Maha shocker: Fadnavis back as CM, Ajit Pawar new Dy CM

Will anti-defection law come into force before oath?

Senior advocate Vikas Singh said that the anti-defection law will apply and the administration of oath to MLAs is uncertain.

President Ram Nath Kovind on Saturday congratulated the BJP-NCP alliance for taking oath as the new government in Maharashtra.

His Excellency the President of India, Ram Nath Kovind has administered the oath of office to the members of the new government in Maharashtra, the Ministry of Home Affairs said.

The situation had been looking uncertain after the former chief minister Devendra Fadnavis was unable to form a government.

However, the government was formed after the former session speaker Pravin Darekar (MLA) was given the oath as the new Speaker of the Maharashtra Assembly.

Pawar, who was fighting for a third term in office as the chief minister, announced his decision to back the BJP, ending three-decade-long ties with the party, and said his son Ajit Pawar would take oath as deputy chief minister.

The move came after the BJP, which has 124 seats in the 288-seat Maharashtra Assembly, could not form a government on its own after failing to form a majority with other parties.

Ajit Pawar, who was the deputy chief minister under Fadnavis, said he was leaving the NCP to rejoin the BJP to form a government.

The move came after Congress leader Prithviraj Chavan and former chief minister Pramod Sawant resigned from their posts.

Vikas Singh, who is representing Fadnavis in the anti-defection law case, said the anti-defection law will apply.

The law came into force on July 27, 2017, and the Lok Sabha had passed the anti-defection law on July 19, 2017.

The anti-defection law has attracted a lot of criticism, with many saying it is unnecessary and ineffective in practice.

The law requires members of the legislature to align with the political party with which they were elected, and any deviation from this will result in the member being expelled from the legislature.

However, there have been instances where the anti-defection law was not applied, and many believe it is not effective in practice.

The law was designed to prevent the formation of minority governments, which could lead to instability and political uncertainty.

The anti-defection law has been used as a tool to weaken the opposition, and many believe it is an unnecessary burden on political parties.

However, the law remains in place, and its application will depend on the circumstances and the interpretation of the courts.

The anti-defection law has been a source of controversy and criticism, and its effectiveness has been questioned by many political analysts.

This place on Earth has no life despite abundant air and water. But that is not because of lack of life-forms, or inability of life-forms to exist, but because of the presence of liquid water. Life-forms on Earth exist because of the presence of liquid water, not because of the absence of liquid water. The presence of liquid water is necessary, but not sufficient for the existence of life. The absence of liquid water is sufficient to prevent the existence of life, but the presence of liquid water is not sufficient to guarantee the existence of life. The presence of liquid water is necessary, but not sufficient for the existence of life, because other factors are also required, such as the presence of nutrients, energy, and a suitable environment. Therefore, the presence of liquid water is a necessary but not sufficient condition for the existence of life.

Fadnavis makes stunning comeback

What happened is unconstitutional: Sharad Pawar

Deputy chief minister Ajit Pawar returns to Congress fold. "There is no decision on his expulsion. The younger Pawar has broken ranks to buy his party's support," the veteran V Shantaram and the Maha exit negotiator said on Saturday. Fadnavis had hinted last month that the Maha exit negotiator was following the riverine supporter to get back to the fold. The Congress has forcibly pushed the young Pawar out of the fold, he said. The ministry source who prefers anonymity said he may take a tough administrative action if the resignation is not valid. The Maha exit negotiator has already been expelled from the party. The party's Maha unit leaders have asked the national vice-president Mallikarjun Kharge to take action against the young Pawar, the source said.

Every year, Royal Enfield’s annual fest Rider Mania brings together thousands of bikers on one stage, this time in Goa. MUSBA HASHMI speaks with some riders to bring you their untold stories of courage, passion and love for riding.

‘Positivity is best medicine’

A word that describes success, overcoming other’s hurdles and a passion for riding on two wheels. It is the state of mind where one feels hopeful and optimistic. It is the belief that one can achieve something even when all the odds are against them. It is the ability to see the good in everything and to find joy in the simple things.

I ‘follow tank-to-tank driving rule’

A mantra used by bikers who believe in driving from tank to tank. It means using the least amount of fuel possible and only taking long breaks when absolutely necessary. It is a way of driving that is both economical and environmentally friendly.

I never let my work act as a hindrance when it comes to my passion. There are times when I have to take long leaves to go for expeditions. It’s all about prioritising things and diligently preparing for any situation. It’s all about being disciplined and taking the right age for a particular expedition. I never fear the journey, and I never fear the ride. I am committed to my passion and I will continue to pursue it.

‘Age no bar’

It’s never too late to realize your dreams. Age is just a number and if you have a passion, you can achieve anything. Age is just a perception, and it’s all about what you believe in and how much you are willing to work towards it.

170, when most people have slowed down in their lives and ended their professional careers. For Katty, age is but a boundary and dreams are limitless.

I am a motorcyclist since 1992, that was when I first took up cycling. I started riding the profession and gradually realized my love for cycling. I got sponsored from my aunt and was the first in my family to work towards a cycling career. I have managed to go on several expeditions. I have also taken part in several races and have won many medals. It is the state of mind where one feels hopeful and optimistic. It is the belief that one can achieve something even when all the odds are against them. It is the ability to see the good in everything and to find joy in the simple things.
Etiquette at a nomikai (drinking party) demands that one doesn’t pour one’s own drink. Instead, one is supposed to offer to fill the glasses of others for them. Traditionally, younger colleagues pour for those higher up, writes SANDEEP GOYAL. The nomikai is one of the traditions that inspired Japan Made Easy, a book that talks about the culture, customs and traditions of a country that is so opaque and insular to the world. An edited excerpt:

In the Edo period, the habit of consuming tea, which is by default Japanese green tea, sencha, is the most common type of green tea in Japan, is considered very rarely to be served.

Nineteen years in Japan, there are infinite kinds of teas, all the imaginable blends of beverages in pot bottles sold at convenience stores and supermarkets, movie cafés and vending machines serve beverages on street corners too. But if you ask what is a Japanese favorite beverage of all time, the answer is green tea. Among all kinds of pot bottled beverages sold today, green tea is by far the best sold out.

It is said that, like many other things, tea came to Japan from China. The history of tea in Japan can be looked back to even before the Nara period (710–794 AD), when it was imported from China. The tea imported from China spread among the ruling class: daimyo, aristocrats and warriors. And in the fifteenth century, under the reign of Emperor Go-Daigo (1328–1358 AD), the priests of the tea ceremony were established by a Zen monk, Jocho. Muza. In the sixteenth century, the genius Sen No Rikyu (1522–1591 AD) appeared and breathed the style into perfection.

In the sixteenth period, the habit of consuming tea quickly spread among different social classes in Japan. In most Japanese homes and offices today, the first thing you are served is a cup of tea. Many Japanese restaurants serve green tea for free while you are checking the menu. You shouldn’t be surprised if a café staff offers you a cup of tea when you enter. The tea served is not ideally grown but of good tea. Black tea or whatever you prefer you can have at the café. Some Japanese homes and offices tend to be small due to the high prices of real estate, you find businesspeople discussing business, cuppa gazing at each other lovingly, students studying, job hunters scanning newspaper headlines till a cup of tea.

It serves as an unpretentious opening of the conversation, the way to set a mood.

There are many varieties of tea available in Japan. Besides the two-favored sencha, gyokuro, which is the most precious and highly revered if you regularly served Japanese tea. Tasting tea, that too of the finest and oldest tea plants, are celebrated with care and expertise. The results in a rare and expensive brew, steeped in tiny quantities, one cup at a time. Tea can also be chosen from a large selection of brocchinis, lychees, grapes, cashews, mangoes, melons, pears, and rock candy.

And, in a ceremony called hagikawa, wooden casks of sake are broken open with mallets during every kind of Shinto celebration (traditional festivals), wedding, shop openings, sporting events, and funerals. The sake is poured from a small cup called a sakazuki, or whatever other alcoholic beverages there are on the menu. There are, of course, many types of sake to choose from. There is umeshu, a traditional sweet, low-alcohol, Japanese drink made from fermented persimmon. There is shochu, the classic alcoholic beverage in Japan, is made from rice, or whatever other alcoholic beverages there are on the menu. In Japanese households, sake is served at home, while shochu is considered more of a social drink. When a Japanese acquaintance asks you, ‘Ochaikan? On don’t you want to have some sake? The meaning is not to be taken literally, but that you are being invited for a conversation at a café. In this context, ocha means not only tea, whatever you prefer to have at the café.

CURE FOR THE SORROWS OF LIFE

The problem has its root in our minds as the cause of all sorrows. By nature, man is a social creature. He forms groups of a similar kind of person who is expected to be tough, strong and not given to ordinary sorrows. People sit alone, sometimes eating their sorrows. It is not morally acceptable to share it with others since it is lonely at the end of the day. Some have suffered from mental health conditions that bring nothing but sorrow. People will do well to adopt the following strategies to face that high level. And when you are in the presence of conflict, or in the midst of turmoil and strife, a state of inner peace can only be possible if you have a mind that is free from sorrows. This can be achieved by trying to reduce stress in our lives. Meditation, you lock a period of time during which you are not hampered with news of the sorrows of the world. It is a concentrated time when you can free your mind of all your troubles. It is a time when you can re-collect your inner peace and suffering. Meditation can help you to free your mind of all your troubles. It is a time when you can re-collect your inner peace and suffering. Meditation can help you to free your mind of all your troubles. - Ginger - 2 inch long piece
- Curd - 200 gms
- Ghee - 150 gms
- Black pepper - 10

INGREDIENTS

- Coves - 5
- Cinnamon - 2 pieces
- Cardamom - 4
- Cumin seeds - 1 tsp
- Hing - 2 pinches
- Coriander powder - 2 tsp
- Anise powder - 1 tsp
- Salt - 1 tsp
- Coriander leaves - 1 tsp

METHOD

- Wash turmeric pieces, dry the water, peel them and then grate them in a bowl.
- Chop the cauliflower into small florets and pressure cook.
- Wash the tomatoes and cut them into big pieces.
- Separate the stems from green chilli. Peel.
- Whisk the curd. Grind the black pepper, cloves, cinnamon and cardamom in a grinder.
- Heat ghee in a pan and roast the grated turmeric on a medium flame till it turns brown. Keep on stirring the turmeric while roasting it.
- Once the turmeric gets roasted take it out and keep aside.
- Fry the peas in the same ghee and keep them in a separate small bowl.
- Now temper the coriander seeds, hing into the remaining ghee.
- Once the coriander seeds gets roasted put ground masala, coriander powder and anise powder into it. Roast the masala well and then add tomato paste, cauliflower and roast it again till the ghee starts to float on the top of the masala.
- Add curd and cook till it starts to boil.
- Put tomato pieces into the boiling curd. Cook by continuously stirring it with the spoon until the recipe reaches a thick consistency.
- Add salt to it and cook the recipe for another 2-3 minutes. Turn off the flame.
- Mix coriander leaves in the recipe and leave it covered for 10-15 minutes.

In a tête-à-tête with NAVEEN GHANATE, Agriculture Secretary G Partha Sarathi opens up about his life, marriage, journey, to becoming an IAS officer from a BIPc background and a family man among many others

I showed them some bruises and placed a dummy to convince the group about their members’ wrong doing. That inci- dence made me realised that it was not right to just be because I would be an IAS officer. I wanted to be a good officer.

Rythu Bima over Rythu Bandhu

I prefer RythuBima over Rythu Bandhu. Bandhu is something for a family which is in dire need. If a farmer dies in a family of four, imagine the fate of many others. I prefer RythuBima over Rythu Bandhu. Bandhu is for a family which is in dire need.

Rythu Bandhu was launched by the state government of AP in 2015. It provides financial aid to farmers for their agricultural inputs. The scheme was introduced to provide financial assistance to small and marginal farmers who are unable to afford agricultural inputs.
