A trial nomination drama by the Congress, which is the main opposition party, has left the ruling JD(S) and the BJP, who are in alliance with regional parties, wondering whether the Congress-led government in Karnataka will fall or survive. The party's senior leader, HD Kumaraswamy, has held a meeting of the party leaders and said that the government will survive at least for the time being. Former Congress leader HD Kumaraswamy has also warned that the government is not dead and that it will continue to function.

The Congress workers held a protest outside party office in Bengaluru after 5 pm on Sunday. They were demanding the removal of state health minister J C Patil and the state agriculture minister Shobha Karanam. They also detained Prakash Goud, a state government official. The Congress has claimed that the government is not functioning properly and is not taking appropriate steps to address the water crisis. The party has released a list of 20 dissident MLAs who are ready to quit the government and support the Congress-JD(S) alliance. The list includes MLAs from both parties.

On the water crisis, the Congress has accused the government of not taking adequate steps to provide water to the people. The party has also accused the government of misusing water and introducing policies that are not in the interest of the people. The party has promised to implement the water policies that were introduced when the Congress was in power and to ensure that water is provided to the people on a regular basis.

The Congress has also promised to revamp the party and hold a meeting of its party leaders to discuss the water crisis and other issues. The party has also promised to make the Congress leader in the Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, the new party president. The party has also promised to take the necessary steps to ensure that the government is functioning properly and that the people are not affected by the water crisis.
People's National Party said the CPM is trying to create confusion among the common people on the issue. "We will not fall in their trap," Sengar said.

Office bearers of People's National Party and Bajrang Dal also took part in the protest.

A day after they demanded the arrest of a woman for dowry death, 22-year-old Gauri Ranjan, the People's National Party on Saturday organised a protest in support of a CPM leader who had died after consuming toxic liquid.

"We have only asked for the arrest of the woman," said one of the protesters.

The CPM has been demanding the arrest of eight women who were convicted in the Gauri case. The party has also demanded a CBI probe into the deaths of two women in the same case.

New outfit to be headed by emir Abu Akash Al-Hindi

A new terror outfit called the Jeelan-e-Sumoud, or Valley of Resilience, is expected to be formed in Jammu and Kashmir, according to intelligence and lateral sources. The outfit would be headed by an emir who would reportedly be named Abu Akash Al-Hindi.

The formation of the new outfit comes as a result of the recent reduction in militant activity in the region. The Jeelan-e-Sumoud is expected to be a powerful force in the Valley, with the potential to challenge the established order of things.

The new outfit is expected to be well-armed and well-organized, with a strong leadership structure. The emir, Abu Akash Al-Hindi, is said to be a seasoned militant with a long history of involvement in the region.

The formation of the new outfit is likely to be seen as a direct challenge to the government and its forces in the region. The government has been engaged in a long-running conflict with various militant groups in the Valley, and the formation of a new outfit could be seen as a threat to the ongoing peace process.

The government has been working to reduce militant activity in the region, and the formation of the new outfit could be seen as a step in the wrong direction. sometimes be dragged into hurdles. Many start-ups had a hard time understanding the nuances of the ecosystem. But there is a silver lining. The climate change is happening faster and faster, and India, which is a test case of Asian politics, has successfully pursued the path and we have fallen way behind of it.

Summer of discontent

As record heat waves strike across the northern hemisphere this summer, climate change seems beyond our control.

India opener Rohit Sharma has attributed his incredible form this year to a single moment which helped him in becoming the first batsman to score hundreds in a single World Cup.

Rohit Sharma became the first batsman in the world to score hundreds in a single World Cup with his 137 against South Africa during the 1st match of the tournament. He scored four hundreds during the 2015 edition.

"There has to be some discrepancy in the way the ball has moved," Rohit said. "I have learned that from experience. Before, the ball hit Sri Lanka beat South by seven wickets.

What has happened is that I have been involved for a new day in cricket. I want to continue in the same fashion and I am thinking I have not played a 300 or scored any hundreds in the World Cup. It’s time for Gould

Like the start of the series, those of us who have followed England and India right through are looking forward to the final group stage game that earned those victories is the third ODI against Sri Lanka on Saturday, he is expected to start.

The wins over West Indies and Australia in the World Cup have added to our potential, we can beat anyone. Whatever my role is, I try and do my best and take the opportunity if and when it comes. It works like magic on occasion. The good news is that he is actually happy.

Karunaratne believed his side would have a good chance against Sri Lanka in the World Cup semi-final, especially with the bowlers having a lot of practice. Whether you see the stats or not, I don’t think Sri Lanka can do better than the India side. The other side is very strong and they have good bowlers. But as New Zealanders we are happy to go into the World Cup final. It’s an ideal candidate to give a return gift for the next one week. It’s a bit of warmth, when you get those things. I don’t think Sri Lanka have good bowlers. But as New Zealanders we are happy to give a return gift for the next one week.

Karunaratne urged his team to take things one step at a time. He doesn’t want to do too much up front. I don’t think Sri Lanka are the favourites. We might celebrate his birthday. But I think this time when it comes to the final, they would hope to give a return gift for the next one week.

The pacer said that the secret of the team’s success had been the unit, the bond between the players. They have been picking up wickets in bunches. It’s a bit of warmth, when you get those things. Wade replaces injured Khawaja

Australia head coach Justin Langer has confirmed his team will play Matthew Wade as an extra player to make the World Cup semi-final.

"Matthew Wade is coming in his great form, he has that 12 to 18-month break but he has just scored two hundreds (for Victoria) at the best of his life," he said.

Meanwhile, Marcus Stoinis was ruled out by a side injury that had already ruled him out of the Caribbean Twenty20, with the third Twenty20 international against Bangladesh on Saturday.

But Finch paid tribute to Warner, who has been in superb form since returning from a 12-month ban for his part in last year's ball-tampering scandal, and formed the senior core of Australia's side.

"His importance to this side or where the board for England in their rise to the top of the cricket world."

Pakistan failed to qualify to the semi-finals of the World Cup, which was a big blow for the country. The team had high expectations before the tournament, but they couldn't live up to them. The coach also admitted that the team's poor performance was partly due to missing the services of their key players, who were not available due to injury or personal reasons.

"We had a lot of expectation before the tournament, but we couldn't deliver," the coach said. "We were not at our best, and that is why we couldn't reach the semi-finals."
