The Supreme Court Monday sought the Centre’s reply on a plea taken out by the National Journalists Union of India (NJIU) that the government should take effective steps to prevent the reduction in journalists’ salaries due to the coronavirus lockdown. A bench comprising Justices U U Lalit and K M Joseph took note of the Centre’s contention that the salaries of journalists were being decided autonomously by the respective state governments and directed the Centre to file a reply on April 29 seeking details of the arrangements made by the state governments to combat the coronavirus pandemic.

The court was hearing a PIL filed by the Union government, which contended that the Centre did not have powers to ensure that the salaries of journalists were paid. The Centre said the salaries of journalists are determined by respective state governments, which have to be consulted in this regard.

Meanwhile, the Raj Bhavan premises were responsible for the lockdown as they are only for the use of the Governor, the Governor’s residence and the First Lady. It was also learnt that the Rio Bhavan is occupied by staff of the AGM and the Chief Secretary and the peace of mind was not disturbed.

ASHA workers’ survey: a ray of hope to defeat pandemic

Women play online rummi to beat lockdown boredom

Bharati (name withheld) says, “Sometimes, I feel proud of my community in this situation. But, I am still thinking about how I can help my community through the radio.”

The Ministry of Women and Child Development has launched a radio campaign titled “Bharat Ke Asha Diwas,” which aims to engage with ASHa workers and spread awareness about the importance of the ASHa program.

As a citizen, Bharati is not alone in seeking ways to contribute during this time of crisis. Many people around the world are finding creative ways to support their communities, whether through online gatherings or traditional methods of communication. The ASHa program is an essential part of India’s healthcare infrastructure, providing critical services to rural populations.

ASHA workers, like Bharati, are working tirelessly to ensure that essential health services continue to be provided despite the challenges posed by the pandemic. Their dedication and commitment are inspiring, and their efforts are crucial in helping to contain the spread of COVID-19.

In addition to the ASHA program, other organizations and individuals are also stepping up to address the needs of their communities. Whether through donation drives, food distribution, or providing essential items, people are coming together to support one another.

As the world continues to navigate through this pandemic, it is important to recognize and celebrate the work of the ASHa workers and other heroes who are making a difference in their communities. By working together, we can overcome the challenges we face and emerge stronger on the other side. Let us continue to support each other in this fight.
India is one of 27 countries that will start vaccinating the population in the first phase, as the second wave of the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic continues, in Mumbai, India, January 1, 2021. More than a year after the outbreak of the epidemic, the country is moving towards a larger phase of vaccination. The first phase will include healthcare workers, frontline workers, and nationals above 50 years of age. It is expected that the second phase of vaccination will begin in February and cover those aged 40 and above.

Defining essential

A huge debate has erupted over what constitutes essentials. Is it even worth a discussion? Focus must be on the economy — not individuals — and for that we must agree on essentials.

On March 27, in a bid to rescue the economy devastated by the Coronavirus, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Governor Shaktikanta Das unveiled a series of policy announcements with a view to lowering the cost of credit and stabilizing the economy. These include a reduction in policy rates, increases in liquidity injections to the country’s financial system, reduction of the cash reserve ratio, and a stimulus package for small and medium enterprises.

While these measures are undoubtedly a welcome step in the right direction, it is important to note that they are not a panacea. The Indian economy is facing a profound and complex crisis, and while these policies are a good start, they are unlikely to be sufficient on their own to address the challenges we face.

The government needs to take additional steps to support the transition from a crisis-driven economy to a more sustainable and resilient one. This could include further stimulus measures, targeted support for vulnerable sectors, and a focus on long-term economic growth and development.

In conclusion, the RBI’s actions are a positive step, but we need to continue to support businesses and workers during these uncertain times. The road ahead will be challenging, but with the right policies and support, we can emerge stronger and more resilient.

From saving food and money to spending time with our loved ones and experimenting new things, the lockdown has taught us many lessons and unlearned various things. Assessing the world post the advent of the COVID-19 pandemic, The PIONEER’s V SATHEES REDDY and SHIKHA DUGGAAL talks about the various lessons the lockdown taught us.

All this changed suddenly as the virus made people work from home. More than half of the 167 employees in the company had worked from home. It took them two weeks to settle into the new routine. “Women are all strides ahead of the men at this point,” explained one employee. “It taught us many things about family life. Unlike a factory, employees can work from home without disturbing the household chores. They began to appreciate their loved ones even more than before. Employers now give employees more vacation time as a gesture of thanks for their efforts.”

Before the lockdown, many companies had employed 50% women. “Now, we have seen an increase to 65% in the workforce due to the lockdown,” said one employee. “It has also helped us identify more women who can be part of the workforce and contribute.”

Many women have taken on the role of caregiver and mother during the lockdown. They have also been living in a fast-paced life and haven’t had any time to pursue other interests and chores. With the lockdown, many women have been able to take care of their families and also pursue their own interests.

The lockdown has also encouraged a healthy lifestyle among people. Many have taken up new hobbies and interests. The government has also encouraged people to take up outdoor activities and stay healthy.

The International Cricket Council (ICC) announced on Monday that the Pakistan Super League season will not be held in Pakistan due to the coronavirus outbreak. The event was scheduled to take place in Lahore and Karachi from late March to early April.
SHARWANAND has a choice to make

The actor is also in discussions with Sriram Aditya for a new project, which is an emotional romantic-comedy, finds NAGARAJ GOUD

B y now, it’s clear that Sharwanand has agreed to work with Karthik in his next film this year. While film with Sekhar Kammula has been announced on the actor’s birthday last month, Karthik, who is a debutant director, has been keeping mum about his project with Sharwanand. Sources say it’s the same project that Sharwanand, who signed the deal in late February, had earlier tied up with a couple of other filmmakers. Later, because the actor was off immediately after he wrapped up with other assignments, the project was skipped.

Sharwanand is currently working on a Telugu-Tamil bilingual project. Sources say it’s a sequel of an emotional romantic-comedy for the actor. “We will not change anything,” he told the media about working with Karthik. Sources add that Sharwanand has already gone through the final drafts of all the three films mentioned. If Sharwanand’s chance for the role is any between the two projects, he will do the Telugu film first. Sharwanand needs to wrap up his work in another upcoming project—Kabir Sanu in which he plays a role of a villain. Sources say he is not sure whether the actor will give precedence to Aditya’s script or not. Also, sources say Sharwanand has already narrated the script of the bill project and the actress. He has just finalized the four pairs of the family. Ajay Bhupathi, who has written the script of the film, is making it a part of his project. The actor will never give up four pairs to anyone. The actor himself does all the shooting.

For making an impressive debut with Ajaydev’s Rancho, Siddy is geared up for her second film. The actor has given her consent to first-time Mitri, who in the past has worked with Naga Chaitanya, Nandita Swetha and Manchu Manoj.

A cting Artistas association members Rama, Swapna Viyya, Nitya Kishor, Kalyan, Srinivas, Vinay, Parasuram, Nandana, and Sree among others have come forward to help the employees of the industry who don’t possess a valid union card. While daily wage employees who have cards belonging to different unions of 24 crafts of filmmaking seem already assisted, they are still facing the problem of not getting the membership cards. They’ve decided to help them taking into consideration the present situation.

There are numerous unions, and each union has its own cards. We’ve decided to help them taking into consideration the present situation. They are the ones who take care of us,” said Vinay.
