US seeks ‘continued progress’ from Pakistan in protecting terror groups

WASHINGTON

The US is seeking ‘continued progress’ from Pakistan in protecting terror groups, the State Department said on Wednesday.

The US is working with Pakistan to ensure that it takes steps to prevent the use of its soil for terrorist activities, Assistant Secretary of State for South and Central Asiaatter said.

The US is also concerned about the rise of communal violence in Pakistan, particularly in the Punjab province, the official added.

Pakistan has made progress in recent years in addressing the issue of terror financing, but more needs to be done, he said.

The official said the US is committed to working with Pakistan to protect terror groups and prevent their use of Pakistani soil for terrorist activities.

First animals deserve a dignified living

There is no reason why other living beings cannot be treated like humans. A mass movement is needed to end the suffering of dogs.

Jyoti Pradhan

A lot of the other news last Saturday, July 21, qual-ified the well-known actor, John Abraham, as saying that animals should be considered as humans, following a talk he had given at the Action for Animals conference in Mumbai. While John Abraham did not go as far as to declare, at least in his public speech, that animals are humans, he did make a poignant appeal for compassion towards them. As an immediate response to the埔tiful talk, the Government proposed in relief and relief measures for flood victims, which included the release of Rs 2000 crores as relief to the State. Floods in this state have become a perennial problem. Given the size of the land mass and the population, two very important factors in determining the amount of relief that a region can receive, it is puzzling to see why the flood relief efforts have not been as effective as they should be. The price of human life is too high to be tolerable. The death toll from the floods is still rising. The state government must take immediate steps to ensure that the relief efforts are effective and that the affected people are not left to suffer.

The Kaziranga National Park, on the other hand, is under severe threat from floods. The park, which is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, is home to many endangered species, including the one-horned rhinoceros. The flood waters have inundated large areas of the park, threatening the survival of its residents. The park authorities have been working tirelessly to save the animals, but the situation remains critical. The government must take urgent action to provide relief to the park and its residents.

Flood relief efforts are not limited to the state of Assam. People in other parts of the country are also facing the brunt of floods. The Centre has announced Rs 2000 crores as relief to the state of Bihar, which is also suffering from floods. The government must ensure that these funds are used effectively and that the affected people are provided with the necessary assistance to rebuild their lives.

Floods are not only a natural disaster, but also a man-made one. Human activities such as deforestation, urbanization, and over-exploitation of natural resources are contributing to the increase in the frequency and severity of floods. The government must take immediate action to address these root causes of floods and prevent them in the future.

In conclusion, it is the responsibility of the government to provide relief to the flood-affected people and to take immediate steps to prevent future floods. The government must work closely with the affected people and ensure that they are provided with the necessary assistance to rebuild their lives. The Centre must also work closely with other states to ensure that the flood relief efforts are effective and that the affected people are not left to suffer.

Two years after the implementation of the GST, the government appeared to be desperate to couple a serious lacuna. It needs to correct course and restore trust

Kumari

This month marks the completion of two years since the Goods and Services Tax (GST) was rolled out. To celebrate the milestone, the Ministry of Finance and the GST Council have announced a major relaxation to the GST regime. The move is aimed at providing relief to the small and medium-sized businesses that have been most affected by the GST.

One of the major criticisms of the GST has been its impact on the smaller businesses. These businesses have found it difficult to adapt to the new tax regime, which requires them to file monthly returns and pay taxes. The GST Council has now announced a relaxation that will allow smaller businesses to switch to the composition scheme, which is a simpler and more flexible tax regime.

Under the composition scheme, the businesses will not have to file monthly returns and pay taxes. Instead, they will have to pay taxes only once a quarter. This relaxation will provide significant relief to the smaller businesses, which have been struggling to adapt to the GST.

The GST Council has also announced a relaxation on the input tax credit rules. Under the GST, input tax credit has been allowed only on goods and services used for taxable supplies. The relaxation will allow the businesses to claim input tax credit on all goods and services, including those used for non-taxable supplies.

These relaxations are likely to provide significant relief to the small and medium-sized businesses, which have been struggling to adapt to the GST.

Kumari

A missed opportunity

Academics who are associated with the GST regime are concerned about the missed opportunity to couple a serious lacuna. The GST needs to be corrected course and restore trust

Kumari

The sudden decision had a two-fold impact. On one hand, it created a sense of uncertainty and fear among the people. On the other hand, it led to an increase in the working capital of businesses, which is one of the main reasons for the sluggishness in economic activity.

The true impact of demonetisation, especially on smaller businesses, has been the subject of much debate. While some argue that demonetisation was a necessary step to tackle corruption and black money, others believe that it was a costly and inefficient way to achieve these goals.

Government efforts to resuscitate small and medium-sized businesses through the composition scheme have not been successful. The scheme is designed in such a way that intuitively succeeds in achieving its objectives. However, the scheme is not working as expected. The businesses that were impacted by demonetisation have not been able to switch to the composition scheme, which is meant to provide them with relief.

Government officials have attributed the failure of the composition scheme to the lack of awareness among the businesses. However, the businesses that were impacted by demonetisation are not the only ones that need relief. The small and medium-sized businesses that were not impacted by demonetisation also need relief.

The government must take immediate action to correct the GST regime and provide relief to the smaller businesses. The composition scheme must be made more flexible and easier to understand. The government must also provide training and support to the businesses to help them switch to the composition scheme.

The government must also take action to deal with the black money problem. The demonetisation move was intended to tackle black money, but it did not achieve its objective. The government must take more aggressive steps to deal with black money, including enhanced enforcement of tax laws and stricter penalties for tax evasion.

The government must also take action to deal with the currency shortage problem. The demonetisation move was intended to tackle currency shortage, but it did not achieve its objective. The government must take more aggressive steps to deal with currency shortage, including enhanced supply of currency notes and enhanced enforcement of currency laws.

The government must also take action to deal with the inflation problem. The demonetisation move was intended to tackle inflation, but it did not achieve its objective. Suspected meteorite chunk lands in Madhubani

A meteorite or meteor shower, also known as a "shooting star", is a piece of rock or dust from space that enters the Earth's atmosphere, warming and glowing en route. When the glowing piece of debris burns up and enters the Earth's atmosphere and vaporizes, it is called a meteor. If some of it survives the journey and strikes the Earth, it is called a meteorite.

The meteorite landed in Madhubani, a town in the eastern Indian state of Bihar. The meteorite was reportedly spotted by locals as it entered the atmosphere at high speed, creating a bright light and a loud boom. The sighting of the meteorite has sparked interest and concern in the local community, as well as among scientists and meteorologists.

The discovery of a meteorite in an urban area like Madhubani is not uncommon. Meteorites are constantly falling to Earth, and while most burn up in the atmosphere, some survive and land on the ground. The study of meteorites can provide valuable information about the history and composition of the solar system and the formation of planets.

The meteorite in Madhubani is currently under investigation by local authorities and scientists. It is being analyzed to determine its composition and origin, as well as to assess any potential hazards it may pose to the local population.

The study of meteorites is important for understanding the history and composition of the solar system. Meteorites provide a unique view into the formation and evolution of the solar system, as they are remnants of the material from which the planets were formed. The study of meteorites can also help us understand the processes that occur in space and the conditions that existed during the formation of the planets.

In conclusion, the discovery of the meteorite in Madhubani is a fascinating event that offers a unique opportunity to learn more about the history and composition of the solar system. The study of meteorites is an important field of research that can help us understand the processes that occurred in space and the conditions that existed during the formation of the planets.
Crisis in Karnataka

The political instability in Karnataka, where the Congress and JD(S) government has been in power since May 2018, continues to be a matter of concern. The situation has been further exacerbated by the government's inability to pass the Budget in the Assembly, leading to speculation about its future. The Congress and JD(S) government has been facing opposition from within its own ranks, with some MLAs from the Congress and JD(S) parties expressing their desire to defect to other parties. The state is facing a major crisis as the government is under pressure to prove its majority in the Assembly on a trust vote.

Meanwhile, Karnatakaocusing on the heavy downpour in the city, BMC has released an advisory to the public. The authority has advised people to avoid venturing out during the evening hours and to be cautious while driving. The BMC has also advised people to stay away from low-lying areas and to take necessary precautions to avoid any incidents.

In the second phase of his yatra, Fadnavis will travel on a train from Bhopal to Madhya Pradesh with a special LED screen to highlight the achievements of the BJP Government in alliance with the JD(S).

Mayawati, the former Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister, has alleged that the BJP is trying to create a power struggle in the state. She stated that the BJP is doing everything possible to destabilise the government and remove it from power. Mayawati has also said that the BJP is trying to create a situation in which the JD(S)-BJP government will collapse.

With theAssembly polls due in October, the situation in Karnataka is likely to remain volatile. The Congress and JD(S) government will have to work hard to retain its grip on power and to prove its majority in the Assembly.

The yatra will cover 6,400 km and will span across 18 districts of the state. The yatra will begin on August 1 and will end on August 18. The yatra will be a part of Fadnavis' campaign for the upcoming elections in the state.

Heavy rain in Mumbai after dry spell

The heavy downpour over the last few days has caused waterlogging in low-lying areas of the city, especially in the suburbs. The BMC has advised people to avoid venturing out during the evening hours and to be cautious while driving. The BMC has also advised people to stay away from low-lying areas and to take necessary precautions to avoid any incidents.

The downpour has caused flooding in some areas and has affected road traffic. The BMC has advised people to use public transport and to avoid driving in flood-prone areas.

The heavy downpour has also caused power cuts in some areas of the city. The Maharashtra State Electricity Board (MSEDCL) has advised people to beware of live wires and to be cautious while working with electrical equipment.

The downpour has also caused damage to crops in some areas of the state. The Agriculture department has advised farmers to take necessary precautions to protect their crops from the heavy rain.

The state government has advised people to be cautious and to take necessary precautions to avoid any incidents. The BMC has also advised people to use public transport and to avoid driving in flood-prone areas.

The heavy downpour has also caused disruptions in the rail network. The Western Railways has advised people to use alternate modes of transport and to avoid venturing out during the evening hours.

NEW DELHI

The Government on Wednesday introduced the Bankruptcy and Insolvency (Amendment) Bill to the Lok Sabha, which seeks to ensure timely resolution of bad loans and resolve some differences with the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) over the resolution of bad assets.

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said the bill was introduced at the Lok Sabha in the presence of party leaders to highlight that the government was working closely with all political parties on the issue of resolution of bad loans.

She said the government has taken this move in the light of some few points about importance of this bill. She expressed hope that the bill would be passed in the Rajya Sabha.

The Bankruptcy and Insolvency (Amendment) Bill, 2020, which seeks to ensure timely resolution of bad loans and make the insolvency law more amenable to the crisis situation taken in the wake of the ongoing pandemic, proposes several amendments.

The amendments are aimed at removing delays in insolvency proceedings, making it easier for banks to move for insolvency action against defaulters, and creating a mechanism for resolution of viable businesses and recovery of value.

India jumps 5 places to 52nd in global innovation index

India maintained its top-50 position in the Global Innovation Index (GII) this year, as the country improved its ranking from 57th in 2019. The report, which is released every year, benchmarks innovation performance of 131 economies and is considered one of the world’s most authoritative assessments of innovation performance.

India’s ranking in the GII 2020 report, with 66.6 points, is the highest ever recorded by the country. The ranking is based on 80 indicators across two pillars—‘Innovation Output’ and ‘Innovation Input’—and reflects the country’s continued progress in making innovation a critical part of its development strategy.

The ‘Innovation Output’ pillar measures the impact of innovation on the economy, while the ‘Innovation Input’ pillar assesses the capacity of a country to innovate.

India’s performance in the ‘Innovation Output’ pillar was bolstered by its strong showing in the ‘Innovation Capacity’ sub-pillar, which includes indicators such as the number of patents and trademarks filed, and the proportion of high-tech exports in GDP.

On the other hand, India’s ‘Innovation Input’ pillar score improved due to a rise in the ‘Innovation Investment’ sub-pillar, which measures the country’s investment in R&D, education, and other innovation-related areas.

India’s improved ranking reflects the country’s efforts to foster a more innovation-friendly environment, with policies and initiatives aimed at boosting R&D spending, enhancing education and training, and creating a more conducive business environment.

Goddown Network powered By Reliance Jio

A Goddown Network (GN) has been launched by Reliance Jio, a leading equipment manufacturer, in collaboration with the Government of Odisha and the Odisha State Department of Information Technology.

The GN is a key part of the Odisha Government’s efforts to transform the Godown ecosystem by providing a robust, reliable, and secure network infrastructure. This initiative is expected to significantly improve the productivity and efficiency of the godown industry in Odisha.

The GN is being deployed across 1,050 crore. In case of Vodafone and Idea, the penalty was reduced by 50% to Rs 2,550 crore on the operators as it is bound by previous recommendations. The penalty was also insufficient in the case of Reliance Jio as its network was failing as a result of the decision, leading to significant consumer dissatisfaction.

The telecom regulator also witnessed improvement in the country’s ranking for the first time in the Global Innovation Index, moving up from the 50th place in 2019 to the 47th position in 2020. This improvement is attributed to the country’s efforts in strengthening its innovation ecosystem, particularly in the areas of digital R&D, education, and training, and creating a more conducive business environment.

India’s innovation performance is also reflected in its continued progress in making innovation a critical part of its development strategy. The country’s ranking in the GII report is based on 80 indicators across two pillars—‘Innovation Output’ and ‘Innovation Input’—and reflects the country’s continued progress in making innovation a critical part of its development strategy.

India’s mobile phone sales growth rate’s 10-year peak

India’s mobile phone sales growth rate hit a 10-year peak in the second quarter of this year, according to a report by the Global Mobile Suppliers Association (GMSA).

The report, titled “India Mobile Market Report – 2022,” showed that the country’s mobile phone sales grew by 13.7% in the second quarter of this year, compared to the same period last year. This growth rate is the highest in the last 10 years and is expected to continue in the coming quarters.

Indian consumers are increasingly relying on mobile phones for communication, internet access, entertainment, and other services. The report highlights that the smartphones segment has been driving this growth, with the market share of smartphones accounting for 70% of total sales.

The report also notes that the Indian mobile market is highly competitive, with multiple players vying for a share of the market. The top players include Samsung, Apple, Huawei, Oppo, and Xiaomi.

India’s growing mobile phone market is expected to continue as the country’s smartphone penetration rate increases, driven by factors such as lower prices, improved technology, and increased demand for digital services.
