It is not the kind of Devil that—Haryana. Ruling high on the success of its disastrous economy and the sudden upsurge in GDP growth, the saffron party was under enormous pressure. However, the Congress, the rival party, was also under immense pressure to prove its mettle in the face of the BJP.

After all I have to run my party, said Chavan set the cat among the pigeons. This has opened the doors for backdoor negotiations between the two parties and the Independents to prove majority in the coming election.

The BJP, the opposition, has defended the decision as the true inheritors of the legacy of L. S. Raikar, the state's first Chief Minister. In 1967, the Congress government had failed to form a majority, and L. S. Raikar had stepped down. The BJP then approached the Governor to form the government.

WAKE-UP CALLS

For the BJP, the Assembly results were about over-estimating its appeal, for the Congress was about under-estimating chances.

THE concept of critical thinking is not something which has been embraced in our ancient heritage culture as it has been in the development of Indian philosophy. For centuries, the traditional Indian education system has been geared towards conveying religious and moral truths and inculcating values, rather than fostering critical thinking.

It is well-known historical fact that when the invited informers, one of their main tasks was to get information from the public. The Bhagavad Gita, a sacred text, speaks of the concept of dharma, which is the right path to follow in life. Thus, in this context, the task of the education system is to instill a sense of dharma and morality in the students.

However, change was inevitable and more so during the 21st century, where technology has become the driving force of the world. Today, we can connect with the best minds in the world from the comfort of our homes, thanks to the Internet. Similarly, the education system has evolved to cater to the needs of students. I believe that the education system has come of age.

The education system must be equipped with the latest technology so that the students can develop a critical mindset. I think the education system must be transformed in such a way that students can develop critical thinking, not only by reading and understanding, but also by developing the ability to question and analyze information.

The education system must also focus on the importance of critical thinking in the future of technology. As technology continues to advance, critical thinking is becoming more important than ever. Critical thinking helps in making informed decisions and solving problems effectively. It is essential for students to develop critical thinking skills to succeed in today’s competitive world.

In conclusion, it is evident that critical thinking is an essential skill for students to develop. The education system must be designed to foster critical thinking, and students must be encouraged to think critically and question information. By doing so, the students will be better equipped to face the challenges of the future.

This concludes my article on the importance of critical thinking in the education system. I hope that it has helped to shed some light on the topic.

Achilles’ heel

Trudeau needs the support of pro-Kashmiri Jagnjeet Singh but without enough time and ties with India

C raudian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau may have been on a second term in office by a whisper after his narrow reelection victory. The Liberal Party, which won 20 of the 243 seats in the House of Commons in the Oct. 21 federal election, polling to 177 out of 157 seats in the House in 2015, has seen its support base decline in recent years.

Trudeau is grappling with challenges from a domestic and foreign policy perspective. In the domestic front, the government is dealing with the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the economy, as well as the pressing need to address climate change.

On the foreign policy front, Trudeau is facing pressure from India over the Kashmir issue, which remains a sensitive issue for both countries. The Indian government has been calling for a peaceful resolution to the conflict, while the Canadian government has been urging both sides to engage in dialogue.

Trudeau is also facing criticism for his handling of the country’s response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The government has been accused of mishandling the rollout of vaccines and providing insufficient support to vulnerable populations.

Despite these challenges, Trudeau has been able to maintain support among a diverse range of voters, including younger and minority groups. His focus on inclusivity and diversity has also helped him to build a broad coalition of supporters.

The Canadian government has also been active on the international stage, working to address global challenges such as climate change and human rights.

In conclusion, although Trudeau faces challenges on both the domestic and foreign policy fronts, his support base remains strong. The government will need to continue to work towards achieving its goals while addressing the concerns and needs of its citizens.

I am proud to have joined the team of experts in the stimulation of the brain. As a neuroscientist, I understand the subject, the usefulness of such techniques in education is obvious as one cannot learn without thinking. Such a holistic approach to education has been established that at the college and university level, many students are provided with the tools to help them think critically.

The field of critical thinking is crucial to the future of education. It is essential to teach students how to think critically so that they can make informed decisions and solve problems effectively.

I believe that the education system, in particular, must focus on the importance of critical thinking in view of the draft National Educational Policy (NEP) which also has drawn inspiration. Appropriate conditions to the curriculum, this new policy aims at creating a comprehensive and rich education. The NEP is a significant step towards creating an education system that is inclusive, multidisciplinary, and focused on critical thinking. It aims to provide students with the skills they need to succeed in the modern world, where critical thinking is becoming increasingly important.

New Delhi (PTI): The mutual fund industry has added 3.45 lakh folios in September, taking its count to 4.56 crore in the backdrop of a weak market. However, folios growth has slowed down amid mixed performance of the equity and debt markets.

In July, folios are members designated to individual investors or schemes to track their investment in mutual funds. The mutual fund industry has added 3.42 lakh folios in July.

According to data from Association of Mutual Funds in India, the number of folios with the MFs had been 4.21 crore at the end of September, which was 4.18 crore at the end of August, registering a decline of 0.30 per cent.

In April, market experts had added that the addition of folios suggested that investors were adopting a wait-and-watch strategy after the recent furore over charges.

The number of folios under the equity and equity-linked saving schemes stood at 3.54 crore in September against 3.55 crore in August. The total folios count stood at 4.56 crore.

While the folios liquid continued to rise, the debt fund industry managed to see a rise in folios from 0.71 crore in August to 1.02 crore in September, the latter being the lowest in the last four months, due to overall market outlook.

In addition, the number of folios under the debt fund industry has increased to 1.02 crore in September from 0.99 crore in August.

Maruti Q2 net profit drops 39% to Rs 1,391 cr

The country’s largest carmaker Maruti Suzuki India Ltd reported a 39% drop in its profit for the second quarter ended June 30 due to the impact of the ongoing slowdown and lower demand for its cars.

Despite efforts to sell more cars, the slowdown continued to have an impact on the company’s earnings. The company had reported a profit of Rs 2,221.6 crore in the same period last year.

Commenting on the results, company chairman and managing director RC Bhargava said, “We remain committed to meeting the needs of our customers and ensuring their satisfaction.”

Despite the challenges, the company continued to have a strong presence in the market, helped by its successful launch of the new Alto 800 and the updated Ciaz.

Indian economy is on course for a recovery, says Fitch

Fitch Ratings on Thursday slashed India’s FY20 GDP growth forecast to 5.5 pc from 6.1 pc earlier, citing the ongoing slowdown amid the impact of both the coronavirus pandemic and the slowdown that began in April 2019, mainly on account of the lockdown imposed against the coronavirus.

The projection is lower than the government’s forecast of 6.5 pc for the year in August and Fitch said it could revise it further on Philip Mudd, managing director and chief Asia economist, said the government’s forecast for the year “was far too ambitious”.

“While an array of factors has contributed to the slowdown — including a slowdown in consumption and investment — the primary reason for the slowdown was a shock to the financial system,” Mudd said.

The Indian economy is being hit hard by the lockdown and the government has announced several measures to revive it, including increased spending on infrastructure and the launch of the National Infrastructure Pipeline. The government has also announced several schemes to help small businesses and farmers.

India is expected to grow at a rate of 1.7 pc in FY21, Fitch said, citing the latest data from the Reserve Bank of India.

Fitch also said that the success of the stimulus package adopted by the RBI in early April has been “limited.”

The report added that the Indian economy was seeing “some signs of improvement,” but it was not enough to offset the damage caused by the lockdown.

Fitch said the Indian economy is expected to grow 2.5 pc in FY21 and 6 pc in FY22, based on the assumption that the government will adopt a “determined and focused approach” to address the slowdown.

Fitch also said that the country’s overall financial system was not yet out of the woods, with non-performing assets remaining high and the banking sector continuing to be under pressure.

However, the rating agency noted that the government’s recent measures to boost the economy, including the stimulus package, were positive.

I hope that my journey with the car can help us understand that the history and mythology can co-exist, that we were not being flag off from the Statue of Unity, which was inspired from Gujarat which was finally conquered by Akbar and effectively occupied the zamindari and was made into an island by him for the rest of his life.
