President Gotabaya Rajapaksa has declared a key approach as the key to strategies taken by the government in management and governance. This approach has been emphasized to the media and the public as a strategic direction of the government. The approach is not only related to commercial activities but is also directed towards strengthening the voice of the local community.

The President's announcement came during a press conference held recently. In the address, the President highlighted the importance of local governance and emphasized the need for a more inclusive and participatory approach to decision-making. He further stated that the government would focus on creating a more transparent and accountable system of governance that would benefit the common man.

The President also emphasized the need for a more robust and effective system of checks and balances to ensure that the government's actions are in line with the public interest. He called for a stronger role for the media and civil society in monitoring the government's performance.

In a related development, the President's announcement was met with mixed reactions from political parties. While some welcomed the approach and praised the President for taking a bold step, others criticized it as a ploy to divert attention from the government's failures.

The approach was also expected to have implications for the country's economic policies. The government has been under pressure to improve its economic performance, and the President's announcement was seen as a step in that direction.

In conclusion, the President's key approach is expected to shape the government's policies and strategies in the coming months. It remains to be seen how effectively this approach will be implemented, and whether it will lead to positive changes in the country.

The President has declared that the government is committed to ensuring the safety and well-being of all its citizens. The government has taken several measures to contain the spread of the virus, including lockdowns and quarantines. The government has also been providing essential services such as healthcare and food to those in need.

In addition to these measures, the government has also emphasized the importance of personal responsibility in preventing the spread of the virus. The President has called on all citizens to take appropriate precautions, such as wearing masks, maintaining social distancing, and washing their hands regularly.

These efforts have helped to contain the spread of the virus, and the number of cases has been declining. The government has also been focusing on vaccination, and a significant number of people have been vaccinated so far.

Meanwhile, the government is working on developing a long-term strategy to deal with the virus. The President has stated that the government will continue to monitor the situation and take appropriate action as needed.

Pakistani rejects ‘fabricated’ NIA chargesheet in Pulwama attack

New Delhi: Javed-faced Pakistan has rejected the charges issued by the National Investigation Agency (NIA), following the charges against its nationals in the Pulwama attack. Pakistan has rejected the charges as ‘fabricated’ and has demanded an apology from the Indian government.

The charges were issued against four Pakistanis, who are accused of being involved in the Pulwama attack. The government has said that the evidence against them is strong, and that they should be tried in accordance with the law.

However, Pakistan has accused India of fabricating evidence and of using political motivations to undermine their case. Pakistan has also demanded an apology from the Indian government for the charges.

up the best any attempt by the BJP to capitalize the gold smuggling story. Here, police sources confidence that the hotel has enough gold stock to satisfy any investigation taking place. But within hours the room in which the gold coins were discovered was sealed off and the hotel reneged on their promise to allow entry by the police and media. Sources familiar with the investigation said that the hotel management has refused to allow any media or investigation team to enter the room where the gold coins were discovered. This is the second such incident in the past few weeks where the police have had to deal with the situation of gold smuggling. The police have also been criticized for their handling of the situation, with some accusing them of covering up the crime. The police have denied these allegations, saying they are investigating the matter thoroughly and will take appropriate action.

Kerala BJP govt; Cong leaders for secretariat trespas

The Kerala government has ordered an investigation into the alleged act of sabotage in the secretariat. The Cong leaders have demanded an explanation from the government for the acts of vandalism.

The Protocol Wing of the secretariat was set on fire on Tuesday evening. The Cong argued that the act was an attempt to sabotage the ongoing investigation into the gold smuggling case.

Kerala leader K Surendran, president, KPCC, who filed a case for the act of sabotage, said that the fire was set in an attempt to prevent the investigation from proceeding. He added that the Cong would demand a probe into the matter and that the accused should be held accountable.

The Cong leaders also alleged that the government was behind the act, as it was trying to prevent the investigation into the gold smuggling case. The Cong leaders demanded that the government apologize for the acts of vandalism and that the accused be punished.

The Cong leaders also demanded that the government take action against the accused and that the government should take steps to prevent similar incidents from happening in the future.

India had to wait for a long time to get the first woman judge appointed in the country. Thirty-six years ago, they were a long gap that needed to be bridged. The gap was too long to neglect and to allow for a future that will not see the rise of women judges. The result is that the women judges are now a part of the judicial system.

Sonia Gandhi's leadership is under question as she is being accused of nepotism and favoritism. Her daughter, Rahul Gandhi, has been a controversial figure in Indian politics. He has been criticized for his role in the 2008 financial crisis. But his leadership style is being praised for being democratic and inclusive.

The Centre has recently announced a new education policy which aims to focus on the development of the human mind and to make education more accessible to all sections of society. The policy includes provisions for free education for all, the establishment of a national university, and the introduction of a new curriculum.

The Indian education system has been criticized for being too intellectual and not being able to provide the right education to the students. The new policy aims to address this issue by focusing on the development of the mind. The policy also includes provisions for the development of new technologies in education and the use of technology to make education more accessible.

The policy has been welcomed by many, but there are still concerns about its implementation. The government will need to ensure that the new policy is implemented properly and that the necessary resources are available to make education more accessible to all sections of society.

The government has also announced a series of measures to increase the number of women judges in the judiciary. These measures include providing more training and support to women judges, as well as increasing the number of female law students.

The new education policy is a step in the right direction, but it will require a lot of effort and resources to be implemented properly. The government will need to ensure that the new policy is implemented properly and that the necessary resources are available to make education more accessible to all sections of society.

Turkey warns Greece not to test its patience over Med - AP

Turkey's foreign ministry said Wednesday that Greece was "testing Ankara's patience" over a dispute between the two countries over islands in the eastern Mediterranean.

"The latest act of provocation and the continued provocative stance of the Greek government have raised serious concerns," the ministry said in a statement.

The statement came amid rising tensions between Turkey and Greece over the new islands Greece has announced it will use as war bases for its warships.

"The Greek government's actions and statements are extremely serious and require important steps," the ministry said.

Greece has been warning Turkey that it is planning to use the new islands as a base for its ships in the eastern Mediterranean, where a dispute over islands has been brewing.

The Greek government has been using the islands for military exercises and training exercises.

"This is a clear violation of international law and norms of international relations," the ministry said.

The ministry also warned that Greece's actions could lead to a "dangerous escalation" in the region.

"We reserve the right to take any necessary steps to protect our national interests and territorial integrity," the ministry said.

Turkey and Greece have been at odds over a long-standing dispute over the ownership of islands and waters in the eastern Mediterranean.

Turkey says the islands were historically part of its territory, while Greece argues they are an integral part of its own national territory.

The two countries have been engaged in a series of tense escalations over the islands in recent months.

Turkey has also been warning that it could take military action against Greece if it continued to build new islands in the region.

The ministry's statement came after Greece announced it would use the islands as a base for its ships and military exercises.

"It is time for Greece to stop its provocations and respect international law," the ministry said.

"We call on the Greek government to refrain from any actions that would exacerbate the situation and risk provoking an international crisis," the ministry said.

The move comes amid growing tensions between the two countries over other issues, including Greece's plans to step up its military presence in the eastern Mediterranean.

Washington: The United States announced a new economic sanction against China on Wednesday, shocking Beijing and its allies.

"We are deeply concerned by China’s actions," U.S. Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer said in a statement.

"These actions are in violation of international law and norms of international relations," he said.

The United States has been increasing its pressure on China in recent months, seeking to reduce the country’s trade surplus and force it to open its markets to U.S. goods and services.

"We will take further action if China does not act in a manner consistent with its commitments," Lighthizer said.

China has yet to respond to the U.S. announcement, but Beijing has been warning Washington that it will use its own economic tools to counter any measures it perceives as unfair or unjust.

"We will take all necessary measures," China’s Commerce Ministry said on Tuesday.

"We will take strong countermeasures if the United States makes wrong decisions," it added.

The move comes as the United States and China are trying to work out a trade agreement to end their latest round of tit-for-tat tariffs.

"We hope the United States can take a positive and constructive attitude," the commerce ministry said.

"We also hope that the United States can show respect and tolerance to China as an emerging market economy," it added.

Need to embrace changes: Anushka

Actor ANUSHKA SHARMA, who is riding on back to back successes as a producer with Phantom, Law and Bhushun, feels that even after the virus has changed how shoots can happen, Hollywood will quickly adapt to the challenge.

"Our industry is good at taking precautions to ensure the safety of the cast and crew," says Anushka. "But when we will be able to fly back to the US later this year, we will have to deal with a lot of issues." She feels that the US producers have already started dealing with the situation, which makes the Indian film industry look like a pathfinder. "But it's a challenging time."

Need to depict gender differently

Bhumi Pednekar is a real voice who has achieved her status as a Bollywood actress on the basis of her powerful performances and not just because she is a female. Bhumi feels that there is a need to depict gender differently.

"Being an artist who is changing the society and the way we perceive gender, things are at a nascent stage."

Bhumi says that many people are still not aware of the fact that she is a female artist. "My art is not just about how the media perceives me and what other people think of me. It is about what I feel and what I want to express through my art."

World No 1 Novak Djokovic won his 20th Grand Slam title with a straight-sets win in Saturday’s US Open final. The defending champion, who was hobbled by a foot injury throughout the tournament, found his form in time for the final, where he triumphed 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 over his compatriot Medvedev, who was aiming for his first Grand Slam title.

The victory extended Djokovic’s record to 20 Grand Slam titles, matching Federer and Nadal. The Serb, who will now be ranked No 1, will next play against young Austrian Dominic Thiem in the ATP Finals in London. With his victory, Djokovic also extended his record to 20 Grand Slam titles, matching Federer and Nadal.

Meanwhile, American John Isner won the US Open men’s singles title, defeating Grigor Dimitrov of Bulgaria in the final. Isner, who was making his second straight appearance in the US Open final, defeated the Bulgarian 6-4, 7-6 (7-5), 6-4 to win his first Grand Slam title.

Serena suffers shock exit

Indian tennis star Sania Mirza has been eliminated from the US Open women’s doubles tournament. Mirza, who had reached the quarter-finals last year, was paired with Russian partner Matveeva in the doubles. The pair lost to Timea Babos and Kristina Mladenovic of Hungary in the quarter-finals.

In the men’s singles, Rafael Nadal of Spain and Novak Djokovic of Serbia advanced to the semi-finals. Nadal defeated American Sam Querrey 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, while Djokovic defeated Austrian Dominic Thiem 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

In other matches, John Isner of the US defeated Grigor Dimitrov of Bulgaria 6-4, 7-6 (7-5), 6-4, while Novak Djokovic of Serbia defeated American Sam Querrey 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Meanwhile, the US Open’s new ‘no-spectator’ policy has come under criticism. The US Tennis Association announced that no spectators would be allowed at the event due to the ongoing coronavirus pandemic.
