Govt plans panacea for farmers' woes

DBT, regular direct income, interest-free crop loan in relief package

RAJESH KUMAR ■ NEW DELHI

With agrarian crisis gripping India, the Narendra Modi Government is considering direct benefit transfer (DBT) or transfer cash to farmers and other low income rural families to ease their financial burden, instead of offering subsidies. As per the plan, the Government may combine all farm subsidies, including fertiliser costs, in the DBT. The Government is also planning to tweak the guidelines of Prime Minister Fasal Bima Yojna to ensure minimum premium and maximum benefit to farmers.

The additional cost will be limited to ₹70,000 crore ($9.8 billion) annually after a full rollout of the programme. Finance Minister Arun Jaitley had budgeted ₹70,100 crore for farm subsidies in the year ending March 31, 2019.

Coming ahead of general elections next year, the proposal is expected to put more money into the hands of farmers, enabling more investments in the industry, and raising consumption to boost the overall economy, said officials privy to the plan.

One proposal is to transfer ₹4,000 per acre to farmers, including small or marginal farmers who are farm labourers. Under the direct income support scheme, farmers would be entitled to a periodic payment. The amount will be paid to them to carry out farming activities. An interest-free crop loan, from ₹50,000 to ₹1 lakh for every farmer, is also on the Government's relief package menu. The cash transfer for irrigation and power cost for running tube can also be worked out.

Sources said that the Cabinet Secretary had held a several rounds of meeting with officials of Agriculture Ministry, Finance Ministry and NITI Aayog to decide package for farmers. "The cash transfer to farmers in a year by the Centre for land-owning farmers appears to be favorable. The scheme is expected to cost ₹1.2- ₹1.3 lakh crore," sources said. "The fiscal burden will shift to the next fiscal year, giving room for the Centre to simultaneously rework some subsidies being given to farmers such as that on fertilisers and crop loans," sources added.

Subsidies to the agriculture sector include power subsidy, fertiliser subsidy, agriculture loan at lower rate of interest, irrigation subsidy, and insurance cover for farmers at lower premium rates. The power subsidy alone stands at over ₹90,000 crore followed by fertiliser subsidy at ₹75,000 crore. The Government has already rolled out fertiliser subsidy to companies under DBT.

In order to keep the credit flow to the farm sector robust, the Centre is also planning to raise the Budget outlay for interest subvention for agriculture loans to ₹23,000 crore in 2019-20, a huge jump from ₹15,000 crore budgeted for the current fiscal. The other step being considered is doubling collateral-free loans under Kisan Credit Cards (KCCs) to ₹2 lakh and changes in the PM crop insurance scheme to enhance coverage and ensure faster settlement of claims and schemes.

Besides, the Centre pays 2 per cent interest subvention against the base rate (9 per cent in case of PSBs) on all farm credit. An additional 3 per cent interest subsidy on crop loans of up to ₹3 lakh is paid to farmers who repay loans in one year, reducing effective rate of interest in such cases to 4 per cent.

After electoral debacle in three major States — Chhattisgarh, Madhya Pradesh and Rajasthan — in the last year Assembly polls, the Narendra Modi Government has realised that its existing policies have failed to reach the farmers. The Modi Government, which is seeking a second term, has to win over discontented farmers before the election. They have been hit by falling crop prices and rising input costs, prompting thousands of them to protest in the street to seek debt waivers.

At the same time, the Opposition Congress has raised pressure on the Government to act after it waived farm loans following victories against the BJP in three States last month.

Cong suspends MLA booked for murder attempt

PNS ■ BENGALURU

K'TAKA CRISIS

The Congress on Monday suspended its Karnataka MLA JN Ganesh, who hit his colleague Anand Singh during an alleged brawl at a private resort here on Saturday night. In further trouble for Ganesh, Anand — who suffered injuries in the scuffle and is admitted in a private hospital — has filed an FIR against Ganesh.

According to the FIR, besides attempt to murder, Ganesh, who was one of the MLAs reportedly under the BJP lens for desertion, has been charged with causing grievous injuries and giving threats.

Ganesh claimed he too was injured in the scuffle but insisted that no "bottle attack" had taken place as projected in the media.

However, he admitted a scuffle had taken place between him and Anand at Eagleton Resorts on the city outskirts late on Saturday.

The Congress had shifted its legislators to the resort on Friday last fearing "poaching" by the BJP as bid to destabilise the Congress-JDS coalition Government in the State.

With the Congress is facing much embarrassment over the episode, KPCC president Dinesh Gundu Rao said Ganesh has been suspended with immediate effect. In order to conduct detailed enquiry into the incident a special enquiry committee had been constituted under the leadership of Deputy Chief Minister G Parameshwara.

The panel also includes Ministers KJ George and Krishna Byre Gowda, the release said, adding that the committee had been asked to submit the report at the earliest.

A statement issued by the KPCC said party leaders have conducted a preliminary enquiry about the "unpleasant" incident and have also collected information from Anand.

"Whatever the media has created about (me) hitting (Anand) with bottle ... and he getting 14 to 20 stitches ... are all completely false. There were also reports about (me) having bitten our gun man. He is physically present here. This is a lie," Ganesh said. Stating that Anand is like an elder brother to him, Ganesh said he and his family have respected Anand, whom they knew for the last 15-20 years.

He added, "I have not done this to him purposefully. On some issue Bhima Naik (another Congress MLA) and Anand (had differences), I tried to bring them together (compromise) ... but some wrong events happened."

Field Kareena from Bhopal in LS poll: Councillor to RaGa

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Claiming Congress ticket for Bhopal's daughter-in-law Kareena Kapoor, a local Congress corporator has urged his party chief Rahul Gandhi to field Bollywood actress Kareena Kapoor Khan from the Bhopal constituency in the upcoming Lok Sabha polls.

In a letter written to the Congress chief on Sunday, corporator Yogendra Singh Chauhan claimed the actress would be the most suitable candidate to defeat the BJP in the Bhopal seat, held by the saffron party since long.

Kareena Kapoor Khan is the wife of Bollywood actor Saif Ali Khan, who is the son of former Indian cricketer late Mansoor Ali Khan Pataudi, scion of the erstwhile Bhopal state. Pataudi had in 1991 unsuccessfully contested the Lok Sabha poll from Bhopal, a BJP bastion, on Congress's ticket. Taking a swipe at Chauhan, Madhya Pradesh BJP spokesman Rajnish Agrawal dubbed the corporator's move as entertaining.

"We are too strong in the Bhopal Lok Sabha seat as our MPs have worked for its all-round development," he said. When asked as what would be their strategy if the actress was fielded from the seat, Agrawal said it was not proper for him to comment on such a hypothetical question.

"The demand has proved the fact that the Congress has no leader to take on the BJP in Bhopal," he added.

Chauhan, who is considered close to state Public Relations Minister PC Sharma, claimed that some more Congress corporators are going to request Rahul Gandhi to field the actress from Bhopal seat.

'Delhi put spoke in Metro Ph-IV wheel'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The controversy surrounding Delhi Metro's phase-IV refuses to die down. Fresh tussle is brewing between the Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs (HUA) and the Delhi Government over it.

The HUA Ministry said certain financial conditions imposed by the Delhi Government have jeopardised the metro phase IV projects, leading to substantial delay and inconvenience to people as conditions are contravention to the metro phase III and Metro Rail Policy 2017 passed by Parliament.

The project is under appraisal of independent agency as certain changes have been made by the State Government in the revised detailed project reports of six corridors.

Sources said the proposal cannot be passed with the financial conditions imposed by the Delhi Government. Phase-IV was approved by the Delhi Government on December 21 after hanging fire for almost two years.

The two conditions imposed by the Delhi Government are: Operational losses will be equally shared by the Centre and the State, and that the Delhi Government will not bear any liability of external loan if the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC) fails to pay back.

An official said the Delhi Government had also put a condition in its approval that it will not have any liability on loan provided by the Japan International Cooperation Agency to fund the project is the violation of the Metro Rail Policy 2017 wherein operational losses are to be borne by the Delhi Government.

Officials said the metro rail policy 2017 is applicable for all States and Union Territories and it cannot be changed for the sake of the Delhi Government.

Sources said the Delhi Government in 2016 had not "conveyed financial commitments in their in-principle approval of the Phase-IV". The DMRC on January 10 this year had submitted the Phase-IV detailed project report comprising six corridors with revised costs, sources said.

Meanwhile, the Delhi Government spokesperson countered the allegation, saying, the city Government has already cleared the project from its side and any delay that is now happening is from the Centre's side.

'Walking God' Siddaganga leaves for heavenly abode

Bengaluru: The "Walking God" as he is reverentially called, the 111-year old Sree Shivakumara Swami of Siddaganga mutt has left an indelible imprint with his stellar contributions in education sector and philanthropy targeted at children in whom he saw the Almighty.

Known as "trivida dasohi" for his triple sacraments — food, shelter and education — among his followers, the swamiji, who died on Monday, is considered as the incarnation of Basavanna, the 12th century social reformer, as he accepted all irrespective of their religion or castes.

Born on April 1, 1907 at Veerapura in Magadi Taluk near here to Honnappa and Gangamma as Shivanna, he was among the 12 siblings.

Losing his mother at the age of 8 is said to be one of the reasons for transformation in Shivanna's behaviour, that turned spiritual.

After completing primary education at his native village and Nagavalli, the Swamiji completed his matriculation in Tumkur, before coming here for Bachelor of Arts degree with Physics and Mathematics as optional Subjects.

Siddaganga took over as the "peethadipati" (pontiff) of Siddaganga mutt succeeding his Guru Sree Uddana Shivayogigal Shivakumara Swami and reigned over the seminary for about 76 years. During the seven decades, he founded Sri Siddaganga Education Society under which thousands of students, mostly from villages and under privileged sections, are being educated in both traditional and modern learning. PTI

Azadi-Ke-Diwane to salute Netaji at Red Fort

ARCHANA JYOTI ■ NEW DELHI

Ahead of the January 26 Republic Day celebrations, Prime Minister Narendra Modi will inaugurate on Wednesday three museums in the Red Fort as a tribute to martyrs of Independence era.

These include a museum showcasing role of Netaji Subash Chandra Bose's INA; "Azadi-Ke-Diwane" in remembrance of martyrs of India; and "Yaad-e-Jallian" museum to honour those who were killed in the Jallianwala Bagh massacre 100 years ago.

The museums showcase an interesting mix of archival material and state-of-the-art technology which would create an immersive experience for visitors as well as students of history.

For instance, scenes have been tried to create based on the letters exchanged and archival materials of the peri-

Modi will also inaugurate "Yaad-e-Jallian" museum to honour those killed in the Jallianwala Bagh massacre 100 years ago od that the Archeological Survey of India (ASI) could gather from various sources.

Bose's army INA trials were held inside the precincts of the historic monument. Several officers of the INA were court martialled here in November and December 1945, said an ASI official.

The inauguration of museum on Bose comes a less than a month after the Prime Minister renamed three islands of Andaman and Nicobar archipelago as a tribute to the freedom fighter. The Ross Island was renamed as Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose Dweep, the Neil Island as Shaheed Dweep and the Havelock Island as Swaraj Dweep as was suggested by Bose in 1943.

Azadi-ke-Diwane museum houses original archival material and replicas related to 1857 with 70 original paintings on the uprising, said an official, adding that names of the martyrs available from the ICHR has been put on display as a mark of tribute to known and unknown freedom fighters.

The third museum showcases incident on massacre of Jallianwala Bagh, alongside archival material on India's participation in WWI. This interactive museum aims to enlighten visitors particularly youth about the occurrences in Punjab and the rest of India leading up to the Jallianwala Bagh massacre on April 13, 1919.

Jallianwala Bagh houses a memorial of national importance, established in 1951, to commemorate the massacre of peaceful celebrators, including unarmed women and children by British occupying forces, on the occasion of the Punjabi New Year (Baisakhi). The exact number of fatalities is unknown with various newspapers giving different data.

On the display will be ancient public records, private papers, photographs, paintings, sketches, illustrations, contemporary newspapers reports, journals and periodicals, proscribed literature, audio archives, films clippings, videotapes, animation and multimedia.

Disclaimers have been put at various places as we are not sure of some names which have been collected from various sources, said the official, adding spaces have been left to add left out names also in case someone comes with a proof.

"These have been procured from various sources. Some are original while a few are replicas. At some places, we have tried to use audios or visuals of the period which have been made available from various sources," the official added.

Police said that victim persons Naresh Singh Verma and his friend were robbed and assaulted. In the robbery Naresh was stopped by three miscreants and asked for money which they failed to provide after which they were assaulted and robbed of mobile phone.

The victims managed to escape and lodged a complaint with the Shahpura police. In his complaint victim stated that he was on his way to home at Danish Nagar along with his friend when the three came waylaid and asked to shed money which he failed to provide as he was not having money which irritated the accused and they started to assault them and later snatched his mobile phone and escaped the spot.

The victims managed to notice the vehicle registration number and provided the same to the police.

Based on the complaint after the preliminary investigation the police have registered a case under section 392 of the IPC and started search for the accused.

Police suspects that the miscreants would be of the nearby area and targeted those who they found in deserted area and alone. The incident took place around 11.30 in the night. The victim is pursuing hotel management course from Gwalior and is a resident of Shahpura.

Kamal Nath asks colleagues to remain present at PCC office

Bhopal: In another innovative measure, Chief Minister Kamal Nath has asked his Cabinet colleagues to remain present at the Pradesh Congress Committee (PCC) office and meet the common people.

In a letter to the ministers, the Chief Minister has asked them to remain present at the PCC office, whenever they are in Bhopal. To begin with, Energy Minister Priyavrat Singh would be in the PCC and listened to the problems of the party workers on January 25. In the letter, it has also been pointed out that whenever they visit districts of their in-charge, they should visit the district Congress office and meet party workers. The Chief Minister also expected the ministers to invite local MLAs at the government programmes, whether foundation laying ceremonies or any other development works, in different districts.

Actually, the letter was written on January 10, but since then the ministers were busy in their different engagements and nobody could implement it.

However, no the ministers have decided to work at PCC too from now on. Priyavrat Singh has intimated the PCC headquarters about his availability on January 25. Party sources said that this convention was started by former Chief Minister Digvijay Singh, during his tenure as chief minister of Madhya Pradesh. This started in 1993 and continued till 1998. Soon after assuming office, Chief Minister Kamal Nath has come out with innovations to make a different image of his government among the public. SR

Thunderstorm in State disturbs locals

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Weather conditions, which were slowly and gradually becoming normal were disrupted by hail storm and dusty storms at few places for short duration on Monday changing the dry conditions. However, the day and night temperature across Madhya Pradesh registered record high in past 24 hours. Bhopal recorded maximum 30.5 degree Celsius, which is 5 notches above normal.

The abrupt changes in which light rainfall and thundery activities could be witnessed are likely to occur in Gwalior and Chambal divisions and Chattarpur, Neemuch, Mandasaur and Rajgarh districts.

Rise in day temperatures have made weather conditions hot and dry in the state and state capital past two days. State capital witnessed dusty winds in the day creating trouble for the commuters.

Under the changed weather conditions night temperatures have witnessed significant increase in Bhopal, Sagar, Ujjain, Gwalior and Chambal divisions in the past 24 hours.

The trend of increased night temperature was witnessed in major cities of the state. Indore recorded the highest increase in the night temperature at 4.8 degree Celsius in the past 24 hours and recorded night temperature at 16 degree Celsius which was 6 degree Celsius above the normal temperature.

Shajapur and Sagar recorded night temperature with an increase of 4.3 and 4.1 degree Celsius respectively on Sunday. Sagar recorded night temperature at 17.1 degree Celsius. Guna, Jabalpur and Ujjain recorded night temperature with a rise of around 3 degree Celsius.

Min chairs workshop on HDR 2018

Dehradun tops Human Development Index, Tehri at bottom

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

According to the Human Development Report of the State, Dehradun tops the list with Tehri district at the bottom of the list. This was revealed at a stakeholders consultation on the Human Development Report presided over by the State's Finance and Parliamentary Affairs Minister Prakash Pant here on Monday. The State's Human Development Report has been prepared on the basis of survey in the districts' urban and rural areas. According to the initial estimation of the report, as per Human Development Index, Dehradun district is ranked number one followed respectively by Haridwar, Udham Singh Nagar, Chamoli, Pauri, Pithoragarh, Nainital, Bageshwar, Almora, Uttarkashi, Rudrapur, Champawat and Tehri. This index was prepared based on the indicators of health, education and living standards. The main reason for good ranking of Dehradun, Haridwar and Udham Singh Nagar is the high per capita income. Similarly, regarding the Gender Development Index, it was informed that Uttarkashi, Rudrapur and Bageshwar were ranked first, second and third positions respectively, while Udham Singh Nagar, Dehradun and Haridwar were ranked 11th, 12th and 13th position respectively. Further, Multi-dimensional Poverty Index (MPI) has been prepared in accordance with the state of education, health and the living standard of life. Information about living standards, property, housing, domestic fuel, sanitation, drinking water, electricity, institutional delivery, education, school attendance and school availability were compiled for its assessment. In MPI, Chamoli, Champawat and Pithoragarh were ranked first, second and third respectively while Haridwar, Udham Singh Nagar and Dehradun were ranked at 11th, 12th and 13th positions respectively.

Pant informed that as per the Human Development Report 2018 released by UNDP, the ranking of India is consistently improving in the last four years.

While linking HDR with Vision 2030, in order to bring desired results, formulation of implementation policy is a must. For this, each department has to monitor the situation of the outcome budget regularly according to the budget demanded by them, which is necessary to be regularly monitored by the planning department, in order to make effective use of the budget being made available to the departments.

Instructions were issued by the Finance Minister to work in mission mode to improve main indicators of health-enrollment in institutional delivery, vaccination, infant mortality rate and secondary education. Planning secretary Amit Singh Negi stressed that for the effective implementation of Vision 2030, work plans should be drafted on the basis of data contained in the Human Development Report.

MCD writes to State Govt seeking more employees

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

The Municipal Corporation of Dehradun (MCD) has sent a letter to the State Government, seeking new appointments in the civic body to speed up development work now going slow, thanks to the acute staff crunch. The MCD officers said that they have been facing problem due to the non-availability of the required number of employees. "Things are now even worse after 40 wards were added to the geographical contour of the civic body.

Councillors and residents from all the 100 wards are sounding unhappy over the non-availability of facilities being provided by the MCD. However, we are helpless. We cannot do much till the problem of staff shortage is rightly addressed and we get required number of employees to cater to the people's expectations from us," said a senior civic body officer.

To ensure that all facilities like sanitation and door to door garbage collection are provided to the people living in all the assigned wards, the MCD has appealed to the State Government to provide them with more staffers. "This is imperative to rise up to the challenge posed by the inclusion of 40 wards in the geographical area under MCD," said another civic body officer who requested for anonymity.

According to the information received from the civic body sources, the officials asked the State Government in the letter written to clear decks for the appointment of submitted two more assistant city commissioners, one assistant municipal commissioner for waste management, one assistant commissioner for tax and revenue, one chief tax assessment officer, two tax assessment officers, one superintending engineer, one executive engineer, four assistant engineers, three additional assistant engineers, nine civil engineers, two administration officers, four head assistants, eight senior assistants, one account officer, two accountants, four assistant writers, three zonal sanitation officers, 13 sanitation inspectors, one tax assessment and revenue officer, three tax revenue superintendents, six tax revenue inspectors, one senior veterinary officer, one senior city health officer, four city health officer, two revenue inspectors, two cartographers, four accounting clerks, 10 data entry operators, 12 tax collectors and 60 environmental supervisors besides 440 sanitation staff, 300 workers and helpers, two electricity inspectors, 25 linemen in four zones, two surveyors, six work agents, 46 gardeners, one welder, two stenographers, one law officer, one pharmacist, four treasure assistants and eight nursing assistants among others.

Observers say that though the staff crunch is a real problem plaguing service of the civic body, it is uncertain as to whether the State Government would clear the recruitment of so many employees in one go.

Online verification of documents for Swacchta Survey-2019 begins

Central team to visit Ranchi soon for physical verification

PNS ■ RANCHI

The online verification of documents submitted by the Ranchi Municipal Corporation (RMC) in the wake of 'Swachh Survekshan - 2019' began on Monday. The detailed documents compiled covering the availability of toilets - modular and community, number of twin bins, status of garbage collection; complaints addressed through 'MoUD Swacchta Application, promotion methodologies etc have been uploaded on the website of Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs (MoHUA).

"The online verification of documents for sanitation challenge - 2019 has begun. The Municipal Corporation has uploaded the details. Also, the details submitted are being updated on a regular basis. Besides, the online verification, the central team will conduct the physical verification of a few selected spots here soon. The dates of central's team visit will be disclosed soon," said RMC City Manager and SBM-Cell In-charge, Sandeep Kumar.

Recently, the team of Quality Council of India (QCI) evaluated the condition of public toilets located within the jurisdiction of RMC. The assessment was carried out in the wake of grant Open Defecation Free + (ODF Plus) tag to the State biggest Urban Local Body (ULB). The QCI team inquired about the measures being adopted by the respective Civic Body here to popularise the usage of public toilets, geo tagging, cleanliness including the total number of toilets located at a regular interval within the urban vicinity.

The nodal ministry - MoHUA has added a few more vital components to the annual sanitation ranking granted to the cities that takes up the cleanliness challenge. Besides the regular elements like citizens feedback, information - education and communication (IEC) protocol including the service level progress, SBA -- ODF Plus protocol focuses on sustaining community/public toilet usage by ensuring its functionality, cleanliness and maintenance by the respective ULB.

To scale up the coverage of the annual ranking exercise by promoting and elaborating the concept of 'Swachh Bharat Abhiyan - Swacchta Survekshan', this year, special attention under 'Solid Waste Management' criteria is on processing and disposal of waste (30 per cent), collection and transportation (27 per cent), sustainable sanitation (25 per cent), Innovation (5 per cent), By-laws (5 per cent), CB (3 per cent) and Information, Education and Communication (IEC) (5 per cent).

Further, comprising 5000 marks, an additional element containing 1,250 points (for certification 25 per cent, 20 per cent star rating including 5 per cent for open defecation free (ODF), ODF + and ODF ++ has been added, besides keeping the previous model of direct observation, citizen feedback including the service level progress. For regular segment 1,250 marks each under all sub-heads will be given to the participating cities

Construction of two smart roads starts

PNS ■ RANCHI

Construction work for two out of the four proposed smart roads in the city started on Monday.

These roads include the 2.55 kms stretch from Birsa Munda Airport to Birsa Chowk and an 8.85 kms stretch from Birsa Chowk to Raj Bhavan.

The work on the third proposed road from Raj Bhavan to Kantatoli Chowk, a stretch of 2.88 kms will commence in the next 3-4 days, while the tender for construction of the fourth road, a 7.4 kms stretch, from Raj Bhavan to Booty More is under process.

The entire construction work is being supervised by Jharkhand Urban Infrastructure Development Company Limited (JUIDCO).

Once constructed, these roads will not just help provide a relief from traffic jam problems, but at the same time provide separate pathway for cyclists and pedestrians. A JUIDCO official informed that the new construction will bring uniformity in the design of the roads which will help reduce traffic jams.

Urban development department secretary, Ajoy Kumar Singh said that despite the addition of cycle track and footpath, the width of these roads would not be reduced.

"Changes have been made in old DPR of these roads and the width has been increased," he said.

Singh added, "If there is vacant Government land near these roads, they will also be used.

Also, if there is a need to widen the roads further in future, appropriate measures would be taken."

These smart roads will have utility ducts underneath which will include electricity lines, phone lines, other type of optical fibers, LPG pipeline, drinking water pipeline as well as a sewerage and drainage pipeline.

Thus, once these roads are constructed, none of the wires or the drains will be visible in the open.

All these roads will be four-lane, with one divider at a gap of two lanes. The minimum width of two lanes will be 7 mts while the maximum would be 9 mts, which does not include the width of cycle tracks and footpaths on both the sides.

The roads will have LED street lights, signage and also benches and vendor stalls on the sides where a wider area is available.

The construction cost for road 1 from Airport to Birsa Chowk is around ₹42.52 crore, road 2 from Birsa Chowk to Raj Bhavan has to be constructed with the budget of ₹162.7 crores while road 3 from Raj Bhavan to Kantatoli Chowk will be constructed with the budget of ₹92.99 crores.

JPSC, school merger issue dominate House debates

Opposition party leader Hemant Soren along with legislators during ongoing Budget session in Ranchi on Monday. Ratan Lal | Pioneer

PRANAV PRATYUSH/ROSHAN KUMAR ■ RANCHI

The members from Opposition benches today vehemently raised the issue of anomalies in Jharkhand Public Service Commission (JPSC) recruitment. Raising the issue, Baharagora MLA Kunal Sarangi said that JPSC has failed to perform its duties with the Constitutional body is now being called as "Jharkhand Pairvi Commission".

Earlier, speaking on the issue, senior Congress leader Sukhdev Bhagat said that JPSC in its 18 years has conducted examination only five times. Bhagat said, "The inefficiency of JPSC can be gauged from the fact that many candidates have received admit cards for the examination, who have not even filled the examination forms."

The JPSC is going to conduct the sixth mains examination scheduled on January 28. Bhagat said: "JPSC has become a circus having no examination calendar with many a times JPSC examination dates clash with Union Public Service Commission (UPSC)."

Echoing the views of Bhagat, Jharkhand Vikas Morcha (JVM) MLA, Pradeep Yadav said that the JPSC has conducted the examination for five times but in fifth and sixth JPSC examination no reservation roaster was followed.

The issue of merger of Government schools in State also stormed the Assembly with members from opposition benches raising the issue. As per government plan, the Human Resources Development (HRD) department plans to merge all such schools which have fewer enrollments with nearby government schools that have students and teachers in abundance.

Protesting the State government's move, JMM MLA from Baharagora Kunal Sarangi

questioned the Government move to close down 12,000 schools.

Speaking on cut motion of Government supplementary budget moved by Congress MLA from Lohardaga Sukhdev Bhagat, Sarangi said: "While the government with an attempt to boost its revenue is on move to open up liquor shops, on other hand they are going on for closing down 12,000 Government schools."

However, countering the opposition claims, members from treasury benches led by Neelkanth Singh Munda the rural development and parliamentary Affairs Minister stated that the State is marching towards development.

BJP MLA from Rajmahal, Anant Kumar Ojha said that though the Government plans to merge schools but in four years a lot of development activities has been carried out in education sector. "In 2014, there were 289 higher secondary schools which in 2019 has gone up to 3312, similarly in 2014 there were 653 high schools which has gone up to 1035 high schools."

The BJP MLA also stated that in 2014 there were only three medical colleges in state which has gone up to five medical colleges, efforts for setting up All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS) at Deoghar and Cancer Institute in state capital is on move.

Woman who injected patients held

PNS ■ SAMBALPUR

The police on Monday arrested a woman who posed herself as a staff nurse in the District Headquarters Hospital here and injected more than five patients in the medicine ward.

The staff nurse on duty Rajanai Sahu was suspended for her negligence.

The private security guard deployed in the hospital was removed and the administration served notice to the security agency in this connection. Police said Lili Jal, a local resident, was arrested for illegally entering into the ward and administering saline and injections to the patients on Saturday mid-night.

A mentally upset, Lili due to quarrel with his relatives came to hospital and committed the crime. An investigation was under progress.

As per the report, about 1 am on Saturday night Lili entered into the room number 91 of the medicine ward with nursing uniform and pink coloured jacket with injections and saline bottles.

In absence of staff nurse and other hospital staff, she started injecting one after another patient by directing the attendants to leave the room.

However, when a patient suspected on her activities, he shouted.

The duty nurse and other staff rushed to the spot.

Lili had quarreled with the staff members and later fled. Fortunately, no patient complained of any illness due to the injection as she injected the prescribed medicine. It was suspected that the woman was medically a trained person.

CDMO Dr KK Gupta lodged an FIR with the Town police in connection with the incident and formed a committee to investigate the matter with the help of CCTV.

It may be reminded that on March 24, 2017, a woman with covered face entered into the hospital during mid-night and took away a new born baby.

Police have failed to trace the baby till now. In another incident a security guard on duty molested a 4-year-old child inside the hospital who came to hospital with her ailing mother for treatment. Such incidents have created a big question mark on the security of the hospital.

B'garh Congress leader Pranay Sahu quits party

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

In yet another major setback to the State Congress, Pranay Sahu, who unsuccessfully contested the Bijepur by-poll as party candidate, resigned from the party on Monday.

Sahu tendered his resignation to OPEC president Niranjan Patnaik. However, it was yet to be ascertained as to which party he will join next.

In a letter to the OPEC president, Sahu stated, "I wish to tender my resignation from membership of the Congress and also all the post which I was serving in the party."

He said, "It has been one year since the Bijepur by-polls concluded. I wanted the party to review what led to the defeat of the Congress in the by-elections was it the because of the candidate, the party or people's opinion. But nothing was done in this regard which is one of the reasons of my discontentment." "Besides, I was not given any role in the party after the reorganisation of the Congress following the by-polls. Gradually, people are losing faith in the party due to the infighting," added Sahu.

Sahu was the candidate from the party during the Bijepur by-polls in February last year against the BJD's Rita Sahu and BJP's Ashok Panigrahi. However, he came third with 10,274 votes and lost his deposit.

Meanwhile, senior Congress leader Aryakumar Jnanendra said such resignations won't affect the party's prospects in the State.

EC rejects cyber expert's claim of EVM tempering

Says it's mulling legal action against expert

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

As the Opposition on Monday got fresh ammunition to further its contention that the EVMs can be tampered after a cyber expert said so, the BJP as well as the Election Commission (EC) came out with a strong counter. The BJP accused the Congress of being behind the move while the EC backed the EVMs and said it will even explore legal action against the expert.

Leading "EVM can be hacked charge", West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee said the Opposition will take up with Election Commission the claims made by expert Syed Suja. She said every vote was valuable and the issue should be taken up. "Our great democracy must be protected. Every vote of yours is precious. All Oppn parties discussed the #EVM issue after the #UnitedIndiaAtBrigade rally. We are working closely together and decided on Jan 19 itself to consistently take up the matter with EC. Yes, every vote counts," she tweeted.

The cyber expert has demonstrated how EVMs can allegedly be hacked at an event in London organised by the Indian Journalists' Association (Europe).

Coming out hard, Union Minister MA Naqvi said the Congress has a lot of free-lancers, who sometimes reach even Pakistan to take help for removing Modi. "They are making a hacking horror show of their possible defeat in the upcoming elections," he said.

Congress leader Kapil Sibal didn't go by accident, Naqvi maintained adding he was sent by the Congress, its president Rahul Gandhi and Sonia Gandhi. "Jin logon ko bhi desh aur desh ki loktantrik vyavastha ko badnaam karne ki supari di gayi hai, us supari ko lekar yaha se koi dakiya to jaana chahiye na. Two wo dakiya bheja gaya hai," he asserted.

For its part, the Election Commission issued a statement saying, "It has come to our notice that an event claiming to demonstrate EVMs used by ECI can be tampered with, has been organised in London. ECI has been wary of becoming a party to this motivated slugeft and stands by empirical facts about foolproof nature of ECI EVMs."

"It is being separately examined as to what legal action can and should be taken in the matter," it said even as it went to point out that the EVMs are manufactured in Bharat Electronics Ltd. & Electronics Corporation of India Ltd. under very strict supervisory and security conditions.

"There are rigorous Standard Operating Procedures observed under supervision of a Committee of technical experts constituted in 2010," it pointed out.

Mega rally gave Modi shivers: Sena, Cong

Jaitley, Rajanth say Opp fears PM's popularity

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Opposition's show of unity led by West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee last week has sparked a fresh war of words with the BJP's estranged ally Shiv Sena and Opposition Congress claiming it has given Prime Minister Narendra Modi the "shivers" ahead of the 2019 Lok Sabha polls.

Hitting back, Union Ministers Arun Jaitley and Rajnath Singh said it is only the "fear" of Modi's popularity and a "certain comeback" and BJP's successes that is bringing multiple disparate forces to come together against the Prime Minister.

Referring to the Opposition's show of unity at a rally organised by Banerjee in Kolkata on Saturday, the Sena, in an editorial in party mouthpiece 'Saamna', asked Modi not to live in an illusion that his Government is "immortal". The Sena said the Trinamool Congress (TMC) supremo was taking the Narendra Modi-Amit Shah combine head-on.

"Most of the leaders who attended the rally, including Banerjee, were once allies of the BJP under Atal Bihari Vajpayee's leadership and there is no need to ridicule them. Modi's Government is not an enemy of the country but he should not live in an illusion that his Government is 'amar' (immortal). Why did Modi get shivers from the coming together of 22 Opposition parties," it wondered," it added.

Banerjee had invited Sena chief Uddhav Thackeray to the rally. "All those present on Banerjee's platform were secularists. The Sena is not pseudo-secularist. Our ideology is 'hindutva' and we are firm on our stand on the issues of Ram temple and uniform civil code. The Kolkata rally could not have digested Shiv Sena's stand," it added.

Modi on Sunday dismissed the "mahagathbandhan" (grand alliance) of Opposition parties, alleging it was an alliance of "corruption, negativity and instability" and one created by those affected by his fight against graft.

Finance Minister Arun Jaitley who is abroad for a treatment as per media reports, said its going to be advantage BJP in the general elections as an aspirational society will not commit a "collective suicide" by voting for a short-lived political alliance. Jaitley said the Opposition rally in Kolkata became significantly "a non-Rahul Gandhi rally" by his conspicuous absence.

Dismissing the Opposition 'Mahagathbandhan' as unviable and unworkable, Jaitley said India has moved ahead of 1971 and the aspirational society will not commit a "collective suicide" in the upcoming general elections.

BJP had described the Kolkata rally as a gathering of "opportunistic elements" with the sole agenda of removing Modi without any roadmap for the country's future. The two-fold strategy of the Opposition parties for the general elections is to pursue anti-Modi agenda and take advantage of the electoral arithmetic, he said in a Facebook post titled 'Agenda for 2019 — Modi Vs Chaos'.

Recalling the 1971 General Elections, Jaitley said the Opposition had formed a 'Grand Alliance' or the 'Mahagathbandhan' teaming up against the then prime minister Indira Gandhi but remained unsuccessful. His cabinet colleague Home Minister Rajnath Singh said it was the fear of BJP's successes that made the Opposition parties come together. "They (mahagathbandhan parties) are afraid that BJP will form government again..," Singh told reporters in Greater Noida.

Senior Congress leader Ahmed Patel said Modi's recent remarks about the Opposition's 'mahagathbandhan' and his body language "proved" he was "afraid" of its unity. Patel said the coming together of Opposition parties is guided by a "common objective" to defend and protect the Constitution. "Only those who have undermined and tried to sabotage the Constitution seem to be extremely perturbed by Opposition unity," said Patel.

CBI seeks sanction to prosecute PC in INX Media case

New Delhi:

The CBI has sought the sanction of the Central Government to prosecute former Finance Minister P

Chidambaram in the INX Media case, officials said Monday.

The CBI had registered an FIR on May 15, 2017 against alleged irregularities in the Foreign Investment Promotion Board (FIPB) clearance to INX Media for receiving overseas funds to the tune of ₹305 crore in 2007 when Chidambaram was finance minister.

Chidambaram's son Karti Chidambaram was arrested in the matter for allegedly receiving funds to the tune of Rs 10 lakh.

The other accused in the case include then directors of the INX Media company, Indrani Mukerjea and Peter Mukerjea. PTI

Shah calls for change in Didi land like Tripura

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The BJP on Monday claimed that in a way similar to Tripura, which voted for the party, people of West Bengal would also back it and bring about a political change even as it alleged that the TMC-led State Government was "crushing democratic rights" of the party and not allowing its public meetings and rallies in the State.

Addressing a Press conference here, senior BJP leader and Union Minister Piyush Goyal said party president Amit Shah who is to address a public rally at Malda on Tuesday is not being allowed to land in a given helipad. Shah will be in the West Bengal for two days and address public rallies in Malda and Jhargram. He claimed that the BJP was growing "rapidly" in west Bengal which is indicated by Trinamool Congress's attempts to put road blocks in BJP's move in not allowing it exercise its democratic rights.

He said the bike rally of 'Yuva BJP' was denied for no visible reasons as the state witnessed killing of 36 BJP workers in the last 'Panchayat' polls, he alleged and claimed that the law and order in the state has gone out of control of the TMC Government. "The Opposition alliance partners are not saying a word about the deteriorating law & Order in the state as BJP's democratic rights are being crushed", he alleged. Stating that government was not allowing "Durga puja" or "Saraswati puja", he said "this is height of intolerance which is not being questioned by Congress and others parties."

₹13K cr-PNB-scam accused fugitive Choksi gives up India citizenship

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Fugitive diamond trader Mehul Choksi, a prime accused in ₹13,000 PNB credit fraud case, has surrendered his Indian passport at the Indian High commission in Guyana, official sources said here on Monday.

Choksi had earlier acquired Antiguan passport in 2018 and the latest move is being seen here as a ploy to frustrate extradition efforts against him. Choksi is uncle of fugitive diamantaire Nirav Modi, also an alleged architect of the PNB scam is said to be hiding in the UK.

Since dual citizenship is not allowed as per Indian law, Choksi surrendered his passports after acquiring foreign nationality. The Government has also revoked his passport last year. India will continue to pursue Choksi's return with the government of Antigua through diplomatic and legal channels in order to make him face the law, sources said.

In August 2018, India gave Antigua a request for Choksi's extradition. A team from India was also sent to Antigua to pursue the request where the fugitive has been taking refuge for over a year.

Choksi was wanted in India by the CBI and the Enforcement Directorate in separate cases of fraud and money laundering in connection with the PNB scam, which has been the biggest in the banking sector.

Choksi, 59, has deposited his Indian passport number Z-3396732 to the Indian High Commission in Antigua. Officials said he has also deposited the mandatory $177 for relinquishing Indian citizenship to become a citizen of Antigua and has given his new address as Jolly Harbour, Antigua.

The Ministry of External Affairs had earlier said that Choksi, who had been granted citizenship by Antigua Government, could not have dual citizenship. He was granted citizenship there under an "investment criterion" that allows businessmen to avail citizenship of the Caribbean island in exchange for investments. Citizenship is up for sale in some of these countries and the authorities offer citizenship for nearly ₹1.75 crore.

Choksi had fled India in January last year along with Nirav, his wife Ami Modi and brother Nishal Modi, and was granted Antiguan citizenship in November 2017 after extensive vetting and he took the oath of citizenship on January 15, 2018.

Doval's son accuses Caravan, Jairam Ramesh of defamation, moves court

New Delhi: Vivek Doval, son of National Security Advisor (NSA) Ajit Doval, filed a criminal defamation complaint on Monday against a news magazine for allegedly publishing a defamatory article.

Besides the magazine and the author of the article, Kaushal Shroff, Vivek has also filed the complaint against Congress leader Jairam Ramesh for holding a Press conference on January 17 reiterating the "baseless and unfounded facts" as narrated in the article.

The article claimed that Vivek was running a hedge fund whose promoters are of dubious antecedents.

He has claimed that the magazine was "deliberately maligning and defaming" him to "settle scores with his father".

The Caravan, had in its January 16 online journal titled, "The D Companies" had said that Vivek, "runs a hedge fund in the Cayman Islands" which is "an established tax haven" and was "registered merely 13 days after Prime Minister Narendra Modi's government demonetised all existing Rs 500 and Rs 1,000 currency notes, in 2016".

Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate Samar Vishal is likely to hear the matter on Tuesday.

Vivek has alleged that the contents of the article present "no illegality" on his part, but the entire narration has been presented in a manner, which suggests "wrongdoings" to the readers.

"The very arrangement of the paragraphs and the inter-perspersion of random paragraphs, has been done with the very purpose of confusing the reader and leaving him with the belief that there is a larger conspiracy at play, being spear-headed by the Complainant," said the complaint.

It also said that the social media tweets put out by the magazine's handle gave snippets from the article, which makes it clear that it is merely a targeted attempt to malign and tarnish reputation of Vivek and his family, in order to gain "political credit in light of the upcoming general election".

"The title of the article itself is scandalous to say the least... Creating a prejudice in the minds of the readers against the Complainant and his family," the complaint said. PTI

VVIP chopper case: Court dismisses Tihar's plea against Michel

New Delhi: A Delhi court on Monday dismissed Tihar Central Jail's plea seeking to reduce the time limit given to alleged middleman Christian Michel, arrested in the Agusta Westland VVIP chopper case, to make phone calls to his family members and lawyers abroad.

Special Judge Arvind Kumar, who had granted 15 minutes a week to Michel to make international calls, junked the plea filed by the jail authorities, saying there was no ground to curtail the relief granted to the accused.

The jail superintendent had approached the court, saying the time limit was not as per the jail-manual and the time duration should be decreased. Michel, extradited from Dubai, was arrested by the Enforcement Directorate (ED) on December 22 last year.

The court had earlier imposed restrictions on Michel meeting his lawyers while he was in the ED's custody, after the agency had said he was misusing the legal access by passing chits to his lawyers, asking them how to tackle questions on "Mrs Gandhi".

ED counsels, D P Singh and N K Matta, had also claimed that during the questioning, Michel had spoken about the "son of an Italian lady" and how he was going to become the next Prime Minister of the country. PTI

India to talk with B'desh on 31 Rohingyas detained in Tripura

New Delhi: India is likely to hold talks with Bangladesh to send back 31 Rohingya Muslims, who were detained by the Border Security Force (BSF) while attempting to cross over into Tripura, officials said.

The Rohingya Muslims are stuck in no-man's land, beyond the barbed wire fence along the Indo-Bangladesh border in Tripura since Friday.

The local commandant of the BSF is in touch with his Border Guards Bangladesh (BGB) counterpart, and the Ministry of External Affairs is expected to hold talks with the Bangladesh government for their safe return, a home ministry official said.

The top brass of the BSF has briefed senior officials of the Home Ministry, which in turn is in regular touch with the Ministry of External Affairs.

All the Myanmar-origin Rohingya Muslims were given "comfortable" temporary accommodation at Rayermura, where they were detained, about 15 km from Agartala, in West Tripura district, the official said.

The 31 detained Rohingyas include six men, nine women and 16 children. They are currently at 'Zero Line', beyond the border fence.

The barbed wire fence along the Indo-Bangladesh border is 300 feet inside the Indian territory.

The BGB has been stressing that the detained Rohingyas were from India, while the BSF has been claiming that they were from Bangladesh, another official said.

The Indian government had informed Parliament in 2017 that over 14,000 Rohingya Muslims, registered with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, stay in India.

However, aid agencies estimate there are about 40,000 Rohingya people in the country, many of them suspected to have arrived through Bangladesh.

Hundreds of thousands of Rohingya Muslims, described by the UN as the most persecuted minority in the world, fled their homes last year to escape an alleged crackdown by the Myanmar military. PTI

Don't use single-use plastic for LS poll campaign: Min

New Delhi: Ahead of the 2019 parliamentary elections, the Ministry of Environment, Forests and Climate Change (MoEFCC) has asked all States and Union Territories (UTs) not to use single-use plastic for poll preparations and to encourage use of alternative materials for election campaign.

The ministry also laid down standard guidelines to be adopted for minimising production and use of single-use plastic.

C K Mishra, Secretary, MoEFCC, has written to all the states and UTs reiterating that single-use plastics need to be completely phased out from the country by 2020 so they should switch to alternate options for election campaign.

"You are aware about India's commitment to phase out single-use plastic by 2020. The ill-impacts of plastic waste, which are not recyclable or bio-degradable, are well known. I had earlier written to you with a request to phase out single-use plastic in offices. I am again reiterating the request, particularly with reference to the upcoming general elections," Mishra said in his letter.

The secretary, in his letter to the chief secretaries and chief electoral officers of all the states and UTs on Monday, said all government offices must completely ban all types of plastic carry bags, thermo-col disposable cutlery and discourage the use of artificial banners, flags, flowers, water bottles, plastic folders, etc.

"All events organised by or sponsored by the government shall be single-use plastic free," he said, adding that awareness campaigns should be organised to discourage single-use plastic.

Single-use plastic is often referred to as disposable plastics, commonly used for packaging and items intended to be used only once before they are thrown away.

The ministry suggested alternative options to plastic in campaigning material such as natural fabrics and recycled paper material which have a lesser environmental impact.

"Such materials need to be promoted as a sustainable and environmentally sound management practice. The upcoming general elections present an excellent opportunity to introduce a behavioural change in election campaigning and to promote sustainable practices.

"In this background, I would like to request you to impress upon all concerned to take up sustainable practices and try using alternative options to single-use plastic. This will go a long way in fulfilling India's commitment of phasing out single-use plastic as well as protecting human health and environment," he said.

The ministry has laid down standard guidelines to be followed by the states and UTs regarding single-use plastics to avoid ambiguity and maintain parity among action at state-level.

"I invite you to adopt these guidelines in your state/UT and hope that actions suggested therein would be useful for effective management of plastic waste in your state/UT. We would also urge the states/UTs to come up with innovative ideas to minimise single-use plastic and improve upon these guidelines in their states," Mishra said.

Expressing concern over the rise in the amount of plastic entering oceans and seas, the secretary said marine litter is harmful for marine ecosystem, bio-diversity and potentially human health and there was need for a strategic approach to manage plastic waste.

Under the Plastic Waste Management Rules (PWMR) 2016 notified by the ministry to manage plastic in an environmentally sound manner throughout their life cycle, 15 states and four union territories have issued notifications completely banning plastic carry bags and single-use plastic items like food packaging, cutlery etc., the ministry said.

The ministry also suggested the states to invest heavily in segregation of waste.

"States/UTs may focus on improving last mile delivery of collection and transportation services. The focus should also be placed on improving collection and transportation infrastructure and ensuring segregated waste is collected," it said. PTI

Farce in Karnataka

The brawl among captive MLAs has cost the Congress its ability to hold cadres together

While the Karnataka Congress seems "drunk" on power games, what with its MLAs caught in a nasty brawl with liquor bottles being hurled liberally to decide whether one should stay with the JD(S) government or topple it, the central Congress leadership must realise that it cannot afford to appear so in its quest for national relevance and must restore a modicum of discipline among party rank and file. It must realise that it has yet to build confidence among the electorate as a national alternative and should not be "drunk" over its recent electoral successes in Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh and Rajasthan. Truth be told, it has barely made it and now has to do much more to win back trust, something that regional parties seem to command better at this point of time and is a glue of the federal front as a viable option. It also needs to understand that three Assembly victories are not enough to assume that it can strong-arm its way vis-a-vis allies and that resurgence cannot be seen as arrogance or greed akin to swamping propriety. While one can charge the BJP with attempting a coup in Karnataka to expose the faultlines of the Congress-JD(S) alliance, can the Congress really afford to be swept up by the poachers' trap and risk its image as an auctionable rather than an actionable party? It is sad enough that former Congress Chief Minister Siddaramaiah has had a hard time confining party MLAs to a plush resort to ensure they don't quit the flock. It is a shocker that four MLAs still dared to defy the whip. And the grand old party, instead of chalking out strategies for the Lok Sabha election, has only been playing hide-and-seek games in this crucial southern state, quelling fistfights among legislators over joining the BJP just to get prized posts denied to them in the current regime. If the recent United India rally by the federal front leaders in Kolkata is any indication, then it amply proves that the Congress, in public perception, is very much the B-Team and in Karnataka has done a pathetic, iffy job as an ally. Clearly miffed by such shenanigans, Chief Minister HD Kumaraswamy lost no time in heaping praise on his West Bengal counterpart Mamata Banerjee, saying she was a "good administrator" and has all capabilities of leading the country, indicating that if need be, the regional parties could do without the Congress and could very well choose from many capable prime ministerial candidates among themselves. They could browbeat the Congress even further, which actually needs them more to give the emergency jet packs for political survival.

The Congress high command understands the need for continuity of its alliance government with JD(S) but has somehow desperately failed to impart some lessons in realpolitik to its myopic cadre. Siddaramaiah's discomfort with the Gowdas is well-known and was visibly upset when his loyalists were kept out of the State Cabinet. A disturbing video leak of his critical remarks against the JD(S) had already cost the Congress in the initial days of government formation with chief Rahul Gandhi compelled to make him the chairman of the Congress-JD(S) coordination committee and ensure he was abreast of all developments in the government. The Congress must realise that it will lose all credibility and be considered an opportunist if it sinks Kumaraswamy. The latter, seen as a victim, will be expected to be open to other alliance partners. If the Congress cannot keep its MLAs together and ends up destabilising the government, then it can give up any hope of progressing in the state where a strong Vokkaliga backlash could grind it to dust. The Congress must realise that it has to have grace, humility and the wisdom of a kingmaker if it wants to have a stake in the Lok Sabha elections. It cannot afford to be a king yet, nor behave like one.

Wealth inequality

Oxfam's report might ignore millions of Indians rising from poverty but it does highlight how unequal India remains

As the richest and most powerful men and women in the world get ready to discuss global issues in Davos, Switzerland, the British charity, Oxfam, has released a report highlighting global wealth inequality. It highlights that the world's 26 richest people own as much wealth as the world's 50 per cent of the poorest people and in India, the top nine families control half the country's wealth. While some of the mathematics and calculations used by the charity have been made to sensationalise the issue, there is little escaping from the fact that we live in a highly iniquitous world. But the question is how can this problem be solved?

Inequality has been a hallmark of human civilisation; utopian societies and ideologies that have advocated equality, at least economic equality, have always failed. A massive programme of wealth distribution is not the solution but a more equitable world will require some amount of wealth redistribution and that should happen through Government taxation. As the charity suggests, a one per cent wealth tax on the richest people in the world can easily fund education, and to a certain degree, even healthcare for the very poor. However, clever tax lawyers and low-tax jurisdictions have often made it very easy for the wealthy, or rather the less morally upright among them, to hide their wealth. This has to change and new banking and taxation regulations are making it tougher for people and corporations to shelter their wealth. However, ironically, anti-tax politicians have, by using nativist arguments, propelled themselves to positions of power in several developed countries.

There is little doubt that countries like China have taken massive strides in lifting hundreds of millions out of poverty and indeed in the past two decades so has India — extreme poverty levels have declined. That, however, does not mean that inequality will decline in the long-term. Indeed, in the past, whenever sustained periods of inequality have been around, they usually ended in a bloody revolution, although may be those times are past if Governments across the world can take it upon themselves to solve this problem. This will need a massive transfer of wealth from the developed world to the developing world, something that China managed thanks to its manufacturing prowess. But India has missed the manufacturing bus and with the nation also going to suffer the fallout of global climate change, things are going to be very difficult for this country whose taxpayers are already frustrated. Higher levels of taxation might lead to a brain and wealth drain that this nation cannot afford, yet something has to be done. That is one of the dilemmas facing whoever takes up the hot seat come May 2019.

Civilisational heritage

Leaders and intellectuals, who stand against the Citizenship Bill, must rise above partisan politics and understand that immigrants with Indic links deserve to seek refuge here

SANDHYA JAIN

The anger in Assam and North-eastern States over the Citizenship (Amendment) Bill, 2016 is understandable but not justified. All these States must appreciate that Indian citizenship is a continuum of their civilisational heritage with-in the Indian Republic. Their leaders and intellectuals must rise above partisan considerations and accept that Hindus, Buddhists, Sikhs, Jains and Parsis (Christians cannot be abandoned either), fleeing jihadi terror in Pakistan, Afghanistan and Bangladesh, deserve refuge in India.

The current political leadership in Afghanistan and Bangladesh is not party to the persecution of minorities there but externally-funded fundamentalism is presenting serious challenges to governance in both nations. Pakistan is a cauldron of Islamic fundamentalism, which now seems beyond control. In Bangladesh, radicals have become morbidly intolerant of dissent, as attested by the brutal murders of bloggers demanding ordinary human decencies in society. Recognising this reality, Prime Minister Narendra Modi, while campaigning during the general elections of 2014, had asked the people, "where can persecuted Hindus turn for refuge if not India?" In response to a grim humanitarian crisis, the Centre is proposing that members of minority groups from the neighbourhood become eligible for Indian citizenship after six years of residency instead of 11 years at present. This applies to persons who entered India before December 31, 2018.

The tragedy of Bengali Hindus is a legacy of former Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's supreme indifference to the plight of refugees on both frontiers. His attempt to stem the tide of refugees from west Pakistan was robustly repulsed by Master Tara Singh. In Bengal, the great revolutionaries were no more and barring Syama Prasad Mukherjee, there was no one who could talk tough with Nehru and no organisation which could manage relief in the manner that the Hindu Mahasabha and the Gurdwaras did in Punjab.

Nehru's attitude is best discerned in his letter to the then West Bengal Chief Minister Dr BC Roy (August 16, 1948): "I have your letter of August 4, about the influx from east Bengal. ... But as I told you long ago, there is no reasonable solution to the problem if there is a large influx from east Bengal. That is why I have been terribly anxious throughout to prevent this, whatever might happen. I still think that every effort should be made to prevent it. I think that it was a very wrong thing for some of the Hindu leaders of east Bengal to come to west Bengal."

Subsequently (August 22, 1948), Nehru added, "I have been quite certain right from the beginning that everything should be done to prevent Hindus in east Bengal from migrating to west Bengal...I think the Hindu leaders of east Bengal, who have come away, have done no service to their people. If as you suggest things have gone too far already, then naturally, we shall all do what we can but I shudder at the prospect and the magnitude of the human misery that will come in its train. To the last I shall try to check migration even if there is war."

In other words, the leader, who abandoned the fight to regain territory grabbed by Pakistan in 1947-48, was willing to fight to keep unarmed, desperate and indigent Hindus away from Hindustan.

Syama Prasad Mukherjee resigned from the Cabinet on April 1, 1950, in protest against Nehru's failure to take Pakistan to task for the continued suffering of his people. At a Cabinet meeting the same day, Mukherjee said, "What do you care for us Bengali Hindus? What do you care for the criminal assaults on our women?" (Soundings in Modern South Asian History, ed. DA Low)

Enraged at the renewed exodus of Hindus, which he viewed as deliberate, he suggested an exchange of populations, which Nehru rejected vehemently. The need to stem the flow of refugees on both sides of the borders and avert international opprobrium led to the Nehru-Liaquat Pact (April 8, 1950), wherein each side pledged to secure its minorities and give equality of citizenship regardless of religion. Both sides promised to help recover looted property, assist in the recovery of abducted women and not recognise conversions made during communal disturbances. In India, the problem was especially grim in West Bengal, Assam and Tripura.

Dr Triguna Sen, former Union Minister for Education and former vice-chancellor of the Jadavpur University and Banaras Hindu University, observed in his book, The Marginal Men, "It is extraordinary how passively West Bengal accepted after Partition the uprooting and the near extermination of an entire people who participated almost to a man in the Indian struggle for freedom..." The Hindu population of east Bengal was almost entirely driven out by "riots sponsored by an Islamic State and social, economic and religious persecution of the Hindus by Muslims in collusive partnership with the bureaucracy..." The brutal massacres in various districts of east Bengal in 1950, however, provoked Hindus to retaliate and triggered a two-way exodus that "might have brought about an unofficial transfer of population and the natural solution of the communal problem in West Bengal".

Nehru, for his own reasons, scuttled the de facto population exchange with the 1950 Accord. Thereafter, Muslims, who had left West Bengal, returned and Nehru ensured that their property was restored to them. But the tragedy of the Hindus continues to this day and has encompassed the Buddhist Chakmas of Chittagong Hill Tract.

Before shutting their doors on their Hindu brethren, the people of Assam must own responsibility for the illegal migrations that almost overwhelmed their State. Much has been written about the role of certain politicians in facilitating the influx (even before 1947), insinuating illegals into the voters' list and helping them with ration cards et al. The Assamese allowed the illegals (overwhelmingly Muslims) to grab all vacant agricultural land and make deep inroads into the socio-economic and political fabric (as vote banks) before they finally protested in the late 1970s. Other States, unhappy with Bangladeshi immigrants, have only spoken now when humanitarian gestures are being mooted for Bengali Hindus.

What has the political and civil leadership of each State done to preserve their respective ethnic, social, cultural and linguistic identities? No women in modern Indian history have been so brutalised as the Hindu women of Bengal. Syama Prasad Mukherjee fought for and died in Kashmir. His daughters have a right to solace in their original motherland.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Start-up flaws

Sir — The Indian start-up ecosystem is currently undergoing volatile changes. The exit of Ananth Narayanan from Flipkart-owned Mynt has created uncertainty over the sustainability of start-ups in our country. The rapid growth of Flipkart created a trend for small entrepreneurs and product managers to come on board the 'marketplace' and thrive in a seamless manner. The trend witnessed robust growth of products and Artificial Intelligence and innovation-based ventures, aided by 'angel investors' and Silicon Valley tech-entrepreneurs, who were hired to oversee the 'operations' in India. With rapid progress in providing product-based solutions, leaders were then looked upon as the emerging 'Jack Mas' of India.

But now, the focus has shifted to markets and survival instead of improving product strategy. The sudden urge to survive and make a dash in the market has led to a series of rapid mergers and acquisitions. The much-needed thrust on innovation, too, is weakening. The ecosystem is now witnessing poster boys and Silicon Valley leaders are leaving the boardrooms with a huge kitty. The vacuum created has, thus, resulted in no significant trail of either a commendable leadership to carry on the start-up story or no major achievement related to innovation or a product legacy.

A great show of grand unity but what next?

This refers to the editorial, "Didi's headline act" (January 21). It was interesting to see the show of strength at the mega rally organised by the Trinamool Congress (TMC) in Kolkata, which was attended by over 20 Opposition parties, who came together with one agenda — to dethrone Prime Minister Narendra Modi. The irony, however, is that the gathering didn't bring a common ideology to the table which it ought to have if it really intended to take away the focus from a personality war. Defeating the Modi Government, therefore, will be a Herculean task for Opposition parties as all leaders seem to be governed by their own interests. TMC chief and West Bengal Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, made it clear that Congress president Rahul Gandhi was not their chosen prime ministerial candidate for the 2019 Lok Sabha poll.

The bigger question then is: Even if the Opposition wins the poll battle, who will become the Prime Minister? As top leaders from the Congress skipped the mega rally, it may well be a strategic ploy of the grand old party to play to the gallery. For them, it is good to remain tongue-tied. The adage, 'silence is golden' is what they should stand by in present times as in the coming days, the political drama will certainly entertain every one.

Emerging story

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "Didi's headline act" (January 21). There can be no second opinion that by getting most of the leaders in the Opposition to converge in Kolkata and actively participate in her rally, West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee has proved that she can be a great organiser.

Now that the ball to remove the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has started rolling, it is paramount that the Opposition remains united and chalks out ways and means to achieve this goal without leaving any room for complacency, egos or animosity till the target has been achieved.

Innovation is not exploitation

Controls on GM crops will curb access to new solutions needed to tackle climate change. Our farmers will be the biggest losers

UTTAM GUPTA

Bt cotton, the only Genetically Modified (GM) crop so far allowed for cultivation in India, is genetically tweaked to kill bollworms that ravage cotton crops. It promises substantial increase in return by saving on pesticide use and increase in crop yield. At the price paid for Bt cotton seed, including technology fee paid to biotech major Monsanto, farmers get handsome returns. Since its introduction, the use of Bt cotton in India has increased manifold with the area under coverage, leap-frogging from a mere 50,000 hectare to around 12 million hectare, covering major States such as Gujarat, Andhra Pradesh and Maharashtra. At present, 98 per cent of the area under cotton is covered by Bt technology. Yet Bayer-Monsanto (renamed after acquisition of Monsanto by Bayer) faces a stifling environment due to legal/judicial, regulatory and administrative hurdles. On March 28, 2017, a single judge Bench of the Delhi High Court upheld Monsanto's patent related to the gene sequence responsible for Bt trait but held as illegal the latter's termination of its sub-licence agreement for GM hybrid cotton seeds with Nuziveedu Seeds (a local seed company). It also ordered domestic companies to make all future royalty payments as per Government stipulations.

While Monsanto challenged the above order pertaining to termination of sub-licence agreement, Nuziveedu challenged the portion upholding of the patent. A Division Bench of the Delhi High Court in its judgement on May 2, 2018, invalidated the patent, arguing that gene sequence responsible for Bt trait is a part of the seed, and, hence, unpatentable in terms of Section 3(j) of the Patents (Amendment) Act, 2005 that excludes higher life forms like plants, animals and their parts, and essential biological processes from the realm of patentability. Bayer Monsanto challenged this order in the Supreme Court. In its order dated January 8, the apex court restored Monsanto's Bt cotton patent in India till its validity is decided finally by Delhi High Court. But this does little to unshackle the company. In December 2015, the Union Agriculture Ministry had issued a Cotton Seed Price Control Order under which it fixed the price of cotton seed sales all over the country at a uniform level and max trait fee (royalty) payable to Monsanto. Under it, MRP of a packet of Bollgard II seed (450 grams) was cut from ₹930 (including ₹163 for trait fee) to ₹800 (₹42 trait fee). The cut in trait fee alone was ₹121. In March 2018, the price was further reduced to ₹740, including trait value of ₹39.

The company had challenged the order but till date, the court has not even started hearing the case. Meanwhile, limiting the trait fee to a pittance five per cent of MRP denies the innovator a reasonable opportunity to recuperate the investment on discovery, development and commercialisation of the new transgenic variety. Furthermore, on May 18, 2016, the ministry had issued another order, making it mandatory for Monsanto to license technology to any seed company that approaches it. Following protests, though the order was withdrawn, local companies are freely selling seeds bearing patented technology of the biotech major. A company, which holds patent for the product of its innovation, has exclusive rights over its production/import, distribution, pricing and use. In this case, however, forget exclusivity, the innovator/patent holder (read: Monsanto) has no say whatsoever even as decision on all these parameters are taken by the Government. The situation remains unchanged despite the top court's order.

This is not a good sign for farmers, who will not only be denied access to advanced versions of Bt cotton but also new technology solutions for saline soils, drought- and flood-resistant GM crops. They badly need the help of technology to meet the challenges of fast-changing climatic conditions. Already, Monsanto withdrew the herbicide tolerant cotton seeds from the approval process in August 2016. Reportedly, it also put in abeyance its plans to submit newer seeds for approval in India. A collateral damage is by way of unapproved new seeds finding their way to the farmers. According to the Field Inspection and Scientific Evaluation Committee, a body of experts chaired by the co-chair of Genetic Engineering Approval Committee, around 15 per cent of the seeds being used in major cotton-growing States comprise unapproved herbicide-tolerant seeds. Even worse, these seeds are selling at ₹1,200-1,500 per packet — almost double the MRP of Bollgard II seed (albeit approved) fixed by the Union Government. These illegal seeds have increased the problem of resistant weeds and are responsible for the new threat posed to the cotton crop — pink bollworms. The crux of the problem lies with the mindset of the Government. It feels that the innovator is out there to exploit the patent-induced monopoly to fleece farmers, which is not true. This in turn prompts it to impose excessive controls viz pricing, licensing a royalty. This mindset has to change or else our farmers will be put to loss due to denial of access to new solutions.

Test of a United India

The fissures in the mahagathbandhan are gradually becoming visible and its ability to maintain a united front till after the election results will be the decider

AMITABH SHUKLA

As the Lok Sabha election gets tantalisingly close, the season of mahagathbandhan or a grand alliance has started in right earnest. So has flexing of political muscles by what can loosely be called as the anti-Bharatiya Janata Party (anti-BJP) — a conglomeration of diverse regional parties, united by a single agenda of removing the Modi-Shah duo from national politics in the Lok Sabha election. Of course, BJP rebel and now architect of the "Save Democracy" movement Yashwant Sinha adroitly reminded everybody that the Modi versus Rest narrative would only strengthen the former's image and the Opposition needed to counter the BJP on ideological counts.

Raised hands and clenched fists of all leaders present in the Kolkata rally, organised by the Trinamool Congress (TMC), not only gave a perfect photo opportunity to Opposition leaders but somewhere down the line increased the frown lines of the defender — the BJP-led National Democratic Alliance (NDA). Many considered the rally largely as an exercise to project TMC chief and West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee as a possible prime ministerial candidate of the grand Opposition alliance for the Lok Sabha poll even though the stated objective was to bring all anti-BJP parties on the same platform. But that's just one aspect of the burgeoning index of Opposition unity.

Of course, all the 20-plus parties that participated in the Kolkata rally on January 19 had different agenda on their minds. Most of them were looking for a better outing in the Assembly polls with their respective alliances, where the BJP has become a force to reckon with since 2014. But given that the TMC hosted the first successful Opposition rally and managed to get on board almost all leaders and parties opposed to the BJP, it can now safely claim to be the leader of this Third Front. Banerjee also pitched herself as a sort of an arbitrator for possible disputes, whenever and wherever they arise, among this Front. Her diplomatic handling of the stage and giving importance to all the leaders present amply suggested her ease of managing diverse interests, her acceptability and showed her national ambitions.

But the fissures in such a loose formation are still too wide and its ability to pose as a united front before the election is still a matter of speculation. Telugu Desam Party (TDP) chief Chandrababu Naidu, who was present in the Kolkata rally, has practically abandoned the Congress with which he had sewed an alliance for the Assembly polls of Telangana. Congress president Rahul Gandhi and Naidu had become the poster boys of this mahagathbandhan then, beaming as they were with hands raised in solidarity.

As an afterthought, the TDP supreme perhaps realised that he cannot give much space to the Congress to grow in his home state of Andhra Pradesh. An alliance with the Congress in the State would limit his chances to have a go at the chair of Prime Minister. He might have perhaps looked at the prospects of him somehow becoming a possible compromise candidate in the event of this Opposition grand alliance getting close to government formation.

Besides, Mamata Banerjee and Chandrababu Naidu, who are possibly looking at a national role

“ POST-VERDICT ELECTORAL SUPPORT AND ALLIANCES COULD BE QUITE DIFFERENT FROM THE ONES CEMENTED PRE-POLL. IN A POSSIBLE SCENARIO WHERE THE NDA IS A LITTLE SHORT OF MAJORITY, THE BSP COULD ALWAYS SPRING A SURPRISE. IT HAS A HISTORY OF ALIGNING WITH BOTH SP AND BJP. THERE HAS BEEN NO SHIFT IN BSP'S IDEOLOGY EVEN AS IT GOES TO POLLS THIS TIME AROUND AS A FORMIDABLE FORCE IN ALLIANCE WITH THE SP IN UTTAR PRADESH

for themselves, this anti-BJP Opposition front also has Dalit leader and Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) chief Mayawati as the prime ministerial candidate. She has been endorsed strongly not only by her own party but also by her newly-found political partner and nephew Akhilesh Yadav of the Samajwadi Party (SP). The Bua-Bhatija alliance is the one which has set the tone and template for the general election and almost every political pundit now says that the road to New Delhi this time would go through the lanes and bylanes of Lucknow and Uttar Pradesh.

Days before the Kolkata rally of the Opposition, the SP-BSP alliance in Uttar Pradesh triggered a wave of anticipation among the anti-BJP front and threw open a wide range of political possibilities at the cost of the saffron party in the largest State of the country. The TMC rally simply took the idea of unity ahead and sort of announced to the world that the neutral Third Front was alive and kicking and both the BJP and the Congress should consider it as a possible contender for the throne in Delhi provided it gets the numbers leaders are hoping for. And if all parties do well individually, then the Congress can provide outside support if the situation so warrants.

Coming back to the SP-BSP alliance, even the Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) in Bihar, which has a vote base similar to the SPs in Uttar Pradesh, is excited about its prospects. This perhaps explains why Tejaswi Yadav, the de facto supreme of the party in the absence of the incarcerated Lalu Prasad Yadav, dashed to Lucknow to congratulate Mayawati on her birthday and tweeted pictures in which he touched her feet reverentially. It's rare to see bonhomie between the parties representing the Dalits (BSP) and OBCs led by the Yadav community (SP and RJD), as they have not only been at political but also social loggerheads for decades.

Tejaswi knows for sure that keeping the BSP in good humour would only help consolidate and expand the vote base of the grand alliance in Bihar. Dalit leader and Lok Janshakti Party (LJP) chief Ram Vilas Paswan is firmly in the NDA fold, at least for the Lok Sabha election, and the RJD would be more than happy to get any incremental votes of Dalits in the State if Mayawati is on board even if the BSP does not contest a single seat as part of the grand alliance in Bihar. In fact, the RJD could go to the extent of offering a seat or two to the BSP even though the Mayawati-led party does not have any foothold in the neighbouring state.

In this season of anti-BJP posturing, photo ops and alliances ahead of the Lok Sabha poll, the only motive seems to be removal of Narendra Modi as the Prime Minister by working out sound electoral mathematics and ensuring a higher seat turnout than the BJP did in the 2014 polls. The SP-BSP alliance is simply banking on the fact that if it gets a combined vote share, which is higher than the NDA's in the state, it would be in the driver's seat. Of course, chemistry and adjustment are equally important in alliances and it remains to be seen how firmly it is cemented at the grassroots and booth levels.

Left out of the alliance in Uttar Pradesh — a move on expected lines — the Congress is neither happy nor unhappy at this moment, contemplating the different possibilities along with permutations and combinations ahead. Optimists in the party believe that at the end of the day, the SP-BSP alliance could be a part of the UPA if the numbers so demand and they are at a striking distance of forming the next government. Of course, Mayawati would throw her hat in the ring for a possible go at the chair of Prime Minister if the situation so warrants and the mahagathbandhan gets a respectable number of seats. This situation would be conditional on the Congress not doing well and remaining well below 100 seats, regional parties dominating the results and the BSP itself performing well and getting a reasonable number of the 38 seats it would be contesting out of the 80 in Uttar Pradesh.

But there is many a slip between the cup and the lip. Post-verdict electoral understandings, support and alliances could be quite different from the ones cemented pre-poll. In a possible scenario where the NDA is a little short of majority, the BSP could always spring a surprise. It has a history of aligning with both SP and BJP, and there has been no shift in BSP's ideology even as it goes to polls this time around as a formidable force in alliance with the SP in Uttar Pradesh.

Similarly, the TDP, too, could go anywhere — from the NDA to the UPA, or to Third Front — in the post-poll political calculations. In the last six months, we have seen the party travelling all platforms. So there we are. It all depends on numbers after the polling and till then, all political parties would be posturing and keeping their options open. Much water will flow till then.

Political economy of tribal development

Reinstating the fundamental right to property is just one area that the Government must work upon to ensure tribals get their due. What is needed is to encompass tribal welfare as a core value of forest management

VK BAHUGUNA

Tribal development (especially adivasi) has been a hot topic of discussion for ruling Governments as well as political parties. Ever since independence, several Governments have launched numerous programmes, which have seen minimal success in terms of enhancing the socio-economic condition of the tribal population. Of course, a minuscule group of educated people have benefitted from the policy of job reservation. But it is the land tenure reforms that have been at the forefront of tribal struggles. Many NGOs as well as social workers have been raising the issue of tribal land with the forest department. Tribal livelihood rights, after all, are intricately linked with the management of forest ecosystems. For, it is equally important that forest bio-diversity remains in good shape to meet tribal needs.

Not only the tribal people but villagers living in about 170,000 villages, situated in and around 32 million hectare of forest lands, are partially dependent on the adjoining forest lands for daily needs. As per the 2011 Census, the tribal population in India stood at 10.4 crore and constituted around 8.6 per cent of the total population. In 2004, the then NDA Government had brought to fore the issue of historical injustice regarding settlement of disputed claims of tribals over forest-lands, which were pending since decades, particularly after the enactment of the Forest Conservation Act, 1980. A notification was issued on February 4, 2004, recognising the rights of occupation of forest lands by tribal people and a procedure was communicated to the States to vest the occupied land. This recognition was welcomed but could not be implemented because the NDA could not come back to power. Taking cue from this notification, the then UPA Government re-initiated the process and enacted the Scheduled Tribes and Other Traditional Forest Dwellers (Recognition of Forest Rights) Act, (FRA) 2006. Ever since, it remains one of the biggest reforms to correct the historic injustice done to tribals. It will be appropriate to examine the impact of this Act on the political economy of the tribals.

One of the biggest constraints for forest management and tribal development is that our forests, regions of tribal habitation and mineral-bearing areas overlap each other. Due to this, inherent conflicts occur. For long-term sustainability of forest management and to meet the climate change targets, it is essential that not only does our forest land become productive enough but also that the land vested under the Act can offer a decent livelihood to tribals, in a manner that their dependency on forests is gradually reduced. The ultimate goal should be that our forests are manned for ecological sustainability of all kinds of landscapes. For this to happen, it is essential that political parties assess the economic polity of the tribal-forests interface and chalk out an integrated strategy.

Let us first examine the implementation of the FRA. Though the basic surmise of the Act, before its enactment, was on community rights, it is now focused on settling individual rights. It will be interesting to note that during the last 10 years, till May 2018, 58.5 lakh hectares of land were vested but more than half of this figure was distributed in the next five months, by the end of October 2018. The Act is open-ended and for the past 10 years, the process is still on.

This reflects that either the system is incompetent or the Act is being used as a tool to barter away forest land. The moot point is: Was it an easy task for the tribal, revenue and forests departments to ascertain the land under occupation, as on 2006 when this Act came into effect? Why it is taking so long for officials to ascertain tribal occupation? Land is a precious resource. A lackadaisical attitude in implementation will yield to increasing encroachments of our forest lands. Political parties as well as the Government must act timely, pull up their socks to fix this malady. After this, focus must be shifted to developing these lands for better returns to the beneficiaries. Land rights, however, are not the only reason for tribal alienation. The lack of infrastructure, deteriorating health conditions, struggle for livelihood and educational deprivation, too, are some of the reasons why they feel disenchanted. Unless the land vested is demarcated, digitised and becomes productive, the real purpose of tribal empowerment will not be achieved.

The implementation of FRA should, therefore, be linked with the creation of livelihood. A nationally coordinated project, in collaboration with the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change, Ministry of Agriculture & Farmers' Welfare, Ministry of Tribal Affairs, Ministry of Water Resources, River Development & Ganga Rejuvenation, Ministry of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises, Ministry of New and Renewable Energy, Ministry of AYUSH and Ministry of Rural Development for livelihood generation is a sine qua non. The project should also have a second component, based on a cluster approach to be implemented by the Ministry of Human Resource Development, Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs, Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, Ministry of Power to create necessary infrastructure.

Questions now arise about its implementation. Considering the interface between forests and tribes, the National Commission for Scheduled Tribes requested the Government to rename Indian Forest Service (IFS) as the Indian Forest and Tribal Service. This is an excellent proposal but renaming IFS is not essential. What is needed is to encompass tribal welfare as a core value of forest management. For this, IFS training will require changes and the Indian Institute of Forest Management and Indra Gandhi National Forest Academy should be assigned this task. The IFS cadre will require revamping to create a capable force. To begin with, one Additional Director-General's post should be created in the Ministry of Environment to deal with tribal affairs, ensure convergence and plan future set-ups. In the long-run, a tribal child should grow up imbibing his culture while encompassing the fruits of modern development.

1 cr take dip on Paush Purnima in Prayagraj

PTI ■ ALLAHABAD An aerial view shows devotees take a holy dip on the occasion of Paush Purnima in Allahabad on Monday

Braving intense chill, over 1.07 crore devotees took a dip in the Ganga river here on Monday on the occasion of Paush Purnima — the second auspicious bathing day of the Kumbh Mela.

From Sunday night itself, the Sangam area was buzzing with activity as devotees started arriving even as security forces maintained a close watch on the movement of pilgrims and visitors at the mela venue. Even before the sunrise, devotees were seen coming out from the ghats after taking the dip. "Over 1.07 crore devotees have taken a dip so far on the occasion of Paush Purnima. Drone cameras are being used to keep a watch and maintain vigil over the mela area," Mela adhiikaari Vijay Anand told reporters here.

Officials repeatedly made announcements requesting devotees not to venture into deep waters and also keep an eye over suspicious elements in their vicinity and report it to the police.

The full moon was at its splendid best over Sangam before the break of dawn and devotional songs greeted visitors in the area. Fog too was seen before the sunrise at various places in the Sangam area. However, it failed to dampen the mood of devotees, who turned up in large numbers for the Paush Purnima bath. As the day progressed, the number of devotees coming to take the holy dip increased. The Purnima or full moon day will also mark the beginning of Kalpas (the period of austerity) at Kumbh Mela. Elaborating on the significance of Paush Purnima, Swami Adhokshanand said, "Paush Purnima is a significant day for Hindus which falls on the full moon day of Paush in the Hindu calendar. On this day, devotees from different parts of the country assemble at Sangam to take a holy dip."

"Even Lord Krishna had said in the Hindu calendar, he represents the month of Paush," he said. Satish Shukla, who came from Kanpur for the holy dip, said, "Various facilities at the mela venue have improved significantly. The Ganga river looks a lot cleaner now as compared to earlier times."

On Sunday, UP Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath had greeted people on the eve of Paush Purnima.

In a statement issued in Lucknow, Adityanath said, "Paush Purnima, which is sym-

Kinnar Akhara to build ashram in Allahabad

New Delhi: Kinnar Akhara, a group of transgender saints in Prayagraj Kumbh, announced on Monday it will set up an ashram in the city, according to a statement issued here by the Ministry of Culture. The group, which had attended the Ujjain Kumbh in 2016, have been taking part in the holy baths at the Kumbh Mela this year along with the other akhara. "Transgenders were badly exploited in the society and even their parents were forced to live a disgraceful life. Transgenders have been part of Sanatan Dharm and they have been given respectful status in religious epics and books of Hindu mythology. Akhara has provided forum to transgenders to pursue dignified life with religious rituals," Acharya Mahamandaleswar Lakshmi Narayanan Tripathi, chief of Kinnar Akhara said. PTI

PM to inaugurate 15th Pravasi Bharatiya Divas

PTI ■ VARANASI

Prime Minister Narendra Modi will inaugurate the 15th Pravasi Bharatiya Divas on Tuesday in this temple town and hold talks with his Mauritian counterpart Pravid Jugnauth after the inaugural session. External Affairs Minister Sushma Swaraj inaugurated the Youth Pravasi Bharatiya Divas on Monday, along with Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath, and said the Indian diaspora has dramatically changed the world's perception of Indians and India.

Mauritian Premier Jugnauth arrived here in the afternoon and was received by Minister of State for External Affairs VK Singh. Later, Swaraj called on the Mauritian PM and exchanged views on a range of issues, including strengthening bilateral cooperation.

For the first time, the three-day-long convention is being organised from January 21 to 23 instead of January 9 to allow participants visit the Kumbh mela in Allahabad and attend the Republic Day parade here.

The theme of this year's convention is 'role of Indian diaspora in building new India', a statement from the Prime Minister's Office said.

Varanasi is Modi's parliamentary constituency. Jugnauth will be the chief guest of the convention, while Himanshu Gulati, member of Parliament of Norway, will be the special guest.

Kanwaljit Singh Bakshi, member of Parliament of New Zealand, will be the guest of honour. President Ram Nath Kovind will address the concluding function on January 23.

Over 4,000 NRI delegates from about 85 countries are attending the event and many of them will be staying in the tent city, built specially for them. After Pravasi Divas, the guests will be taken for a visit to the Kumbh Mela on January 24 where also a tent city has been set up.

A cultural village has been developed in Prayagraj, showing the history from the Indus Valley Civilisation. The 'pravasi' will be taken to New Delhi on the night of January 24 and will have a "Delhi darshan" the next day.

They will also witness the Republic Day Parade on January 26. Uttar Pradesh is the partner state for the event and a novel feature this year is the concept of 'Varanasi hospitality' under which local people are hosting the Indians living

MJ Akbar on booklet; MEA says nothing to do with Pravasi Divas

Varanasi: A booklet featuring MJ Akbar, who resigned as Minister of State for External Affairs following allegations of sexual misconduct by several women, was distributed to delegates at the Pravasi Bharatiya Divas here, triggering a controversy with the Congress attacking the Government over it.

Sources in the Ministry said Akbar is not at all associated with the event and that the booklet was published in May last year, months before he quit abroad at their homes as "family guests".

The First Plenary Session on 'Engagement with younger members of Indian Diaspora', co-chaired by Minister of State for Youth Affairs and Sports

Rajyavardhan Rathore and Singh, was held on Monday.

Uttar Pradesh Pravasi Bharatiya Divas was also held on Monday where renowned NRIs with family roots in the State took part.

as Minister. The booklet highlighted achievements of the MEA in the last four years and all the ministers in the MEA featured in it. "The booklet was published months before Akbar quit as a Minister," said a Government official. PTI

Bulls gore to death 2 persons in Jallikkattu

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ CHENNAI

An attempt by a Minister in the Edappadi Palaniswami Government to create a world record in Jallikkattu in his home district ended up in a tragedy on Sunday as two spectators were gored to death by bulls while 40 people were injured in the mele.

The incident happened within minutes of Chief Minister Palaniswami who inaugurated the event at Viralmalai in Puthukotta district declaring that Jallikkattu was Tamil Nadu's sport of valour.

A Ramu, a 32-year-old spectator and G Satish (35), a bull owner were gored to death. The event was organised by the controversial Health Minister C Vijaya Baskar, who hails from the district and who also owns costly bulls. It may be remembered that the home and offices of Vijaya Baskar were raided twice by the Income Tax department in the run up to the April 2017 RK Nagar by-poll and had seized unaccounted cash worth crores of rupees and incriminating documents.

"The Income Tax authorities have informed that several complaints were received recently indicating that Dr C Vijaya Baskar is the main person involved in bribing the voters in RK Nagar Assembly constituency which is going to bypolls on April 12, 2017. Some loose sheets were found with his accountant Mr Srinivasan indicating distribution of Rs 89 crore to a number of politicians for further distribution among the voters," said the Election Commission of India order issued to announce the rescinding the bypoll in April 2017.

Vijaya Baskar announced on Sunday that the Viralmalai Jallikkattu would be a regular feature in Tamil Nadu's sporting calendar. A record number of 1,353 bulls and 700 tamers took part in the event. More than 300 persons had been injured in various jallikkattu events which commenced after the Pongal festivities of this year. These are the first fatalities of the 2019 Jallikkattu season which is expected to last up to September. The year 2018 saw 32 persons getting gorrred to death by bulls (unofficial figures put that fatalities as 68 dead). More than 20 bulls got killed in last year's event.

"Jallikkattu stands out as a symbol of Tamil's valour. By conducting such a grand event Viralmalai has grabbed a place in the list of Jallikkattu famed places like Alanganallur, Palamedu and Avaniyapuram," said the Chief Minister while inaugurating the event.

Antony Rubin, an animal rights activist who has been waging a legal battle against the Jallikkattu pointed out that the exact number of persons killed in bull taming event would never be known. "We saw two persons getting killed at Viralmalai. The fate of those persons who have been admitted to hospitals would never be known as these events take place in remote villages. The attention of the media as well as the officials shift to the next location and Viralmalai id forgotten," said Rubin. Supreme Court is hearing a batch of petitions filed by animal rights activist pleading for

Send team to check fish quality: AP CM to Nitish

PTI ■ AMARAVATI

After Bihar banned sale of Andhra fish over quality concerns, Chief Minister Chandrababu Naidu on Monday requested his Bihar counterpart Nitish Kumar to send a technical team to look into the issue and restore the trade between the two States.

The Bihar Government has imposed a ban for 15 days in Patna after it found formalin, a known carcinogen, in some of the consignments brought from Andhra Pradesh. Formalin is used to preserve fish.

In a letter written to the Bihar Chief Minister, Naidu informed that the State Government has conducted surprise raids and tested samples but could not find formalin in any fish products.

The AP State Fish Farmers Association has denied alleged use of formalin to preserve the fish. Acquaculture farmers and traders have said this could be an attempt to disturb trade between two States, he added.

Against the backdrop, Naidu requested the Bihar CM to "depute a technical team from Bihar state for quality check" and take initiative against the persons responsible for damaging the image of Andhra State fishery products and to restore the good fish trade relations as existed earlier.

He also suggested quality checks at borders of Bihar for which Andhra Government is ready to depute a team.

If required, the Andhra Government is ready to issue quality certification as per the procedure suggested by Bihar Government, he added.

After Navy, Meghalaya suspends operation to retrieve dead miner's body

Shillong: Meghalaya Chief Minister Conrad K Sangma on Monday suspended the operation to retrieve the body of a dead miner trapped inside a 370-foot-deep coal mine to avoid disintegration of the decomposed corpse.

The State Government's order came a day after the Navy on Sunday suspended the operation to pull the body out after it was found by the unmanned ROV last week during a routine search mission inside the main shaft where the 15 miners are trapped since December 13.

The State Government has given the order of suspending the operation to pull out the body of the miner as it is becoming an impossible task, Sangma told mediapersons.

We decided that we will suspend the operation because it is really not working out, he added. We have asked the medical department, Navy, administration and forensic department for their advice and observation, he said. Asked if the State Government will call off the rescue operations involving multi-agencies, including the Navy and the NDRF, Sangma said, no decision had been taken yet. We are going to take inputs from all the experts from different organisations that have been working on this and once we get the report from all of them, it will be appropriate to decide on how to move forward, he said.

Operation spokesperson R Susngi on the other hand informed that the district authorities were waiting for the family members of another seven miners hailing from Rajabala area in West Garo Hills district to identify the miner.

Eight drowned as boat capsizes in Karnataka

PTI ■ BENGALURU

Eight persons drowned and another was 'missing' while 17 people were rescued when a boat carrying about 26 pilgrims capsized at Karwar, the Indian Navy said on Monday.

According to police, there was an annual fair at the Kurumagada island in the Arabian sea, where the Narsimha Swamy shrine (dedicated to Lord Vishnu's incarnation Narsimha) is located. Police had earlier said nearly 1,000 people had gone there to take part in the fair and the boat capsized while returning to the Karwar beach.

The Navy said in a tweet that there were 26 people in the boat. Learning about the incident, Navy and Indian Coast Guard carried out rescue operations.

Of the 26 persons reported to be on the boat, 17 people were rescued by other civil boats operating in the area, the Navy said. Eight bodies have been recovered by the navy and Coast Guard while search is on for the one person still missing. A Dornier aircraft has been launched from Goa for search and rescue, the Navy added.

Rain lashed plains while higher reaches witnessed fresh snowfall in the Valley. The MET office has forecasted widespread rain and snow with heavy falls at isolated places till Tuesday

BJP cancels Modi's Feb 8 Brigade rally

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Monday attacked the BJP for carrying out disinformation campaign against her Government over the change in landing location of BJP president Amit Shah's chopper at Malda in North Bengal where he will hold a rally later this week.

The BJP is distorting facts she said, adding her Government had already granted her permission for the Malda rally. "We gave permission for the meeting without objecting to it," she said, adding "police had only said that the chopper should land at some other location because of some security reasons. But they are unnecessarily creating a hullabaloo over it."

The issue was however solved following reports that Shah's chopper would land at

Meanwhile, Karnataka Chief Minister HD Kumaraswamy backed Mamata Banerjee for the Prime Ministerial chair a visibly thrilled Trinamool Congress leadership said the JD(S) leader's statements testified Bengal Chief Minister's acceptance throughout the country the BSF helipad.

The BJP president was to hold a series of rallies in Bengal apart from the one's to be addressed by Prime Minister whose reported February 8 rally at Brigade Parade Ground stood to be cancelled.

"The Central leadership has said that it will not be easy to hold the Prime Minister's rally at Brigade at such a short notice and so it will be deferred to March after the Class-X and plus-two exams," State BJP sources said adding "Modi ji however would hold four rallies in between at various locations in the State"

Meanwhile, hours after Karnataka Chief Minister HD Kumaraswamy backed Mamata Banerjee for the Prime Ministerial chair a visibly thrilled Trinamool Congress leadership said the JD(S) leader's statements testified Bengal Chief Minister's acceptance throughout the country.

Senior State Minister and TMC general secretary Partho Chatterjee on Monday said though Banerjee currently was for postponing all other considerations so that all parties could concentrate only on dislodging the Narendra Modi Government, Kumaraswamy's statement only underscored her abilities and acceptance.

His comments "only underscore the ability and acceptance of Mamata Banerjee throughout the country," Chatterjee said adding "though Mamata Banerjee is not in the Central Government now Mr Kumaraswamy's statements prove that she is anyway in the centre of everything."

Kumaraswamy had earlier told agencies that the Bengal Chief Minister by dint of her long stint as a good administrator had developed all the capabilities to lead the country.

He said, "She is simplest of simple and a very good administrator. I believe that Mamata ji has all the capabilities of leading the country and she has already proved herself by leading Bengal for so many years."

India's first all-women's party launched, to contest Lok Sabha polls

Mumbai: India's first-ever all-women political party — the National Women's Party (NWP) — was launched on Monday in Mumbai and it will contest half — 283 — of the 545 Lok Sabha seats in the 2019 elections. The NWP, described as "a party of mothers", has been founded by a medico and social activist, (Dr) Shwetha Shetty, and will strive for 50 per cent reservation for women in the lower House.

"This party is a historic step in our mission to ensure equal representation for women in Parliament. Our ideology is to remove gender disparity in politics and thus create equal importance for females in the patriarchal Indian society," Shetty told the media persons at the formal kick-start here.

She pointed out that the battle to get reservations in Parliament is now over two decades old, but the fact is that we continue in a society where most political decisions are taken by males, with females not having an equal say in Parliament, thus diminishing the possibility of "women empowerment".

During occult rituals, newborn buried alive in UP to save family members

PTI ■ SHAHJAHANPUR

A newborn was buried alive during occult rituals in Uttar Pradesh's Shahjahanpur district, officials said on Monday.

After hearing cries from under a pit, locals informed police and rescued the one-month-old girl. She has been admitted to a nearby hospital, the officials said.

The incident happened on Friday near Puraina village under Jalalabad police station area of the district.

The father of the girl, during probe, said as she was not keeping well a relative took him to an occultist who advised him to bury her in order to save other family members, ASP (rural) Sudhakar Chandra Shukla said.

The father, the occultist and the girl's aunt have been arrested, he said.

Not in race for PM post: Akhilesh

Lucknow: The country is looking for a new Prime Minister and the BJP needs to come out with a new face, if it has one, Samajwadi Party president Akhilesh Yadav said Monday while making it clear that he is not in the race for the top post.

"As far as leadership issue is concerned, it is actually the people who decide it...You will see, in time to come, how many choices we have," he told reporters here when asked as to who would be the leader of opposition parties against Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

He, however, made it clear that he was "not in the prime ministerial race". "But, one thing is totally clear that the country is waiting for a new Prime Minister...If the BJP, which is so concerned about us, has a new PM, they should tell the people," Yadav, who recently shared platform with opposition leaders in Kolkata, said. To a question, the SP president said the SP and the BSP have taken a decision on most of the seats and an announcement in this regard will be made soon.

"As far as SP patron Mulayam Singh Yadav is concerned, the party will field him from the seat of his choice," he said.

Asked whether his wife and Kannauj MP Dimple Yadav will contest polls again, Akhilesh said, "We are liberal people...If you say she will contest. If you say we are practising 'pariwarwad', she will not." On the controversy over BJP MLA Sadhana Singh's remarks against BSP president Mayawati, he said the language being used by ruling party leaders is the result of their frustration.

"Since the BJP did nothing during its tenure, how will its leaders talk about work...Now that the elections are nearing, there will be a lot of more things as well," he said.

On reports that the Yogi Adityanath Government was preparing to give pension to seers, Yadav said they should get at least Rs 20,000 per month as pension.

"Those reciting Ramayana and other such persons should be given at least Rs 20,000 monthly pension. Those playing roles of Ram, Lakshman and Sita should also be given pension. Yash Bharti awards should also be re-started," he said.

He also called for restarting the Samajwadi Pension scheme and the one for Yash Bharti awardees which was given by the previous Government.

Mumbai Mayor moves to new home – in Mumbai Zoo

Mumbai: Mumbai's first citizen, Mayor Vishwanath Mahadeshwar, on Monday shifted to an unusual neighbourhood — the Veermata Jijabai Bhosle Udyan and Zoo complex, paving the way for the long-planned memorial to Shiv Sena's founder-patriarch Bal Thackeray at the official Arabian Sea-facing Mayor's Bungalow at Shivaji Park.

A spokesperson for BrihanMumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC), Vijay Khabale, said that the traditional puja ceremonies were performed by the Mayor and his family members before formally shifting into the new premises this afternoon.

"This will be a temporary official accommodation for the Mayor. The BMC is already constructing another official bungalow at Shivaji Park, close to the existing bungalow. It is expected to be ready within three years," Khabale said.

3 terrorists killed in J&K encounter

Srinagar: Three unidentified terrorists were killed in an encounter with the security forces in Jammu & Kashmir's Budgam district on Monday, the Army said.

A cordon-and-search operation was launched in Hapatnaar area following information about the presence of terrorists in the area, an official said.

The search operation turned into a gun battle after the terrorists opened fire on the security forces. Three militants were killed in the operation, the official said, adding that the identity and affiliation of them were being ascertained.

Reports of stone-pelting were received from some parts of Budgam and Pulwama districts, while authorities suspended Internet connection in some areas as a precautionary measure.

Surat couple makes Rafale-themed wedding card!

Surat: A Gujarat couple has earned praise from Prime Minister Narendra Modi for designing their wedding invitation card with a dedicated page justifying the NDA Government's decision to buy Rafale fighter jets.

In a letter sent to the Surat-based couple — Yuvraj Pokharna and bride-to-be Sakshi Agrawal — Modi described the content of the card as "ingenious" and asserted that it had inspired him to work even harder for the country.

Earns PM's praise

The couple will be tying the knot on January 22. Talking to media on Monday, Pokharna said he received Modi's letter, which is addressed to his mother Babita Prakash Pokharna, on January 17 through e-mail.

"Heartiest Congratulations to Pokharna family on the joyous occasion of the marriage of Yuvraj and Sakshi. I noticed a unique feature of the marriage invitation card sent to the guests," read the letter signed and sent by Modi.

"The ingenuity of its content reflects your abiding concern and love for the nation. This also inspires me to keep working harder for our country," the letter said. "Best wishes and blessings to the couple for a happy and prosperous life," Modi said in the letter shared by Yuvraj Pokharna with the media.

Govt may cut customs duty on some medical devices

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Government may consider reducing customs duty on certain medical devices in the forthcoming budget with an aim to boosting domestic manufacturing of such goods, sources said.

The move would also help promote the Government's ambitious Make in India initiative, said the source.

Industry chamber CII in its has pre-budget memorandum has asked the Government to reduce customs duty from 10 per cent to 2.5 per cent on PDS Plates used for nasal reconstructive surgery.

It has also asked to exempt the duty on instruments for joint replacement and spinal equipment.

"Reduction of basic customs duty on PDS Plates to 2.5 per cent would reduce the cost and benefit the patients," CII has said.

The Government has recently set up National Medical Devices Promotion Council (NMDPC) to boost manufacturing, attract investments and promote exports of the fast-growing sector.

Medical devices include any instrument, apparatus, appliance, implant, material or other article, whether used alone or in combination, including the software intended by its manufacturer to be used specially for human beings or animals for one or more of the specific purposes.

India has achieved a major global position in the pharmaceutical sector. However, the same has not been replicated in the medical devices industry.

Currently, 100 per cent FDI is allowed under the automatic route in the medical devices sector to encourage manufacturing of equipment.

The Government would present the Budget on February 1.

Sensex jumps 192 pts on strong Q3 earnings; RIL shares surge 4%

PTI ■ MUMBAI

The BSE benchmark Sensex continued its winning run for the fifth straight session on Monday, rallying 192 points, and the NSE Nifty inched toward the 11,000 mark, riding on strong Q3 earnings by some bluechip companies, coupled with positive global cues.

Sensex went past the 36,700-mark to scale a high of 36,701.03 (intra-day) on the back of widespread gains.

Finally, the 30-share index settled at 36,578.96, up 192.35 points, or 0.53 per cent. It touched a low of 36,351.77. The gauge had risen 533.05 points in the previous four sessions.

The Nifty touched the session high (intra-day) of 10,987.45; and finally closed the session with a rise of 54.90 points, or 0.50 per cent, at 10,961.85.

"After opening in the green, market remained in the positive territory buoyed by positive global sentiments amid signs that the US and China were closing in on a trade truce," said Paras Bothra, President, Equity Research, Ashika Group.

Both benchmark indices were driven by strong gains in IT, tech, oil and gas, pharma and banking shares amid earnings optimism.

Sentiment remained upbeat after Reliance Industries, HDFC Bank and few others posted better-than-expected Q3 numbers last week, traders said.

Among Sensex components, the oil-to-telecom conglomerate Reliance Industries zoomed 4.36 percent to its highest in two months in its second session of gains after reporting record quarterly earnings.

Shares of HDFC Bank jumped 0.72 per cent after the private sector lender reported 20 per cent rise in net profit in December 2018 quarter.

Sunil Sharma, Chief Investment Officer, Sanctum Wealth Management said, "It is clearly morphing into a market where strong earnings are being rewarded. Capital continues to seek growth at reasonable prices."

As we move forward this year, the macro factors remain favourable, but stock performance is increasingly likely to be driven by earnings and fundamentals at the security level, he added.

Shares of Sun Pharmaceutical Industries rose 1.94 per cent in opening trade after it sought intervention from market regulator Sebi, alleging unfair business practices against the company.

This is the first uptick in the counter after two successive sessions of beating, wherein the stock lost as much as 13.80 per cent. Others which supported the key indices were Kotak Bank (2.42 per cent), Bajaj Finance (1.89 per cent), Infosys (1.61 per cent), Asian Paint (1.33 per cent), TCS (0.28 per cent), HUL (0.26 per cent), Tata Steel (0.22 per cent) and Vedanta (0.13 per cent).

ONGC share buyback to open Jan 29, closes Feb 11

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

State-owned Oil and Natural Gas Corp's (ONGC) ₹4,022 crore share buyback programme will open on January 29 and close on February 11, the company said in its offer letter to shareholders.

ONGC's board had on December 20 approved buyback of 25.29 crore shares for ₹159 apiece as part of the Government plan to get cash-rich PSUs to part with their surplus.

The Government, which holds 65.64 per cent stake in the company, stands to gain about Rs 2,640 crore from tendering some of its shares in the buyback programme.

"The funds for the buyback will be met out of internally generated cash resources of the company," it said.

ONGC said buyback is the acquisition by a company of its own shares. A buyback is an efficient form of returning surplus cash to the members holding equity shares of the company.

After considering the mutual benefits to the company and the equity shareholders, "the board decided to recommend buyback of not exceeding 25.29 crore equity shares representing 1.97 per cent of the total number of equity shares in the paid-up share capital of the company at a price of ₹159 per share for an aggregate consideration of not exceeding ₹4,022 crore," it said.

India's richest 1% get richer by 39 pc in 2018: Oxfam

Just 3% rise for bottom-half

PTI ■ DAVOS

Indian billionaires saw their fortunes swell by ₹2,200 crore a day last year, with the top 1 per cent of the country's richest getting richer by 39 per cent as against just 3 per cent increase in wealth for the bottom-half of the population, an Oxfam study said on Monday.

Globally, billionaires' fortunes rose by 12 per cent or $2.5 billion a day in 2018, whereas the poorest half of the world's population saw their wealth decline by 11 per cent, the international rights group said in its annual study released before the start of the five-day World Economic Forum (WEF) Annual Meeting in this Swiss ski resort town.

Oxfam further said that 13.6 crore Indians, who make up the poorest 10 per cent of the country, continued to remain in debt since 2004.

Asking the political and business leaders who have gathered in Davos for the annual jamboree of the rich and powerful of the world to take urgent steps to tackle the growing rich-poor divide, Oxfam said this increasing inequality is undermining the fight against poverty, damaging economies and fuelling public anger across the globe.

Oxfam International Executive Director Winnie Byanyima, one of the key participants at the WEF summit, said it is "morally outrageous" that a few wealthy individuals are amassing a growing share of India's wealth, while the poor are struggling to eat their next meal or pay for their child's medicines.

"If this obscene inequality between the top 1 per cent and the rest of India continues then it will lead to a complete collapse of the social and democratic structure of this country," she added.

Noting that wealth is becoming even more concentrated, Oxfam said 26 people now own the same as the 3.8 billion people who make up the poorest half of humanity, down from 44 people last year.

The world's richest man Jeff Bezos, founder of Amazon, saw his fortune increase to $112 billion and just 1 per cent of his fortune is equivalent to the whole health budget for Ethiopia, a country of 115 million people.

"India's top 10 per cent of the population holds 77.4 per cent of the total national wealth. The contrast is even sharper for the top 1 per cent that holds 51.53 per cent of the national wealth.

"The bottom 60 per cent, the majority of the population, own merely 4.8 per cent of the national wealth. Wealth of top 9 billionaires is equivalent to the wealth of the bottom 50 per cent of the population," Oxfam said while noting that high level of wealth disparity subverts democracy.

Between 2018 and 2022, India is estimated to produce 70 new dollar millionaires every day, Oxfam said.

"It (the survey) reveals how Governments are exacerbating inequality by underfunding public services, such as healthcare and education, on the one hand, while under taxing corporations and the wealthy, and failing to clamp down on tax dodging on the other," Oxfam India CEO Amitabh Behar said.

The survey also shows that women and girls are hardest hit by rising economic inequality, he added.

"The size of one's bank account should not dictate how many years your children spend in school, or how long you live — yet this is the reality in too many countries across the globe. While corporations and the super-rich enjoy low tax bills, millions of girls are denied a decent education and women are dying for lack of maternity care," Byanyima said.

Ghoshn awaits fate after vowing to stay in Japan if bailed

AFP ■ TOKYO

Carlos Ghosn will learn his fate on Monday as a Tokyo court rules on his bail request after he vowed to remain in Japan if released and offered to provide more collateral.

The ousted Nissan boss has pleaded for bail after languishing in custody for 64 days as he fights charges of financial misconduct that he strenuously denies.

In a statement released earlier on Monday, he sought to change the court's previous judgement that he represents a flight risk and might attempt to tamper with evidence.

"As the court considers my bail application, I want to emphasise that I will reside in Japan and respect any and all bail conditions the Court concludes are warranted," Ghosn said in a statement released by his US-based representatives.

He vowed to attend any subsequent trial "not only because I am legally obligated to do so, but because I am eager to finally have the opportunity to defend myself."

"I am not guilty of the charges against me and I look forward to defending my reputation in the courtroom," concluded the statement.

The court has already rejected previous attempts at securing his freedom on bail and even his own lead lawyer has indicated it could be six months before he is released for a trial.

A spokeswoman for Ghosn, Devon Spurgeon, said his family had already rented an apartment in Tokyo where he promised to reside while awaiting trial.

He has also promised to hand over his passports, refrain from contacting people connected with the case and pay for security guards approved by prosecutors to monitor his movements, according to Spurgeon.

She added that Ghosn has also offered a higher bail fee by stumping up Nissan stock as collateral and promised to wear an electronic tracking bracelet paid for by himself.

However, an official at the Japanese justice ministry told AFP: "There is no system in Japan in which a person accused in a criminal case can be released with such a tracking bracelet."

"The court sets the bail sum and can also add appropriate conditions such as limitations on where the accused should stay," added the official.

The case of Ghosn, a once-revered auto kingpin credited with turning around struggling Nissan, has gripped Japan and the business world since his arrest out of the blue on November 19 as his private jet at a Tokyo airport.

Since then, he has been seen in public only once, in a dramatic court appearance where the much thinner executive pleaded his innocence in a packed courtroom. His wife Carole has appealed to Human Rights Watch, claiming he is being held in "harsh" conditions and subjected to round-the-clock interrogations intended to extract a confession.

British PM to unveil new Brexit strategy

AFP ■ LONDON

British Prime Minister Theresa May unveils her Brexit "Plan B" to parliament on Monday after MPs shredded her EU divorce deal, deepening the political gridlock 10 weeks from departure day.

Britain will crash out of the European Union on March 29 unless MPs can force a delay or come up with an alternative plan that Brussels is also happy with, before the deadline.

London and Brussels have spent the best part of two years working on the divorce deal but MPs in parliament's lower House of Commons comprehensively rejected it on Tuesday.

EU leaders have signalled they could alter the agreement if May dropped some of her negotiating "red lines" but British media on Monday reported that she would instead attempt to negotiate some changes to the existing agreement.

The reports were met with scepticism in Europe.

"I don't think it can be saved by marginal adjustments in the current plan. I don't think she can convince MPs by presenting the same thing to them with slight tweaks," Spanish Foreign Minister Josep Borrell said in Brussels.

"It therefore has to present something substantially different."

Asked if he would change the Brexit deal, Slovakia's

Miroslav Lajcak said: "Why? So you want the UK to be a bigger loser than the UK? Is this what you really want? This is a fair deal that 27 members strongly support so I would really not touch," he said.

After surviving a Commons confidence vote on Wednesday, May last week reached out to opposition parties to seek a compromise solution but the talks appear to have fallen through.

Jeremy Corbyn, leader of the main opposition Labour Party stayed away, saying that a "no-deal" departure must be ruled out first — something May says is impossible.

After May sets out her plans for the way ahead, lawmakers are set to table a series of amendments, to be voted upon on January 29.

At least two groups of MPs are planning to table amendments to enable backbenchers to delay Brexit and prevent Britain leaving the EU with no agreement.

One of the proposals would enable MPs to debate and vote on Brexit issues, giving them far greater influence over government strategy. May's Downing Street office has called them "extremely concerning."

"You've got a Leave population and a Remain parliament," International Trade Secretary Liam Fox, one of the senior Brexiters in May's cabinet, said on Sunday.

"Parliament has not got the right to hijack the Brexit process... And in fact steal the result from the people," he told BBC television.

Britain voted by a 52-48 margin in favour of leaving the EU in a referendum in 2016 that exposed deep divisions in British society.

One of the most problematic areas of the divorce deal is the so-called backstop on the Irish border — a legal guarantee that the frontier would remain free-flowing if Britain and the EU cannot agree a long-term free trade pact.

Changes in the backstop could help win over Conservative eurosceptics, and the party's Democratic Unionist allies that May counts upon for a majority in parliament.

Taliban attack kills at least 100 in central Afghanistan

AFP ■ GHAZNI

At least 12 people were killed on Monday in a Taliban-claimed attack on a military compound in central Afghanistan, officials said, as the insurgents continue to batter the war-torn country's beleaguered security forces.

The attack began after a vehicle loaded with explosives rammed into the entrance of a compound in Maidan Shahr — the capital of Wardak province that lies about 50 kilometers south of the capital Kabul.

However other sources claimed 100 people died in the attack. At least three gunmen stormed the base following the explosion, igniting a firefight with Afghan security forces. All three gunmen were later killed in the exchange, according to a provincial official.

"So far our reports show 12 have been killed and 20 wounded, most of whom were Afghan security forces," Akhtar Mohammad Taheri — the head of Wardak provincial council — told AFP.

"The Taliban used a Humvee vehicle to hit the compound," Taheri added. Provincial health director Mohammad Salim Ashgharkhail confirmed the toll.

"Some wounded people were taken to hospitals in Kabul for further treatment as they were in critical condition," said Ashgharkhail.

Provincial governor spokesman Abdul Rahman Mangal said the huge blast

'Some wounded people were taken to hospitals in Kabul for further treatment as they were in critical condition'

had also partially damaged the base.

The Taliban — who have been waging a 17-year war against the Western-backed Afghan Government — later claimed responsibility for the assault.

The attack comes a day after a Taliban suicide bomber targeted the convoy of Logar province's governor, killing at least seven security guards.

Fights between security forces and Taliban fighters have continued to intensify across the country during the frigid Afghan winter, which traditionally experiences a lull in fighting.

The recent Taliban attacks come as Washington is stepping up efforts for a peace deal that could pave the way for the Taliban's participation in the next government, with the US peace envoy Zalmay Khalilzad visiting regional powers this month after meeting Taliban representatives in December.

Khalilzad ended his visit to neighbouring Pakistan Sunday after meeting with Pakistani Prime Minister Imran Khan last week to discuss ongoing peace efforts.

31 Rohingya in limbo on B'desh-India border

AFP ■ DHAKA

Thirty-one Rohingya Muslims including 17 children remained stranded on the India-Bangladesh border after three days, Dhaka officials said on Monday, as both sides refuse to accept them. As many as 1,300 Rohingya Muslims have crossed into Bangladesh from India in recent weeks as fears of deportation to Myanmar spark an exodus.

The latest group crossed barbed-wire fences along the Indian part of the border, but Bangladesh border guards stopped them from entering their territory. "They are now living in two tents provided by Indian border forces on the border's zero line," Mannan Jahangir, a local government official at the Bangladeshi border town of Kasba, told AFP.

Lieutenant Colonel Golam Kabir, a Bangladesh border guard commander, said the group first arrived at the border from the Indian State of Jammu and Kashmir on January 18. Senior officials from both sides held a meeting on Sunday, with Dh-

Chinese accuse McDonald's of supporting Taiwan independence

AP ■ BEIJING

Chinese nationalists are accusing a McDonald's advertisement in Taiwan of supporting independence for the self-ruled island.

The advertisement for a breakfast sandwich, broadcast only in Taiwan, shows a two-second glimpse of a woman's identity card that lists her nationality as "Taiwan."

Comments on internet bulletin boards accused McDonald's of violating Chinese law by supporting independence for Taiwan, which Beijing claims as part of its territory.

Some called for a boycott. Others said McDonald's, whose mainland franchises are owned by a group that includes the Chinese Cabinet's investment arm, should be expelled from China.

"McDonald's this is what you want to do? Help Taiwan independence?" said a posting on the Sina.Com portal signed "Good Knife Still."

Kamala Harris announces her 2020 US presidential bid

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

Kamala Harris, the first Indian-origin Senator, Monday officially launched her campaign for the US presidential election in 2020 to take on President Donald Trump, saying she was "honoured" to announce her bid on a day when Americans celebrated Martin Luther King Jr who sought inspiration from Mahatma Gandhi.

A rising party star and vocal critic of President Trump, Harris, 54, is the fourth Democrat to join the battle for the party's nomination in the 2020 election.

"I am running for president," Harris said in a tweet along with a simultaneously released video message.

"Kamala Harris: For the People" is the theme of her campaign.

If elected, she would be the first woman and woman of colour to be the president of the United States. "I love my country. This is a moment in time that I feel a sense of responsibility to stand up and fight for the best of who we are," she told the ABC News.

Explaining the significance of announcing her presidential bid on Martin Luther King Jr Day, Harris said the icon of American civil rights movement, who sought inspiration from Mahatma Gandhi, has always inspired her.

Gabbard defends her meeting with Bashar al-Assad

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

Democratic presidential aspirant Tulsi Gabbard has defended her controversial decision to meet with Syrian President Bashar al-Assad in 2017, saying that American leaders must meet with foreign leaders "if we are serious about the pursuit of peace and securing our country."

Gabbard, 37, the first Hindu elected to US Congress and a four-time Democratic lawmaker, earlier this month announced she will run for President in 2020.

Gabbard had met Assad during a trip to Syria in January 2017. The Syrian leader is believed to be responsible for the deaths of hundreds of thousands of Syrian civilians.

"No, I think that it is, it continues to be very important for any leader in this country to be willing to meet with others, whether they be friends or adversaries or potential adversaries if we are serious about the pursuit of peace and securing our country," Gabbard, who represents Hawaii, said in an interview to CNN when asked if she regrets the meeting.

"...You often acknowledge and bring to the forefront the cost of war and our troops and who pays the price," she continued.

"I have seen this cost of war firsthand, which is why I fight so hard for peace. And that's the reality of the situation that we're facing here."

'India will win badminton Gold at Tokyo'

Chief National coach Gopichand expects shuttlers to continue impressive run and win first ever yellow metal in 2020 Olympics

PTI ■ MUMBAI

Saying that "every year has been better than the previous one", chief national badminton coach Pullela Gopichand is hopeful India would clinch its first-ever Gold medal in the discipline at the 2020 Tokyo Olympics.

The 45-year-old badminton legend said the sport has undergone remarkable change in India in the last ten years.

"Well, I think every year, in the last few years, has been better than the previous one."

"In 2008 (Beijing Olympics) — the quarterfinal results was the biggest result, in 2012 (London Olympics) we had the first-ever Bronze (Saina Nehwal), in 2016 (Rio Olympics) we had the first-ever Silver (P V Sindhu) and, hopefully, 2020 (Tokyo Olympics) we will have the first-ever Gold," Gopichand said on Monday.

The former All England champion was speaking after felicitating the seven winners of the IDBI Federal Quest for Excellence #Young Champ programme, who will undergo training at his academy in Hyderabad.

Gopichand said earlier badminton was remembered for men's singles players like Nandu Natekar, Suresh Goel and Prakash Padukone, among others, but Nehwal changed the perception.

"Well, yes. For a long time before these girls (referring to Nehwal, P V Sindhu) came out, badminton was primarily remembered for men's singles players, whether it is Nandu Natekar, Suresh Goel, Prakash (Padukone) Sir or Syed Modi.

"It is how that whole thing was. The change to that (perception) happened (and for that) Saina (Nehwal) was important.

"We needed somebody with that kind of push, hunger, will to win, because (being) the first person to come out and win is very difficult," the veteran shuttler said.

He heaped praise on Sindhu, saying the 2016 Rio Olympics Silver medalist has at least two more Olympics left.

"It is great to see what Sindhu has achieved — World chances to stumble, fall down, tie their laces and move".

"Because when I realised that I knew the formula for winning, my career was finished. So I just wanted to pass it (formula) so that my kids (students) can win at a younger age.

"And I'm sure I have been successful in that because Sindhu won when she was very young. A lot of my players have won at a young age," he said.

According to Gopichand, the change in Indian badminton over the last 10 years has been "fantastic".

"Fantastic, I would say. The sport has jumped in all parameters. Prakash (Padukone) Sir played leagues in Denmark, Vimal (Kumar) played in UK, I have played in Germany and today we host the biggest league in the world (Premier Badminton League).

"Things have changed. We have (Carolina) Marin coming here to play, Viktor (Axelsson) coming here to play.

"Tournaments in those countries are stopped because we have leagues more popular than theirs. The earnings of top players have gone up. They are encouraging a whole set of people to take the sport forward," he signed off.

WARNER TO UNDERGO ELBOW SURGERY

SYDNEY: Banned former Australian vice-captain David Warner is expected to undergo minor surgery on his elbow on Tuesday after returning home from the Bangladesh Premier League with an injury. The 32-year-old returned to Australia last week following a stint with the Sylhet Sixers in the Bangladesh Twenty20 tournament after he reported pain in his right elbow. Warner's elbow will be assessed in Melbourne on Tuesday, before he is expected to undergo minor surgery, cricket.Com.Au reported on Monday. Cricket Australia's website said Warner's condition was not believed to be as serious as the elbow injury sustained by Smith, also in the Bangladesh tournament. Smith, 29, underwent surgery last week and is expected to spend six weeks in a brace before extensive rehabilitation. Smith's injury could affect his chances of being picked in the national side for the World Cup starting in May, as well as the Ashes series — also in England — later this year.

KI SUNG RULED OUT OF ASIAN CUP

AL-AIN: South Korea's Asian Cup hopes have suffered a blow after Premier League midfielder Ki Sung-yueng was ruled out of the tournament with a hamstring injury. The 29-year-old Newcastle United man played less than an hour at the tournament before being taken off during South Korea's opening win over the Philippines in Dubai. Ki's withdrawal was announced as South Korea, two-time winners of the tournament and the 2015 runners-up, prepare to take on Bahrain in the round of 16 on Tuesday. The pull-out has prompted speculation that Ki may announce his international retirement, after clocking up more than 100 appearances since making his debut in 2008.

ANAND BEATS MAMEDYAROV

WIJK AAN ZEE: Five-time world champion Viswanathan Anand scored a crushing victory over Shakhriyar Mamedyarov of Azerbaijan in the eighth round to share the lead with Norway's Magnus Carlsen in the Tata Steel chess tournament. Having outclassed Vladimir Kramnik of Russia as black in the previous round, Anand, a five times winner here, continued his demolition act and grounded Mamaedyarov who currently holds the third position in the world rankings. The Indian ace took his tally to 5.5 points out of a possible eight and is matched only by reigning world champion Carlsen who himself played a fine game to beat Richard Rapport of Hungary. With two leaders in front, Ian Nepomniachtchi of Russia, Ding Liren of China and local star Anish Giri are right on their heels, trailing by half a point. Temur Radjabov of Azerbaijan is in sole sixth spot on 4.5 points while other Indian Vidit Gujrathi shares the seventh spot having four points in all. Five rounds still remain in the first super tournament of the year.

AUS CALL UP PATTERSON FOR SL TESTS

SYDNEY: In-form Kurtis Patterson was added to Australia's squad on Monday for the upcoming Tests against Sri Lanka as selectors try to fix a batting line-up that failed to fire during the home Tests against India. The 25-year-old New South Wales batsman scored back-to-back centuries for a Cricket Australia XI in Hobart last week. National selector Trevor Hohns said Patterson had been "pushing his case for selection for some time". "We have been asking batters around the country to score hundreds if they want to be considered for selection," Hohns added in a statement. "Given Kurtis' consistent performances for NSW and his two unbeaten centuries in last week's tour match against our upcoming opponent, Sri Lanka, we believe he deserves to be added to the Test squad." The first Test — a day-nighter — starts Thursday in Brisbane. The second will be played in Canberra. Agencies

Sindhu, Saina, Srikanth to compete at Indonesia Masters

PTI ■ JAKARTA

Olympic Silver medalist P V Sindhu will resume her quest for glory in the new season, while Saina Nehwal and Kidambi Srikanth aim to continue their impressive run when they start their campaign at the Indonesia Masters, starting with qualifiers on Tuesday.

Seeded second Sindhu has been a cut above other Indians as she claimed Silver medals at all the major events — Commonwealth Games, Asian Games and World Championship, before ending the year with the prestigious World Tour Final title, the first Indian to achieve the feat.

After the engagements of Premier Badminton League (PBL), Sindhu decided to skip last week's Malaysia Masters and she will begin her campaign against former Olympic Gold medalist China's Li Xuerui on Wednesday.

The 23-year-old from Hyderabad is expected to clash with reigning Olympic champion Carolina Marin at the quarterfinals.

Saina, on the other hand, had an impressive start to the season, losing semifinal spot at Malaysia Masters, which was the first World Tour Super 500 tournament of the season.

The London Olympic Bronze medalist will take on a qualifier in the opening round and faces the prospect of meeting Japan's Akane Yamaguchi, seeded fourth, at the quarters.

Srikanth, who also entered the quarterfinals at Kuala Lumpur last week, plays his first match against Malaysia's Liew Daren.

The eighth seeded Indian will be joined by others such as Sameer Verma, B Sai Praneeeth and HS Prannoy.

Sameer had enjoyed a good run last season, winning titles at Swiss Open, Hyderabad Open and Syed Modi International. He also qualified for the World Tour Finals at the last moment and secured at a creditable semifinal finish.

Praneeth also had a forgettable 2018 but dished out some good performances at the PBL and would look to translate the confidence in the international circuit.

With the 2020 Olympic qualification period starting from April, the Indian trio of Sameer, Praneeeth and Prannoy will look to put the best foot forward.

Sameer will begin the season with a clash with the legendary Lin Dan, Praneeeth faces Olympic champion Chen Long, while Prannoy meets Chinese Taipei's Chou Tien Chen in the first round.

In men's doubles, it will be a clash between two Indian combination with Satwiksairaj Rankireddy and Chirag Shetty taking on Manu Attri and B Sumeeth Reddy.

Women's doubles pair of Ashwini Ponnappa and N Sikki Reddy will square off against Thailand's eighth seed Jongkolphan Kititharakul and Rawinda Prajongjai, while mixed doubles pair of Satwiksairaj and Ashwini will pair up to clash with seventh seeded English husband-wife combination of Chris Adcock and Gabriella Adcock.

Another mixed doubles pair of Pranaav Jerry Chopra and Sikki will face fourth seed Indonesian combo of Tontowi Ahmad and Liliyana Natsir.

'Shouldn't get too caught up with Kohli'

PTI ■ NAPIER

New Zealand's senior-most batsman Ross Taylor on Monday urged his team to focus on the Indian top-order rather than "get caught up" with run-machine Virat Kohli during the upcoming limited overs series.

The tour starts on Wednesday with the first ODI in Napier. India will be playing five One-dayers and three T20 against the 'Black Caps'.

Entering the Test series worried about how to decode Kohli, the Australians recently learnt it the hard way as Cheteshwar Pujara stole the thunder Down Under, helping his team to an epic triumph. Taylor doesn't want his team to follow a similar approach.

"He's (Kohli) a sensational player, the best one-day player going around, easily. It's easy to get caught up in him. You've got two pretty good openers at the top, Sharma and Dhawan, before he gets in," Taylor was quoted as saying by stuff.Co.Nz.

Taylor had his first net session at the McLean Park after his finger injury during the home series against Sri Lanka.

While Kohli averages a staggering 113 in ODIs in 2018, Taylor's average is 92 in the same period across 13 ODIs.

"I've played a few internationals now and understand my role in the team. I've worked on my game and try and rotate the strike early and be as busy as I can. Different shots against spinners at different stages have maybe evolved my game in a positive way," Taylor said. "But you're still human and you still have to start again, and it's exciting against India."

I WILL BE FIT BEFORE IPL: SHAW

NEW DELHI: Recovering from an ankle injury that forced him out of the Australia tour, the young Prithvi Shaw on Monday said he will be fit in time for the 12th season of Indian Premier League.

The 19-year-old Shaw suffered the injury in Australia before the start of the four-match Test series.

"I will be fit before the Indian Premier League and I am trying hard to reach full fitness. I am working on my ankle as well as on my upper body," Shaw told 'India TV'.

The Mumbai opener has been retained by Delhi Capitals for what will be his second season.

The batsman twisted his ankle while fielding in the deep during practice match ahead of the first Test in Adelaide.

Having stayed on with the team hoping to be fit for the second Test in Perth, Shaw was eventually ruled out of the remainder of the series and sent back home for an extensive rehabilitation programme. PTI

Messi rescues Barca against Leganes

AFP ■ BARCELONA

Ousmane Dembele gave Barcelona a glimpse into the future but Barcelona still needed Lionel Messi to beat Leganes 3-1 and restore their five-point lead at the top of La Liga.

Messi had started on the bench, rested by coach Ernesto Valverde, and for just over an hour at the Camp Nou, Dembele filled the void by scoring the opening goal in a sparkling individual display.

The 21-year-old, however, limped off with a sprained ankle in the 69th minute, shortly after Leganes had equalised through Martin Braithwaite and Valverde responded by introducing Messi.

He needed only seven minutes to make an impact as his bending shot was followed up by Luis Suarez, who poked the ball in ahead of Leganes goalkeeper Pichu Cuellar. Messi then rounded off the win by scoring himself in injury-time.

Leganes had protested against Suarez's finish, convinced that Pichu had been fouled by a high foot. "It was a clear foul," coach Mauricio Pellegrino said.

"Barca don't need these kind of decisions to help them."

But VAR disagreed and Barca advanced to what was, in truth, a fully deserved victory. It means they regain their hefty advantage over Atletico Madrid at the top of the table, with the difference ahead of Real Madrid also back to 10 points.

Leganes had beaten Barcelona at home in September but that remains the high point of their season. They stay 14th.

NAPOLI BEAT LAZIO TO KEEP SIGHT OF JUVE

AFP ■ MILAN

Napoli beat 10-man Lazio 2-1 to close the gap on leaders Juventus to six points and consolidate second place in Serie A.

First-half goals from Jose Callejon and Arkadiusz Milik ensured all three points for the southerners.

Napoli have 47 points from 20 games and are now seven ahead of third-placed Inter Milan who were held to a goalless draw at home by Sassuolo on Saturday.

But it was a damaging defeat for Lazio who drop out of the Champions League places into fifth at the expense of city rivals Roma.

Eusebio Di Francesco's Roma are one point ahead of Lazio who host seven-time reigning champions Juventus next weekend.

Napoli was without suspended defender Kalidou Koulibaly, captain Marek Hamsik and forward Lorenzo Insigne.

Don't mind being called arrogant: Vinesh

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Stubborn by her own admission, trail-blazing Indian wrestler Vinesh Phogat doesn't mind being called arrogant for it since the attitude comes in handy to intimidate rivals on the mat.

"I am very stubborn, since childhood. If I feel something is right, even if that is wrong, I will be very stubborn about that and I make sure people agree with me even if I am wrong sometimes," she laughed.

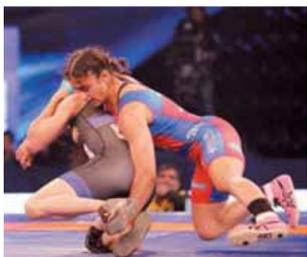

But would she call it a virtue, to be steadfast even if wrong?

"If someone explains with love and proves that my thought process is wrong and I also start to realise that, then I concede and step back," she said.

And what about the perception of being arrogant for being so headstrong? "Yes people say that (arrogant) but I know what's inside me. And if it helps me on the mat, I don't bother," she said.

"It helps me on the mat. People say it's over-confident but for me it's belief. I don't get intimidated and my opponent also notices the body language. Some people work on it but for me it's God gift," she added.

Vinesh, the first Indian athlete ever to be nominated for Laureus World Sports Award, also insisted that the mindset of Indian wrestlers have greater self-belief.

Vinesh, the first Indian athlete ever to be nominated for Laureus World Sports Award, also insisted that the mindset of Indian wrestlers have greater self-belief

"I feel India have 4-5 strong contenders, who can beat any wrestler in the world. I won't take names but we can win 2-3 Olympic medals. The mindset has changed," she asserted.

"Earlier people used to just look for participation or win a round at the Worlds but now medals are a possibility for all. I know these girls. After Sakshi's Bronze, girls are now targeting Gold at Olympics.

"We have started becoming technical-smart while earlier we just played a power game, it's giving results."

The significance of getting a nomination for the prestigious Laureus awards has still not dawned on the Haryana grappler. "Honestly I still don't know what this nomination is about. I just know that my name has been put for voting. I had not even heard of Laureus. And if no Indian athlete has been nominated before, I can only be proud of it."

"...It's definitely huge for wrestling in India because it is still struggling for recognition," said Vinesh, who is competing for the Mumbai Maharathi in the ongoing edition of the Pro Wrestling League (PWL).

The winner of multiple international medals says her comeback from a career-threatening injury, sometimes has even her amazed.

"I have seen athletes struggling so badly after suffering injuries. Sometimes I get shocked to see what and how I have achieved this success. It's nothing but God's grace."

Will she not give credit to her own hard work? "It's not just hard work because innumerable athletes do that. This is something which I don't know. I beat even the formidable Japan wrestlers after injury, it's God's grace only."

MADHAVAN TO SOLELY DIRECT ROCKETRY NOW
- P 14

Smart worker will normally earn more and is quick to get career gains. By utilising the conditions around him, he will be able to create favorable environment which helps him to succeed much faster than a hard worker. A smart worker gets noticed fast, achieve faster career growth and is generally going to be wealthier than a hard worker. A smart worker gets the work done anyhow. He asks and cajole other colleagues into helping him. He talks in a glib and persuasive manner. Bosses and clients love him. He earns bonus and promotions fast and frequently.

Hard workers, usually are on their table trouble shooting the problems. They work for their own satisfaction rather than being worrying about creating impression on bosses. They are good at what they do and love their work. They get good at whatever technical field they are in. This however may lead to situations where they might not be promoted for higher posts or they themselves reject promotions. Hence the career in terms of upward rise is limited for people who work hard.

A hard worker's reputation is based on years of hard work and meticulousness. He is trusted to be professional and competent. His opinion is most often sought as an expert.

A smart worker on the other hand has great reputation with the management. He is the kind of person who gets the deal done. He is successful in careers such as sales and consulting. He brings revenue to the company and is thus often termed as a star performer.

A hard worker who works too hard makes himself invisible and non-promotable. For a great career or business success, meeting people and networking is an essential task. A hard working person however will put his more time on the desk and lesser into meeting with others. As a result he might be seen as cold and unapproachable. A hard worker due to his lack of people skills will often be a failure at managing projects and people. He will take upon him everything that he feels others cannot do. He might suffer burnout from too much work.

Smart work may involve solidifying a strategic approach to the work and identifying things that you need to do, while hard work might include just pressing through with a task without really determining in advance how you are going to complete it and do a good job.

The idea that you should work smarter,

Smart work makes you grow rapidly

Despite other aspects of achievements through hard work, smart work is still better in order to attain a great success and recognition, says TEAM VIVA not only harder isn't anything new. When talking about the difference between smart and hard work it's pretty simple to explain what working hard means. If you want to be successful in the long run, you have to put long hours into work. You have to start early, before all other people, and you have to stay up late, when everyone else is already enjoying their afternoons and evenings.

On the other hand, it's really hard to find very clear guidelines on what working smart really means and how it's different from hard work. It's very obvious that even if you're determined that nobody will out-work you, you still have maximum limits regarding working hours that you reach pretty fast, and there's always someone who's willing to sleep less than you. On top of that, many people work hard, but only a few become really successful. That's because smart work is what makes the difference.

It always amazed that why some people working hard got so much farther than others. One of the important reasons is, of course, smart work, but what I've found out is that most people who are working smart didn't learn it. They do it intuitively, it's part of their character, of who they are and how they were raised. But what is really their secret that the others don't know when getting down to work? Let's look at the main elements of smart work, from the most obvious ones to the most concealed ones that fine tune smart work and can take your success level a step further.

A hard worker is someone who does not use his head much and just believes in doing whatever work assigned in the allotted time.

Thinking how well the same routine or new work can be done with less resources/time and upgrading your skills/techniques also making yourself available for few other work as well.

It is always good to be a smart worker, because a smart worker is always assumed to be knowing how well a work can be done, any how goal must be achieved. It does not necessarily mean that a smart worker will not put in long hours if required.

It is the dexterity with which the work is handled and done makes it so much desirable. But a smart worker need not mean someone trying to avoid responsibility or doing cheap work to finish it fast.

Avoid over-scheduling yourself and be realistic about what you can accomplish in a single day. Sometimes you just have to cut yourself off because in most professions, there is almost always something that could be done.

SMART WORK MAY INVOLVE SOLIDIFYING A STRATEGIC APPROACH TO THE WORK AND IDENTIFYING THINGS THAT YOU NEED TO DO, WHILE HARD WORK MIGHT INCLUDE JUST PRESSING THROUGH WITH A TASK WITHOUT REALLY DETERMINING IN ADVANCE HOW YOU ARE GOING TO COMPLETE IT AND DO A GOOD JOB

Try to avoid multi-tasking because you often get less done since your brain is switching back and forth between tasks. Pick one thing to work on and put your best effort into that until it is accomplished. Set a time limit for when you stop working on the task at hand and take a rest.

You know when a job is going to be great. A client or boss who pressures you into areas where you are not comfortable, either because it is an unreasonable expectation or because it's outside your scope, needs to be made immediately aware of your discomfort with the job as proposed.

If you are self-employed, declining a job like this is much smarter even though it's hard to let money go.

Don't accept so many changes that you end up doing a much more complicated or expensive job than you bid for. When you realize you're into new territory, stop work and draw up a re-bid, showing the entire job as originally envisioned and overlay the scope of the new work. Let the client know it will cost more than the original bid to proceed. It's the client's decision how much to pay. How smart you want to be while you're working for them is your decision.

Madhavan solely directs Rocketry

Actor R. MADHAVAN will be taking over the complete directing duties on Rocketry — The Nambi Effect after Ananth Mahadevan had to leave the project due to "unavoidable circumstances."

Earlier, Madhavan was co-directing the film based on the life of scientist and aerospace engineer S. Nambi Narayanan, with Ananth. "He is an extremely talented filmmaker. However, owing to unavoidable circumstances and certain pressing commitments he could no longer direct the film," Madhavan said. "Rocketry is close to my heart. The film is shaping up well and I can't wait to tell the incredible story to the world," he added.

'I believe age or life stages should not affect a woman's career. It's important not to limit yourself. Women can do it all. I have always enjoyed playing various roles on reel — a warrior princess, model. All of this has been possible because I focus on being healthy inside to stay beautiful outside.'

Actress ARCHANA PURAN SINGH says she has more to offer as an artiste. She made her acting debut in 1987.

"Sometimes I feel that being an artiste, I could have explored more in the industry. In my career I have mostly got comic roles... I did not get much chance to experiment different roles. It is very important to be a versatile actor and I believe I have that potential in myself," she said. However, she has no regrets. "I am happy and satisfied with whatever God has given me. I did not even imagine that I would be able to cover such a long path in showbiz. Whatever I am today is because of God's grace and my fans love. I am grateful to them," she added.

Luke has advice for young actors

Actor LUKE PERRY has some acting advice for his young co-stars of Riverdale.

It was a different era when Beverly Hills, 90210 was on air. Back then, where there was no social media. On the biggest challenges about having to deal with that aspect of promotion today, he said, "To me, the biggest challenge that comes with it all is just focus. You need to focus on the work."

He added, "I just try to get the younger guys to keep their private stuff private and keep the show visible. That's the key. You get a lot of feedback from the fans through social media platforms, which is great, but there are some negative sides too."

Designers GAURAV GUPTA and SHANTANU-NIKHIL unfurl their plans for a bold spring that is more about personality than gender

FLUID FALLS

Bringing together the delicacy of hand-woven fabrics with the sharpness of his signature gravity-defying, patterned designs, designer Gaurav Gupta is set to showcase his summer/resort collection — The (Un)Folding — at the opening of the Lakmé Fashion Week 2019.

Gaurav said his collection will bring together elements that are "unique" to Indian design, highlighting his love for origami-folding and fluid-structural construction through embellishments and textiles. He has included many first-time elements such as Lucknawi chikankari draped into demi-couture dresses, a particular tone of yellow that is traditionally called 'basanti', which means the essence of sun-lit spring and Banarasi brocades, which are turned into deconstructed lehengas, perfect for a modern bride on a destination wedding. Even the menswear features chikankari and brocades in unexpected ways.

The colour palette features mostly pastel shades like powder blue, yellow, ivory and rose. Along with his scaffold-like pattern, these tones are Gaurav's vision of a glamorous and powerful spring of 2019.

Fashion designers, Shantanu and Nikhil Mehra are also going to present their first-ever grand finale for the LFW. Inspired by the beauty theme for the season, Recruit SS'19 promises to take the audience on an empowering journey of the culmination of modern authority in the contemporary Indian framework of beliefs and will highlight the evolution that has led to the emancipation of the millennial Indian woman.

SHANTANU-NIKHIL FEEL LIKE BEING 'REBORN IN THE WORLD OF FASHION' AS THEY CALL THE SHOW AS THEIR 'ULTIMATE EXAM'

This time they are giving red a new dimension in matte flavour. Now this is a colour that they have never dabbled with. They are then sort of weaving it in with a story that has a strong emotional connect of valour, pride and integrity which pretty much sets the tone for this time's collection.

The designers feel like being "reborn in the world of fashion" as they call it their "ultimate exam." As Nikhil said, "It has happened to us after 18 years and there isn't anything more exciting than this. The first Shantanu and Nikhil finale on a platform like Lakme Fashion Week which has continuously given fashion and makeup a new dimension."

Added Shantanu, "It is almost like being reborn in the world of fashion. We still feel like 'Is this really happening to us?' It is like the ultimate fashion show for us...as if it is our first and last fashion show. This is the ultimate exam in the fashion world."

Talking about how much this collaboration is going to add responsibility to them as designers, Shantanu said: "First, we are always questioning ourselves at work and always looking to reinvent our styles and designs. We are looking for a disturbance in our equilibrium at work, so it is not unusual for us to be putting ourselves into this position."

Added Nikhil, "As far as the responsibility is concerned, if you have a story to tell and you stick to it, just go full-throttle and that's what we are doing. How do we make red, black and gold integrate seamlessly. Then sort of weave it in with a story that has a strong emotional connect of valour, pride and integrity that pretty much sets the tone for this collection."

The designers have been focussing on gender-neutral clothing for the last few years as they introduced men to draped kurtas which is considered to be extremely feminine. "We have taken cue from that and moved to a line for a woman who is more empowered. The silhouettes are more structured which give her that opportunity to lead the path. It speaks of women's abilities through silhouettes," said Shantanu.

Talking about being a trend-setter, Nikhil said, "We're always considered to be an anti-trend brand of design. Even the gender equality that we try to show is through the medium of couture, is more subdued and brings in a little more sanity but keeps it more occasion-driven. The focus is not only on the garment but on the wearer, there is a story to every garment."

A brand that started in 2007, building it up was the toughest and most challenging task "but at the same time is the most fulfilling and it has taken us 14 years to understand what Shantanu & Nikhil as a brand mean to the world. This rude awakening has happened recently where we have fallen in love with the country we live in and feel the need to bring back some of those glorious moments of India and modernising it to cater to this new wave of the emerging market called the millennials," said Shantanu.

They also feel that the Indian fashion industry has now realised the opportunity that lies in India's history without having to depend on craftsmanship only.

(Lakmé Fashion Week is slated to kickstart from January 30 to February 3.)

Time for some 'stair-snacking'

For people who find it difficult to take Fout extra time for physical activity after a hectic schedule, exercise just got simpler and harder to avoid. Researchers have shown that a few minutes of stair climbing called the "stair-snacking" approach, at short intervals between work, can improve cardiovascular health.

The study showed that virtually anyone can improve their fitness, anywhere and any time throughout the day. "The findings make it even easier for people to incorporate 'exercise snacks' into their day," says Martin Gibala, professor at McMaster University in Canada. "Those who work in office towers or live in apartment buildings can vigorously climb a few flights of stairs in the morning, at lunch, and in the evening and know they are getting an effective workout."

The latest study has challenged previous studies which had shown that brief bouts of vigorous exercise or sprint interval training (SIT) are effective when performed as a single session, requiring a total time commitment of 10 minutes or so.

For this study, researchers set out to determine if SIT exercise snacks, or vigorous bouts of stair-climbing performed as single sprints spread throughout the day, would be sufficient enough to improve cardio-respiratory fitness (CRF). For the study, one group of sedentary young adults vigorously climbed a three-flight stairwell, three times per day. They repeated the protocol three times each week over the course of six weeks. The researchers compared the change in their fitness to a control group which did not exercise.

The findings, published in the journal Applied Physiology, Nutrition and Metabolism, showed that although sprint interval training works but the stair snacking approach was also effective. "Vigorously climbing a few flights of stairs on your coffee or bathroom break during the day seems to be enough to boost fitness in people who are otherwise sedentary," said Jonathan Little, assistant professor at University of British Columbia in Canada.

In addition to being more fit, the stair climbers were also stronger compared to their sedentary counterparts and generated more power during a maximal cycling test. In future, researchers hope to investigate different exercise snacking protocols with varying recovery times and the effect on other health-related indicators such as blood pressure and glycemic control, the team noted.

Nandana speaks from the heart

Actor, writer and child rights activist NANDANA DEV SEN launches her new book that demystifies the world of adopted kids

Adoption is when a child grows from her mommy's heart instead of her tummy, believes Nandana Dev Sen, an award-winning actor, writer and child rights activist who released her first book, In My Heart.

Accompanied with many illustrations, the book is well-imagined and sensitively told, encouraging all children to celebrate the unique ways in which different families are born.

Nandana said, "As a child, reader and an author, I've always adored books that were imaginative. Books that promote a kind, brave, inclusive and sensitive view of the world, without being preachy."

She further said that adoption is a critical topic in India, where we have countless disenfranchised children whose lives could be transformed just by embracing them. Yet the topic is rarely discussed in mainstream media or in Indian popular culture.

"There is still a fear of bullying attached to adoption. We don't have enough books yet that foster families can directly relate to. They could use books as a tool to discuss their precious family identities. But yes we can see a wave of change flowing, the interest is quite rapidly increasing," added the writer.

'Adoption is a critical topic in India, where we have countless disenfranchised children whose lives could be transformed just by embracing them'

Her books focusses on a larger understanding of belonging based on love rather than biological relation. It would speak equally to all non-traditional families, for instance children with homosexual parents, step siblings or a surrogate mother. She wrote this one for all kids, with the objective of widening their understanding of and regard for how different kinds of families grow together through love.

Nandana said, "The dynamics of a non-traditional family has a great deal to do with the world accepting its 'normality' and bond with absolute respect and ease without bullying or persecution. I've always believed that children's books can go a long way in fostering a lifetime of empathy in impressionable minds — that's one reason why I love them so much."

She believes that children's books are the most influential and deliciously infectious literature in the world. They encourage them to soar with their imagination, think critically, ask questions and communicate their thoughts and feelings.

Repainting Sita

Author CHITRA BANERJEE DIVAKARUNI's new book, The Forest of Enchantments takes the readers on a voyage of introspection from a woman's perspective

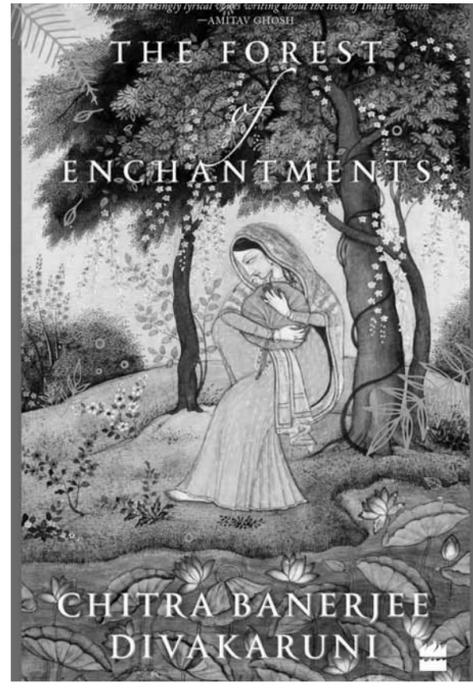

At every stage of an Indian woman's life, her name is invoked. She is portrayed as a quintessential daughter, an ideal wife and a perfect mother in various illustrations, texts, stories, and modern media. In Ramayana, there are disparate perspectives and different brushes with which people have painted the character of Sita over the years.

Author Chitra Banerjee Divakaruni has launched her novel, The Forest of Enchantments, which delves in some rare archives from the Indian epic with a new perspective.

During the launch, combining her immense knowledge of Indian mythology and the fascinating stories and events in Ramayana, the author took the audience on a voyage of retrospection from the perspective of Sita.

In this retelling, Divakaruni places Sita at the centre of the novel calling it the "Sita's version."

The novel is also a human story of a few other women in the epic, often misunderstood and relegated to the margins — Kaikeyi, Surpanakha and Mandodari. A powerful comment on duty, betrayal, infidelity and honour, it is also about women's struggle to retain autonomy in a world that privileges men, as Divakaruni transforms an ancient tale into a gripping, contemporary battle of wills.

Divakaruni said, "I continued to discover myself through Sita, who for me has always been at the height of the Ramayana."

She talked about the condition of women. She told how she wanted to show Sita's desire to experience the world outside her confinement in a space where she only took care of her in-laws.

While the Ramayana resonates even today, the author in her book makes it more relevant than ever through the underlying questions in the novel — How should women be treated by their loved ones? What are their rights in a relationship? When does a woman need to stand up and say, 'it's enough.'

ETERNAL BEING

Curator RITU DAMAN brings back the visionary literature of Albert Camus through art that instinctively depicts the human condition. By UMA NAIR

Dummy and the Paper Bird 1980 by Rajendra Tiku

The India Art Fair 2019 will see a brilliant curation by young designer and thinker Ritu Daman at the Art Indus booth. Daman extols the verbal philosophy and intentions of the ageless Albert Camus in a curation that includes stellar artists like Himmat Shah, Rameshwar Broota, Rajendra Tiku, Norio Takaoka, Amitava Das, Vasundhara Tewari Broota, Neeraj Bakshy, Nidhi Khurana, Anish Tiku and R Erdjnz.

Says Daman, "The exhibition engages in pristine visual dialogue with the visionary literature of Albert Camus as it brings to view works that instinctively depict the human condition. The exhibition draws great relevance from Camus's humanitarian quest as he looked for genuine realities behind the order of things, posing a world integrated with nature, seeking balance within the web of complexities extant to a civilised world. The exhibition endeavors to cross-examine our contemporaneity in light of the viewpoints that Camus left us within a lifetime of beauty and servitude."

He goes further into the work and thoughts of Camus and adds that it is the writer-philosopher's first images that definitively bring to mind the predicament of 'being.' What Camus submits to us in The Outsider, perhaps one of the most cogent introspections into the heart of the human-condition, exposing our existence 'cut off from a sense of God, in benign indifference of the Universe' — a stark realisation of the absurdity that is life. Sartre and Heidegger have examined this predicament as a "transphenomenality of being" — a nothingness "where things overflow all the relationships and designations which we attach to them and 'being' in general and existence in particular is de trop (superfluous)"; "being existent one cannot escape this original contingency, this obscene superfluity" — a "Being-for-itself," with no outside purpose to give it meaning or direction"; a thrown projection of "Being." This is akin to what Heidegger refers to as Dasein (as in Being-there-in-the-world). Rameshwar Broota and Rajendra Tiku's works have always contemplated the "Being" in a sense of the contrapositive, as a sublime weakening from universal to particular, a perspective of the omniscient narrator: of light or time, like God - searching humans.

However it is Himmat Shah, Rajendra Tiku and Neeraj Bakshy who excel in the strata of the signature of Being. Daman aptly quotes Jean Paul Sartre's "Being and Nothingness" to echo the ideation. "Being-in-itself" is never either possible or impossible. This is what consciousness expresses in anthropomorphic terms by saying that being is superfluous, that consciousness absolutely cannot derive being from anything, either from another being, or from a possibility, or from a necessary law. Un-created, without reason for being, without any connection with another being, being-in-itself is de trop for eternity."

Of course, when you look at Tiku's work, you think of the associations and aspirations that add meaning and momentousness to the sensibility of creating. Dummy and the Paper Bird 1980, created out of ink and vegetable stain on paper, has about it an ecological connotation as well as a traversing of the past when you look at the year it was created in. Tiku, the sterling sculptor who has created silent soliloquies in sculpture, is a refreshing read in terms of what he can offer the viewer on a winter's day. Study for the Grey Areas of a Public Hydrant is another work that catches your gaze for its subtle signature of narrative and soothing tranquility even as the image brings across a corollary of conversations that flash through the tides of time.

Then there is Himmat Shah's Untitled (Kali 2006) and Neeraj Bakshy's Smelling the Roses, two works that make us stop and think of all things amorphous and articulate in art's many realms.

Weaving in elements of flora and fauna is not a first for artist Shampa Sircar Das as she has had a felicity with these for many years. But what still enchants is the manner in which she brings in miniature traditions to embellish her forests with animal/bird and man/woman combinations beside flowers and trees.

Centering around Indian mythology, folklore and an intrinsic love for the beauty of nature, her Antardhwani at Chawla Art Gallery brings three artworks into fore — Mayura, Mriga and Vriksha. They stand apart in their depiction of the beauty of mother Earth and the songs and narratives that can unravel and keep it blooming.

MAYURA
It is believed that Mayura or the peacock was created from one of the feathers of Garuda (a bird in the of the human race were originally deer. Deer are sacred animals to many tribes of the southwestern United States too; they are believed to have sacrificed themselves to feed the people, or are considered caretakers of the earth. Deer songs and dances are common throughout this region, with the deer frequently serving as a symbol of the people. In the Huichol tribe of central Mexico, deer are especially sacred and are associated with traditional spirituality.

Indian poets of antiquity used the deer to embody our desires, and the hunting of the deer as a metaphor for yoga, with the bow and arrow representing simultaneous balance and focus. This work recalls all these epithets and is quite an epiphany.

VRIKSHA
Resplendent in red Sircar's Vriksha is both a woman and a tree. If Hermann Hesse said trees are sanctuaries, we also know that trees are sacred in India and often associated with a god or a goddess. Some scholars believe that it is the tree that was worshipped first, maybe for its medicinal or symbolic purpose. Trees are an integral part of a deity's symbolism. The mango tree, for example, is associated with the love-god Kama, the tulsi plant is dear to Vishnu, bilva is associated with Shiva worship, blades of dhurva grass are offered to Ganesha, neem or margosa is sacred to the mother goddess, coconut and banana are associated with Lakshmi. The banyan tree is associated with Yama, the god of death and the tree is often planted outside the village near crematoria. It is believed to be the abode of spirits. Indians knew the banyan tree as the Vata-vriksha. When the British came to India, they noticed that members of the trading community would sit under it and named it banyan, a derivative of bania. Technically, ficus benghalensis, the banyan belongs to the fig family. Pipal is also a variant of fig, which became especially popular in Buddhist times because it was under this tree that Lord Buddha attained enlightenment.

The tree also represents time as well as space. The world is, according to Hindu, Buddhist and Jain mythologies, shaped like a disc that rests on the back of a turtle and is surrounded by oceans of milk and treacle. Vriksha then is about the beginning and the end, indicating the radial nature of Indian thought. The seed that springs from the tree represents stillness and the elemental bindu from which all things emerge.

Forest tales

Artist SHAMPA SIRCAR DAS, through her series of artworks titled Antardhwani, recreates mythical tales weaving in the elements of flora and fauna. By U NAIR

Hindu mythology and a carrier of Lord Vishnu). It is depicted as a mythical bird which had killed a snake. According to many Hindu scriptures, it symbolises the cycle of time. Sircar creates Mayura as a beautiful creature, full of grace and contoured classicism, replete with a deep adoration of the forest and its habitat. Mythology says that peacocks once had dull tail feathers. In a battle between Ravana and Lord Indra, the bird had spread its feathers wide open to allow Indra to hide behind them and thus wage a war. Indeed, it was able to save Indra, in return for which the lord made the peacock's feathers iridescent.

MRIGA
Sircar's Mriga with fertile antlers from which a veritable forest grows is another masterpiece. The deer stands tall, strong and majestic as it looks at the many predicaments that whirl around it. Sircar unconsciously heralds man's selfishness and the power and uncanny grace of the animal in her painting. In the Vedic texts, the deer becomes a metaphor of the restless mind that is pinned to the sky by Rudra, the Vedic form of Shiva. Tamil story images of Shiva often show him holding a deer in his hand, thus relieving the 'mind-deer' of anxiety. In Hindu mythology, the Aitareya Upanishad tells us that the goddess

Saraswati takes the form of a red deer called Rohit. Saraswati is the goddess of learning, so learned men use deer skin as clothing and mats to sit upon. A golden deer plays an important role in the epic Ramayana.

Deer are associated with fertility in many Native American cultures. In some Mexican tribes, the first parents

THE WORLD'S A STAGE

The Ishara International Puppet Festival is all set to return, bringing mystery and magic alive with 150 companies participating from across the world

Ireland

UK

It would have been one of the most intriguing parts of somebody's childhood — puppet shows. There was a time when puppets told stories, jokes, interacted with humans, made the kids laugh and most importantly, seemed to be like a real character.

To bring back the experience, from Brazil to Italy, Iceland to Tunisia — the Ishara International Puppet Theatre Festival once again travels the world to curate its line-up for this year's edition. The festival celebrates its 17th anniversary with a diverse range of performances, communicating across language barriers and defining the social, cultural and emotional bonds that humanity shares.

Besides many Indian puppet artists, there will be performers from across four continents showcasing an array of talent from over 150 international puppet companies.

From the traditional to modern forms of puppetry, ranging from rod to string puppets, there will be a range of performances with dance, theatre and music. The festival, that has been curating puppet shows for over thirty years, aims to educate, enrich and transform communities through puppetry.

Some participating countries are UK, Spain, Turkey, Brazil, Sweden, Norway, Israel, Sri Lanka, Indonesia, Taiwan, Japan, Iran, Afghanistan, Ireland, Belgium, Italy, Germany, Switzerland, Australia and the USA.

"It's been over thirty years of Ishara puppet theatre and the love for puppetry has grown in people. For us, 2019 is the year of celebration. One will witness that in the per-

Williams overcomes top seed Halep's tough challenge to advance in quarters

AFP ■ MELBOURNE

Serena Williams subdued a stubborn fightback from world number one Simona Halep to take her quest for a record-equalling 24th major into the season's first Grand Slam quarter-finals on Monday.

The 37-year-old American beat the Romanian top seed 6-1, 4-6, 6-4 in an epic three-setter to line up a last eight clash with Czech eighth seed Karolina Pliskova.

It was Williams' first match against a world number one since returning after having a baby in September 2017 and the American showed why many already regard her as the greatest of all time.

She unleashed an early onslaught and Halep was in danger crumbling before the French Open champion regrouped for a stirring comeback.

"It was an intense match and there were some incredible points," Williams said.

"She's the number one player in the world and there's a reason why... (but) I'm such a fighter, I just never give up."

Williams won her 23rd Grand Slam Down Under two years ago while two months pregnant and is the bookies' favourite to claim an eighth Australian title, despite being seeded 16th.

Another major would match Margaret Court's tally and an intensely-focused Williams had not dropped a set in three matches before meeting Halep.

Williams started slowly when she allowed Halep to bring up three break points in the opening game, conceding with a double fault.

But the American broke back in the next, racing to the net for an overhead smash when one of her powerfully hit returns flew high off Halep's racket.

She then ran away with the first set 6-1 in 20 minutes, blasting 10 winners to three against the world's top-ranked player.

Halep did better early in the second set, and when the American did break her in the third game she immediately broke back.

Standing well behind the baseline, she drew Williams into more rallies and began to find her range, hitting the corners to move the American around.

Halep broke again to take a set off Williams, celebrating with a fired-up double fist pump.

The turning point came in the sixth game of the third set when Halep clawed three break points but Williams held and took a decisive break in the fifth.

UPBEAT DESPITE LOSS

World number one Simona Halep remained upbeat after a gutsy display against 23-time Grand Slam champion Williams, who is on a mission this year for a record equalling 24th title.

When asked to rate her campaign she replied: "Close to 10." "I have the courage to say that, because I took the risk to stay home so much (for off-season rest)."

"I haven't prepared for the highest level in tennis, but I didn't play bad, so I'm happy about the way that it's been going this tournament. I take only the positives. I had great matches." Halep was not concerned her fourth-round exit could cost her the number one ranking, saying she preferred to concentrate on tournament results.

"The main goal is just to play as good as I can every match, to win every match I play, so the ranking doesn't really matter," she said.

"At this stage I have to work hard to get the level back, to feel 100 percent every match. So I'll work for that."

As for her immediate plans, Halep said she would be resting up and closely watching the rest of the season-opening Grand Slam.

"I'll just go home, I will rest and I will watch tennis," she said. "I'm also curious about who is going to win."

Drafted Novak Djokovic admitted he "didn't feel so great" after surviving a physical fourth-round examination against 15th seed Daniil Medvedev at the Australian Open.

The world number one was in trouble at two sets down before winning a third five-setter in four matches to get past Spain's Pablo Carreno Busta.

"Congratulations to him for fighting back from two sets to love down and break down. He's a fighter," said Djokovic.

"He's a very talented player. One of the quickest players on the tour. You know, hard worker. I have lots of respect for him."

The Australian Open is Djokovic's most successful major and a seventh crown would put him clear of six-times champion Roger Federer, who was eliminated on Sunday, and Australian great Roy Emerson, whose six wins all came before the Open era.

Victory at this year's Australian Open would be the Serb's 15th in Grand Slams, putting him third on the all-time winner list — one ahead of American great Pete Sampras, but behind Rafael Nadal's 17 titles and Federer's 20.

It would be his third major in a row after winning Wimbledon and the US Open and set him up for a crack at the "Novak Slam".

The French Open comes next and victory at Roland Garros would mean he holds all four majors.

Earlier, Japanese fighter Kei Nishikori recovered from two sets down to reach the Australian Open quarter-finals with an epic win over Pablo Carreno Busta 6-7 (8/10), 4-6, 7-6 (7/4), 6-4, 7-6 (10/8).

It was Nishikori's third five-setter of the tournament and the second time the never-say-die eighth seed had recovered from two sets behind.

His win over the 23rd seeded Spaniard took a marathon 5hr 5min after an opening set that alone lasted 76 minutes.

"You have to open up the court and try to be patient and construct the point." The 31-year-old Serb crucially saved three break points at 1-2, 0-40 in the pivotal third set to break the tenacious 22-year-old's resolve.

"Even though it was three sets to one, it seems like a five-set match, really," said Djokovic. "It was draining physically a

OSAKA SETS UP SVITOLINA CLASH

Japanese US Open champion Naomi Osaka ground her way into quarter-final with sixth seed Elina Svitolina on Monday.

As the second week of the opening Grand Slam of the year got underway, fourth seed Osaka was still standing after emerging from an error-strewn first set against crafty Latvian Anastasija Sevastova to win 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The victory left the bubbly 21-year-old with a last-eight clash against ambitious Ukrainian Svitolina, who battled past American Madison Keys 6-2, 1-6, 6-1.

It will be a new experience for whoever wins that showdown, with neither of them going beyond the quarter-finals at Melbourne Park before.

Osaka beat Williams to clinch the title at Flushing Meadows in 2018. It propelled her to stardom, but she has been far from convincing at her first major since.

"I didn't give up, she was playing really well and I wasn't really sure what to do at a certain point, but I just tried to stick in there," she said.

"I was watching all these kids winning. Last night (Stefanos) Tsitsipas beat (Roger) Federer and I was like, whoa, and I decided I wanted to do well too."

Svitolina needed to dig deep to overcome 17th seeded Keys, a US Open finalist in 2017. The turning point was a marathon 16-minute game early in the deciding set that went to deuce 11 times as Keys chased a decisive break.

But the American's resolve crumbled when Svitolina held off five break points then gained an advantage in the next game.

"I had to put my level up, I'm glad I handled the pressure," said Svitolina, who scored her biggest career win at the WTA Finals in Singapore last October.

"It was very hard because the sun was burning my eyes when I was tossing the ball, so I was very happy to win."

Svitolina was a quarter-finalist last year and has set her sights high after her breakthrough in Singapore, targeting a Grand Slam win and world number one.

'It made me feel better', says racquet-smasher Zverev

AFP ■ MELBOURNE

Furious fourth seed Alexander Zverev crashed out of the Australian Open on Monday but said he "felt better" after smashing his racquet to pieces in frustration.

Zverev erupted in the second set of a 6-1, 6-1, 7-6 (7/5) fourth-round humiliation by Canadian 16th seed Milos Raonic, hammering his racquet into the ground eight times to leave it a mangled mess.

"Yeah, it made me feel better. I was very angry, so I let my anger out," he told reporters.

And the volatile German was surprised when asked if he had done it before. "You never watched my matches? You should watch my matches," he smiled.

Zverev was tipped as a future Grand Slam champion after a breakthrough 2018 that saw him win the ATP Tour Finals, beating Novak Djokovic and Roger Federer in the process.

Instead it was a familiar tale of woe as he failed to make the last-eight of a major for the 14th time in 15 majors.

The world number four broke former world number three Raonic's formidable serve at the start of the match but then imploded to lose nine straight games in an error-strewn disaster.

"I mean, I played bad. The first two sets especially I played horrible," admitted Zverev, who committed eight double faults and 16 unforced errors against eight winners in the 63-minute duration of the first two sets.

"Yeah, I mean, it's just tough to name one thing (I did well). I didn't serve well, didn't play well from the baseline. Against a quality player like him, it's tough to come back from that."

Zverev left the court to cool off and at least was competitive when he returned for the third set which he took to a tiebreak.

"I obviously tried to come back and obviously in the third set I started to play a little bit better, but you know, it was a little bit too late already." But the 21-year-old, widely regarded as the flag-bearer for the next generation, said he would not let another early Slam exit get him down.

"Now I'm not happy, but I'm not depressed, either. It's fine. It's a tennis match. I have learned to take tennis matches as tennis matches and not the end of the world," he said.

"If I would think it's the end of the world every time I lose a tennis match, I would be very depressed about 15 to 20 times a year. So I'm not going to do that."

Barty fired up for Kvitova re-match

AFP ■ MELBOURNE

Hometown hope Ashleigh Barty faces a tough battle against Czech veteran Petra Kvitova for a spot in the semi-finals on Tuesday but will have the entire host nation cheering her on.

The other contest for a final four berth pits the unseeded pairing of Anastasia Pavlyuchenkova and Danielle Collins against one another, with both players seeking Grand Slam breakthroughs.

Barty, 22, entered this year's tournament as 15th seed but carries massive pressure from an Australian public desperate for Grand Slam success after becoming the first local to make the last eight in a decade.

She has already downed five-time Grand Slam champion Maria Sharapova and is on a red-hot run of form, winning seven of her eight matches this year.

But against the eighth-seeded Kvitova, Barty is up against one of the few players on tour who can boast a richer vein of 2019 form.

Kvitova has won all nine of her matches this year, including a three-set win over Barty in the final of the Sydney International warm-up tournament.

Petra Kvitova reacts after defeating Amanda Anisimova in fourth round match AP

With two Wimbledon titles in her trophy cabinet, the 28-year-old Kvitova has experience going deep into Grand Slams, while Barty's run to the Melbourne quarters is the furthest she has gone at a major.

Throw in the fact that Kvitova has a 3-0 record against Barty and the task facing the Australian looks imposing.

But Barty, whose best showing at a major is the US Open fourth round last year, has welcomed the pressure, saying this year's career plan was always to "go deep into Slams".

"I feel like that was the next step for me," she said.

Russia's Pavlyuchenkova, the world number 44, is a player who has been threatening to reach the next level for several years but still remains on the fringes of success at the majors.

The 27-year-old's match against Collins is her second appearance in the quarter-finals at Melbourne Park and her fourth overall at Grand Slams.

She is yet to progress further but showed admirable resilience to fight back after dropping a set to US fifth seed Sloane Stephens in a third-round match.

Her opponent was a largely unknown quality after playing much of her tennis on the US college circuit, but grabbed the tennis world's attention with a 6-0, 6-2 drubbing of second seed Angelique Kerber in the fourth round.

World number 35 Collins had never won a match at a Grand Slam in five previous attempts before arriving in Melbourne and putting three seeds to the sword on the way to the fourth round.

Nadal faces Tiafoe; Tsitsipas eyes s/f

AFP ■ MELBOURNE

Relentless Rafael Nadal will aim to snuff out the challenge of young giant-killer Frances Tiafoe on Tuesday, while young Greek Stefanos Tsitsipas has eyes on a maiden semi-final after knocking out Roger Federer.

The tournament hits the quarter-final stage in Melbourne with 17-time Grand Slam winner Nadal emerging as a strong title favourite.

The Spaniard has not dropped a set and demolished former world number four Tomas Berdych 6-0, 6-1, 7-6 (7/4) in the fourth round in an awesome display.

Lying in his path is American Tiafoe who has already accounted for the fifth seed Kevin Anderson and become a fans' favourite with his exuberant LeBron James style celebrations and inspiring life story.

The son of immigrants from Sierra Leone, Tiafoe turned 21 on Sunday and celebrated his birthday by beating 20th seed Grigor Dimitrov to reach a Slam quarter-final for the first time.

"I'm so excited to play Rafa. We're going to have some fun, going to have some long rallies."

Nadal said he was aware of the young world number 39, and would be on his guard against a man he had never played.

"He has everything. He's quick. He serves well. Very quick forehand," said the 2009 champion who is aiming to become the only man in the Open era to win all four Grand Slams at least twice.

'HE'S DANGEROUS'

"He's a very dynamic player, aggressive one. Of course, he's dangerous. He's in quarter-finals."

Tsitsipas was thrust into the global spotlight after ending double defending champion Federer's quest for a record seventh title.

The gifted 20-year-old has already secured his place in history as the first Greek to reach a Grand Slam quarter-final.

He held off 12 break points before flummoxing the Swiss master in four sets.

He faces another Spaniard, the inform Roberto Bautista Agut.

On his way to the title in Doha earlier this month before ending Andy Murray's hopes, and possibly his career, in the first round in Melbourne.

Bautista Agut is looking to extend his 2019 win streak to 10 matches and a potential all-Spanish semi-final against Nadal.
