The July 23 letter, which was signed by 49 celebrities from different fields, was directed to the Prime Minister, Narendra Modi, and the Union Home Minister, Ravi Shankar Prasad. The letter, which was also posted on social media, reads: “We, as peace-loving and responsible citizens, are strongly concerned about a number of issues that have come to our attention, things happening in recent times in our country.” The letter goes on to address the issue of crime, especially lynching, in the country.

Union Minister Shabana Azmi wrote to Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Monday, expressing concern over rising communal violence in the country after a letter was written to him on July 23 by 49 celebrities. Azmi’s letter was in response to a call for a “national letter writing campaign” by Dr. Zhang Qinxi, a professor at Beijing Normal University, and others.

However, speaking to the media on Tuesday, Union Minister Shabana Azmi said, “we have seen with this Python does not want to be surpassed. It is not a question of Islam versus Hinduism but a question of hatred towards the community of which we belong.” Azmi also said that the letter was written in response to a call for a “national letter writing campaign” by Dr. Zhang Qinxi, a professor at Beijing Normal University, and others.

Bengal civil society urged Prime Minister Modi and West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee to publicly condemn the recent lynchings in the state and go on record about the issue. Bengal civil society also urged the Chief Minister to take immediate action against the culprits.

Speaking about the lynchings in the state, a Bengal civil society member said, “the government should take immediate action against the culprits.”

Responding to the letter, the West Bengal government said, “we will continue to take strong action against those who indulge in such activities.”

The letter also condemned the attacks on minorities and Dalits and said, “these attacks should not be allowed to continue.”

The letter ends with the conclusion that “we strongly feel that such offences should be declared non-bailable, and that exemplary punishment should be meted out to such offenders.”

The letter was signed by 49 celebrities from different fields, including actors, poets, musicians, and politicians. The list includes well-known figures such as Aamir Khan, Shah Rukh Khan, Amitabh Bachchan, and Priyanka Chopra.

The letter was signed by Aamir Khan, who is known for his role in the film “Dangal,” and actor Shah Rukh Khan, who is a prominent figure in the Bollywood industry.

Another regime change

Kamata may have a new Government but built on the rains of political polarization, will it last?

B y Yudhoyono, the likely new BLP Chief Minister of Kamata, may have had his political career marked by the momentous events of the last decade, but his leadership could be marked by the internal divisions in the political landscape. Unlike the previous regime, which was dominated by personal rule and familial ties, the new government seems to be more intent on promoting decentralization and inclusivity. This could lead to a more stable and sustainable development in the region.

The Lama had made it clear in 2011 that he shall leave clear instructions about who should succeed him. This is not the first time that the Chinese government has been involved in the succession process. In fact, the Chinese government has been actively involved in the succession process of the Dalai Lama for years. The Chinese government has always maintained that the Dalai Lama should be chosen according to the traditional procedures of Tibetan Buddhism. The Chinese government has also expressed its concern about the potential for instigating social unrest and political instability in Tibet if the succession process is not handled properly.

Standing up for buyers

The SC verdict in Amrapali case may have given hope to buyers but when houses are delivered, the story isn’t over.

It is great that the Supreme Court put the interests of homebuyers first and foremost. The SC has been dealing with the scathing reports of Amrapali Developers, the Noida-based group that stood accused in the Amrapali case. The company, which was charged with massive amounts of money being taken from homebuyers, the banks, which are风气, the National Housing Bank, which sanctioned land and plans for the developer, have their work cut out for them.

But all this good news is bound to end with finishing the project does not mean the ordeal is over for the thousands of homebuyers, who bought Amrapali homes in good faith. The work on the many apartment complexes undertaken by the company is still going on, and the homebuyers are waiting to see if their money was put to good use or will be forced to sell their homes at a loss.

The success of the Supreme Court in this matter is a step in the right direction. However, the task of delivering the homes is not an easy one. The company, which is facing financial difficulties, needs to find a way to complete the project and deliver the homes to the buyers.

No turning back

Sir — Leaders these days, even those who call themselves 'socialists,' have a tendency to pluck themes and tropes, like to speak their mind — in one-week policies and one-day agendas — and for that brief moment when their address is fresh in people’s minds, they are what they were and what they are and what they should stand for. Jamuna and Khabli’s symbol of the white horse could not be portrayed as anything less than a symbol of what Kamata’s State was in bad times. Kamata also is the Governor who believes, a Governor who believes a Governor who believes in the State under which it is empowered to do.

On the one hand, the Centre has withdrawn, 30 Articles of the Constitution, all the laws on the other and the earlier commitment of the Centre shopped away in the middle of its last tenure. Governor’s office was given up for the Centre’s office, Governor Mallick may have said, "I am not a Governor," — saying he had spoken on a trip, his own trip, but he cannot be said to have enough su- dience.

Union minister — Dineshwar Sharma

In this special edition, the State Minister for External Affairs, Dineshwar Sharma, will be addressing some of the key issues that are currently facing the government.

I am sure the Central leadership must have understood the need of the hour and the Centre is always there for the people. But sometimes, the Centre must take a call to do the right thing.

PRAYANKA’S move

Sir — This refers to the article, “Tromping policy” (July 14). The political drama surrounding the Prime Minister’s move did not reach peak when the Prime Minister announced the new political move. Interestingly, Priyanka Gandhi was detained, abducted, and threatened, demanding to be allowed to visit the village.

Dealing with President Trump

When will India be able to return to normalcy? The question is a common one, especially in light of the current global situation. However, the situation in India is far from normal, and it seems like a long way off.

The sound of gunfire is heard, with echoes of the past. The world is in turmoil, and the future is uncertain. Will India be able to rise above the chaos and find its footing? Only time will tell.

The success challenge

A missed opportunity

Two months after the implementation of the GST, it appears the Government failed to address a couple of serious lacunae. It needs to correct its course and retrace its steps.

A comprehensive strategy that includes a mix of crisis response and impact mitigation, while also taking into account urban and rural planning, livelihoods, and health perspectives, is needed to mitigate the north-eastern state's agony.

Dual-pronged approach to flood relief

A report titled "Floods without delay. The Central" highlights the importance of immediate response to the threat of floods, particularly in regions like Assam, which have experienced significant flooding in recent years. The report states that the Central Government's response to the floods has been inadequate, leading to delays in relief measures.

The report notes that the Central Government has failed to take immediate action to address the flood situation, resulting in significant hardship for the affected communities. The report emphasizes the need for a coordinated and efficient response to the flood crisis, which includes measures such as early warning systems, rapid deployment of relief materials, and effective communication with the affected populations.

The report highlights the importance of involving local communities in the flood response, as they have valuable knowledge of the region and can provide crucial insights into the situation. It also calls for increased funding and resources to support the affected communities in the long term, including rebuilding homes and livelihoods.

The report concludes by stressing the urgent need for a comprehensive approach to flood management, which includes both short-term relief efforts and long-term preparedness measures. It calls for a more proactive and coordinated response to the flood crisis, which can help mitigate the impact of future floods and provide relief to those affected by past disasters.

The Central Government must take immediate action to address the flood situation, including providing adequate relief and support to the affected communities. It is crucial to ensure that the affected populations are provided with the necessary assistance to overcome the challenges posed by the flood crisis.

The Government must also prioritize long-term flood management strategies, which include investments in infrastructure, early warning systems, and community-based disaster risk reduction initiatives. This will help reduce the impact of future floods and provide a more resilient response to the crisis.

The report concludes by urging the Government to take immediate action to address the flood situation, including providing adequate relief and support to the affected communities. It also calls for increased funding and resources to support the affected communities in the long term, including rebuilding homes and livelihoods.

FM introduces Bill in RS for faster bad loans resolution

PTI NEW DELHI

The Government on Wednesday introduced The Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (Amendment) Bill 2019, that seeks to improve time-cost and transparency of the insolvency resolution process and provide more clarity and certainty to stakeholders.

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman introduced the bill in the Lok Sabha, saying she wants it to pass smoothly, setting a marker for the new government’s policies.

But leader of opposition Ghulam Nabi Azad told the House that she can talk about it at any time or stage of the bill and sought continuance of the discussion on the Protection of Children From Sexual Offenders (PSCSO) Bill 2019. The proposed amendments to the Code are aimed at legislating critical gaps in the corporate insolvency and bankruptcy code.

The changes in the law are aimed at timely admittance of applications and timely completion of the insolvency resolution process. It provides that if an application has been filed against an entity, the Code will be applicable. If the company has been formally declared as an NPA, it will be seen as a default in law. If the Code is applicable, it will be a default in law.

It is to be ensure that the case come up with timely resolution of maximum value. The Code provides that the votes of all financial creditors of the concerned default will go to the Board of Insolvency and liquidation (BIL) for determination.

One unallotted or withdrawn seat in BIL will be taken up by the company having the highest voting share (more than 51%) on the financial creditors on present voting base.

The Bill also provides for discontinuation of winding-up proceedings. A winding-up proceeding is not to be continued until the Board of Insolvency and liquidation declares that there is no hope of revival of the company.

The Bill also provides a deadline for completion of insolvency proceedings. This is proposed within 250 days (180 days for large corporate debtors and 120 days for small corporate debtors).

As a new Section 145A has been inserted, from the date of the order of stay on the winding-up proceedings, the Board of Insolvency and liquidation to be formed within 120 days.

The Bill provides for a ‘resolution plan’ by the Board of Insolvency and liquidation to clarify that a resolution plan prepared by the insolvency resolution professionals may include the provisions for some compromise, an agreement by way of margin, amalgamation, and cross-transfer.

India jumps 5 places to 52nd in global innovation index

PTI NEW DELHI

India improved its ranking by 5 places and ranked 52nd in the index of the world’s most innovative economies and scored 40.1 out of 129 nations completing the top expert of IT services, R&D expenditure, innovation and performance in science, technology outputs, mediocrity in innovation and research and market sophistication.

Speaking in the Rajya Sabha, Union Minister for Finance and Corporate Affairs, Nirmala Sitharaman said that India home made that it is home to the largest numbers of young population in the world. The minister, who was also the sponsor of the resolution, said that the government has launched the scheme to take the innovation ecosystem in the country to the next level.

US seeks ‘continued progress’ from Pakistan in defeating terrorist groups

President Hassan Rouhani of Iran today exhorted the UK government to ease tensions over the detention of a UK-flagged ship in the Gulf, just before he was driven down a stairs and into a massive protest in Tehran.

The British Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson visited Iran today to try to de-escalate the tension between the two countries, as Rouhani said he was not ‘concerned’ about the situation.

However, Johnson was in Tehran to discuss the Iran nuclear deal, which he said would potentially ‘safeguard’ Iran’s nuclear program from international inspection.

Rouhani said that a peaceful and stable solution to the Afghan conflict is a priority for Iran, as the US is ready to ‘invade’ the region.

The US has been seeking to de-escalate tensions with Iran, as it has been involved in a series of escalations with the Islamic Republic.

The UK is also seeking to de-escalate tensions with Iran, as it is involved in a series of tensions with the Islamic Republic.

BELIEVED AND GLOW

Psydramatist RASHMI DUTT says that physically recreating certain situations and emotions of the past can cause different people to come on stage and in the audience to find something from being in that role. While looking at usual therapy, there are few people who actually imagine a therapist sitting in front of the waking world and actually watch the client stream their entire life. It is in fact human tendency that we must be someone, who she could or could not be the one who sees or past situations. “Reliving or past situations. “Reliving those moments in order to overcome them. “Since the session takes place in a group, the woman chooses an individual from the audience to act as her mother and another person, who would have characterized the same mother. She then tells her acting such that the woman would share the scene with the person, some of whom play a role of a character or a friend or the like. She says, and others do the same. She asks everyone to write down the emotions that they were experiencing when they first met their mother or the like. And that she would feel and share their emotions for the role.”

During the therapy, participants are encouraged to explore new solutions to difficulties and challenges, and then role-play scenes from their past, incorporating the emotions they experienced during those times. By acting out these scenarios, participants can gain a better understanding of their emotional responses and develop new coping strategies for dealing with similar situations in the future. Through this process, participants can learn to express their emotions more openly and authentically, which can lead to a greater sense of self-awareness and self-compassion. In addition, the experience of role-playing can help participants develop new perspectives and insights into their own behavior and relationships. Overall, the goal of the therapy is to help individuals gain a greater understanding of their emotional responses and develop new coping strategies for dealing with similar situations in the future.
