The effects of the lock- down have been tremendous in supply, demand, and the economy. The price of goods has disrupted, production activities have stopped, and the economy has been hit. The lock-down has not only caused con- sumption but also produced a crisis in the market to collapse. Therefore, the challenge at present is to safely and effectively re-activate the economic activities and sufficiently address the effects of the lock-down.

Given the unprecedented impact of the coro- navirus, conventional economic con- cepts are not enough. In this situation, one has to think of something entirely new. The lock-down was declared on March 24, 2020. After the lock-down, once again, after the lock-down is done away with. Thus the effects on one another are still felt today.

There has to be a focus on all marketing or communication without any restraint. The parts in which money will be spent to promote the economy. The lock-down / rules / implies temporarily closing all shops or businesses, and will establish a new entrepreneurial. For example. The lock-down is permitted to relax and follow only regulations on their own. Without oversight of the store entrance, sales and customers. Thus, the Distri- bution of existing building regulations and sales tax paid by required building per- manent of town planning departments. Connected to this is the suspension of event

When business is so serious and the coronavirus, the state which will allow them to operate safely, and will ultimately just shut down.

What happens to GST during the lock-down? GST is expect- ed to remain in some way or another. In practice, it will be levied only on fin- ited products and in materials and intermediates. Coupled with a suspension of cust- om duties, on this services, it will make the registration process in the country and border trade may continue.

Furthermore, all development- programmes will be col- lected in the lock-down. This will maintain the progress some time. An activity of the lock-down, the GST will not be collected in the forthcoming years. There is an assurance on this in the lock-down, the GST is not to be in the lock-down. Naibi who is sitting in a different field and is not political by misleading people, but rather is a leader of the PNS. Naibi is better than the lock-down, the lock-down has a proper way to the people. It has created a barrier to prevent the PNS from entering the lock-down.

Women the biggest losers

Gender-based consequences of Coronavirus make it imperative for both the administration and social networks to ensure that the pandemic does not negate the gains of gender equality

Gender-based consequences of Coronavirus make it imperative for both the administration and social networks to ensure that the pandemic does not negate the gains of gender equality. In a bid to protect the women and girls who have been on the back foot already, the Government and its further extensions must take this up as a top priority. The World Health Organisation (WHO) has repeatedly stated that the pandemic could trigger the worst down-

What are the implications of the pandemic on women and girls? While the pandemic has affected a large number of people, it has had a particularly severe impact on women and girls. The pandemic has exposed the existing gender inequalities and highlighted the need for urgent and effective action to address these issues. The gender-based consequences of the pandemic are severe and far-reaching, and they require urgent and effective action to mitigate their effects.

The pandemic has had a significant impact on women and girls in different ways. For example, women have been disproportionately affected by the pandemic in terms of employment, income, and access to essential services. Women in low-income households, for example, have lost income due to the closure of businesses and the reduction in demand for goods and services. Women in the informal sector, who make up a large proportion of the workforce, have been particularly vulnerable to job losses and income declines. Women have also faced increased domestic violence and stress due to the pandemic.

The pandemic has also had a significant impact on girls' education. School closures have disrupted girls' education, and the lack of access to digital technologies and the internet has made it even more difficult for girls to continue their education. Girls have also faced increased risk of child marriage and early pregnancy.

The pandemic has also highlighted the need for urgent and effective action to address the existing gender inequalities and to ensure that women and girls are not left behind in the recovery process. Women's access to essential services, such as healthcare and nutrition, is critical to their health and survival. Women's access to economic opportunities is also critical to their empowerment and independence. Women's participation in decision-making processes is critical to ensuring that their needs and perspectives are taken into account.

The pandemic presents an opportunity to address the existing gender inequalities and to ensure that women and girls are not left behind in the recovery process. This requires urgent and effective action by governments, civil society, and individuals to address the gender-based consequences of the pandemic and to ensure that women and girls are not left behind in the recovery process.

Focus on Women

Sounding off

Women in the global economy

The impact of the pandemic on women's economic opportunities and rights is significant. Women have lost jobs and livelihoods, and the pandemic has increased the risk of poverty and food insecurity. Women's access to healthcare and education has also been affected, and women have faced increased risks of violence and discrimination.

Women are also disproportionately affected by climate change. Women are more likely to be affected by extreme weather events, such as floods and droughts, and they have less access to resources and technologies to cope with these events. Women are also more likely to be affected by the impact of climate change on food and water security.

The pandemic provides an opportunity to address these gender-based consequences of the pandemic and to ensure that women and girls are not left behind in the recovery process. This requires urgent and effective action by governments, civil society, and individuals to address the gender-based consequences of the pandemic and to ensure that women and girls are not left behind in the recovery process.

New provisioning requirement has been met for March and June quarters and their profitability

The Reserve Bank of India has directed banks to meet 10 pc provisioning against non-performing assets (NPAs) to enhance profitability in financial year 2019-20 and 2020-21, according to a report.

As per our estimates, the expected 10 pc provisioning could increase total provisioning to Rs 3,000 cr in March and June quarters, which will be around 5 per cent of total systemic assets and 6 per cent of NPLs.

Such a large loan pool on public liability will also impact the capital position of banks, especially state-run banks, many of which continue to face problems related to stressed assets. This month, the Reserve Bank had extended the due date for meeting December 2019. It may also take some time to improve the overall NPL ratio in the second quarter of fiscal year 2020-21.

As per its guidance, the bank can meet the provision requirement in any one of the two quarters, March or June. But the bank can choose to meet it in both the quarters.

In the second quarter of financial year 2019-20, the bank’s NPL ratio was 5.2 per cent from 4.3 per cent in the previous quarter. In the first quarter of financial year 2020-21, the NPL ratio was 4.8 per cent.

Amazon assured that it will continue to follow the guidelines and deliver essential products

After the government barred delivery of non-essential items through a shopping platform, Amazon India, on Monday said it will now follow guidelines to deliver non-essential items by providing customers with additional services, like home delivery and pick-up from stores.

Amazon has been operating a non-essential home service to help customers with the ongoing nationwide lockdown. Under the new service, the company, on behalf of the government, is providing safe home delivery services to customers or pick-up services from stores, and said, “that this situation is rectified so that the customer can continue their daily life.”

According to the guidelines, the customer service executive will be informed in near future on a phone call. “This measure will help facilitate funds to the NBFC sector, we don’t expect any impact to the broader economy as a result of the lockdown. It is a calculated step to keep our employees safe – and will also help keep consumers safe,” the company said.

Mnuchin said that “this situation is rectified so that the customer can continue their daily life.”

CREATING AWARENESS WITH A DASH OF HUMOUR

YouTubers are making the most of the lockdown period to create awareness among public about the ongoing pandemic by making relatable content infused with humour, finds V SATISH REDDY

People are depressed with the extension of the lockdown. We want to take them out of this situation and that’s how What If Virus Is a Person happened. This is to spread positivity among people. Another YouTuber, Shoban Jagrathapadadaam, offering free time at home. I used these videos to educate and create awareness among people.

Due to the lockdown, people have been more conscious of hygiene, but we are also making fun of the situation. People are venturing out and ending up getting infected, so we’re trying to spread awareness. We are also doing the job of educating and creating awareness among people, albeit with humour.

Are disinfectant tunnels harmful to mankind?

Shikha Duggal speaks to Sathvika Gupta, Safety and Health officer on all the hygiene surrounding the Disinfectant Tunnels

Disinfectant tunnels have been modelled about these days. One of the biggest discussions Post the Coronavirus outbreak has been about these tunnels on whether or not they’re effective to kill the virus. A disinfectant tunnel is set up as a passage filled with agents that spray a disinfectant cloud of low-water content that passes through the tunnel to kill droplets on entrance. The recent introduction of these tunnels across the country led to the development of one such tunnel in Hyderabad too. On the current status of such a tunnel in the city, Sathvika Gupta, Safety and Health officer, adds that such tunnels are being provided to the factories that are open and make sure that staff follow the mandatory rules when sprayed on surfaces. ‘If sprayed on man, it causes health hazards. Ranging from skin disorders, burning of the skin, redness to blisters, etc., the disinfectant tunnels are not harmful,” the health officer says.

Comprising of 2-3 per cent sodium hypochlorite, this chemical compound can be used as an existing agent as the main ingredient to ward off infections using a disinfectant tunnel as suggested by the medical experts. Condemning the recent incident of disinfectant spray in a hospital, the health officer also says that while the malpractice is an issue, it is not something harmful to mankind.

The male cast, really the world continues to be nuanced.

In the middle episodes, the new season of the show has been enriched by Ishita Asthana’s tack as a film-maker. It is something that lets the cast stretch the job of their best. Savitri Gupta (Kirti Kulhari), Anjana (Kirti Kulhari), Maanvi Gagroo, and Sayani Gupta, who play same-sex stories, are enriched by the presence of Damini, leaving their antics and the lines they get to work. Ishita Asthana’s tack as a film-maker.

Chiru donates blood

With health authorities facing severe shortage of blood, all the Telugu, Mollywood and Tollywood people are donating blood and come to the rescue of needy patients. “It’s a responsibility for us,” the actor said.

Across reports where people have passed away because of death of blood, the actor said, he donated blood at his house, on Monday. Responding to Chiru’s call, Akkineni, his son Joshua, Sitarama Charyula and his children donated blood at Chiranjeevi Eye and Blood bank.

Chiru also suggested that his fans need not fear that the patient will beat up donors. “Nobody will do you any harm on the road to donate blood. Once you accept to donate blood, your mobile will get a code from blood bank. You can show it to the donor. You can show it to the donor and ensure that lockdown is followed properly,” he said addressing the fans.

Chiranjeevi has given a new base of blood, in view of the patients. “The responsibility lies with everyone. The responsibility lies with leaders. The responsibility lies with us, the leaders and people. We need to be responsible to the society. We need to come forward in this crisis and face the challenge. We need to come forward in this situation. We need to be together,” he added.
