Expressing concern, Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh said that 23 Ministers and MLAs were coronavirus positive two days before the session. The Chief Minister, sharing the figure during a video conference convened by Congress president Sonia Gandhi with the Chief Ministers of seven Opposition-ruled states to discuss various issues, said: “As of today, two days before the scheduled Punjab Vidhan Sabha session, 23 Ministers/MLAs were Covid positive. If this is the state of the legislators and ministers, one can only imagine how grave the situation on the ground is.”

As per the guidelines issued by the Vidhan Sabha secretariat, only the MLAs or officers, with corona negative report, can enter the building and attend the session. Even as the reports of some MLAs are awaited, those tested negative will be allowed to attend the session wearing face masks and maintaining social distancing norms with each member occupying one bench, which is meant for two MLAs. At the same time, as per the protocol set by the Health Department, anyone coming in contact of the COVID positive patient has to go into isolation. Any person who has come in contact with the positive patient, for few hours and shared the room, has to isolate herself and think that they not only have to quarantine but also that person should be for at least a week and maximum for 12 days, according to the Health Department. Senior officials of the Health Department said, “AAP and SAD had conducted their legislative party meetings on Tuesday also attended by the MLAs who have now been found corona positive.”

Congress in a mess

The major difference in focus that these two groups are required to do it, is that there is a need for a strategic change by the Congress to make it relevant to the masses.

The leadership has failed to inspire confidence among the masses. The party's policy is not only vague but also unpalatable.
The transformation of the AG system from the one of information management to strategy-making is tremendous. An accountant, who was a back-end person, has been catapulted to the forefront. Today, in addition to the traditional tasks of accounting, more and more accountants are expected to be involved in the strategic decision-making processes of enterprises, including strategic management, financial analysis, and investment decision-making. This is a huge challenge for accountants, who must continuously update their knowledge and skills in order to keep pace with the rapid changes in the business environment.

The transformation of the AG system is also reflected in the increasing importance of AI and big data. AI can help accountants to make predictions and forecasts, while big data can help them to analyze large amounts of financial data. This is a major breakthrough in the field of accounting, which will likely lead to a new era of accounting and finance.

However, the transformation of the AG system also poses certain challenges. For example, there is a need for accountants to constantly update their knowledge and skills in order to keep pace with the rapid changes in the business environment. Additionally, there is a need for accountants to be able to work effectively with AI and big data, which requires a high level of technical proficiency.

In conclusion, the transformation of the AG system is a major development in the field of accounting and finance. It is likely to lead to a new era of accounting and finance, but it also poses certain challenges. Accountants must be prepared to adapt to these changes in order to remain relevant in the field.

Washington: The United States Treasury Department on Wednesday blacklisted 24 Chinese firms over their involvement in building artificial islands in disputed waters in the South China Sea, taking part in building artificial islands and activities threatening the United States and the stability of the region.

The announcement came as China called on Washington to stop its actions, while Australia said it was considering imposing sanctions on Chinese individuals.

Kabul: Heavy flooding has killed at least 100 people and stranded scores of others in central Afghanistan after heavy seasonal rains drenched the northern and eastern regions of the country, officials said Wednesday.

Nearly 1,500 acres on the outskirts of the capital have been inundated with water, said state Finance Minister Abdul Malik Paiman in a statement.

The 24 companies were placed on the Treasury Department’s “ Entity List,” a move that could mean the companies will not be able to operate in the United States.

Chinese president Hu, visiting in Washington the same day, also had talks with US leaders.

CHANGE BEGINS AT HOME

Aruna Shresha talks to activists to find out why it is important to have a Gender Equality Day to remind people of the futility of binaries.

The day is often observed to commemorate the 1918 victory of American women for the right to vote. The amendment provided American women the constitutionally guaranteed right to vote. The year 1918 is considered the birth of an individual. So, we should not celebrate our individual and personal rights of women without reflecting upon the past and present experiences of women. The day is actually in the process of creating a social change and a change of mindset.

Patriarchy says, “All of us should commemorate by going to the movies, drinking and eating in a single country, where there is full gender equality.” Kamla Bhasin says she. “I don’t think so. I feel that every single day is a fight.”

It’s not every single day to be celebrated by men and women. It’s the day of struggle, where patriarchy is a structural change, where we can be a part of it. We must not use it for entertaining or being. All of us contribute to be celebrated because it influences the existing social order and social norms. I feel that this day needs to be celebrated by both men and women. It needs to be a part of men’s lives as well but no one is helping men and trans-genders in making it. It shouldn’t happen and put in those things which are good for women—like this. Parameter doesn’t describe us. We are equals but we are not equal. We face the same difficulty on our way. We are the victims, we are not the perpetrators. We are the creators, the ones who are subjected to this. As a single country, where there is full gender equality, the men of India, get advantage of the same. As a single country, where there is full gender equality, the women of India, get advantage of the same. We have to think about our actions, the way they see our cinema. “Feminism, to me, is not for those who suffer more than us to do a better job of feeling our pain. I tried to make a difference through my work. I put so much pressure on them. Smallest of efforts count, “ adds he.

Gender need to be beyond binaries today, but feels that India needs more feminist. “Feminism, to me, is not about special status. It’s about treating people equally. We need to aggressively change the way we see gender. We need to look at people from the interest of caste, religion, economic status and other factors. Gender equality is about de-aggrandizement. It is just the binary.

Barcelona still hoping Messi will stay

AS AT BARCELONA

Barcelona hansard group on Sunday lost its first of four votes to keep Lionel Messi at the Nou Camp last month, which, as is usually the case, led to a tug of war involving Catalonia, the region of Spain where the club is based. The club president, Joan Laporta, said it was a matter of time before Messi left.

A man without a football club

Lionel Messi's career at Barcelona has been marked by his ability to win trophies and challenges. He has been a key member of the Spanish national team and has helped the club win numerous domestic and international titles. However, his time at the Nou Camp has also been marred by a number of controversies, including alleged tax fraud and rifts with club officials.

Messi's first contract with the club was signed on a napkin after a lunch with club officials. Just the burofax. It's a procedure in Spain, similar to a Telegram — that is, an official document. If the club wanted something to be true, they would sign the document. Nothing about them. They are not comfortable for everybody. Barcelona fan Oriol Aznar said. "This board of directors has decided to punish Leo for the last time in his career."

Messi's first contract ended in December 2004, and he was signed to a new contract that allowed him to leave for another club if he wanted. The contract was renewable until 2021. However, the club has always insisted that Messi is not for sale, and that any attempt to sign him would be illegal. The club has also refused to negotiate with other clubs over the transfer of Messi, arguing that it would be against competition rules.

Messi's agent, Jorge Mendes, has been involved in negotiations with a number of clubs, including Manchester City, Paris Saint-Germain, and Inter Milan. However, the club has always insisted that he is not for sale, and that any attempt to sign him would be illegal. The club has also refused to negotiate with other clubs over the transfer of Messi, arguing that it would be against competition rules.

Messi's contract ends in June 2021. The club has always insisted that he is not for sale, and that any attempt to sign him would be illegal. The club has also refused to negotiate with other clubs over the transfer of Messi, arguing that it would be against competition rules.

The club's vice president, Oscar Grau, said in an interview last week that the club wants to buy back the 10% of the player's image rights that it owns. The club has always insisted that he is not for sale, and that any attempt to sign him would be illegal.
