SP MLC’s driver found hanging

The driver of Samruddh Partikar MLC AK Yadav was found hanging in the lodge’s restaurant at Vellore in Tamil Nadu on Wednesday. Police said the driver committed suicide but failed to give any reason for the act.

The deceased was identified as Man Singh, a resident of Luni Katra locality in Bhiwani district. According to the family, Man Singh was with Yadav for the last six years and was the driver of the vehicle used by him for the last two months, along with his family.

Source: Naveen Singh, the Yadav’s wife, found the body of her husband in the lodge, which is owned by her sister-in-law, from inside when she went to call him. "We found him hanging from a wall by a rope," she said. "He was like our own brother and we are shocked and heartbroken."

The police said the body was found under the terrace of the orange and white hotel.

A brief talk with Sharad while the pillion rider shot at Sharad

The body of a 30-year-old software executive from HCL was found hanging from a terrace in Indira Nagar in Bhiwadi on Wednesday morning.

The police said the man had mental disorders and was found hanged while waiting for a friend. They said the body was reached and the body was declared as suicide. They said the investigation made so far in the case revealed that a friend came from behind Sharad and overtook his bike.

There were no traces of violence in the body. The body was taken to the municipal hospital for autopsies and investigations.

The police said the case was registered under IPC 306 for failing to control crime.

The CCTV footage from the hotel that Sharad was driving a motorcycle was seen coming from behind Sharad and overtook his bike. The CCTV footage also showed a man wearing a helmet and head gear is standing in front of Sharad.

Another regime change
Karnataka may have a new Government but built on the ruins of political morality will it last?

By Vidyasagar, the likely new BLP Chief Minister of Karnataka, may have had his vision of the role of a Governor in democratic governance confirmed by the recent political developments in Karnataka. For the first time in a long while, the political parties are at loggerheads on the issue of ethical governance. It is not that the parties are not interested in ethical governance, but the way they are defining it is not the same. This could be the reason why Vidyasagar was promoted to the Congress leadership.

The Congress has been in power for a long time in Karnataka and has always been keen to promote ethical governance. But the question is, who is going to take over the reins of the government in Karnataka? The new Chief Minister of Karnataka, Vidyasagar, has been quite vocal about his stance on ethical governance. He has been advocating for a strong and transparent government, which is committed to the welfare of the people.

Vidyasagar is a well-known politician in Karnataka and has been a leader of the Congress party for many years. He has been involved in various social and political activities and has been known for his commitment to the welfare of the people. He has been a member of the Karnataka Legislative Assembly for many years and has been a strong voice in the state assembly. He has been a champion of the cause of education and has been instrumental in implementing various educational policies in the state.

Vidyasagar has been a vocal critic of the previous government and has been advocating for a change in the leadership. He has been a strong advocate of the need for ethical governance and has been pushing for a change in the government. He has been vocal about the need for a government that is committed to the welfare of the people and has been pushing for a change in the leadership. Two years after the implementation of the GST, the government appears to be addressing a couple of serious lacunae. It needs to correct course and restore trust.

Inderjeet Singh

This month marks the completion of two years since the Goods and Services Tax (GST) was rolled out. To mark the celebration, the government has announced yet another raft of measures, with further relaxation in indirect tax systems. The introduction of new rates, exception exemptions, rationalisation of cash ledger system and a single roll-back mechanism to mitigate the impact of any compliance issue, it is not possible to overlook the fact that the GST is still a work in progress.

However, the GST and demonetisation have two major common impacts. Both have increased compliance issues. This would badly hamper the Indian economy.

In March 2018, at the NITI Aayog, the government announced the dismantling of the GST Council and Inspectorates. This announcement was followed by crucial cash shortages across the country, which led to chaos and disruptions in economic and industrial activity.

Demonetisation was a big step toward generational tax reforms. GST, on the other hand, was a huge step toward multi-stage value-added tax reforms. Both these reforms have increased compliances. But, the economic performance has not improved as much as the government claims, as the common man and businesses claim to be facing difficulties.

To quote former President Pranab Mukherjee, "As GST automation was more of a complex decision which is why we need a dedicated team but part of it is that our national mindset, the operational efficiencies, the mindset... how to get rid of the mindset...". It is a major step toward the digital economy.

Gandhi had also talked about the so-called "abolition of social duties in rural areas". The GST, on the other hand, has made the entire tax process so complicated that it is almost impossible for a common man to understand it. The GST proposes a notion of "one tax, one nationwide market" to bring in a hassle-free tax collection system. Any change in the tax rate, due to any reason, will cause panic and chaos in the market.

The government has admitted that the farmers were badly hit. A significant impact of demonetisation was felt in the agricultural sector and the industry. According to the observations of the panel, the farmers are still struggling to recover losses, so much so that the business cycle is still interrupted.

In the true impact of demonisation, especially on the farm sector and the industry, the GST has also brought in its own share of challenges. It is not that the GST has failed, but it is an attempt to completely change the structure of tax collection.

Inflation has also been a significant issue. According to the latest data released by the Reserve Bank of India, the consumer price index inflation rate was 4.6%. This is in line with the government's targets of keeping inflation below 5%.

The government's efforts to resuscitate small and medium businesses by providing sops to encourage investments must be appreciated. However, these are still not enough. The government should consider blending crisis management with the long-term sustainability of the economy.

Government officers are accustomed to small and medium businesses by providing sops to encourage investments. But, this is not enough. The government must take immediate steps to boost common and a fall in the spending pattern, the Government must be ensured. Currently, there is not much monitoring to attain success.

The GST, founded on the notion of "one tax, one nationwide market", is designed in such a way that it intuitively under-stands the needs of the businesses. It is designed to be more transparent and efficient in the tax collection system. It has also streamlined the process of acquiring licences through a single-window system, which is a significant step toward the digital economy.

On the other hand, the government must take greater steps to make the GST more user-friendly. The government must also consider blending crisis management with the long-term sustainability of the economy. It is crucial to address the challenges faced by the businesses during the GST implementation period. The government must ensure that the GST is implemented in a manner that benefits all businesses, including small and medium enterprises.

Imran Khan warns US of any misadventure against Iran

Imran says to meet Taliban in peace push

Pakistan's Prime Minister Imran Khan said on Thursday he would meet with the Taliban along the Afghan border, as part of efforts to end 18 years of war in Afghanistan and start a peace process which, on his first official trip to the US, he said would be initiated through talks with the US military.

Imran Khan earlier Tuesday met with US Army General Scott Miller, who was responsible for US military operations in Afghanistan, following which India withdrew from the eastern front, which is India. And if Pakistan wants to negotiate directly with the Taliban, it must have a table where it can sit with the Taliban, which is the true existential threat to Pakistan, said the prime minister.

Boris Johnson takes charge

PT - LONDON

Boris Johnson officially took over as British Prime Minister on Wednesday after PM Theresa May stepped down last week, following a cabinet reshuffle, as discussed in an interview with European Union on October 31. "It's a new day, a new Prime Minister, and the country needs a leader who can deliver," the new leader said. The 55-year-old former foreign secretary and London Mayor has been described as a "Brexit warrior" and has been a controversial figure in British politics, previously served as Foreign Secretary under David Cameron.

Johnson gets blanket coverage in Iran as ‘Britain’s Trump’

PT - WASHINGTON

Johnson was praised in Iran as ‘Britain’s Trump’ last week after he reportedly said the British government was planning to withdraw from a nuclear arms control treaty, which had been signed by the United States, Russia, China, and other countries. The news was seen as a potential threat to the region’s security and stability.

FOURTY FIVE YEARS OF STRUGGLE

KISS and KISS are set to host the 19th International Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences (IAEAS) World Congress-2023, which will be a meeting ground for the exchange of art, culture and literature between India and other countries.

Achyuta Samanta, founder of Kalinga Institute of Industrial Technology (KIIT) and KIIT Institute of Social Sciences (KISS) recently held an interview on World Congress-2023. The interview included the VC of KIIT University, Deepak Behera, VC of Utkal University, Manoj Behera and Ishwar Patnaik, president, Indian University Association (IUAES) World Congress.

Achyuta opened the interaction by saying that he is gratified that India will finally host the event for the first time in 45 years. "We all know that the event is being held in India after 45 years. This is the first time that KISS and KIIT's continuous efforts have come to the state because of tribal people will be a part of this event," he added.

The KISS's campus is being embellished with numerous growth opportunities in arts, culture and literature, thereby, opening new doors for the participating teams from different countries. It will provide a good exchange of art, culture, literature and heritage between India and other countries.

"This was possible because of the vision of Lord Bhubaneshwar. He opened an interaction by saying that this is a great achievement for KISS and KIIT. He has dedicated 3 months for the event," he added.

The event will take place from January 15-19, 2023, in Bhubaneswar, which will be attended by 150 delegates from different countries. EMBELLISHED AND HOW

With feathers, furs, and intricate embroidery, designer SUNET VARMA’s collection was an amalgamation of sophistication and boldness, presenting the unadulterated beauty of the Indian woman. By Tzuva Viva

A touch of the Victorian era gowns, the sculptural forms (puffed undergarments used in old fashion) appeared at the back of women’s dresses I list an edge that was body-hugging. The collection was designed to look like the light of within. “which needs to be heavily with drapes. The light of within, “which needs to be heavily with drapes.”

A careful engineering of what the age ahead asks when the charac- teristics and contours of nature are the norm. The presence of the lighting, the light of within, “which needs to be heavily with drapes.”

INJURED ASSENSIO MISSES OUT IN MADRID

It was a double whammy for Real Madrid as Marco Asensio and Raphael Varane were ruled out of Tuesday’s Champions League match against RB Leipzig.

Spanish media reported that an injury to Asensio’s ankle, which occurred just moments after he scored an equalising goal in Real Madrid’s 2-1 loss to Athletic Bilbao in the Spanish Super Cup last week, could rule him out of the Champions League group stage campaign.

Asensio’s injury occurred in the 75th minute of the match when he stumbled after attempting to control the ball. He was later replaced by Odriozola.

The Real Madrid defender sustained a mild ankle injury, but a further examination revealed a more serious injury.
