ANTI-CAA PROTEST FLARES UP IN CAPITAL

Agitation in Jamia turns violent, students clash with police, 35 injured, 3 DTC buses torched

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

All in a day

The protest against the amended Citizenship Act (CAA) by the Jamia Millia Islamia (JMI) University students erupted on Sunday. Violence spilled on the Mathura Road, Jamia and its adjoining areas following a clash between police and students who were protesting against the amended CAA. The student protest is said to be led by the local leaders of the area. Three buses of Delhi Transport Corporation (DTC) and four fire engines were damaged by the protesters claimed the police.

According to report, at least 35 injured people were taken to a nearby hospital.

Delhi Police personnel entered the Jamia Millia campus after situation became highly volatile in the wake of intense violence. Police blocked the university gates to nab some "outsiders" who had entered the premises to hide, sources said. There was a heavy deployment of police in and around the campus. Several metro stations were closed, including Jamia Millia, GTB Nagar, Shivaji Stadium, Patel Chowk and Vishwavidyalaya metro stations.

Later, Delhi Deputy CM Manish Sisodia announced closure of all schools in South Delhi following the incident.

Later a demonstration at police headquarters was held after police crackdown at Jamia.

violence and arson that took place near the university Sunday afternoon. Three public buses and a fire tender were set afire by the protesters during the violence and arson in New Friends' Colony. The students claimed that "certain" local elements had "disrupted" their protest and indulged in violence.

The sources said that as police tried to disperse the protesters by using baton charge and firing teargas shells, some of the "outsiders" ran towards the campus and tried to hide there. While, a group of Jamia students sitting on the protest said the police baton charged them when they were holding a peaceful protest. While, National secretary National Students' Union of India (NSUI) Saimon Farooqui, said, "The protesters were peacefully sitting on Mathura Road when policemen tried to 'trouble' a couple of protesters, who resisted."

BJP ANNOUNCES NATIONWIDE DRIVE TO SPREAD AWARENESS ABOUT CAA

New Delhi: Amid Opposition's pitch against the amended Citizenship Law, the BJP on Sunday announced a nationwide campaign to spread awareness about it. Party spokesperson Sambit Patra said on Sunday the BJP workers will spread out across the country to inform people about the law. He said party cadre from 11 States were briefed by the national leadership on the law. The party has asked all the MPs including those from Rajya Sabha to visit their constituencies and States to create awareness.

AASU HINTS AT LAUNCHING PARTY AS OPTION TO BJP, AGP, CONG IN ASSAM

Guwahati: The All Assam Students' Union (AASU), which has been protesting the amended Citizenship Act, on Sunday hinted at launching a political party along with 'Shilpi Samaj' (artists' forum) as an alternative to the ruling BJP and AGP as well as to Opposition Congress. AASU president Dipanka Nath supported popular actor Zubeen Garg's proposal of launching a political party. "We are in talks with Shilpi Samaj and also discussing with people of Assam to think about an alternative," he said.

In U-turn, AGP all set to move SC against law

2 injured in protest succumb, unrest continues in Assam

Taking a u-turn after voting in support of the Citizenship (Amendment) Bill in the Rajya Sabha, BJP ally in Assam Asom Gana Parishad (AGP) has decided to challenge the Act in the Supreme Court. The party leaders have also decided to meet Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah over the matter. Meanwhile, the North east continued to witness unrest with two more people protesting against the amended Citizenship Act in Assam succumbing to injuries on Sunday. The deceased were identified as Ishwar Nayak and Abdul Alim. Both of them suffered bullet injuries due to police firing during clashes in Guwahati on Thursday.

Curfew imposed on Guwahati and parts of Dibrugarh district in the wake of the violent protests was relaxed on Sunday for several hours. Special trains have been arranged by the Assam tourism department in association with the railways to ferry passengers stranded in various parts of the state.

Former Rajya Sabha MP and AGP leader Kumar Deepak Das on Sunday said that AGP would file a petition in the Supreme Court praying for revocation of the amended Citizenship Act. The decision was taken after a meeting of top party leaders in Guwahati on Saturday night. He asserted that the AGP respected the sentiments of common people, who were wary that the law might threaten their identity and existence. "We will take the legal route to seek revocation of the amended Act as the indigenous people of Assam are apprehensive that their identity, language might come under threat," Das said. Sources said a delegation of the AGP, led by Das, would leave for Delhi to file the plea in the apex court as PILs seeking revocation of the Act were scheduled to be taken up for hearing on December 18. Former AGP Minister Prafulla Kumar Mahanta, who had been vocal about his opposition to the amended Act, claimed the party never adopted any resolution supporting the law. He urged the AGP leadership to clear its stand on the contentious matter.

On the other hand, dissonance had been brewing in the AGP after party chief Atul Bora said if the Centre "wants to bring the Bill, he cannot do anything about it."

Opp parties behind unrest, raising storm over Act: PM

PNS ■ RANCHI

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday accused the Congress and its allies of raising a storm over the citizenship law and asserted that the Opposition parties were behind the unrest and arson in parts of the country.

Modi, addressing a rally in Dumka, said the Congress and its allies are creating a ruckus in North Eastern States and other parts of the country after Parliament passed the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA). He said, "They are doing arson because they did not get their way. Those who are creating violence can be identified by their clothes itself. The work that was done by protesters on Pakistan's money in London is now being done by the Congress."

The Prime Minister accused the Congress of speaking in the language of Pakistan on CAA and other important decision taken by his Government in last six months. Modi making a scathing attack on the Congress following the line of Pakistan assumes importance as this is for the first time that the PM has spoken against the Congress after Parliament passed CAA last week.

The Citizenship

Amendment Bill, 2019, which provides a path to Indian citizenship for persons belonging to religious minority groups persecuted in Pakistan, Afghanistan and Bangladesh, was passed by Parliament on Wednesday, with the Rajya Sabha voting 125-99 in favour of the Bill.

After the passing of the Bill, many parts of country witnessed violent agitations in Assam, West Bengal and even at national capital as students of Jamia Millia Islamia University took to the streets to protest against the exclusion of Muslim immigrants from the provisions of new Citizenship Act.

Also, the Congress on Saturday had held a massive rally called "Bharat Bachao" at Delhi's Ramlika Maidan attacking the Modi Government on a number of issues, including the economy, the Citizenship (Amendment) Act and women's safety.

Violence spreads in Bengal Guv terms Govt's ad against NRC, CAA unconstitutional

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

Post passage of Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), violence continued unabated and spread to other parts of Bengal on an incremental basis with protester going on a rampage. Things threatened to lapse into a bigger turmoil as BJP leadership warned retaliation if the State police continued to sit silent spectator allowing public properties to be looted and destroyed.

Violent protests that were largely limited to Murshidabad, Howrah and North and South 24 Parganas on Saturday on Sunday spread to Malda, North Dinajpur and outer fringes of Kolkata leading the State administration to partially shut down the internet network.

As people, including daily commuters suffered from road and rail blockades and cancellation of trains, fresh conflict war of words erupted between the State Government and Governor Jagdeep Dhankhar who denounced a televised publicity clipping of the State Government — in which Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee is appealing for peace as a quid pro quo for her blocking the implementation of the new Act at any cost — as unconstitutional.

Parts of Bengal sizzled and simmered as rural mobs in Malda, Murshidabad, outer Kolkata and Birbhum took to streets attacking and vandalising public properties. At Bhaluka Road Railway station in Malda district bordering Bangladesh miscreants ransacked the station premises forcing the railway staff on duty to flee the area, police said.

Similar protests were witnessed at Tildanga station at Farakka where locals torched the station offices.

10-year-old Raj girl 'kills' classmate for snatching pen, sent to juvenile home

Jaipur: A 10-year-old girl was sent to a juvenile home on Sunday for allegedly killing her classmate by hitting her using an iron rod after the two got into an argument over snatching a pen, police said.

Also, the girl's parents were produced before court and sent to jail for destroying evidence by dumping the body of the 12-year-old in an open ground, Chaksu station house officer Braj Mohan Kaviya said.

On Saturday, the girl and her parents were arrested by police in the case, he said.

Global warming leads to rise in red deer population

ARCHANA JYOTI ■ NEW DELHI

Multiplication of red deer population in Scotland could not be on account of their fault but may be linked to the change in their genes due to climate change-induced warm weather, speeding up their breeding in the region.

A new study has said that Scotland's red deer are altering their birthing patterns in order to adapt to global warming.

This finding has come in the light of the Scottish Government's order of culling of the red deer whose population has multiplied over the years. It is estimated that the main highland range in Scotland now has about 4,00,000 of the animals.

Hence, while man-made climate change is having a serious impact on the wildlife animals — some are moving to cooler climes, some on the verge of extinction while a few like turtles are witnessing change in sex, red deer seems to be following the theory of evolution developed by Charles Darwin, said the scientists in the study published in the journal PLOS (Public Library of Science) Biology.

And this evolution is happening in decades, not centuries, they said after studying field records and genetic data collected on the four-legged animals on the Isle of Rum in Scotland over a 45-year period since 1972.

This is one of the first evidences of wild animals undergoing evolution process, said the scientists from the University of Edinburgh, Australian National University and the universities of St Andrews and Cambridge.

"Not only do warmer temperatures encourage deer to give birth earlier in the year, it has also meant the gene for breeding earlier has become more common among the deer," said Dr Timothée Bonnet, of the Australian National University, who led the study. He explained that the deer that give birth earlier have more calves over their lifetime — which means they have more reproductive success. "It is rare to see evolution over such a short period," he said about the study "the role of selection and evolution in changing partition date in a red deer population."

Previous studies have shown that the deer have been giving birth earlier since the 1980s, at a rate of about three days per decade. However, the new study says that female red deer — called hinds — give birth to a single calf each year, and those that reproduce earlier in the year have more offspring over their lifetime.

The gene which causes earlier birth is therefore much more common among the red deer population over time. This is an example of natural selection, the theory of evolution developed by Charles Darwin, he added. The research shows that natural selection "may help populations adapt to climate warming."

Professor Josephine Pemberton, of the University of Edinburgh's School of Biological Sciences, who was also involved in the study, added, "Long-term studies of individual lifetimes are one of the few ways to understand how populations respond to environmental change and how to manage its effects."

The Scottish Government has taken various steps to manage the burgeoning population of the animal, culling being one of them, in a bid to protect biodiversity as the deer are voracious eaters with high breeding rate.

The figures are specific to the study site in highland in Sweden, but wildlife experts feel that such "evolution" reported by the red deer might be happening in other animals somewhere in the world.

"We all know that climate change is having serious impact on the wildlife world. This study shows that the new adaptation by the red deer may very well help their population thrive as the climate continues to warm, said Dr K SivaKumar, wildlife expert from Dehradun-based Wildlife Institute of India (WII).

CM commends new woman cops at passing-out parade

Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath inspecting the woman constables' passing out parade at Reserve Police Lines in Lucknow on Sunday

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath on Sunday commended the newly-recruited woman constables of UP Police, saying that they had taken Prime Minister Narendra Modi's 'Beti Bachao, Beti Padhao' campaign to new heights.

The chief minister also took the salute at the passing out parade of the woman constable recruits at the Reserve Police Lines here on Sunday.

Speaking on the occasion, Yogi Adityanath said the soul of any police force lay in its training and hoped the newly-recruited constables would perform their duty well.

He said that in the two-and-half years of the Bharatiya Janata Party government in the state, more than 80,000 boys and girls had been made a part of the UP Police and several policemen were given promotions.

"The relation between the common man and the police used to get strained for unforeseen reasons while discharging duty. But when well-trained cops are engaged, they do good work, and the police force is praised by the public," he said.

The chief minister stressed the need to invite children to functions like passing out parade, saying this would motivate them to join the police force and would help the police in winning people's trust.

The chief minister also said that the budget of the Home department had been increased, and funds had been made available for construction of police lines, and housing facilities for the police personnel besides other facilities.

Yogi Adityanath said the state government was extremely vigilant as far as the law and order scenario was concerned.

He said due to the state government's efforts, the UP Police were on way to become an effective police force in the country.

In Sunday's passing out parade, there were 677 woman constables and of these, 389 were trained in Lucknow Police Lines, and 288 in Sitapur Police Lines.

Speaking on the occasion, Director General of Police OP Singh said, "New training syllabus has been incorporated to make the police force competent and work is being done continuously to make police people-friendly."

He said the recruits were imparted training in cyber crime, law, computer and other subjects which were important for them in the discharge of their duties effectively.

On this occasion, the chief minister gave awards to four new policewoman recruits -- parade commander Arti Singh, Diksha Singh, Anjali Pandey and Jaya Singh.

SP protest against CAA on Dec 19

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Samajwadi Party will stage State-wide protests against the Citizenship (Amendment) Act at all district headquarters on December 19.

The party will also focus on other issues like unemployment caused by economic slowdown, rising crimes against women and farmer distress.

SP spokesman Rajendra Chaudhary said here on Sunday that by amending the Citizenship Act, the Bharatiya Janata Party had dealt a severe blow to the secular foundation of the Indian Constitution and it was a brazen attempt to divide the nation on the line of religion.

He said the amendment to the Citizenship Act was fraught with serious consequences. He said this was nothing but a desperate attempt by the BJP and Prime Minister Narendra Modi to divert the attention of the people from pressing issues like the growing unemployment due to economic slowdown.

The SP spokesman said that policies like demonetisation of high value currency notes in November 2016 followed by implementation of Goods and Services Act in July 2017 had caused havoc on the economy, particularly on the unorganised sector.

He said millions of small business establishments across the country had downed the shutters due to demonetisation and GST leading to job losses running into millions. He said the national economy had never witnessed such grim situation in last five decades.

The SP leader alleged that besides the GST and demonetisation, the economic policies pursued by the Narendra Modi government had made life miserable for the common man due to galloping inflation leading the steep rise in prices of food, vegetables and other essential commodities.

BJP bid to dispel oppn 'canard' about CAA

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

In an attempt to dispel the canard being spread about Citizen (Amendment) Act, the Uttar Pradesh unit of Bharatiya Janata Party held a workshop in which talking points were given to the party leaders to make people aware of the virtues of the citizenship legislation.

BJP national general secretary Anil Jain said that this CAA was meant for the minorities of the Muslim-dominated neighbouring countries where Hindus, Buddhists and Christians were being persecuted in the name of religion. "This Act allows citizenship right for these people," he said.

"The basis of partition of India was religion. The Muslim League had asked for such partition. Why the then Congress did not raise objections? People suffered at that time. They were persecuted because they belonged to a minority religion. This Act is for them and to safeguard their rights," Jain said here on Sunday.

He said that the number of minorities was going down very sharply in countries like Afghanistan, Pakistan and Bangladesh. "In 1947, the minorities in Bangladesh (then East Pakistan) comprised 22 per cent of the population which came down to 7.8 per cent in 2011. Similarly, in Pakistan, the population of minorities came down from 23 per cent in 1947 to 3.2 per cent in 2011 whereas in India Muslims comprised 9.8 per cent of population in 1951 and the number increased to 14.23 per cent in 2011," he pointed out.

"In India, many minority intellectuals rose to top posts while the same right was deprived to minorities in the neighbouring countries," the BJP leader said.

Jain said the Narendra Modi government had taken care of tribal rights of North-East and therefore the provisions of the CAA would not be applicable on the tribals of Assam, Meghalaya, Mizoram and Tripura because these states were governed by Inner Line Permit.

BJP national spokesman Sudhanshu Trivedi said the CAA was meant to give citizenship right but not to deprive one of citizen rights. "Therefore, people of India should not be afraid of this Act," he said.

"Today, the Congress is opposing this Act whereas on April 30, 2012, the then Chief Minister of Assam, Tarun Gogoi, had written a letter to then Prime Minister Dr Manmohan Singh to give citizenship rights to Hindus, Buddhists and Christians from Bangladesh who wanted to reside in India," he said.

Class 10 student raped in Mau, 6 booked

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

A class 10 student was raped in Mau even as the police arrested a man for raping an 18-year-old woman and setting her ablaze in Fatehpur.

According to a report from Mau, six youths were booked in connection with an alleged gang-rape of a Class 10 student.

According to Mau SP Anurag Arya, the prime accused, along with two others, had been detained for questioning, while efforts were on to nab the rest of the youths. Arya said the incident took place in Madhuban police station area on Friday when the student of Class 10 left her house around 9 am but did not return home.

"Around 10 pm, the family members of the girl received a call that she was raped by six youths and they fled leaving her behind," the SP added.

The family members reached the spot and brought the girl back home. "When the girl regained her consciousness, she narrated her trauma. Subsequently, she was admitted to a private hospital. On Saturday, a complaint was filed against the six youths, including four named. A case was registered against them under Indian Penal Code and POCSO Act.

Meanwhile, the police arrested a man for allegedly raping and setting ablaze an 18-year-old woman in Fatehpur.

According to doctors, the woman has sustained over 90 per cent burn injuries and her condition continues to be critical. Based on an FIR registered following a complaint lodged by the woman's family member, the accused was arrested under sections 376 (rape) and 307 (attempt to murder) of the Indian Penal Code, Fatehpur SP Prashant Verma said.

According to ADG (Allahabad zone) Sujat Pandey, the woman was involved in a romantic relationship with her distant relative. When this came to light, a panchayat asked her and the man to live separately and not meet each other. This upset the woman and she rushed to her house and allegedly set herself ablaze.

Power employees to go on one-day strike on Jan 8

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Nearly 15 lakh public sector power employees and engineers will go on one-day strike on January 8, 2020, against the proposed amendment to the Electricity Act, 2003.

The powermen allege that the amendment aim at facilitating privatisation of power distribution in India by segregating carriage and content.

"The decision to amend Electricity Act, 2003 will adversely affect farmers and weaker sections of society. Therefore, the Union Power Ministry should immediately withdraw the move," All-India Power Engineers Federation (AIPEF) chairman Shaileendra Dubey said on Sunday.

He claimed that electricity employees of all the state power utilities across the country would stage a day-long strike/work boycott on January 8 to oppose the move of the Central government to introduce multiple private supply licences. The strike/work boycott would be staged under the banner of National Coordination Committee of Electricity Employees and Engineers (NCCOEEE), a broad-based umbrella organisation representing 1.5 million power workers and engineers of the power sector of India.

Earlier, the AIPEF had termed the proposed amendment to the Electricity Act, 2003 as "very dangerous" since it was aimed at benefiting big power companies.

Dubey also criticised the Centre for "unilaterally" going ahead with the proposed amendment.

"The prime motive of the proposed bill is to create scope of business for private enterprises in power distribution without any investment. The objections raised by the states and electricity boards to favour private entities," he said.

According to the AIPEF, the amendments would be a big jolt to farmers and weaker sections as it would end subsidies, while it would result in a steep hike in power tariff, thereby making it unaffordable even for the middle class.

Dubey warned that the proposed bill would have far-reaching consequences for both the state governments and consumers.

"It proposes a licensee between transformer and point of consumption. Essentially, it would privatise the supply of electricity. The bill also takes away the purview of state government and regulator by making it mandatory to implement the national tariff policy. This violates the Constitution of India as electricity is a Concurrent List subject."

Meanwhile, private companies would be given separate profitable segments such as the sale of electricity to major industries, commercial establishments and railways, while moving away from unremunerative loss-making segments like rural households and agricultural consumers, the AIPEF chairman said.

The other demands of the power employees include integration of all power utilities in respective states, as had been done in the case of Kerala and Himachal Pradesh, respectively, implementation of old-age pension scheme, regularisation of all contract employees and regular recruitment, review of power purchase agreements in interest of common consumers. Dubey asserted that AIPEF would take the people along by apprising them of the dire consequences of the amendments to the Electricity Act.

Maya accuses Cong of duplicity for continuing alliance with Sena

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Bahujan Samaj Party chief Mayawati on Sunday launched a scathing attack on the Congress, accusing it of practising double standards by keeping its alliance intact with Shiv Sena in Maharashtra despite the Hindutva party's support to Citizenship (Amendment) Bill, 2019.

In a series of tweets, Mayawati questioned why Congress was still with the Shiv Sena in Maharashtra which toed a different line on Savarkar.

"The Shiv Sena remains committed to its core agenda. The party backed the Centre on Citizenship (Amendment) Bill. The party is now opposed to the Congress' stand on Veer Savarkar. But the Congress party is still with the Shiv Sena in Maharashtra. This act only shows Congress' duplicity. What is it if not double standards?" she asked in a tweet in Hindi.

In one of the tweets on Sunday, Mayawati said that the Shiv Sena "supported the Central government on the Citizenship (Amendment) Bill" and is now "intolerant" of the Congress opinion on Savarkar.

"Despite this, the Congress is still supporting the Shiv Sena in the Maharashtra government," she said.

Mayawati asked the Congress to clear its stand on the matter as the party is supporting Shiv Sena in Maharashtra and at the same time having different views.

Mayawati said that it would hurt the Congress most and termed it as a drama to divert the people's attention.

"Therefore, the Congress should clarify its stand on alliance with the Shiv Sena, otherwise it will be considered a diversionary tactic by them to divert the people's attention from their very own party's weaknesses," she added.

The Shiv Sena, Nationalist Congress Party and Congress formed a post-poll alliance in Maharashtra last month to keep the Bharatiya Janata Party out of power in the state.

While the Shiv Sena in the run-up to the elections promised to recommend Savarkar's name for Bharat Ratna, the Congress was opposed to it.

The controversy involving Savarkar reignited on Saturday when former Congress president Rahul Gandhi, during a rally in Delhi, said, "The BJP asked me to apologies. My name is not Rahul Gandhi and I will never apologise for speaking the truth."

This he said while turning down the BJP's demand to apologies for his 'rape in India' remark and apparently referring to the allegation that Savarkar tendered apology to the British for securing early release from jail.

Soon after this, the Shiv Sena asked its ally to exercise caution and described Savarkar as an idol of the whole country. "Every such idol must be revered. There is no compromise on this," Sena leader Sanjay Raut tweeted.

Six injured in gas cylinder explosion in Kannauj

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

At least six persons sustained injuries when a cooking gas cylinder exploded in a three-storey house in Chhibramau area of Kannauj, on Sunday.

"The explosion took place in the three-storey house in which five members of the house sustained injuries, while another neighbour also got injured," District Magistrate Ravindra Kumar said.

"Such explosions can take place only with explosives. Only a 5-kg cylinder was found to have exploded. Apart from it, there were three LPG cylinders weighing 14 kg which were not damaged. A forensic team has reached the spot and has started investigation," he said.

Superintendent of Police AP Singh said the explosion took place on the ground floor and it damaged the ceiling as well.

Fire-tenders were rushed to control the fire at the site of the accident and the injured were referred to Lucknow for treatment, the police said.

Meanwhile, two persons were killed and one was injured when a motorcycle they were riding was hit by a speeding truck on the Dehradun-Delhi national highway near the Bagowali bypass, around 15 km from Muzaffarnagar.

Police said Intazar (24) and his brother, Ishakhar (22), were killed, while another person, identified as Mohammad, was injured in the accident that took place on Saturday evening.

All of them were clerics at different mosques and were returning to Muzaffarnagar from Darululom Deoband, the police said.

Officials said the bodies were sent for autopsy and the injured was undergoing treatment at a hospital, where his condition was stated to be serious.

In another road accident, a home guard, identified as Suresh Chand (52), was crushed to death by a car outside a police outpost on the Dehradun-Delhi national highway near Barla village under Chapar police station of Muzaffarnagar on Saturday evening.

A case was registered against the unidentified driver of the car, police said.

Shooter Vartika wants Centre to let her hang Nirbhaya convicts

Lucknow (PTI): Shooter Vartika Singh on Sunday wrote a letter in blood requesting the Centre to let her hang the rapists convicted in the Nirbhaya rape and murder case, a day before the victim's seventh death anniversary. In the letter, she has sought permission from Union Home Minister Amit Shah to execute the rapists.

Speaking to reporters here, Singh said, "I have a letter in my hand that is written to Union Home Minister Amit Shah. I have written it with my blood. I have written that I should be allowed to execute the convicts in the Nirbhaya case. This will reinforce the concept that women are viewed as goddesses in India."

"This message should go to the entire world. The rapists should know that in India, a woman can execute them. I have sent the letter through registered post and also tweeted it," she added.

The shooter urged all women soldiers, actresses, public representatives and organisations to lend their support for her.

She hoped there would be a transformation in the country with a "different kind of society" where women need not live in an atmosphere of fear.

Tihar jail authorities in Delhi say they have been receiving requests from several people who are ready to volunteer as hangman.

Earlier in the week, S Subash Srinivasan, a head constable from Tamil Nadu's Ramanathapuram district, wrote to the Director-General of Tihar jail stating his willingness to serve as an executioner. The hangman at the Meerut prison has also indicated that he is ready to carry out the execution of the convicts.

13 MORE FARMERS BOOKED FOR BURNING STUBBLE

Muzaffarnagar: Thirteen farmers have been booked for burning crop residue at different places under the Thanabhawan and the Jhinjhana police station areas in Shamli district. Shamli District Magistrate Rakhil Singh said nine farmers in Jhinjhana police station area and four in Thanabhawan police station area were booked for burning stubble in their fields on Saturday. In a drive against burning of stubble, at least 31 cases have been registered in the district from December 1-9, he said. The DM warned that gram pradhans, SHOs and patwaris would be responsible for incidents of crop residue burning in their areas.

CM calls for unity on NRC issue

Yogi says it will be a true tribute to Sardar Patel

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath on Sunday said that the true tribute to the country's first Union Home Minister Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel would be to unite the country on the issue of NRC because the National Register of Citizens would help in checking divisive policies.

"He (Sardar Patel) was able to demolish the evil intentions of anti-India elements who had a mindset of dividing the country, and he included 563 princely states of India into the Republic of India, contributing to the creation of 'Ek Bharat, Shreshtha Bharat' and is being recognised as the world's largest democracy," the chief minister said while addressing a gathering after paying floral tributes to Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel at a programme held at GPO Park here to mark the death anniversary of the Iron Man of India on Sunday.

Yogi Adityanath said the entire country should be united on NRC, and this would be a true tribute to the Iron Man of India. "Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel checked divisive policies of the British through his efforts," he said.

The chief minister said that on the issue of NRC, "we will not accept any conspiracy or breach of any kind in the security of the country". "A canard is being spread by the opposition against the NRC. Instead of praising the Bharatiya Janata Party government for giving recognition to the citizens, these parties are misleading people. Therefore, the whole country should unite and cooperate on this issue," he said. The Chief Minister said that besides being a great freedom fighter, Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel would be remembered for being the symbol of India's national unity. Yogi Adityanath said the Central government was successful in making Jammu and Kashmir and Ladakh integral part of India by abrogating Article 370 of the Indian Constitution that gave a special status to the former state of J&K, by following the ideals of 'Ek Bharat, Shreshtha Bharat' of Sardar Patel.

In an apparent reference to the Citizenship (Amendment) Act, providing for the grant of Indian citizenship to the persecuted non-Muslim minorities of the three Muslim majority countries Pakistan, Bangladesh and Afghanistan, the chief minister said India has been "a refuge for the suffering and oppressed humanity of the world".

He said the world's tallest statue had been installed on the banks of Sardar Sarovar as per the personality of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel.

"Today, his memory inspires national unity. The great personality of Sardar Patel empowers all of us to overcome and quit bad habits. Following the ideals of Sardar Patel, we have realised the true concept of 'Ek Bharat, Shreshtha Bharat,' the chief minister said.

Thieves decamp with cash, valuables from house

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

Thieves made off with Rs 50,000 in cash and ornaments worth lakhs from a house in Ghazipur. The incident came to light when the house owner returned home from Bareilly on Saturday evening and found the lock broken.

As per reports, Dharmesh Singh of Indira Nagar (sector 11), along with his family, had gone to Bareilly for some work on December 8. "We returned home on Saturday evening and found the main gate's lock broken. As we went inside, we found articles lying strewn across the floor," Singh stated in the FIR. He said the thieves decamped with all the valuables kept in the house.

Meanwhile, the Thakurganj police on Sunday arrested a youth who was accused of forcing a class X girl student to end her life by consuming poisonous substance at her house. The police said that the accused, identified as Nadeem, was arrested from Dubagga crossing where he was supposed to meet some person who assured him in evading arrest. Police said the case was registered against Nadeem and his father Javed, who is still at large. The girl was being harassed by Nadeem, who is a tempo driver, for a long time. On the day of the incident, the accused had called the girl and later he and his father had thrashed her father for complaining.

Meanwhile, a 68 year-old woman died in a freak road mishap on Sunday after her saree got stuck in the rear wheel of the bike she was riding pillion and she fell down on IIM road in Madaon. As per reports, the woman, identified as Rama Singh of Bakshi-Ka-Talab, had gone to a private hospital in Dubagga to consult a doctor along with her nephew Sunil.

While returning home, her saree got stuck in the rear wheel of the bike. Eyewitnesses told the police that the woman fell off the bike and sustained head injuries. The woman was rushed to a hospital where she was declared brought dead.

TRANSGENDERS CLASH

Two groups of transgenders clashed over an issue related to donation. One of the groups also held a rival hostage in Chinhat on Sunday afternoon. As police played safe, there were protests at Chinhat police station and the protesters later reached the SSP office to petition their case to senior officials. On getting assurance, they returned to the Chinhat police station but did not get any help. They staged a dharna outside the police station.

As per reports, some transgenders reached the area, which is supposed to be dominated by their rival group, to take donation from people. As the news spread, their rivals also reached there and held one of them hostage. A spokesman said the issue was resolved following the intervention of police.

62.9 per cent attendance in UPPSC preliminary exam

Aspirants come out of Hussainabad Inter College after appearing in UPPSC preliminary exam on Sunday

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

The UPPSC Prelims 2019 passed off with 62.9 per cent attendance on Sunday. A senior official from Uttar Pradesh Public Services Commission said it was a good attendance for the exam. In Lucknow, the number of candidates registered was 59,385 and 37,262 of them turned up for the exam.

The official said there were no reports of issues from any of the 122 exam centres.

An aspirant who appeared in the exam said the paper was moderately tough. "The General Studies paper was more or less on the same pattern as it is being held with questions from all the sections. At our centre, they did not allow watches to be taken for the General Studies paper and it created a lot of problem for us as we had no idea about the time," he said.

This year, UPPSC declared the results of 2016, 2017 and held the main exam of 2018 in October. The results of the Mains (2018) are still awaited. It was since 2018 that PCS exams are being held on the pattern of Civil Services exams.

Low-cost units for growing veggies in soilless medium

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

Central Institute for Subtropical Horticulture (CISH) has developed low-cost units for growing vegetables in a medium which is soilless and can be folded and kept inside in bad weather conditions. Principal scientist at the institute SR Singh has developed these low-cost models for growing vegetables.

CISH director Shailendra Rajan said that the structures are foldable in nature and can be easily transported. "The structures can be folded and kept inside when outdoor cultivation during summers is not possible. The supply of nutrients is an important technical factor affecting the performance of the plants. Most soils are nutrient-rich but in soilless medium, one has to take care as per the need of the crop. CISH developed crop-specific nutrient formulations as nutrient requirements of leafy vegetables, solanaceous crops (tomato, etc) and cucurbits (cucumber, etc) are different," Rajan said.

He said that soilless culture has a lot of scope in the urban horticulture and many a time, structures can be designed as per the space available in the balcony. "Young entrepreneurs contacted Dr SR Singh for providing technical knowledge so that they can fabricate the units for sale. This method of cultivation is becoming popular among garden lovers. The major problem faced by the entrepreneurs was the availability of a suitable nutrient solution for the soilless culture. The products available in the markets are of high cost," he said.

The CISH director said that in vertical gardening too, soilless cultivation has a lot of scope. "In such cultivation, we can eliminate soil-borne diseases as the medium is sterile and does not contain disease-causing organisms. This soilless medium does not contain harmful full heavy metals. The soils are unsuitable for growing leafy vegetables as leaf accumulates heavy metals. Use of artificial light is becoming popular for growing in-door crops using LED for providing a special spectrum of light to the plants," he added. CISH conducted 6-month training of three students from Nagaland and many entrepreneurs are being benefited with the training at the institute. The number of people interested is increasing and many of them have started fabricating the units.

LDA to get separate fund for sewer system maintenance

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

The state government has decided to release a separate fund of Rs one crore for the Lucknow Development Authority (LDA) that is seek private partners with expertise in maintenance of sewer system to ensure better amenities in its residential and commercial properties. The first installment will be released as soon as the work starts.

It is said the development authority lacked in expert manpower to carry out the maintenance work of its resources and it was also not possible to keep the system in order. The LDA administration communicated to the state government the an urgent need of funds to keep the system efficient with the help of private partners as it has no other alternative after Lucknow Municipal Corporation decided to keep its sanitation workers away from the maintenance work of its properties six months ago.

LDA chief engineer IS Singh said a proposal to lay the sewer system at its housing schemes was sent to the state government to seek financial assistance and as well as its approval in October but it was not accepted. Instead, it was decided to invite private partners for the job, he added.

Over 3.5 lakh people are living in LDA's residential colonies and running their business from commercial estates. The number of people using LDA residential colonies is equal to one-tenth of the total urban population of the state capital.

It is said that six private partners have applied for the maintenance work so far but they will be selected after scrutinising their credentials. The chief engineer said that LDA administration had a bitter experience when it assigned the job to a non-performer in the past. He said the blue print for the maintenance work had been prepared. The partners have to execute the job according to the plan under the guidance of LDA's engineering department. Senior Urban and Housing department officers will also be involved in selection of the private partner for the purpose. The selection procedure will be completed by January 1 and the new team will start working by January-end.

CENTENARY YEAR CELEBRATIONS

LU allows me academic pursuits: Arvind Mohan

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

Head of the Economics Department of Lucknow University Arvind Mohan admits that many lucrative offers notwithstanding, he has chosen to contribute to his alma mater and the state.

Talking to The Pioneer, Mohan, who has not only penned several analyses of the economic scenario of the state but is also working in tandem with the state government to change the lives of people, said Lucknow University has given him the flexibility for academic pursuits.

Mohan, who is the son of an IPS officer, said his father was a huge inspiration for him. "I did both Bachelors as well as Masters in Economics from Lucknow University. My aim is to see whether the state government policies reach the common man. I chose Lucknow University because of the flexibility for academic pursuits and the desire to do something for the state. I have been given space for my work. I got the opportunity to teach here since I was the topper of the batch in 1985. I chose to stay at Lucknow University. I work extensively with the World Bank, agencies and global teams. With the kind of technology available, it does not matter where you are sitting. If you are competent, you can work from anywhere," he said.

"At the end of the day, you have to decide what you want to do and for me, what is important is satisfaction which I get in influencing people's lives," he added. The head of Economics department said LU gives him international exposure, a sense of rooting and a feeling of satisfaction.

He pointed out that though he had been working on international projects for long, his work with the state government has increased over the years. "We are currently working on preparing the Uttar Pradesh Sustainability Report which will be out in February next year. I am the convener of the steering committee which was notified by the Chief Secretary. It will provide some guiding principles for the state across all sectors. It is designed in such a manner that it will give options of the kind of interventions required for changing economy all across the state. I was also a part of a committee chaired by Deputy Chief Minister Dinesh Sharma for drafting the service rules of all Group C employees across all government universities," he said.

He added that they were also providing technical support to State Finance Commission focusing on components such as child and women welfare, wherein earlier the focus was largely on infrastructure development. He said working with international agencies gives him the opportunity to change the perception of the country for those living abroad.

REPERTWAHR FESTIVAL

Tributes paid to Habib Tanvir

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ LUCKNOW

On the fourth day of Repertwahr Festival (Season 10), tributes were paid to famous theatre artiste Habib Tanvir as his play 'Agra Bazaar' was staged on Sunday. The 'Meet The Cast' session witnessed the presence of stand-up comedian Aditi Mittal and actors of 'Agra Bazaar' — Anup Ranjan Pandey, Purushottam Bhatt, Hemant, Abbasi, and Mohmmad Asadullah.

The session began with the fond memories of Habib Tanvir as the cast shared numerous incidents of their experience while working with him. The cast remembered play's first performance at Jamia in 1954 and its wonderful journey since then. The artists also talked about Repertwahr's admiration and intimate relationship with Tanvir.

Aditi Mittal talked about her journey as a female comedian, her famous character 'Dr Lutchuke', the amount of love that she received abroad and the different impacts of Hindi and English on the Indian audience.

Director of the play said 'Agra Bazaar' was originally written and directed by Habib Tanvir. He had scripted the play that catapulted him to the centre stage of Hindustani theatre movement, deftly weaving it around the writings of Mughal era 'people's poet' Nazeer Akbarabadi.

"The play proved a landmark in Tanvir's life and also a milestone in the history of Indian theatre. Though the play was scripted in 1954, the first show was presented in a bazaar and not in an auditorium. Tanvir began staging it regularly only from 1958," he said. He added that it was not an ordinary play, but a faithful chronicle of the times.

"Almost like a documentary, it portrays life in its myriad manifestations. The play is set in the 19th century when the Mughal empire was tottering and Agra, famous the world over for Taj Mahal, was being constantly attacked and plundered by the Marathas, the Rajputs, the English and the Jats. It portrays a city's struggle in recessionary days through commoners," he added.

CITYBRIEFS

BAHUGUNA REMEMBERED

Governor Anandiben Patel said the life of Hemwati Nandan Bahuguna was a great inspiration for all. She was speaking at the Yuva Mahotsav celebrations at Lucknow University to commemorate the birth centenary of Bahuguna.

"Bahuguna had started participating in students' movement at the university level itself and led the leaders during the Quit India Movement in 1942. Bahuguna held several important posts and was known for his administrative and leadership qualities," the Governor said. "India is a young country and full of talent, and the energy of youths has to be diverted in such a manner that they work for the progress of the nation," she pointed out. "When we talk about youths, we forget that half of the country's population consists of women and it is important to see that they also contribute to country's development," she added. The Governor also released a book in the memory of Bahuguna. Also present on the occasion were former Chief Minister Vijay Bahuguna and BJP MP Rita Bahuguna Joshi.

WORLD RECORD

Governor Anandiben Patel

on Sunday received the 'World Book of Record' certificate for over 9 lakh students from 2,278 schools participating in the 'Padhe Lucknow Badhe Lucknow' campaign, which was held on October 1. A copy of the certificate was also handed over to District Magistrate Abhishek Prakash and former LU Vice-Chancellor SP Singh. The Governor expressed happiness about the fact that the largest state of the country with a population of over 23 crore set the record.

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ ALLAHABAD

A health education officer working in the chief medical officer's (CMO's) office was caught red-handed while taking bribe here on Sunday afternoon. The health education officer had demanded for ₹35,000 in the name of granting a licence for a hospital. SP (Vigilance) Shailesh Kumar Yadav along with the team arrested him. SP (Vigilance) handed him over to the George Town police and a case was registered against him.

Health education officer Pankaj Kumar Pandey was attached to the CMO office Prayagraj. The CMO had authorised him for issuing a licence of polyclinics. Under it license for medical store license etc was given. Rajkumar Gupta, son of Munnalal Gupta, a resident of Raniganj in Pratapgarh, had applied for a polyclinic license. The health education officer was demanded a bribe of ₹70,000 from him. Rajkumar complained to SP (Vigilance) Shailesh Kumar Yadav two-three days ago. The SP (Vigilance) said that when the matter was investigated it was found that such complaints were often received against Pankaj. Thereafter he chalked out a strategy to catch official red-handed. SP (Vigilance) took 35,000 from the victim Rajkumar and gave it back to him. Thereafter victim Rajkumar met health education officer on Sunday to give money to him. Officials from the Vigilance team were also present with Rajkumar. As Rajkumar gave it to Pankaj, the vigilance team caught him. After being caught red-handed, the Vigilance team sent him to George Town police station and got case filed against him. Meanwhile the Kareli police took All India Majlis-e-Ittehadul Muslimeen (AIMIM) city unit president Iftikhar Ahmed into custody recently for posting a message on Facebook against the Citizenship Amendment Act and urged others to join the protest against it.

Former AIMIM city president Afsar Mahmood said that the Kareli police had detained Iftikhar Ahmed on Wednesday night. SHO Kareli JP Sharma said the AIMIM leader was taken into custody on the instructions of senior officials. The action was taken after a complaint that he had posted some messages on a social networking site which may pose a threat to peace. Preventive measures under CrPC section 107/16 have been taken against the AIMIM leader who was released on Thursday, SHO added.

Another report said that a family had complained to the chief minister that it is under threat from land mafia who are eyeing their property.

In his complaint, Mahesh, a resident of Sadiyapur legality said he and his brother owned an ancestral piece of land at a prime location. However, some persons who were involved in illegal grabbing and plotting of land in the area, were trying to grab it on the basis of forged documents. He said that on the night on November 29, the accused arrived with large number of people and abused him and his kin and roughed them up. Mahesh also alleged that the accused and others had also lodged false FIR against him and others. Some of those named in the FIR, were not in the city at that time, Mahesh said. He demanded action against the accused while also demanding quashing of the false FIR lodged against him and others. SP (Crime) Ashutosh Mishra, who is in the anti-land mafia cell, said that strict action would be taken against the accused after an inquiry by the official concerned.

ANNUAL PARENTS' DAY OF CMS MAHANAGAR

City Montessori School, Mahanagar, organised its 'Annual Parents' Day' at Gomti Nagar Campus II auditorium on Sunday. The chief guest on the occasion was Chief Secretary RK Tiwari, who inaugurated the function. Addressing the gathering, he called upon parents and teachers to develop positive thinking and attitude in young minds. Tiny-tots in colourful dresses won the hearts of their parents with educational-cultural items. Grandparents of the students were also present in large numbers and they encouraged their wards.

ANTI-CAA PROTEST...

Thereafter, police started lathi charging the protesters and using teargas," he alleged. While other students claimed that the police forcefully entered the campus and fired tear gas on students. "Students are hiding inside washroom. This is barbaric on part of Delhi Police," they claimed. However, a group of students and Jamia Millia Islamia Teachers Association (JTA) condemn the ongoing violence at Jamia and on the Mathura road. The students also claimed that the students groups have nothing to do with the violence. They alleged that "local elements" joined the protest and "disrupted" it. "The students of Jamia Millia Islamia disassociate themselves from the violence that has erupted today. We have time and again maintained that our protests are peaceful and non-violent. We stand by this approach and condemn any party involved in the violence. We have maintained clam even when students have been lathi-charged and some women protestors have been badly beaten up. Media personal are a witness to these events. Violence by certain elements is an attempt to vilify and discredit genuine protests. We appeal to everyone to share this message," said a group of students.

While the teachers association of Jamia, issued a statement saying, "Jamia Teachers' Association condemn the violence in south Delhi, outside Jamia Millia Islamia. JTA is not part of any such violence. JTA also appeals to students, if any, to keep away from such direction-less protest lead by local political leaders. Jamia practices and preaches peace. JTA condemn all sort of violence near Jamia or anywhere in India."

JTA has also called an emergency meeting of the extended Executive Committee on Monday to discuss misuse of Jamia's name in the protests. Witnessing the rage of protest, the Jamia Administration has postponed the semester examination and declared winter vacation. "A large number of students staying in hostels have already left and the Vice Chancellor Najma Akhtar appealed to the students to maintain peace," read the statement issued by the University.

"Police have entered the campus by force, no permission was given. Our staff and students are being beaten up and forced to leave the campus," said Waseem Ahmed Khan, Chief Proctor, Jamia Millia Islamia University. With the protest getting more violent in the parts South East Delhi, the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC) also closed the entry and exit gates of Sukhdev Vihar metro station on Magenta Line and Gate Number three of Ashram Metro station on Pink Line. "As advised by Delhi Police, entry & exit gates of Sukhdev Vihar and gate no. 3 of Ashram have been closed. Trains will not be halting at Sukhdev Vihar," the DMRC tweeted. Entry and exit gates of Jamia Millia Islamia, Okhla Vihar and Jasola Vihar Shaheen Bagh have also been closed with no trains halting at these stations.

IN U-TURN...

He demanded that the Brahmaputra valley, where violent protests have been happening over the amended Citizenship Act, should be excluded from its purview. Addressing a press conference at Guwahati, Bora, also a state minister, said as the legislation has already become an Act, so at least the Brahmaputra valley should be excluded and it may be implemented in the Barak valley, which has a significant Bengali population, has not seen any major agitation. AGP leader and Assam minister Keshab Mahanta said the party has not left its "old stand" of opposing the contentious Act. "Though we are a part of the NDA, our stand has not changed. We still do not want this Act to be implemented in Assam and North East," he said. The Citizenship (Amendment) Bill, which was cleared by the parliament on Wednesday and became an Act on Thursday.

OPP PARTIES...

On the Opposition to the citizenship law, he said after seeing the quality protests in Northeast, it is clear that the decision was commendable and in the right direction. The rally which was also attended by Chief Minister Raghubar Das, Dumka BJP candidate and Minister Louis Marandi, Minister and Sarath candidate Randhir Kumar Singh, MPs among others. The Prime Minister urging the protestors to end violence said that those having any doubts on CAA should sit and talk, but these people have embarrassed the country by demonstrating there.

Modi in Dumka also said the BJP Governments at the Centre and the State will continue to protect Jharkhand's 'jal', 'jungle' and 'jameen', no matter what the opposition parties say. "In Jharkhand, the institutes of higher education, engineering and medical studies like IIT, AIIMS were opened, this is also done by BJP," PM Modi asserted.

The Prime Minister outlined the progress and development successes of the Jharkhand. He said, "Before 2014, the Chief Minister of the State used to claim the construction of 30,000 to 35,000 houses and described it as their achievement. But now we are moving forward with the resolve that every poor person in the country should have their own house." The battle of Dumka gains much importance for both BJP and JMM as there is huge stake in Santhal Pargana which goes to poll on December 20. Santhal Pargana is considered a JMM bastion as most of the MLAs are from this region. JMM executive president Hemant Soren too is contesting from two seats - Dumka and Barhait. The region which was synonymous with JMM chief Shibu Soren as he had represented Dumka parliamentary seat eight times, however, in Lok Sabha election this year, BJP made a successful dent in JMM bastion as BJP candidate Sunil Soren defeated senior Soren in Lok Sabha election.

GLOBAL WARMING...

He, however said, climate change is having impact in various other ways also. For instance, up to 93 per cent of green turtle hatchlings could be female by 2100, as climate change causes "feminization" of the species, he said citing a study conducted by the Researchers at the University of Exeter in the UK and the Marine and Environmental Sciences Centre in Portugal. According to various studies, if we do not reduce our carbon emissions and instead allow global temperatures to rise by 4.5°C, up to half the animals and plants in some of the world's most biodiverse areas could go extinct by 2100.

"In fact, even if we are able to limit global warming to the Paris climate agreement goal of 2°C, areas such as the Amazon and the Galapagos could still lose one quarter of their species," noted the studies dwelling on the effects of climate change on 80,000 plants and animals in 35 areas. Another study has found that local extinctions (when a species goes extinct in a particular area, but still exists elsewhere) are already occurring in 47 per cent of the 976 species studied, in every kind of habitat and climatic zone. port from the Nature India/India Alliance India Science Media Fellowship)

VIOLENCE SPREADS...

Even as a helpless police force stood a mute spectator in absence of specific orders from above local MLA Moinal Haq accompanied by his followers was seen chasing away the mob with stick in his hand.

Violence continued at Rezinagar police station in neighbouring Murshidabad district where the protesters vandalised the station premises, put the signaling office afire. A Railway Protection Force vehicle and a local BJP office was also torched, sources said.

Similar incidents were reported from Kalyani Expressway in Nadia district, Amdanga in North 24 Parganas where copies of the CAA were burnt by angry protesters. Parts of Howrah district like Uluberia and Domjur where 15 buses were torched on Saturday were however comparatively peaceful on Sunday. At Burdwan and Birbhum, agitators took out rallies and shouting slogans against the Narendra Modi Government and throwing burning tyres on the roads. At Bhyabala in Basirhat sub-division of North 24 Parganas the Congress workers protested by blocking the Kolkata-Basirhat highway resulting in disruption of services. Police contingents have been rushed to the troubled areas to control the situation, sources said.

Near Kolkata, agitators ransacked the Akra railway station in the southern fringes of Kolkata. They burnt tyres, and blocked train services prompting the Government to send large contingent of police force in the area. This affected Kolkata-Budge Budge railway link. The train services remained hit for several hours in the region. Train services were partially disrupted in the Kolkata-Baruipur suburban region too when protester stoned running suburban trains at Mullickpur.

By late in the noon, the State Government had snapped internet services in six districts, including Murshidabad, Malda, Karandighi in North Dinajpur, parts of Howrah, Basirhat sub-division in North 24 Parganas and Baruipur, Diamond Harbour and others areas in South 24 Parganas. Meanwhile, fresh war of words erupted between Governor Dhankhar and State Government with the former terming unconstitutional a State-run advertisement in which the Chief Minister is seen appealing to the people for calm as she would not allow the CAA to be implemented in the State. Telling "those on constitutional posts" that this was "no occasion to play politics," the Governor wondered "How can an elected head of a Government use public money to give advertisement in national media that there will be no NRC, no CAB in state?" before concluding "This advertisement is unconstitutional." He added as Constitutional head "I had very gracefully invited her (Chief Minister's) attention, I had urged her (to) withdraw it. I am sure you all will agree that public money can't be used to lead an agitation against law of the land."

In the advertisement the Chief Minister is seen holding meeting with top Government functionaries including police chief and senior secretaries whereafter she appeals to the people to "maintain peace as we all want to protest against this Act but in a peaceful manner."

She added, "We will not allow CAA and NRC to take place in Bengal" though now there is a central Act in place. "Remember the Central Acts have to be implemented through the State Government and we will not implement it. We will not allow NRC in Bengal. We will protest jointly but in a peaceful manner. We will protest irrespective of caste, creed, religion."

Describing the law and order situation of the State as unimagineable Dhankhar questioned the way how public property was being damaged in a wanton manner, ruthlessly and recklessly, and how fear has been put in the minds of people belonging to a certain section of the society. The Governor who has been at loggerheads with the Mamata Banerjee Government for quite some time now immediately received a counter attack from the State Ministers who asked him not to give advices to the Chief Ministers. State Minister Chandrima Bhattacharya said the Chief Minister was an elected person and had people's mandate with her and she was a senior politician who knew her brief better than anyone else.

10-YEAR-OLD...

The incident happened on December 11 when the victim had gone to the girl's house after school for getting her pen back but an argument led to a fight, the SHO said.

The accused girl attacked the other with an iron rod in which the victim sustained critical injuries on her head, ribs and stomach leading to her death, Kaviya said adding that the girl's parents were not at home then. After her mother got home, the girl apparently narrated the entire story. The mother and daughter went on to tie the victim's body to a rock and threw it in a pond, the SHO added. Later, the mother informed her husband. The couple, then, fished out the body from the pond and dumped it in an open ground, Kaviya said. After the 12-year-old did not reach home, her parents lodged a missing complaint and the body was recovered on Thursday, the officer said.

Delhi's traffic woes from neighbours!

Despite Western and Eastern Peripheral Expressways, Delhi sees more than 12 lakh vehicles everyday from its neighbouring States. Of them, less than one fourth of the total vehicular movement is attributed to the freight vehicles. As per the study conducted by CRRRI, number of vehicles entering to Delhi rose from 6,13,797 to 6,19,946 everyday

RAJESH KUMAR ■ NEW DELHI

Despite Western and Eastern Peripheral Expressways to reduce traffic congestion in Delhi, there is to-and-fro movement of more than 12 lakh vehicles everyday from neighbouring States of Delhi.

Of them, less than one fourth of the total vehicular movement is attributed to the freight vehicles. The volume of both personal and freight vehicles is gradually increasing. As per the study conducted by Central Road Research Institute (CRRRI) namely "Megacity Logistics: Metrics, Tools And Measures For Sustainability", the number of vehicles entering to Delhi rose from 6,13,797 to 6,19,946 everyday. The respective figures for the year 2009, were 4,72,852 and 5,50,841.

A Parliamentary Standing Committee on Home Affairs on "the management of worsening traffic situation in Delhi", expressed concern as there is no planning to regulate or restrict the vehicular movement from the neighbouring States when the roads of the city are already reeling under heavy stress because of traffic congestion and other related issues.

The Committee also expressed its strong displeasure on the fact that freight management plan for Delhi has not been formulated till now. The committee was informed by the representative of the CRRRI that the road traffic demand has increased exceptionally and is not in keeping with the growth in the supply side factors such as increase in road network and upgradation of road infrastructure.

The Committee observed that freight traffic on Delhi roads contribute more than 18 per cent of the total vehicular volume on Delhi Roads. The committee, therefore, strongly recommended that after due study and assessment of management of freight traffic in other major cities, Government of Delhi along with other agencies should formulate a suitable plan for the freight traffic management in Delhi and NCR and this must be done keeping in mind the fact that least burden is felt during peak hours.

The committee therefore, recommended that infrastructure of suitable nature to commute, transport and dedicated places for boarding and de-boarding of freight materials needs to be earmarked on a priority basis and the timing of freight movement should be regulated/kept in mind the material being carried by it like whether it is perishable item like food or vegetable or building materials, etc..

As per the data, there has been an average growth of 3 per cent in overall vehicular movement on the roads of Delhi in the last decade. Also, during the year 2018, 21.35 per cent of the freight vehicles entering Delhi used the roads of Delhi just to bypass Delhi and there was no plan as of now to regulate or restrict the to and fro vehicular movement from the neighbouring States to Delhi.

Therefore, the Committee also recommended that there was an urgent need to formulate plan/policy to regulate the entry of the inbound traffic and ensure smooth exit of the outbound traffic by diverting the vehicles using Delhi roads only for bypassing via peripheral and ring roads.

"Recurrence of extreme congestion on the Delhi roads has become a common phenomenon and has hampered the quality of life of all. The average speeds have been reduced to 5 to 10 km/hr during peak hours even on the major arterial roads of the city leading to the loss of time of the working population, fuel wastage and environmental pollution," it said.

Furthermore, the problem of traffic congestion has been aggravated by the rapidly increasing population of Delhi, geographical expansion of Delhi, inadequate expansion of public transport, improper parking on roads and lack of a central coordination mechanism for formulation and implementation of traffic management policies in Delhi.

BJP announces nationwide campaign on citizenship law

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Amid public unrest and Opposition's pitch against the amended Citizenship Law, that allows six religiously persecuted minorities excluding Muslims from three neighbouring countries to take Indian citizenship, the BJP on Sunday announced a nationwide campaign to spread awareness about the legislation, asserting that it was not discriminatory against Muslims or any other community.

The Citizenship Amendment Bill, 2019, which was passed last week by Parliament which has now turned effective as an act with Presidential assent has triggered public protest in the North-East, Bengal and the national Capital with police and army called out at the epicenters of the violence.

The ruling BJP has sought to "dispel" the Congress and a section of other Opposition's campaign that the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) was unconstitutional as it seeks to exclude Muslim persecuted minorities from Bangladesh, Pakistan and Afghanistan from the provisions of CAA and is thus discriminatory.

Party spokesperson Sambit Patra told a Press conference on Sunday that the BJP workers will spread out across the country to inform people about the law that, he said, meant to provide Indian citizenships to persecuted minorities — Hindus, Sikhs, Parsis, Buddhists, Jains and Christians — in the neighbouring three countries where their numbers have come down drastically on account of various discrimination against them.

The party has affirmed that the CAA was not against Muslims as has been "orchestrated" by the Opposition parties, particularly the Congress. "There is no provision in this law that even a single right of our Muslim brothers and sisters will be taken away. Instead rights will be provided to those who are living in India without any rights facing religious persecution in countries like Bangladesh, Pakistan and Afghanistan," Patra said.

He said party functionaries from 11 States were briefed by the national leadership on the law's provisions here on Sunday before they start a campaign in their respective State. The party has asked all the MPs, including those from Rajya Sabha, to visit their constituencies and States to create awareness about the provisions of the CAA and the specific purpose for which it was passed by the Parliament.

The state level leadership of the party including Ministers and MLAs would also be required to update themselves and inform public on the correct and positive implications of the Act.

Special awareness campaigns would be launched by the party in the North-East which has been the first to witness public protest after the bill was passed by Parliament with the apprehensions that giving citizenships to migrants across the borders and those already there in the region may impact the demography of the region and may also affect their social and cultural identity.

In the BJP Parliamentary party meet last week which was also attended by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, the central leadership had directed all party MPs to counter political campaign launched by the Opposition against the Bill.

ITBP launches matrimonial portal for unmarried, widowed troops

New Delhi (PTI): In a first for a paramilitary, border guarding force ITBP has developed a matrimonial portal for its unmarried, widowed and separated personnel to help them find a suitable "soulmate" within their service. The mountain warfare-trained force, primarily tasked to guard the Line of Actual Control (LAC) with China, has about 25,000 unmarried men and 1,000 women in its various ranks at present, officials told PTI.

A number of these personnel are posted and deployed in remote border locations and far flung areas and it becomes an "uphill task" for them and their families to find a suitable match, a senior Indo-Tibetan Border Police (ITBP) official said. The force, as per data accessed, has about 333 force couples (both husband and wife in the ITBP) and a number of personnel prefer a spouse from within the organisation as government rules allow preferential posting to a couple at the same location, the official said.

Considering the hard duties that the force renders along the mountainous border, such a step of serving together brings the much required relief for service couples, they said. The experts were reacting to a recent statement issued by the Centre that it was not thinking about bringing a legislation to tackle the issue. Under the Paris Agreement, India pledged to reduce the emission intensity of its gross domestic product (GDP) by 33-35 per cent over 2005 levels by 2030 and create additional carbon sink of 2.5-3 billion tonnes of CO2 equivalent through additional forest and tree cover.

'India must enact stringent law to combat rapidly changing climate'

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

With the chorus against climate change getting louder than ever, countries around the world, including India, have expressed their commitment towards reducing carbon emissions but environmental experts feel that targets will not be achieved effectively unless there is stringent legislation to deal with the issue.

The experts were reacting to a recent statement issued by the Centre that it was not thinking about bringing a legislation to tackle the issue. Under the Paris Agreement, India pledged to reduce the emission intensity of its gross domestic product (GDP) by 33-35 per cent over 2005 levels by 2030 and create additional carbon sink of 2.5-3 billion tonnes of CO2 equivalent through additional forest and tree cover.

However, India does not plan to bring a legislation to achieve this target, the environment ministry told Parliament recently, which draw opposition from various environmentalists who said having a law will bring accountability which is lacking in the country. Anjal Prakash, Research Director and Adjunct Associate Professor, Indian School of Business, opined that a comprehensive legislation is the need of the hour.

"We need a comprehensive and all-encompassing legislation that covers all aspects of climate change. Indian policy so far has been to avoid legislation and combat climate change through policies. It has impressively created number of missions for the same," he said.

However, he added that unless the policies are legally binding, it would be extremely difficult to combat the rapidly changing climate. "Legislation brings in accountability and what we lack, at the moment, is an accountable system which tackles climate change for the benefits of communities, especially the poor and marginalised people," said Prakash, who was also one of the lead authors of the IPCC report on oceans and cryosphere. Expressing a similar view, Greenpeace India's Avinash Chanchal said it was important to fix accountability and declare a climate emergency. He said there is need for implementing existing regulations on the ground in letter and spirit, strengthening and providing funding for disaster management and climate adaptation. "While doing that it is also required that India declares a climate emergency and comes up with regulation and plan to phase out coal and reduce dependence on other fossil fuels to achieve net-zero carbon emissions in a planned and timed manner," Chanchal said. A scientist at IIT-Bhubaneswar said though it was a policy decision by the government, he was in favour of enactment of a law to fight climate change and reduce carbon emissions.

"We are scientists. I feel that (making a law on climate change) is a policy decision to make for the government. If you are asking me as an individual, I would say yes. That would be great," said IIT-Bhubaneswar Professor V

Vinoj. Countries which have enacted legislation in this regard are New Zealand, United Kingdom, France, Sweden and Scotland. While New Zealand enacted emissions-target legislation aiming to eliminate carbon emissions by 2050, the other four countries also passed their own laws pledging to reach net-zero emissions. While most countries are still trying to reduce their carbon footprints, there are two countries which have already declared themselves carbon negative - Suriname, a country on the northeastern coast of South America, and Bhutan, as per the World Economic Forum.

While New Zealand's climate change law commits the country to achieve net-zero carbon emissions by 2050 and reduce methane emissions in the range of 24-47 per cent in the same time frame, Sweden's law aims to achieve the same target by 2045. The Climate Change Act of Scotland includes an emissions target, set for the year 2050, for a reduction of at least 80 per cent from the baseline year, 1990.

Rahul should give up name of Gandhi: Patra

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

In the light of Congress leader Rahul Gandhi's public proclamation that he is a Gandhi and not Savarkar to apologise for his 'rape-in-India' barb, the BJP on Sunday asked him to drop his surname as it was "stolen" by his family for political gains. The party's riposte came a day after the former Congress president, in a public rally here, refused to apologise for his 'rape in India' remark saying he is not "Rahul Savarkar".

Addressing a Press conference on Sunday, BJP spokesperson Sambit Patra said former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi had called Savarkar "son of soil", while her grandson was referring to him in a derogatory note. "They stole the Gandhi name for political gains. He should give up the name of Gandhi. You (Rahul Gandhi) are a political deserter," Patra alleged.

On Saturday, Rahul has stressed on his surname and unleashed a barb that he was a Gandhi and not a 'savarkar' to apologise and would rather "die" than seeking forgiveness. Congress leader had earlier come under the BJP's attack for his "rape-in-India" comment at a public rally in Jharkhand.

Rahul had made the comment saying the Modi-Governments "Make-in-India" has rather turned into "rape-in-India", indicating spate of rape cases in the country. A furious BJP had sought an apology from Rahul with Defence Minister Rajnath Singh in Lok Sabha saying the comment was unbecoming of a member of Parliament.

An unapologetic Rahul responded saying he has not done anything wrong and blamed the BJP Government for not protecting women and ruining country's economy.

In a counter attack, BJP has now accused Rahul of hiding behind his surname Gandhi and seeking to attack a patriot like Savarkar and demanded that he gave up his surname that the family has 'stolen'.

Home Min rejects move to give legal protection to docs

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Union Home Ministry does not seem to be appreciative of the Union Health Ministry's move to give legal protection to the practitioners of one specific profession i.e. doctors.

Sources said the Home Ministry has stalled draft central legislation, seeking to penalise those assaulting doctors and other healthcare professionals with imprisonment of up to 10 years and fine of ₹2-10 lakh.

The proposed Bill, the Healthcare Service Personnel and Clinical Establishments (Prohibition of Violence and Damage to Property) Bill, 2019, prepared at the behest of Union Health Minister Harsh Vardhan, was set to go the Union Cabinet soon but the Home Ministry has rejected it saying that no central legislation can be brought to protect the practitioners of one specific profession

Health Minister Harsh Vardhan, was set to go the Union Cabinet soon but the Home Ministry has rejected it saying that no central legislation can be brought to protect the practitioners of one specific profession.

Bill had been prepared in the wake of growing number of attacks on doctors in hospitals and the immediate trigger for the drafting the legislation was brutal assault on junior doctors in West Bengal in June this year, which led to nationwide protests by medical professionals.

"The Union Law Ministry had already given a go-ahead to the draft Bill. But now the MHA has red-signalled it and we will be forced to junk it," said a senior official in the Health Ministry.

Sources in the Ministry also said that Vardhan was very keen on getting the Bill through and it was due to his intervention that it had got drafted within two months after holding inter-ministerial consultations and taking representations from doctors' bodies. The Ministry had hoped that it would serve as a deterrent to family members of patients assaulting medical staff and doctors on duty.

"It was put out in the public domain for feedback only after we received the Law Ministry's approval. Hence, even we are surprised at the strong objections by the MHA," another official said.

Apart from proposing strict legal provisions against the grievous attack on doctors, the draft Bill had also said that those resorting to violence or causing damage to the property of a healthcare facility can be imprisoned for six months to five years and fined between ₹50,000 and ₹5 lakh.

Healthcare professionals would have included doctors and para-medical staff, as well as medical students, diagnostic service providers in a health facility and ambulance drivers. The Indian Medical Association, the largest organisation of private doctors in the country had been staunchly pushing the Bill.

Deficiency of iron in early stages of pregnancy leads to anaemia

ARCHANA JYOTI ■ NEW DELHI

Women considering becoming pregnant or who are within the early weeks of pregnancy, need to ensure that they have enough iron-rich food to prevent anaemia. For, early anaemic pregnant stage may leave their offspring afflicted with intellectually disability (ID), autism spectrum disability (ASD) or attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), according to a study published in international journal, JAMA (Journal of the American Medical Association) Psychiatry.

However, women diagnosed with anaemia later in pregnancy did not have the same risk, said the study which holds importance in the context of India too which is home to 50 per cent anemic pregnant women. Iron is a mineral that plays a key role in the making of red blood cells, which carry oxygen.

The Indian Government has mandated consumption of iron-folic acid tablets for 100 days during pregnancy, but only 30 per cent, or three in every ten, pregnant Indian women consume iron-folic acid (IFA) tablets for at least 100 days (NFHS-4), as per the latest Government survey. Anemia in pregnancy is defined as a hemoglobin concentration of less than 110 g/L (less than 11 g/dL) in venous blood.

The large population-based study (nearly 300,000 mothers of more than 500,000 children born in Sweden between 1987 and 2010) published in the JAMA journal showed that the risk of ASD and ADHD in children whose mothers had anaemia in early pregnancy was 44 per cent and 37 per cent higher, respectively, compared with those children born to mothers without early prenatal anaemia.

The risk of intellectual disability was highest, at 120 per cent. However, interestingly, said researchers, anaemia diagnosed after the 30 weeks' gestation was not associated with an increased risk for any of the neurological development issues. It is believed iron may play an important role in the development of a foetus' brain, particularly in a 'critical window' before 30 weeks, the scientists said.

"It is part of standard antenatal care to screen pregnant women for low hemoglobin levels, and this is important to continue," senior author of the study Renee Gardner, PhD, of Karolinska Institute, Stockholm, Sweden, said.

Among the women, 5.8 per cent were diagnosed with anaemia during pregnancy; of these diagnoses, 5 per cent occurred before 30 weeks' gestation, while 90.9 per cent occurred after 30 weeks' gestation. However, experts caution that while prenatal iron supplements might offset the risk of conditions associated with anemia, too much iron intake can be toxic.

In India, the prevalence of anaemia in pregnancy is among the highest in the world. The study published in the JAMA journal may not be directly linked with India's status on number of intellectually/neurologically disabled children but definitely indicate the reason that why nearly 1 in 8 children in our country has at least one neurodevelopmental condition.

The actual number may be higher, given that families do not report the cases in view of stigma associated with the condition. The Indian Government has launched Anemia Muk

PREVENT ANAEMIA

- Rich sources of iron include heme iron (in meat, poultry, fish and egg yolk), dry fruits, dark green leafy vegetables (spinach, beans, legumes, lentils) and iron fortified cereals
- Using cast iron utensils for cooking and taking iron with vitamin C (orange juice) can improve its intake and absorption
- Certain foods which may inhibit iron absorption should not be taken with iron rich foods. These include polyphenols (in certain vegetables, coffee), tannins (in tea), phytates (in bran) and calcium (in dairy products)

Bharat (AMB) Strategy under POSHAN Abhiyaan with the aim to reduce anaemia prevalence by three percentage points every year till 2022.

Ajay Khara, Deputy Commissioner for Child Health and Immunisation under the Union Health Ministry said that the most important of these is making available the IFA supplementation across the states. While earlier programmes existed for 30 years, the reduction of anaemia has been just 1 percentage point per year, because the coverage of the supplements was about 20 per cent, he said.

CITIZENSHIP AMENDMENT ACT

TMC takes out rallies in protest

Mamata to hit streets in opposing law

Kolkata: The ruling Trinamool Congress in West Bengal took out rallies across the State on Sunday, protesting against the amended Citizenship Act.

Several senior party leaders, including ministers, led rallies in various districts and also appealed to the people to maintain peace and refrain from indulging in violence.

Carrying posters and placards, TMC members shouted slogans against the Modi Government and demanded that the new citizenship law be immediately scrapped.

"We want this divisive Citizenship Act to be immediately scrapped. Our State Government has already said that it will not be implemented in Bengal, so we appeal to the people not to take law into their hands, and protest peacefully," senior TMC leader and education minister Partha Chatterjee said.

TMC supremo and Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee will hit the streets from Monday in protest the law. For three consecutive days, Banerjee who has been at the forefront in opposing the law, will crisscross the city in protest. PTI

AASU hints at launching political party in Assam

PNS ■ GUWAHATI

The All Assam Students' Union (AASU), which has been protesting the amended Citizenship Act, on Sunday hinted at launching a political party along with 'Silpi Samaj' (artists' forum) as an alternative to the ruling BJP and AGP as well as to Opposition Congress. AASU president Dipanka Nath, addressing a protest meet 'Concert for Peace and Harmony', supported popular actor Zubeen Garg's proposal of launching a political party.

"We are in talks with Silpi Samaj (artists' forum) and also discussing with people of Assam to think about an alternative. With your (people's) permission, we will not hesitate one bit to go in that direction (of launching a political party)."

"The AASU will remain apolitical. But, in the interest of the people, along with Silpi Samaj we are ready to go in that direction," Nath said to loud cheers from thousands of people at the event. Nath alleged the Centre decided to implement the amended Citizenship Act to render the culture, language and heritage of the indigenous people "extinct". "Our agitation against the Act will be long. Each one of us has to carry on our fight peacefully," he said.

Claiming that five persons have so far been killed in police firing, the AASU president accused the Sarbananda Sonowal-led Government of using the state machinery to dominate the protesters.

"They have unleashed their oppressive machinery on people killing five minor students and injuring many others with bullets... This Government will be brought down."

"No Government can suppress our struggle with killings and force. We will intensify our democratic movement through non-violent means," Nath said. The AASU president accused AGP of "betraying" the people of the state and said the Congress was also "equally bad".

Protestors hold placards against Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), in Ahmedabad on Sunday

'Protesting as Assamese, not as Hindu or Muslim'

Guwahati: They come from myriad backgrounds and faiths but at the protest venues in the city and several parts of the State, they all unite against the Citizenship (Amendment) Act as they believe it's an "assault" on Assamese culture and identity.

Forty-eight-year-old Guwahati resident Upendrajit Kalita says he felt a "sense of betrayal" the day Parliament passed the Citizenship (Amendment) Bill, alleging that the legislation goes "against the Assam Accord" which was signed to protect the interest of the native Assamese people.

Kalita, who works in an advertisement agency, had participated in the historic six-year-long Assam Movement led by the All Assam Students' Union (AASU) that had culminated in the signing of the Assam Accord in 1985. The massive protests across the state against the Citizenship Amendment Bill (CAB), now an Act, are currently also led by the AASU, which has asserted that it will be unrelenting in its battle.

From Guwahati, the nerve-centre of the protests, to Jorhat, and from Dibrugarh to Sivasagar, protesters have virtually brought the state to a standstill, demanding that "the CAA must go", otherwise the agitation will be stepped up. "One of the clauses of the Accord mandated detection and deportation of all illegal migrants without discriminating on the basis of religion and the all-accepted cut-off year of 1971. Clause 6 of it was to give constitutional protection to original citizens of Assam," Kalita said, and alleged the CAA "goes against all of that".

"Assam is already grappling with the influx of illegal migrants from Bangladesh. Our own people, especially the poor need attention, and now this CAA will lead to more Bangladeshi migrants settling in our state. Assam cannot be a dumping ground for illegal immigrants, Hindus or Muslims, or from any other religion. So, we vehemently oppose this," he told PTI. Kalita has been taking part in all major agitations in the city from the beginning, from the Latalil playground to the AEI grounds in Chandmari, where a sea of protesters have been gathering in response to the AASU's call. People from all communities, including eminent personalities, have joined the stir and come out in the open, defying curfew in Guwahati that was clamped on Thursday. AASU chief adviser Samujjal Bhattacharya on Saturday had said, "We are on a mission to ensure the revocation of the amended Citizenship Act. This is our traditional war cry which we will continue to chant till our demand is fulfilled."

Naquib Hussain, 39, a taxi driver who runs services from the airport area in Borjhar, said he had been taking part in the protests. "In other parts of India, people may feel their religious identity is more important, but here in Assam, we are Assamese first and then, anything else. So, we are against this CAB (now CAA). It will hurt the interests of us Assamese," he said. Bobby Kakati, a businessman, also agreed that all sections of Assamese, in unison opposed the Bill, and are now demanding the revocation of the Act. "Everyone in Assam, irrespective of their religion, have been fighting tooth and nail against this legislation, as it is communally polarising and unconstitutional," he claimed.

Kalita alleged that the BJP had been very vocal about "evicting illegal Bangladeshi migrants" from Assam before the general elections, but now, this CAA will "lead to more of such people coming and settling in our home state".

"We have accepted Bangladeshis who arrived here from 1951-1971, and they have voting rights too. But those who came after 1971 cannot be given citizenship and land rights," he argued. "We are not against anyone, but when our own Assamese people are struggling for food, shelter and jobs, can we afford to bring in the burden of more people," the 48-year-old resident of Hatigana area asked. Kalita, Kakati and other Guwahati locals, including Imran Ali Ahmed and Shamsheer Alam, feel that the greater influx of "illegal immigrants" will also compromise the "original Assamese culture" besides, "affecting the demography" in the future. PTI

Woman found dead in WB, family claims she killed self because of fear of NRC

Bardhaman (WB): A 36-year-old woman was found dead in West Bengal's Purba Bardhaman district, police said on Sunday, with her family claiming that scared of the proposed country-wide NRC she committed suicide.

Shipra Sikder was found hanging with a muffler wrapped around her neck at her house in Jaugram area's Teli village under Jamalpur police station limits on Saturday, police said.

She was taken to the Jamalpur government hospital where doctors declared her brought dead, they said. Locals said Shipra's husband, Shubhash Shikder, was a van driver and they have a son and a daughter. The woman had to depend on her income from the MGNREGA scheme to run her household. Shipra's brother-in-law Bipul Sikder said she was tensed and scared ever since the Citizenship (Amendment) Bill was cleared by Parliament.

Though her son, 19, had Aadhaar card but he didn't have a birth certificate and voter ID, due to which Shipra was scared that her son might be "thrown" out of the country, claimed Bipul. "She went to the BDO office several times to get documents for her son. But she couldn't manage to get those. She killed herself because of the NRC," he said.

An officer of the Jamalpur police station said they suspect it to be suicide, however, a case of unnatural death has been registered. PTI

Kashmiri pandit group hails Act, says entire nation 'stands with PM'

Jammu: Panun Kashmir, an organisation of Kashmiri migrant pandits, on Sunday welcomed the passing of the Citizenship (Amendment) Bill in both houses of parliament and said that the "entire nation stands wholeheartedly with Prime Minister Narendra Modi".

"The passing of CAB by parliament is a resolve to ensure complete politico-cultural decolonisation of India. Decolonising Indian mind is a critical necessity for national integration," Convener of Panun Kashmir, Agnishekhar, told reporters here.

Agnishekhar, who was flanked by several other leaders of the group including its chairman Ajay Chrunoo, said the decision to grant citizenship to persecuted Hindus of Pakistan, Bangladesh and Afghanistan is a monumental decision of Modi Government to address the mutilations inflicted on Hindus during the colonial enslavement.

He alleged that the state of India since independence chose to remain a mute bystander to the genocidal attrition unleashed on Hindus left behind in Pakistan, Bangladesh and Afghanistan.

"State of India for long had been functioning as a neutral or hostile entity towards the historical and civilisational responsibilities of the Nation of India. Congress regimes had converted state of India into an instrument to wage war on the historical and civilisational identity of the Nation of India," Agnishekhar said. PTI

CAA against Savarkar views, says Uddhav

Nagpur: Maharashtra Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray on Sunday said the new citizenship law is against the views of Hindutva icon V D Savarkar.

Addressing a press conference on the eve of the winter session of the State legislature, Thackeray said that issues like CAB were being raised to "divert attention" of people from real issues like security of women, unemployment and farm crisis.

"Is CAB based on ideology? What about violence which erupted over it?, he asked. PTI

Those opposing CAA should not jump the gun: Kerala Guv

Kochi: Kerala Governor Arif Mohammad Khan on Sunday urged those opposing the Citizenship (Amendment) Act (CAA) "not to jump the gun" and let the things settle down.

He said this in response to a question from reporters here on the statement by Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan that the CAA will not be implemented in the State.

He expressed the hope that elected Governments would fulfill their constitutional duties. The Governor said he was certain that if there was an issue, in a democratic society, elected Governments — both at the Centre and State — would rise to the occasion and fulfill their Constitutional duties.

"I don't know what he has said. I don't like to comment on that. In our Constitution this has been very clearly specified...."

These are the subjects where the Central Government will have the exclusive jurisdiction and these are the subjects where the State Government will have the exclusive jurisdiction....

Sometimes there may be misunderstandings. We should not jump the gun. Let things settle down," he said.

He said in a democracy, even if there are some misgivings about something, the state government, under the Constitution, can take its time to consider the issues and then come to a decision.

Vijayan had lashed out at the BJP-led Government and said the "unconstitutional Bill" will have no place in Kerala and the State would not implement it.

Justifying the the central Government's decision to enact the law, the Governor said life of the people belonging to the smaller denominations "in the neighbouring country" has become difficult.

"From 17 per cent, they came down to 1.3 per cent. Now this is a human tragedy, human problem. How to do it? I am not saying that everything is honky dory. But this is a problem, which is there before you. How to deal with it?", said. He said the controversies created for political reasons would soon settle down.

"Nobody should have any fear that any Indian will be subjected to any harassment or any difficulties. Nobody should have that fear. These controversies which are created for political reasons, they last a few days", Khan said. PTI

7 years on, despair shrouds Nirbhaya's convict's home & colony

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Narrow, steep and blue, it's a stairway to despair at the end of which lives a mother, caught between the horror of her son being convicted in the gangrape and murder of a woman known the world over as "Nirbhaya", the fearless one, and the desperate hope he is spared the noose. Seven years after that night of December 16 when the 23-year-old physiotherapy intern was savagely gangraped and left for dead on a Delhi street, the mother is fatigued, weary and defiant all at once, refusing to even give her full name.

Her son Vinay Sharma is one of the four men along with Mukesh Singh, Pawan Gupta and Akshay Kumar Singh awaiting execution in the case that made global headlines and galvanised a movement for change in the country's rape laws. Of the other two convicted in the case, Ram Singh allegedly committed suicide in Tihar Jail in 2015 and the sixth, a juvenile, was sentenced three years of punishment in a reform home and released in 2015. Four of the six men lived in Ravidas Camp, the seamy underbelly of posh RK Puram in south Delhi, where that night of December 16, 2012 is replayed over and over again. The years of visits to the courts, to the jail to meet her son, still in his 20s, the unrelenting media interest and the burden of guilt have taken their toll on the mother.

"Call me Vinay Sharma's mother. You people know everything, there is nothing else to say. Nobody wants to take our plea to the authorities, you can write whatever you want, it wouldn't matter," she told PTI from behind a flimsy iron door to her home. Tired of visits and questions from inquisitive mediapersons, the mother of four is hoping her appeal reaches the powers that be and the death sentence is commuted. While the widowed mother of brothers Ram Singh and Mukesh Singh has

In this May 7 (2017) file photo, a resident walks past the Sant Ravidas Camp at RK Puram in New Delhi. As the day of the Nirbhaya's brutal rape and murder seven years ago on December 16 draws closer, the topic of the convicts' execution has again become the story to follow in the slums in the quaint underbelly of the posh RK Puram area left the locality and gone back to her family in Rajasthan, the families of Vinay Sharma and Pawan Gupta still live in the slum colony. "Vinay Sharma's mother", as she insists on being referred to, sidesteps any questions on the brutality of the incident itself and focuses only on the impending execution of her son. Struggling with failing health, the woman in her 50s, said no one came to help her when her daughter was in hospital. "Now people are coming and asking how we are doing, where were all of you when my daughter was critically ill in Safdarjung hospital? I am too sick to talk now. I have just returned from the doctor. I don't know what to tell you, if you think I am like your mother you would write something to help us," she said.

The six men had assaulted "Nirbhaya" and a male friend in a moving bus as it drove through the streets of New Delhi. She was thrown out of the bus - so grievously injured that her insides were spilling out - along with her friend near the airport. A fortnight later, on December 29, 2012, she succumbed in a Singapore hospital. On Sunday, the unspoken details of the incident were hanging like a shroud over Ravidas Colony.

Talking in whispers, the neighbours said they don't want outsiders to "give more pain" to the family of the convicts. As the media thronged the colony a day before another December 16 rolls in, the neighbours said the family of five is supported by Sharma's father, who works at the airport. "Usne jo bhi kiya burha tha, inka to beta hi tha. Dil to dukhega hi (Whatever he did was wrong, but to them he is still their son. It has to pain)," a woman from the neighbourhood said. The family of Pawan Gupta sells fruits to make a living and refused to talk.

But there were others who recalled the days before their colony became synonymous with notoriety and crime. One teenage girl remembered "Pawan and Vinay bhaiya" to be helpful and "normal". "We used to sit here till late talking and laughing. Who could have thought they could do such a thing? But our heart goes out to their families. What's their fault? Why should they go through so much suffering?" she asked. Others in the neighbourhood showed mixed emotions towards the impending execution of the four condemned. After a whirlwind of protests from all quarters of society, a Delhi court sentenced the four convicts to death almost a year later on September 13, 2013. In the years that followed, the convicts' appeals to the Delhi High Court and the Supreme Court were rejected. Last year, the Supreme Court rejected a review petition filed by three of the convicts except Akshay Singh, whose petition is due to be heard on December 17. While one shopkeeper near the entrance of the camp said the "law needs to take its course and sometimes it takes time", another one commented police action in a recent encounter in Hyderabad in which four accused of rape and murder were killed.

Rape conviction rate low at 32%

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Seven years after the brutal Nirbhaya gang rape that shook the entire nation, the conviction rate in rape cases in the country is as low as 32.2 per cent despite laws dealing with sexual assault being made stringent in the aftermath of the incident. According to the National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB) data available for 2017, the total number of rape cases that went to trial in that year was 1,46,201 but only 5,822 of them resulted in conviction.

What is perhaps more worrisome is that while the conviction rate in rape cases has increased marginally in recent years, the charge-sheeting rate has gone down — which means cases are not going to court. The charge-sheeting rate in rape cases dropped to 86.6 per cent in 2017 from 95.4 per cent in 2013, the NCRB statistics show. Shilpi Jain, who was the defence lawyer in the Alwar rape case wherein a foreign tourist was raped by Bitti Mohanty, son former Odisha director general of police B B Mohanty, said the field-level staff of police dealing with rape investigation need to be made more efficient.

"They are mostly ill-equipped, inexperienced, power gets to their head and in most cases they are extremely corrupt," said Jain. "A sub-inspector is the highest-level officer who files a charge sheet, so one can imagine the quality of the content," said Jain. Similarly, the prosecutors who deal with the cases at the district level are of low caliber and less driven, she said, adding that all these factors make up badly investigated cases which results in low conviction rate.

A 23-year-old paramedic student, who came to be known as Nirbhaya, was gang raped on the intervening night of December 16-17, 2012, in a running bus in south Delhi by six people. Severely assaulted before being thrown out on the road, she succumbed to injuries on December 29 at Mount Elizabeth Hospital in Singapore. All the accused, including a juvenile, were arrested and charged with sexual assault and murder. One of the accused, Ram Singh, died in police custody of possible suicide on March 11, 2013 in the Tihar Jail.

A week after the horrific attack on Nirbhaya, the Justice JS Verma Committee was set up to review the criminal laws to sternly deal with sexual assault cases. The Committee's report, which was published within a month, formed the basis of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act of 2013 to set the maximum punishment for rape as death penalty rather than life imprisonment.

On February 3, 2013, the Criminal Law (Amendment) Ordinance, 2013 was promulgated by then President Pranab Mukherjee. It provides for amendment of the Indian Penal Code, Indian Evidence Act, and Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, on laws related to sexual offences. The ordinance provides for the death penalty in cases of rape.

The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 was also passed by Parliament, allowing for juveniles in conflict with law in the age group of 16-18, involved in heinous offences, to be tried as adults. But despite the two laws being made stringent, the rate of conviction in rape cases remain as low as 32 per cent, as per NCRB data.

Six states didn't use Nirbhaya fund; UP, Delhi spent less than 5 per cent

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Nirbhaya fund, set up by the Centre in 2013 to be used towards ensuring women's safety, has seen a dismal nine per cent utilisation with states such as Maharashtra and Meghalaya not spending a single rupee from it, according to government data. In total, just Rs 147 crore out of Rs 1,649 crore sanctioned by the Centre has been spent by the state and UTs governments, the Parliament was recently informed by Women and Child Development Minister Smriti Irani. Uttar Pradesh and Telangana, the two states which were in the news recently for horrific incidents of rape and murder, were among the highest recipients of the Nirbhaya fund alongside Karnataka, Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu and Delhi.

While Karnataka used 7 per cent of the fund allocated to it by the Centre (the fund allocated to Karnataka was Rs 191 crore and utilisation Rs 13.62 crore), Tamil Nadu used 3 per cent of the amount allocated to it under the Nirbhaya fund (the fund allocated was Rs 190.68 crore and utilisation Rs 6 crore). Six states and UTs - Maharashtra, Manipur, Meghalaya, Sikkim, Tripura and Daman & Diu - have not spent a single rupee from the fund allocated by the Centre, according to data shared by the minister in Parliament in response to a question.

The data also showed that Delhi, where the brutal incident took place, saw utilisation of less than 5 per cent of the fund allocated to it. Delhi was allotted Rs 390 crore which was the highest amount among states and UTs but the utilisation certificate of just Rs 19.41 crore has been received from the city-state. When asked about the same, Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal said the Centre rejected a Delhi government proposal to use Nirbhaya fund to install CCTV cameras and panic buttons in 5,500 DTC and cluster buses.

"We have not received Rs 390 crore," the chief minister claimed. Telangana, where a 26-year-old vet was recently gang raped and murdered, spent only Rs 4 crore out of the Rs 103 crore allocated to it by the Union home ministry, which releases money from the Nirbhaya fund for 13 programmes including the Emergency Response Scheme.

On the question of under-utilisation of the Nirbhaya fund, the Centre has put the blame on state governments while state governments complain that money is not released for the proposals given by them to the Empowered Committee that has been tasked with appraising and recommending proposals to be funded under this framework. The Nirbhaya fund was set up in 2013 by the UPA government.

Will sidelined leader Eknath Khadse quit BJP? Leader's recent cryptic comment sparks speculation

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

Maharashtra's sidelined BJP leader Eknath Khadse's recent cryptic comment that there is no guarantee that he may continue to remain in the party has sparked speculation in the State political circles that he might quit the Amit Shah-led party during the next fortnight.

Informed sources said here on Sunday that Khadse might announce his resignation from the BJP either during the Winter Session of the Maharashtra Legislature beginning on Monday or when Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray visits Aurangabad to lay foundation stone for the construction for a memorial of late BJP leader Gopinath Munde in the near future.

Sources said that Khadse — who had met NCP president Sharad Pawar in the national capital on December 9 and Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray on the following day in Mumbai — was toying with the idea of joining the Shiv Sena.

Speaking at public rally organised by BJP leader Pankaja Munde at Panli on the occasion of the 70th birth anniversary of her father and senior party leader Gopinath Munde on Friday, Khadse had made no bones about admitting the manner in which he was side-lined within the party and the party had created such a situation where he would have to decide on continue to remain in the party in such a troubled atmosphere or quit the party.

"While Pankaja will remain in the BJP, there is no guarantee about me," Khadse had said.

Singled out former Chief Minister Devendra Fandav for a vicious attack, Khadse had charged that Fandavis "ungrateful" towards late Munde. "Gopinathrao did not stab anyone in the back. It was Gopinathrao who made Fandavis the State party president. When I was the Minister in the BJP-led Government, I had allotted the land for constructing a memorial after Gopinathrao. But, Fandavis completed one full term as the Chief Minister and came back briefly as the Chief Minister.

"Nothing happened during Fandavis' five-year-term. It was only when Fandavis remained as the Chief Minister for 80 hours during his second term that he issued work orders for the start of the construction of a Gopinath Memorial at Aurangabad," Khadse said, adding that if Fandavis so chose, he could have constructed the memorial for late Munde during the first tenure as the Chief Minister.

Khadse revealed that when he met Maharashtra's new Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray, latter readily agreed to allocate money for the construction of a memorial for late Gopinath Munde at Aurangabad. "When I met him recently and broached the issue of the memorial for late Munde, Uddhav readily agreed to allocate money for the memorial. He also told me that he wanted to the location in Aurangabad where late Munde's memorial is to be constructed," he said.

With the possibility of Khadse quitting the BJP looming large over the state political arena, spotlight will turn on him during the course of the winter session of the Maharashtra Legislature. This is despite the fact the Khadse, who was denied party ticket by the BJP contest the State Assembly elections, is not member of both the Houses of the State Legislature.

DIG killed in mishap on Jammu-Srinagar NH

PNS ■ JAMMU

A DIG rank officer of Central Reserve Police Force, currently posted in Srinagar, was killed along with his driver while his personnel security officer (PSO) received critical injuries when their vehicle was hit by a boulder near Digidol in Ramban district around 8.00 p.m. on Sunday.

According to CRPF authorities in Jammu, "the DIG rank officer, Shaileendra Kumar, holding the charge of DIG, North (Srinagar) was travelling in a Scorpio vehicle along with his driver and PSO when their vehicle was hit by a large boulder near Digidol on Jammu-Srinagar National Highway around 8.00 p.m."

"Both DIG and his driver died on the spot while critically injured PSO was rushed to the nearby hospital", police said.

Local police authorities along with rescue workers immediately rushed to the spot to shift the injured to the hospital.

The rescue workers struggled hard to retrieve the injured PSO from the mangled remains of the vehicle while dead bodies of DIG and the driver were shifted to the local hospital.

Traffic on the Jammu Srinagar National Highway earlier remained suspended due to inclement weather conditions and fresh spell of snowfall for last three days.

MAHA LEGISLATURE WINTER SESSION

MVA Govt to corner BJP over State's debts, farm loan waiver

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

The Shiv Sena-led Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) Government will go all out to put the Opposition BJP on the defensive in the Winter Session of the Maharashtra Legislature beginning in Nagpur on Monday, by trying to corner former Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis among other things over the piled up the State's debts amounting to a staggering ₹ 6.71 lakh crore and his failure to implement properly the farm loan waiver scheme.

The Sena-NCP-Congress Government will also try to embarrass Fadnavis, who is now the leader of the Opposition in the State Assembly, by raking up the issue of questionable decision of invoking the controversial provision in the schedule of rates for irrigation projects to regularise payments for additional works worth several hundred crores of rupees, taken by him days ahead the State Assembly polls.

Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray has already stayed Fadnavis' decision. The treasury benches will in all likelihood go for the jugular against Fadnavis, alleging irregularities in the decision taken by the former Chief Minister.

The two major developments that can be expected during the week-long budget session of the State Legislature are: the tabling of a white paper on the State's current fiscal position and unveiling of a relief package for the unseasonal rain-hit farmers in the State.

Through the white paper on the current fiscal position of the state, the ruling MVA will attempt to put the previous Devendra Fadnavis Government over the "mishandling" of the State's finances. It may also speak about stalling of certain development projects, including the construction of a car shed for Metro phase-III at Aarey Colony in south Mumbai and bullet train project.

The ruling front leaders will also try to needle Fadnavis over BJP MP from Karnataka Ananta Kumar Hegde's claim that during his 80-hour tenure as Chief Minister of Maharashtra the former "moved back ₹ 40,000 crore" to the Centre. Fadnavis will have to face the music despite the fact that he has already denied the allegation and hit back at party colleague Hegde for making "false" and "baseless" claims when the fact remained that "the state did not return even one naya paisa to the Centre".

The treasury benches will also try to exploit the statements by disgruntled BJP leader Eknath Khadse and upset Pankaja Munde and delay on the part of the previous Devendra Fadnavis Government to construct a memorial for Gopinathrao Munde at Aurangabad, to project the BJP in a poor light.

In the brief session, there will be no customary question hour. There will be debates on Governor Bhagat Singh Koshyari's address to joint session of the two houses of State Legislature delivered in Mumbai on December 1, supplementary demands of the budget, official and unofficial bills and passing of a resolution congratulating Sharad Arvind Bobde, who hails from Nagpur, on his appointment as the Chief Justice of India.

On its part, the Opposition BJP will try to drive a wedge between the ruling Shiv Sena and Congress over the implementation of the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), 2019 in Maharashtra. While the Congress has opposed the CAA, the NCP is seeking consensus over the CAA implementation. The Shiv Sena, which had supported the Citizens Amendment Bill (CAB) in the Lok Sabha and staged a walk out in Rajya Sabha before the bill was put to vote in Rajya Sabha, has not made it stand clear on the CAA.

The BJP has already laid bare its game plan to corner the Shiv Sena over CAA issue. Advising its erstwhile ally Shiv Sena to go ahead and implement Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), 2019 in Maharashtra, the BJP said on Saturday said it was ready to make a "political compromise" and support the Sena in the event of the Uddhav Thackeray-led Maha Vikas Aghadi (MVA) Government's collapse over the implementation of CAA in the State. Rahul Gandhi's "My name is not Rahul Savarkar, I am Rahul Gandhi" comment has given fodder to the Opposition to target the Shiv Sena.

The BJP will exert pressure on Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray to speak his mind on CAA and Rahul's controversial comment. However, Uddhav is unlikely to oblige the Opposition as his statements will have a bearing on the stability of the MVA Government.

The winter session will witness nomination of a new Leader of the Opposition (LoP) in the Maharashtra Legislative Council in place of NCP leader Dhananjay Munde. With the change in the government in the State, Munde has moved to the ruling side and the LoP's position has fallen vacant.

In the normal course, the then BJP's group leader Chandrakant Patil would have become the LoP in place of Munde in the Upper House. Since Patil was elected to the State Assembly in the recent elections, Patil is no longer a member of the State Legislative Council. There are three contenders from the BJP — Bhai Girkar, Dr Parinay Purke and Prvain Darekar — LoP's post. It remains to be seen as to who — among these three leaders — will become the LoP in the Upper House.

Speculation rife about creating more Deputy CM posts in Karnataka

Bangaluru: As Karnataka Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa plans expansion of his Ministry, speculations are rife within the state BJP about creating more posts of Deputy Chief Minister or the coveted position being removed altogether, given the growing number of aspirants.

There are already three Deputy Chief Ministers in the Cabinet-Govind Karjol, CN Ashwathnarayan and Laxman Savadi.

Amid speculation that at least two more such posts would be created during the coming cabinet expansion, Savadi on Sunday termed it as a 'creation of the media' and said there was no confusion within BJP on this.

Everyone in the party would abide by the high command's decision on the matter, he said.

"There have been no such discussions, its only a creation of the media. On such issues, the party's state and national leadership will decide," he said to a query about the demand for at least two more Deputy Chief Minister's posts and also talk of such a position being removed all together.

Noting that there have been instances in the past when Deputy Chief Ministers were appointed by the high command, he said "three of us are DCMs now... Whatever the party leadership decides next, we will abide by it.

While there is talk within BJP that newly elected BJP MLA from Gokak, Ramesh Jarkiholi, who was earlier disqualified as Congress legislator for his instrumental role in bringing down the Congress-JD(S) coalition Government, was being considered for the post, health minister Sriramulu is reportedly sulking with his chances looking dim.

Sriramulu, who had earlier openly expressed his desire for the post, has not been attending official engagements for the last few days. PTI

Take the lead

The domino effect of protests over fee hikes and citizenship law shows that a mass student movement may be possible

The protests over the new Citizenship Act, which promises religion-based acceptance of refugees and excludes the concerns of minorities and indigenous people, may congeal as a mass student movement that's rearing its head across the country in a manner reminiscent of the anti-reservation stir of the 90s. As the young Assamese stood up for their linguistic and cultural pride, one that has been threatened since colonial times by waves of privileged Bengali-speaking settlers, their marginalisation has found echoes across the country. Students at various colleges and universities, even in faraway Delhi, are out to challenge not just the autocracy of the ruling regime but occupy the space for balance, humanism and logic that has been vacated by civil society, Opposition leaders and rationalists. This confluence of students, therefore, comes from generational solidarity, from their stakeholderhood in an India that is being created by selfish politics but will leave them suffering the consequences and unlearning what we have raised them to believe, to hold the establishment to account. Perhaps, it is getting endorsement because of the silence from a coopted majority. For the new Citizenship Act is not about reimagining India in a positive way but about reconstructing on ruins and relics of our civilisational foundations. It is not about denying immigration rights to Muslims but the selective culling of whom we want on our land that goes against the grain of the Constitution, one of the best documents that guarantees our citizenry equality. It is about creating a fear psychosis among the majority community that for the first time believes it has been a victim of parasitic minorities, no matter how small their numbers. It is about a One India based on Hindu nationalism that disregards, as in the North-east, the emotions of locals who have over the years reclaimed their political rights as national parties have merrily played around with demographics, encouraging immigration for votebanks, first Muslim, now Hindus. It is about upending stability that has been hard-earned in a diverse India. In that sense, the BJP has, by fomenting disunity, probably gifted a plank of unity that might just lead to a transformative and revolutionary student movement. If the mass coalescence following the Nirbhaya rape, the Dalit atrocities, the Rohith Vemula suicide and fee hikes at institutions is any indication, then the young are getting restive. If the 90s fed the drive for economic empowerment in a globalised world, then millennials are looking at value-creation of a different kind, one that keeps them connected to their identity than be submerged by the homogeneous hold of power. One that is not intellectual fadism of campus politics but can be carried into the real world, one that is not just anger against the system but about claiming it.

Perhaps this is the reason why students in Assam, unlike the anti-outsider movement of the late 1970s and early 80s, are spontaneously coming together as an amorphous force. They have demonstrated peacefully by and large through blockades, gatherings and processions. It is the police clampdown which has been harsh in comparison, both in the State and even in Delhi. The All Assam Students' Union (AASU) may be leading the protests like the old times but has been joined by university students and even farmers and tribals. And so far they have decided to stay away from politicisation by national parties, be it the BJP or the Congress. Technology and media outreach have helped mobilise support, scale up the new law as a transnational issue and has even inducted peers in the diaspora. Student movements in India today may begin local but then draw traction in the broader context. This is the reason why the JNU fee hike agitation spread to all other institutions and became a swell of anger against fee hike in the higher education system in general. The Hok Kolorab movement in Jadavpur University, against the abrasive arrogance of the VC, had a domino effect with demonstrations being staged across India, including Delhi, Mumbai, Hyderabad and Bengaluru. But in recent times, it is the Hong Kong students' protest, with human chains, night vigils and Nelson Mandela songs, whose innovation and energy have even compelled a totalitarian China to take a step back. The good part about this non-violent resistance against the regime was that it could not be demonised by the establishment but weaponised the entire world's sympathy. In the same way, the new wave of home-grown student movements could very well capture the national imagination. Once young people have freed themselves from State fear, then we may yet reap a true democratic dividend.

India calling

A record number of Indian-origin MPs were voted to the UK Parliament but not all might end up being friends of India

Fifteen of the newly-elected Members of Parliament (MPs) in Westminster will have Indian roots. And while 15 out of 650 MPs might not seem like much, this is an assertion of how influential the British Indian community has become. At least two or three MPs of the Conservative Party, which won a stunning victory, are expected to become members of the Cabinet, including Priti Patel and Rishi Sunak, the latter familiar to some Indians as Infosys-founder NR Narayana Murthy's son-in-law. There were several Indian-origin MPs from the Labour Party as well and their number included Lisa Nandy, who some are pegging as a potential candidate for leading the Labour Party following the planned resignation of the current leader, Jeremy Corbyn. While most Indian-origin MPs of the Conservative Party are generally seen as pro-India — there was a concerted effort within the Indian community to consolidate behind the Conservatives after Corbyn's statements on the Kashmir issue and his previous statements sympathetic to terrorist organisations — it is not as if Labour's Indian origin MPs are anti-India. But given Labour's extreme position on some issues, it is almost certain that its MPs will be critical of the Indian Government's stance on several issues.

This is something that the Modi regime must be prepared for as such MPs, while being the biggest advocacy group for Indian interests, could also end up being the biggest critics of policies back home. The Chennai-born US Congresswoman Pramila Jayapal has been leading attacks in the US Congress against the Modi Government. Several first and second-generation Sikh immigrants in politics, particularly in Canada, have been openly advocating the Khalistani cause. Just because someone holds an Overseas Citizen of India (OCI) card does not make them a "friend" of India. Our diplomats and policy-makers should never forget this. At the same time, the Modi Government's overt support to certain Indian organisations that are weaponising the Indian diaspora politically is a good move. For example, many of Jayapal's constituents are from the Indian community working in the Greater Seattle area's IT industry, dominated by Amazon and Microsoft. Hundreds of them have written to her criticising her stance on Kashmir, making her realise that she cannot take the community's vote for granted. We should celebrate the success of our diaspora in every field, including politics, but we must not for one second forget that they do not owe their allegiance to India and are not "Indians."

A broken justice system

Increasingly, rape cases have seen an outpouring of public anger where the demand for death has reached a high pitch. Only reforms in the police and judicial systems can help

KUSHAN MITRA

No matter what problems one may have with fairness of social media platforms like Twitter, posts here do make up for an interesting read and allow one to gauge the mood, if not of the country, definitely of the chattering class. Reactions to the rape and murder of a young veterinary doctor in Hyderabad were telling. Several Twitter users advocated not just death penalty but some even argued that the perpetrators be lynched. This kicked in a fevered discussion and even found its way into the Parliament where several MPs, across party lines, argued in favour of lynching of the rapists. Not a State-sanctioned death penalty but public lynching.

The irony, at a time when people are talking about bringing anti-lynching provisions into the law, was not lost on some. People's anger stemmed, in no small part, due to the fact that December 2019 marks seven years of the horrific gang-rape in South Delhi, where a young physiotherapist was brutally assaulted and left for dead. The perpetrators of this horrific crime, despite being convicted and given the death penalty, have successfully eluded the sentence that was handed down to them. This is death of our conscience by using every available aspect of the law to delay their execution.

But isn't this the right of every prisoner? The ability to use every possible means to prove his innocence or mitigate his sentence or even delay it, particularly when it is a matter of death? The only other major democracy that regularly executes prisoners is the US, which has several provisions in its statute books. Even the Governor of a State can issue a last-minute pardon to prisoners if appeals to the US Supreme Court fail. To deny them that would potentially mean convicting an innocent man or woman to death. In college and school debates, we have held discussions on justice delayed is justice denied but it is almost certain that a rushed judicial process is dangerous. It is gratifying that the Chief Justice of India, Sharad Arvind Bobde, realised this. While commenting on the murders of the four undertrials in the Hyderabad rape and murder case, he said, "Justice should not be revenge. I believe justice loses its character as justice if it becomes revenge."

Those — including not just liberal ideologues in the country but also Right-wing thought leaders — against death penalty have a simple argument: Who is a man to judge a crime? But how do you explain this in the Indian context, because at our core, we remain a deeply tribalistic society where the 18th and 21st centuries have had a troubled relationship. Anyone who has been 50 kilometres outside India's major metropolitan areas, particularly the national Capital, will understand this. When crimes are committed in such a brutal manner and scale, there is an expectation of punishment matching the act. India is not Norway, where a mass murderer can be allowed to live and also fight the State for human rights. No, we are India, where we have a very specific set of criminal issues. We should not pretend to be a socially developed State. Indeed, it can be argued that India's social problems will likely get worse before they get better and the country will have little choice but to execute certain citizens.

We have to, however, take every single possible precautionary measure to prevent the possibility of an innocent man/woman going to the gallows. We cannot accept even one wrongful death sanctioned by the State. That said, when it is proven beyond any iota of doubt that an accused is guilty of those "rarest of rare" cases, where State-sanction is justified, then the executive and the judiciary both should ensure that the punishment is delivered swiftly. To keep a man or a woman on death row for an indefinite time is technically, cruelty. Of course, one may not sympathise with the murderers but constant appeals bouncing around the judiciary and the Union Home Ministry for years is plainly ridiculous. If someone has been sentenced to death for a heinous crime, the death penalty should not be handed out like candy by the lower judiciary. If the sentence has been confirmed by the Supreme Court, the Home Ministry and the President should get on with their jobs.

We have had Presidents who have delayed the signing of death warrants because it went against their conscience. Fair enough, but Presidents should come out and be vocal about it instead of delaying matters until the next head of the State assumes power.

This is a peculiar Indian issue — putting off tough decisions instead of acting on them. It took a century to bring natural justice to the Ayodhya case. On top of that, the fate of the Delhi rapists is still hanging in the air. This is one major reason why there is so much pendency in courts. Forget about the failure of the bureaucracy and the executive to take decisions. Of course, there are other reasons, too, such as delay in filling judicial vacancies, which coupled with the lack of education and knowledge across the board, including that of the legal profession, has completely broken the criminal justice system in the country.

So when incidents like the Hyderabad rape case happen, there is public anger. The same sentiments run across among the local population when alleged child snatchers or cattle hustlers are lynched. We know how people get worked up over vigilantism.

Our justice system has failed us completely and needs to be revamped with meaningful implementation of processes. Increasingly, people have started taking matters into their own hands. If this isn't a sign of a banana republic, no one really knows what is. It is, therefore, imperative for the executive and the judiciary to work towards fixing this. While policing is a State subject, there needs to be a comprehensive federal re-evaluation of policing and the judiciary, just like the indirect taxation system was overhauled to the Goods and Services Tax system. But we cannot afford to bungle anymore. India needs police and judicial reforms now in sync with the severity of the emerging crime graph.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Assam's anxiety

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Spent force" (December 13). The hard-earned peace in Assam is now on a knife's edge with continuous violent protests in several parts of the State following the Citizenship (Amendment) Act (CAA), 2019, which seeks to grant citizenship to non-Muslim migrants from Bangladesh, Pakistan and Afghanistan.

The passage of the CAA is an act of betrayal by the BJP, which had promised to solve the vexed foreigners' issue once and for all in accordance with the 1985 Assam Accord. The pact stipulates that all foreigners, who came to Assam on or after March 25, 1971, shall continue to be detected, deleted from the rolls and expelled in accordance with the law.

Apprehensions and fears of the Assamese were genuine and, hence, the National Register of Citizens (NRC) was necessitated by the Supreme Court. A consensus was arrived at where it was decided that the final NRC list would be a piece of legal document for identification, deletion of names from the voters' list and

Russia will be missed on the world stage

This refers to the editorial, "Shut out Russia" (December 11). It is unfortunate that Russia has been banned for four years by the World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA) from participating in the world's major sporting events on grounds of doping non-compliance. The WADA took this decision after concluding that Moscow had planted fake evidence and got rid of files linked to positive doping tests in laboratory, data that could have aided the process of identifying drug cheats.

It must be noted that Russia has been embroiled in performance-enhancement drug scandals since a 2015 report commissioned by the WADA found evidence of mass doping among Russian athletes. Many players were sidelined over the past two Olympics and Russia was stripped of its flag altogether at last year's winter games in Pyeongchang as punishment for State-sponsored doping cover-ups at the Sochi games in 2014. One of the conditions for the reinstatement of the Russian anti-doping agency, RUSADA, had been that Moscow would provide an authentic copy of the laboratory data. However, the punishment does still leave the door open for Russian athletes, who are clean, to compete at big international events without their flag for the coming years, something they did at the Pyeongchang Olympics. There have been protests claiming that the WADA's decision is part of a broader Western attempt to hold Russia back from progressing in the international arena. How will Russia's absence affect the Tokyo Olympics and the World Cup in Qatar? If Russian athletes do not participate in the Olympics, then a lot of the tournament's sheen will disappear. After all, Russia is a sporting power to be reckoned with. The brilliant performances of its athletes often set new global standards in sports.

Temporary relief

Sir — The trade war between the US and China, which has continued for almost two years now, led to uncertainty in the way global businesses would be conducted going forward.

Investors underwent sleepless nights as they kept navigating through an environment of slowing growth and increasingly volatile markets. While US President Donald Trump slapped punitive tariffs on Chinese imports, China, too, retaliated. As a result, the global economy suffered.

With the US and China now striking a "phase one" deal to de-escalate trade war, the world can genuinely take a breath. While this is just the first step, any sign that the trade war is cooling off needs to be cheered.

Preserve nation's genetic wealth

We need to take our animal resources seriously and utilise them efficiently for economic and social uplift in rural areas

VK BAHUGUNA

India is endowed with huge genetic resources and is one of the 17 megadiversity nations of the world. Human-animal interactions date back to early civilisations and are not restricted to economic reasons. They have deeply impacted the cultural, spiritual and religious life of people. These genetic resources have played a critical role in our agrarian economy. In domesticated livestock and birds, the documented breeds are 30 of cattle, 10 of buffalo, 40 of sheep, 20 of goat, 18 of poultry, nine of camel and six of the horse.

World over, scientists have been seeking animal germplasm in their quest to utilise their genome for medicine and food, to feed growing populations and shore up the dwindling genetic base due to deforestation and climate change. There have been cases in India and Nepal when scientists from Western countries on a tourist visa were found trapping beetles.

We need to take our animal resources seriously and utilise them efficiently for economic and social uplift in rural areas. Traditionally, livestock had been the backbone of small farmers for nutrition, farm work as well as other activities. A whopping 21 million people are dependent on livestock for their livelihood and this sector contributes 4.11 per cent to the country's GDP. The share of animal products in agriculture is more than 25 per cent. Though the country is the largest producer of milk in the world, its production from indigenous cows is minimal. The world is tapping the genome of Indian cows for the healthy A2 milk as the A1 milk produced by foreign breeds like Holstein Friesian and Jersey is not very healthy because it contains Beta-Casein which causes hypertension, heart ailments and diabetes.

These foreign breeds are also prone to infections and need big investments for better milk output. In our quest to increase cow milk production in the past, we had indiscriminately used foreign breeds and neglected Indian cows. There was not much emphasis on research targeted at improving milk production from local breeds. However, countries like Brazil, Uruguay and New Zealand realised the genetic potential of Indian cows early on and have now emerged as world leaders in the production of A2 milk. The Giri cow and other Indian breeds in Brazil won the prize for the highest milk production in a 2014 contest. This germplasm was supplied by India to Brazil during the early and middle part of the last century.

Though the Indian Government has now taken steps for promotion indigenous cow breeds, the attempts are half-hearted at best and lack focus on integrated planning for the future. The Department of Animal Husbandry must focus on converting hybrid cows into fully domestic breeds in the next 15 years. India should initiate bilateral arrangements with Brazil and other countries to get the superior or high-yielding Indian cow gene pool back to improve the productivity of bovines back home. Similarly, we should have a breeding programme with South Asian countries which are home to Indian breeds. For instance, both Pakistan and India have breeding tracks for Red Sindhi, Sahiwal and Tharparkar cows and joint programmes can be launched for enhancing milk production from these breeds and their conservation. This programme should be launched for buffaloes simultaneously as they also produce A2 milk.

Thankfully, now in India, people are working towards making world-class products from cow dung and urine and exporting them. There is also a foundation that is proving that cows can be economically reared for their entire life and is working with more than 75,000 Indian cows in 25 shelters. It offered help to Uttar Pradesh and Uttarakhand but is yet to get a response from the States.

There should be a plan for economic utilisation of cows when they become unfit to yield milk. At present they are let loose and stray cattle foraging on the streets and blocking traffic are a menace apart from being a big problem for Government agencies. It is well-known that the desi cow's urine and dung have great cultural, economic and medicinal value. This has been proved by several scientific studies. The Animal Welfare Board and the Kamdhenu Commission should be assigned the task of preparing projects for this, so that cows are treated well once their productive years are over. An integrated farmer-centric decentralised programme must be initiated for all other animals like horses, ducks, camels, donkeys, goats, sheep, pigs, quail and so on, with the sole aim to energise the earning potential of farmers. This will require sufficient funds, manpower and technological upgradation through research.

Stray dogs are yet another neglected species in the country. With people preferring foreign breeds, the local dogs are left to roam the streets and scavenge. There should be a complete ban on breeding pedigree dogs and people should be encouraged to adopt strays. The management of animal wealth should get top priority if we have to bring prosperity in rural and tribal areas.

India's beti not nirbhaya

The overall utilisation of Nirbhaya Funds allocated to States till date is just 11 per cent, which is only ₹252 cr of the ₹2,264 cr sanctioned for ensuring the safety of women

RAKESH SENGER

Seven years ago today, the country witnessed an act of monstrosity, when a 23-year-old woman was gang-raped, had a rod inserted in her private parts and was left to die on the roadside in Delhi. Despite battling hard for many days, she couldn't survive, and, to honour her courage, was named Nirbhaya (fearless).

Due to the ghastliness of the crime, the citizens of the country came out on the streets demanding justice for Nirbhaya and safety for all women. Candle marches and protests were held all over and many PILs were filed. The protests showed results and the then Government introduced the Nirbhaya Fund in the Budget for the Financial Year 2013-14, for the safety and protection of women.

Circa 2019. It has been seven years but the situation remains unchanged and women continue to be unsafe in public spaces. On November 27, a 27-year-old veterinarian was gang-raped and burnt to death, her charred body recovered the next day. This was followed by reports of a nine-year-old girl being raped and strangled to death in Karnataka, the rape and murder of a six-year-old in Rajasthan, a 37-year-old being gang-raped in Odisha, the Unnao rape victim being burnt to death by the accused out on bail and another girl being threatened with the same fate by her tormentors if she testified against them. These are just a few among many more similar heinous crimes against women reported in recent days in the country. These cases led to another outcry in the nation and once again got everyone thinking about the safety of women in their families.

Questions were once again raised in the Parliament on the utilisation of the Nirbhaya Fund, following which, the Minister of Women and Child Development, Smriti Irani, presented data in the Lok Sabha on its use.

The Nirbhaya Fund was created with a corpus of ₹1,000 crore in 2013 and this was increased to ₹3,600 crore in the last six years. Of this, ₹2,264 crore, which is 63 per cent of the corpus, was allocated to various States and Union Territories (UTs), by various departments, including the Ministry of Women and Child Development, Home Affairs, Justice and Road Transport and Highways.

To understand the ways the disbursed money had been used, the Kailash Satyarthi Children's Foundation (KSCF) carried out an analysis of its utilisation by States/UTs. It revealed that despite an increase in crimes against women and children every year, the overall utilisation of Nirbhaya Funds allocated to States/UTs till date was a mere 11 per cent, which is only ₹252 crore of the ₹2,264 crore sanctioned. It was appalling to learn that none of the States/UTs could spend more than 50 per cent of the funds allotted till the financial year 2019. Shockingly, the BJP-ruled Maharashtra had failed to use a single rupee allotted to it, while Tripura and Tamil Nadu had just spent three per cent of the funds. Manipur had spent four per cent and Daman & Diu, West Bengal, Gujarat and Delhi used five per cent of the total funds allocated to them. Further, out of the 36 States/UTs for which data is available, the utilisation in 18 States/UTs has been less than 15 per cent, which is a testimony of their utter disregard towards women's safety. The analysis also revealed that States, including Telangana, Karnataka and Odisha, where the recent cases of crimes against women were reported, have spent only six per cent of the funds allocated to them. In Uttar Pradesh, where the Unnao rape victim was burnt to death, 79 per cent of the funds had remained unspent. The highest utilisation of funds, which was 50 per cent, was done by just two States, Mizoram and Uttarakhand, with just three States, Haryana, Nagaland and Chhattisgarh showing spending of more than 30 per cent of the funds allocated.

 DESPITE AN INCREASE IN CRIMES AGAINST WOMEN AND CHILDREN EVERY YEAR, IT WAS APPALLING TO LEARN THAT NONE OF THE STATES/UTS COULD SPEND MORE THAN 50 PER CENT OF THE FUNDS ALLOTTED TILL THE FINANCIAL YEAR 2019. SHOCKINGLY, MAHARASHTRA HAD FAILED TO USE A SINGLE RUPEE ALLOTTED TO IT. WHILE TRIPURA AND TAMIL NADU HAD JUST SPENT THREE PER CENT OF THE FUNDS, MANIPUR HAD SPENT FOUR PER CENT AND DAMAN & DIU, WEST BENGAL, GUJARAT AND DELHI SPENT FIVE PER CENT OF THE TOTAL FUNDS ALLOTTED TO THEM

The report shows that crimes against women and children have been on a constant rise from 2015 to 2017. The total crimes against women reported in 2015 were 329,243 which increased to 338,954 in 2016 and 359,849 in 2017. Similarly, crimes against children went up from 94,172 to 106,958 and 129,032 in 2015, 2016 and 2017, respectively. The latest annual Crime in India, 2017 report issued by the National Crime Records Bureau (NCRB) showed that in 2017, 32,559 cases of rape were reported, of which 17,382, (53 per cent) were those of minors. A review of the report from 2013 onwards shows that every year over 30,000 women and girls fall victim to the heinous crime.

The huge non-utilisation of the fund, especially set up for the protection of women, is a testimony to the complete lack of political will and utter disregard for the importance and seriousness of the issue of women's safety. The Nirbhaya Fund was created for the implementation of projects and schemes exclusively designed for providing safety and security to women in public places. Some major schemes, where the States were supposed to use the funds, included the establishment of an Emergency Response Support System, Central Victim Compensation Fund, Cyber Crime Prevention against Women and Children, One Stop Centre Scheme, Mahila Police Volunteers, and Universalisation of Women Helpline Scheme.

However, meagre spending of the fund has resulted in the sub-optimal operationalisation of these schemes, with the country failing to achieve, even partially, the objectives for which it has been created. Over the years, there have been demands for setting up special courts, appointing more women police officers, installation of CCTV cameras and street lights in every nook and corner and taking other measures to make the streets safer for the fair sex.

There is a need for strengthening the judiciary through the appointment of more judges, public prosecutors and other officials for time-bound disposal of sexual assault cases. It is imperative to train police officers to ensure timely filing of strong chargesheets against criminals with a diligent investigation to make water-tight cases, among other things.

While recently, some policy developments have taken place, including creation of special courts for speedy disposal of cases related to Protection of Children from Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act; further strengthening of the POCSO Act; launch of the fast track special courts (FTSC) scheme for expeditious disposal of cases of rape and the POCSO Act, 2019 (which calls for establishing 1,023 FTSCs), much more needs to be done.

The KSCF has also been working relentlessly for the last several years to raise awareness against these crimes, demanding that India be made a country safer for women and children. A major step taken was the launch of Bharat Yatra, a national march against sexual abuse of children in 2017 and the Rape Free India campaign before the Lok Sabha elections, earlier this year.

The recent incidents of rape and other crimes against women are a wake-up call for State Governments. There is a need for States/UTs to formulate schemes for the safety of women and girls and implement them on a war footing. They need to utilise the Nirbhaya Fund placed at their disposal, and if necessary, allocate a budget from their funds for implementation of these schemes.

The women and children of the country have remained unsafe for long. It is high time that steps are taken to make them feel secure as they go about their daily business, at home and outside.

Unions allow students to let off steam

Clandestine extremist groups have been operating on Pakistani campuses in the vacuum created by the absence of unions

NADEEM PARACHA

The 'Students Solidarity March' on November 29 seems to have ruffled some feathers. It was being thought and even hoped by some that the march would draw nothing more than the kind of negligent attention candle vigils attract. But this wasn't the case and thousands of students from assorted universities and colleges poured out in almost every major city of Pakistan, mostly demanding the restoration of student unions.

Campus unions were first banned in 1984 by the General Zia dictatorship and then restored in 1989 by the first Benazir Bhutto regime. However, they were banned again in 1993, this time by the Supreme Court.

The manner in which the current Government has reacted to the recent march suggests that a lot more happened, or was perceived to have happened, than just a handful of students marching and raising slogans. Prime Minister Imran Khan tweeted that he was in favour of restoring the student unions. But by the time the tweet was posted, his own Government was arresting certain prominent student leaders and booking them for sedition. Twitter trends such as #StudentsSolidarityMarch and #StudentsMarchExposed began to compete against each other. Some commentators on TV were hailing the march; some were cynically dismissing it as an "elitist" one-off; while others were warning that the restoration of unions would again prompt violence on campuses.

The latter is the most frequently used reason against the demand for restoring the unions. In fact, Khan, even while supporting restoration, pointed out that the unions, before they got banned in 1984, had become violent. This is the perception that has overshadowed the fact that, till the late 1970s, elected student unions were bastions of well-intentioned democratic activities.

One can claim that Khan, too, was drawing his information in this context from the negative perception associated with student politics. But I would like to share here an incident in which Khan actually faced the violence he was talking about. During the Indian cricket team's tour of Pakistan in 1982-83, the fifth Test match of the series at Karachi's National Stadium was repeatedly invaded by student activists agitating against the growing Government curbs on campus politics in Karachi. Khan was bowling and some students charged towards an Indian batsman on strike. Others ran towards the batsman on the non-striker's end who was standing with Khan. Khan pulled out a stump from the ground and threatened to use it against the charging students. However, before he could do this, cops entered the fray and chased away the students.

Indeed, campus politics, especially in Karachi and Lahore, had become increasingly violent. This was mainly due to the brutalisation of politics and society by the Zia dictatorship and the steady introduction of sophisticated weapons in the hands of the youth. These weapons began to arrive almost immediately after Pakistan agreed to fight the US' and Saudi Arabia's proxy battles against the Soviet Union and Iran. During my research in 2015, findings showed that there were just three incidents of gunfire in the country's student politics between 1951 and 1977. The first was recorded at Karachi University in 1968, in which a student was arrested for possessing a pistol but one that was never actually fired. Then a pistol was used for aerial firing during a student union election at the same university in 1974. There were no casualties. A pistol was also fired during the union elections at Lahore's Punjab University in 1975 in which a student was killed.

However, between 1981 — the year Pakistan fully joined the so-called "Afghan jihad" — and 1984, all hell broke loose and dozens of students lost their lives in gunfights between opposing student outfits — both from the Left and the Right — and between students and the police. It is thus important to comprehend under what circumstances violence became a norm in student politics.

Second, ever since student activism played a major role in the movement against the Ayub regime in the late 1960s, Governments in Pakistan start to worry when students manage to exhibit an impressive show of strength.

What gets missed in this urge to keep a lid on student politics, is the important underlying fact behind student uprisings and violence. For example, most scholars who studied the global rise and fall of student activism between the 1960s and 1970s, point out that student violence and agitation mushroomed in the 1960s when universities and colleges failed to accommodate the large influx of middle-class students in that decade.

The students' anger towards the logistical and administrative problems caused by this influx boiled over and was expressed through political action. Student activism receded when, in the 1970s, colleges and universities (in the West) managed to better accommodate the students.

The same thing happened in Pakistan in the 1960s. Pakistani universities and colleges also began to receive a large-scale influx of students. Then, in the 1990s, when most students began to join private educational institutions, politicised student unions fell out of favour. But as we are now seeing, this was a stopgap arrangement.

No one is talking about the damning 2009 and 2013 reports prepared by the British Council in Pakistan. The reports speak about a growing youth bulge in the country, with over 60 per cent of the country's population being under the age of 30.

The reports' findings warn that disillusionment among the youth would continue to grow due to political and economic instability, and this might lead many young people to adopt extreme measures.

We have already seen the growth of incidents in which educated young people have been involved in committing crimes or joining extremist organisations. The pouring out on to the streets of students on November 29 can also be explained and seen in this context.

In fact, this should actually encourage the Government to restore the unions. Because unions can once again become conduits for the students to express their aspirations and concerns in a democratic manner, rather than become despondent, cynical and desperate; or worse, join clandestine extremist groups which, ever since the late 1990s, have been surreptitiously operating on campuses in the vacuum created by the absence of student unions.

WE SHOULD ALL BE GRETA

Amid protests, clashes and expulsion of activists, the COP25 wound up recently, once again producing more promises and little political will that could save the planet for our children and generations to come. To make measures work, every one of us should be a Greta Thunberg. Every head of State or Government should be a Greta. By avoiding the use of plastic as much as possible, we can start this change from our homes.

FM to hold pre-Budget consultations with stakeholders

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Beginning the customary pre-Budget consultation exercise from Monday, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman will seek inputs from various stakeholders including industry bodies, farmer organisations and economists for revising consumption and boosting growth.

Sitharaman is likely to present her second Budget for the Modi 2.0 Government in Parliament on February 1.

Sources said the pre-Budget consultations starting Monday will last till December 23. They said the main focus of the Budget this time will be on boosting economic growth, which slowed to an over six-year low of 4.5 per cent in the second quarter of 2019-20.

As per the finance ministry, Sitharaman will meet stakeholder groups of 'New Economy: Start-ups, Fintech and Digital Sector' on Monday morning, and financial sector and capital market representatives later in the day.

Industry sources said the Government has sought their views on matters like ease of doing business, regulatory environment impacting private investment, export competitiveness, role of state (delayed payments, contract enforcement), and revival of private investment and growth, among others.

Industry sources said the Government has sought their views on matters like ease of doing business, regulatory environment impacting private investment, export competitiveness, role of state (delayed payments, contract enforcement), and revival of private investment and growth, among others

The Minister is likely to meet industry chambers on December 19.

With the government already effecting significant cut in corporate taxes, expectations are high that it would announce some relief for the salaried class by making changes in the personal income tax structure.

Industry bodies have demanded that income up to ₹5 lakh should be exempt from tax for individual taxpayers from the current ₹2.5 lakh to spur demand for goods and services. They are also demanding hiking the overall deduction limit to at least ₹3 lakh (from the current ₹1.5 lakh under Section 80C of the Income Tax Act) to boost investments and increase tax savings for individual taxpayers.

The Finance Ministry has already started the Budget preparation exercise, with different ministries and departments making expenditure projections.

The Budget will be keenly watched by market participants for numbers on key macroeconomic indicators like fiscal deficit.

Citizenship Act stir hits oil, gas output in Assam

PTI ■ GUWAHATI

Crude oil and gas production in Assam have witnessed a drastic fall due to the ongoing state-wide protest against the contentious Citizenship (Amendment) Act, affecting supply of petrol, diesel and LPG in many districts.

The two major PSU fuel producers Oil India Ltd (OIL) and Oil and Natural Gas Corporation (ONGC) on Sunday said their gas output have totally stopped, while oil production is down by over 75 per cent after protests erupted in the State. "Our gas production has completely stopped. In the crude oil segment, we were producing 9,000 tonnes per day, which came down to just 1,000 tonnes," a senior official from the OIL told PTI from its field headquarters at Dulaijan in upper Assam. The company is operating only around 50 wells out of its about 400 oil and gas producing wells, he added.

The crude supply to Digboi refinery has gone down to 800 tonnes instead of 1,800 tonnes of daily plant, while the same to Numaligarh refinery has totally stopped, he said.

"Besides, drilling of our wells has fully stopped for the last six days. Our oil collection stations have also been shut by people protesting against the amended Citizenship Act.

"We have not been able to send gas to our clients like NEEPCO, Namrup Thermal, BCPL and Assam Gas Company," the official said.

He also added that filled LPG cylinders and tankers are lying in OIL terminals as vehicle transport has come to a halt, thereby adding a risk factor to the terminals. "Keeping LPG inventory is always dangerous because of its highly flammable character," he said. On Saturday, the OIL appealed to people of the state in local papers to allow it to carry out day-to-day operations, which the firm said, have been "severely impacted".

An official of the ONGC said that its daily oil output has fallen to 1,650 tonnes from 2,200 tonnes.

"Our gas production has completely stopped. Drilling facilities have also come to a halt after the protests started. The situation is grim as our central tank can stock fuel only for 3-4 days," he added.

The PSU major Indian Oil Corporation said vehicle fuel and LPG supply in Tinsukia, Dibrugarh, Sivasagar, Golaghat and Jorhat districts in upper Assam have been severely affected. "As per our information, petrol depots in these five districts have dried up. LPG distribution is also affected as transporters are not able to send their trucks," IOC Chief General Manager (Indian Oil-AOD) Uttiya Bhattacharyya told PTI. However, he said that fuel supply in other districts of Assam and neighbouring states are not affected as the company is sending tankers with police escorts.

"The Guwahati and Bongaigaon refineries are functioning normally. All our tankers and trucks are moving under heavy police protection and we are not taking chances," Bhattacharyya said.

A Numaligarh Refinery spokesperson said that their employees could not go to the plant from the township as their vehicles were torched a few days ago. An official of the state-run power major NTPC's Bongaigaon plant said that coal from Margherita mines in Tinsukia district is not reaching the plant.

"However, our production is not affected as we also get coal from Raniganj in West Bengal," she added.

Violent protests had erupted in the city and other parts of the state earlier this week after the Citizenship (Amendment) Bill was passed in Parliament, with agitators engaging in pitched battles with the police, forcing the administration to impose curfew.

Centre likely to sell 28% stake in BEML through strategic disinvestment

PTI ■ KOLKATA

The Centre is likely to sell 28 per cent of its stake in BEML Ltd through strategic disinvestment and retain 26 per cent after the dilution of its shareholding in the public sector undertaking, a senior company official said.

The Government currently holds 54.03 per cent stake in the diversified engineering company.

The Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs in October, 2016 had given an in-principal approval for strategic disinvestment of 26 per cent equity shares in BEML Ltd.

"The Government will divest 28 per cent of its stake in the company through strategic disinvestment and there is no plan to demerge the business verticals," a senior company official told PTI.

The Centre has already "initiated preparatory work" for the disinvestment, he said.

BEML, a mining equipment maker, has diversified into manufacturing of rail coaches and defence production that already accounts for almost half of its current topline, the official said.

"There are private sector players who are into diversified engineering including defence

The Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs in October, 2016 had given an in-principal approval for strategic disinvestment of 26 per cent equity shares in BEML Ltd but the number of such large corporate is not many," he said.

The government has set an all-time high disinvestment target of ₹1.05 lakh crore, up from ₹90,000 crore projected in the Interim Budget 2019-20 in February.

In 2018-19, the Centre raised ₹84,972 crore from CPSE disinvestment, while in 2017-18, the figure was ₹1,00,056 crore.

The Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs has recently approved strategic disinvestment of its equity shares in five PSUs - BPCIL, Shipping Corporation of India, Container Corporation of India, Tehri Hydro Development Corporation and North Eastern Electric Power Corporation.

CAIT urges Govt to take action against e-commerce firms flouting FDI policy

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Traders' body CAIT on Sunday urged the government to take action against e-commerce companies flouting Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) norms and indulging in unfair practices.

Termining such firms "global economic terrorist" and "economic intruders, tax offenders and policy & law violators", the Confederation of All India Traders (CAIT) in a letter sent to Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal demanded early enforcement of e-commerce policy and national retail policy.

It also called for constituting an e-commerce ombudsman and a Retail Regulatory Authority.

CAIT also criticised the Ministry of MSME's reported move to join hands with some prominent e-commerce companies for onboarding of small retailers on their platforms.

This is highly deplorable and the traders of the country will not accept such collusion with these firms, it added.

Their business model is greatly hampering 'Make In India' program as domestic producers are unable to compete with their predatory pricing and deep discounting tactics, CAIT said.

Mobile handset import duty may be kept at 20% in Budget

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

The Government is unlikely to increase the basic customs duty on import of mobile handsets from 20 per cent in the upcoming budget, according to official sources. No proposal was under consideration to increase duty, said the sources.

The import of mobile phones (push button types) decreased to $400 million in 2018-19 from $935 million in 2017-18. Smartphone imports have also fallen from $2,602 million in 2017-18 to $1,216 million in 2018-19.

The production of mobile handsets has gone up from ₹18,900 crore (six crore units) in 2014-15 to ₹1,70,000 crore (29 crore units) in 2018-19, as per the commerce ministry figures.

Almost all foreign mobile phone makers — Vivo, Oppo, Nokia, Samsung and Xiaomi — have set up units in India and are manufacturing handsets and not just assembling.

According to Telecom Minister Ravi Shankar Prasad, Apple Inc, world's largest and most advanced telecom tech firm, has started making its latest iPhone XR in India and is also expanding operations.

In the budget 2018-19, the basic customs duty was increased from 15 per cent to 20 per cent on cellular handsets. Handset makers three years ago had suggested imposition of duties to thwart imports of electronic products, beginning from mobile phones to its components to help build local capacities to generate volumes and exports.

The government thus imposed basic customs duty of up to 15 per cent on imports of more than half a dozen components and 20 per cent duty on fully-made phones.

In the last few years, the tariff structure has been rationalised to promote domestic manufacturing of electronic goods, including cellular handsets. Specified capital goods for manufacture of mobile handsets are permitted for import at the zero duty. To promote domestic value addition in mobile handsets and their sub-assemblies/parts manufacturing, a phased manufacturing programme was notified. As a result, India rapidly started attracting investments into this sector and significant manufacturing capacities have been created during the past four years.

The Government has permitted 100 per cent FDI for manufacture of mobile handsets and their sub-assemblies/parts.

Over 14K prosecutions withdrawn under Companies Act

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Government on Sunday said more than 14,000 prosecutions have been withdrawn under the Companies Act as it undertook various steps to improve the ease of doing business in the country, including de-criminalisation of various penal provisions under this law.

Listing out the measures taken, the corporate affairs ministry said it has set up the Central Registration Centre for name reservation and incorporation of companies and LLPs within 1-2 days as opposed to an average of at least 15 days earlier.

"During the last three years more than 1,25,000 companies have been incorporated every year in the country in this manner, as compared to 50-60,000 companies in earlier years," the ministry said in a release.

Among others, the ministry has made the process transparent and non-discriminatory for dematerialisation of securities of unlisted public companies. It noted that "more than 14,000 prosecutions under the Companies Act, 2013" have been withdrawn and that second phase of de-criminalisation of penal provisions under the law has been initiated.

As part of de-criminalisation of technical and procedural violations under companies law and reducing the burden on criminal courts as well as the National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT), the government has shifted 16 offences sections to monetary penalty regime.

India has improved its ranking on the World Bank's 'Doing Business 2020' report, moving up 14 positions to the 63rd spot.

As per the latest report on the Resolving Insolvency Index, India's ranking jumped 56 places to 52nd in 2019 from 108th in 2018, the release said.

"Recovery rate increased from 26.5 per cent in 2018 to 71.6 per cent in 2019 and time taken in recovery improved from 4.3 years in 2018 to 1.6 years in 2019," it added.

Air India mulls launching Mumbai-London Stansted service

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Mumbai: Disinvestment-bound national carrier Air India is mulling launching a flight service to London Stansted from the country's financial capital, a senior airline official said. Air India currently operates a flight to Stansted from Amritsar. It also has operations to London Heathrow from Mumbai.

British Airways and Virgin Atlantic are the two other airlines flying to London from Mumbai. Air passenger traffic on Mumbai-London route has spiked 25 per cent in the last five years. It is expected to go up by 27 per cent this fiscal following the resumption of services on the route by Virgin Atlantic in October, despite the grounding of Jet Airways which used to have three daily flights to London Heathrow from the city.

"There is a need for more traffic to London region. However, due to the slot constraint issues at the London Heathrow, we are not able to add new flights on the Mumbai-London route. PTI

SBI may pay Essar lenders today as ArcelorMittal pays up

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

The State Bank of India (SBI), the lead banker of the bankrupt Essar Steel, is likely to settle dues of other lenders as it received ₹40,000 crore on Friday from ArcelorMittal, which is going to takeover the company bringing to an end to the much-prolonged resolution process.

The SBI may settle the dues of all the other lenders on Monday.

The development followed the tabling of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (Second Amendment) Bill, 2019, in the Lok Sabha on Thursday, which also provides for protection of buyers from criminal proceedings against previous promoters of the bankrupt firm.

ArcelorMittal had kept the promised ₹42,000 crore in an escrow account, but didn't release it immediately after the Supreme Court's order in the case last month, as the company wanted immunity for Essar Steel's assets from probe against its previous promoters.

The SBI had the largest exposure to Essar Steel of over ₹13,000 crore, while the amount approved by the committee of creditors (CoC) stood at ₹12,161 crore. The other lenders of Essar Steel included IDBI Bank, Canara Bank and Punjab National Bank.

Both ArcelorMittal and SBI, however, are yet to respond to questions sent by FIANS.

As per the resolution proposal, banks would recover over 90 per cent of their claims against Essar Steel, amounting to over ₹40,000 crore. The operational creditors would initially get ₹196 crore, and another ₹1,000 crore later, allowed by the CoC, taking the total repayment to ₹1,196 crore.

The resolution of Essar Steel can be marked as a landmark in the 3-year-old Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (IBC). A major roadblock in the resolution was removed by the Supreme Court on November 15 as it set aside the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal's (NCLAT) ruling that provided for equal distribution of proceeds between financial and operational creditors.

The Essar case, which was among the first 12 cases to be referred by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) for resolution, faced several hurdles as its promoter Prashant Ruia also tried to bid for the company and moved the appellate tribunal for rejection of the ArcelorMittal's ₹42,000 crore bid.

Positive momentum in market to continue post US-China trade deal, say analysts

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Equity markets are expected to sustain their positive momentum this week after the US and China reached their much-awaited trade deal, analysts said. The US-China trade truce and Boris Johnson's win in the UK general elections drove global markets higher late last week. The US and China have suspended additional tariffs on each other's goods after reaching a 'phase one' trade deal after prolonged negotiations.

"The recent developments on the global front have subsided the fear of prolonged crisis and that cheered the participants across the world markets including ours. And, we feel the positive momentum to extend further in the coming week too," said Ajit Mishra, VP-Research, Religare Broking.

The current market momentum can sustain this week as well, provided there is more clarity on the US-China trade settlement, said Siddhartha Khemka, Head - Retail Research, Motilal Oswal Financial Services.

China suspends planned tariffs on US goods

AFP ■ BEIJING

Beijing suspended additional tariffs on US products that had been due to kick in on Sunday, after Washington and Beijing announced a major thaw in their trade war Friday.

China will suspend the planned addition of 10 percent and 5 per cent tariffs on some US imports, and "continue to suspend additional tariffs on US-made autos and spare parts", China's finance ministry announced Sunday.

The move follows US President Trump's cancellation of new tariffs on Chinese products as part of a "phase one" trade deal.

China's commerce ministry said on Friday it had agreed with the US a mini-deal that includes a progressive rollback of tariffs and the protection of intellectual property rights.

The two sides have yet to sign the agreement, which represents a major breakthrough in the 21-month standoff between the world's two largest economies.

Housing sales may rise marginally by 4% in 2019: Report

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Housing sales are estimated to rise by mere 4 per cent to 2.58 lakh units across seven major cities during this calendar year on subdued demand because of liquidity crunch and overall economic slowdown, according to property brokerage firm Anarock.

"Indian real estate was devoid of any appreciable forward momentum in 2019. Dwindling consumption, lacklustre investment appetite and the global slowdown overshadowed all possibilities for growth," Anarock Property Consultants Chairman Anuj Puri said. India's GDP growth rate slumped to a six-year low of 4.5 per cent in Q2 FY20.

In its yearly round-up for the real estate sector, Anarock said that collectively, all four quarters of 2019 are likely to see housing sales of 2,58,410 units (assuming 56,200 units in Q4 2019) as against 2,48,300 units sold in entire 2018.

Sales were better in the first half of this year but demand fell in the third quarter. Anarock tracks seven major cities — Mumbai Metropolitan Region (MMR), National Capital Region (NCR), Bengaluru, Pune, Hyderabad, Chennai and Kolkata.

First-time homebuyers were given further tax deductions (now amounting to ₹3.5 lakh in a year) on interest amount of home loans below ₹45 lakh availed within FY 2020-end

"The real estate sector's performance — a reliable barometer of India's overall economic health — painfully reflected the macro-economic state of affairs. The liquidity crisis did not relent and dented any 'real' growth during the year," Puri said.

"Multiple developers fell off the grid while others still struggle to stay viable. However, strong players with healthy balance sheets — in many cases diversified beyond real estate — sailed through 2019 and recorded decent housing sales and revenue growth," he added.

For the housing sector, 2019 was a non-event in terms of sales growth and investor interest.

"Sentiments remained subdued, sustaining almost solely on end-user activity focused on ready-to-move-in or almost-complete homes. Branded developers gained ground, with some listed players performing exceptionally well on sales and commensurate revenue growth," he said.

For the housing sector, Puri said the only light at the end of the dark financial tunnel was the announcement of the alternative investment fund (AIF) of ₹25,000 crore to facilitate the completion of stuck affordable and mid-segment homes.

In fact, affordable housing remained upbeat in 2019 thanks to multiple government sops throughout the year.

First-time homebuyers were given further tax deductions (now amounting to ₹3.5 lakh in a year) on interest amount of home loans below ₹45 lakh availed within FY 2020-end.

Luxury and ultra-luxury segments remained limited to end-user interest, with no serious investor activity.

Co-living and student housing gained momentum during the year.

In the organised housing brokerage business, Noida-based Investors Clinic, Anarock, News Corp-backed PropTiger, Anil Ambani-led Reliance group-backed Square Yards, Quikr Realty, Gurugram-based 360 Realtors and Wealth Clinic are the leading players.

HONG KONG VIOLENCE BREAKS OUT AGAIN

Many turn out in support of police

AP ■ HONG KONG

Several thousand people, some making heart signs with their hands, turned out in Hong Kong on Sunday in an unusual display of support for the police force, even as riot officers clashed elsewhere with protesters and pepper-sprayed a crowd.

Competing rallies on Hong Kong Island and wildcat protest actions, including vandalism, by black-clad youths at shopping malls dramatically exposed the deep gulf between pro- and anti-establishment camps carved out by six months of demonstrations that have shaken and split the semi-autonomous Chinese territory.

Truncheon-wielding riot officers fanned out at a shopping mall where demonstrators spray-painted protest slogans on the polished stone floor and smashed glass panels.

Watched by shoppers, officers pepper-sprayed bystanders and made several arrests, pinning detainees to the floor and marching them away.

Roaming groups of youths in black popped up at other shopping malls, too, shouting slogans.

At one mall, a small group adapted a Christmas carol into a protest song and a woman played "Glory to Hong Kong," a protest anthem, on a harmonica.

The scene was completely different at a waterfront park on Hong Kong Island, where a large crowd showered love on the 30,000-strong police force, broadly criticised as heavy-handed by the protest movement.

The rally echoed the Hong Kong government's view that protesters have become unacceptably violent.

Pro-police demonstrators described protesters as rioters and terrorists and police officers as gallant heroes. They directed thumbs-up signs and shouted words of thanks at officers who policed the sidelines of the rally.

One woman yelled that they looked handsome in uniform.

"I'm not against the protesters. It's OK for them to speak, but in a peaceful way," said Max Cheng, an IT worker who took part.

When mass anti-government demonstrations first erupted in June against a proposed extradition law, Cheng said she was among the hundreds of thousands who marched.

But she said she later felt repulsed by violence that increasingly accompanied protests. She said she didn't demonstrate again until Sunday, when she came out to support police, who have shot 26,000 tear-gas and rubber-baton rounds and arrested more than 6,000 people during the six months of snowballing protests.

"It has just gone too far," she said. "People are too upset, too divided and very emotional."

Man 'missing' after crossing China bridge checkpoint

AFP ■ HONG KONG

Hong Kong's immigration department said on Sunday they have received reports a man went missing on a cross-border mega bridge to the gambling hub of Macau that currently hosts a Chinese mainland police checkpoint.

The disappearance first emerged on Saturday when the man's son told local media his father had texted to say he was being detained while passing through an artificial island manned by Chinese police on his way to the semi-autonomous city of Macau. The man, surnamed Chan, was travelling by bus on Friday afternoon along the bridge and tunnel network linking Hong Kong, Macau and mainland city Zhuhai, his son said.

Johnson vows to repay trust of opposition voters

AFP ■ LONDON

Prime Minister Boris Johnson vowed Saturday to repay the trust of former opposition voters who gave his Conservatives a mandate to take Britain out of the European Union next month.

Johnson toured a leftist bastion once represented by former Labour leader Tony Blair in a bid to show his intent to unite the country after years of divisions over Brexit. The northeastern region fell to the Tories in a general election Thursday that turned into a re-run of the 2016 EU membership referendum in which Johnson championed the Brexit cause.

Johnson told cheering campaigners that he understood how difficult it was for traditional Labour voters to switch sides and back his right-wing government.

"I can imagine people's pencils hovering over the ballot paper and wavering before coming down for us and the Conservatives," he said.

"And I want the people of the northeast to know that we in the Conservative party -- and I -- will repay your trust."

The working class north of England dropped its longstanding support for Labour and relegated the century-old party to its worst finish since before World War II.

Johnson now commands an 80-vote majority in the 650-seat House of Commons -- a margin last enjoyed by the late Tory icon Margaret Thatcher in the 1980s.

The lead assures Johnson safe passage of his divorce deal with the European Union when he re-submits it to parliament next week.

This would pave the way for Britain's formal withdrawal from the other 27 EU nations by the January 31 deadline set by Brussels.

The sides would then set off on the tricky task of trying to reach a brand new comprehensive trade agreement by the end of 2020. Failure to meet that deadline -- which Johnson has repeatedly promised not to extend -- would have unknown repercussions for global markets and economic growth.

PM Boris celebrates election win with spicy chicken curry

IANAS ■ LONDON

Following his landslide victory in the December 12 general election, UK Prime Minister Boris Johnson celebrated his win by tucking into a spicy chicken curry made by his girlfriend Carrie Symonds, accompanied by a glass of wine, it was reported on Sunday.

In the December 12 election, Johnson gained a Commons majority of 80, his ruling Conservative Party's largest since 1987, and in contrast, the opposition Labour suffered its worst election result since the 1930s.

On Friday night, Symonds cooked the spicy dish for an elated Johnson in no.11 Downing Street. The Sun newspaper reported. "Boris was exhausted but elated on Friday night - and Carrie treated him by cooking him his favourite chicken curry, nice and spicy the way he likes it," a source said.

This was also the first time he drank alcohol since the election campaign began at the beginning of November.

Longest UN climate talks end with no deal on carbon markets

PTI ■ MADRID

The longest UN climate talks held here ended on Sunday with no deal on carbon markets as sleep-deprived delegates from almost 200 countries, after two weeks of marathon negotiations, failed to come up with more ambitious targets to cut greenhouse gas emissions to fulfil the terms of the 2015 Paris agreement.

The negotiations which extended till Sunday saw no agreement on major issues such as Article 6, loss and damage, and long term finance.

Despite clear warnings from scientists through 2019, record levels of protests and severe climate impacts, the COP25 talks held between December 2 and 13 saw major differences between countries that are proving hard to resolve.

According to experts, few countries came to this year's talks with updated plans to reach the Paris goals.

The observers blamed G20 countries for the poor outcome.

Leading economies were faulted for their complacency and their failure to deliver more support to vulnerable nations in the face of brutal impacts and push for a tougher collective response in 2020 when new climate plans are mandated under the Paris agreement.

The EU tried to play its role as bridge-builder between developing and developed countries. However, it will take a major diplomatic push and bigger leadership alliance to deliver substantial outcomes at COP26 in Glasgow next year.

COP25's final decision text "re-emphasises with serious concern the urgent need to address the significant gap between the aggregate effect of parties' mitigation efforts in terms of global annual emissions of greenhouse gases by 2020," according to the final draft.

It also "stresses the urgency of enhanced ambition in order to ensure the highest possible mitigation and adaptation efforts by all parties".

Negotiators failed to reach an outcome on carbon markets. In the final hours of negotiations, over 30 governments joined behind the San Jose Principles in an effort to preserve the integrity of carbon market rules and prevent loopholes and the ability for double-counting carbon credits, it said.

14 killed, 18 injured after bus veers off road in Nepal

PTI ■ KATHMANDU

A passenger bus veered off the road and fell some 100 metres along the Araniko Highway in Nepal's Sindhupalchok on Sunday, killing at least 14 people and injuring 18 others.

The bus was heading towards Bhaktapur from Kalinchok in Dolakha district when it skidded off the highway and plunged down from Chha Kilo area, police said.

Three children and 11 adults were killed in the accident, the Kathmandu Post reported, quoting police. "Of them, 12 people died on the spot," police said.

Home food in Iraqi square brings protesters together

AP ■ BAGHDAD

In Baghdad's Tahrir Square, there are the anti-government protesters demonstrating for a better future for Iraq, and there are the volunteers who feed them.

From stuffed lamb and fish, to the giant pots of soups and rice, to the plates of lentils and other beans, there is no shortage of food to go around. Volunteers from the capital and southern provinces cook traditional dishes that reflect the country's rich cuisine and bring protesters together.

Tahrir Square has been the focal point for the protests that have continued to roil Iraq since October 1.

The spontaneous, leaderless demonstrations were organized on social media over longstanding grievances including Government corruption, unemployment and a lack of basic services. For many, the square in central Baghdad has become a miniature model for the kind of state they dream of, where factional and sectarian politics play no part and public services exist.

Services, including the near-constant supply of food, have been integral to keeping people in the square, but volunteers are eyeing a gradual drop in donations with concern.

Iraqis are used to communal meals and many volunteer food. Every year, during the annual Shiite religious commemoration known as Arbabeen, volunteers prepare food for pilgrims making their way to their sect's holy shrines in the city of Karbala.

Shortly after the protests started Oct. 1, volunteers began setting up similar tents to cook and distribute traditional Iraqi dishes for the protesters in and around Tahrir Square.

"We make it for the hungry people, and people in need here in Tahrir Square," said a woman who gave her name as Um Ammar, which means "Ammar's mother."

She is from the southern province of Missan and was cooking Seyah, a thick mixture of rice flour and water fried on a hot plate. Other popular dishes are lentils and beans; Tepsy, a traditional Iraqi casserole; Dolma, consisting of stuffed cabbage and grape leaves, onions and aubergines cooked in tomato sauce; and Makhlama, a mixture of potato, tomatoes, onion and egg all fried together and put in bread. It is a favorite breakfast for people in Baghdad.

Boko Haram kill 19 Nigeria herders in clashes: Sources

AFP ■ KANO

Boko Haram jihadists gunned down 19 cattle herders Saturday in northeast Nigeria, civilian militia sources and residents told AFP on Sunday.

Ethnic Fulani herders, besieged by a spate of armed attacks targeting their cattle, pursued Boko Haram, sparking a fierce gunfight outside Fuhe village, near Ngala close to the border with Cameroon.

"The insurgents killed 19 of the herders in the fight," anti-jihadist militia leader Umar Kachalla told AFP.

Bodies of the slain herders were brought to the police by

The herders had earlier repelled an attack by Boko Haram fighters who invaded the village to steal livestock, killing one of the militants, Mada said.

The herders then decided to pursue the jihadists and fight them "once and for all", Mada said, but were overwhelmed.

"The herders were subdued by the better armed Boko Haram gunmen," he said.

Jihadists then returned to Fuhe village and burnt homes and food supplies while herds fled, according to Ngala resident Abubakar Yusuf, who saw the dead bodies at the police station.

Tens of thousands evacuated in Italy as WWII bomb defused

AFP ■ ROME

Around 54,000 people were evacuated from the southern Italian city of Brindisi on Sunday as experts worked to defuse a World War II bomb, in the largest operation of its kind in the country, media said.

The British bomb, one-metre (three-feet) long and weighing 200 kilogrammes (440-pounds), was found on November 2 during work on a cinema.

The device was damaged by the workers' equipment, making the operation more tricky.

All residents within a 1.5-kilometre radius were evacuated, and gas supplies were cut in homes within 500 metres of the site.

Some air traffic and rail services were also suspended.

Singapore targets Opposition party with misinformation law

AFP ■ SINGAPORE

Singapore has ordered an opposition party to correct online posts under a controversial law against misinformation, the first time the legislation has been used against a rival party, ahead of elections expected within months.

The Singapore Democratic Party (SDP), one of a host of small opposition parties in the city-state, was ordered to correct two Facebook posts and an article on its website related to employment issues, authorities said in a press release on Saturday.

The Facebook posts claimed that many Singaporeans had been displaced from white-collar jobs by foreign employees, which the authorities said was false.

"These false and misleading statements by the SDP have a singular objective -- to stoke fear and anxiety among local PMETs (Professionals, Managers, Executives and Technicians). It is important to set the facts straight so that Singaporeans are not misled," the government said on its fact-checking site.

Authorities used the measure twice last month, ordering Facebook to put a correction by a post for the first time, and telling an opposition party member to correct a message.

According to the SDP, Google also cited the new regulation, which prohibits adverts seeking to influence public opinion, when it announced a ban on political ads in Singapore this month.

Military probes possible 'white power' hand signs at Army-Navy game

Washington: US military officials said they are investigating an incident where Army and Navy students used hand signs that can signal white power during a television broadcast.

The symbol was shown by two West Point cadets and a Naval Academy midshipman during festivities televised live by ESPN Saturday before a football game in Philadelphia between the Army and Navy. The gesture resembles the "okay" sign, with the thumb and forefinger touching to form a circle and the remaining three fingers splayed, pointing upwards. It has only recently become a white supremacist symbol, and was adopted partly because of its ambiguity, according to the Anti-Defamation League. AFP

Iran says it's defused 2nd cyberattack in less than a week

AP ■ TEHRAN

Iran's telecommunications minister announced on Sunday that the country has defused a second cyberattack in less than a week, this time "aimed at spying on government intelligence."

Mohammad Javad Azari Jahromi said in a short Twitter post that the alleged attack was "identified and defused by a cybersecurity shield," and that the "spying servers were identified and the hackers were also tracked." He did not elaborate.

Last Wednesday, Jahromi told the official IRNA news agency that a "massive" and "governmental" cyberattack also targeted Iran's electronic infrastructure. He provided no specifics on the purported attack except to say it was also defused and that a report would be released.

On Tuesday, the minister dismissed reports of hacking operations targeting Iranian banks, including local media reports that accounts of millions of customers of Iranian banks were hacked.

This is not the first time Iran says it has defused a cyberattack, though it has disconnected much of its infrastructure from the internet after the Stuxnet computer virus, widely believed to be a joint US-Israeli creation, disrupted thousands of Iranian centrifuges in the country's nuclear sites in the late 2000s.

Tokyo's new stadium: A masterpiece by Japan's Kengo Kuma

AP ■ TOKYO

Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe spoke at Sunday's official completion of the new national stadium, the venue for the opening and closing ceremony of next year's Tokyo Olympics.

It will also host track and field and some soccer.

He could have spoken for anyone who has been inside the creation of Japanese architect Kengo Kuma, whose venue is sure to be up for many design prizes.

"It blends with its surrounding and the natural environment," Abe said, noting it showcased Japan's ties to nature with its use of wood lattice work around the stadium's rim and roof, and earth-tone colours in the seats that are randomly coloured brown, gray, two shades of green and white.

Tokyo Governor Yuriko Koike pointed out the other strong feature as she spoke.

"This stadium uses a lot of trees in its structure," she said, speaking of the greenery that is everywhere -- from flower planters, to trees and shrubs.

Although Tokyo is dense urban, it is also dotted with many parks and green areas. The stadium works off that theme, making sure it is functional and linked to nature.

A walkway on the fifth level is called the "Grove of the Sky."

It's about 30 meters (100 feet) above street level and runs 850 meters (1/2 mile) around the entire circumference of the stadium. It's lined with benches, flowers and trees.

A stroll offers a breathtaking view of Tokyo, and on a clear day Mt. Fuji is visible to the west.

Makoto Sato, a spokesman for the Japan Sport Council, a national government body that built the venue, said the walkway will be open to the public on days when there are no events after the Olympics.

"We have tried to emphasize all four seasons and people can use it around the year and enjoy it," he said.

The stadium seating rises in a steep gradient from the field level and the nine-lane track, getting steeper the higher it goes.

The colours of the seats also get lighter the higher you go with more brown seats near the bottom -- the earth -- and more green, gray and white near the top.

"Because of the gradient, it creates an atmosphere where people can feel close," said Takeo Takahashi, another Japan Sport Council spokesman.

The stadium is sure to be the centerpiece of the 2020 Olympics, built at a cost of 156.9 billion yen, about USD 1.43 billion at the present exchange rate.

The capacity for the Olympics will be 68,000 and can be expanded later to 80,000. Tokyo's 1964 Olympics left behind several architectural jewels, the most famous of which was Kenzo Tange's Yoyogi National Stadium.

It was the swimming venue in '64 -- American swimmer Don Schollander won four gold medals there -- and will host handball this time, and badminton and wheelchair rugby at the Paralympics.

The new stadium also features items from the old nation-

The most prominent are two mosaic-tile murals featuring the Greek goddess Nike and Nomino Sukune, a legendary sumo wrestler. They are located at the Aoyama Gate entrance.

The venue will be open to the general public on December 21, which will also feature a visit by eight-time Olympic gold medalist Usain Bolt. The first real event will be January 1, 2020 with the Emperor's Cup, the championship of the Japan football league. Governor Koike noted that the Olympics open in just over seven months -- July 24, 2020.

"I can already envision the scene where the athletes are sprinting on this field and spectators are cheering for them in this stadium," she said.

Teaching at a Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC) school has always filled me with a sense of purpose, joy and accomplishment. With every transfer, the experience of mentoring a new set of students has thrown up rich learnings. My stint at Subhash Nagar BMC School in Mumbai's Chembur suburb was no different. If there were challenges, then there were good times too.

I can still recall the day I took charge of the seventh graders as their class teacher. It was a bright bunch, and I was informed that they all came from impoverished homes. While the majority was from the nearby Anand Nagar slum, a few lived in the crowded basti across the railway line. Their parents were rag-pickers and usually set out for work before dawn to ensure they were in time to pick up the 'valuable' trash before their 'competitors' get to it. They came back well past noon, only to queue up at the trash dealer's house to earn their daily wage. Left behind to fend for themselves and their siblings, the children doubled up as household help, baby-sitters and chipped in whenever their parents needed them. Most were either too distracted or extremely exhausted to pay attention in class. There was a general sense of indifference towards education. Their parents, unfortunately, just didn't have the time or energy to pay attention to them or to their future for there were more immediate existential challenges that they faced.

But, with over 28 years of teaching experience, I was prepared to engage with my students. During the roll call, I chatted with them as they introduced themselves. Around 10 students were absent that day. Apart from three girls who were visiting their native place and were supposed to be back in school in two or three days, there were six boys, namely, Amol, Krushna, Amit, Pandhari, Prakash and Kishan, who missed the class.

Things quickly fell into a routine and the girls came back as expected. However, the boys continued skipping school. Every day, I thought they would come, only to be disappointed. I felt sad while marking them absent. When a week went by and the six didn't turn up, I decided to visit them in Anand Nagar. As I reached the slum and asked for Amol and Krushna, I was directed towards a gym in a narrow lane. They were surprised to see me but quickly assured me that they would show up in school the next day. They even apologised for not coming earlier. We had a warm interaction and I treated them to vada pav.

I went back home peacefully. I thought, perhaps, home visits were the answer to bringing in the absentees. But I was wrong. They didn't show up and I felt let down. I discussed their absence with my class and that's when I got to know their story. "They are part of Banjo Party (musical group). They are called for events and festivals like Dahi Handi on Gokulashanti, Navaratri and birthday parties in the basti. They are also called for playing dhol," said their friends from Anand Nagar. I learnt that each one earned ₹300 per event, although sometimes they were not paid the entire amount. "They earn and have a good time. Why would they attend the school?" my informants exclaimed.

What did they mean by 'good time', I asked. "Don't tell them that we have told you all this but they smoke, drink and..." they said and started giggling. I was taken aback. My children are into all this? Yes, I considered them 'my children.' They were kids, who had been forced into child labour, they had taken to substance abuse, they were truanting from school and they have a troubled life. They had been deprived of a childhood and parental care. Clearly, they were not afraid to work hard but their circumstances had denied them the chance to shape their life through education. They were carrying the cross of their life on their young shoulders.

But how could I reach out to them, earn their trust and let them know that I cared? These questions troubled me constantly. If I could just get them to come to school, I was sure I could teach them many things. The empty benches scoffed at me. I was being defeated daily. I realised that these boys needed vocational training more than bookish knowledge. So I came up with a plan to make sure that they got both. I gathered some students and went to meet them again. "How about forming a Banjo Party of your own?" I suggested to Amol, Krushna and company. "But how is it possible?" asked Krushna. "You work for someone else and you don't even pay you enough. They avail all the benefits and you get hardly anything in return," I said. "Yes ma'am, but how can we go about it? We don't have enough money to buy musical instruments," he said.

"Let's discuss this in class tomorrow. We will work out a plan," I told them. Amol, Krushna and others were elated and made sure that all six came to school before the first call for morning prayers. "Ms Naik, your 'heroes' have showed up," remarked the other teachers. I felt a sense of satisfaction when I marked 'P' (present) against their names.

The whole class was eager to discuss the formation of the Banjo Party. After the prayer, we returned to the class. The boys started off animatedly, "Ma'am, we will have to purchase instruments from Parel and Lalbaug (South Mumbai localities). We have prepared a list of the things we require — instruments like small and big *dhol*s, dholki, sticks, khanjira, and also t-shirts and trousers. We've already prepared the budget." The boys were excellent at calculations, I discovered. "We need around ₹6,000," they announced and added, "But we don't have the cash. Making a list is okay but one needs money at the end."

I said, "Don't worry, I will give you the money. You can repay me in instalments. But I have one condition — you have to attend school every day." They agreed readily. The next day, I gave them the start-up money and a day later, they bought the instruments. The group proudly showed off their talent after class while their classmates danced to their tunes.

The boys not only started attending school regularly, they also practised music under a banyan tree near the local railway station. Many of their classmates visited them. I, too, dropped by a few times. As their peers and elders encouraged them, their confidence and self-esteem grew. The 'P' against their names in the roll call shone.

A few days later, the school had been shut for 10 days for Ganesh Chaturthi. When the school reopened, I came back to find a packet of money, a box of sweets and flowers on the table. The beaming Banjo Party greeted me. "You don't have to pay me back so soon. Have you received proper payment?" I inquired.

"Ma'am, during the Ganapati festival, we were invited to play on all 10 days. In fact, we played during the procession on the first day when the Ganapati idol was placed. That honour is normally reserved for a well-known musical party. We have made so much money that even after paying you, each one of us has ₹3,000 left. Additionally, we have kept aside ₹2,000 in the group's joint kitty," they shared with delight.

The boys had brought kilos of peda, which were more than enough for the class of 29. Instead of distributing more than one peda each, I requested them to cut them into quarters and distribute them to the entire school. "While doing so, please tell them that we are talented businessmen but we are studying, too," I said.

That was one of my most rewarding days in the school. My small experiment had changed the lives of these amazing, gifted boys. From being labelled as 'absentees', 'ruffians' and 'child labourers', they had transformed themselves into shining examples of hard work and enterprise. What's more, they started attending the school regularly.

Time to bridge the age gap

Youth should be seen as an effective instrument of social change rather than of conflict, says RAJYOGI BRAHMAKUMAR NIKUNJ JI

Most of us are aware about the 'generation gap', which can be defined as "wide difference in cultural norms between the younger generation and their elders." It can also be described as a situation where the older and younger generation have conflicting views because of a difference in experiences, opinions, habits and behaviour. Though the generation gap is not seen as a serious issue but it often becomes one.

It is a known fact that the youth are filled with energy, stamina, strong will and zest. But certain other valuable characteristics of youth, which can be great tools for social transformation are not fully realised or utilised by the society, as a result of which they get confused and disturbed. One such important personality trait of the youngsters is that they strongly aspire to do something new.

They want to initiate change and are open to new challenges. Hence it is easier for them to adapt to any kind of change as compared to the older generation. The latter is undoubtedly more experienced but most of their ideas have already been applied to real-life situations and they may not have new concepts and enthusiasm to work for a change. So the old order has to transform, giving place to the newer generation who will play an active role in social evolution.

It has, therefore, rightly been said that if the youth are awakened, the whole world will follow their lead including the generations that follow their example. They will prepare themselves mentally and physically for the dawn of new era. But have the youth's potential been utilised for national reconstruction so far? Is it given the opportunities and the guidance to fulfill their dreams of taking the world into a new era of peace and prosperity? Well, with reference to our country we can say that the youth is restless and disappointed because it is not provided enough channels for self expression. Today the youth complains about the society and people in power. It believes that its energies, both mental and physical, are not fully utilised for national development because the older generation denies the young adequate participation, thinking that they are inexperienced and immature. On one hand, the youth says that the "experience" and "maturity" of elders is, in fact, a hindrance in breaking new ground. The need of the hour is to bring forth new initiatives, ideas and innovation. On the other hand, elders feel that the youth is indifferent to their spiritual heritage which is responsible for the crisis of morals and values. This, in turn, has created an ever-widening emotional gap and an atmosphere of violence in the society.

An impartial analysis of the present Indian conditions would lead us to the conclusion that, to some extent, both sides are right. The more relevant question here is: How can this gap be bridged? Who will work as the link between the two generations? Who will catalyse this change?

Everyone would agree that, to bridge this ever-widening gap between the two generations, the formal and informal educational centres and institutions should inculcate higher principles and ideals among the youth. The institutions should provide a new interpretation of society where there is no violence and everyone lives peacefully in the family of mankind. These educational centres should have people of noble character, pleasing manners and loving demeanour who can utilise the youth's potential and also enable the older generation to contribute in nation building. Unless the youth is given this new vision and co-operation to work towards this goal, the society will remain split by various divisive forces and acts of violence. And the youth will continue to be exploited by various sections of the society for their parochial ends and narrow objectives.

We are aware of the fact that the population of the young is higher than the middle-aged and the elderly. So they should be seen as effective instruments of social change. Otherwise they will drift towards violence and drug abuse which will result in a dark future for our society. Let us, therefore, be wiser to consider our youth to be our strength and prospective nation-builders, for, "the youth is not only the leaders of tomorrow but also the partners of today."

BLOSSOM ALL THE WAY

Now is the time to ensure that your garden is a riot of colour even before spring sets in Daffodils sitting on a windowsill against a backdrop of white snow make a fragrant and pretty midwinter scene. This picture, with bulbs "forced" for early bloom, takes planning that should start now. Choose plump, fresh-looking bulbs from those now on display at garden centres, hardware stores and supermarkets.

PREP THE BULBS

Unless you buy pre-planted bulbs in pots, you have the choice of growing them in water, pebbles or soil. For growing in water, use special bulb glasses pinched in with a neck to support a single bulb with its base in the water or support them in a drinking glass with three toothpicks stuck around its side.

Growing bulbs in pebbles is just like growing them in water except the pebbles support them (and you don't get entertained watching the roots grow).

In a flowerpot, plant bulbs shoulder to shoulder in potting soil with their tops level with the soil surface. Once planted, they are ready for the first of four stages of forcing.

FOUR STAGES OF GROWTH

The first stage awakens the flower buds buried within the bulbs and allows for some root growth. Cool temperatures — about eight weeks' worth — are needed to fool the flower buds into feeling that winter is over and it's time to wake up. Provide those temperatures by plunging the containers into holes outdoors, then mulching with leaves or straw, or by putting containers into an unheated garage or room. No light is needed at this point.

Cold can keep bulbs waiting in Stage One until you are ready to move on. The goal in Stage Two is to slowly draw out the stems, and the way to do this is with a little warmth and a little light. The amount of light that peeks through the drainage hole of a flower pot or a paper cone inverted over your bulb container is about right. After a couple of weeks, depending on the temperature, the bulbs are ready for Stage Three.

In this third stage, we hasten growth along with the warmer temperatures and bright light of a sunny windowsill. A daily turn of the plants toward the light prevents lopsided growth. Be careful not to coax growth along so rapidly that the blossoms blast open and fall apart. Step Four: beautiful, fragrant blossoms. We want to drag this step out the longest, so keep the bulbs where the light is bright but out of direct sun. If the indoor temperature can be maintained on the cool side, and the air humid, these harbingers of spring provide delight for two weeks or more.

FLOWERS ALL WINTER

With good planning, you can have new pots full of blooms ready to open and waiting in the wings as old blooms fade. Or you could have mixtures of different bulbs, blooming at different times, filling each pot.

Any spring-flowering bulb can be forced indoors, although some are easier than others. Easiest of all are paper-white daffodils. Native to year-round warm climates, they start growth and flower without any cool treatment at all, so they're also the first to bloom.

BRAIN PROTEIN PROTECTS FROM ALZHEIMER'S

Researchers have found that a protein that regulates white blood cells in the human brain could protect against Alzheimer's disease. The results published in the journal Communications Biology suggest that this protein, called CD33, could have important implications in the fight against Alzheimer's disease.

"Immune cells in the brain, called microglia, play a critical role in Alzheimer's disease. They can be harmful or protective. Swaying microglia from a harmful to protective state could be the key to treating the disease," explained study co-author Matthew Macauley, Assistant Professor at University of Alberta in Edmonton, Canada.

"The fact that CD33 is found on microglia suggests that immune cells can protect the brain from Alzheimer's disease under the right circumstances," said Abhishek Bhattacharjee, first author and postdoctoral fellow in the Macauley lab.

PRESCRIPTION OF ANTIBIOTICS HIGH IN LMICs

Kids in low and middle-income countries (LMICs) are receiving an excessive amount of antibiotic prescriptions that could harm the children's ability to fight pathogens as well as increase antibiotic resistance worldwide, warns a new study.

Children in these countries received 25 antibiotic prescriptions through age five, a "remarkable" estimate, given that two antibiotic prescriptions per year is considered excessive in many high-income settings, said the study published in the journal The Lancet Infectious Diseases.

"We knew children in LMICs are sick more often, and we knew antibiotic prescription rates are high in many countries. What we did not know was how these elements translate into actual antibiotic exposure and the results are rather alarming," said lead author of the study Gunther Fink from Swiss Tropical and Public Health Institute (Swiss TPH), Basel, Switzerland.

WHY CASUAL DRINKERS TURN INTO ALCOHOLICS

Don't just blame it on his friends if your husband has suddenly started drinking more in recent times. Scientists have found neurons that might be responsible for triggering sudden uptick in alcohol consumption.

Researchers have long known that central nucleus of the amygdala in brain (CeA) plays a role in behaviours related to alcohol. A team at University of North Carolina's school of medicine have found a specific neural circuit that, when altered, caused animal models to drink less alcohol.

"The fact that these neurons promote reward-like behaviour and that activation of these drive alcohol drinking in animals without extensive prior drinking experience, suggests that they may be important for early alcohol use," said senior author Zoe McElliott, assistant professor of psychiatry and pharmacology. "By understanding the function of this circuit, we can better predict what happens in the brains of people who transition from casual alcohol use to subsequent abuse of alcohol," professor added.

EXERCISE WON'T HELP WOMEN WITH MIGRAINE

Despite doctors recommending regular aerobic exercise to prevent migraine, physical exercise can actually be a trigger of migraine attacks for most women because of "anxiety sensitivity" in them, find researchers. "Anxiety sensitivity" refers to one's fear of experiencing anxiety arousal due to harmful physical, cognitive and socially-observable consequences, may be related to physical activity (PA) avoidance in migraine patients.

Migraine affects around 10-15 per cent of the population around the globe and among its most common diagnosis criteria include a throbbing, unilateral head pain, hypersensitivity to lights, sounds, odour, and aggravation by activity.

The researchers assessed 100 women with probable migraine, who filled an online survey covering anxiety sensitivity scores, intentional avoidance of moderate and vigorous physical activity (PA) in the past month, as well as the self-rated perception that exercise would trigger a migraine attack and worse migraine symptoms.

SALIVA TEST DETECTS MOUTH CANCER EARLY

Non-invasive saliva test can detect human papilloma virus-16, the strain associated with oropharyngeal cancer (OPC), showing promise for earlier and easier detection of mouth and throat cancer, report researchers.

The novel technique detected OPC in whole saliva in 40 per cent of patients tested and 80 per cent of confirmed OPC patients. OPC has an approximate incidence of 1,15,000 cases per year worldwide and is one of the fastest-rising cancers owing to increasing HPV-related incidence, especially in younger patients.

Cancers that occur in the back of the mouth and upper throat are often not diagnosed until they become advanced, partly because their location makes them difficult to see. "The successful detection of HPV from salivary exosomes isolated by our acoustofluidic platform offers distinct advantages, including early detection and risk assessment," added Dr Huang in a paper published in The Journal of Molecular Diagnostics.

I don't follow any particular plan: Anil

At 62, ANIL KAPOOR's fitness level serves as a goal for youngsters. He is counted among the fittest actors in the industry and is also enthusiastic about yoga and weight training.

Opening up on his fitness secret, he said: "My trainer keeps changing my workouts so that my body doesn't get too comfortable in any one thing. But the idea is to have a good balance between cardio and weight training."

On his diet routine, the actor commented, "I don't follow any particular plan. I just eat what feels right for my body, and that's usually healthy and simple food."

The actor rose to stardom in the eighties when fitness was not a priority for actors. Quizzed if today's generation of actors is more conscious about health and fitness, the actor smiled and replied: "That's a fair assumption. Today's youth are very knowledgeable about health & fitness."

I am very lucky to have a team which doesn't leave my side. They are very hardworking. I never have to worry about certain things which can really derail any actor from focusing on giving their 100 per cent in acting. They also ensure that nothing distracts me. More than me, they have a professional attitude towards everything.

Quirking up the promotional game for their forthcoming film Good Newwz, actors AKSHAY KUMAR and DILJIT DOSANJH tried the labour pain test to understand what expecting mothers go through during child birth.

Akshay shared a video on Instagram where he and Diljit are trying the test. He wrote: "Good Newwz... A small step to understand what mothers go through by Diljit Dosanjh and me. Respect to all the mummies out there, delivering #GoodNewwz is harder than anyone can imagine!"

Ryan resembles Kate Beckinsale

Actor RYAN REYNOLDS says his resemblance to actor Kate Beckinsale is something that he has heard about for a long time.

The 43-year-old Reynolds revealed that he was aware of the talk about his resemblance to Beckinsale during an appearance on a show.

"It is like looking in a mirror," Reynolds joked, adding of the gown Beckinsale was wearing in a clip the show displayed of the actor. "I mean, I was going to wear that today!" he quipped.

In October, Beckinsale also talked about the uncanny resemblance to Reynolds while on a show.

OVER THE BOUNDARY

Sports writing has evolved over the years and inspirational stories now make for an independent literary genre, says CHAHAK MITTAL

Cricket, as often said, is nothing less than a religion in India. And this is reflected not just in the fan-following that the cricketers command but even in sports literature. Be it Wizards: The Story of Indian Spin Bowling by Anindya Dutta, Sujit Mukherjee's Autobiography of an Unknown Cricketer, Pundits From Pakistan by Rahul Bhattacharya, Azhar by Harsha Bhogle, Swami and Friends by RK Narayan, Ramachandra Guha's States of Indian Cricket, there have been numerous books on the sport in India.

Other disciplines, now boosted by international wins, have equally inspirational stories. This is the gap that the Ekamra Sports Literature Festival is trying to bridge. Shireen Sethi, founder-director of the festival, said that this was the main topic of debate at this festival — Why so many books on cricket and none on other sports? She said, "We cannot even blame the writers and publishers for giving us so many books on cricket because it sells the most, especially in India. But this is why this festival was conceptualised to also make all kinds of sports and sports stories a part of mainstream literature."

The festival, that concluded yesterday, also witnessed the first-ever sports book awards in six categories — Autobiography of the Year, Biography of the Year, (authorised or unauthorised), Cricket Book of the Year, Outstanding Sports Book Award, Best Sports Book Publisher and Sports Book of the Year.

Another reason which made the festival relevant was the depiction of sports in literature, however engaging, never finds the same resonance as a film. Case in point, Lagaan (2001) probably the first film, which documented the history of cricket in India. Through the film, the audience realised how Indians had struggled to defeat Britishers in a game they barely knew. For them, it was like a war and the only way was to save their hard-earned crops and money. The film became a national favourite. On the contrary, a similar reference in Ramachandra Guha's A Corner of a Foreign Field: The Indian History of a British Sport, which presents the history of how cricket became an Indian sport, does not feature anywhere in the consciousness of Indians.

Shireen said that while conceptualising it, many sports authors, journalists and publishers agreed that writing a book is one thing and getting recognition or finding visibility is another and much tougher, which is why "we wanted to create a platform for sports writers to talk and give them more visibility in terms of readership."

Author Kristen Worley, whose book, Women Enough, was released in India at the festival, talked about how sports literature and writing have changed over time and said, "I think it has evolved greatly in the past several years. From the printed glossy sports editions to digital publication, the publishing world is increasingly investing in the human stories of the 'athlete experience'. However, books always reveal more. They not only talk about the life of an athlete or a sportsperson, but also illustrate his/her relationships, the 'ins and outs' of career and develop a real authentic voice and a tactile and unique relationship between the reader and him/her. Today, unlike earlier times, magazine publications and digital stories only provide the 'highlights', whereas the book format is able to reveal intimate details of an athlete — on and off the field. The crucial aspects of the athlete's career are missed in these highlights which also means that his/her hard work and struggles go unrecognised."

Journalist and author Tim Wigmore, whose Cricket 2.0 was also released at the festival, said, that it's very obvious in case of journalism that sports writing has evolved manifold with simultaneous focus on statistics. "These are not a replacement for human interest stories but a supplement to them. I think modern fans are very curious and demand more from sports writing, which is making it grow," added he.

His book talks about how Twenty20 changed the face of cricket over the years. He told us the reason for writing the book. "Since its initiation in 2003, Twenty20 has upended the norms in cricket and turned what was an old, traditional game on its head. We wanted to understand how and why it has become the most popular format of the sport, take a step back and understand the journey we have been on and where we could be headed next. We wanted to read a book telling this story. And we couldn't find it, so we thought writing it would be the next best thing," he said.

This was also the focus of what Wigmore talked about at the event where he said, "There are many ways in which T20 has changed cricket both on and off the field — encompassing everything from the rise of club cricket, hyper-commercialisation and cricket as entertainment. It has also changed the market for this sport, creating certain tensions. This festival is a great way to connect with those interested in sport on a deeper level and generate stimulating debate."

So how can we involve sports literature in education? Apart from RK Narayan's Swami and Friends, there is no other prominent Indian author's sports fiction that is a part of literature courses in graduation colleges. Shireen said, "For that, universities need to introduce writing courses like the ones in the US, especially Columbia, which is famous for its creative writing. I think it's time we take sports writing seriously like the rest of the arts."

Kristen added, "The festival is vitally important as it can encourage more people to tell stories and even hear the authentic voice of athletes who are willing to share their tales. It can broaden the understanding and create a system that supports sportspersons and make their stories of victory as well as struggle more inclusive."

While most of them would argue that sports is something that is best experienced live or visually rather than being read, she argued, "There is something very powerful about the written word as it is limitless and draws on our imagination with no restrictions, whereas the lived experience is limited to that moment in real-time."

Wigmore disagreed too, "It has never been an either or. The best sports writing can enhance our enjoyment of what we see live on the field of play, providing a deeper perspective and way to appreciate the sport. Indeed, with relentless coverage, I'd say the benefits of this deeper perspective through writing are greater than ever."

TECH TALK

The dominant shift

Here's how streaming and #MeToo shaped TV decade of change

tion, cable TV.

Only about a quarter of the US homes had cable in 1980 despite its availability since the mid-20th century. While growth finally exploded in the 80s, it wasn't until the tail end of the 1990s and the arrival of HBO's The Sopranos and Sex and the City that premium cable received critical praise and honours, Thompson said.

In contrast, it took less than a decade for leader Netflix to skyrocket from about 12 million US subscribers at the decade's start to 60 million this year and 158 million worldwide. The streamer reportedly lavished $15 billion on programming for 2019 alone, and earned buzz with series including The Crown, Stranger Things, and Orange is the New Black. Even major films, among them Martin Scorsese's The Irishman, are making themselves at home on Netflix while still in theatres.

Others in the fray include Amazon Prime Video, although "streaming wars" became the aggressive phrase applied to the increasingly competitive marketplace. With newly emboldened (and sometimes mega-expanded) media companies intent on getting a piece of the streaming action, there was a growth surge that won't abate in the new decade.

Apple TV Plus launched on November 1 with Oprah Winfrey and Steven Spielberg among its first wave of producers, and was quickly followed by Disney Plus. The latter has a storehouse of Disney movies and TV shows to draw on, along with acquired properties from Marvel Entertainment and Lucasfilm and its Star Wars franchise.

While cord-cutting became a quest for viewers seeking to shed hefty cable bills, there is still a price tag for the gusher of riches, as much as $14.99 monthly for HBO Max alone. A bonus for viewers as they sort through the competing options — more programming doesn't just mean more of the same.

VARIETY STORE

If retailers can provide every type of yogurt known to humanity, why can't TV take the same eclectic approach? It has in the past 10 years, as the increasing demand for content and the growth of niche programming created opportunities for diverse and candid voices. Ongoing efforts by advocacy groups also contributed to the gradual but unmistakable shift.

Ryan Murphy, already established as a successful producer with Nip/Tuck and Glee, exercised his clout to make FX's Pose, set in the LGBTQ ballroom culture scene of the 1980s and 90s. Its star, Billy Porter, became the first openly gay man to win the best actor Emmy.

Even mainstream broadcasting expanded its field of vision, with ABC the first network in 20 years to air an Asian American family sitcom, Fresh Off the Boat, ending this season. Nahnatchka Khan was its executive producer, one of the women who gained prominence behind the camera in a sector long dominated by men.

African American women took the spotlight in creator-star Issa Rae's Insecure, while Jenji Kohan's Orange is the New Black featured characters notable for their ethnic, sexual and class diversity. Some established female producers further cemented their success. Shonda Rhimes added Scandal and How to Get Away with Murder to her body of work, with the latter's star, Viola Davis, becoming the first African American to win a best drama actress Emmy. Ava DuVernay, already a filmmaking force, spearheaded When They See Us and Queen Sugar.

Reese Witherspoon, adding producing to her portfolio, made good on her vow to bring strong female characters to the screen with the hit series Big Little Lies and The Morning Show.

Statistics confirm the anecdotal evidence. Across all TV platforms in 2017-18, women accounted for a historic high of 31 per cent of those working in key behind-the-scenes jobs including directors, writers and editors, according to research by San Diego State University's Center for the Study of Women in Television & Film.

While television moved toward better reflecting the world at large, it was forced to look inward as well.

#METOO FALLOUT

Revelations of sexual misconduct hit the TV industry hard and with more lasting effect than any other sector of Hollywood, even compared to producer Harvey Weinstein's fall from filmmaking heights. Two of media's top powerbrokers were brought down in the #MeToo era — Les Moonves and Roger Ailes.

Top-tier actors also lost their jobs, including Jeffrey Tambor of Transparent and Kevin Spacey of House of Cards and Louis CK, whose TV projects included Louie, which he starred in and produced. —AP

Teenager Greenwood rescues Utd in Everton draw

AFF ■ MANCHESTER

Mason Greenwood came off the bench to rescue Manchester United as the teenage striker's late equaliser secured a 1-1 draw against Everton on Sunday.

Ole Gunnar Solskjaer's side fell behind to Victor Lindelof's controversial first half own-goal after United's appeals for a foul on David de Gea were ignored by VAR.

But Greenwood, introduced in the second half, underlined his vast potential with a clinical strike 13 minutes from full-time.

The 18-year-old is the third youngest player to score a Premier League goal at Old Trafford after former United forwards Federico Macheda and Danny Welbeck.

Bradford-born Greenwood, a product of United's youth academy, now has seven goals in his breakthrough season after netting twice in his previous appearance against Alkmaar in the Europa League on Thursday.

This was his second Premier League goal after his strike against Sheffield United in November and his rapid progress is a bright spot in a difficult season for Solskjaer's sixth placed team.

It was fitting that Greenwood scored in the 4,000th senior match in succession in which at least one youth graduate was represented in United's first-team or matchday squad, an extraordinary record stretching back over nine decades.

City in their last two league games, United's frustrating draw reaffirmed how much improvement is still needed under Solskjaer despite Greenwood's ascent.

For Duncan Ferguson, Everton's caretaker manager, this spirited performance built on the momentum from last weekend's win over Chelsea.

Hit by injuries and illness, Everton avoided losing for the seventh time in their last eight away league matches.

Another of United's home-grown products should have opened the scoring within 20 seconds when Fred's burst into the Everton area ended with Jesse Lingard swivelling onto the loose ball and shooting wide from 10 yards.

Daniel James' blistering pace was on full display when the winger raced clear for a low drive that flashed wide of the far post, prompting an angry exchange between Everton keeper Jordan Pickford and team-mate Lucas Digne about who was to blame for the break.

FOCUSED AND COMBATIVE

Marcus Rashford tested Pickford with a swerving free-kick, but United— at their best when counter-attacking — were too often forced into slow build-up play that was easy for Everton's well-drilled defence to stifle.

United were losing their grip and it was Everton who took the lead in bizarre fashion in the 36th minute.

When Leighton Baines sent over an inswinging corner, De Gea came and missed as he tried to punch clear, with the ball bouncing off Lindelof into his own net.

United protested that Everton forward Dominic Calvert-Lewin had fouled De Gea by putting an arm across his face, but although the goal was reviewed by VAR it was allowed to stand.

The farcical goal meant United had failed to keep a clean-sheet in 12 consecutive top-flight matches for the first time since 1971.

Everton were far more focused and combative than under the sacked Marco Silva.

But Solskjaer introduced Greenwood with 25 minutes left and it proved an inspired move.

Greenwood immediately had an effort saved by Pickford and, with United firmly on the front foot, the teenage starlet equalised in the 77th minute.

Picked out by James, Greenwood steadied himself on the edge of the area with a perfect first touch before drilling his low left-foot shot through a crowd of Everton defenders and past Pickford.

In a tense finale, Alex Iwobi almost won it for Everton with a dipping shot that De Gea pushed away before Ferguson hauled off substitute Moise Kean only 18 minutes after putting him on.

Atletico comeback with 2-0 win over Osasuna

IAN S ■ MADRID

Atletico Madrid won a La Liga victory against Osasuna as Alvaro Morata and Saul Niguez found the back of the net successfully.

Atletico's victory was postponed by Osasuna goalkeeper Sergio Herrera with some astonishing saves until well into the second half. Particularly on three occasions, Joao Felix's shots seemed unstoppable, but Herrera was like a wall on Saturday night, reports Efe news.

It was not until minute 67 when Atletico's top scorer Morata took a free kick from Kieren Trippier from the right sideline and headed it into the net that the comeback team went ahead 1-0.

Juve regain top spot

AFF ■ TURIN

Cristiano Ronaldo scored twice as Juventus bounced back from their first defeat of the season to beat Udinese 3-1 and move top of Serie A on Sunday.

Ronaldo struck twice in the first half to make it five goals in four games as champions Juve move one point ahead of leaders Inter Milan ahead of their trip to off-form Fiorentina later on Sunday.

Maurizio Sarri's side had taken just one point from their last two league games, falling 3-1 to Lazio in Rome last weekend after a 2-2 draw against Sassuolo the previous week.

But Portuguese star Ronaldo tapped in his first after nine minutes at the Allianz Stadium, and burst through to finish off a Gonzalo Higuain cross on 36 minutes.

Leonardo Bonucci sealed the three points just before the break when he headed in from close range.

Ignacio Pussetto pulled a goal back for 17th-placed Udinese four minutes into injury time with his close range effort beating Gianluigi Buffon in the Juventus goal.

Juventus play their final Serie A game before the winter break at Sampdoria on Wednesday, before a rematch against Lazio in the Italian Super Cup in Saudi Arabia next weekend.

Atalanta fell 2-1 at Bologna just days after the Champions League newcomers sealed their place in the competition's last 16 despite losing their first three matches.

Rodrigo Palacio tapped in the first after 12 minutes for Bologna off a rebound after a Riccardo Orsolini effort came off the post.

AC MILAN LACK PARTY SPIRIT

Atalanta failed to take advantage of their numerical superiority late on, as Bologna played the last five minutes a man down after Brazilian defender Danilo was sent off for two bookable offences.

Gian Piero Gasperini's side are sixth on 28 points, one point off the Champions League places, with European rivals Cagliari, Lazio and Roma still to play this weekend.

AC Milan were held to a goal-less draw against Sassuolo at the San Siro as the former European giants marked their 120th anniversary in tepid style.

Theo Hernandez had a goal ruled out after half an hour following a Franck Kessie handball in the buildup, with Rafael Leao hitting the crossbar and the post.

Hellas Verona battled back from three goals down with all three substitutes scoring in a 15-minute second-half spell to hold Torino 3-3.

Torino had taken a comfortable lead at the Stadio Bentegodi after Christian Ansaldi scored a brace with Alex Berenguer also on target for the visitors.

But the hosts hit back with three goals after 69 minutes from players who all came off the bench.

Giampaolo Pazzini converted a penalty on 69 minutes after Gleison Bremer was deemed to have used his elbow to block the ball.

Pazzini was then involved in the second with Valerio Verre smashing in off a rebound, before Mariusz Stepinski added a third by pouncing on a defensive error from Ola Aina to finish off.

Torino are ninth, with Verona two points back in 12th, in the hosts' final match before the winter break.

Tottenham up to fifth after late win at Wolves

AFF ■ WOLVERHAMPTON

Jan Vertonghen's stoppage time header continued Tottenham's turnaround under Jose Mourinho as Spurs moved up to fifth with a 2-1 win at Wolves.

Mourinho's men were largely outplayed at Molineux, but were ruthless with their chances to inflict Wolves' first league defeat in 12 games.

Adama Traore's spectacular strike had cancelled out Lucas Moura's early opener before Vertonghen stooped to guide home Christian Eriksen's corner.

Spurs can now move into the top four before Christmas if they beat Chelsea at home next weekend.

That speaks volumes for the impact Mourinho has made in less than a month in charge as Tottenham trailed Chelsea and the top four by 12 points when he was appointed.

Wolves drop to eighth as their longest unbeaten run in the top flight since 1962 came to an end, but there was little more Nuno Espirito Santo's men could have done to at least avoid defeat.

After an industrious start by Wolves, it was Spurs who scored after eight minutes.

Son Heung-min's drive was beaten away by Rui Patrício but the ball was worked to Moura, who glided into the area before rifling in high from an angle for his third goal in seven games under Mourinho.

Wolves remained undaunted though and after Paulo Gazzaniga gathered Traore's low effort they began to create openings.

Diogo Jota was a menace and it was from his work Raul Jimenez nearly levelled after 26 minutes but his low effort flashed wide.

Son after Jota was denied by the recovering Davinson Sanchez after the defender's initial mistake allowed the forward through.

minutes before the break.

Referee Stuart Attwell played a good advantage after Moura was fouled to allow Eric Dier forward.

He played a cute one-two with Dele Alli to leave the midfielder with just Patricio to beat but his low strike hit the post.

It would have been harsh on Wolves and they continued to push after the break.

Spurs' defence had lived dangerously, with Vertonghen in particular struggling against the pace of Traore.

Wolves finally got their reward on 67 minutes.

Traore had given the visitors problems all game and he made them pay, collecting Jimenez's pass and unleashing a rocket which flew past Gazzaniga from 20 yards.

Tottenham then never looked like restoring their lead before the late drama.

Wolves remained the aggressors and Romain Saiss' glancing header four minutes later forced Gazzaniga into a fine stop.

Mohun Bagan eyeing full points against Kerala

PTI ■ KOLKATA

On a high after thrashing TRAU FC, city giants Mohun Bagan will look to bag full points against Gokulam Kerala in their I-League fixture at Kalyani Stadium on Monday.

The match will be the Mariners penultimate fixture before the high-voltage derby against East Bengal.

Gokulam have an all-win record from their two games so far and look well organised while Bagan redeemed themselves with a 4-0 victory over debutants TRAU FC in their previous game, after failing to register a win in their first two.

They went down 2-4 to Churchill Brothers at home in their second game.

Ugandan frontman Henry Kisekka and Trinidadian striker Marcus Joseph have scored all of Gokulam's three goals so far and are their standout performers by a mile, while another Trinidadian, Nathaniel Garcia, imposed himself very well in midfield in the second game against Indian Arrows.

Their Spanish coach Fernando Varela, however, refused to read much into Gokulam's recent form and success against their Monday opponents who they had beaten in their only previous encounter this season, in the Durand Cup.

Sharing his thoughts ahead of the game, he said, "Mohun Bagan are a very competitive side with great players and with quality to make a combined game. We must be concentrating for 90 minutes to beat them and we will concentrate on our improvement as a team and how to play a good game. The league has just begun and we must continue to improve."

Confident Punjab FC face Indian Arrows

PTI ■ LUDHIANA

High on confidence after their impressive win over defending champions Chennai City FC in their previous match, Punjab FC will play host to All India Football Federation developmental side's Indian Arrows in an I-League game here on Monday.

The match against the Arrows will be Punjab's third successive match at home, while for the travelling youngsters, it will be their first on the road this season.

Since losing to Churchill Brothers in their season opener in Goa, Punjab have drawn against East Bengal 1-1 before

Reflecting on his side's impressive display, Punjab FC head coach Yan Law said, "Against Chennai, the boys showed good tactical discipline and a fantastic desire to win."

"Even after a late equaliser from Chennai, the lads showed pure class and pulled back two more goals in the dying minutes of the game. I'm very proud of each and every one of them and I know they are capable of doing much more."

He remains wary of the threat that the Arrows possess and added, "Arrows are a good side who have tremendous quality and potential. They have given both their oppositions, Gokulam and Aizawl a tough time in their first two fixtures."

"This is a team to take very seriously and not underestimate. It is going to be a tough game as they are quite a compact and structured team."

Indian Arrows, on the other hand, have played twice at home and despite showing grit and tenacity came up short against Gokulam Kerala and Aizawl. A positive result against Punjab in an away trip could serve as a massive boost to get their campaign.

Speaking ahead of the match, head coach Shanmugam Venkatesh said, "We know that Punjab FC won by a good margin against defending champions Chennai City in their last match and their confidence and motivation levels will be high, for sure."

"It will be their third consecutive home match and for us, we are playing away for the first time this season. We have adapted well to conditions so far and the weather has been really good and ideal for playing football. We will give our best in the game."

Hetmyer, Hope score hundred to guide Windies to 8 wicket win in 1st ODI

PTI ■ CHENNAI

Rishabh Pant struck his maiden half-century at M S Dhoni's spiritual home to silence his critics as India shrugged off a poor start to post a challenging 287 for eight in the first ODI against West Indies here on Sunday.

Shreyas Iyer (70 off 88), who is emerging as a solid number four, and Pant (71 off 69) paired up for a 114-run stand for the fourth wicket after India lost opener K L Rahul (6) and skipper Virat Kohli (4) in the seventh over of the innings. It was Iyer's third consecutive half-century.

Rohit Sharma (36 off 56) too struggled on a slow surface before Iyer and Pant resurrected the innings with their gritty partnership.

A quickfire half-century partnership between Kedar Jadhav (40 off 35) and Ravindra Jadeja (21 off 21), who batted ahead of debutant Shivam Dube, provided the thrust in the slog overs.

Left-arm paceman Sheldon Cottrell (2/46 from 10 overs including 3 maidens), Keemo Paul (2/41) and Alzarri Joseph (2/45) were among the wickets for the visiting team.

The home team appeared to be in a spot of bother at 80 for three in the 19th over on a sluggish pitch when Iyer and Pant came together. After taking their time to get going, the two played some splendid shots and were not afraid to hit the ball in the air when the opportunity presented itself.

The fact that the first six of the innings came in the 28th over when Pant smashed offie Roston Chase over mid-wicket was an indicator of the slow proceedings.

Iyer displayed his class as he came up with some lovely cuts against the spinners-Chase and leggie Hayden Walsh. Pant, on his part, showed patience and hit some powerful shots after gaining in confidence and assessing the nature of the pitch.

The two handled the spinners well and hit a six each apart from some well-timed drives.

Walsh, who had bowled impressively in the T20s preceding this series, was not allowed to settle into any rhythm as Rohit first, and then the Iyer-Pant duo went after him. He was taken for 31 runs in 5 overs.

Iyer perished for a well-made 70 with his dismissal coming against the run of play, when his flick landed in the safe hands of Pollard off Joseph's bowling, ending a brilliant 114-run fourth wicket partnership with Pant.

Pant fell going for a big hit, caught by Shimron Hetmyer in the deep of Pollard's bowling. It was a much needed knock for an under-fire Pant, who is seen as Dhoni's heir apparent.

Then the duo of Jadeja and Jadhav, who both play for Chennai Super Kings under Dhoni in the IPL, joined hands for a crucial 59-run stand for the sixth wicket during the course of which they batted judiciously and ran well between the wickets.

While Jadhav holed out to Pollard off Paul, Jadeja was run out. Jadeja was beaten by a Roston Chase throw but was initially not given out. An appeal by a West Indian fielder resulted in the on-field umpire going upstairs, following which the Indian southpaw was declared out.

India got off to a slowish start as Sheldon Cottrell bowled two maiden overs to start with and Jason Holder did not give away much as the openers Rohit and Rahul chose to play cautiously.

After Rahul's dismissal, Kohli walked in to a roar from the Chepauk crowd and played an imperious on-drive off the fourth ball he faced. In an anti-climax, he fell the next ball, bowled off the inside edge as he tried to run one from Cottrell down to the third-man area.

Rohit Sharma gained in confidence and scored a couple of boundaries including a superb straight drive off Holder in the 10th over. He appeared set for a big score before he hit Joseph's first ball in the match tamely to Pollard at mid-wicket to be dismissed for 36 (56 balls, 6 fours).

There was a moment of mirth for the spectators as a dog entered the field of play in the 26th over with Pant and Iyer at the crease.

ABID SCORES HUNDRED IN DRAWN TEST

AFP ■ RAWALPINDI

Opener Abid Ali became the first batsman to score hundreds on both Test and one-day debuts as Pakistan's first home match in the long form of the game since the 2009 attack on the visiting Sri Lanka team ended in a tame draw against the same opponents Sunday.

On 95, the 32-year-old hit paceman Vishwa Fernando for a boundary and then drove him through cover for two to complete his hundred, raising his hands in jubilation before kneeling on the ground to offer a prayer of gratitude.

Pakistan finished at 252-2, with stylish batsman Babar Azam knocking his third Test century with a boundary off spinner Dilruwan Perera.

Azam ended with 102 not out, which came in 151 minutes of punishing batting spiced by 14 crisp boundaries.

But the day belonged to Abid, one of 15 batsmen to score a hundred on their one-day international debut - against Australia in Dubai in March his year - since the inception of limited over cricket in January 1971.

None of the others also scored a century on their debut in Test cricket, which started in 1876.

Abid's feat spiced up the historic Test, the first in Pakistan since the 2009 attacks on the Sri Lankan team bus left international cricket suspended in the country.

Only 91.5 overs were possible on the first four days as rain, bad light and overcast conditions affected play. The fourth day was abandoned without a ball being bowled.

But there was bright sunshine on Sunday as Sri Lanka batted for 20 minutes to declare their first innings at 308-6 with middle-order batsman Dhananjaya de Silva scoring an unbeaten 102.

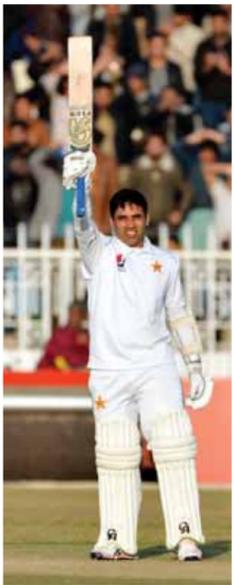

With gates opened to the crowd for free, about 12,000 fans were kept entertained by Dhananjaya and then Abid.

Pakistan lost opener Shan Masood for nought when he drove a full toss from paceman Kasun Rajitha straight into the hands of Dinesh Chandimal at cover Skipper Azhar Ali scored a shaky 36 before he was caught off Lahiru Kumara.

The 28-year-old right-hander drove paceman Mohammad Abbas for his 15th boundary to bring up the hundred in his 28th Test.

De Silva remained unbeaten on 102 after 241 minutes of batting, having come in with the score on 127-4 on Thursday. Dilruwan Perera remained unbeaten on 16.

Lyon, Starc power Aus to massive win

AFP ■ PERTH

Australia recorded one of their biggest wins over New Zealand on the fourth day of the first Test at Perth Stadium on Sunday.

Having trailed by 250 runs on the first innings the Kiwis were set a mammoth 468 to win - which would have been a record chase in Test cricket - on a deteriorating pitch after Australia declared at 217 for nine in their second innings.

The visitors were never in contention after losing their first wicket with just six runs on the board and were unable to push the match into a fifth day after Mitchell Starc and Pat Cummins cleaned up the Kiwi tail under lights in Perth's first ever day-night Test.

New Zealand were dismissed for 171 and were beaten by 296 runs, the last five wickets falling in a hurry for just 17 runs.

It was just one run shy of their biggest losing margin to Australia - in runs - in a match where both teams batted twice.

Australia's biggest win, other than innings victories, was 297 runs in Auckland in 1974.

Starc (4-45), who claimed nine wickets for the match, and Cummins (2-31) used the pink ball to good effect under lights to bring the match to a quick conclusion after none of the recognised Kiwi batsmen offered significant resistance.

The chase started poorly, with opener Jeet Raval making just one before being caught at gully by Nathan Lyon (4-63) from the bowling of Starc.

Star batsman and captain Kane Williamson then made just 14, before falling to Lyon's first ball of the innings.

Williamson got off to a fast start with boundaries from the first two balls he faced, but was caught at short leg fending a ball that bounced and turned sharply off his glove into the hands of Matthew Wade.

Ross Taylor was their last real hope of making a revival but on 22 he tried to pull a Starc delivery and got a bottom edge through to wicketkeeper Tim

Tom Latham showed plenty of application to face 68 balls for his 18, but was given out leg before wicket to Lyon after an Australian DRS review, with umpire Aleem Dar initially giving him not out.

BJ Watling attempted to stem the tide with a gritty 40 and enjoyed a bit of luck as Australia didn't review when he got a faint outside edge through to Paine.

Smith then dropped a tough chance off the bowling of Lyon at first slip. He was given out on review caught down leg side by Paine off the bowling of Starc after umpire Nigel Llong had turned down the appeal - a dismissal that signalled the end of the Kiwi resistance.

Earlier, Australia's second innings fell away dramatically after being 131 for one at one stage on the third day.

The home team lost seven wickets for 58 runs, as they struggled against a sustained barrage of short-pitched bowling on another hot Perth day.

Aussies on the rise again: Paine

AFP ■ PERTH

Skipper Tim Paine believes Australia is climbing back towards the top of Test cricket after a third successive powerhouse victory at Perth Stadium on Sunday.

The home side went into the Perth Test ranked fifth on the International Cricket Council rankings, while New Zealand were second.

"We are getting there, but we can get better," he said.

"We are still improving, but certainly over the last 18 months there has been drastic improvement in this cricket team.

"We've got some players back, which are helping, but we have also seen some real improvement in the guys who got a chance 18 months ago, and the experienced guys have come back and put a bit of icing on top.

"We are moving in the right direction and happy with the way we've played in the last three or four Tests."

Paine said it was also pleasing to see other players stepping up, after Smith almost single-handedly retained the Ashes for Australia with his batting heroics in his first series after suspension.

Twitter

For the first time in his career Smith has gone three Tests without a half-century, but Paine actually views that as a positive.

"We touched on at the end of the Ashes," he said.

"We needed other guys to stand up and can't be reliant on Steve.

"Obviously Marnus (Labuschagne) has been unbelievably good, and Davey (Warner) and Joe Burns have been scoring runs.

"If we want to be one of the better teams in the world guys have got to stand up and we can't be reliant on too few.

"We are really happy with how our batting has developed."
