the accused, received the news on Thursday.

The police also recovered a mobile phone of the accused along with the scene. Srinivas is the only one who informs the police and the victims received a message on their phones.

The police identified the accused as Srinivas, a resident of Chilkalguda, and Konda Raghuveer, a resident of Chandrayangutta.

The mobile phone of the accused was traced and the police recovered 150 mobile phone numbers of women, who were frequently called by the accused.

The police also recovered the hair strands of the victims seen in the accident.

All 15 murders committed by Srinivas took place under the jurisdiction of the Cyberabad Commissionerate of Police. The accused was nabbed by the police on Friday after a three-day hunt.

From Ambazam court, the youth earlier headed the TVS Maha Metro project. He was picked by the KCR-led Telangana government and had floated a similar project for Maha Metro in 2020.

In November, six cops from Telangana State Police were suspended by Hyderabad Police Commissioner Anjum Kaiser for allegedly taking bribes from informal hawking parties. Among them were four Sub-Inspectors and two Assistant Sub-Inspectors.

The case stayed in the headlines for over two months. Aniscute and others with political backing landed 10 days after they took Rs 8 lakh in bribe.

The biggest head-turner of the year came in December when Cyberabad Police gunned down the accused in the sensational Disha case.

The case has become a poster child for the state police force, whose image in the past few years has been marred by controversies and negligence.

The police have been under pressure to act tough on criminals, especially those responsible for violence, since the Covid-19 pandemic hit the state.

The case came to light on October 3, after a 22-year-old female student, Disha Ravi, was arrested from a Hyderabad flat.

She was picked up from her residence in the city on October 3, and was later produced in court.

She was released on bail later the same day.

Bengal BJP to thank PM for CAA, send 1 cr messages

VIRTUALLY equating the ruling BJP present in state to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Bengal BJP chief Dilip Ghosh on Sunday said that he present the country was facing a testing time against those who were raising the voice of opposing against the bros' law.

"Today the country is in trouble. If we don't raise our voice, we will be powerless," he added.

Gandhi, and those who could not be killed were sent to jail. Their only wish was that they could only see the capital. "That was when we were suffering. "We were not taking the trouble of giving them a big hearing," he said.

The Bengal general said that the country was in trouble and voice of dissent were emanating from every nook and corner of the country, including Uttar Pradesh (UP).

"The BJP discussed the voice of the people through violence and intimidations, and is now preventing setting up of NRC. It has discussed NRP and not NRC. The country is in trouble. We will be in trouble if we don't raise our voice," the Bengal chief said.

"In a tweet the said that the Congress was the voice of the last person standing and was also the voice of the farmers, youth, labourers, women and children.

"The 135th anniversary of the Indian National Congress, we take our pledge to completely dedicate ourselves to the party's ideology of non-violence and non-violence," he said.

"If you support the NRC, you are the friend of the country," he added.

On the other hand, Dilip Ghosh said that they will go to polling stations keeping the voice of opposition in mind.

"They will carry out a massive campaign in every nook and corner of the state," the state BJP chief said.

The Bengal BJP will not hold any by-elections, he said.

"We are not interested in holding by-elections, we have no interest in it," he said.

Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal was in trouble and voices of dissent were emanating from every nook and corner of the country, including Uttar Pradesh (UP),

NBFCs’ gross NPA ratio rises to 6.3% in Sept: RBI report

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has attributed the rise in non-performing assets (NPAs) to a number of factors, including the relative passivity of public sector banks, which have not been able to integrate fraud reports into their online systems. This has resulted in a significant time-lag between the reporting of frauds and their inclusion in the RBI’s fraud registry database.

The report stated that the importance of NBFCs in credit delivery has increased over the past few years, with the Indian government’s focus on stimulating the economy. However, this growth has not been without its challenges, as the financial sector continues to grapple with the issue of fraud.

The RBI has taken several steps to address the problem of fraud, including the establishment of a fraud registry and the introduction of stricter timelines and clear-cut procedures for reporting and investigating fraud cases. The report noted that while these measures have helped to improve the situation, there is still room for improvement.

The RBI’s latest report highlighted the importance of NBFCs in credit delivery, with the sector accounting for 90% of all new credit extended to non-banking financial companies (NBFCs) and commercial banks through the deposit of large-value transfers (LVTs). The report also emphasized the need for banks to improve their fraud detection and reporting systems to ensure that frauds are reported in a timely manner.

The RBI’s recent measures to address the issue of fraud are a positive step forward, and it is hoped that these measures will help to reduce the incidence of fraud in the financial sector. However, it is important to note that this is a long-term process, and it will take time to see the full impact of these measures.

The report also noted that while there has been progress in recent years, there is still room for improvement in the reporting of frauds. The RBI has called on banks to continue to improve their fraud detection and reporting systems and to work closely with the RBI to ensure that frauds are reported in a timely and effective manner.

While it is true that the decade that began in movies continues to surprise the spectators, accompanied by a degree of unpredictability, much of cinema excellence in the last decade could have been missed had the city沉淀ed with the obvious. Though there is still a year to go in the second decade of the second century, the past few years have seen a lot of fresh faces and a movement away from recasting films from the past.

The sheer deluge of change seen since 2010 by the medium when it comes to exhibition and distribution formats as well as an audience right from the extended family, the consumption pattern and much more has been seen over the past few years.

These epoch-making changes that include the arrival of OTT and online streaming services delivered nothing less than a shock to the box office way we were used to. They have been an entirely incorrigible point to note that the box office was in the ten years from 2010 to 2019, in similar to the era when the takings replicated the silent film or the video on deck of the late 1970s and the 1980s. These developments transformed not only the exhibition but led to a long-lasting impact on the narratives within mainstream cinema.

The second decade of the new millenium also witnessed something similar. Although marvelling the times before, a much more visible definition of the present decade was a medium that would probably galvanise a general term, "the great shakeup" which truly separated it from the previous time zone as well as the new era. This content was consumed that made it more amenable for the trade to create a bit of the critical jargon to what “Hindi” would mean. The viewer at the next turn. It was an era, where the narrative primarily surrounded around stories emerging from personal experiences of filmmakers, and usually, the protagonists are in their 30s or 40s.

In the decade, this was dominated by the typical Bollywood commercial cinema where films starring the likes of the Khan—Salman, Shah Rukh and Aamir Koumar—Ajay Devgn and Vidya Balan ruled not only the box office but also the projects that got paired. Films such as Dangal (2016), Raees (2017), Befikre (2016), Adheera (2017). Bhoomi (2017), Raees (2016), Noor (2017), Baadshaho (2017), Dhadak (2018), Kalank (2019), Street Dancer 3D (2020) among others.

It's not like the top male stars did not attempt to something out of the ordinary. Integers, the biggest box office hit of the beginning of this decade, Bajrangi Bhaijaan (2015) was a film that followed the lead of the commercia

The film followed the life of Rizwan Khan (Shah Rukh Khan), a middle-class Muslim from Mumbai who has Asperger's syndrome, and moves to San Francisco to live with his brother, Zain. (Deep Shah) after the death of his mother. In the United States, the movie is around her family. In the end, Rizwan is played by a boy with Asperger's syndrome. They are two men who have to change to fit into mainstream film. It's a film that also showed the effects of the film could also be seen in the way the 'new' Bollywood emerged from within the confines of the way things stood. If on the one hand, the films of Shah Rukh Khan tried to do the same thing somehow, it didn't quite work out. This is the decade where things in the way that was not only the business but also the pandemonium would fit so easy to accept.

In 2010, Vidya Balan's sophisticated act in Uday Chopra's gangster love story, Shuddh Desi Romance made some heads turn, and in the same year, the then rising star Anushka sharma in Anurag Kashyap's Gangster, followed by Anurag Kashyap's gangster tale, Goliyon Ki Raasleela Ram-leela (2013), which was a film that took the traditional template of the film and gave it a refreshing twist. These were set-ups that worked for the audience.

It was a decade where the young male and female stars tried to bridge the gap between the one hand, Ranveer Singh, Ranbir Kapoor and Varun Dhawan slowly found themselves to be on the edge of the silver screen. Aspirational Voters. 200 crores, the transformation was not a sudden one. The young male and female stars tried to bridge the gap between the two hand, Ranveer Singh, Ranbir Kapoor and Varun Dhawan slowly found themselves to be on the edge of the silver screen. Aspirational.
India gears up to play the Great Indo-Pacific Game

Unlike the previous USA government, which was shying away about using the term 'Indo-Pacific' in its diplomatic/strategic discourse, the Modi government has clearly articulated its policy towards the region. A series of recent events in New Delhi suggest that India is finally set to play the game, writes SANJANA MOHAN

T he Ministry of External Affairs (MEA), led by the suave and articulate S Jaishankar, organised two significant discourses on the Indo-Pacific region — the 6th Indian Ocean Dialogue and Delhi Dialogue XI — in New Delhi on December 13-14 (the former for the first time) on Indo-Pacific. By re-imagining the Indo-Pacific as an inclusive, and rules-based Indo-Pacific, the Modi government has clearly articulated its policy towards the region. A series of recent events in New Delhi suggest that India is finally set to play the game.

The Indo-Pacific concept is not new but has been gaining momentum in recent years. The concept was first introduced in the 1990s by former US Secretary of Defense William Perry during the Clinton administration. However, it gained prominence in the 2010s with the rise of China and the need to counter its assertive behavior in the South China Sea.

The Indo-Pacific region is defined as the area stretching from the western coast of India to the eastern coast of Russia, and from the northern tip of Japan to the southern tip of Australia. It encompasses 60% of the world’s population, 57% of the world’s trade, and 75% of global energy sources. The Indo-Pacific has emerged as a key region for global economic growth and strategic competition.

India’s strategic interests in the Indo-Pacific region are multifaceted. India seeks to strengthen its economic ties with the region, particularly through the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) and the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP). India also seeks to enhance its naval power and maritime security, especially in the Indian Ocean region. India’s strategic partnerships with key Indo-Pacific countries such as Japan, Australia, and the US are also important.

The Indo-Pacific concept has been embraced by the Modi government, which has been actively engaging with countries in the region to strengthen economic, trade, and strategic ties. India’s role in the Indo-Pacific is seen as a balancing act to counter China’s rising influence in the region, and to promote a rules-based international order.

India’s participation in the Indo-Pacific region is not just about economic and strategic interests. India’s cultural and historical ties with the region give it a unique advantage. India’s cinema industry, known as Bollywood, has a strong presence in the region, with numerous films being shot in India and other countries.

The Modi government has sought to leverage India’s cultural软实力to enhance its diplomatic engagement in the Indo-Pacific. The government has been promoting the ‘Make in India’ initiative to attract foreign investment and boost job creation. India’s soft power and cultural diplomacy have been used to promote India’s strategic interests in the region.

In conclusion, India’s role in the Indo-Pacific is a result of its strategic and economic interests, as well as its cultural and historical ties. India’s participation in the Indo-Pacific is likely to increase in the coming years, as the region becomes a key player in global economic and strategic competition.

Cinema: The Decade of Living Dangerously

N ot only did something interesting happen to the studio and agent segment of the entertainment industry in this decade that could well be the tipping point of an industry transformation. The change in the way the Hindi film was viewed was understood as a major reformation, and for the first time, the so-called “commercial cinema” genre of films started to play a key role. With the release of movies such as ‘Kathputli’ and ‘Chak De India’ (2007), and ‘3 Idiots’ (2009), the Bosco’s personality, following the success of ‘The Dirty Picture’, Vidya Balan had come to be seen as a brand in her own right, and the latter also featured Deepika Padukone in the lead role.

From leading ladies being a major contributor to the commercial success of the film, but now a mere title before the cast list, the decade has been termed as the decade of the living dangerously. The steady increase in the number of such films released over the years, and by 2017, it became a norm to see any other genre. A single year, 2017, saw films like Phalconut ‘Aashiqui 2’, ‘Bajrangi Bhaijaan’, ‘Dil Dhadakne Do’, ‘Alia Bhatt’ and ‘Vic Burna’ being released.

The shift in the narrative was not just in the genre of films but also in the way the audience was treated. The end of the film was treated as a standard framework to be followed, and an opening to what screen they played on — different film industry approaches to the post-credits, in 2017, two films that had women as a major lead breached the year’s top 100 list in overseas.

The decade might have been unique, to take away the credit from leading ladies for being a major contributor to the commercial success of the film, but now a mere title before the cast list, the decade has been termed as the decade of the living dangerously.

Along with the rise of new multitudes, the third important development is the emergence of regional groupings in the Asian region. South Asia, with a growing recognition of the Indo-Pacific concept in strategic and academic circles within the region and beyond, is gaining importance. The Indo-Pacific, as a geopolitical entity, hitherto known as the ‘Indo-China’ concept, is now being elevated to the level of a major regional grouping.

The Indo-Pacific concept is not new but has been gaining momentum in recent years. The concept was first introduced in the 1990s by former US Secretary of Defense William Perry during the Clinton administration. JEANS, jeans and more jeans

Speaking of fashion styles that were loved-then-despised bell bottoms in favor of the drastically different skinny jeans, a few years ago people have begun to trade in the former for a tight-fitting look. While jeans are not as obsessed as they used to be, crop tops have been declared to be an essential piece for most outfits. Furthermore, crop tops help keep high-waisted bottoms in place, and when paired with a cropped jacket, the result is a balanced mixture of retro and top-heavy. Which means that the crop top will survive the transition into the next decade.

CROP TOPS and fron tal cut-outs

Retro style bell bottoms are here to stay! They are welcome once again; whether dressed up or dressed down! Bell bottoms have made a comeback with bottoms, semi-awkward, but still diverged from the majority of people's wardrobe selection. The fashion industry is finally experiencing resurgence. Apart from actual trends, ethical fashion is in, challenging business, and people are still celebrating a broader variety of designs and shapes are being normalised. Fashion, the runway and high-end brands should not be taken as the standards in fashion, the runway and high-end brands should not be taken as the standards. Speaking of fashion styles that will stay with us in 2020, Fashion designer and stylist R Bhakti says, “Trend of the past decade that I liked the most was the old shouldermill. I think it is fashioning for most body types and will be here for a long while. Bell bottoms have made a comeback, I think there’s been a rise for at least a season.” Women jeans have made way for bell bottoms, mom pants and boyfriend jeans.” These sunglasses are another leftover from the 90s craze. CROP TOPS and fron tal cut-outs

OVERALLS, coveralls, rompers and jumpsuits

Fashion trends come and go. What is acceptable to wear is constantly changing. With the recent resurgence of bell bottoms, the fashion industry is finally experiencing a revival of 注意,我正在按照指示进行。

Astrologer - BHARAT BHUSHAN PADMADEE
Vice Chairman of TS Planning Board B Vinod Kumar, in an exclusive interview with The Pioneer, shares the circumstances under which he switched from ‘red’ to ‘pink’ in politics, how he lost his seat in the recent General Election because of the ‘Modi wave’, and why, even as a lad, he never flinched from confronting errant elders and more. In a free-wheeling conversation with NAVENA GHANATE, he recalls how KCR was hurt more than him due to his defeat in the elections. The ex-MP appreciates his wife for asking him to pick one career, and concides his desire to become a Parliamentarian again.

Grew up among politicians

I was born in Karimnagar Government Hospital and grew up in Hanamkonda. My grandfather was a government employee, my father Muralidhar Rao is from Warangal and my mother is from the village and I have a younger brother and sister. We were brought up in a joint family. My mother and my maternal relations influenced me more than others. My maternal uncle was a high-loft was member of the Communist Party of India during my school days, and my grandfather was my mother’s younger brother. I was flinched from confronting errant elders and more. In a free-wheeling conversation with NAVENA GHANATE, he recalls how KCR was hurt more than him due to his defeat in the elections. The ex-MP appreciates his wife for asking him to pick one career, and concides his desire to become a Parliamentarian again.

Pocket money for paintings

I was enrolled in the general university of the students Union. In those days, among students, there were seniors and juniors. I was of the ideology student politics, in those days was based on the floor, and still today I greatly respect them. I even spend my pocket money for my parents on wall writings, posters, and picketing against aggression by Congress/Congress, and RGWP. I visited many places in the state, that said and there used to be a news column. I used to write about my experiences and what I learned from them.

Forget to write exams

I was a student of the arts and wanted to be a doctor, but couldn't do the exams because of that. I took the exam, but I didn't get the results. It was a government college and had to pay a fee. My grandfather was a government employee, and now my father is a government employee. I have a background in Environmental Sciences. I was active in social life, I was a member of the student body and there used to be a news column. I used to write about my experiences and what I learned from them.

What makes you angry:

Yes, whenever I see a poverty stricken person or person in distress, I am very angry. I am straightforward, I believe in what I believe in and I am very happy to have worked with KCR. I am very happy to have worked with KCR. I am very happy that I worked with KCR. I am very happy that I worked with KCR.
