Lockdown saboteurs lack common sense

Nearly every English-language newspaper this Saturday morning has at least one sombre piece warning readers to not go overboard with their reactions. That is always good advice, whether dealing with anger, sadness or happiness. Controlling emotions — the proverbial stiff upper lip — was something that was drilled into those of us who went to schools that modelled themselves on the English public schools. We were never meant to cry — at least not in public; even happiness had to be regulated in its expression; and despondency was invariably greeted with the advice to cheer up and get on with whatever we were doing.

Why, in an age when political correctness has banished the notion of self-restraint from our value system, are we suddenly being advised to get a grip on our feelings? The answer is obvious. For the past 10 days or even more, most law-abiding citizens of India have physically withdrawn from the outside world both for self-preservation and as an act of social responsibility. Those who are experts in the field of public health all over the world have advised us that the only effective way to contain the coronavirus pandemic is social distancing. Each one of us have adjusted our lives drastically, cancelling long-standing plans and disrupting our social and professional lives. Owners of small businesses and the self-employed are living nervously, not knowing whether their lives will ever be the same again. Those in employment are dreading pay cuts or, worse, redundancy. As for casual workers living a marginal existence away from home, their troubles and sadness have been so vividly documented in the media.

Why is everyone going through such an enormous amount of personal inconvenience? Why is the world order being turned upside down? It is because we are confronted with a dreaded disease with no cure in sight. The young are known to be able to cope with COVID-19 better, particularly if they have no other complications. But for the over-60s, the vulnerability is particularly high. In Italy, the average age of the 14,600 or so who have died from coronavirus is 79.5 years. Worse, no one is very sure how long this international crisis will last. The uncertainty is killing.

Everyone is going through such an enormous amount of personal inconvenience? Why is the world order being turned upside down? It is because we are confronted with a dreaded disease with no cure in sight... Now people are angry because what is clear a public health issue have been projected as an issue of religious identity soap and carrying small bottles of hand sanitisers. Yes, precaution and faith in God is what is keeping India going.

It is at such a time that the Tablighi Jamaat has entered the scene. As of last Friday night, the convention hosted by this so-called religious organisation has resulted in 647 coronavirus cases in 14 States from Kashmir to the Andaman Islands. This is probably an underestimate because many of those attended haven't been traced. Then there are states such as West Bengal that has not been forthcoming with any details.

What can be said with certainty is that the best plans by the Government to flatten the curve and reverse the process of coronavirus spread has suffered a setback because of the Tablighi Jamaat. I can understand if people had quite accidentally strayed into a gathering and, in the process, got themselves infected. This has happened with health workers, doctors and policemen who have been infected as a result of their official duties.

The ones who came from far and wide to Delhi's West Nizamuddin, a congested Muslim ghetto, to imbibe religious scholarship went there fully aware that the gathering was against all the guidelines issued by the Delhi Government to protect citizens. Most important, the gathering had people who had flown in from overseas and are known to be high risk. By every yardstick, the gathering in Nizamuddin was criminally irresponsible.

People are angry not merely because Government guidelines were violated in a pre-meditated manner but that the organisers were brazen in their defiance, choosing to put out the message that they somehow had divine protection against coronavirus. Now they have gone and spread the disease all over India and continue to be defiant. Those who have been sent to quarantine centres have misbehaved with nurses and doctors. Others who have been traced by the authorities have engineered attacks on doctors and health workers by mobs. Still others are absconding and doing their bit to spread coronavirus across India.

People are angry because what is clear a public health issue have been projected as an issue of religious identity. There are reports from all over India that Muslim localities are defiantly not observing social distancing and continuing life as usual. In the border districts of West Bengal, it would seem that the writ of the Government of India does not run.

People have a right to be not merely angry but furious at the sheer irresponsibility of it all. The behaviour of those who choose to pretend that coronavirus is not their concern are, in effect, helping the enemy in a war. They deserve to be treated as hostile elements.

But instead of getting livid over these rotten apples in the basket of India, our great secular intellectuals are saying we should be restrained in our reactions. Turning the other cheek and showering forgiveness to people who know not what they are doing is good stuff for elevated souls. Unfortunately, it will take some persuasion for people who have a patriotic aversion to saboteurs. This isn't communalism; it is common sense.

30% corona cases linked to Tablighis

Govt figures put number below 3K, but realtime data claims 3,500 +ve cases; 601 new cases; death toll at 68

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

As coronavirus cases continued to swell in the country, adding 400-500 patients a day since Wednesday, the Centre on Saturday again linked the rise to the Tablighi Jamaat members congregating in Delhi's Nizamuddin Markaz in mid-March, saying they alone contributed 30 per cent of the total cases.

The Ministry of Health said total number of cases as on Saturday morning stood below 3,000, including 68 death and 601 new cases reported over the last 24 hours.

"Till now there are 2,902 positive cases in India. 601 positive cases have been reported since Friday, 12 deaths also reported on Friday, taking the total to 68. One eighty three people have recovered/discharged," said Lav Agarwal, Joint Secretary in the Ministry.

But according to the total of figures collected from States, the overall numbers of positive cases stood at 3,510 by 8.30 pm on Saturday. Maharashtra stood at the peak 537 positive cases, including 47 new. It was followed by Tamil Nadu with 485 positive cases, including 74 new. With 59 new cases, Delhi was on the third spot.

The national Capital has overall 445 positive cases, Kerala with 304 positive cases, 11 of them new was placed fourth. Telengana, Uttar Pradesh and Rajasthan had more than 200 cases each.

Attendees of the Tablighi congregation in Delhi's Nizamuddin area board an ambulance for mandatory COVID-19 tests, in Agartala on Saturday

Meanwhile, Dharavi in Mumbai reported two more cases of coronavirus, taking the total number of positive cases in the area to five.

Agarwal said 1,023 coronavirus cases in 17 States were related to the Jamaat's congregation. "Around 30 per cent of the total cases are related to the religious congregation so far. We need to understand that we are as strong as the weakest link," he said.

Punya Salila Srivastava, Joint Secretary in the Home Affairs Ministry, said through a massive coordinated effort around 22,000 Tablighis and their contacts have been quarantined.

All issues related to the ongoing lockdown are being monitored by a 24x7 control room of the Ministry of Home Affairs here, she said, adding that about 200 personnel from the National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) and Central Armed Police Forces are linked to it on the ground level.

The officer said all measures to implement the three-week nationwide lockdown, set to end on April 14, have been effective till now and the supply of essential goods and services has been "satisfactory".

Union Home Secretary Ajay Bhalla has written to States and Union Territories to ensure that the supply chain of essential items is not obstructed during the lockdown period, she said.

The first installment of ₹11,092 crore under the State disaster response fund was released by the MHA on Friday. States can utilise this money for ensuring aid to migrant workers and other calamity-related work, she said.

States and UTs are running relief camps for migrant workers and other needy people in coordination with NGOs and other community groups, she added.

THE SCORE

- The number of coronavirus cases stood at 445 in Delhi but the situation was under control and there was no community transmission, Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal said on Saturday. There were 40 cases of local transmission while a majority of other patients either had foreign travel history or they were recently evacuated from Nizamuddin Markaz, he said
- Eight people have tested positive for the novel coronavirus in Noida, taking number of cases due to the pandemic in Gautam Buddha Nagar district to 58, officials said on Saturday
- More than 1,130,204 cases of infection, including 60,457 deaths, have been reported in 190 countries and territories around the world since the virus first emerged in China in December
- Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday said India and the US have decided to "deploy the full strength of the India-US partnership" to fight COVID-19 that has infected over a million persons globally and killed more than 60,000. Modi said this after "an extensive conversation with President Trump"
- Researchers have found that an anti-parasitic drug already available around the world can kill the novel coronavirus grown in cell cultures within 48 hours, an advance that may lead to the development and trial of a new clinical therapy for COVID-19

U-turn on domicile order: Govt tries to win hearts & minds

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Centre's decision to reverse its Tuesday night order notifying a new domicile status for Jammu & Kashmir reflects a realisation that it needed to take political parties together for maintaining long-term normalcy in the Union Territory.

As per the latest order, all jobs in Jammu & Kashmir will be for those who stayed in the area for at least 15 years.

The Centre was forced to withdraw its order following angry response from Jammu & Kashmir-based political parties, including National Conference (NC), People's Democratic Party (PDP) and newly formed Jammu & Kashmir Apni Party.

The State unit of the BJP too had briefed top brass of the party after receiving brick bats from common masses over ignoring their genuine concerns while drafting the rules defining the domicile status and granting reservation in jobs meant only for fourth class employees. An official said that swift response from the Centre was meant to win hearts and minds of the people of Jammu & Kashmir especially at a time when the Centre has already initiated political process with the setting up of delimitation commission.

"Any person who fulfils the following conditions shall be a domicile of the Union Territory of Jammu & Kashmir for the purposes of appointment to any post under the Union Territory of Jammu & Kashmir," said the revised notification titled as Jammu and Kashmir Reorganisation (Adaptation of State Laws) Order-2020.

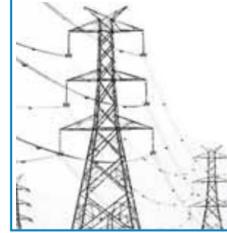

"...no person shall be eligible for appointment to any post unless he is a domicile of the Union Territory of Jammu & Kashmir," the amended Jammu and Kashmir Civil Services (Decentralisation and Recruitment) Act, which is a part of the notification, said.

Grid failure fear during blackout solidarity misplaced: Minister

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Amid concerns raised by several Opposition leaders, including former Power Minister Jairam Ramesh, that Prime Minister Narendra Modi's call for a 9-minute blackout at 9 pm on April 5 could result in a grid collapse, the Ministry of Power on Saturday said the apprehensions that this may cause instability in grid and voltage fluctuation harming electrical appliances are misplaced.

Clearing the air over a possible power grid collapse, the Power Ministry said there is no call to switch off street lights or appliances in homes like TV, refrigerators, air conditioners and only lights should be switched off for 9 minutes.

The lights in hospitals and other essential services will remain on. The clarification came after several news reports claimed that the Prime Minister's appeal for a 9-minute blackout would result in power grid collapse and would take time to restore power across the nation.

Ramesh, Congress MP Shashi Tharoor, and Maharashtra Energy Minister Nitin Raut have expressed concern that the PM's call could lead to a multi-State grid collapse and result in blackout in the entire country.

India bucks global trend, 42% cases from 21-40-yr group

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Contrary to the global trend where elderly are said to be the most vulnerable to Covid-19, in India it is the young people who are bearing the brunt of the deadly disease. At least 42 per cent of the total positive cases reported so far are in the age group of 21-40. People above 60 years accounted for only 17 per cent of the cases.

"We have done the age profile analysis of Covid-19 cases in India. We found that 9 per cent of positive cases are in between 0-20 years, 42 per cent cases are in the age group of 21-40, 33 per cent in 41-60 and 17 per cent in the people above 60 years of age," said Lav Agarwal, Joint Secretary, Ministry of Health and Family Welfare.

However, in contrast, as situation prevails at present, most of the fatalities reported in India are from the higher age group.

People above 60 account for 17%; fatalities highest among elderly

Around 1.15 million people from across the world are infected with the virus which has claimed 60,428 lives since the first case of Covid-19 was reported in December last year from Wuhan in China. So far, 2,36,095 have recovered.

"As far as deaths are concerned, we have noticed that advanced age and co-morbidities such as diabetes, kidney and cardiac ailments played an important role in deaths," said Agarwal.

"We are battling with this on a day-to-day basis. Still, the case doubling rate in India is lesser than others," he added.

227 +ve cases in UP

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

The number of coronavirus positive cases in Uttar Pradesh rose to 227 on Saturday with 94 of them linked to the Tablighi Jamaat's Nizamuddin markaz congregation in Delhi.

Of these, 21 have fully recovered while others are undergoing treatment at hospitals, Principal Secretary (Medical and Health) Amit Mohan Prasad disclosed.

The state's tally of COVID-19 positive cases was 174 on Friday and two people — one each in Basti and Meerut — have died.

There has been a steep rise in the coronavirus positive cases in the past two days, primarily because of a number of those linked to the Tablighi Jamaat testing positive, Prasad said, adding that the number of districts affected by the virus had also gone up to 27.

Wherever the cases were reported, an aggressive campaign was undertaken and those showing symptoms were quarantined and their samples sent for testing, Prasad said, adding that those testing positive were immediately placed in isolation.

All districts have been told to check four samples every day of those complaining of cold and cough.

According to Additional Chief Secretary (Home) Awanish Awasthi, 1,283 people associated with the Jamaat have been identified of which 977 have been quarantined.

The highest number of these Jamaatis have been found in Meerut (307) followed by

Now, Ministry releases DIY guide for masks Advises face cover for those living in dense populated areas

ARCHANA JYOTI ■ NEW DELHI

Contrary to its earlier assertion that not everyone is required to wear masks as the primary focus is on social distancing, the Union Health Ministry on Saturday came out with a detailed advisory recommending home-made cloth mask for all and even laid out a pictorial "Do It Yourself (DIY)" guide.

It attributed the latest move of homemade face cover for the general public, excluding medical staff/health workers, to the benefits that certain countries have claimed due to its usage.

Wearing of face covers is especially recommended for people living in densely populated areas or in crowded markets, as per the advisory which comes amid rising number of coronavirus cases as well as rush among people for masks, aggravating a shortage of the item among medical personnel who need them the most.

The Ministry said that people who are not suffering from medical conditions or having breathing difficulties may use the handmade reusable face cover.

"Certain countries have claimed benefits of home-made face cover for the general public. Such homemade face cover is a good method for maintaining personal hygiene. Such usage certainly will help in maintaining overall hygienic health conditions.

"Therefore, it is suggested that such people who are not suffering from medical conditions or having breathing difficulties may use the handmade reusable face cover, particularly when they step out of their house. This will help in protecting the community at large," it said.

"This face cover is not recommended for either health workers or those working with or in contact with COVID-19 patients or are patients themselves as these categories of people are required to wear specified protective gear".

The advisory says the face covers could be made out of clean cloth available at home, which needs to be thoroughly cleaned and washed before a face cover is stitched.

CM to DMs: Ensure that no one sleeps hungry

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath said that it was the responsibility of district magistrates across the state that no one slept empty stomach and for this they should take the help of gram pradhans, councillors and other employees of local bodies.

He also said that district authorities should ensure that everyone got LPG cylinders, medicines and other essentials.

"In districts where community kitchens have not started yet, the chief secretary should talk to the district magistrates to ensure availability of food. The district magistrates should be held accountable for distribution of free food among the poor and destitute," the chief minister said during a meeting with COVID Team-11 at his 5, Kalidas Marg official residence in Lucknow on Saturday.

Yogi said that control rooms should function efficiently and if anyone was found hiding inputs or ignoring them he or she should be booked.

He also said that the district supply officer should be directed that if anyone complained of not getting ration, his/her ration card be immediately made and he/she be provided Rs 1,000 too.

The chief minister further said that despite the lockdown, intentional violation of social distancing norms or spreading chaos were a well-planned conspiracy.

"Be very strict with such people. Those who participated in Tablighi Jamaat event should be caught," he said.

"Also, seize their mobile phones and check their call details. Examine their belongings closely and if anything suspicious is found, seize it. Pay special attention to cleanliness and sanitisation of places where such people are staying," the chief minister advised the district magistrates.

Yogi also discussed in detail the post-lockdown action plan.

"To compensate the impact of lockdown on the state's economy, discussions should be held with state and district level bankers now and a strategy be prepared accordingly. Also, strategy should be made on what can be done through employment fairs, Vishwakarma Shram Samman Yojana, One District, One Product (ODOP) scheme and Mati Kala Board, so that it can be implemented as the situation becomes normal," he said.

The chief minister appealed to the people to cover their faces when they step out of the house both during and after the lockdown. He also suggested that apart from masks, one could use scarf as an option.

Provide masks to the poor: CM

Lucknow (PNS): Aiming to ensure that every citizen of Uttar Pradesh puts on mask as a safeguard against the coronavirus, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath asked officials to distribute face masks among the poor free of cost.

The masks will be manufactured in the state itself and thus promote Brand UP.

A senior official said on Saturday that the government was in the process of purchasing 66 crore triple-layer special cloth masks to be distributed among the 23 crore citizens of the state.

"These masks will be made in the state itself, thus making a new Brand UP item in the country," he said.

The MSME department has been asked to approach units which can manufacture such masks within a short time and at cheap rates. "Such units are spread across the state. Once the orders are placed we can get the supply within three days," the official said and added that people need to be taught about the three-layered mask and how to stitch it.

"While the poor will get these masks free of cost, others will have to purchase it at a low price. These masks will be made of cloth, probably khadi, and will be washable. Every person in the state will get two such masks," official said. The chief minister also suggested that in place of masks, people could wrap a clean gamcha to cover their faces in rural areas.

Yogi also thanked Bahujan Samaj Party chief Mayawati for asking her party legislators and parliamentarians to donate one crore rupees each to the government to fight the coronavirus.

"Mayawati's decision is highly appreciable and I thank her for this act. Everyone should rise above political affiliations and serve the nation and people during this hour of crisis," Yogi said.

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

UP Legislative Council Chairman Ramesh Yadav has appealed to the members of the upper house of the state legislature to allocate one crore rupees for the procurement of essential equipment for fighting the coronavirus pandemic. UP Legislative Council has 100 members but one seat is vacant.

In a letter to all MLCs, Yadav said UP Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath had set up UP Covid Care Fund, which would be utilised for procurement of essential equipment and testing kits for all state-run medical colleges and district hospitals to fight the coronavirus pandemic.

He said that the limit of spending ₹25 lakh on one particular item from the Vidhayak Nidhi (Local Area Development Fund) had been abolished by the chief minister and the lawmakers could utilise the Vidhayak Nidhi for the procurement of necessary equipment and testing kits for the fight against the coronavirus.

of UP Assembly and Legislative Council to donate one crore rupees each from their Local Area Development fund and a month's salary each to the Covid Care Fund.

He also appealed to the corporate sector and other business houses to contribute through their CSR (corporate social responsibility) funds to fight the pandemic.

The chief minister said that the government would use the funds collected in Covid Care Fund to set up testing labs, purchase ventilators and set up dedicated Covid hospitals in different districts.

Already several government agencies have started donating to Covid Care Fund with ₹78 crore being given by the primary teachers and employees of the state government. Several legislators have also announced to donate one crore rupees each to the government agencies to fight the virus.

EC postpones polls to 11 UP Council seats

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

The Election Commission has postponed the elections to 11 seats of Uttar Pradesh Legislative Council that will fall vacant in May because of the ongoing lockdown, according to a senior official.

The Election Commission, however, did not give any date for holding these elections in its order issued on Friday.

"The tenure of five MLCs from graduates' constituency and 6 MLCs from teachers' constituency is coming to an end on May 6. Hence, elections should be held on these seats," Chief Electoral Officer of Uttar Pradesh, Ajay Kumar Shukla, said in a statement.

To conduct elections to these seats, at least four weeks' time was needed, he added.

"However, in the wake of implementation of a three-week nation-wide lockdown, the Election Commission of India has ordered that the process of elections to 11 seats of UP Legislative Council shall be initiated at a later date after reviewing the situation," Shukla said.

A graduates constituency is one in which only graduates from any recognised Indian university, or those with an equivalent qualification, can vote. In a teachers constituency, only a full-time teacher in at least a secondary school or higher is eligible to vote.

The UP Legislative Council has 100 seats. At present, it has a strength of 99 as one seat is vacant. The lockdown, which came into force on March 25, was imposed by the Central government to check the spread of coronavirus in the country. The lockdown is expected to be lifted in phases from April 15.

AIPEF asks power engns to be on high alert on Sunday

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

All India Power Engineers Federation (AIPEF) representing power engineers in Uttar Pradesh responded to the call of Prime Minister Narendra Modi for switching off lights for nine minutes on Sunday evening, by advising power engineers to be on high alert and ensure the stability of national power grid at state, regional and national level.

AIPEF chairman Shailendra Dubey took the issue at the highest level on April 3 and wrote to the prime minister and the Union power minister, raising concerns arising out of sudden switching off of all lights.

He requested the prime minister to issue directions to central power utilities to review the situation and issue advisory guidelines to states for reliable and secure operation of grid during the nine minutes of lights being switched off.

Dubey appreciated the prompt response and efforts of the PM Office and power ministry as central power utilities worked on this and instructions were given to the states.

HE REQUESTED THE PRIME MINISTER TO ISSUE DIRECTIONS TO CENTRAL POWER UTILITIES TO REVIEW THE SITUATION AND ISSUE ADVISORY GUIDELINES TO STATES FOR RELIABLE AND SECURE OPERATION OF GRID DURING THE NINE MINUTES OF LIGHTS BEING SWITCHED OFF

Dubey said that power engineers were prepared to perform under difficult situations and were working round-the-clock to provide uninterrupted power supply.

The AIPEF appealed to power engineers manning thermal and hydro power stations to ensure that the load fluctuation was managed in optimum manner.

The procedures and precautions to be observed were to be analysed and determined in advance so that generating units were able to respond to load changes.

The AIPEF said that state load dispatch centres had to maintain close coordination with respective regional load dispatch centres in Delhi, Mumbai, Kolkata, Bengaluru, Shillong, so that stability of regional and national grids were maintained under direction and control of RLDCs.

Chief engineer of each SLDC has to be available in the SLDC control room for close monitoring and direction.

It said that engineers in charge of 400 kV and 765 kV sub-stations would attend sub-stations for ensuring their safe and smooth operation particularly with respect to high voltage monitoring on Sunday evening.

Following the appeal by the prime minister to the people to switch off lights for nine minutes at 9 pm on Sunday, UP Power Corporation Limited (UPPCL) on Friday ordered load shedding across the state to prevent the power grid from collapsing due to sudden demand drop.

As per UPPCL estimates, the demand for power was likely to slump by as much as 3,000 megawatt following the switching off of lights for nine minutes on Sunday.

Akhilesh demands more support for farmers

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Samajwadi Party president Akhilesh Yadav on Saturday asked the state government to provide additional support to farmers.

He said the lockdown imposed to prevent the spread of coronavirus had created difficult situation for all sections of society and it was important to provide additional support to the farmers.

The SP president said that before the Lok Sabha elections, Prime Minister Narendra Modi had announced that the farmers would get Rs 2,000 for three months. He said that in the current scenario, the farmers were facing an economic challenge due to the coronavirus pandemic hence all revenue collection should be stopped and interest on bank loans should be waived for the farmers who took crop loans.

Yadav said that due to the sudden lockdown, some issues were coming forward to which the government machinery was not being able to pay the required attention. He said the quarantine centres in Gonda, Balrampur, Prayagraj and many other districts were in a bad shape and lekhpal responsible for food items and health related items were missing from the duty.

He said the government should facilitate the transport of agricultural produce of the farmers to the agricultural mandis and the government should also ensure that the farmers get remunerative price for their produce like foodgrains, vegetables and fruits.

Referring to the sugarcane farmers, the SP chief said their full payment should be made immediately while the PM Kisan Samman Nidhi amount should be immediately credited in the bank account of the farmers.

The SP president said that the poor people who do not hold the ration cards should also be provided free ration along with financial assistance of Rs 1,000.

Priyanka Gandhi slams govt for plight of medicos

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Congress general secretary Priyanka Gandhi Vadera slammed the Yogi Adityanath government for the "inhuman working conditions" of medicos and paramedical staff in government hospitals and lack of facilities to them.

On Saturday, targeting the Yogi government, Priyanka tweeted that when doctors and paramedical staff were risking their lives to serve humanity and fight coronavirus, the Uttar Pradesh government was unable to provide even protective kits to the medical staff.

Citing the Banda incident, where doctors were working without personal protection equipment and even their salaries were reportedly deducted, Priyanka termed the move as "inhuman" and said that instead of forwarding all facilities to these warriors, the state government was working against their interests.

She also tagged a video clip in which medical staff of Banda are seen highlighting their problems and the step-motherly treatment meted out to them even as they risked their lives for others.

Earlier, Priyanka also demanded that advance payment of 21 days' be paid to MGNREGA labourers as they were facing a lot of difficulties due to the nation-wide lockdown.

Meanwhile, UP Congress administrative in-charge Siddharth Priya Srivastava criticised the state government for its apathy towards doctors and other medical staff.

"The government has failed to provide safety kit to doctors and paramedics attending to coronavirus patients and suspects. Besides, resident doctors at King George's Medical University, nurses association at Ram Manohar Lohia Hospital and drivers of ambulances have gone on record, complaining about their problems. It is a matter of serious concern that ambulance drivers are complaining that they have not received their salaries in April till now. The government should pay off the salaries of these corona warriors immediately," Srivastava said.

COVID-19: Massive containment drive kicks off

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

A massive exercise of containment plan and sanitisation began in the city on Saturday after 12 persons from Saharanpur tested positive for coronavirus and they were picked up from a mosque in Kasaibada on Friday.

Divisional Commissioner Mukesh Meshram said 65 samples had been given for testing on Friday and 50 on Saturday. He said that those included the contacts of 12 who came from Saharanpur. He said that the containment plan as well as sanitisation was being carried out at Sadar, Chowk, Bakshi-Ka-Talaab, Aminabad and many parts of the city.

Meanwhile, the Chief Medical Officer (CMO) said they completed the containment exercise at Vijay Khand in Gomti Nagar where the first coronavirus patient — a 35-year-old doctor from Canada — was found. "As many as 36 teams consisting of three members each visited 1,837 homes and spread awareness amongst 8,982 people. The 3-member team consisted of one member from the administration, one police and one from the CMO office," an official said.

Lucknow Municipal Corporation also continued with its sanitisation drive. Nagar Swasthya Adhikari Sunil Rawat said that sanitisation was carried out in Sadar, Gomti Nagar, and a transit hotel in Nishatganj where doctors were staying and other parts of the city. "We have decentralised the process of sanitisation so that it can be conducted zone-wise, wherever required," he said.

He added that over 20 vehicles and 600 people were pressed into service for the drive. "We left one machine in Sadar where it carried out the sanitisation process overnight and this morning as well. We have issued general instructions that sanitisation should be conducted in areas like bus stations, railway stations, parks, railings and multi-storied buildings," he said.

He said that of the 20 vehicles which they have pressed into service, eight have been taken from the Fire department.

ment. He added that 110 battery-operated machines, which can be carried on shoulders and used for sanitisation, were also being used.

"The solution used for sanitisation is sodium hypochloride and we get it from Jal Nigam and Jal Kal department," he said. He added that the work is supervised by senior officials. "I personally carried out sanitisation at many points in the city," he added.

Meanwhile, District Magistrate Abhishek Prakash, in a bid to avoid the spread of COVID-19, handed sanitiser bottles to all those involved in the containment drive. The DM handed over 250 litres of sanitiser to the CMO, 500 litres to the Commissioner of Police (Lucknow) and 250 litres to the Municipal Commissioner.

A senior official from the district administration said that a well-known company provided over 75,000 soap bars to the CMO for distribution at all the hospitals, among ASHA workers, BDOs and in nearby slums.

Mosque caretaker, Jamatis booked

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

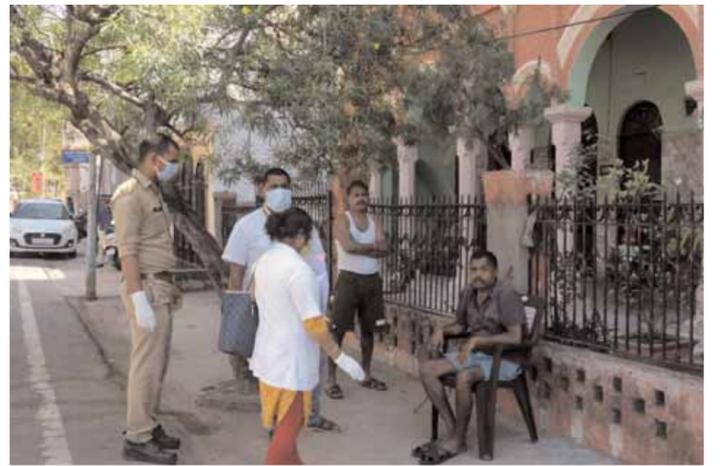

The Cantonment police registered a case against the caretaker of Ali Jaan mosque in Kasaibada locality of Sadar and 12 Jamatis who had stayed there, late on Friday night. The police had detained them on a tip-off by those rounded up from other mosques in the city on Wednesday night and were later admitted to Balrampur Hospital.

On revelation that all the Jamatis tested positive for coronavirus, the police had sealed the area on Friday and restricted the movement of people in the locality around the mosque. Later, the civic authorities conducted sanitisation of the locality. Sub-inspector Sandeep Kumar Mishra lodged the FIR under sections 188/269/270/271 of IPC for violation of prohibitory orders and under Section 3 of Epidemic Act and Epidemic Management Act. He stated in the FIR that caretaker Mohammed Athar Raudai overlooked the district administration's instructions not to allow gathering at the mosque in view of the coronavirus outbreak. Shukla further stated that Mohammed Athar and other Jamatis deliberately stayed in a group at the mosque with wrong intention and spread the disease.

Meanwhile, the police stood guard at the entry/exit points of the area which was cordoned off on Friday and did not allow residents to come out on Saturday. The civic authorities also carried out a sanitisation drive in the area on Saturday.

However, locals said they faced a lot of hardships. "The police and district administration had on Friday assured us adequate supply of milk and other essentials, but it proved to be a hollow assurance," a local resident said.

Earlier, the Lucknow police had registered a case against caretakers and Jamatis in Kaiserbagh, Madaion and Kakori police station areas. In Kaiserbagh, the FIR was registered against caretaker Ali Hasan and six foreign nationals in Madaion against caretaker Miraj, landlord Qadri and seven others, and in Kakori against 10 persons, including foreign nationals.

Meanwhile, a man, identified as Faizul Hasan of Kasaibada locality, died on Saturday, fuelling speculations that he died of COVID-19. The police, however, rubbished the reports and said he was an elderly man and died of heart attack. Locals also said that Hasan suffered a heart attack. "He suffered heart attack in afternoon and was taken to Civil Hospital where he was declared 'brought dead,' a neighbour said. Police sent the body for autopsy while taking preventive measures needed in view of the coronavirus pandemic.

City all set for 9-minute show of solidarity

City is all set to light candles and flashlights of their mobile phones for nine minutes at 9 pm on Sunday in keeping with Prime Minister Narendra Modi's appeal to show solidarity in the fight against coronavirus. In his address to the nation on Friday, the Prime Minister had asked citizens to collectively defeat the darkness of the COVID-19 by spreading light. He had also appreciated the overwhelming response to the March 22 'janata curfew'. City residents are looking forward to participating in the 9-minute exercise and majority feel that the lockdown is a moment for introspection.

General secretary of Lucknow University Teachers' Association (LUTA) said they would lend support to the call of the Prime Minister and light candles on Sunday night. President of Adarsh Vyapar Mandal Sanjay Gupta said all the traders would switch off the lights for nine minutes at 9 pm on April 5 and will light candles, torches and flashlights of their mobile phones.

Theatre activist Raj Bisaria said he would light a candle in his heart. "As an ordinary human being, I feel we have been neglecting and taking nature for granted and beyond having cut flowers in our vases, we have no communication with anything, including ourselves. We are running after materialistic things, social approval, fame and ordinary wealth but at what price? If you don't feel a connect with yourself, if you don't connect with yourself, nothing matters as nature is nothing but us. Every time you violate this bond, you violate the bond with your life bones," he philosophised.

Organiser of National Book Fair Manoj Chandel said they would be participating in the call by the Prime Minister. "This lockdown is also a period during which we need to introspect on where we were and where we have reached. All those things which we were running after mean nothing now at this time. We have forgotten the bonds of togetherness and so many essentials that were a part of our nature. It's the time to retrospect as we light the candles," he said.

Kapil Saxena, a resident of Mahanagar, said he would light the candles for nine minutes. "The Prime Minister had specifically pointed out that it is people's curfew, ringing bells, clapping hands or clanging plates that have all made the nation realise its collective strength in these testing times. It has led to the deepening of the belief that the nation can unite as one in the battle against COVID-19. He said the collective spirit of nation can be seen manifesting itself during these times of lockdown. I believe that a collective positive energy is the need of the hour and we must all participate in it wholeheartedly," he added.

LU's Psychology dept to help students cope with stress

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

The department of Psychology, Lucknow University, will be offering counselling to all the students to empower them with right information and much-needed emotional support. Teachers of the department will offer their counselling services to those suffering in any manner due to the isolation during COVID-19 lockdown.

LU media spokesperson Durgesh Srivastava said that a counselling session may cover issues affecting a student's mental health such as fear & anxiety due to probable risk of contracting the disease by themselves or family members, anxiety about studies and their career, a lost semester/year due to uncertainty of examinations, form submissions, inability to attend online classes or understand the content provided electronically. Other problems may include aggravated existing relationship issues at personal and/or family level due to the lockdown detrimental to their mental health, stress and tension of losing friendships and relationships. Moreover, the relationship may also create conflict with parents, siblings and relatives, therefore resulting in violent and aggressive behaviour between parents, thereby creating more mental health issues besides not being able to adjust with changed routine and having problems with management of time.

"Faculty members will be available on telephone or online counselling through various social media platforms. The detailed schedule of different teachers for counselling will be displayed soon on the university website. The first counselling session will be held on Sunday from 11 am to 12 noon by Prof Madhurima Pradhan," Srivastava said.

He added that the Central government is taking all necessary steps to ensure that we are prepared to face the challenges and threats posed by the COVID-19 pandemic. "The first and most important factor in preventing the spread of coronavirus locally is to empower the citizens with the right information and taking precautions as per the advisories being issued by the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare," he added.

'Pregnant women should get priority in testing'

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Research is currently being carried out on the impact of coronavirus infection on pregnant women. Medical experts state that with the limited data, they cannot say whether these women are at higher risk as compared to others.

Medical expert Dr Ishwar Gilada said because of the change in immune system, there are some respiratory infections for which these women can be at a higher risk. As per WHO recommendations, pregnant women with COVID-19 symptoms should be prioritised for testing.

"Precautions are a must and if they develop any symptoms of COVID-19, they should immediately report. They should take the same precautions to avoid infection as other people like washing hands frequently with alcohol-based sanitiser or soap, ensuring social distancing and avoiding crowded spaces and frequently touching eyes, nose and mouth, and practising cough and sneezing etiquettes," he said.

He added that it is not known how a pregnant woman with COVID-19 can pass the virus to her baby during pregnancy or delivery. "The virus has not been found in samples of breast milk. Recently, a newborn tested positive for coronavirus in Europe," Dr Gilada said. He added that all pregnant women, including those with confirmed or suspected COVID-19 infections, have to be provided immense care.

He said it is not necessary that COVID-19 pregnant women need to for C-section. "Women with COVID-19 can breastfeed their babies. They should practise during feeding, wearing a mask, washing hands before and after touching the baby. They can share a room with the baby. One can wash hands before and after touching the baby, and clean all surfaces frequently," he added.

Vice-Chancellor of King George's Medical University Dr MLB Bhatt said that infants who have tested positive for coronavirus can be home-quarantined.

Micro-greens good for physical, mental health

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

During the COVID-19 lockdown, eating micro-greens is the key to physical and mental health. Experts say that micro-greens can make meals delicious and nutritious.

Director of Central Institute for Subtropical Horticulture (CISH) Shailendra Rajan said that micro-greens are becoming important because it is easy to grow them; they can be grown faster and many crops can be harvested in a year.

"One can grow micro-greens at any place where there is sufficient light and they are sometimes called super-food because of the abundant vitamins and secondary metabolites. Vegetables like radish and mustard can be used for this purpose. During the lockdown, one can use peas, lentils, moong and chickpeas for making the dishes more nutritious," he said.

He added that for growing them, one needs a tray filled with 4-inch soil. "Take a container, preferably a tray filled with 3-4 inch soil. Spread seeds on the soil surface and cover it with a thin layer of soil in the container. Soil is sprayed with water and after two days, germination will take place. Keep the tray in a sunny place and sprinkle water regularly. Within a week, your micro-greens will be ready. You may allow them to grow more than 2-3 inches if you like and they can grow fast in few hours under sunlight," he said.

The CISH director said that micro-greens can grow outside too, but they cannot bear the harsh sunlight. "Micro-greens can be cut down with the help of scissors. These are delicate plants and should be stored in a cool area. Normally, it takes 5-25 days for getting the right size. Micro-greens may be a part of a pizza recipe and children will love to cultivate micro-greens for pizza," he added.

He pointed out that there is a difference between sprouts and micro-greens. "Micro greens are grown on a medium soil and are consumed once development takes place when the plant establishes its root and first leaves are developed," he added.

INDIA BUCKS GLOBAL TREND, 42% CASES FROM 21-40-YR GROUP

According to a paper published in Lancet Infectious Diseases, the Covid-19 kills an estimated 13.4 per cent of patients in the 80 plus age group, compared to 1.25 per cent of those in their 50s and 0.3 per cent of those in their 40s.

The sharpest divide came at age 70. Although 4 per cent of patients in their 60s died, more than twice that, or 8.6 per cent, of those in their 70s died, Neil Ferguson of Imperial College London and his colleagues estimated in the paper, based on the global data.

However, experts say that even if the young get infected, their survival rate is much higher in India, like in Italy and France where elders deaths were comparatively higher.

"As things stand, India has a very young population. Its median age is 28.4 years. The actual data runs somewhat like this: 44.7 per cent of the population is below 25 years of age and 41.24 per cent of the population is in the age group of 25-54 years. So altogether, more than 85 per cent of India's population is below 54 years of age."

"Based on the data as analysed for France, Italy and Iran, India's young are likely to act as a bulwark against the virus. It seems likely that this shall keep the death rates very, very, low indeed. India, with its young population coupled with the lockdown, shall come out of the crisis sooner and better than many European nations."

"This does not mean that the infection rates shall necessarily be low. We may get fairly high infection rates. I must also mention that there is no reliable data for infection rates at the global level. What seems clear is that the death rates for India shall be very low and to my mind that is the most important parameter that should be used to gauge the situation," said Dinesh Singh, former Vice Chancellor, Delhi University and a mathematician.

GRID FAILURE FEAR DURING BLACKOUT SOLIDARITY MISPLACED: MINISTER

In a series of tweets, the Ministry said some apprehensions have been expressed that this may cause instability in the grid and fluctuation in voltage which may harm the electrical appliances. "These apprehensions are misplaced. The Indian electricity grid is robust, stable and adequate arrangements and protocols are in place to handle the variation in demand," it said.

In a letter to State Governments, the Ministry of Power said the appeal of the PM is to voluntarily switch off only the lights at 9:00 pm on April 5, 2020. "There is no call to switch off either streetlights or appliances like TVs, refrigerators and ACs in homes. The lights in hospitals and all other essential services like public utilities, municipal services, offices, police stations, manufacturing facilities, etc will remain on," it said.

According to the Power Ministry data, the maximum power demand in the country stood at 1,25,817 megawatt (MW) on April 2, 2020, almost 20 per cent lower than April 2, 2019 of 1,68,326 MW.

Earlier in a tweet, Tharoor said, "An unprecedented drop in electricity demand at 9 pm on Sunday and an immediate surge at 9.09 pm could cause the electrical grid to crash. So electricity boards are contemplating load shedding from 8 pm and staggered return to normal after 9.09 pm. One more thing the PM did not think about!"

India's peak power demand at best is about 170 gigawatt (GW). However, due to lockdown, the demand has fallen by more than 20 per cent and it currently hovers around 120-130 GW.

Of this, household barely comprises 10-12 per cent. Officials believe a sudden drop and rise after nine-minute shutdown won't cause disruption as it's already prepared to manage up to 15 GW fluctuation.

U-TURN ON DOMICILE ORDER: GOVT TRIES TO WIN HEARTS & MINDS

Government officials and BJP leaders are tightlipped on this fiasco, while many Hindu hardliners in the Jammu blamed the Centre and the BJP for the U-turn in just two days. Section of State BJP leaders had flagged the issue before the party high command in private and sighted numerous examples of unrest among large sections of society including unemployed youth awaiting filling up of 50,000 vacancies.

The NC in statement said that the reversal order is just "cosmetic" urging "Delhi must stop toying around with J&K." The PDP accused the BJP of playing dangerous games in the Valley in its bid to change the demography.

"The way in which the Union Government proclaimed a new job and domicile policy for the erstwhile State now clearly indicates people at the helm of affairs in New Delhi are dealing with Jammu & Kashmir very casually and without application of mind," said the PDP.

"It's high time the people of J&K get to decide the laws that will govern them rather than being subjected to the whims and fancies of the Centre where orders are issued in the morning and changes to the same order issued in the evening. Restore statehood, conduct elections," said Omar Abdullah.

Omar again tweeted: "Delhi made a mistake notifying the domicile rules during this time of crisis & I made a mistake getting sucked into this debate at a time when it's wrong to let politics distract from the #COVID19 fight. I haven't spoken my mind about 5/8/2019 yet but I will when this is over."

In the April 1 notification, the jobs were reserved only up to group 4 in the Government, which is equivalent to the rank of constable in police parlance and multi-tasking staff in Government offices.

Under the domicile law, anyone who has resided for 15 years in Jammu & Kashmir or has studied for seven years and appeared in Class 10 and Class 12 examinations in an educational institution located in the Union Territory is a domicile.

Anyone who is registered as a migrant by the Relief and Rehabilitation Commissioner (Migrants) will also be deemed to be a domicile. The children of all-India services personnel, who have served there for 10 years, also come under the category.

Others who can be deemed to be a domicile include the children of those Central Government officials, all-India services officers, officials of PSU and autonomous bodies of the Central Government, public sector banks, officials of statutory bodies, Central university officials and those of recognised research institutes of the Central Government, who have served in Jammu & Kashmir for 10 years.

Dont' consume or spit tobacco products: ICMR

New Delhi: The Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) appealed to the people on Saturday not to consume and spit smokeless tobacco in public places.

The apex health research body said chewing smokeless tobacco products (gutka, pan masala with tobacco, pan and other chewing tobacco products) and areca nut (supari) increases the production of saliva, followed by a very strong urge to spit.

"Spitting in public places could enhance the spread of the COVID19 virus," the ICMR said. "In view of the increasing danger of COVID-19 pandemic, it is an appeal to the general public to refrain from consuming the smokeless tobacco products and spitting in public places during the COVID epidemic." PTI

ing 75 deaths so far. The results of antibody tests similar to blood tests are available in 15-30 minutes.

"Cases of influenza-like illness to be monitored in health facilities. Any surge in cases to be monitored and brought to the notice of surveillance officer/CMO for additional investigation," the advisory said.

As a matter of abundant precautions, all symptomatic persons with influenza-like illness should be advised home quarantine for 14 days. At facility level, symptomatic individuals with influenza-like illness to be tested using rapid antibody tests, the apex health research body said in its advisory. If antibody test comes out negative, then if warranted, it can be confirmed by real-time RT-PCR using throat/nasal swab. At present, the government uses the RT-PCR (polymerase chain reaction) tests to detect the coronavirus from samples of throat or nasal swab of people with symptoms or high-risk individuals who might have come in contact with a positive patient.

RT-PCR negative indicates the likelihood of a non-COVID-19 influenza-like illness while RT-PCR positive means it is a confirmed case and action as per protocol should be initiated for isolation, treatment and contact tracing, the advisory stated. If the antibody test comes out to be positive, there has to be a clinical assessment and treatment in hospital or isolation as per protocol.

Action as per protocol should be initiated for contact tracing. "If symptoms worsen, refer to designated COVID-19 hospitals. When home quarantine is not feasible, consider facility-based quarantine," the advisory stated.

It also listed some general guidelines according to which healthcare workers doing the rapid antibody test should use gloves, mask, and head covers.

Healthcare workers collecting throat/nasal swab should follow standard national infection control guidelines, it said. The rapid antibody tests approved by US-FDA/CE-IVD or non-CE-IVD validated by ICMR-NIV with marketing approval by DCGI should be used. In order to ensure that all such cases are monitored and necessary action is initiated with respect to infectious disease management, details of all test results shall be uploaded in ICMR portal. "All such organisations are duty bound to register themselves to ICMR portal and upload the data in real-time. Failure to do so, they will be held liable to action under Disaster Management Act, 2005," the advisory stated.

Meanwhile, amidst reports of quarantined Jamaat members misbehaving with medical staff and police across the state, similar incidents were reported in Kanpur, Lucknow and other parts of the state. Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath has already ordered that National Security Act be invoked against these Jamaat members beside other sections of the Indian Penal Code. In Lucknow, 12 Jamaat members from Saharanpur were found coronavirus positive and they created a ruckus at Balrampur hospital.

"These people abused medical staff, demanded non-veg food and locked the doors of their rooms. They openly embraced each other and drank water from one bottle," the medical officers said.

The situation could be controlled only after the police reached there and initiated harsh steps against the errants. An FIR was also registered against them.

Similar reports of ruckus created by quarantined Jamaat members also came from Bijnor, Basti, Meerut, Saharanpur, Agra and a dozen other places.

In Lucknow, Muslim cleric Maunala Khalid Rashid Farangi Mahali and Shia cleric Maulana Saif Rizvi appealed to the Tablighi Jamaat members to conduct themselves properly and abide by the orders of medics and law enforcing agencies.

HBTU students develop device to help in diagnosis

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ KANPUR

A unique device has been developed that would reveal the medical history of a patient — diseases, test reports, medicines prescribed, duration of treatment — with the help of the thumb impression or Aadhaar number of the person concerned.

The project has been jointly developed by Harcourt Butler Technology University (HBTU), Kanpur, and the Human Resource Development Ministry, New Delhi.

The device would help doctors at primary and community health centres, government and private hospitals in the diagnosis of the illness of a patient.

HBTU was assigned this project by IIT Kanpur. The device has been developed by HBTU students under the guidance of Prof Krishna Raj of the electronics department.

"The device, which uses artificial intelligence, has been developed and only the software has to be upload," Prof Raj said.

As the entire data would be uploaded on the internet, there would be no need to write details of a patient on paper. A scanner would be used to scan the patient's slip, test report, X-ray and ultra-sound report, prescription etc. Once this data is uploaded on the internet, it will be possible for a doctor to retrieve the medical history of a patient anywhere by his/her thumb impression, Aadhaar number or by scanning the patient's registration slip.

Prof Raj said the MHRD had sanctioned ₹ 7 lakh for this project, 50 per cent of which had been received by HBTU.

The project will be patented. The device will be available in the market at a price between ₹3,500 and ₹4,000.

Prof Raj said with the help of this device, the number of patients suffering from different types of diseases on mohalla or block levels could easily be ascertained. He said the device was small — about the size of a TV set-top box — and had a biometric scanner to scan thumb impression.

There are plans to also upload software to help in identifying a patient. Once the photo of a patient is uploaded, it will be helpful in retrieving all other details about him/her in future, he added.

Five-phased containment plan for surging corona

ARCHANA JYOTI ■ NEW DELHI

With Coronavirus cases rising by hundreds and deaths multiplying with each passing day, the Government on Saturday came out with a five-phased 'containment plan for larger outbreaks' on the perception that current Covid-19 spread mimics the H1N1 pandemic of 2009.

"This suggests that while the spread of COVID-19 in our population could be high, it's unlikely that it will be uniformly affecting all parts of the country. This calls for differential approach to different regions of the country, while mounting a strong containment effort in hot spots," said the document that visualises five different step-wise scenarios in case of any such outbreaks in the country.

It begins with travel-related cases reported in India followed by local transmission of COVID-19, large outbreaks amenable to containment, wide-spread community transmission of COVID-19 disease and finally to the point, if or when India becomes endemic for the deadly disease. The Government current strategy is focussed on these five points aiming to combat the deadly disease.

So far, the virus has killed over 80 people and infected over 3000 in the country. Large number of cases has been reported from Delhi, Karnataka, Kerala, Maharashtra, Rajasthan, Tamil Nadu, Telangana and Uttar Pradesh.

"Large scale measures to contain COVID-19 over large territories have been tried in China," notes the document prepared by the Union Health Ministry.

In India also, clusters have appeared in multiple States, particularly Kerala, Maharashtra, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh, Delhi, Punjab, Karnataka, Telangana and UT of Ladakh while 211 districts are now reporting COVID-19 cases and the risk of further spread remains very high, as per the document.

Current estimates of the incubation period of COVID

1. Epidemiology Coronaviruses belong to a large family of viruses, some causing illness in people and others that circulate among animals, including camels, cats, bats, etc. Rarely, animal corona viruses may evolve and jump species to infect people and then spread between people as witnessed during the outbreak of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS, 2003) and Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS, 2014).

2. In humans, the transmission of SARS-CoV-2 can occur via respiratory secretions (directly through droplets from coughing or sneezing, or indirectly through contaminated objects or surfaces as well as close contacts).

3. Most common symptoms include fever, fatigue, dry cough and breathing difficulty. Upper respiratory tract symptoms like sore throat, rhinorrhoea, and gastrointestinal symptoms like diarrhoea and nausea/vomiting are seen in about 20% of cases.

4. Geographical quarantine and containment strategy proposes defining the area of operation, active surveillance for cases and contacts in the identified geographic zone and expanding laboratory capacity for testing all suspect cases, high risk contacts and SARI cases. Implementation of social distancing measures with strict perimeter control and providing chemoprophylaxis with Hydroxychloroquine to all asymptomatic healthcare workers and asymptomatic household contacts of laboratory confirmed cases has been further course of action."

However, if the containment plan is not able to contain the outbreak and large numbers of cases start appearing, then a decision will need to be taken by State administration to abandon the containment plan and start on mitigation activities, it stated.

Talking about the possibility of local transmission of COVID-2019 disease, which so far the Government has denied, the document said that local transmission will lead to clustering of cases in time and space, epidemiologically linked to a travel related case or a positive case that has links to a travel related case. The cluster containment strategies will be refined as more data become available. Strategic approach for scenario include travel related cases reported from India which focuses on early detection through universal screening of all International passengers at Points of Entries (PoEs) and tracking travellers in the community who have travelled from affected countries.

Driver Tejvir Singh and Inspector M Harikumar. Meanwhile, around 2,500 CRPF men posted at Force's headquarters and other attached offices (COBRA, RAF, Northern Sector) here have been barred from leaving the station without due permission from superiors but the same is being flouted by some men who are visiting their home towns in adjoining States of Delhi on weekends posing threat to those posted at the CRPF directorate here. The top brass of the CRPF is seized of the issue and is likely to initiate sharing of live locations of those posted at the headquarters here so that the personnel do not resort to unauthorised movement and virtually become coronavirus carriers, sources said. The Indo-Tibetan Border Police (ITBP), whose headquarters is also located besides the CRPF Directorate at the CGO Complex, has already made provisions for sharing of live locations twice by its personnel working from home as a measure to check the spread of Covid-19 by restricting their unnecessary movements.

DRDO designs Personnel Sanitisation Enclosure to fight corona

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Focusing on in-house solutions to fight coronavirus pandemic, the Defence Research and Development Organisation (DRDO) has designed a full-body disinfection chamber called Personnel Sanitisation Enclosure. This walk-through enclosure is designed for personnel decontamination, one person at a time. The DRDO is already manufacturing and supplying sanitiser and masks to the Delhi Police while the Navy has manufactured handheld temperature gun at a cost of ₹1,000 which is much less than the ones available in the market. The DRDO has also developed portable sanitisation spray which can be used to spray disinfectant.

Giving details about the latest endeavour, defence ministry officials said here on Saturday the portable system is equipped with sanitiser and soap dispenser. The decontamination is started using a foot pedal at the entry. On entering the chamber, electrically operated pump creates a disinfectant mist of hypochlorite for disinfecting. The mist spray is calibrated for an operation of 25 seconds and stops automatically indicating completion of operation. As per procedure, personnel undergoing disinfection will need to keep their eyes closed while inside the chamber. Moreover, the system consists of roof mounted and bottom tanks with a total of 700 litres' capacity.

Approximately 650 personnel can pass through the chamber for disinfection until the refill is required. The system has see-through glass panels on side walls for monitoring purpose and is fitted with lights for illumination during night time operations. A separate operator cabin is provided to monitor overall operations. The system has been manufactured with the help of M/s Dass Hitachi Ltd, Ghaziabad, within a time span of four days. This system can be used for disinfection of personnel at the areas of controlled ingress and egress such as entry and exit to hospitals, malls, office buildings and critical installations.

Earlier, the DRDO also developed face protection mask for health care professionals handling COVID-19 patients. Its light weight construction makes it convenient for comfortable wear for long duration.

This design uses commonly available A4 size Over-Head Projection (OHP) film for face protection. The holding frame is manufactured using Fused Deposition Modeling (3D printing). Polyactic Acid filament is used for 3D printing of the frame. This thermoplastic is derived from renewable resources such as corn starch or sugarcane and is biodegradable.

Recently, a 44-year-old Rewari (Haryana) man suffered 35 per cent burn injuries when he accidentally came into contact with fire in his kitchen while cleaning household items with an alcohol-based hand sanitiser. Doctors have also advised caution in its usage.

and handed over to ESIC, Hyderabad. A demand of 10,000 masks been received from PGIMER and ESIC Hospitals, they said. In the continuing quest for developing indigenous solutions to combat the pandemic, the DRDO is ready with technologies for sanitising areas of different sizes. The Centre for Fire Explosive & Environment Safety (CFEES), Delhi has developed two configurations of sanitising equipment. These are spinoffs from technologies developed for fire suppression applications.

The CFEES, Delhi with the help of its industry partner has developed portable sanitisation equipment for spraying decontamination solution consisting of one per cent Hypochlorite (HYPO) solution for sanitisation of suspected area.

The portable system can be mounted as a backpack and can be carried by the operations personnel. This system incorporates low pressure twin fluid (air & disinfectant liquid) technology to generate very fine mist. The system is capable of disinfecting upto 300 square metre area.

The application areas can include hospital reception, doctor chambers, office spaces dealing with general public, corridors, pathways, metro and railway stations, bus stations, etc.

The Centre with the help of its industry partner has also developed a higher capacity which is carried on a trolley. The system incorporates low pressure single fluid (disinfectant liquid) technology generating very fine mist. It is capable of disinfecting upto 3,000 square metre area. It has a tank capacity of 50 litres and has a lancing (throw) distance of 12-15 metres.

This is useful for disinfecting hospitals, malls, airports, metro stations, isolation areas, quarantine centres and high risk residential areas. Two of these systems are being provided to Delhi Police for immediate use. These can be made available to other agencies with the help of industry partners.

Tamil Nadu positive cases jumps to 485

State Govt asks to study why Markaz returnees afflicted with this pandemic

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ KOCHI

With the number of patients testing positive for coronavirus reaching 485 by Saturday evening in Tamil Nadu, the State Government has asked the Chennai office of the National Institute of Epidemiology to undertake a study on why the returnees from the congregation at Nizamuddin were afflicted with this pandemic.

This was stated by Beela Rajesh, secretary to the department of health and family welfare while addressing the daily media briefing on Saturday. She said 74 persons tested positive on Saturday alone. "Out of the 485 persons tested positive for coronavirus in the State, 422 are either Nizamuddin returnees or people with whom they had interacted. There are only 63 persons who tested positive for corona virus who do not have anything to do with the religious congregation," said the health secretary.

Despite the sudden spurt in the number of corona positive cases in the State, Tamil Nadu is still in Stage -2 of the disease and the administration has launched all-out containment activities to control and check the situation from vitiating further, she said.

"By Sunday, all medical colleges in the State would have set up the testing facilities which is expected to bring down the time taken for testing the corona virus attack. More than 29 lakh people in the State had been screened since the outbreak of the disease," said Rajesh. She said the State was on the alert from January 18 onwards and all passengers reaching the airports in Tamil Nadu had been screened and tested. This is one of the reasons for Tamil Nadu effectively controlling the corona virus spread. But the Tablighi Jamaat conference and subsequent developments had contributed in upsetting our work. Now we are in a State of medical emergency," said Rajesh.

She asked the people not to panic and to observe strictly the social distance rules. "All senior citizens with history of blood pressure and sugar are asked to undergo tests for the same in the changed situation," said the health secretary.

In Chennai, the civic administration along with the department of health officials have identified 'eight hotspot clusters' in the city where multiple corona virus cases have been identified. The civic officials along with police sealed the entry and exit points to all these clusters to prevent the movement of vehicles as well as unauthorised persons.

Chief Minister Edappadi Palaniswamy, who is the overall commander of the fight against the pandemic asked the people to strictly adhere to the social distance and not to come out of the houses unless it is an emergency. "We have given full authority to the police to take legal action against those who wander around the metro," he said in a video message. The Chief Minister also disclosed that cash assistance of ₹1,000 would be provided to each of the rice ration card holders in the State and this amount would be delivered at the doorsteps itself by Government staff so that people need not come out of the houses and stand in queues.

MK Stalin, leader of the Opposition who is also the president of the DMK asked party cadre to stop all political activities and engage themselves in helping the administration to fight the corona virus. Interestingly, Jayanthi Natarajan, former union minister and Congress leader said in a TV programme that she too would cooperate with the Centre and State Government in eradicating coronavirus cases.

Search on for 2,000 contact persons of +ve cases in J&K

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ JAMMU

With total number of coronavirus positive cases inching closer to 100 in Jammu & Kashmir, the Government agencies are slogging on ground zero to track down each one of the 2000 contact persons of positive cases. So far over 1000 cases have been tracked down and efforts are on reach out to majority of these cases as they run the risk of spreading the virus in different pockets of J&K.

On Saturday, highest number of seventeen (17) cases tested positive, 14 from Kashmir division and 3 from Jammu division.

According to official sources, 92 cases have so far tested positive in J&K while total number of active cases stood at 86. Four patients have been discharged from the hospital after they recovered fully and two deaths have been reported from Kashmir division. According to the daily bulletin released by the health department, test reports of 55 patients were still awaited.

According to official sources, around 86 patients with high viral load have been isolated in the different covid hospitals in both Srinagar and Jammu and being taken care of.

Out of 17 fresh cases, three positive cases were reported from Narsolu, in Udhampur district. According to Rohit Kansal, spokesman of Jammu & Kashmir Government, "the reported cases were all contacts of a positive patient from Udhampur with travel history abroad".

Jamaat attendee falls for free, tasty food!

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ KOCHI

The season of coronavirus or COVID 19 is not about fear, anxiety and tension alone. The pandemic has a lighter side too. An interaction with Government staff working round-the-clock for corona virus detection and to trace the persons suspected of carrying the virus brought out some interesting facts. It has the potential to send one in splits notwithstanding the tiresome work being put up by the team of officials.

It all began with the Markaz Nizamuddin congregation and in the backdrop of reports that 1500 delegates from Tamil Nadu attended the international conclave held to re-energise the Tablighi Jamaat operations in India.

The Chennai Corporation officials and the Domestic Breeding Checkers zeroed in on a returnee from the Nizamuddin meet and went to examine the person on March 23. He is a resident of Korukkupet, an area dominated by the community to which the man belongs.

The members of his house and some of the neighbours told the officials that the suspect was not there and he has gone to a relation's house outside the city. The officials believed what they told and went back.

But when they were told again by the family members on March 28 and 31 that the man has not returned, the officials smelled a rat and sought the help of local police. The local police in Chennai has their own "intelligence agents" who informed them that the person whom they are looking for was present in his house and was in hiding. The corporation officials with the assistance of the local police barged into the residence in the wee hours of Friday only to be welcomed by the man they were searching for!

"Though he was reluctant to agree that he was the same person whom we were looking for, the man finally came round and accompanied us to the Stalney Medical College for tests. He was tested positive and was admitted to the hospital for treatment. He had reservations in getting admitted to the hospital but the menu of the delicacies served free of cost for the patients did him in. Till he is found negative, the man would be provided with Idli, Pongal, chutney and sambar for breakfast, egg biriyani for lunch and dinner, tea/coffee and snacks in the evenings," said one of the officials.

Once they admitted the man in the isolation ward, the officials rushed to Korukkupet to quarantine the entire street and are in the process of examining all the people in the neighbourhood. "Though he gave us enough headache, our modus operandi to make him fall in line and his passion for food made up for all our efforts," said the health official.

City of Chennai and the Old Mahabalipuram Highway (also known as IT highway because of the number of IT majors in this stretch) wore a deserted look on Saturday as vehicles and persons stayed off the roads. Sriperumbudur, the hub of automobile giants and engineering companies resembled a ghost city with no vehicles or persons coming out in the open. Trade bodies said that the industrial hub is losing ₹2,500 crore per day because of the lock down. Liquor is the most sought after commodity in Tamil Nadu as in neighbouring Kerala. The entire liquor stock in Tamil Nadu State Marketing Corporation (TASMAR) retail counters are being shifted to secured marriage halls in the State to save the 'stuff' from the preying eyes of spirit bandits.

The body of the fourth terrorist was recovered by the police while clearing the debris of the house, demolished during the operation.

According to police, the slain terrorists were local residents of the area and three of them have been identified as Ajaz Ahmad Naikoo, Shahid Sadik Malik, Aadil Ahmad Thakor. PNS

Kerala: Now, postman to deliver money on doorstep

Thiruvananthapuram: The Postmaster General has informed the Kerala Government that his department will now take up the task of delivering money to people's homes, provided the bank account is linked to Aadhaar.

This has been welcomed by the Kerala government which has given the green signal for this new operation, which will see fewer people approaching banks or ATMs to withdraw money.

All the people who want to avail of this service will have to inform their local post office about the amount of money which they want to be delivered to their homes. Once this is done, the post office will entrust the task of delivering the money to the postman who will bring it to their homes, after ensuring the person has the required funds in his bank account and that it is linked to Aadhaar. ## Notice to Tablighi Jamaat chief, 7 others for defying lockdown

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

The Delhi Police has sent notice to Tablighi Jamaat leader Maulana Saad Kandhalvi and seven others after a First Information Report (FIR) against Kandhalvi and seven others for holding a religious congregation at Southeast Delhi's Nizamuddin Markaz allegedly in violation of the lockdown orders and not maintaining social distancing to contain the spread of coronavirus. The Delhi Police's Crime Branch wrote to Saad and others on March 31, seeking the details under Section 91 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC).

According to notice which contains 26 questions, police had asked them to submit details of name, address, registration details of the organisation, details of its office bearers, details of income tax returns filed by Markaz for the last three years, PAN numbers, bank account numbers and bank statements for the last one year of the organisation.

"A list of employees working for the organisation (Markaz), number of religious gatherings organised by it from January 1, 2019, a map plan of the premises was also sought and details whether CCTV cameras are installed in the premises have also been sought," the Crime Branch had stated in their notice.

"A copy of the permission sought from police or any other authorities, if any, for holding a religious gathering in the premises. Details of audio-visual recording made by or in possession of any person who attended the gathering have also been sought. Details of people — both Indian and foreigners — who arrived at the Markaz after March 12 and their health conditions have also been demanded," the notice further stated.

Police has also asked them to submit details of people and volunteers who were on duty at the premises and details of curfew passes issued to any person.

The FIR was registered on Tuesday at Crime Branch police station on the complaint of Station House Officer of Nizamuddin police station.

According to FIR, the Delhi Police contacted the authorities of Markaz on March 21 and reminded them of the government order that prohibited any political or religious gathering of more than 50 people.

"One Mufti Shahzad was informed about the situation arising due to COVID-19 and was asked to take immediate action for preventing the spread of the disease. He was directed to send the foreign devotees back to their respective countries and other Indian persons to their respective cities, the FIR stated.

However, no one paid any heed to the lawful direction of police, it added. Moreover, an audio recording purportedly of Saad was found in circulation on WhatsApp on March 21, in which the speaker was heard asking his followers to defy the lockdown and social distancing and to attend the religious gathering of the Markaz, according to the FIR.

On March 24, the government ordered 21-day nationwide lockdown and restricted any social, political or religious gathering.

Subsequently, on March 24, a meeting was held at Hazrat Nizamuddin police station between SHO and officer bearers of Markaz. "The meeting was attended by Saad, Mohammad Ashraf, Mohammad Salman, Yunus, Mursaleen Saifi, Jishan and Mufti Shehzad and they were informed about lockdown orders," the FIR said.

"It was found that despite repeated efforts, they did not inform the health department or any other government agency about the huge gathering inside the Markaz and deliberately disobeyed the government orders," the FIR stated.

"The Sub District Magistrate of Defence Colony inspected the premises several times and found that around 1,300 people, including foreign nationals, were residing there without maintaining social distance. It was also found that there were no arrangements of hand sanitizers and face masks," the FIR stated.

GLOBAL VIRUS DEATH TOLL CROSSES 60,000

AFP ■ PARIS

The coronavirus pandemic has killed over 60,000 people worldwide, nearly three quarters of them in Europe, since it emerged in China in December, according to a tally compiled by AFP at 1330 GMT Saturday from official sources.

A total of 60,457 deaths have been recorded, including 44,132 in Europe, the continent worst hit by the virus. The official tallies probably reflect only a fraction of the actual number of cases.

With 14,681 deaths, Italy is the country with the highest death toll, followed by Spain (11,744), the United States (7,159), France (6,507) and Britain (4,313).

Since COVID-19 first emerged, 1,130,204 cases have been declared officially in the world, with more than half of them in Europe (610,846).

There have been 290,219 in the United States and Canada (7,325 deaths between them) and 115,777 cases in Asia (4,124 deaths).

New York records 562 deaths in single day

New York: The New York State reported its highest number of 562 COVID-19 deaths in a single day, with a person dying almost every two-and-a-half minutes, as Governor Andrew Cuomo allowed redistribution of ventilators and protective gear to hospitals with greater need.

Coronavirus cases in the state, the epicenter of the pandemic in the US, crossed 100,000 and it recorded the highest increase in the number of deaths from the virus in a single day between April 2 and 3, Cuomo said.

The death toll in the state now stands at 2,935, an increase of 562 deaths in just one day, Cuomo said. "The curve continues to go up," Cuomo said while addressing reporters on Friday. The number of confirmed coronavirus cases in the state now stand at 102,863, nearly half of all COVID-19 infections in the US, where the tally has reached 277,953. New York City alone has 56,289 coronavirus patients.

Cuomo also gave a grim assessment of the rising number of casualties, saying the state witnessed the "highest single increase in the number of deaths since we started."

More than 7,000 people have died in the US, and 1,867 in the New York City alone, according to Johns Hopkins University Coronavirus Resource Centre.

"More people in New York died from the virus in the last 24 hours than in the first 27 days of March. The state's death toll has nearly doubled in the last three days," The New York Times said.

The Governor also expressed anger over the short supply of essential medical equipment for healthcare professionals to help them deal with the surge in the cases across the state and the country.

He said personal protective equipment (PPE) such as masks, gowns and face shields are in short supply in New York as they are across the country and there is need for companies to make these materials. PTI

5-year-old boy dies of virus in UK, toll reaches 4,313

London: A 5-year-old boy with pre-existing underlying health issues is the UK's youngest COVID-19 victim as the country's death toll in the coronavirus pandemic rose by 708 in 24 hours to hit 4,313 on Saturday.

UK Cabinet Office minister Michael Gove revealed the latest death toll during the daily Downing Street briefing, during which he reiterated the government's plea for the public to continue to strictly observe social distancing over what is set to be a pleasant weekend.

"If we weigh up an hour or two outside and weigh it against the lives of those we love and the lives of those on the NHS (National Health Service) frontline, then it should be clear, I hope to all that we should follow the advice," said Gove.

"The sun might be out, but that doesn't mean you should be out," Stephen Powis, NHS England's National Medical Director said.

A statement from the NHS on the latest deaths in England said that patients were aged between five years and 104 years old.

The latest figures emerged as police forces across the UK put on extra patrols in parks and outdoor areas, amid fears that large numbers of people will be tempted to go outside and break social distancing rules in the warmer weather.

During the daily briefing, Gove also announced that hundreds of ventilators were being manufactured in the UK every day and more had been sourced from abroad, including Germany and Switzerland and a batch of 300 invasive ventilators from China arrived on Saturday.

"I'd like to thank the Chinese government for their support in securing that capacity," he said. He said a partnership between University College London (UCL) and Mercedes Benz has produced a new "non-invasive" ventilator, which have been clinically approved. The partnership has already produced 250, which will rise to 1,000 a day by next week. PTI

B'desh sees highest single-day jump in virus cases, extends shutdown to Apr 11

Dhaka: Bangladesh on Saturday extended the nationwide transport shutdown till April 11 as the country recorded its biggest single-day increase of COVID-19 cases with nine new positive tests, taking the country's total to 70.

The country reported two more deaths from the novel coronavirus, taking the total number of fatalities to eight, according to data released by the health directorate on Saturday.

One of deceased was 90-year-old and the other was 68 and both had histories of heart disease and stroke respectively, Institute of Epidemiology, Disease Control and Research (IEDCR) Director Meerjady Sabrina Flora told a virtual media briefing here.

The tally of infections increase to 70 after nine more people, including two children aged under 10, tested positive in the last 24 hours.

This is the biggest jump in positive tests over a 24-hour period since Bangladesh announced its first cases on March 8. The total number of recovered patients is 30.

The authorities collected 553 samples from across the country in the last 24 hours and tested 434, Abul Kalam Azad, director general of the Directorate General of Health Services, said in an online briefing. PTI

CHINESE EXPLORERS START EVEREST CLIMB AMID VIRUS PANDEMIC: REPORT

Beijing: A group of Chinese mountaineers has begun an expedition on Mount Everest as China limped back to normalcy after the coronavirus outbreak. The site, however, remains closed to foreign climbers.

The highest peak of the world stands on the border of China and Nepal and can be climbed from both sides. China has closed its side to foreign climbers while Nepal has cancelled all expeditions in response to Covid-19. Only Chinese climbers are permitted this spring season because of the pandemic, operators told the BBC. China has suspended foreign expeditions on the north side of 8,848-meter Mount Everest in Tibet during the spring climbing season of 2020 due to the global spread of the coronavirus. The Tibet Mountaineering Association (TMA) announced during the second week of March that while China has made great progress in containing the coronavirus disease, its rapid global spread still brings uncertainty and danger. ## 95 police officers, 46 medical staff died in fight against virus in China: Media

Beijing: Ninety-five Chinese police officers and 46 medical workers died in the fight against the coronavirus pandemic, State-run media reported on Saturday, revealing for the first time the casualties of the front-line officials fighting the battle against the global health crisis.

The revelation of the casualties came as China on Saturday held a national memorial for the martyrs and victims of the coronavirus outbreak. China has reported 81,639 confirmed COVID-19 cases and 3,326 deaths, majority of them from epicentre Hubei province and its capital Wuhan, where the deadly virus originated late last year.

As of Thursday, a total of 60 frontline police officers and 35 auxiliary police officers had sacrificed their lives at the frontline of the battle, official media here quoted the Chinese Ministry of Public Security.

As of March 15, at least 46 medical workers have sacrificed their lives during the battle by risking infection, over-work or accidents state-run Global Times reported.

Earlier, Chinese officials said over 3,000 medical workers have contracted the virus. China has deployed 42,000 medical workers in Hubei and built 14 makeshift hospitals to accommodate surging cases.

Hubei province has so far reported 67,803 confirmed cases, including 50,008 in Wuhan. PTI

Italy's doctors look for help from sleek new robots

Varese (Italy): The shiny new robots gently check the pulses of highly infectious patients on life support in the Italian epicentre of COVID-19.

The doctors and nurses love them because they also help save their own lives.

Italians have seen the world around them turn unrecognisable from the various lockdowns and social distancing measures used to fight the new coronavirus outbreak.

But little appears to have pained them as much as seeing dozens of doctors and nurses die while trying to save the tens of thousands of patients who have suddenly ended up in hospitals across Italy's pandemic-hit north.

The country's medical association said on Friday that at least 70 medics have died from various causes since Italy recorded the first official COVID-19 death on February 21.

The fear is that an overwhelmingly majority of the 70 would still be alive today had they been better protected against the coronavirus.

This helps explain why the doctors are nurses in a hospital near Italy's mountainous border with Switzerland are laughing behind their face-masks while posing for photos with their new robot friends.

The Varese hospital has received six of the sleek and slightly human looking machines on wheels. AFP

Pak lawmaker writes to UN chief to probe if virus man-made and trace its origin

Islamabad: A Pakistani lawmaker has appealed to the United Nations to form a commission to probe if coronavirus is a man-made or a naturally grown virus and also trace its origin, according to a media report.

The motormouth former Pakistani interior minister, Rehman Malik, in a letter to UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres, suggested that the proposed commission on COVID-19 under the UN Convention on Biological Weapons, 1975 might comprise of virologists, scientists, professors, researchers, analysts and experts in the fields of microbiology and virology, the Dawn News reported.

Making the letter public at a press conference through a video link, Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP) Senator Malik said the commission should present its report to the UN secretary general in three months, and give recommendations to prevent future outbreaks of such viruses, and international standards for coordination in case of a breakout. The COVID-19, which originated in China's Wuhan city, has so far killed 59,456 people worldwide and infected more than 1,122,320 in 190 countries. For the proposed UN commission on COVID-19, Malik has proposed seven 'terms of references' to the UN secretary general. These include accurate identification of the geo-location of the COVID-19's origin, identification of areas with zero patient, discovery as to why the behaviour, intensity and fertility rate of COVID-19 varies from country to country, investigation whether it is a man-made or naturally-grown virus and examination of the allegations of transportation of the virus from one place to other destinations in the world, as a 'biological warfare tactics'.

He said the deadly coronavirus pandemic had stirred up the worst global crisis since World War II, the daily said.

"Many claims, speculations, conspiracy theories and misinformation about the disease have found their way into the international print and electronic media, blurring distinction between real and fake news," he said. PTI

Pak records 2,700 virus cases, Punjab crosses 1,000-mark

Islamabad: Pakistan's coronavirus cases rose to 2,708 on Saturday with the number of patients in the Punjab province, which accounts for more than half of the country's total population, crossing the 1,000-mark.

According to the National Health Services, COVID-19 has so far claimed 40 lives, while 130 patients have recovered.

Punjab — the hotspot of the viral infection in Pakistan — reported a total of 1,072 cases, followed by Sindh at 839, Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa 343, Balochistan 175, Gilgit-Baltistan 193, Islamabad 75 and 11 cases in Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (PoK).

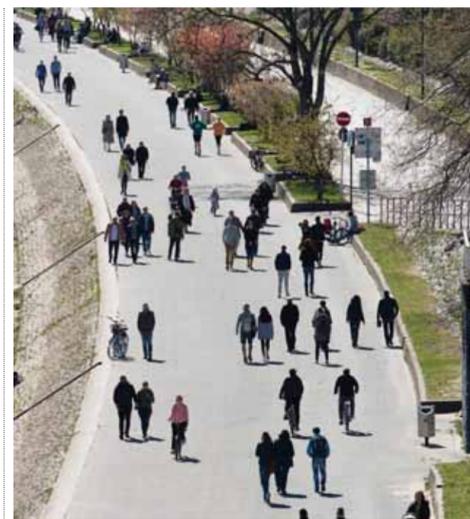

The viral infection in the country is rapidly spreading, despite hectic efforts by the government to curtail it, officials said.

On Friday, the World Bank has approved USD 200 million in aid to Pakistan to help deal with the impact of the novel coronavirus.

According to Radio Pakistan, the project titled "Pandemic Response Effectiveness in Pakistan", will support the government to prepare and respond to the disease and strengthen national systems for public health preparedness.

Asserting that no one was sure how long the COVID-19 pandemic would last, Pakistan Prime minister Imran Khan on Friday announced a massive package to the construction sector to restart economy. PTI

Front-line medical staff deaths grow, highlight virus risks

Rome: Air raid sirens sounded across China and flags flew at half staff in tribute on Saturday to victims of the coronavirus pandemic, including the health care "martyrs" who have died fighting to save others.

With the highest number of infections in Europe and their hospitals overwhelmed, Spain and Italy struggled to protect medical staff on the front lines of the outbreak, while 17 medics in Egypt's main cancer hospital tested positive for the virus.

As the number of infections has grown to more than 1.1 million worldwide, health care systems are straining under the surge of patients and lack of medical equipment like ventilators as well as protective masks and gloves, giving rise to growing concerns about the exposure of hospital personnel. Italy and Spain, with combined deaths of more than 25,000 and nearly a quarter-million infections, have reported a high percentage of infections among health care workers.

Carlo Palermo, head of Italy's hospital doctors' union, fought tears as he told reporters in Rome of the physical risks and psychological trauma the outbreak is causing, noting reports that two nurses had committed suicide.

"It's an indescribable condition of stress. Unbearable," he said. "I can understand those who look death in the eye every day, who are on the front lines, who work with someone who maybe is infected, then a few days later you see him in the ICU or die." U.S. President Donald Trump announced late Friday he would prevent the export of N95 protective masks and surgical gloves to ensure they are available in the US. - prompting neighboring Canada's prime minister to respond that cross-border aid goes well beyond supplies.

"I think of the thousands of nurses who cross the bridge in Windsor to work in the Detroit medical system every day," Justin Trudeau said. "These are things Americans rely on." The number of people infected in the U.S. Has now exceeded a quarter-million, with the death toll climbing past 7,000. New York state alone accounts for more than 2,900 dead, an increase of over 560 in just one day. Most of the dead are in New York City, where hospitals are swamped with patients.

World Health Organization director-general Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus warned African leaders of an "imminent surge" in coronavirus cases on the continent, urging them to open humanitarian corridors to allow the delivery of badly needed medical supplies. More than half of Africa's 54 countries have closed air, land and sea borders to prevent the virus' spread but that has delayed aid shipments. Virus cases in Africa are now over 7,700, and the head of the Africa Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has warned some nations will have more than 10,000 cases by the end of April.

In the Philippines, Sen. Richard Gordon, who is also head of the local Red Cross, said lockdown measures have meant millions of poor families are unable to fulfill basic needs.

"A lot of people are hungry. They're asking for milk, they're asking for diapers. They say it's not going fast enough," Gordon said, threatening to have local officials arrested if they steal from government aid for dirt-poor families. AP

Anti-parasitic drug kills virus in lab grown cells: Study

Melbourne: Researchers have found that an anti-parasitic drug already available around the world can kill the novel coronavirus grown in cell cultures within 48 hours, an advance that may lead to the development and trial of a new clinical therapy for COVID-19.

According to the study, published in the journal Antiviral Research, the drug, Ivermectin, stopped the virus, SARS-CoV-2, from growing in cell culture within 48 hours. "We found that even a single dose could essentially remove all viral RNA by 48 hours and that even at 24 hours there was a really significant reduction in it," said study co-author Kylie Wagstaff from Monash University in Australia. The scientists said Ivermectin is an approved anti-parasitic drug that has also been shown to be effective in vitro against a broad range of viruses including HIV, Dengue, Influenza and Zika virus.

However, Wagstaff cautioned that the tests conducted in the study were in vitro and that trials needed to be carried out in people.

"Ivermectin is very widely used and seen as a safe drug. We need to figure out now whether the dosage you can use it in humans will be effective - that's the next step," Wagstaff said.

"In times when we're having a global pandemic and there isn't an approved treatment, if we had a compound that was already available around the world then that might help people sooner," she said.

Although the mechanism by which Ivermectin works on the virus is not known, the scientists said it is likely, based on its action in other viruses, that it works to stop the virus 'dampening down' the host cells' ability to clear it.

"As the virologist who was part of the team who were first to isolate and share SARS-CoV2 outside of China in January 2020, I am excited about the prospect of Ivermectin being used as a potential drug against COVID-19," said Leon Caly, study co-author from the Royal Melbourne Hospital in Australia. # 'I have never regretted my decisions'

DEBINA BONNERJEE who plays Mallika in Sony Sab's Aladdin Naam Toh Suna Hoga speaks with MUSBA HASHMI about what made her take up the role, challenges and how it was hilarious to act with Gurmeet to begin with

What is your role in Aladdin Naam Toh Suna Hoga?

I play Mallika, who is the creator of djinn and the lamp. She is the one who has created all the djinns.

What attracted you to play the role?

The dimensions of the character of course. It is a very larger than life and humongous character. Mallika is the lead antagonist, it is like the whole show is on one side and Mallika single-handedly on the other. She stands tall. Moreover, the show is also well-established so there were no reasons for me to turn down the project.

From Mayavi to now Aladdin, how has the journey been?

It has been an excellent one. Throughout my journey, I followed God's instinct more than mine. There was a time when I auditioned for a few projects and I took the ones that got finalised first instead of taking the chance of waiting for the other ones thinking that they might be better. There were times when I was a part of a couple of projects at the same time but I have never regretted my decisions that 'oh I should have waited for other things to happen'. And in return whatever project I took back then turned out well for me. I believed that it was God's will, therefore I never questioned my decisions.

How easy or difficult was it for you to be a part of this industry?

I wouldn't say it was easy or difficult. Acting just happened with me. No one in my family belong to the field and hence, I had no one who could have guided me for my better back then. I only had a dream, that of being an actor. I kept on believing in it so much so that I developed the etiquette of an actor —body language and others. And that didn't make sense to many people back then. I remember when I was in Class VIII, my teacher scolded for me behaving like a heroine. I had a mixed feeling then — bad because I felt it was humiliating and good because I thought that people have started to believe that I have the qualities of an actor and can become one, even though I had no clue of what the field used to be like.

Then after some time, I took part in certain competitions, looked for work in the newspaper and eventually it happened and I came into the industry. One change led to the other. I have always managed to be as hardworking as I was before, I never felt saturated and never took anything casually. Even when I was in the most comfortable of positions, I had tried to evolve and be where I am today. So it wasn't easy at all. Now when I see people who are enamoured by our lifestyle and profession come into this industry but it is not the way how things work.

They are not persistent enough, maybe they are for the initial two years but then it gets lost. However, my husband (Gurmeet Choudhary) and I both have worked extremely hard all our lives. We have always motivated each other to improve our skills.

You and Gurmeet are one of the power couples of the industry. What keeps the relationship so fresh?

It is because we are best friends first. And one can never get bored of their friend. Also we have set our individualistic priorities right, it is not as if one of us have kept that aside. The other day someone was telling me that people should give space to their partners. That's what made me think that do we give space to each other and the answer was instantly a yes. Take for example if I am out with my friends that includes only girls and if Gurmeet is free and is getting bored at home then I ask him to join us and he never says no and vice versa. We have that level of understanding and there is no hard core role that my time is my time. Also, we are each others' first priority and everything else comes second. This is what keeps us going.

You both have worked together on various shows. How easy or difficult was that?

Initially, it was difficult to work. We got to work together on our first break — Ramayan and even Mayavi. We used to laugh a lot. I found it hilarious to act together. Then gradually we started having lot of expectations from each other, we advised each other too. Then after some time, we got to work together for a film on a digital space and we realised how both of us have evolved as actors as well as human beings by working together. We were matured and stopped expecting from each other, in terms of work. The equation had changed over the years for us as actors and that was great.

What is there in the pipeline?

Currently I am focusing solely on Aladdin... and there is a film — Shubho Bijoy that I have done with Gurmeet. It will release soon.

TELLYTALE

MANIT GOES AN EXTRA MILE

Ever since Kundali Bhagya was launched, the show has been the most loved Indian television show. The stellar cast including the likes of Dheeraj Dhoopar (Karan), Shadha Arya (Preeti), Manit Joura (Rishab), Anjum Fakih (Shrishti), Sanjay Gagnani (Prithvi) and Abhishek Kapur (Sameer), are being appreciated by one and all. However, looks like everyone's love for Manit is going grow by leaps and bounds after hearing about what he has been up to during this COVID-19 lockdown.

In such difficult times when the whole country is locked down courtesy COVID-19, the Kundali Bhagya actor is trying to give back to the world in his own little and humble way. Manit Joura has come out in support of man's best friend, dogs. He loves canines and hence, he is going the extra mile for them. In association with Animals Matter To Me (AMTM), the actor has been feeding the stray dogs and with immense safety as instructed by the Government. In fact, they have taken permission from the Mumbai police to be able to go around the city for the same. In crucial times like these, when the horror of getting affected by the virus haunts everyone and keeps them indoors, he has shown immense courage and selflessness for the ones in need, who cannot even speak, and are often neglected.

When asked about the initiative, Manit shared: "Animals are as much a part of our society as we are! Domesticated animals have lived around humans all their lives and are mostly fed by them. In fact, dogs have forever been a man's best friend. However, the nationwide lockdown has rendered them confused, unfed, and thus, hungry and in this hour of need, I believe, we must show up for them. I'm so grateful that AMTM understood the cruciality of the situation and supported the cause. I wish we could do this on a larger scale, only if we were not victim to such critical situations."

The dog lover in Manit could not help but say: "It's our duty to look after these animals in the times of need. I would go bonkers if Bella (his dog) is subject to anything of this sort. Being the parent of my beautiful Irish Setter, Bella has taught me so much compassion and empathy. And I wish we all could have the same for the stray dogs who have always been around us. I do hope everybody is safe and staying indoors and is doing their bit to help the society in their own ways."

eponymously show, has often spoken about her love for reading. However, given her hectic shoot schedule, the actress never got enough time to do so. Now that the entire country is under lockdown, Meera finally gets to spend some quality time reading her favourite books and the ones that were on her wishlist.

During my free time at home, I am making the most of the opportunity and spending my time reading. The best part about reading books is that you always learn something new that you would have never known otherwise. I hope everyone's finding themselves while staying home and staying safe."

Timeless classics for lockdown

To beat COVID-19 blues and give a feel of the good old days, several shows like Ramayan, Mahabharat and Shaktimaan are being re-telecast. MUSBA HASHMI tells you why they are still in demand

The silver lining in the grey clouds of the Coronavirus pandemic is that it has brought families closer. So much so that DD National found it the right time to go back in time and bring back all the family dramas or to be precise classics that had people glued to their sets. Back in the 80s and 90s, it was an era when people would eagerly wait for their favourite shows. It was nothing short of a festivity and puja for some when they would do aarti of the TV sets as soon as Ramayan was aired.

From mythological shows like Ramayan and Mahabharat to fantasy ones like Alif Laila, to dramas like Circus to superheroes series like Shaktimaan, there's something for everyone to watch during this lockdown and keep them entertained.

Nitish Bhardwaj, who played Lord Krishna in Mahabharat, says that the reason why the millennials too are glued to their TV screens in the re-telecast of these shows is because of curiosity.

"The millennials are wondering why their parents were praising these serials so much, what is there that makes them stand out. This curiosity has attracted the attention of the younger generation towards the re-telecast," he says. Another reason is that the storyline is relevant even today and hence fresh. "The value systems and the drama of human relationships in these serials is relevant for all times. The human conflict and struggle has in fact increased over the last 30 years and this makes Mahabharat even more identifiable," Bhardwaj tells you. There is a difference, he says, in the shows that were made then and now. "People nowadays call their shows factory-line 'soaps' whereas our shows were and still are 'designer products' which cater to both classes and masses," he adds.

Mukesh Khanna, who played Shaktimaan says that good work remains good even if you watch it after 30 years down the line. "Gold will always remain gold, no matter after how long you dig it. That was a period of creativity. You name any show from those days and it is still as good. Shows now have lost essence. One reason for this may be the daily telecast," he says. He tells you that the re-telecast of these shows was next to impossible but now that it has happened, it is time to cheer up. "Back then,

Mahabharat used to come on TV, everyone was hooked to their screens and it looked like a curfew situation on the roads. Then with the emergence of more and more channels, the variety of content increased manifold. It looked impossible that these shows will ever come back because of the varied taste of the audience. I could have never imagined that there will be a time when the whole country will sit and watch Mahabharat or for that matter Shaktimaan again. But it happened and whoever cae up with this idea to relive the 90s should be appreciated.

This will not only beat the boredom of the 21-day lockdown but will also instill in people the value of relationships that was slowly being lost. Moreover, the younger generation will get a taste of their culture and tradition which is the need of the hour," Khanna tells you.

Khanna hopes that the re-telecast of such shows will bring about a change in the TV industry and that makers would now start coming up with concept that will stay relevant even after three decades years. "I hope that this change will come and the makers will realise that the audience wants something fresh but it will depend on how long the lockdown period stays. People have the tendency to forget what they learnt once they come out of that phase. People should stop repeating content and think of newer concepts. One track is copied by multiple shows and as a result, 80 per cent has low TRPs," he says.

Apart from the fact that technology has evolved, Khanna hasn't see any positive change in the TV industry. "All these years, I feel that TV has degraded a lot. Yes, not to mention there are a lot of people who are working extremely hard, the otherwise quality of things have degraded. People have started twisting history. They want to give a modern twist to everything which can't and shouldn't happen because then it doesn't showcase our culture. The essence gets lost. Not everything can be modernised especially mythological shows. This is the reason why many such shows failed to leave a mark," he says and gives a hint that the audience will get to see Shaktimaan Season 2, bigger and better soon.

Breathe@47

Amid the COVID-19 lockdown, rising cases and deaths, one thing that the citizens can take heart is the improved air quality index which is down to less than 50 in many parts of the country, a number that had stood at 222 a couple of months back in Delhi-NCR. SHALINI SAKSENA speaks with experts to tell you more

Back in the 70s, 80s and even 90s, there was a time when azure sky was a norm. Then everything changed. Globalisation opened doors and the almost empty roads and no traffic snarls soon became a thing of the past. Soon the air quality index was touching 1,000 and beyond and many people ended up with several breathing problems.

Cut to March 25, 2020. Clear blue skies, a smattering of stars in the night sky and a clear view of the Capital for miles end from the roof top without the usual haze is what Delhiites are waking up to since the lockdown. While the circumstances that have led to the present situation is extremely unfortunate given that the number of COVID-19 cases as of April 4, 2020 stands at 3,474 and deaths at 91, there are a few numbers that are falling and people can take heart from it and breathe easy due to improved air quality.

According to a data by SAFAR (March 30, 2020), the Capital has seen a reduction of 63 per cent in NOx and 49 per cent fall in PM2.5. Mumbai too witnessed a decrease in numbers — NOx 57 per cent down and PM2.5 down by 53 per cent, Pune: NOx stands at reduced percentage of 55 and PM2.5 at 38 per cent.

According to Anumita Roychoudhary, associate director general at the Centre for Science and Environment, the overall air pollution levels have dropped sharply after the lockdown because vehicles, factories, construction has stopped. "We don't want to depend on this kind of emergency to bring this change. But this crisis has proved that if health risk perception can provoke emergency response it can galvanise far reaching changes. Collective community action during this pandemic has forced us to reinvent solutions to reduce our vulnerability to toxic risk. We have made massive lifestyle adjustments to practice social distancing," Roychoudhary says.

She tells you that whether this crisis induced change can throw up long-term solutions to air pollution is a question that we need to address. This means that we have to make systemic changes to institutionalise some of the emergency responses in terms of maximising potential of digital world to alter the concept of workplace, scale up public transport options to reduce vehicle miles travelled and personal vehicle numbers, roll out electric mobility to move towards zero emissions, ensure zero tolerance for non-compliance with emissions control regulations and standards, among others, only then post pandemic period can gain from this short term breather from emergency action.

"Health risk associated with the ongoing air pollution problem also needs emergency response. There are concerns that during post pandemic period, it will be business as usual and pollution will go out of control once again. But people need to understand that air pollution kills 1.2 million people and makes many more ill annually. This requires similar emergency response and public support for strong action. This pandemic has also brought to light the evidence that air pollution increases vulnerability to pandemic because poor air pollution has already compromised lungs and overall health of people. It is important to deepen awareness and public understanding of this connection and overall health risk associated with air pollution to build the momentum for hard action. We need strong and sustained action across regions and give our national clean air programme effective teeth," Roychoudhary says.

Environmentalist BS Vohra tells you that the reduced AQI levels has one message to give. "It was all manmade. It was our fault that we allowed polluted industries to function and we allowed vehicular pollution to reach levels that people in Delhi were choked. Nature has given us a strong message — when we try and correct the wrong — when we stop things that create pollution — things change for the better," Vohra says.

Also, there is now no scope of ambiguity. "Today, we know the exact reason for the high AQI levels. Earlier, there were many studies that threw up different reading on what was contributing to the air pollution. Now, we know the real reason. We are being told that the mistake was ours and we need to take corrective action," Vohra tells you.

He paints a dismal picture if we don't learn the lesson this lockdown has taught us. "First, the lockdown was not something that human did to combat air pollution. It was forced due to COVID-19. The improved AQI doesn't mean man has done something. If the virus has not been there, things would be as it was before. There would have been no improvement in AQI levels. Second, there is going to be no long-term impact. If today, the lockdown is opened, it would not take more than a fortnight for things to be back to what they were. The AQI is going to shoot up once again if we allow the industries to work at the same pace and just as many vehicles to ply on the roads," Vohra says.

Dr Gufran Beig, chief project scientist, System of Air Quality and Weather Forecasting And Research (SAFAR) at the Indian Institute of Tropical Meteorology tells you that they have put up data of the last two years to compare the NOx levels and PM 2.5 in the four SAFAR cities —

PEOPLE NEED TO UNDERSTAND THAT AIR POLLUTION KILLS 1.2 MILLION PEOPLE AND MAKES MANY MORE ILL ANNUALLY. THIS REQUIRES SIMILAR EMERGENCY RESPONSE. THIS PANDEMIC HAS ALSO BROUGHT TO LIGHT THE EVIDENCE THAT AIR POLLUTION INCREASES VULNERABILITY TO PANDEMIC BECAUSE POOR AIR HAS ALREADY COMPROMISED LUNGS AND OVERALL HEALTH OF PEOPLE — ANUMITA ROYCHOUHARY

Delhi, Mumbai, Pune and Ahmedabad. "This lockdown has given us chance to validate inventory emission levels. Once we are back to normal, we will be in a position to combat pollution levels. It is unfortunate that COVID-19 has forced this situation on us but it has made it possible for us to correct the earlier findings and provided us an opportunity to set our priorities right for the future," Beig explains. Besides the AQI, another pressing question staring at us is whether this will have an impact on the climate. Beig tells you that when one studies climate, one looks at a long-term impact. He tells you that it is early days but some ongoing international studies suggest that there may be changes. "Some changes are taking place in the air circulation leading to faster recovery of the ozone layer in the upper atmosphere. But these are early days to reach any concrete conclusions for now," Beig says.

Prarthana Borah, India director, Clean Air Asia, that propagates reduced economic activity as a strategy for reduced air pollution, tells you that what is encouraging is that sectors will now think of reorganising activities to benefit air quality and use new technology like virtual platforms to replace existing ways of work, travel and conducting business which may lead to a positive impact on air quality.

"We don't need something as drastic as the fear of death from a pandemic caused by a virus as a solution to air pollution. We must try to understand that while air quality has improved it has improved due to the complete absence of economic activity be it traffic -- road, rail, air, stopping of construction and industry and any other polluting activity. This can never have a long-term impact as we can't envisage a world of no economic activity. In the last week, PM2.5 was as low as 35 and PM 10 between 55 and 70. This means while it is not as good as the WHO standards, we are capable of having a baseline that meets the national ambient AQ standards. This will guide the process of targets we need to set for ourselves with increased economic activity and how much of this increase matches with achieving the 20-30 per cent decrease in air pollution levels we want to achieve," Borah opines.

She tells you that it is easy to maintain the present AQI levels once things are back to normal. "What we need is to figure out the right way to reduce our negative impact on the environment. For this we need regulations that limit our activities. We need to set targets and then work on restricting or improving economic activity by introducing the right technologies that will continue to restrict air pollution. Once these quantitative figures are in place it will be easier to work on developmental work that prioritise clean air targets. However, there is also a danger that priorities post COVID-19 will be different and many other pressing issues like air pollution and climate change may take a back seat. We can already see this in the postponement of the 2020 COP Climate talks. The same may be with air as cities will be battling with COVID-19 recovery and it may take some time for them to start talking about air," Borah says.

The lockdown has left its mark on wildlife as well. There are several videos on social media doing the rounds where people have filmed a civet in Kerala, deer in Haridwar, Nilgai roaming the deserted streets of Noida, leopard spotted in Chandigarh and a pod of dolphins spotted along the seashores of Mumbai. There are many who believe that since humans are now confined to their homes, this is Nature's way of claiming what was its territory.

According to Dr Ravi Chellam, CEO, Metastring Foundation & director of Mission Secretariat, National Mission on Biodiversity and Human Well-being, this is one of way of viewing it.

"It does tell us about the remarkable resilience of Nature to come back if we give it the slimmest of opportunity. It is time that we humans recognise, accept and work with the fact that we are part of Nature and it is the foundation for our existence and development. There is a price to pay for destroying Nature and the cost will always be higher than any projected economic benefit. Even places like Chernobyl which was abandoned after the nuclear disaster became a thriving wildlife habitat. Nature is very resilient and when given an opportunity it would try to re-colonise and make a comeback," Chellam says.

Pawan Sharma, founder of Resqink Association for Wildlife Welfare, based out of Mumbai agrees with Chellam and tells you that one can say that is partially true that Nature's way to take back what was rightly its.

"There is need to co-exist with the animals. Till now they co-existed with us, now it is our turn to give back. What we are witnessing that had led to the lockdown is the damage human intervention can do. Nature has its way to balance itself out. We had only read it in books but today we are living it. It is time to slow down. In our quest to develop we are destroying Nature but development and conservation needs to go hand-in-hand. Animals don't understand manmade boundaries. Man has encroached on their habitat and damaged it. Since there is no disturbance now, animals are curious and are out exploring,"

Sharma says.

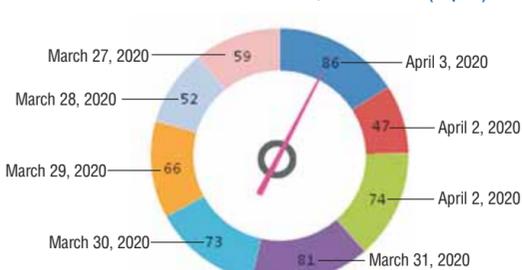

Chellam is quick to point out that reports of wild animals roaming the streets need to be viewed in the right perspective. "Even before the lockdown it was not unusual to see lions, leopards, elephants, gaur, rhino, many species of deer and antelopes including nilgai and black-buck, many other smaller mammals like jackals, mongoose, many reptile species including monitor lizards, different species of snakes, many species of birds including large ones like Sarus cranes, either on or by Indian roads. These sightings were when things were normal. With the lockdown, human presence and disturbance has gone down drastically and hence we are getting to see these animals much more frequently and also more often during day time," Chellam explains. There are several reasons why these animals are in the cities to begin with.

First, many of these animals live around cities and their habitat may be fragmented by the city and hence they would be using the city for passage from one part of their habitat to another which would have been difficult when there was traffic and human presence. It should not be forgotten that it is we humans who have settled in wildlife habitats and in some sense, we are the intruders and not the animals. Second, could be that the city offers resources, primarily food (mostly in the form of garbage and food plants in our gardens and parks), domestic animals including dogs and pigs and water. It is also important to understand that these animals haven't settled in the urban areas. They are only using it for some time.

Chellam sees a way forward. "It is absolutely crucial that humanity learns the right collective lessons from this pandemic. It would be a huge mistake to revert to business as usual once the worst of the pandemic is over or a vaccine is developed. If we continue to develop in ways that destroy Nature and pollute the environment and without compassion for all fellow human beings, such tragedies are only bound to be repeated. We have to recognise that we live in an inter-connected world not just with citizens of other countries but equally if not more importantly with Nature and all species that occur in the wild. We need to completely re-prioritise and invest more in restoration of Nature and functional ecosystems, basic but very essential needs of all people like health, sanitation, adequate nutrition, safe housing and education instead of grandiose infrastructure projects and the military. The re-prioritised development model will enable much greater levels of equity, much more sustainable development and build resilience," he tells you.

FIFA postpone U-17 Women's WC in India

The FIFA Under-17 Women's World Cup to be held in India in November was on Saturday postponed by football's governing body due to the worsening COVID-19 pandemic across the globe.

The women's age group showpiece was to be held at five venues in the country — Kolkata, Guwahati, Bhubaneswar, Ahmedabad and Navi Mumbai — from November 2-21.

The tournament was to be competed among 16 teams, with hosts India being automatic qualifiers. It was to be India's maiden appearance in the U-17 Women's World Cup.

The decision was taken by the FIFA-Confederations working group which was recently established by the Bureau of the FIFA Council to address the consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The working group recommended the Bureau of FIFA Council to "postpone the FIFA Under-20 Women's World Cup Panama/Costa Rica 2020 — originally scheduled for August/September 2020 — and the FIFA Under-17 Women's World Cup India 2020 — originally scheduled for November 2020."

"New dates will be identified," FIFA said in a statement.

It was also decided "to create a sub-working group on the women's international match calendar to consider potential changes to the calendar and dates of postponed FIFA final tournaments."

The All India Football Federation said the postponement was on expected lines.

"Just like other sports events which were postponed due to this dreaded disease, it (postponement of U-17 World Cup) was to happen. We have to accept the decision," AIFF General Secretary Kushal Das said. "The qualifying events in Europe and Africa and other confederations are yet to be held and so the decision was on expected lines."

Precious Uzoaru Dede instructs Indian goalkeeper during team's practice session

He said the tournament will most likely be held next year.

The working group of the world body which took the decision includes the FIFA administration and Secretary Generals and top executives from all confederations.

It unanimously approved a series of recommendations following its first meeting, which was organised via conference late on Friday.

While the tournament itself is five months away but only the qualifying event for Asia has been held so far from which from which Japan and North Korea have made the cut.

Five remaining qualifying events — that of Africa, Europe, Oceania, South America, and Central, North America and Caribbean — have not been held due to the global health crisis which has affected more than a million people.

The official schedule of the tournament was announced in February and Navi Mumbai was to host the final.

The Local Organising Committee (LOC) said it supported the decision though it was looking forward to host the tournament in November as scheduled.

"We agree that this has been made with the highest regard for public health, and the participating teams, host cities, staff and visiting

'Tough decision to shelve, but in best interest'

KOLKATA: The postponement of the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup will not derail preparations for the tournament as the country is still committed to "delivering a memorable" meet whenever it is possible, Roma Khanna, the tournament director of Local Organising Committee, said. "We were, of course, looking forward to the tournament but everyone understands the current situation and has been supportive," Roma said.

"The fact that three of the venues (Kolkata, Navi Mumbai, Guwahati) have already hosted a FIFA tournament in the past helps and the other venues seem on track. Everyone is committed to ensuring that this does not impact us much and we move ahead with our planning and deliver a memorable U-17 Women's World Cup in India," she said.

She added that the LOC will work with FIFA to chalk out alternate dates best suited to host the tournament in India which has previously hosted the U-17 Men's World Cup which was won by England.

"We shall work with FIFA to look at alternate dates best suited to host the tournament in India. At present, in collaboration with FIFA, the Ministry of Sports and Youth Affairs, the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare and Hosting States, national and international health authorities, we are constantly monitoring the situation regarding COVID-19 in India."

"We are in regular touch with FIFA and all the other concerned stakeholders. Three of the venues (Guwahati, Kolkata and Navi Mumbai) hosted the FIFA U-17 World Cup in 2017 and already meet that there is no threat to people's health due to this pandemic."

The LOC said it will continue to provide full support to FIFA on all matters and look forward to hosting a successful tournament in the near future.

In other decisions, the working group recommended "to postpone the majority of FIFA requirements. The two new venues, Ahmedabad and Bhubaneswar, also have the basic infrastructure ready. We also already had one round of FIFA inspections in November at all five of these venues, which went really well.

"It is a tough decision but it is in the best interest of everyone especially the players. As I have said before, the safety of the players, fans and all the other stakeholders is of utmost importance to us. We look forward to hosting a spectacular FIFA U-17 Women's WC in the near future," she concluded.

international matches due to be played during the upcoming June 2020 window; and to organise bilateral discussions with confederations concerning 2022 FIFA World Cup qualifiers in order to finalise a revised match schedule pending health and safety developments."

England cricketers volunteer salary reduction

England cricketers volunteer salary reduction

LONDON (AFP): England cricketers, both men and women, have volunteered pay cuts and donated 500,000 pounds as contribution towards the fight against the COVID-19 pandemic.

The cricketers' gesture comes after the England and Wales Cricket Board had proposed a 20 percent cut in the players' salaries. The ECB was waiting for a response from the representatives of the Professional Cricketers' Association.

The donation of 500,000 pounds is equivalent to a 20 percent reduction in the salaries of men's cricketers while the women volunteered for a pay cut in their April, May and June salaries.

"Following a meeting of all of the England men's centrally contracted cricketers, the players have agreed to make an initial donation of £0.5m to the ECB and to selected good causes," read a statement from the players.

"The precise details of the charitable donation will be decided over the next week by the players. This contribution is the equivalent of all of the England centrally contracted players taking a 20% reduction in their monthly retainers for the next three months."

Cummins glad being vice-captain under Paine

MELBOURNE: Australia fast bowler Pat Cummins feels nice about skipper Tim Paine rating him as one of the contenders for future Test captaincy but says the topic is just a moot point as the wicket-keeper is still playing.

Discussions about who should lead Australia whenever the 35-year-old Paine retires are ongoing. Former captain Steve Smith's leadership ban has also expired.

Earlier this week, Paine named Smith, Cummins, Travis Head, Alex Carey and Marnus Labuschagne among those who could take up the captaincy.

Former skipper Michael Clarke has long been pushing for Cummins — the current vice-captain — to lead the national side.

"It's nice to hear, (I) don't think it makes me want it more or less. I'm glad being a vice-captain underneath him that I get that nod. He's brilliant," Cummins was quoted as saying by cricket.Com.Au.

"Like I've said a hundred times before, I kind of feel it's not quite right talking about captaincy now when we've got someone like Paine and Finchy (limited-overs captain Aaron Finch) doing great jobs. We'll see down the track, but at the moment it's bit of a moot point."

The 26-year-old Cummins, who has taken 143 wickets from 30 Tests since making his debut in 2011, is expected to top Cricket Australia's contract list for 2020-21 whenever it is announced, underlining his importance in Justin Langer's team.

The 26-year-old has become the most resilient member of the attack after an injury-plagued start to his career. He was appointed one of Paine's deputies last year, but currently has no captaincy experience at the domestic level. "In the perfect world, your first experience of being captain — say Australian captain, you've (already) had quite a bit of experience leading and you know exactly what it entails," he said.

"But things don't always work out as exactly as you planned."

KP proposes condensed IPL without fans

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The COVID-19 pandemic may have indefinitely stalled all sporting activities but former England captain Kevin Pietersen still "truly believes" the 13th edition of IPL should happen the moment there is a window of opportunity.

He proposed a "condensed" league behind closed doors for one of cricket's biggest money-spinners, adding the fans shouldn't be risked.

"Let's say July/August is the earliest, I do truly believe the IPL should happen. I do believe it is the kick-start to the cricket season. I think every single player around the world is desperate to play the IPL," Pietersen said.

The former star batsman expressed his thoughts on Star Sports show Cricket Connected.

The IPL is important not just for players and franchises, but also for the people working behind the scenes, and this was not lost on Pietersen.

"There could be a way in

Kevin Pietersen in conversation with Sanjay Manjrekar and Scott Styris during Star Sports Cricket Connected show on Saturday

which to get some money into the franchises, into the economy by having a situation where you use maybe three venues which are completely closed to fans and the players can still go out and play the tournament in three weeks or in four weeks.

"So, it's a more condensed tournament in three venues which we know are safe, which we know are secure," he said.

Agreeing with Pietersen, former India batsman Sanjay Manjrekar spoke on the impor-importance of organising the IPL.

"The moment we get clearances from all the authorities that matter, the IPL should happen, only because it will kick start the economy because when you talk about the IPL it's not just about the Mumbai Indians, or a Dhoni or a Virat Kohli, there are a lot of people who are making their livelihood through the IPL," he said.

Recently, Rajasthan Royals' executive chairman Manoj Badale had said that a "short-

BCCI in constant touch with foreign Boards

NEW DELHI: Even as the fate of the 13th edition of the IPL hangs in balance, both BCCI as well as the IPL franchises are keeping fingers crossed in order to have a full season of the cash-rich league. And a major player in this scenario is the foreign boards as an IPL without the foreign players wouldn't be the carnival it is. So, even as the country fights the pandemic, BCCI has been keeping foreign boards in the loop with regards to developments.

Speaking about it, a BCCI official said that the foreign boards like Cricket Australia or the ECB and Cricket South Africa among others have all been constantly updated on the scenario and the directives of the government with regards to fighting COVID-19.

"While various options have been discussed like a closed-door tournament, or a curtailed one, it is almost clear that everyone wants foreign players to be a part of the IPL and that is one of the major highlights of the tournament. So, we have been constantly updating the boards of the situation here and the directives that are being issued by the health department as well as the government in the fight against coronavirus.

"In fact, it is a two-way process as international border lockdown is also an aspect that needs to be kept in mind because at the end of the day whenever the IPL does happen, the foreign players need to fly in," the official pointed.

ened" IPL couldn't be ruled out, provided the BCCI and its other stakeholders are on the same page.

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Former all-rounder Tom Moody on Saturday picked India's Rohit Sharma and fellow Australian David Warner as best opening batsmen in T20 cricket.

Moody is also a well-known coach and commentator.

In a question and answer session, the 54-year-old also picked Chennai Super Kings as his favourite IPL team and M S

Dhoni favourite captain.

"Tough call, but I would be more than happy with @davidwarner31 and @lmRo45 (Rohit)," Moody wrote on his Twitter page when asked about the best opening batsmen in T20s.

There is abundance of cricketers in India but amongst the emerging ones, Moody feels Shubman Gill "stands out". Gill has played two ODIs for India and has also made the Test team but is yet to get a game.

Moody, who has coached multiple IPL teams, believes New Zealand skipper Kane Williamson is blessed with the best cricketing brain and Ravindra Jadeja is his favourite Indian fielder.

Asked about his favourite Indian cricketer, Moody picked skipper Virat Kohli.

Stay indoors and fight battle for your country: Pujara

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Battling long comes naturally to Cheteshwar Pujara and now he wants his fellow Indians to do the same by staying at home as "the battle against the COVID-19 pandemic can only be won by being indoors".

Pujara was one of the elite Indian sportspersons who attended the video call held by Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Friday to discuss ways to fight the coronavirus.

"The Prime Minister wanted us to pass on the fighting spirit of a sportsperson to the general public. Sportspersons do inspire to fight," Pujara said.

"Every single person is a soldier at the moment. If you stay indoors, you are fighting the battle for your own country. There has to be a collective effort else we can't win this," said India's Test batting mainstay.

After helping Saurashtra win their maiden Ranji Trophy title last month, little did he know that he would be spending all his time at home. Pujara is enjoying the "forced" break and most of his time goes into entertaining his two-year-old daughter.

The closest he has got to a "hit in the nets" is by playing with a plastic bat.

But a gym at home means he is not compromising on his fitness.

"I usually take everything in a positive way. Sometimes you need to take a break as a sportsperson and there can't be a better time. We just won the Ranji and it is the right time to take three to four weeks off.

"Luckily I have a gym at home. With gym, I can still do my strength sessions, cycling and running. I also do yoga which helps a lot," said Pujara.

He was supposed to play county cricket in the UK but that too has been postponed at least till May 28 and faces a cancellation.

Considering the current circumstances, Pujara might have to wait till the Australia tour starting November to play his first competitive game since the Ranji Trophy final. But he is prepared for any eventuality.

"I would still have some first-class games before the Australia tour. I am prepared for anything. This is the time when we can't just be thinking about sporting events. First, we have to win this battle against coronavirus," he said.

"We just need to make sure the virus is contained and things get back to normal. After that we can talk about the game."

PCB want to host ICC event to cover losses

PTI ■ KARACHI

The Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB) want the International Cricket Council (ICC) to award them the hosting rights of a major event in lieu of the financial losses suffered due to India's refusal to play a bilateral series against them.

PCB Chief Executive Wasim Khan asserted that Pakistan is prepared to host a major ICC event sometime in 2023.

"I don't think hosting international cricket is now such a big issue for Pakistan as the security situation has improved now," Khan said.

"The fact that we have logistically hosted the entire Pakistan Super League in Pakistan and also teams like Sri Lanka and Bangladesh for Test matches besides other smaller events and series shows we are capable of hosting a big ICC event."

Khan said that if Pakistan gets a major ICC event it would make sense as it has suffered lot of financial losses due to India's refusal to play matches in India or Pakistan for some years now and also because there appears to be no chance of any Indo-Pakistan series taking place in the near future.

"There appears to be little chance of India and Pakistan playing and we have already suffered losses in millions of dollars."

He said that the chief executives

No salary cut for Pak players

LAHORE: The world has come to a standstill due to the coronavirus outbreak and that has led to all sporting events across the globe either being cancelled or suspended. While federations have started asking sportspersons to take pay cuts, the Pakistan Cricket Board just like BCCI has made it clear that there will be no pay cuts at present.

A PCB official said that while the current situation is being monitored, there will be no pay cuts in the current financial year which runs till June 30 for the Pakistan board.

"Our financial year runs from July 1 to June 30. All player contracts (central and domestic) are till 30 June. There will be no salary cuts in the 2019-20 financial year. We have put in place systems to ensure that monthly salaries are paid on time and without delay. The PCB is monitoring the situation in the country closely as it evolves and will amend its policy when appropriate," the official said.

of cricket Boards will have a video conference with the ICC to discuss World T20 Cup, Asia Cup and World Test Championship.

"There is no doubt that because of the coronavirus pandemic every board is facing a big challenge to reduce their financial losses as much as they can. We are all in the same boat. We have similar interests. When this conference is held we will be discussing future measures."

Khan said the aim is to prepare an alternate plan whenever cricket resumes.

Dhoni leads Jaffer's all-time ODI XI

NEW DELHI: Former India opener Wasim Jaffer has picked M.S. Dhoni as captain of his all-time ODI XI.

Jaffer had recently revealed that all Dhoni wanted when he started off was to make ₹30 lakh and live peacefully in Ranchi. However, the veteran wicketkeeper-batsman went on to play 90 Tests, 350 ODIs, and 98 T20Is for India captaining the team to the 2007 T20 World Cup and 2011 50-over World Cup and is touted to be the most successful captain to lead the Men in Blue.

In his all-time ODI team, Jaffer picked four Indian batsmen — Sachin Tendulkar, Rohit Sharma, Virat Kohli and Dhoni who was also chosen as wicketkeeper. However, no Indian bowler could make a cut to Jaffer's team.

Jaffer, who recently retired from all forms of cricket, also picked West Indies legend Sir Vivian Richards, South Africa's AB de Villiers and 2019 World Cup hero Ben Stokes in the batting line-up.

Jaffer picked Wasim Akram as the all-rounder, Shane Warne or Saqlain Mushtaq as his spinner, West Indies seamer Joel Garner and Australia legend Glenn McGrath as his pacers.

The 42-year-old, surprisingly, picked Australia's two-time World Cup winning captain Ricky Ponting as the 12th man.

Verma prepares to maintain form, focus till 2021 Olympics

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Ace pistol shooter Abhishek Verma says maintaining focus and form till the Tokyo Olympics, postponed to next year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, will be a huge challenge, but one that he is equipped to take on.

The ongoing nationwide lockdown has halted training schedules of all the sports persons.

And the ensuing postponement of the quadrennial Games may threaten to disturb his focus a bit.

"Hitting the peak and then maintaining it, maintaining my concentration and focus is going to be challenging. Though it gives us more time but one year is a lot of time," two-time World

Cup Gold medalist Verma said.

The 30-year-old Verma is confined to his home in Chandigarh at the moment, but his mind is in a Gurgaon paying guesthouse, where his training tools, including SCATT, are awaiting his return from what was supposed to be a short two-three-day trip to his parents' place.

SCATT is an advanced equipment, involving sensors, and used by top shooters to keep track of their progress while training both indoors and outdoors.

The lockdown meant compromise with his training. He is happy to be home but for a shooter who prefers to practice through the year, Verma is finding spending time without his equipment "odd".

"Hitting the peak and then maintaining it, maintaining my concentration and focus is going to be challenging. Though it gives us more time but one year is a lot of time"

"I like to practice 365 days a year but right now I am able to do only dry practice. When I came home, the plan was to only stay for two-three days, but then the lockdown was announced and I got stuck here. But there is no other way at the moment given the situation. I can only hope that things normalise and I am able to go back and start practising again.

"Definitely, it will be different now that the Olympics have been postponed. It's not easy to maintain the focus and form. So I will concentrate on maintaining my form and focus till the Games," the double World Cup Gold medalist said.

In the absence of his key equipment, Verma's training is restricted to dry practice, simulation, exercises, yoga and meditation.

Verma had secured an Olympic quota place by winning the 10m air pistol Gold medal at the Beijing World Cup in April last year, before winning another yellow medal in the same event at the Rio World Cup in August-September.

Rai builds muscles to retain shape for his third Oly

PTI ■ KOLKATA

Amid the nationwide lockdown, veteran Indian archer Tarundeep Rai is busy building shoulder muscles at the Army Sports Institute in Pune, which he believes will keep him in shape for Tokyo Olympics.

The postponement of the Tokyo Games was a bitter pill to swallow for the two-time World Championship Silver medalist as he will get one year older when he takes the field for his third Olympics.

"For me, the postponement of Olympics means I will get older by one year, so it will be a new challenge," the 36-year-old said.

He has been forced to change his training due to the worsening COVID-19 pandemic and his daily routine now is to search YouTube for videos on "how to build shoulder muscles" and train at the gym for long hours.

"It's a big risk to go to the trainers, so YouTube is the constant company now. I follow some channels and pick some videos," Rai, who competed in 2004 Athens Olympics and 2012 London Games, said.

"Now I'm not shooting that much. It's more of dry shooting practice so that the body is tuned to bow and arrows," the 2010 Asian Games individual Silver medalist said.

Rai, along with India number one Atanu Das and his Army colleague Pravin Jadhav, had clinched quota place for the men's team while winning a Silver at the World Championships at Den Bosch in the Netherlands last year.

The trio was placed in the top-three in the trials to pick the Indian squad for Tokyo Games when the COVID-19 pandemic brought to a halt to all the sporting activities.

"No doubt I've a bit ahead in terms of experience, but the real challenge will be to stay fit and compete with the rising young talents. In this one year, many 20 to 22-year-olds will come up and compete for a place in the team. I think by building shoulder muscles, I will be able to withstand the challenges ahead," he said.

Rai hopes the current situation will normalise in about three months and when the season resumes, he will again pick up his bow and arrows.

"I estimate an off-season of minimum six months due to the extraordinary circumstances. So, I will work hard at the gym for three months and then recovery will follow. It would help me personally. I've made my schedule that way."

He said one positive aspect of the postponement of Tokyo Games is that India's chances of winning an elusive Olympic medal in archery will improve.

"But there's a positive side to it (postponement). There will be competition and we will make a strong team for the Olympics and hopefully the women's team will also qualify, giving us good hope for a medal next year," he said.

SAI, HI officials draw plans for next 16 months

NEW DELHI (PTI) The Sports Authority of India on Saturday held a meeting with Hockey India officials and national team coaches via a video conference and drew a roadmap for the next 16 months leading up to the Tokyo Olympics.

SAI plans to hold meetings with presidents, secretary generals, high performance directors, head coaches and chief executives of all National Sports Federations to reassess their long-term plans, qualification scenarios and strategies to align with the Olympics.

In that direction, SAI director general Sandip Pradhan and other officials held a meeting with Hockey India representatives, which included its chief executive officer, executive director, high performance director David John and the men's and women's teams' chief coaches, Graham Reid and Sjoerd Marijne.

Various modalities pertaining to the sport, including the teams' training, domestic competition structure and foreign exposure, were discussed.

According to a statement from the SAI, a number of viable solutions and alternatives to the earlier planned strategy were deliberated upon in view of the ongoing lockdown.

Also discussed were options such as training under quarantine (physical and psychological aspects) and possible restricted cross-border movement once the lockdown is lifted.

The men's team chief coach Reid expressed confidence about their Olympic preparations.

"We had a very productive meeting and discussed the planning process for the next 16 months. We informed SAI that the team and staff are being well cared for, while in strict quarantine," Reid said.

"We discussed various scenarios and await decisions as to when we can re-start full training. We also agreed to remain as flexible as possible with the aim of being ready to go as soon as international competition recommences."

National women's team chief coach Marijne agreed with Reid and said the meeting was a very productive one.

"We had a positive discussion about the state of affairs and we indicated our preferences once the situation improves and as soon as more is known about the possibilities in the future.

"We also mentioned about our preference about players staying in national camps during domestic tournaments in order to avoid injuries in the lead up to the Olympics next year," the Spanish coach said.

"I particularly liked the pro-activeness of SAI and Hockey India and I am very optimistic about our preparations for the Tokyo Olympics. I think it is good that we are thinking about the positives and way forward."

Akram, Gough raise funds to fight pandemic

PTI ■ LONDON

Renowned cricketers Wasim Akram and Darren Gough have joined other sporting greats such as Jack Nicklaus and Michael Phelps in auctioning their items of memorabilia and help raise funds for the fight against the COVID-19 pandemic. Legendary Pakistani fast bowler Akram and England's former star pacer Gough are among the latest cricketing personalities attempting to combat the challenges posed by the unprecedented global health crisis.

According to athletesrelief.Org, Gough and Akram have promised items of memorabilia to be auctioned on behalf of the Centre for Disaster Philanthropy who have set up a COVID-19 Response Fund. Akram, Pakistan's highest wicket-taker in both Test and ODI cricket, has pledged a signed bat and ball while Gough, England's second-highest wicket-taker in ODI cricket, has pledged a signed ball.

While Akram's bat and ball have raised $150, Gough's signed ball has attracted $50.

Stars from other sports involved in the fundraising include Nicklaus, Mike Tyson, Nick Faldo, Rory McIlroy, Martina Hingis, Stephen Curry and Phelps, among others.

Multiple Olympic Gold medalist America swimmer Phelps, whose signed swimsuit has helped raised $1490, said, "In order to give back during this challenging time, I am donating a 'game worn' suit cap and goggles to athletesrelief.Org."

At $41350 for his signed football, former American National Football League (NFL) star Rob Gronkowski raised the maximum amount.

Akram and Gough joined a long list of cricketers who have made efforts to help out during the crisis, including Jos Buttler, who is auctioning the shirt he was wearing when England won the World Cup last year.

England women's captain Heather Knight have signed up as NHS volunteer, while Sam Curran has launched a fundraising campaign.

Belgian federation in UEFA talks over end to its season

AFP ■ BRUSSELS

The Belgian Football Association (URBSFA) announced on Saturday that it is working with UEFA toward a "constructive" solution regarding the premature end to the Belgian championship.

On Thursday, the Belgian Pro League recommended that the season be declared finished due to the coronavirus pandemic with the present table accepted as final. It became the first European league to propose such a measure, though others could follow.

On Friday, the governing body of European football (UEFA), in a joint statement with the European Club Association and the European Leagues, warned that "abandoning domestic competitions is, at this stage, premature and not justified".

UEFA threatened to ban all teams from European competitions next season if they did not complete their league season.

The URBSFA released a statement on Saturday saying that its president, Mehdi Bayat, had spoken to the president of the governing body of European football, Aleksander Ceferin.

The statement did not specify the nature of this "jointly" negotiated solution, saying only that the Belgian association would present the UEFA executive committee with its "recommendations for stopping its championship".

The Pro League board's voted unanimously on Thursday to advise its general assembly not to resume the 2019-2020 first division championship.

Club Brugge, who are 15 points clear with 11 matches to play, would become Belgian champions.

The AGM is expected to ratify this decision on 15 April but its board will present the proposal to UEFA's executive committee.

The Belgian federation, which will also present its recommendations and aims to "preserve Belgium's European places in the 2020-2021 season", said the statement.

The statement also reminded UEFA that it had called for solidarity within European football during the coronavirus crisis and said Bayat had "advocated a flexible approach to this concept, which allows the specific circumstances of each league to be taken into account."

'L'pool deserve to be given PL title'

IANIS ■ LONDON

Former Manchester United striker Dimitar Berbatov said that the 2019/20 Premier League title should be awarded to arch-rivals Liverpool if the season cannot get underway.

The Premier League is currently under indefinite suspension as the United Kingdom grapples with the coronavirus pandemic. Liverpool were hurtling towards a first league title in three decades before the suspension and have a 25-point lead at the top of the table with nine games left. They hence need two more wins to confirm the title.

"People are suggesting to give the title to Liverpool, and honestly they deserve it the way they had been playing, nobody was going to catch them," Berbatov, who scored 56 goals in four seasons at United told Betfair.

"With the way they play their games, the football they produced and how far they are in front, they fully deserve the title this season."

The Premier League said in a statement on Friday that it is looking to finish the remaining league and cup matches. However, any return "will only be with the full support of the Government and when medical guidance allows."

Casemiro not thinking about winning La Liga

IANIS ■ RIO DE JANEIRO

Real Madrid's Brazilian midfielder Casemiro has said that he is not thinking about winning the Champions League or La Liga titles this season as the world grapples with the coronavirus outbreak.

In a video call with young fans, coordinated by global charity Save The Children, Casemiro said on Friday that football paled into insignificance compared to the pandemic, which has claimed the lives of more than 60K people worldwide.

"Do we want to win the league? We definitely want to win La Liga and we want to win the Champions League," the 28-year-old said.

"But I'm not thinking about winning La Liga, I'm thinking about winning the fight against the coronavirus. I think if everyone does their part, that's the most important thing. It's a tough time for everyone. We need to win the match against the coronavirus."

Real Madrid are currently second in Spain's La Liga

standings, two points behind leaders Barcelona with 11 matches remaining in the season.

Zinedine Zidane's men are due to meet Manchester City in the second leg of their Champions League round of 16 tie, having lost the first encounter 2-1 at the Bernabeu.

All major football competitions in Europe have been suspended indefinitely as part of efforts to stop the spread of the virus.

"It's a difficult time for everybody," Casemiro said. "We have to do our part by staying at home. Everyone has to help out and follow the rules," he added.

Anand, Humpy to play online exhibition event to raise funds

CHENNAI: Former world champion Viswanathan Anand and five other leading Indian players will compete in an online chess exhibition on April 11 to raise funds for country's fight against COVID-19.

The Indians will take on players from across the world on the portal chess.com.

CONCACAF Nations League finals postponed

AFP ■ MIAMI

The CONCACAF Nations League finals scheduled to be staged in Texas in June have been postponed indefinitely due to the coronavirus pandemic, the region's governing body said.

CONCACAF, the ruling body for football in North America, Central America and the Caribbean, said the four-team finals would take place at a date to be determined.

The finals had been scheduled for June 4 and June 7 in Houston and Dallas.

been due to take part in the finals.

"As we continue to assess our competitions scheduled to be played in the coming months, the welfare of everyone involved in football across our region remains our first priority," CONCACAF said in a statement.

"Given the ongoing public health situation, and following consultation with FIFA regarding the international football calendar, we have made the decision to suspend the CONCACAF Nations League Finals."

Costa Rica, Honduras, Mexico and the United States had been due to take part in the finals.

Langer backs cricket behind closed doors

AFP ■ LONDON

Australia coach Justin Langer believes resuming cricket behind closed doors when it is safe to do so will have "great value" for the public, deprived of action by the coronavirus shutdown.

Like almost the entire sporting schedule around the world, cricket has been halted by the pandemic, with no return date set in stone.

One of the options being mooted is to have the sport resume after restrictions have been lifted, but in empty stadiums.

"When you started off playing cricket, when you were under age, there's no crowds there," he told BBC Radio.

"You played it because you loved playing the game, you loved playing with your mates and you loved playing the game."

"For the love of the game, and for still being able to entertain people through TV sets or radio, then there's value in (playing behind closed doors)."

"Yes it's different, but we'll never, ever, ever take for granted how lucky we are ever again."

Thailand, Malaysia banned from weightlifting at Tokyo Olympics

IANIS ■ BUDAPEST

Thailand and Malaysia have been banned from sending weightlifters to the Tokyo Olympics. The International Weightlifting Federation said in its statement on Saturday that the Thai Amateur Weightlifting Association (TAWA) has been suspended for three years, while the Malaysian Weightlifting Federation (MWF) has been given a one-year ban.

In its decision, the Independent Member Federation Sanctions Panel (IMFSP), which issued the bans to the two federations, said the bans would apply whenever the Games take place.

Additionally, the Thai federation has also been fined $200,000, half of which "shall be used by IWF to offset IWF costs already incurred in connection with the TAWA matter and for additional IWF testing of TAWA athletes", the panel said.

The Thailand federation had already withdrawn from the Tokyo Olympics voluntarily after nine of its weightlifters were caught for doping violations at the 2018 World Championships.

The IMFSP said that both the TAWA and MWF were informed of the bans on Wednesday and have 21 days to appeal in the Court of Arbitration for Sport (CAS).

The two countries thus join Egypt in being banned from the Olympics while Colombia and Romania await their decisions.

'Negative roles were for brilliant actors'

Talktime
KAY KAY MENON
He is one gem of an actor and what makes him so is his down-to-earth nature and not to mention natural acting skills. He speaks with Musba Hashmi about his debut and how he is dispassionately passionate about his projects

■ Tell us about your character Himmat Singh in Special OPS?

He is a chief analyst with RAW. He is the brain behind all the strategies and plans. He has to deal with his personal and professional life without one affecting the other. He is an interesting character in all. He tries to be as fair as possible with his team.

■ What made you take up the role?

Neeraj Pandey, Sheetal Bhatia and I have known each other for the longest of time. Neeraj's writing are very exclusive and he has a skewed way of looking at a scene. Whenever he writes the screenplay, it will surprise you everytime. At the same time he has got great sense of humour even at the darkest of situations. He has a special flair for writing and that makes it all the more interesting.

Another reason was when I read the script for the first time, I was about to just read the first episode but I read the complete series in one go. The story was that interesting and gripping. The man behind the machine and the machine itself were extremely good and was the reason for me to say yes.

■ How did Naseem happen?

It was my debut. I used to do theatres a lot those days. The film happened with me because Mak (Makrand Deshpande) thought that I was the best actor back then. We used to do our rehearsals together. One fine day he told me 'come lets meet Saeed Akhtar Mirza (writer-director of the film)'. He saw me and suddenly the role of that religious fundamentalist came about and I was casted for that.

■ How easy or tough was the way ahead?

It is like any other profession. Ups and downs do happen, but that's not a matter to worry about. I also did TV when it was not like what it's today. We used to do small films and one hour episodes. The journey was good. It was a time when people believed if you are a brilliant actor then you can only do negative roles. We started from there. One thing that we maintained was persistence and every thing went well.

■ What are the things that you look out for before taking up a project?

I don't compartmentalise it. It is just like an attraction to the project. The moment I feel like I have to do this, I go for it. At the same time, I am at a stage when I have a lot of substantial stuff to do and not something which I am over-qualified for. So this is one thing that I look for rest everything falls in place.

CHALLENGING IS A WORD USED BY THOSE WHO DON'T HAVE THE CAPABILITY OR CAPACITY OF DOING IT. I SEE THINGS AS INTERESTING OR DISINTERESTING. I HAVE DONE A LOT OF INTERESTING STUFF ALONG WITH UNINTERESTING ONES TOO. IT'S BEEN A JOURNEY AND IT COMES WITH TWISTS AND TURNS

■ A role that came close to you or the ones that was most challenging?

I find these questions very difficult to answer, I am not that narrow minded as an actor. Everything that I have done is equally close to my heart. As for challenging, there is nothing as such. Challenging is a word used by those who don't have the capability or capacity of doing it. I see things as interesting or uninteresting. And I have done a lot of interesting stuff along with uninteresting ones too. It's been a journey and journey can't be unidirectional. There are always twists and turns, the same has been for me. I too have seen ups and downs, but at the end of it I can sum it up by saying 'no complaints'.

■ A project that you were apprehensive about but it came out well.

Nothing as such. I don't usually jump into something without knowing what it is. There are many projects otherwise where I thought this particular script has good potential to make it big and I got involved with it but it didn't turn out well. You can't do much about these things. You can just only go with good intention about it as an actor and how will it turn out depends on the destiny of the product.

■ Is it hard to cope with such disappointments?

Initially, I used to feel flustered when a project didn't do well or like I expected. But then I realised the best way to live an artist's life is to dispassionately passionately about things. By this I mean, I am extremely passionate when I am working but the moment the last day is over I become dispassionate about it. I don't hold on to the longing of it because that is beyond my control. After I have completed shooting, I would look at it like any other and not like the one who have been a part of it.

It makes life easier, if I would continue hanging upon it then I would have been landed in a mental asylum by now. (laughs)

■ How do you define acting? What is your approach towards it?

I am a simulator. I simulate things and make it as believable as possible, that's my intent when I am acting. I try and make things so believable that I can even work if sci-fi movie. Many people indulge in realism talks but realism is a myth. The moment you have editing process, realism can't exist because you are jumping in time. Realism happens in real time. If you will look for it, you can't make sci-fi movie. Take for example Avatar, it is a sci-fi movie but it is extremely believable. It should be in a way where one can feel, touch and smell the characters. That has been my motto.

New wave of tattoos

MUSBA HASHMI speaks with tattoo artist LOKESH VERMA about the audible body art that is trending and how the idea hit him

While tattoos have been here for a while but what is taking the industry by storm today are the sound wave or audio tattoos. Yes, you read that right. Tattoos that have a voice and can be heard. Hard to believe? Meet Lokesh Verma, founder of Devilz Tattoos who is making it come true.

"This is a new technology in India. The tattoo industry was static for so many years with no inventions but now with these dynamic sound wave tattoos we are taking the industry a step further. What we mean by this, is you can hear a sound from your tattoo, it's not the simple static tattoo any more," he says. Verma may be the first and the only one in India to have adapted this technology but it is originally an American idea.

"This was in trend in the US two years back. However, it has only been a year since I brought the concept here. Initially, there were not many takers. But slowly it caught the attention of the people. And in the last few months this technology was acknowledged by people and more and more people are getting it done. Till now, we have inked around 80 people with sound wave tattoos," Verma tells you who a few minutes back was busy inking another customer but comes out to tell you more about this new trend.

As complicated it may sound, the process is quite easy. The client is asked to record a five to 30 second sound clip of anything that they want to cherish. It may be their baby's first cry or their dog's voice or even a message from their loved ones who are no more. Then a sound wave is created out of it using various softwares and put out on paper.

"Once the visual of the sound wave has been created, we take a print out of it and then ink it on our client's body line by line. Once it is inked, we upload the picture of the sound wave on our website. People can scan it using the sound wave app on their mobiles and hear the audio message in it as many times as they want. It is just like the way QR codes work, you scan something and it redirects you to another site," he tells you.

A year, when Verma came to know about this technology, it attracted him and he made his mind to know more about the art.

"I am always looking to bring something new in the field. When I got to know about this, I knew that this is something that I have to bring to my country. I started doing my research and read a lot about it. I knew that such a technology would require a lot of specialisation. Before executing the idea, I did many trials to see how it would work. I used skin pads to test it and only when we were successful I decided to do it on people," Verma says who inks these tattoos with his team of experts. It didn't take too long for Verma or for that matter his team to excel in the skill, all thanks to his 17 years of experience in the industry.

Like any other person who is step-

Lokesh Verma

I was a bit apprehensive about introducing the concept because the lines of the sound wave are intricate and there is no room for error. Even if a single line is incorrect, the tattoo will not work ping into uncharted waters, Verma too was apprehensive about the idea.

"Initially, I was a bit apprehensive about introducing the concept because the lines of the sound wave are intricate. There is no room for even the slightest of error in such tattoos. If a single line is not correctly made because the artist is inexperienced, the sound wave will become crooked and the tattoo will not work. This needs specialisation in line work and the artist should have super steady hands to draw the lines. It is not like the usual tattoos where if something goes wrong, you can just shade and fix it. Each and every line of the sound wave has to be precise," he says. The cost of the tattoo starts at ₹15,000 for a clip of five seconds.

There is a reason why people are opting for these tattoos. "One is able to keep the loved ones near you and heard their voice even if they are hundreds of miles away. My wife got our baby's voice inked when he was two years old. She was never interested in tattoos but this was something she couldn't resist," he tells you.

Mostly married couples and people with young children, who are 35 to 45 years of age go for this because they can keep that commitment.

Though the tattoo industry has come a long way but the mindset of people still has to change. "There is a need for change in the mindset when it comes to getting a tattoo. Many are apprehensive before getting one and seek for help from family and friends. When someone gather enough courage to walk into the tattoo studio they are so confused that they ask their friends for help. People have to start taking their own decisions. Having said that, one change that I have seen is that earlier people used to go for random designs because tattoo was something new and they just wanted to get one. Now people have started putting thoughts behind their tattoos. They tend to express their faith or attitude towards life through them," Verma tells you. His first tattoo was that of a devil's face he inked on his father.

There's a story here. "I came into this profession because I was fond of tattoos but back then there were not many studios and the ones that were there were expensive. I thought why not buy a machine myself as it will cost less and I can make as many tattoos as I want. I bought the machine but was too scared to try it on myself so I walked up to my father and asked if he would be interested in getting inked. I was surprised when he agreed. I made a random design, which he still has on his hand — a devil's face. It went pretty well and that gave me confidence to make more designs and taking this up as a career. This is how I started Devilz Tattoo," he tells you.

Verma, of course, is a celebrity of sorts. People seek him out for his quality work. "Back in 2008, Remo D' Souza was the first celebrity to visit my studio. He was in Delhi-NCR for a shoot and that's when he came to my studio to get inked," he tells you.

'Doing SOTY 2 opened my eyes'

Youtuber HARSH BENIWAL, who has recently done Who's Your Daddy, to be aired on ZEE5 and ALTBalaji, speaks with SHALINI SAKSENA about his latest project, experience of doing a film and challenges faced

◆ How did your journey in the entertainment industry begin?

I had not planned how to go about it but it all began back in 2015. I always wanted to entertain. When I was in school, college and with family and friends I would always crack jokes and became the centre of attention. I started making videos and make a second vine ad put it on my page which got replies from friends. But then slowly people started commenting. People shared memes on Instagram which I used to put. By 2016, I had a million followers on Insta. Then there was a boom in Internet and today I have more than eight million subscribers on my YouTube channel.

◆ Was it tough to get noticed on YouTube?

Initially, I was under the impression that there was no point in putting video here. I had Insta fans but the people on this platform are different from YouTubers who have far more patience. But I asked my team member to start putting videos on the YouTube. A friend told me that the channel was doing well. I started putting longer videos here. I can't say it was easy, nor can I say that it was tough. All I can say is that I had loads of fun. It was slow process to garner that kind of attention.

◆ How was the experience of doing the movies?

Student of the Year (SOTY) 2 was amazing. I had never such a huge crew. I never knew how things worked. What different things were for? I didn't know what assistant director did. The movie has taught me so many things that I use on my channel. Take spot dadas. I had heard of them but never realised what their work was. Tiger bhai (Shroff) was standing next me so I thought the man holding the umbrella was for him. But then he moved away but this man continued to hold the umbrella over my head. It was then I realised he was doing it for me. It felt so amazing. I got to learn so much including how to face the camera from Tiger Shroff.

◆ Tell us about your latest project — Who's Your Daddy?

It is a web series. It is an amazing story set in Delhi. It is about relationships. First, when I was a kid and my relationship with my father and then with my son. Second, my relationship with my grandmother. Third, my relationship with my friends. Then there is a love angle and my relationship with her. When I read the script, I loved it and laughed a lot. It has been written so well.

◆ What made you say yes to it?

I am very particular when it comes to content. Even when I create content I don't go ahead unless I am convinced with the narration. It was much later that I read the screenplay. People know I do comedy, here I have gone a step ahead. People will see me romancing, crying and even getting angry. I wanted to show my fans different facets of myself.

◆ You have around 8 million subscribers. What makes your fans come to your channel?

I do my best to try and give as much time to them as possible. I reply to their comments. But I rarely have time for my family so it is not always possible to be constantly in touch with them. However, I try to do as much as I can and meet them in person and talk to them.

◆ What are the challenges to ensure you stay where you are?

It was not as if I had had to face many. I just love doing what I am doing. When I was doing the web series I have had to shoot round the clock and loved every moment of it. I never feel that my professional life has put up any roadblocks till now and hopefully it will be so in the future as well. Yes, schooling was a challenge.

Pets are man's best friend

COVID-19 have had us confined to our homes leading to lockdown blues. During this time, your pet can be a source of much needed joy and strength

Could you have imagined being locked-down in your home because of a global epidemic? Bizarre as it sounds, this blockbuster movie scenario has come to pass, and we all find ourselves trapped in our homes, unable to move out or even interact with anyone from the outside world.

This situation has caused a surprising amount of frustration to humans across the world, with many plummeting into depression and states of despondency. And, as we all know, since there is a mind-body connect, staying mentally strong goes a long way in keeping your immunity up, and your defences strong against the disease. So, if you are caring for a cat, dog or any other animals, here's how they're helping you stay on top of things.

Mental strength means physical strength: It is a proven fact that families, or individuals, with pets are emotionally and mentally healthier than people who don't have pets. This means you are less likely to suffer from depression, or other kinds of mental and emotional problems that could bring your immunity down. Having a pet has therefore made you physically more resilient to any kind of disease, including viral infections.

A reason to go on: For people who do fall sick with the virus, or any other disease, resilience has a lot to do with wanting to get better and get back to life. Those of us who have had pets will vouch that better emotional ties with those around us puts us in the correct frame of mind for recovery. Since our relationship with our cats and dogs is more unconditional, and uncomplicated than how we relate to most humans, having a pet means we're more inclined to recover faster and return to caring for them.

Good company: The long-term benefits of having a pet aside are that those of us with pets to care for are not likely to succumb to boredom, depression and unhealthy habits like binge-eating, not exercising, or bingeing on our gadgets. Not only do our pets keep us on our toes, because we build healthier mental neurons while interacting with our pets, our general disposition is more productive and proactive while being home-bound, thanks for the fur balls in our lives. ## MYTHS BUSTED

Myth 1: Dogs can spread the Covid-19 virus

Fact: According to the WHO, there is no evidence to suggest that COVID-19 in the form that it appears in humans can spread onto companion animals or, for that matter, can an animals spread the virus to humans.

Myth 2: So pets can skip the hygiene protocols

Fact: A senior vet at the American vet charity PSDA says the hygiene protocols even for pets is still important. For instance, if your pet in taken out, it could bring back the virus through its paws, which can contaminate your home for humans. So don't skip sanitising them.

Myth 3: Since dogs or cats can't spread the virus, they can be around patients with COVID-19

Fact: It is not recommended. Not so much for the sake of the pets as much for the patient who may be recovering from the virus. Their immunity would be low at such a point, so it's actually a good idea to keep both animals and humans away from them since animals may carry bacteria or germs from being taken outdoors.

Children react in different ways due to lack of ample sleep or even excess of sleep impacting their health, writes KERRY BAJAJ, as she shares tips on how to ensure that your baby or child is able to sleep peacefully during a time when anxiety is running high in the family due to Coronavirus lockdown

SLEEP IN THE TIMES OF CORONA

Before the coronavirus lockdown, did you ever think your house could be capable of so much multi-tasking? My house is now a one-room schoolhouse, an office, a gym, a restaurant that's turning out three meals a day, a messy art studio, a global pandemic monitoring station, and the place where our family relaxes and sleeps.

Speaking of sleep, I've never been so grateful that my kids have an early bedtime — 7 pm and 8 pm for the 4 and 5-year-old — and happily sleep through the night. As a sleep consultant, I've been speaking to many parents about how to navigate this challenging time. I've always preached that ensuring a good night's sleep is a precious gift for our children, and I believe it now more than ever. Here's why:

- Sleep is a powerful immune-booster. Both adults and children that are sleep-deprived are more susceptible to illness. Without sufficient sleep, your body produces fewer cytokines, which is a protein that targets infection.
- Sleep supports our emotional health. Sleep is a mood-booster, and acts as a soothing balm for our emotional balance. Much-needed at the moment.
- Sleep is crucial for all aspects of our physical health, from cardiovascular to metabolic to respiratory to immune system.

As Matthew Walker says in Why We Sleep, "Sleep is the single most effective thing we can do to reset our brain and body health each day."

Here's my guidance on how to ensure your baby or child is able to sleep peacefully during a time when anxiety is surely running high in the family.

THE DAYTIME SCHEDULE

The hundreds of parenting decisions we make during the day will impact our children's night sleep.

Anchor. As I say in Sleep, Baby, Sleep, routine is like a magic wand for parents to keep their babies happy, healthy and secure. But let's face it — our young children have nowhere to go and no pressing deadlines. Yet we can still create a predictable routine, which provides a sense of normalcy and safety. For my two daughters, I've put a focus on creating "anchors" in our day, points of stability in the ocean of free play. After breakfast, we do our math lesson. While eating lunch, we listen to a storytelling podcast (Listen & Play by the BBC). In the afternoon, we work on phonics. In the late afternoon, we call the grandparents. Before dinner, my husband does physical exercise with the girls. These are the predictable touchpoints that they can count on every single day. There's no need to be rigid, but having a daily rhythm with anchors gives children a sense of security.

Exercise. Our stir-crazy little kiddos need physical activity — and lots of it! Movement is great for releasing endorphins and will help our children to sleep well at night. Even when stuck inside, we have options — you can have a dance party, water play in a small kiddie pool or bathtub, Cosmic Kids Yoga, or hopscotch, relay race or frog jumps in the hallway. I've even seen videos of kids biking, roller skating and skateboarding inside the house. Be creative! Get the kids up and moving at least 3 times a day — and join them, because it's a good stress-buster for you, too!

Screentime. As soon as the WHO declared a global pandemic, I decided that my strict stance on screentime could be relaxed during these weeks at home. My kids don't nap anymore, and we all need downtime. Every day after lunch, we pull the curtains, turn off the lights, snuggle up under blankets and "go to the zoo." Meaning we visit the Cincinnati Zoo Home Safari via their Facebook page. Hanging out with the hippos and porcupines is soothing, sweet and educational. If you're juggling cooking, cleaning, laundry, work, and homeschooling — choose a nice programme (I love Daniel Tiger for toddlers) and give some guilt-free screentime. Since we have a set time for screens, the kids aren't bugging me to watch videos the rest of the day, which is an added bonus.

Note: please don't use screentime for the 2 hours before bedtime, because it may be too stimulating and interfere with a good night's sleep.

THE BEDTIME SCHEDULE

Many families that I consult with have trouble setting a bedtime routine because they have family functions, weddings, and travel. Since all of that is off the table, it's a perfect time to establish an age-appropriate bedtime for your little one.

Early to Bed. Babies and young children need 11 to 12 hours of continuous night sleep. This means that if your baby wakes up at 7 am, bedtime should be between 7 and 8 pm. Sleep is essential for your child's mood, growth, development and immunity. To shift your child's bedtime earlier, I recommend pulling the curtains and turning off the bright overhead lights after sunset. Create a bedtime routine. It can be simple — dinner, bath, books, bed. Write it down on a piece of paper, let your child decorate the bedtime chart, and hang it on the wall in their bedroom.

Comfy, Cozy Bedtime. I always encourage clients to think of bedtime as the best part of the day, rather than a power struggle. Cuddle up with your child, read books, sing a lullaby or say a prayer. In order for your child to relax enough to "let go" of the day and fall asleep, they should feel secure and connected. Every night I ask my daughters what they want to dream about (it's often cake and unicorns) and then I spritz them with imaginary "dream spray." This puts happy thoughts into their minds about sleep.

White Noise. I recommend white noise to every parent that wants their baby or child to sleep better. White noise provides a soothing rumbling backdrop for sleep and helps drown out the household noises. Especially these days when you may be taking late-night conference calls from the living room, play some white noise for your child. The easiest way to try it is by downloading a free app (such as Sleep Pillow) on your phone or tablet.

Will your child get "addicted" to white noise? This is a common question and the answer is no! If you want to wean off of white noise in the future, you can simply reduce the volume for a few days.

Sleep Training. I spoke with a mom of twins who has let go of her domestic helpers during quarantine, has a job in banking that has converted to work-from-home because of coronavirus, and is exhausted from the night wakings that used to be handled by a nanny. Her elderly mother is attending to one twin, and she is attending to another and they are both up twice at night, for as long as an hour each time. For babies over 6 months, you can do sleep training and proactively shape the sleep patterns so you don't have so many night wakings. In my book Sleep, Baby, Sleep, you will get the complete guidance to help your baby sleep through the night. In the book, I also cover newborn sleep, baby sleep, toddler sleep and nap schedules for age 0 to 4 years.

SOOTHING THEIR WORRIES

It's mission critical to be mindful of what we're saying in front of the kids. Our children will surely struggle with sleeping peacefully if we are exposing them to too much talk and worry about coronavirus.

Turn Off the TV. Put the TV news on a 21-day lockdown. There is absolutely no reason to expose your child to sensational and scary news reporting. If it's terrifying for you as an adult, then please protect your child. Also, don't talk on the phone about the gory details of coronavirus in front of your kids. They are always listening and absorbing what you say on the phone. Remember, the beauty of having an early bedtime is that you can watch the news and make your phone calls at night.

Invite Questions. I've given simple and honest explanations about coronavirus and the lockdown to my kids. Since their world has drastically changed from school, playdates and sports to 24/7 at home, I do check in with them once a day. I simply ask "do you have any questions for me?" Most of the time they don't, but they know that the lines of communication are open. They know it's safe to have questions. If we can help our children process their concerns in the day, they will better be able to relax and surrender to sleep at night.

Manage Your Own Triggers. To help your child's anxiety, you have to manage your own.

For me, that means having an extra loaf of bread and the freezer and an ample supply of chocolate. It means not looking at Whatsapp while I'm playing with the kids because the news is too triggering. It means talking to a friend when I'm feeling scared or anxious so I can work through it, but not in front of the kids. It means focusing on what I can control — staying home, washing my hands. And letting go of what I can't control — the actions of others, how long this will last.

Empowering Messages. Since the kids understood from their school friends that coronavirus is a big, scary thing, I have focused on what our family is doing to stay healthy. They know that children are mostly not getting sick from coronavirus, but I'm sure they're scared about their parents getting sick. I tell the kids — I eat healthy food, I exercise, I take vitamin C and I sleep well. I'm strong and healthy. I've assured them that if I do get sick for a few days, my body will fight the virus and bounce back.

Honour Ambiguity. We are on a 21-day lockdown, but there is no guarantee that it will end there. This is an ambiguous situation. Please don't get your heart set on having freedom on April 15 and then feel crushed if it doesn't happen. When my 5-year-old asks how long we'll be at home, I tell her the truth — I don't know. It may be 21 days, or it may be 100 days. You may also want to consider the possibility that this could be a long road ahead, so that you'll also be able to emotionally support your children in the weeks ahead.

Love Them Up. I tell the kids every single day that I love being at home with them. That this is such a special time for our family to be together. That there is no one I'd rather be stuck home with. You may be spread thin and stressed out of your mind, but don't underestimate what a gift it is for your children to have bonus time with their parents.

So there you have it — create a flow for your daytime routine, enjoy cozy bedtime snuggles, and protect your child from nonstop coronavirus conversation. In doing so, we can create a virtuous cycle where our kids feel good during the day and sleep peacefully at night, thus boosting their physical and emotional resilience. For all the essential workers on the front lines of this crisis, endless thanks for your service. For all the rest, please stay home, stay safe, take care of each other and wash those hands!

Bashir Assad's new book provides a refreshing narrative of the actual situation obtaining in Kashmir, not touched upon otherwise by the so-called Kashmir experts, writes PROF K WARIKOO

Article 370: A fresh perspective

Bashir Assad, the Kashmiri writer has come out with yet another interesting and insightful study of Kashmir following the abrogation of Article 370. To quote Bashir, he has brought out the "bitter truth following his inner voice" underscoring the Islamisation and Pakistanisation of narratives in Kashmir. And he blames the political leadership in Kashmir which remains "mired in conservatism and short-sightedness around Muslimness" for the troubled situation. Competing schools of Islamist extremism have sway in Kashmir with the local political leaders, intellectuals, media, social and cultural activists, lawyers, businessmen, employees etc. spearheading the Islamist extremist movement. Being witness to the steep decline of the unique Kashmiri culture, Assad calls upon the silent majority of Kashmiri Muslims "not to be carried away by the frenzies of the extremists who thrive on violence".

As regards the decision of the Indian parliament to revoke Article 370 and reorganise the J&K State into two UTs of Ladakh and Jammu and Kashmir, the international community has by and large viewed this decision as India's internal affair, with the exception of Pakistan and its ardent supporters—China, Turkey and Malaysia. However, there has been concern over the restrictions imposed in the State following this decision. So far as the local response to this historic decision is concerned, Assad is right in his analysis that in north Kashmir (excepting Sopore and Rafiaband belt in Baramulla district which is dominated by Jamaat-e-Islami), the local people have remained peaceful. And the new narrative of the Indian Government revolving around empowerment, investment and development (EID) has found resonance among the people in rural Kashmir, Gujjars and Bakarwals, Paharis, Kupwara, Handwara, Gurez and most of the Jammu region.

In case of south Kashmir, Jamaat-e-Islami has been influential in Kulgam, Tral, Pulwama, Bijbehara, Anantnag, Kokernag, Doru and Pahalgam and that gets reflected in the different political response and incidents of violence there. In central Kashmir, Srinagar city remains the hotbed of separatist nerve centre of Pakistani narrative being parroted by the political elite, intelligentsia, academia, journalists and civil society.

Coming back to Article 370, Assad believes that the idea behind this Article was to allow the unique Kashmiri identity based on composite culture, social harmony and brotherhood to flourish. This very foundation of Kashmiriyat collapsed with the ethnic cleansing and forced exodus of the entire indigenous minority community of Kashmiri Pandits in January 1990 and thereafter. The Pandits continue to live in forced exile for the past 30 years now. And there is no prospect of their return to their homes, as all their landed properties, houses, business and educational establishments and even the temples have been occupied in an organized manner. And with the digitisation of land revenue records going on in full swing in Kashmir, all these properties are being conveniently transferred in the names of their illegal occupiers. Here it would be pertinent to mention that all through the past 75 years, the successive State governments have legalised the settlement of non-Kashmiri Muslims in the State. Over 26,000 Afghan Pashtuns were provided land and State citizenship in 1950s at Gutli Bagh, Ganderbal. Similarly over 650 Tibetan Muslim families were provided land and State citizenship in Hari

Parbat area in Srinagar around 1959-60. And after 1970s, one has been noticing the ingress and silent settlement of radical Muslims belonging to Allah Wale group from Uttar Pradesh, Bihar etc., who set up their shops and captured the local mosques. So much so, over 800 local Kashmiri Muslim Imams were silently replaced by these radical fire-brand non-local Muslims who contributed a lot in radicalising the Kashmiri Muslim society by weaning them away from the local Sufi-Rishi tradition of Islam. Assad has been honest in pointing out that most of the Kashmiri Muslim employees who would shift to Jammu during the annual Durbar move, have purchased land or houses in Jammu particularly during the past decade or so. This is in quite contrast to the fact that none of the Hindu employees shifting from Jammu to Srinagar during the Durbar move, have ever purchased in any land or house in Kashmir. One may add that thousands of acres of forest and nazool land has been occupied by influential Kashmiri Muslims and Gujjars/Bakarwals, which was subsequently regularised by Farroq Abdullah and GN Azad governments under the Roshni Act. All this has been done to change the demographic character of Jammu region into a Muslim majority one, so that the narrative of Muslim and separatist politics is extended to Jammu region as well.

Assad makes yet another valid point stating that the NC government under Chief Ministership of Farooq Abdullah (1996-2002) rebuilt the "completely collapsed infrastructure including hundreds of bridges, schools, hospitals, shrines and government buildings." Yet the NC and its leadership never highlighted these achievements in their 2002 election campaign. Instead their election plank was the restoration of autonomy. Here one would recall how the NC stalwart Mirza Afzal Beg would during his election campaign in 1977 flaunt a piece of rock salt (of Pak origin), and a green handkerchief (rumal) in order to emotionally blackmail the local Muslim population. Assad is emphatic in saying that both the "NC and PDP used Article 370 for winning elections. They only complained about the erosion of authority when out of power. For them, Article 370 was laying golden eggs." The abrogation of Article 370 once again brought the think tanks, NGOs, human rights groups, media etc. to the fore, with the local political class propagating "soft separatism". The problem is compounded because the "political family fiefdom has taken deep roots in Kashmir. And this political kinship survives in the conflict, with both the separatist and mainstream political elites being the conflict profiteers". So the challenge for the Government of India is to make peace more profitable for these political elites than the conflict.

Assad argues that the increasing Pakistanisation and Islamisation of the Kashmiri narrative, actually prompted the Modi government to abrogate Article 370. He blames the separatists and the NC and PDP leaders by holding the threats of secession, for the dilution of Article 370. As regards the impact of the abrogation of Article 370, Assad is right in saying that "the majority of Kashmiris are happy that the political class, which exploited them emotionally, economically and politically for decades, is finally made to pay the price for it. The common people want these corrupt leaders to be arrested on charges of corruption, misappropriation, embezzlement, nepotism and favouritism".

Now that Article 370 is history, new tasks for the government are to restore the confidence of the people through EID, de-radicalisation, rational delimitation to give due representation to deprived sections both in Jammu and Kashmiri regions, and to undo the artificial merger of areas in a particular constituency initiated by Mirza Afzal Beg in post-1975 period to prevent the Shias, Kashmiri Pandits, Gujjars and other communities from getting elected from their territorial strongholds. To conclude, the book provides a refreshing narrative of the actual situation obtaining in Kashmir, not touched upon otherwise by the so called Kashmir experts. As such it is a must for all those interested in understanding the social and political dynamics in Jammu and Kashmir.

Stories that inspire action and change

GUNJAN VEDA's book seeks to celebrate the everyday heroes, who have, despite all odds, managed to change not just their own lives, but the lives of those around them. An excerpt:

Ten kilometres from the Pratap Singh High School, on the road to the famous Kaas Plateau, Maharashtra's very own Valley of Flowers, is the picturesque campus of the Bhartiya Bhatke Vimukta Vikas Va Sanshodhan Sanstha (Indian Institute of Research and Development of Nomadic and De-notified Tribes). Inside, there is a School of Social Work, a junior college, hostels and an Ashram school with 250 students from classes 1 to 10.

At 2 pm on a weekday, the place is abuzz with activity. Students and teachers have just returned from an invigorating lunch break, ready to resume their quest for knowledge. I head to the first floor of the double-storeyed institute building that embraces a circular courtyard. Here in a small corner room, a group of 50 students await me—the youngest is 12 years old, the oldest 16. Some play the tabla, the dholki and the Congo drums. Others create music on the synthesizer and the harmonium. Together they form the school's orchestra—one that has won name and fame in the district.

They are often invited to sing for the All India Radio and at local programmes. As the strong voices of the girls and the boys in the group decry casteism and call for equality through their songs, a new energy pervades the room, and with it, a new hope.

It is these students whose stories I wish to tell...

Aishwarya
Aishwarya Umesh Dharase is

13 years old. Slim, with a deep sepia skin tone, she wears a bright, sleeveless red and gold salwar suit. Her jet black hair is oiled and tightly pulled back into a pony. 'I want to become a lawyer and fight for the truth,' this Class 7 student tells me. She also wants to learn to play the harmonium and the tabla. After all, she spent the first few years of her life around these musical instruments. Aishwarya's parents lived in the Bijapur district of Karnataka. Her father played the dholki, tabla and pakhawaj in an orchestra, while her mother was a singer. She also sewed garments to feed her family. Then one day, when she was barely six years old, Aishwarya's mother died in an accident. Shortly after, her father abandoned her. 'I was very small then. I didn't understand what was happening. Suddenly I had no family, no one to call my own,' she tells me matter-of-factly. Life as Aishwarya knew it was over. Initially her paternal grandparents looked after her. Soon however, her mausi (maternal aunt) took over.

Aishwarya does not know if she is related to her mausi by blood. She doesn't know her maternal grandparents either. 'Mausi says my mother was her sister and she treats me like her own daughter. That's all that matters. I have seen her work in the fields to raise me. It is her name—Bharti—that I write when I am asked for my mother's name.' Bharti first got Aishwarya admitted into a Kannada-medium school but she wasn't happy with the quality of education. She decided to send her to the Ashram school where her own daughter Vaishnavi was studying. It was in Class 6 that Aishwarya came to Satara. 'I have been here for a little over a year now. Each day I learn new things. When I feel low, I think of my mausi. She is my inspiration. One day I will make her proud,' she tells me, the quiver in her voice only emphasizing the determined look on her face.

Pragati

Next to her sits a slim bespectacled girl in a white, printed salwar suit. 13-year-old Pragati Ranjeet More is a student of Class 8. Eyes brimming with tears, she narrates her story.

'When I was born, my mother abandoned me in the hospital and went to live with her parents. She didn't take me home. Didn't hold or hug me.' Pragati's father collected her from the hospital and took her to Pune. There he left the tiny infant with his sister. 'My buu raised me. She put me in a school in the city. Then one day my dadi turned up. She said that I shouldn't stay in Pune. She fought with my buu and brought me to Phaltan in Satara district. Since that day my buu stopped talking to us.'

Young Pragati was once again uprooted. She lost the only life and family she had known. But she was a survivor. She began to adjust to her new life. Just as she was learning to cope, another tragedy befell the family. Their house in Phaltan collapsed.

They had to move to Satara. Pragati's father used to be a construction worker. But he drank heavily and gradually stopped working. In fact, it was his drinking that had driven Pragati's mother away. In Satara, her grandfather took up work in a hotel to feed the family. Pragati enrolled in a nearby school.

One day, when she was in Class 3, her grandmother and father fought bitterly. 'My dadi burnt herself. She died,' Pragati recounts in a stony voice. Her mother used this opportunity to divorce her father.

That was when she discovered that she had a younger brother. 'My mother never came to see me. I didn't know that my father used to visit her. After they divorced, I found out that I had a younger brother, Omkar. He is now in Class 4.'

Despite all the tragedies that life had heaped on her, Pragati did not give up. She had learnt how to cook when she was barely five years old. While her grandfather helped her with the housework, he also had to go out and earn. So young Pragati went to school, did housework, cooked and looked after her brother. One day, in the newspapers, she read about the Ashram school in Satara. She quietly went to her father and said she wanted to join the school.

He agreed. Thus began a new journey.

Corona-led leadership challenges for Trump

Elections and Presidential leadership in the United States are a spectacle par excellence. This is equally true for both the elections for the anointed Presidency and the Congressional polls locally. Awareness and deliberations about the US foreign policy across the larger international system are everyone's pet peeve but the scenario in the domestic politics remains an domain orb, which has been investigated to a lesser extent elsewhere in the international system. Also, it is a theoretical principle in the discipline of international relations that there lies a continuum between the domesticity of a nation and its larger footprint in the global comity of nations. It's in this partisan narrative, where-in the domestic political discourse gladly but confrontationally subsists.

In the contemporary American firmament, President Donald Trump is going through the toughest phase of his Presidency which is even more serious concern than the impeachment proceedings in the US Senate, which he had to be content with. As a related fact, it is the COVID-19 virus which poses a national security and a health challenge for a besieged American nation. As the trail of coronavirus patients mounts in the United States, the American leadership seems perplexed despite being on the anointed pedestal of being the most powerful nation endowed with a mammoth defense paraphernalia which the nation can wield in the international sea, land and air firmament. It's the Calvinist self doubt of an incessant urge for self enhancement and continuously being on guard which should be utilised by the American establishment in this hour of crisis when the entire comity of states is seemingly strangulated by the new pandemic.

Apart from the pandemic, it is the threat of global terror and the vitriol in the aftermath of the impeachment proceedings which cause a big snarl-up and a vitiation of the political ecosystem in the United States of America. Frequent ego-trips that President Trump has had with the various Secretaries and

Patrons wait in line for a supermarket on April 2, 2020, in the Corona section of the Queens borough of New York. Data released by city health officials show that residents in the immigrant-rich Jackson Heights, Elmhurst and Corona sections of Queens have tested positive for the coronavirus at higher rates than in wealthy, mostly white parts of Manhattan and Brooklyn AP his other top official machinery has marred the taint-free expectation of confused hoi polloi. Despite being the unstinting confidants of President Trump, several Cabinet members have been shown the door despite their scathless records of efficiency and loyalty towards the Trump's dominion.

One stand-out aspect of the US Democratic primaries has been the fact that Bernie Sanders, the left of the centre, Democratic Presidential hopeful, has been sidelined out of the race with Joe Biden being the candidate from the Democrat side of the fence to take on the political juggernaut of President Trump. One singular perspective out of many in the context of the American public sphere concerning the leadership performance of President Trump has been the idiom of myriad flip-flops which President Trump has undertaken in the light of the various position and portfolio changes in his Cabinet. Secondly, President Trump has been changing the quintessential American point of view in the light of the climate change policies, American judiciary and the American policy perspective in the context of South Asia, where-in India's stance has always been that of negating the hyphenation of itself (India) with the Islamic Republic of Pakistan. The win-win economic leadership by inking a mega trade deal with India along with the quarantining of India concerning the stipulation of GSP (Generalized System of Preferences) has been the characteristic goggles through which some sections of India perceive the American policy perspective to be. Another poser on his political leadership happens to be that of frequent changes in the visa-related work conditions vis-a-vis India, which renders New Delhi slightly doubtful, especially the old guard in New Delhi's political and diplomatic leadership. One area where President Trump's leadership of the new world has been proactive is that of a peacemaking role in the Afghanistan conundrum and his tie-up with the Taliban based in Doha, Qatar. Even in the context of a turmoil-ridden "Middle East", the Washington leadership has done well with a mixed outcome in the context of the Syrian quagmire. In the context of Iran, President Trump got rid of General Soleimani but did not retaliate when the American assets in Iraq were targeted by Tehran thus casting aspersions on a cleansing and aggressive posture of the American leadership. It was this BOP run policy which took the steam out of the acolytes of the leadership in Washington.

Jeffrey A Jenkins writes in his authored book titled, Leadership in American Politics, that, "There is a leadership gap in American politics between the leadership needed to address the country's most pressing problems and that provided by the nation's elected and appointed leaders. If we turn to political scientists to shed light on such leadership issues, we find their work often lacking. As important as leadership is in explaining political choices and policy outcomes, studies of leadership are limited in many subfields of political science research and are missing altogether in others." Still, despite traces of whims and flip flops, the domestic WASP fraternity and the white blue collared workers still root for President Trump despite his leadership and popularity rankings transforming in the aftermath of individual situations.

His appeal lies in the leadership gung ho, loud chaperoning and symbolically stiff upper lip political nonchalance embedded with a sense of American hyper puissance which takes wings with the presence of a cacophonous political leadership and opposition.

As an adjunct imagery, one can cite the speech of President Whitmore in the original patriotic flick, Independence Day. On the occasion of the launch of the American counter attack on the Alien Mothership, the embattled American President perches himself atop a F-16 and orates, "We the people of the free world and the American people shall not falter. We will not disappear into the night. We will not wither away into darkness and shadows. We will put up a struggle against the Alien Mothership. We shall overcome and it will be a historical moment when the world's fighter jets gather together for the largest aerial battle of the world, since World War-II along with the brave American flyers."

Thus, the practice of Presidential leadership is a reflection of the larger impact on the commoners which rings true in the leadership framework of President Trump, also, whenever the American homeland faces a crisis or a holocaust of impactful proportions. The venerable Pew Research Center too reported in January 2020 about the dismal support to President Trump's foreign policy. It was argued that, "Despite negative trends in his popularity as a true blue leader, his standing has improved. The current Pew Research survey finds an uptick in some countries since 2018 in ratings for President Trump and the US, though the degree of change varies from modest to solidly positive."

At least two plausible factors may be behind these shifts. First, support for Trump has increased somewhat on the ideological right in many nations." The 63 per cent recorded disinterest and dissatisfaction with President Trump's policy has been generated maybe because the world is flat since a long time but the domestic panning out of his electoral prospects might be a completely different leadership ball game altogether in the context of the American homeland.

PERSPECTIVE

Why poor migrants need to fend for themselves

While many view the Covid-19 lockdown as an instance of the efficacy of the administration, the moot point is why the poor people want to run out of cities. This urban middle-class India refuses to see their contradiction. If the poor work so hard in the cities, why must any emergency make them leave the city to return to the village? Isn't the city their home too?

Published in 2002, poet and writer Dom Moraes in the co-authored book with Sarayu Srivatsa, Out of God's Oven: Travels in A Fractured Land, wrote: "India had the most brutally stupid middle-class in the world."

That observation comes to Moraes, a prolific and privileged man, after journeying through and writing about the world in the 1960s and 1970s. He returns in 1980 to India for good. In his remaining 25 years, he produces journalism, non-fiction, travelogues, while struggling through the desertion of his poetic muse that returns late in his life.

Moraes, like VS Naipaul, is dismayed with subcontinental poverty, violence and brutality, while awed by its cultural pasts. Owing to the stark class divide that has arisen due to India's struggles with tackling Covid-19, his comment has resurfaced online in recent days. In one way, Moraes' observation reeks of western condescension, but it carries insight that allies with concern: A society's fiercest critic is often its truest lover.

A mass of the middle-class of this country views the Covid-19 driven lockdown as an instance of the efficacy of the administration. Some members have gone on to question why poor people are walking from cities to the innards of rural India. Many, mainly middle-class people, have defended police excesses like spraying disinfectant on the walkers, or worse, converted the Tablighi Jamaat event in Delhi, into one about Muslim bashing.

There's proof that the Union Government didn't take the threat seriously at the time; law enforcement both at the Centre and Delhi State was lax; major shrines of other religions were open. But, none of those seem to matter. Our "Hindu-Muslim" framing is set.

This majority middle-class India lauds the Government when it sends airplanes for countrymen abroad who need to be retrieved to escape the coronavirus. But a hodgepodge quarantine for the unwashed masses is par for the Covid-19 course. It's easier and cheaper to send airplanes for a few Indians abroad, it's harder to arrange for transport for thousands of daily wagers in the big cities who belong to villages.

This urban middle-class India refuses to see their contradiction here. If the poor work so hard in the cities, why must any emergency make them leave the city to return to the village? Isn't the city their home too?

Your essayist departs from the Moraes rapier thrust into the Indian psyche. It was made long back. A part of it is true now. The India that he wrote of is removed from us. In some ways for the good, in many for the worse. A part of today's Indian middle-class is perhaps more brutal than it's stupid. It isn't ready to see the mess that's the lockdown: There have been 22 documented deaths of migrants while walking back to their villages; many have said they'd die of hunger before the coronavirus kills them. If our poor feel so, what does that mean about our boisterous nationalism?

India's urban culture has made the poor seem sub-human. Our poor are our invisible people. Almost no big country in the world that battles Covid-19 has witnessed its urban poor walk back to its native place. Our daily-wage workers slave in the cities for decades. Many even have papers that enlist them as domiciled residents. But they are made to feel that they really don't belong. There is middle class acceptance to their unbelonging. The collective emotion is one of wonder and disconcert: Ah, millions-are-marching to oh no, get-them-back-in-the-city! Yes, there are middle-class exceptions. But nobody has been able to convince them to stay back, least of all the Union Government. They banged plates saluting our healthcare workers the day the Prime Minister announced the lockdown. No sooner, they set foot for home.

However, it's essential to steer away from binaries: We may empathise with the urban poor but can't demonise the majority of India's urban middle-class. Many sections of today's collective urban middle-class, wasn't unlike the poor. Most of them have had tough lives, have seen their ancestors toil. They too came from villages some generations back. Exactly like today's urban poor, they lived cheek by jowl and were exploited.

One assumes, one's sufferings, makes one a better human being towards other sufferers. It's not true. Our middle class has its origins in discord. But they will behave exactly like their class superiors who exploit and may look down on them. That's why our poor are poor. Poet WH Auden, who encouraged Moraes as a teenaged poet, wrote in his poem "September 1, 1939": "I and the public know/What all school-children learn/Those to whom evil is done/Do evil in return". This moment sums up sub-continental middle-class mores.

Be ready to combat evil forces

The first calling of the present pandemic is not to panic. Should you panic, you may lose your sense of reasons and alert, which may not let you carry on your fight prudently in all strength. Let us brave the situation by exercising all the care and caution as suggested by the experts. We have braved many such pandemic in the past. Even this one will pass. Rest assured, the situation may begin to ease out soon.

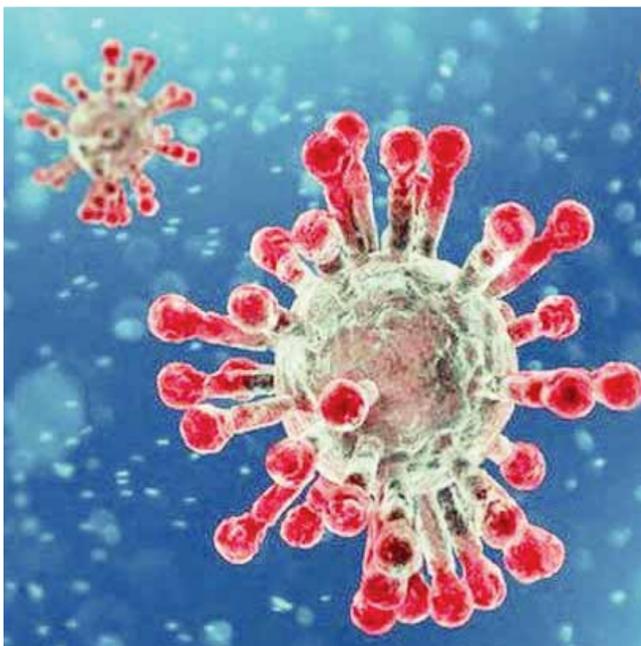

In the cosmic game plan, global health situation is figured out through a look at progressive movement of the Sun. That is about to reach its zenith on April 14th. Till then, watch your health carefully and remain live to our collective obligations as well. Situation may begin to gradually ease out thereafter. Once the Sun moves considerably beyond the Rahu-Ketu axis by June end, the situation may be expectedly be in control.

Even otherwise, if we ever lose our alertness and become complacent, we could be taken for a ride. Only a few days back, Chaitra navaratra got over, when the devout would have offered prayers to Mother Goddess Durga, believed to be repository of Shakti. Mind it, it is a period of major weather change in India when one needs to rejuvenate oneself and be well geared up to face the challenges during the emerging season. We maintain austerity and regulate our food regime to tone up our digestive system, vital to our overall health condition. Regular prayers help clear off the clutters of mind, regain confidence, and strengthen vital forces playing within.

It may be pertinent to note here that all ancient puranic stories necessarily discuss terror — fight between devtas (high born) and rakshas (demon), in which, the latter always have the first laugh. Why? Perhaps, the devtas would have been complacent, not been alert against impending danger from unseemly forces, and forgotten their sense of collective obligations. Hence their fall. But when all devtas gather, invoke the divine — the all-powerful and all-knowing eternal element of consciousness, which drives all our dynamic functionalities including power of knowing — they outsmart the demonic forces and regain their lost ground. Import of the above simile does not need any further elaboration.

Mother Goddess, in the form we perceive, is shown with 10 hands — carrying weapons in eight, a conch shell (blowing instrument) in one, and lotus flower in the other — having two imports. First, the ten directions. Second, the 10 sensory organs — five each of perception and action. She combats negative energies flowing through eight directions with her armouries, with the rest two marked with productivity.

The conch-shell when blown excites a sound note comparable to 'O' — the primal-sound that supposedly got excited when the first motion happened at the primordial source, which, in turn, excited the creation chain. The conch-shell thus naturally symbolises the source energy, up above in the cosmos. The majestic lotus flower in all colours made of numerous petals signifies enormity and diversity of creation. Mind it, lotus flower grows in the mud underneath water body. But not even a trace of mud or water droplet can stay on flower leaves, which implies that though being all-powerful, yet, she does not carry any sense of ego, or attachment to the primal elements making it.

The evil forces are in evidence all across, making us vulnerable to their onslaught. Their killing potential would be felt much faster and relatively cover a fairly wider range than our productive initiatives, which could take us for a ride if ever we become complacent. We, therefore, need to be fully on guard in a combative mode against the evil forces to make optimum use of our productive potential, vital to our existence.

Now, why weird form assigned to the demons? It is said that demons are conjurers, capable of hoodwinking us by making varied illusionary presences and take us for a ride. Remember, no such form-existence is in evidence anywhere in the world. It is so characterised just to exemplify in clear terms the danger inherent in the evil forces playing from within or beyond. Coronavirus could be taken as one form of unseen demonic force available in our surrounding carrying killing potential. Negative memory implants in our minds are another form of negative forces playing within, which often make us lose our sense of reasons and order that may cost us heavily. Let us be always war-ready to combat such demonic forces for a smooth sail of life.
