AIIB IN DISCUSSION WITH INDIA FOR FINANCING HEALTH INFRA SCHEME

The Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB) is in discussion with the Indian government for financing a USD 8-billion scheme for improving health infrastructure at the district level to make the country better prepared for the future healthcare challenges. The Beijing-based multilateral funding agency had earlier approved a financial assistance of USD 1.2 billion for India to fight the COVID-19 pandemic. "The Government of India has discussed about its ambitious scheme of strengthening the health infrastructure. It entails building health infrastructure in every district including upgrading of testing facilities with the ICMR," AIIB Vice President D J Pandian said.

CENTRE TO STATES, UTs: ALLOW COVID PATIENTS TO USE SMARTPHONES

The Centre has written to all states and UTs stating that smartphones and tablet devices should be allowed for hospitalised Covid patients so that they can interact with family and friends through video conferencing, which would provide them psychological support. Though mobile phones are allowed in hospital wards, the missive was issued following some representation from the kin of patients alleging otherwise. DGHS in the Health Ministry Dr Rajiv Garg said appropriate protocols for disinfecting devices and allotting timeslots can be developed by the hospital concerned to facilitate contact between patients and their family.

ICMR PLANS TO SET UP REGISTRY OF HOSPITALISED COVID-19 PATIENTS

A registry of hospitalised COVID-19 patients across the country is being mooted to collect real time data which will help improve treatment outcomes, analyse trends in the progression of the pandemic and calibrate response, officials said. The ICMR in collaboration with the Health Ministry and the AIIMS is planning to set up the National Clinical Registry which will help researchers and policy makers understand effectiveness of investigational therapies, adverse effects taking place and generate evidence for improving the treatment of COVID-19 patients.

IMD PLANS TO USE AI IN WEATHER FORECASTING

The India Meteorological Department is planning to use artificial intelligence in weather forecasting, especially for issuing nowcasts, which can help improve 3-6 hours prediction of extreme weather events, its Director General Mrunujay Mohapatra said on Sunday. He said the use of artificial intelligence and machine learning is not as prevalent as it is in other fields and it is relatively new in the area of weather forecasting. The IMD has invited research groups who can study how AI be used for improving weather forecasting and Ministry of Earth Sciences is evaluating their proposals, Mohapatra said.

TS eyes Rs 30k cr non-tax revenues

HYDERABAD

As Covid-19 has decimated tax revenues of the state government right from the start of FY 2020-21, the Telangana State government is now eyeing non-tax revenues amounting to Rs 30,000 crore for the remaining eight months.

Towards this end, the government is considering regularisation and sale of prime land acquired under the Urban Land Ceiling Act in Hyderabad and Rangareddy districts, sale of Rajiv Swagruha flats, and auction of sand reaches.

The government has obtained data from the Revenue Department on the status of ULC lands in Hyderabad and Rangareddy districts, where real estate commands huge value. As per available data, Hyderabad district has dispute-free ULC lands to an extent of 2,600 acres. Another 500 acres of ULC lands is embroiled in

Another 500 acres of ULC lands is embroiled in legal disputes

In Rangareddy district, there are 2,083 acres of ULC lands which are dispute-free and 1,369 acres involved in legal disputes

As per available data, Hyderabad district has dispute-free ULC lands to an extent of 2,600 acres has found that ULC lands in Rangareddy district are located in prime mandals like Sherlingampally, Uppal, Balanagar, Ghatkesar, Hayathnagar, Keesara, Medchal, Malkajgiri, Quthbullapur, Rajendranagar and Saroornagar.

This apart, the sale of 3,700 fully/partially completed Rajiv Swagruha flats by lowering their prices to 'realistic' levels is also being seriously considered. Previous attempt to sell off these flats had proved futile as buyers felt that the prices fixed were 'unrealistic'. So, the government has directed the Housing Department to come with 'realistic prices' to pave way for the sale of Rajiv Swagruha flats with a target to garner Rs 1,800 crore.

Another source of non-tax revenue on which the government has pinned its hopes is auctioning of sand reaches. The government hopes to garner Rs 2,000 crore through auctioning of sand reaches.

legal disputes. The government wants to earn non-tax revenues by regularising ULC lands for a considerable fee if they are found to be in the possession of individuals and meet eligibility criteria and sell off the remaining ULC lands. The government has sought legal opinion on moving forward with regard to ULC lands involving legal disputes. The Revenue Department's data revealed that in Rangareddy district, there are 2,083 acres of ULC lands which are dispute-free and 1,369 acres involved in legal disputes. Since each acre fetches several crores of rupees in Hyderabad and Rangareddy districts, the state government hopes to garner thousands of crores by regularising and selling off ULC lands. The Revenue Department

Asymptomatic patients spreading corona in villages

In all, 10 persons tested positive from Arvapalli village, Nalgonda Dist

K VENKATESHWARLU
HYDERABAD

There is a paradoxical situation in rural areas when it comes to those infected with Covid-19. For, asymptomatic carriers of the virus are apparently spreading it fast, while those who had tested positive are recovering under home quarantine without raising any concerns. Amidst all this, the rising numbers of positive cases have spread panic in many rural areas.

In Arvapalli, a small village in erstwhile Nalgonda district, several people attended the funeral rites of their close relative recently. However, 10 among those persons developed fever and cough the very next day. They did not take their symptoms seriously. However, when one among them went for tests after his coughing increased, it turned out that he was Covid-19 positive. Then three of the rest also went for tests later and one of them tested positive. Likewise, four of one family and two of another family tested positive. In all, 10 persons tested positive from this village. Upon coming to know about this, several other persons, who had attended the funeral rites and come in contact with the persons who later tested positive, also went for tests. They are waiting for the results.

Corona treatment never costly, says Eatala

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

The 1,350-bed Telangana Institute of Medical Sciences (TIMS) has been converted into a full-fledged Covid-19 hospital and the facility has intensive care units and ventilators. This is in addition to the facilities at Gandhi Hospital, which is now treating Corona positive cases mainly, according to Minister for Health Eatala Rajender.

Speaking to media after visiting TIMS at Gachchi Bowli here on Sunday, the Minister, who went round the hospital, exhorted people with Corona symptoms to get hospitalised immediately. He expressed concern over symptomatic people delaying hospitalisation by four or five days, thereby aggravating their condition. Those who test positive

1,891 CORONA CASES, 10 DEATHS IN TELANGANA

HYDERABAD: Telangana reported 1,891 new corona positive cases and 10 deaths on Saturday, taking the overall death toll to 540 and the cumulative number of positive cases in the State to 66,677. The State health authorities conducted 19,202 Covid-19 tests over Friday and Saturday night and the results of 1,656 more swab samples are awaited. So far, 4, 77, 795 swab samples have been tested in the State since the outbreak of the pandemic, of which 66, 677 proved positive. As many as 1,088 persons recovered by Saturday evening, pushing the overall number of recoveries in the State to 47, 590 and registering a recovery rate of 71.3 percent, while the countrywide recovery rate averages at 64.53 per cent.

Amit Shah tests positive for coronavirus, admitted to hospital

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Sunday informed that he has tested positive for coronavirus and has been advised by the doctors to be admitted to the hospital. Taking to Twitter, Shah said that he underwent coronavirus test after getting the initial symptoms of the virus. He also appealed to people who have come in contact with him in the last few days to isolate themselves and get tested.

AMITABH TESTS COVID-19 NEGATIVE, DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL

MUMBAI: Megastar Amitabh Bachchan is heading home after testing Covid-19 negative, shared his son and actor Abhishek Bachchan on Sunday. "@juniorbachchan my father, thankfully, has tested negative on his latest Covid-19 test and has been discharged from the hospital. He will now be at home and rest. Thank you all for all your prayers and wishes for him." Abhishek tweeted.

Five women slip into well, two die

PNS ■ KHAMMAM

In a tragic incident, five women slipped into an agricultural well in Konijarla mandal of Khammam district on Sunday when its bank caved in while they were drinking of its water.

Two of them died instantly, while the others were rescued by a passer-by.

The deceased were identified as Tuppati Pedda Rama, 38, and Bandaru Mallika, 30. The rescued women have been admitted to a hospital in the vicinity.

In fact, nine women had gone to a paddy field for transplantation work on Sunday. All of them went to the well in the field around 3 pm to drink water.

Covid impact: Raksha Bandhan goes digital this year

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

With travel restrictions and physical distancing becoming the new normal this year, traditional visits to our siblings for Rakhi this year are being substituted by virtual Rakhis sent online.

Major e-commerce sites have seen massive jump in the number of orders placed for rakhis and e-gifts given the restrictions and apprehensions about travel and social distancing. Snapdeal saw rakhi orders jumping three-fold as more users have opted to buy or send Rakhis online. Adding to the trend, Snapdeal's shoppers moved to completely digital solutions for Raksha Bandhan this year by choosing E-Gift cards as the topmost Rakhi gift. The platform witnessed a surge in the sale of digital gift cards two weeks before Raksha bandhan. It logged an increase of 70 percent in the sale of these cards, vis-a-vis last year, the company announced in a statement.

Last year, travel accessories like go-pro mounts, selfie sticks, and backpacks were widely picked as Raksha Bandhan gifts. Ethnic clothes were also widely bought as gifting. This year, as India continues to be cautious of the virus, digital gift cards saw a big boost in sales.

"The number of Rakhis sold this year exceeds the number of Rakhis sold in the last two years combined. This is primarily due to the shoppers exercising caution and avoiding the festival linked travel," the company said. Flipkart has also seen a sale of over 1,00,000 rakhis per day. Overall, the platform has seen 2x growth as compared to previous year in terms of units sold.

The North is the largest chunk in the pie, with almost 45 percent demand coming from the region, followed by Eastern states with 25 percent share, the company said.

The top 10 cities generating demand are New Delhi, Bangalore, Patna, Mumbai, Hyderabad, Pune, Lucknow, Bhubaneswar, Kolkata and Gurgaon. Personalized Video message, and celebrity video message. The company is anticipating to close this season at 1.5 million orders.

"More and more customers are shopping online than before, in order to maintain social distancing."

10 COVID PATIENTS FLEE RIMS

PNS ■ ADILABAD

In a shocking incident, ten Covid-19 patients ran away from Rajiv Gandhi Institute of Medical Sciences (RIMS) hospital in Adilabad on Saturday night, unable to continue in appalling conditions.

Citing lack of proper amenities at the RIMS, the patients from the isolation ward made their escape. Recently a patient at the institution had posted a video on social media showing the kind of nightmare they have been going through, which became viral.

The patients who escaped from RIMS are said to be the residents of Kailash Nagar, Chanda, Teachers Colony, Nizamabad, Kotta Kummariwada, Dwarka Nagar, Indravelli and Khanapur.

According to sources, the authorities noticed that the patients were missing at around 9.30 pm and immediately began tracing them with the help of police and district medical staff. Medical officials and police said that they have traced three of the COVID-19 patients. The two men from Adilabad town were brought back to RIMS, and the hospital allowed one person from Indravelli to be in home isolation. Meanwhile, Telangana's coronavirus tally climbed up to 66,677 as 1,891 fresh cases were reported till Sunday morning. The state reported 10 deaths in the last 24 hours, and the fatalities due to the virus rose to 540. A total of 1,088 people were discharged in the past 24 hours, taking the total number of COVID-19 recoveries in the state to 47,590 till date.

Director alleges officials apathy in filling vacant posts

ADILABAD: RIMS director Balram Naik on Sunday made sensational comments stating that the district and state level officials are against filling the vacant posts. Addressing media here, Balram Naik said that he had written to the state and district level authorities impressing upon them the need to fill vacant doctor posts in the RIMS to ease work load on the existing medical officers. But, the authorities are not giving green signal for the same. Moreover, the local elected people's representatives have been playing the second fiddle to the authorities and playing politics with the medical appointments. He said that the existing medical officers are somehow managing the show. In fact, 90-100 per cent of the work is being done with the existing work force. It may be recalled that at least 10 patients who tested positive for Coronavirus ran away from the RIMS isolation centre alleging that none is paying attention to them.

Gangula: Karimnagar will be developed as green city

PNS ■ KARIMNAGAR

BC Welfare and Civil Supplies Minister Gangula Kamalakar on Sunday said Karimnagar town would be developed as a green city in the coming days. The Minister was speaking after planting saplings near Giddeperumandla temple in the 36th division as part of the sixth phase of Haritha Haram. Kamalakar instructed the officials to take all steps to protect the saplings planted during the Haritha Haram programme.

Terming Haritha Haram as a great programme introduced by the Chief Minister K Chandrashekar Rao, he said no government in the past took such kind of initiatives to plant saplings in a big way.

The ecological imbalance has been developed due to the lack of adequate trees. If people want to change the current situation and restore ecological balance, everybody should plant at least two saplings and take measures to protect them. It would be a great gift to future generations. Karimnagar Mayor Y Sunil Rao, Commissioner Valluru Kranthi and others participated in the programme.

Asymptomatic corona carriers spreading corona in villages

People in the entire village are at a loss to know how some of them tested positive. For, none of them showed definite symptoms. They are still not able to identify the possible source of their infection.

All of them participated in the funerals, like during pre-corona days. All they know now is that corona has done its part silently. The entire village, which abuts the road, is now in the grip of corona fear. People are afraid of coming out from their homes. No villager has attended the 10th and 11th day ceremonies of the same person out of pervasive fear.

Interestingly, the 10 persons who had tested positive are no longer showing any serious symptoms of corona. Still, they are under home quarantine on the advice of doctors.

person attended the funeral of a person, who had died of cancer, upon coming to know about the 10 positive cases in Arvalpalli.

When contacted, the villagers said: "We too have pain as we failed to attend the last rites of our own villager. But the person died of cancer in a hospital and hence we didn't dare to attend the final rites thinking that the body might be carrying the virus".

A prominent person in the village (who too did not attend the final rites of that person) said: "I have no words to say. People did not allow the body to be brought inside the village. I reasoned with them that it is not a corona death. Corona fear is making us to stay away from funerals and other functions. In general, we attend these without fail."

Another interesting thing is that people in rural areas are moving about freely. No wonder, villagers suddenly take ill.

A local doctor said "Asymptomatic corona carriers are spreading the virus as they don't know that they are infected with the virus. However, others who come in contact with these asymptomatic persons are showing symptoms, leading to severe trouble".

These tanks would be installed in the hospitals before August 10. The Minister said, "Corona virus patient needs oxygen more than medicines."

Webinar for superintendents of govt hospitals

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

In order to update the knowledge and also share new treatment protocols regarding to Covid-19 coming-up worldwide, the State government is holding a special webinar for all Superintendents of government hospitals in the State on Monday from 11 am.

"Based on the instructions of Chief Minister K Chandrashekar Rao to introduce latest treatment techniques in the government hospitals, the webinar will focus on new developments that are happening across the world in the field of Covid-19 treatment," Health Minister Eatala Rajender said.

Experts, including infectious diseases expert from the United States Dr Vijay V Yeldandi, Dr MV Rao, Dr Sunitha, Dr Shankar, Dr Ramesh Reddy, Dr Karunakar Reddy, Dr Gangadhar and Dr Mahaboob Khan, will take part in the webinar.

Without revealing the spot where the rally was held, the naxalites released photographs relating to the secretive gathering to drive home the message that they still have clout in some of the remote corners of these states, which had once constituted their bastion.

The Maoist's bastions are surrounded by armed militants. The militants reportedly guarded the leaders while senior activists addressed the public on the significance of the Martyrs Memorial Week and the protracted armed struggle waged by CPI Maoists over the past few decades.

Several central committee leaders reportedly were present at the meeting, which was attended by 3,000-odd Adivasi tribals. Armed naxalites, numbering about 500, took part in a march-past that preceded the meeting. The cultural troupes of naxalites rendered revolutionary songs in memory of deceased leaders of the party.

SAVING GRACE

The saving grace for the police was that in Warangal they nabbed three militants operating on the Chhattisgarh-Telangana border. Those arrested include Bandi Sudhakar, Kalthi Sammaiah and Pole Boiyina Saraiah of the Dubbagudem belt. The Mahabubabad SP, Nandyala Koti Reddy, said the three naxalites had been operating clandestinely to support the armed squads in the extortion process. Police recovered 414 cartridges from the arrested persons.

HC UPADHYAY ■ HYDERABAD

Chanakya has said: 'If you are faced with several enemies, tackle the strongest one first.' Considering the present scenario, wherein the country has been challenged by communal forces, extremist elements, terrorists and crest-fallen pigmy opposition leaders, besides of course COVID-19 pandemic and China and Pakistan on borders, when we apply the philosophy of Chanakya, at any rate Jihadis and anti-national elements pose greater threat than all other enemies.

Recent chest-beating by the leader of former Razakars' party in a bid to become junior Mohammad Ali Jinnah, lashed out at the Prime Minister for the latter's proposed participation in the foundation ceremony of Ram Mandir at Ayodhya. He was chorused by his cronies declaring their resolve to reconstruct the erstwhile so-called Babri Masjid at the same place. Such outbursts make their nasty intentions abundantly clear. However, luckily for them, as backlash the heavy hammer of Hindutva forces has not yet fallen on them because the Hindus are counting the sins of the modern-day Shishupals.

These internal enemies of the country swear by the Constitution day in and day out, but have never bothered to read the chapter on the duties of a citizen which is also a part and parcel of the Constitution. Unfortunately, the government of the day is taking the evil designs of these anti-national forces lightly. The official statement that the new Ram Mandir will be open to people of 'all faiths' makes no sense because if other faiths believed in Lord Ram, where is the need to have a Prophet or a Saviour? The ground realities cannot be ignored and we must take note of the fact that the very foundation of 1400-year-old Islam and 2000-year-old Christianity is the utter contempt and total disregard for Lord Ram, who existed some 7,000 years ago. Their venom engulfs everything that is Hindu and they have never concealed their intentions.

Coming to the principles of democracy, even a school student knows that it is the system wherein the wish of majority prevails over minority and that has to be honoured. By taking shelter under the deceitfully inserted Constitutional amendment, no one can claim that since Amendment overnight a majority of countrymen have become 'secular' of their likings. Therefore, let the subversive forces of different colours be not under the impression that by taking shelter under this 1976 amendment, they can block the majority wish from prevailing over the minority.

The great paradox of the country is that with the help of enhanced military might and favourable world opinion, the country can bravely face the external threats, be it from Pakistan, Nepal or China; but the greater danger is from the foes within and any patchwork in this regard will do more harm than resolving the problem.

Indeed, the lasting solution to this problem is in scrapping the two contentious words namely 'secular' and 'socialist' from the preamble and unequivocally declaring there-in that Bharat is a Hindu Rashtra. There is no need to be cowed down by the anti-Hindu forces by whatever name, label or flag they are known. Needless to say that this is the need of the hour if the proposed Ram Mandir in Ayodhya and other places of Hindu worship besides the Hindu themselves are to be saved from barbaric forces, such a bold decision has to be taken at the right earnest.

US Supreme Court restricts entry of worshippers

The Supreme Court of the United States has restricted the entry of more than 50 worshippers at a time in churches. In its judgment dated July 24, it dismissed an appeal filed by Calvary Chapel Dayton Valley (Church), requesting the Court to increase the limit of participants in the church, synagogue or mosque. The appeal was preferred against the order of the Governor of the Nevada, along with the averment that all the precautions shall be complied strictly, including social distancing order. The Court rejected this plea observing: "...But churches, synagogues, and mosques are banned from admitting more than 50 worshippers-no matter how large the building, how distant the individuals, how many wear masks, no matter the precautions at all. In Nevada, it seems, it is better to be in entertainment than religion."

All India Bar Examination postponed

Due to the current situation of COVID-19 pandemic, the All India Bar Examination (AIBE), which was to be held on 16th August, is now deferred until the next date, to be decided by the Monitoring Committee of the Bar Council of India, headed by a former Judge of the Supreme Court of India. The Bar Council of India, in its resolution dated July 29, said that the last date to apply for AIBE has been extended to August 31 and the examination date shall be notified later.

Cartel to bring economy to knees!

Fraudsters are leaving no stone unturned to serve a severe blow to the country's economy and therefore, there is a need to curb such efforts of the cartel of fraudsters "with an iron fist so that the contours of the fiscal compass could be extended to the advantage of the people." These words of caution are of Justice S.K Panigrahi, Orissa High Court. The court, while hearing a bail petition of one Amit Beriwal, who is an accused in a case involving Rs.122.67 crore GST fraud by way of making fake and fraudulent transactions through fake firms, in its order also noted: "The manner in which the accused, in collusion with other accused, have been operating would suggest that there are certain inherent flaws in the GST system, which is prone to such abuse." The court further observed: "...It seems a countrywide cartel specializing in defrauding the GST system is operating to bring the economy to its knees."

President-elect of the Bar Association of India (BAI) Prashant Kumar and Dr. Christian Lemke, Vice President, German Federal Bar Association, welcomed 300-plus specially invited participants. Prominent lawyers from India and Germany addressed the webinar. They include Shyam Divan, Pinky Anand, Dr. Ritesh Rajani, Swetlana Schaworonkova, Amarjit Singh Chandhok, Ingrid Honinger and Anandita Pujari. Dr. Lalit Bhasin, President of BAI, who could not participate due to personal reasons, conveyed best wishes for the success of the international event. The question-answer session which followed was quite lively.

IN BRIEF

GHMC facilitates online payment under OTS

With the State government offering a waiver of 90 per cent tax for accumulated arrears of the interest component on property tax under One Time Scheme (OTS) till September 15, the GHMC is sending SMSs to property owners, besides facilitating online payment. The municipal corporation has upgraded its software accordingly. Taxpayers can avail the waiver, only if, they clear the total amount of property tax dues till 2019-20 along with 10 per cent interest. GHMC Commissioner DS Lokesh Kumar stated that there were 5.64 lakh property tax assessments with an accumulation of property tax arrears amounting to Rs 1,477.86 crore from the past two decades. The interest amount against for the same was around Rs 1,017.76 crore till the financial year 2019-20. Property owners can pay tax at GHMC Citizen Service Centers, Meeseva or make payment online through MyGHMC app or log onto GHMC website.

UOH ranks second in best varsities survey

The University of Hyderabad (UoH) has been ranked second among India's top government universities by India Today and published in the magazine issue dated August 10. Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU) is at first place. The UoH was ranked among the top based on the survey conducted by the Marketing and Development Research Associates (MDRA) which examined the country's universities in four streams, general (arts, science and commerce), technical, medical and legal and varsities that offer postgraduate courses in these streams. UoH Vice-Chancellor, Prof Appa Rao Podile said, "It's wonderful to see the UoH being recognised for its meritorious work and research contributions. Moving up from being fifth in 2017, third in 2018 and continuing second in 2019 as well as 2020, is going to be a challenging task for all of us to perform better. I am confident we will be able to keep up this growth."

Guv extends Raksha Bandhan greetings

Telangana Governor Dr Tamilsai Sundararajan greeted all the citizens on the occasion of Raksha Bandhan. In her message on the auspicious festival, the Governor said that this festival symbolizes the great Indian tradition of the eternal bond between brothers and sisters. "I wish that the thread of love will bind the hearts and lives of all brothers and sisters and make their immortal bond of togetherness stronger. All the brothers shall shower their sisters with lots of affection, care, and protection on this auspicious occasion of Raksha Bandhan out of love," the Governor said.

The Telangana Government, which has taken up demolition of the old buildings in the Secretariat complex at Saifabad to pave the way for a new building complex is nearing completion. An estimated 4,500 truckloads of debris is likely from the demolition works of the old Secretariat buildings. The state government has already shifted 62,000 tonnes of debris to the construction and demolition waste plant at Jeedimetla during July 20 and July 31. The state government has plans to use the recycled construction waste in building the new secretariat.

According to a conservative estimate, the demolition of the old secretariat will yield at least 2 lakh tonnes of the debris. The GHMC officials have been daily monitoring whether the debris are being relocated to Jeedimetla plant or not.

On directions from GHMC Commissioner Lokesh Kumar, additional commissioner and engineers are daily inspecting the progress at the worksite and taking necessary precautions to prevent spilling over the debris on road during transportation. Steel and wood are being segregated prior to sending them to the plant site. After reaching the site, the personnel at the site are separating the steel rods embedded in concrete.

The State Government permitted the Ramky Enviro Engineers to recycle the debris. The Ramky Environ Engineers would be paid Rs 367 per tonne for recycling. The government would have to pay over Rs 7 crore to the firm for recycling over 2 lakh tonnes of debris. So far, 2,700 trips of debris have been transported to the plant site. The debris would be recycled to make bricks, kerbs, sand and so on.

It may be recalled that, following the State High Court directive to permit the media to cover the Secretariat demolition works as well as many requests from media representatives for the same, State Roads and Buildings Minister Vemula Prashanth permitted them to take a look at the ongoing works from the BRKR Bhavan while adhering to all precautionary requirements, and thus cover the ongoing works.

Hyd airport gets mass fever screening system

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

Hyderabad's Rajiv Gandhi International Airport (RGIA) has received a Unicef-funded mass fever screening system to further enhance the efficacy of screening of passengers in view of Covid-19 pandemic, the airport operator announced on Sunday.

The Central government's Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, in coordination with Asian Development Bank, has provided state-of-the-art thermal scanner funded by the United Nations Children's Fund (Unicef). The system will be used by the officials of the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare at the airport.

The new thermal scanner is a ceiling mounted mass fever screening system capable of scanning, detecting and tracking febrile persons with elevated skin temperature.

The system automatically adjusts and adapts to the surrounding ambient temperature without any human intervention.

With its intuitive user interface and dual-displays (day camera + infra-red) it provides easy identification of passengers with elevated temperature, while simplifying operations and minimising handling.

The new thermal scanner imparts more control to the Hyderabad Airport Health Organisation, along with the existing thermal scanners at the international arrivals, said GMR Hyderabad International Airport Limited (GHIAL).

RGIA continues to handle the international relief flights under the government of India's largest offshore evacuation programme of Vande Bharat Mission (VBM).

Minor fire breaks out at a chemical factory

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

A fire broke out in a chemical company at the industrial area in Mallapur on the city outskirts in Nacharam here on Sunday evening. No casualties were reported in the fire which is suspected to have been caused by a short circuit.

According to the police, locals in the nearby residential area noticed the huge fire and thick smoke emanating from the unit and alerted the fire department and the police personnel. Fire caught the plastic containers which were filled with the chemicals. Due to the presence of chemicals, there was dark and thick smoke covering the surroundings.

The Nacharam police along with the fire department officials with the help of four fire engines doused the fire in about two hours. The management is yet to lodge a complaint and give out an estimation of the damaged property. The Nacharam police are investigating the matter.

HMDA head office shifted from Tarnaka to Ameerpet

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

The Hyderabad Metropolitan Development Authority (HMDA) office has relocated its head office from Tarnaka to Swarna Jayanti Complex in Ameerpet from its current premises in Tarnaka.

The HMDA will start functioning from the second, fourth, fifth and seventh floors of the Swarna Jayanti Complex, which is adjacent to Maitri Vanam Complex, from August 3 onwards.

The HMDA Metropolitan Commissioner exhorted the people to note the change of address for their convenience.

However, he made it clear that there are no changes either in the HMDA's website, e-mail identity, twitter and social media accounts.

The Tarnaka office is one of the most disorganised, with its various wings scattered all over the building.

This not only irks visitors but also makes coordination between the various departments a challenging affair.

The municipal administration department which has decided to shift the office to Swarna Jayanti complex in Ameerpet has renovated three floors at Rs 8 crore.

The HMDA office was earlier located in Paigah Palace near Begumpet since its inception in 1975 and continued to function from there till 2008 before the heritage building was handed over to the US consulate. Later, it was shifted to the municipal office complex in Marredpally and to another complex in Tarnaka in 2010.

Hyd residents suffer bad, slushy roads

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

The residents living in Prem Nagar of Amberpet are suffering as the authorities asphalted a fully functioning road.

The 200 metre road that directly impacts the daily commute of nearly 40 residents of the area, was asphalted a couple of days ago, however no construction work has yet begun.

Shaik Salauddin, a social activist and resident of the area shares, "The authorities asphalted the Prem Nagar road in Amberpet recently. The road was fine, with no potholes. There was some very minimum patch work required towards the sides. With no road, we are struggling to take out our vehicles now."

Case against Jubilee Hills Coop society

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

The Jubilee Hills police registered a case against the Jubilee Hills Cooperative House Building Society for undertaking of blasting of rocks without necessary permissions from officials and endangering people's lives.

The police registered a case on the basis of a complaint lodged by the colony resident C Ramakrishna.

According to the complaint, contractor detonated rocks in a site adjacent to the house of Sireesha in colony using a large amount of detonators. He also named the contractor in his complaint.

The petitioner said that on account of the blasts one of the rocks fell on the walls of his house and caused damage to one of the pillars. He said that the contractor has been undertaking blasting work without taking permission from officials and putting in place any loss-preventive measures. The Jubilee Hills SI S Navin Reddy said that the cases were registered against them under Sections 336, 287, 427 R/W 34.

Remdesivir wins over HCQ, but researchers smell a rat

NAVEENA GHANATE ■ HYDERABAD

The initial expectations around HCQ as cure for Covid-19 is dying down as several frontline warriors, especially doctors have stopped taking it as prophylaxis.

A government doctor in TS said, "I took an initial dose of HCQ. But studies have been revealing that it is interacting with remdesivir which is a reserve treatment for moderate cases of Covid-19. Since then I stopped, I have been extremely careful and never touched my face shield or mask, changed glove multiple times".

However, a group of researchers in Indian Journal of Medical Ethics (IJME) pointed out that the two drugs are showing similar impact, but there is a push for expensive Remdesivir. Dr Amit Dang, founder and CEO of the Telangana-based MarksMan Healthcare and his colleague Dr Vallish BN along with Dr Sumit Dang of the from University of Kentucky in the July-September issue of the IJME wrote an article on "Hydroxychloroquine and Remdesivir (RDV) in Covid-19: A critical analysis of recent events"

"They allege political affiliations have come into play between remdesivir and HCQ. They write, "While the widespread (mostly unsupervised) use of HCQ for other indications may have contributed to these unequal levels of scrutiny, confounders such as political affiliation, profiteering, and other conflicts of interest cannot be ruled out at this stage, with the available evidence and information".

The researchers state that

HCQ is being more closely scrutinised when compared to the lighter treatment given to RDV.

The article says, "Analysis of various studies available at present does not prove a clear and conclusive efficacy benefit for either RDV or HCQ in clinical trials. It appears that a subtle push is being given to RDV, the safety of which is not adequately established; while HCQ is being subtly snubbed, despite both drugs having similar efficacy patterns. This appears to be in contravention of the basic ethical principles of beneficence, non-maleficence, autonomy and justice."

'Breastfeeding is the elixir of life for infants'

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

"Breast feeding is the best gift a mother can ever give her new born infant. Breast milk boosts the immunity power of the infant and helps in the prevention of many deadly diseases," said Governor Dr Tamilsai Soundararajan.

Launching the breastfeeding week celebrations at Raj Bhavan on Sunday, she said that breast milk contains the vital nutrients and improves the immunity of the child.

"Mothers need to be educated about the benefits of the breastfeeding from the pregnancy period only. With the breastfeeding the baby is greatly benefited and this has to be told to all the lactating mothers," the Governor added.

New courses in government, private degree colleges soon

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

In tune with industrial demand, new courses are likely to foray into undergraduate education in under government and private degree colleges in Telangana from this academic year.

The new courses are being designed to suit the requirements of the industry so that graduates easily land jobs.

The Telangana State Council for Higher Education has plans to introduce B SC Data Science combination in various colleges from this academic year. The course has highest demand from industry and students.

The course has been designed with the help of mathematics, statistics, computer science departments of various universities and software giants like Cognizant Technology Solutions and the Tata Consultancy Services.

The council has permitted introduction of the course in 80 private colleges. In some colleges only one section is permitted, while in respect of others two or three sections have been permitted. The Department of Higher Education has been making arrangements to introduce the course in 26 government colleges with 60 in each college.

Similarly, B Com Business Analytics course is being introduced in 24 government colleges, while the B Com taxation course is going to be introduced in 27 colleges, including the degree colleges at Adilabad and Bhadrachalam.

Further, the government has plans to introduce B Com foreign trade course in city college, Begumpet Women's college and Khairatabad Degree College.

For the first time, BA mathematics course is being introduced with the combination of arts subjects to prepare them for competitive examinations. Mathematics, history, economics combinations, political science, public administration are being worked out.

Discontinuing MPhil might not do much damage

NAMRATA SRIVASTAVA ■ HYDERABAD

The Union Human Resource Development (HRD) Ministry decided to discontinue the two-year M Phil from all Universities across the nation last month. Students will now be allowed to take admission in PhD directly after post-graduation or a four-year undergraduate degree with research. Since the course was discontinued by many Universities already, the University lecturers feel that MPhil doesn't serve much purpose and scrapping it would save one year of the students.

Former Dean of Sarojini Naidu School of Arts and Communication Prof Vinod Pavarala said "Masters of Philosophy had some utility for a long time, as people who had completed that would get a job in college. But, for the last seven to eight years it has lost value as most PhD courses have introduced mandatory course work for the research, for around one-and-a-half year. This serves the same purpose as the MPhil. Also, now you need a PhD to become have a job at college. So, in today's scenario, MPhil has become redundant."

Many also opine that discontinuing MPhil will also discourage duplicity and plagiarism of research work. Shreyas Dwivedi, Research Assistant from Jawaharlal Nehru University opines, "MPhil is basically a waste of time for the students. Many students, who are not serious about research and apply at the Universities only for the monetary benefits of being a PhD scholar, actually use their MPhil work, add a point or two and present it as their PhD work. The PhD research is actually an in depth study of an issue which provide some solution at the end. In 2018, there were approximately 30,000 PhD awarded in India, in various fields. If none of these PhDs were practical enough to be put to use to solve issues in the country, they hold no value at all. I believe, scrapping MPhil will give chance to serious researchers and also reduce the load off the lecturers."

Adding to the same, Prof S Ramachandram, Vice Chancellor of Osmania

University, states, "I think it's a good thing the Ministry decided to discontinue the course as it served no purpose. It's just an interim programme for research students. If a MPhil students decides to drop out after completing the course and not pursue his/her PhD, they are treated the same as any Masters students. It doesn't have any impact on one's resume as well."

Some students, however, believe that MPhil creates a stronger base for PhD. Says Sarika Moon, a PhD student from Tata Institute of Social Science, Hyderabad, shares, "A Masters student is taught a wide range of subjects, however MPhil does help in understanding and narrowing down our work to a micro level. We learn and understand the importance of critical analysis and various research tools. It's not right that the Government removed an entire course without consulting the students who wished to pursue it or were pursuing it. MPhil creates a strong base for the research we do henceforth. I think the decision will surely affect the kind of research papers we see now."

4 detained for barging into actor's farmhouse

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

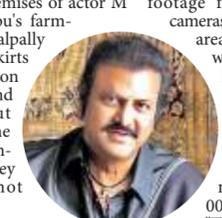

The Pahadishareef police on Sunday took four persons into custody for having barged into the premises of actor M Mohan Babu's farmhouse at Jalpally on the outskirts of the city on Saturday and hurled out threats to the family members that they would not spare them.

Around 4 pm on Saturday, a group of youngsters had entered into the premises in a car and went around, even as the actor's family was inside the house. Anxious family members informed the police.

On receiving information, the Pahadishareef Police reached the spot and took up investigation. Based on the footage from surveillance cameras in the surrounding areas, four youngsters, who are residents of Durga Nagar in Mailardavally, were traced with the help of the Innova vehicle bearing registration number AP 31 AN 0004.

"Their identities are being verified. No arrests have been made yet. Their call data records too are being examined to check if it was just for fun or had any malicious intention," police said.

TSRTC's cargo services yield positive results

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

The TSRTC Cargo services which earns Rs 2 crore per month even in turbulent times of Covid-19, is targeting to double the revenue from cargo and parcel services soon. The APSRTC, which commenced the cargo and parcel services earns Rs 80 crore annually. Therefore, the TSRTC is also targeting to earn between Rs 80-100 crore per annum in case the business picks up close on the heels of Coronavirus leaves the shores of the country.

The TSRTC has converted the old and disused buses into cargo buses and transporting paddy, books, rations, medicines, liquor and so on and estimated to earn Rs 300 crore per annum. But the delay in officials putting the project on the rails and subsequent Coronavirus posed problems to the project.

The officials have been getting the old buses body rebuilt to enable them to transport parcel and cargo services. The RTC has decided to use the

In less than a month since its official launch, the Telangana State Road Transport Corporation has found several takers for its parcel and cargo services

RTC buses as it is to send courier parcels. With the Minister for Transport Puvvada Ajay Kumar taking initiative the project is being implemented. Because of teething troubles, the income realised is not as expected.

Taking serious view of this, Chief Minister K Chandrababoo Naidu replaced the existing officer with OSD to the Transport Department Krishna Kant as special officer. Right from the first day of his appointment, Krishna Kant surveyed the market and managed to get orders. During the past one week, the parcel and courier service of the RTC is earning Rs 6.5 lakh per day. Even major players in cargo and courier services are not able to get a business of over Rs 15 lakh per day.

Earlier also, RTC used to run parcel services with the help of the private parties. They used to garner majority of the funds paying only a nominal amount to the RTC. The Transport Minister changed the policy helping the RTC earn profits. Cargo special officer Krishna Kant said that agreement has been reached with agents to multiply the revenue of the RTC through parcel and cargo services.

If anyone books parcel, the goods are collected at door step of the customer and delivered to the customer at the other end. Appointment of over 300 agents and personnel came to a head so far. The cargo parcel charges would be revised within three days. Cargo buses would take care of home shifting to transportation of paddy and other services. Agreements are being worked out with e-commerce brands like Amazon, Flipkart and so on to transport their goods to rural areas.

Increase hospitals, not crematoriums, says Congress

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

Telangana Pradesh Congress Committee (TPCC) Treasurer Guduru Narayana Reddy expressed deep concern over reports of State Government setting up five new LPG-based crematoria in Hyderabad in view of rising number of Coronavirus cases in the twin cities of Hyderabad and Secunderabad.

As per media reports, the LPG-fuelled crematoria are likely to be installed at Hindu cremation grounds in the Charminar, Khairatabad, Secunderabad, Uppal and Kukatpally zones in the next 15 days with each having a capacity of cremating 12 bodies every day. "The Covid-19 death toll in Telangana, as being shown in official Media Bulletin never exceeded 15 on any given day. If the official figures are genuine, then why the State Government is making arrangements to cremate 60 more bodies in addition to the existing crematoria. Are the authorities expecting the situation to worsen further or are they hiding an already worsened condition from the people?" he asked.

Are the authorities expecting the situation to worsen further or are they hiding an already worsened condition from the people?, asked Guduru

"Governments which do not establish hospitals for common people, end up building crematoria. Chief Minister K Chandrababoo Naidu will be remembered in history as the leader who did nothing to save people's lives, but made arrangements for their last rites. KCR government has wasted a lot of precious time to prevent the spread of Coronavirus. It miserably failed to trace and test the suspects. Consequently, the infected people moved freely in the society while spreading the virus among the rest of the population. Further, hospitals were not upgraded on time which increased the death toll," he alleged. Narayana Reddy said that the Chief Minister should've dedicated all resources to handle the Covid-19 situation in the initial stages. However, KCR focused on diverting people's attention and hiding real numbers of Covid-19 cases and deaths. Despite a rise in both the number of positive cases and deaths, the State Government is not upgrading the hospitals by ensuring supply of quality oxygen and required medicines. He said several deaths have been reported in the last few days where patients in government hospitals died due to non-availability of oxygen.

TPCC CHIEF POST

Followers of leaders battle it on social media

K VENKATESHWARLU ■ HYDERABAD

Selection of the TPCC president is progressing akin to one step forward and two steps backwards. The Congress leaders are worried not knowing when the Congress high command takes a decision. The issue comes up for discussion every time, but the high command is putting the issue on hold all of a sudden.

It may be recalled that several leaders are trying to grab the TPCC post for the last two years. However, the high command is least bothered about the appointment of new chief to TPCC. But some leaders are severely putting their efforts to achieve the coveted post though there are no indications in Delhi in this regard.

However, on social media, an unidentified person is conducting election process for the TPCC post and asking the social media users to pick their choice. The issue came to light with TPCC Disciplinary Committee chairman M Kodanda Reddy issuing a statement on Sunday. Kodanda Reddy said that a person is conducting election process for TPCC chief post on social media.

Condemning the act, Kodanda Reddy said that the TPCC election process is purely internal affair of the party. The process will be held following the Congress party guidelines. He asked the party members not to indulge in such anti-party activities. He urged the members to respect the Congress party rules and regulations and traditions.

According to party sources, on the 'social media poll' the said person mentioned the names of A Revanth Reddy; Komatireddy Venkat Reddy; Mallu Bhatti Vikramarka; D Sridhar Babu and N Uttam Kumar Reddy.

A leader on condition of anonymity said that the party knows who is conducting this social media election process. "One leader who is seriously trying grab the post is doing all this. His followers are in hurry to see their leader as TPCC

Several leaders have been trying to grab the TPCC post for the last two years. However, the high command is least bothered about the appointment of new chief to TPCC chief post and hence they are indulging in such activity," he added. It may be recalled that, recently, Komatireddy Venkat Reddy calling on Sonia Gandhi in Delhi gave rise to speculations over his appointment as the successor to N Uttam Kumar Reddy, the existing TPCC president. Not to be outdone, Malkajigiri MP is leaving no stone unturned to secure the post, it is learnt. Recently, he is understood to have made a courtesy call on DK Sivakumar, Karnataka PCC president, in Bengaluru.

Kodandaram slams govt over farmer's suicide

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

TJS chief Prof M Kodandaram on Sunday suggested the government to change its attitude towards the Dalits in the state. He was speaking after consoling the family of Byagari Narsimhulu, who committed suicide, in Veluru in Vargal mandal in Gajwel on Sunday. Extending condolences to the bereaved family, Kodandaram said that it is not proper on part of the government to take back the land given by it forcefully. "It is painful that instead of distributing three acres of land to each Dalit family, the government is forcefully taking the lands. Narsimhulu committed suicide as the government took his land without listening to his plea. It is shameful on the part of police for obstructing the people from attending funerals of Narsimhulu," he alleged.

'Complete inter-state transfers of employees'

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

AICC secretary Ch Vamshi Chand Reddy on Sunday addressed a letter to the Chief Minister K Chandrababoo Naidu to immediately reconsider file No. 7824/2019 for the extension of time frame for the transfer process and direct the concerned officials to complete the inter-state transfers of all eligible candidates at the earliest possible.

He said he is also requesting the Chief Minister to approve the transfer of the candidates with NOCs from both the governments, irrespective of the time extension. This could help thousands of employees re-unite with their families and enable them to live and work with spirit and confidence, especially, during such dreadful times.

He said in the letter that he would like to draw Chief Minister's attention to the pathetic situation of married commuter couples, that are working in two different states.

The job obligations are keeping them away from each other and making their lives stressful and miserable. The Covid-19 induced hardships are worsening the situation for them and they are compelled to continue to work from different cities even during this deadly pandemic, he said.

He said he would like to recall that the Memo No. 9940/SPF & MC/2015, dated August 7, 2017 has been issued by the Chief Secretaries of both Telangana and Andhra Pradesh for inter-state job transfers. As per the memo, this transfer process, for the candidates that have applied, has to be completed in 2 months.

Krishna projects continue to receive good inflows

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

While the outflows from Almatti and Narayanpur projects in Karnataka have come down drastically, the weekly rainfall of 54.2 mm and 10.3 mm rainfall in the catchment areas of major rivers in the State has helped maintain fairly good inflows into the State's reservoirs and projects both on Krishna and Godavari rivers.

On Sunday the inflows into Almatti were 11,158 cusecs and outflows were mere 1,922 cusecs. Similarly inflows into Narayanpur were 67 cusecs and outflows were 4,878 cusecs. At the Priyadarshini Jurala Project (PJP) the inflows were impressive in the range of 14,000-15,500 cusecs and outflows were 12,212 cusecs. The PJP is catering to Nettempadu and Bhima lift irrigation project, powerhouse, the left, right and parallel canals.

At Srisailem in the downstream, water level in the reservoir is 851.60 feet against an FRL of 885 feet. The inflows are 29,573 cusecs and outflows are 46,793 cusecs. As a result Nagarjuna Sagar is receiving 35,568 cusecs of inflows and outflows of 2,560 cusecs. The water level in Sagar is 549.80 feet compared to the Full Reservoir level (FRL) of 590 feet.

While almost all the projects on river Godavari have satisfactory storage of water, the inflows are less compared to that of projects on river Krishna.

Don't oppose burial of Covid victims: Vinod

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

Dr Vijay Yeldandi, infectious diseases expert in Illinois University of the USA, has felt that villagers resisting cremation of the dead due to Coronavirus does not set a good precedent and described such a behaviour as a blot on society. He was responding to media reports on villagers not allowing cremation of the dead due to the pandemic in villages.

He dashed a letter to the Health Minister Eatala Rajender and TS Planning Board vice-chairman B Vinod Kumar and urged them to take appropriate steps to rein in such objectionable behaviour. The virus spreads to droplets but not through bodies of the dead, he said exhorting everyone to take a note of

it. Therefore, he exhorted the people to act with humanity and felt that resisting cremation of the Covid patients in villages does not set a good precedent.

Responding to the latter, Vinod Kumar called upon villagers not to obstruct the cremation of the bodies in the villages. He said that such incidents taking place in villages are being highlighted by media now and then. Due respect should be accorded to the bodies and they should be allowed to be cremated, he said advising the people that it is the minimum responsibility of the people to allow cremation.

Disposal of bodies according to religious faiths of people should be given due respect, he said. He called upon villagers not to forget to implement Covid-19 rules during cremation.

AP Gov not to celebrate Rakhi

PNS ■ VIJAYAWADA

Governor Biswa Bushan Harichandan, whose birthday falls on August 3, has decided not to celebrate his birthday due to prevailing situation of Covid-19 pandemic in the State. The Governor has appealed to people not to come to the Raj Bhavan to wish him on his birthday. He once again appealed to people of the State to take all precautions such as avoiding unnecessary travel by staying at home, maintaining social distance.

TITA reaches out to 'software Sharadha'

PNS ■ HYDERABAD

"You give a man a fish and you feed him for a day. You teach him to fish and you give him an occupation that will feed him for a lifetime. Thus goes the Chinese adage."

Software professionals industry body Telangana Information Technology Association (TITA) president Sundep Kumar Makthala has implemented the same with respect to Sharadha, the IT professional who turned into a vegetable vendor after losing her job at software company Virtusa due to the Coronavirus crisis, by enrolling her for a technical course in artificial intelligence and also presenting her with a laptop to do the learning.

TITA president, after learning about her precarious financial position, wanted to extend her some financial assistance. However, after learning about technical prowess and her intent to slug it out, it had

TITA decided to give her a laptop that will allow her to undergo the certificate course in Artificial intelligence from her home and while continuing to support her family by selling vegetables decided to give her free training in artificial intelligence through the training module TITA is offering in association with University of Texas at Dallas (UTD), one of the top universities in the US. TITA also decided to give her a laptop that will allow her to undergo the certificate course in artificial intelligence from her home and while continuing to support her family by selling vegetables. "Sharadha's story is inspiring in these Covid times where job losses are not uncommon. However, she took things in her stride and went on to work with the resources at hand. In doing this, she has sent a message that tough times do not last but tough people do. We interacted with her and learnt that she is willing to hone her technical skills. She is one who relies on hardwork alone. We thought a course in artificial intelligence will be of more help in the current situations. The laptop will allow her to pursue the course while continuing to work at home," said TITA Global President Sundep Kumar Makthala about the decision to offer her an opportunity to pursue a course with an international certification and a laptop free to her.

Commenting on the crisis in the IT industry, Makthala said the industry is not immune to the changes happening globally. However, the IT professionals should learn to cope with the job scenarios and should not lose heart. They should use the current times to hone their existing skills or learn new skills, which will enhance their employability in times to come. TITA has been working on this front to drive home the need for learning new skills constantly. Last year, there was an incident where one techie Harini lost her life and that has shook many in the industry.

Makthala said youngsters should look at entrepreneurship as well and not just look for a placement. Artificial intelligence, cyber security, blockchain technologies are the current flavor and promise to provide job opportunities, he said. TITA Spokesperson Venkata Vanam, TITA Sports Secretary Ronith Banda, Iliyas, Harika participated.

Declare Health Emergency in Andhra Pradesh: TDP

PNS ■ VIJAYAWADA

TDP MLA Dola Bala Veeranjanya Swamy on Sunday expressed concern over the unchecked rise in Coronavirus cases and fatalities in the State in the face of continued negligence of the government in providing better treatment facilities. He demanded that the YSRCP government should declare Health Emergency immediately so as to according top priority that was required to rescue people from the pandemic.

Opposition party MLA stated that there is an immediate need to increase beds, ventilators, ICUs and doctors to provide timely treatment to patients. He alleged that the government testing centres were not doing tests promptly ly and giving lame excuses to patients as they were asking people sometimes to go to private labs.

He lamented that lack of timely testing and delayed results was putting the lives of many people in danger. He urged the government to provide necessary funds and facilities to officials in order to speed up testing.

Veeranjanya Swamy expressed surprise that the district-level officials were not answering to the phone calls of even the MLAs as they were unable to provide facilities for Coronavirus patients in the hospitals. He rued a helpless situation has set in where the common public were coming to the MLAs even for recommendations for beds and test results. He opined that the government should understand the problems of patients and augment the facilities all over the State.

Swamy urged the government to issue district-level health bulletins to make all information available to people on the availability of beds, hospitals, ventilators, testing labs and so on. He asserted that transparency was necessary for taking everybody along in the cause of defeating the invisible enemy.

'My good fortune that Ram temple will be built in my lifetime'

NEW DELHI: BJP ally and Lok Janshakti Party president Chirag Paswan said on Sunday that it is his "good fortune" that Ram temple is going to be constructed in Ayodhya in his lifetime. Paswan also described himself as a "descendant" of Shabri who, he claimed, belonged to a deprived section of society. "As a descendant of mother Shabri, who hailed from a deprived section, was a disciple of saint Matang and was an ardent devotee of Shri Ram, it is my good fortune that the temple is being constructed again in my lifetime," he said in a tweet. According to the epic Ramayan, Shabri had offered berries already tested by her to Lord Ram during his stay in the forest and he accepted her offerings with affection. Prime Minister Narendra Modi will lay the foundation stone of the temple at a ceremony in Ayodhya on August 5.

Sacred soil, river water from Karnataka sent for Ram temple

BENGALURU: The Karnataka unit of Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP) on Sunday said water from various rivers and soil from religious places in Karnataka have been sent for the construction of Ram temple in Ayodhya in Uttar Pradesh. The groundbreaking ceremony for construction of the temple would take place on August 5 and Prime Minister Narendra Modi has been invited to the event. "We have sent the water and soil from all the rivers and religious places in the state. It will be used for sanctifying the temple site," VHP Prachar Pramukh Basavaraj said. According to him, Suttur Math seer Shivaratri Deshikendra sent water from Cauvery and Kapila. Dharmasthala Manjunatha Dharmadhikari Veerendra Heggade sent water from Netravati river while Sringeri Shankaracharya Sri Bharati Tirtha collected water from Tunga, Bhadravati.

TN Guv Purohit tests positive for COVID-19

CHENNAI: Tamil Nadu Governor Banwarilal Purohit has tested positive for COVID-19, but advised home isolation since his infection was mild, a city-based private hospital said on Sunday. The 80-year old Purohit was on self-isolation since July 29 after three people in the Raj Bhavan tested positive for the coronavirus. A bulletin issued by the Kauvery Hospital where the Governor underwent further tests on Sunday said he has been advised home isolation and a medical team would monitor him. Purohit "tested positive for COVID-19," hospital Executive Director Dr Aravindan Selvaraj said in the bulletin.

'NEP misses fundamental goal of human development'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Congress on Sunday said the new National Education Policy misses the fundamental goal of human development and expansion of knowledge, noting that it is high on "catchwords" and "verbosity" but lacks critical finances and a coherent roadmap for implementation.

It alleged that the policy has circumvented parliamentary oversight and there has been no discussion with the academia except the RSS.

Congress leaders MM Pallam Raju, Rajeev Gowda and Randeep Surjewala said the NEP seeks to create a digital divide between the poor and the rich as it promotes privatisation of public education and "this will lead to it going out of reach of the middle class and the disadvantaged in the society".

"The National Education Policy 2020, which aimed to pave the way for transformational reforms in school and higher education, is high on catchwords, gloss, appearance and verbosity yet lacks a coherent implementation roadmap and strategy, clearly defined milestones and the critical finances necessary to execute this grand vision," they said in a joint statement

They also questioned the government's intent in raising spending on education to 6 per cent of the GDP, saying the same has fallen from 4.14 per cent of GDP in 2014 to 3.2 per cent currently under the Modi government and is likely to fall further due to cuts in outlays on account of resource crunch due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

"The National Education Policy 2020, which aimed to pave the way for transformational reforms in school and higher education, is high on catchwords, gloss, appearance and verbosity yet lacks a coherent implementation roadmap and strategy, clearly defined milestones and the critical finances necessary to execute this grand vision," they said in a joint statement.

"All in all, the NEP 2020 misses the fundamental goal of human development and expansion of knowledge," they said.

Farooq Abdullah calls for probe into exodus of Kashmiri Pandits

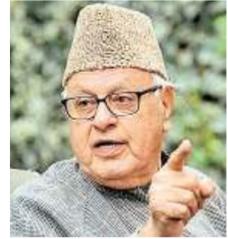

PNS ■ JAMMU

Former Jammu and Kashmir chief minister Farooq Abdullah on Sunday demanded a probe by retired Supreme Court judges into the exodus of Kashmiri Pandits from the valley in early 1990s.

Replying to questions during a webinar, Abdullah said he was of the firm belief that Kashmir is incomplete without Kashmiri Pandits and that he would support any mechanism to bring them back honourably.

Nearly 60,000 Kashmiri Pandit families are registered as migrants after the onset of militancy in the Kashmir Valley in early 1990s.

Abdullah, a member of Lok Sabha and president of the National Conference, chose to blame then former Governor Jagmohan for the exodus and said that he "took them away" on the false promise of ensuring their return within three months.

During the webinar hosted by Jammu-based Epilogue News Network on the theme, "Discerning old order delineating new order - a year after neutralization of Article 370 and abrogation of Article 35 A", Abdullah was asked whether he would support a genocide bill being floated by the Panun Kashmir, a Kashmiri Pandit organisation demanding a separate homeland for the migrants.

He said he would have to go into the details of the bill first.

Abdullah, a three-time chief minister, said, "A sincere and honest judge of Supreme Court, retired judge of Supreme Court, a team of judges...let them investigate and come out with their report. It will clear many minds around the globe, among the younger Kashmiri Pandits, that it was not Kashmiri Muslims who threw them out. There are still many Kashmiri Pandits who never left and they are living here."

The National Conference leader narrated many instances where Muslims had stood by the Pandit community since 1947 and said "do you think we were happy when they (Kashmiri Pandits) were taken away," he said, adding "we always believe that Kashmir is never going to be complete unless the Hindu brethren come back and live in peace with all of us".

HRD Minister clears the air on NEP

PNS ■ CHENNAI

The Centre will not impose any language on any state through the new National Education Policy (NEP) 2020, Union Minister for Education Ramesh Pokhriyal Nishank said on Sunday.

Nishank's clarification, through a tweet in Tamil, comes in the backdrop of opposition to NEP in Tamil Nadu on the grounds that the policy allegedly imposed Hindi and Sanskrit. In his tweet to former Union Minister from the state Pon Radhakrishnan, Nishank said he was looking forward to the guidance of the ex-central minister in implementing NEP in Tamil Nadu. "I once again like to insist that the Central government will not impose any language on any state," he said. The M K Stalin-led DMK and many opposition parties in Tamil Nadu have opposed NEP and want a review of the sweeping reforms it has proposed.

Indira Rasoi Yojana to start in Rajasthan from Aug 20

PNS ■ JAIPUR

Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot directed officials on Sunday to start the Indira Rasoi Yojana in urban areas of Rajasthan from August 20. Reviewing the preparations for the scheme, named after former prime minister Indira Gandhi, Gehlot said the state government would spend Rs 100 crore per year on it. He said the poor would get quality nutritious food for just Rs 8.

The chief minister said the scheme should be implemented with the spirit of public service, transparency and public participation so that it becomes an example in the direction of providing food security to the poor in the country. Gehlot directed that participation of service-oriented institutions and voluntary organisations should be ensured in the operation of the scheme. He has instructed the district collectors to select such institutions as soon as possible. The chief minister also directed to constitute a committee at the state and district levels to ensure the quality of food.

Urban Development Minister Shanti Dhariwal, who participated through video conference in the meeting, said the state government would give a grant of Rs 12 per plate.

Providing equal opportunities to women a priority: Haryana CM

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Haryana Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar on Sunday spelled out the initiatives taken by his government for the empowerment of women, saying providing equal opportunities to them was a priority.

The CM said this during a webinar attended by women belonging to various fields. The participants included teachers, sarpanches, students and those involved in self-help groups.

During the interaction, Khattar was asked a question on women safety by Archna Chaudhary from Karnal's Shamgarh village, who said he has been living in California for five years and driving a truck there.

He said the government has been laying a lot of emphasis on women's education and providing them equal opportunities to progress.

NGT panel recommends reworking 1994 water pact to revive Yamuna

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The National Green Tribunal-appointed Yamuna Monitoring Committee has recommended revisiting the 1994 water sharing agreement between Uttarakhand, Himachal Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Haryana and Delhi to ensure environmental flow in the river throughout the year.

The two-member panel, comprising retired NGT expert member B S Sajwan and former Delhi Chief Secretary Shailaja Chandra, made the recommendation on the basis of a draft report on "E-flow for the Delhi stretch of the river".

The environmental flow requirement is the "acceptable flow regime required to maintain the river in reasonable condition or predetermined state".

"The Ministry of Jal Shakti, Upper Yamuna River Board and the riparian states of Uttarakhand, Himachal Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Haryana and Delhi rework the 1994 water sharing agreement to permit release of the recommended E-flow at Hathnikund Barrage," the panel said.

The report prepared by the National Institute of Hydrology, Roorkee, recommended that 23 cumec water be released in Yamuna from the Hathnikund Barrage in Haryana's Yamuna Nagar district instead of 10 cumec in January and February for sustaining downstream ecosystems.

The barrage regulates the flow of the river for irrigation in Haryana and Uttar Pradesh through Western and Eastern Yamuna Canals, and municipal water supply to Delhi.

The report said 26 cumec, 29 cumec, 34 cumec and 44 cumec water should be released in the river in March, April, May and June, respectively.

Yogi announces financial aid for treatment of Anupam Shyam

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath has announced an assistance of Rs 20 lakh for treatment of actor Anupam Shyam, who is admitted to the Intensive Care Unit of a Mumbai hospital after being diagnosed with kidney infection.

The 62-year-old actor, known for his work on the TV show "Mann Ki Awaaz: Pratigya" and in films like "Slumdog Millionaire" and "Bandit Queen", was undergoing dialysis at Apex Kidney Care in the north Mumbai suburb of Malad. But he was shifted to Lifeline Hospital in Goregaon on July 27 after he collapsed during dialysis.

His last screen appearance was on the show "Krishna Chali London", which ended in June.

Union Minister observes fast as BJP seeks to step up pressure on Kerala govt

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Union Minister V Muraleedharan on Sunday observed a day-long fast at his residence here demanding the resignation of Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan over the gold smuggling case.

The fast was part of intensifying the BJP's protests against the Kerala government over the recent gold smuggling involving diplomatic baggage.

The Minister of state for External Affairs and Parliamentary Affairs alleged the chief minister had allowed his office to be used by those who indulged in "anti-national activities and betrayed the nation."

"The Chief Minister has betrayed the country by giving away his office to those who indulged in anti-national activities. He must resign. The NIA took up the case after the Customs report that the accused persons have terror links," Muraleedharan said. The fast was inaugurated by BJP national general secretary P Muralidhar Rao.

The Kerala government has faced criticism after reports emerged that the former IT secretary M Sivashankar had close links with a few accused in the case.

The National Investigation Agency and the Customs department are investigating the gold smuggling through diplomatic baggage which came to the Thiruvananthapuram International Airport addressed to the UAE Consulate. The probe agencies have arrested four, including two former employees of the consulate.

On July 5, the customs seized around 30 kg of gold worth Rs 15 crore. So far, sleuths have arrested three, including two former employees of UAE consulate Swapna Suresh and Sarith and six more on Sunday.

One more person is yet to be arrested. The probe agencies have named at least 15 persons. Amid demands by the BJP and the Congress for Vijayan's resignation, the state government had earlier suspended senior IAS officer Sivashankar as his name cropped up along with Swapna Suresh and the NIA and the Customs have already questioned him for over 23 hours on multiple occasions.

However, they are yet to name Sivashankar officially in any of the matters related to the case.

DU meeting likely over 4 subjects' syllabus

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Delhi University is likely to hold a key meeting this week to decide on the syllabus of four courses, as the online classes are slated to begin from August 10.

Teachers have said the syllabus of four courses-- Political Science, Sociology, History and English-- for the third and the fifth semesters was yet to be finalised. They had expressed apprehensions about how they would be able to start the classes.

A row had erupted over the syllabus of these subjects last year, with a right-wing teachers' outfit alleging that the curriculum was "pro-Left".

The syllabus of the four courses for the first semester was referred back by the executive council to the departments. It had submitted the revised syllabus to the oversight committee, which had passed the syllabus of the first semester.

"We are holding a meeting either on Monday or Tuesday, professor Maharaj Pandit, chairman of the oversight committee on syllabi, said.

"The registrar is looking into the issue. We have circulated it among the deans so we should be able to reach a consensus," Pandit said.

Professors of English and Political Science departments said they had sent reminders to the oversight committee regarding the approval of the syllabi.

A professor from the English department, requesting anonymity, said they had sent the syllabus and have sent reminders to the committee regarding the approval.

He hoped that the committee would approve the syllabi before August 10.

"We are writing to them to approve the syllabi. More than a month ago we had sent the syllabi," Veena Kukreja, head of Political Science department, said.

"There was a letter from the university to send the syllabi for approval of the oversight committee. I think it should be done before August 10," she added.

UP Minister Kamal Rani Verma dies of COVID-19

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Uttar Pradesh Minister Kamal Rani Varun, the only woman cabinet minister in the state, died of COVID-19 at a hospital here on Sunday. She was 62.

The Technical Education minister, who tested positive for COVID-19 on July 18 and is the first minister in the state to succumb to the disease, breathed her last at the Sanjay Gandhi Postgraduate Institute of Medical Sciences (SGPIMS).

She had comorbidities, including diabetes, hypertension and hyperthyroidism, a senior doctor at the hospital said. Kamal Rani, who is survived by her daughter, was cremated at the Bhairo Ghat crematorium here in accordance with COVID-19 protocols. "A guard of honour was given as soon as her body reached Bhairo Ghat crematorium," District Magistrate Dr Brahmedo Ram Tiwari said.

Chenab rail bridge in J&K to be ready by next year

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The world's highest railway bridge over river Chenab in Jammu and Kashmir will be ready by next year, and will connect the valley with the rest of India by train for the first time by 2022, officials said on Sunday.

The bridge, which has a central span of 467 metres, is being built at a height of 359 metres from the bed level. The height of Qutab Minar in Delhi is 72 metres and that of the Eiffel Tower in Paris is 324 metres.

"This is the tallest railway bridge in the world and the maximum designed wind speed for the bridge is 266 kmph," a senior government official said.

The construction work of the bridge was accelerated in the last one year under the direct supervision of the top echelons of the central government, the official said.

According to the plans, Kashmir will be connected with train by December 2022.

The bridge is being built at a height of 359 metres from the bed level. The height of Qutab Minar in Delhi is 72 metres and that of the Eiffel Tower in Paris is 324 metres

The Udhampur-Katra (25 Km) section, Banihal-Quazigund (18 Km) section and Quazigund-Baramulla (118Km) section have already been commissioned.

The last remaining section, the 111 km Katra-Banihal section is currently under execution. It is targeted for completion in December 2022. The 126 km out of 174 km of tunnels on this section has already been completed.

There has been a greater push in the last one year for implementation of various projects under the Rs 80,068 crore

Prime Minister's Development Package (PMDP) announced on November 7, 2015, the official said.

The package is meant for strengthening socio-economic infrastructure and balanced regional development of Jammu and Kashmir.

The programme touches practically every sector and provides for massive investments in basic infrastructure, another official said.

After the reorganisation of Jammu and Kashmir in August 2019, the Union Territory of Jammu and Kashmir was left with 54 projects under the PMDP with an outlay of Rs 58,627 crore.

A total of nine projects with an outlay of Rs 21,441 crore were transferred to the UT of Ladakh.

"The work in the PMDP since June 2018 and particularly in the last one year has been the rapid and unprecedented," the official said.

The number of completed projects and substantially completed projects has correspondingly shot up from seven in June 2018 to 17 in July 2020.

Kerala gold case: NIA arrests six more people

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The National Investigation Agency (NIA) has arrested six more people and conducted searches at six places in connection with the Kerala gold smuggling case, an official said on Sunday.

The agency has so far arrested 10 people in the case of smuggling of gold through diplomatic baggage addressed to the UAE consulate in Kerala capital Thiruvananthapuram.

On July 30, two accused - Jalal A M of Ernakulam and Said Alavi E of Malappuram - were arrested for conspiring with the arrested accused Ramees K T, an NIA spokesperson said.

On July 31, two more accused, Mohammed Shafi P and Abdu P T, both residents of Malappuram, were arrested in the case, he said.

On August 1, the NIA arrested two more persons - Ernakulam-residents Muhammad Ali Ebrahim and Muhammad Ali.

AAP, L-G collide

Nullifying the Delhi govt order on appointing independent lawyers for riots cases seems to be aimed at influencing courts

If the Delhi Police, being an elite law-keeping force in the country, is so sure about the impartiality and professionalism of its conduct during the city riots in February, why does it want its own public prosecutors to fight related cases in court? Or why is the Lt Governor, Anil Bajjal, as the Centre's representative, locking horns yet again with the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP)-led Delhi Government on an issue of propriety? This time Bajjal has overturned the Delhi Cabinet's decision that had disbanded the panel of lawyers suggested by the Delhi Police from arguing in the Supreme Court and the High Court in the interest of a fair probe. Not only this, he has invoked Article 239AA(4) of the Constitution and referred the dispute to the President. Under the said Article, the Delhi Government is bound to follow the L-G's orders. The AAP Government, which has time and again insisted that the Delhi Police is not under its purview and did not oppose it or the Home Ministry to which it reports despite public criticism during the riots, rightly exercised its prerogative to suggest a transparent analysis of events. It argued that since the courts had already raised serious questions on the investigations done by the Delhi Police in the riots case and during students' protests, the lawyers shouldn't be pro-Government. So against the Delhi Police's proposal to appoint six senior lawyers, including Solicitor General Tushar Mehta and ASG Aman Lekhi, as special counsel in the High Court and Supreme Court in 85 cases related to the riots and the anti-Citizenship (Amendment) Act protests, the Delhi Government wanted to field lawyer Rahul Mehra and his team. Does this mean that the Centre is trying to dictate the course of the trial, investigation and public perception? Or is it trying to justify the crackdown on the protesters and label them as seditious? For under no circumstance should the prosecution be linked to one of the parties that is under investigation. Of course, the BJP has launched a counter-charge, saying the AAP was trying to save its MLA Tahir Hussein, who has been booked for instigating the riots. But there have been far too much evidence and reports that show how instead of pursuing the rioters, the Delhi Police has been harassing victims, activists and acting in a partisan manner. Meanwhile, politicians who incited mobs were neither charged nor arrested. One cannot ignore the judiciary either, which has called out the non-action or the programmed action of the police. Earlier, none other than the Supreme Court had observed that the riots in Delhi could have been prevented if the police had the independence to act. The Bench used strong words: "Unfortunate things have happened, the problem is the total lack of independence of the police." And on Friday, the Delhi High Court asked Special Commissioner of Police Praveer Ranjan to explain the "necessity" of issuing a letter to chiefs of probe teams, which said that arrests of "some Hindu youth" from riot-hit areas had led to a "degree of resentment among the Hindu community." Justice Suresh Kumar Kait also asked him to place before the High Court "five such letters" issued by him or his predecessor as the CrPC does not mandate such instructions and reminded that senior officers can just guide their teams but not influence the facts.

The February riots were the worst that Delhi has seen since the targeted killing of Sikhs in 1984. It brought out a rabid kind of communal sentiments and embarrassingly happened when US President Donald Trump was on his first visit to India, thereby drawing international attention. But then COVID-19 happened and steamrolled all such concerns. Yet, given the sensitivity involved and the excesses of brutality, it is of utmost importance that the rule of law is upheld and the judiciary allowed to function independently. Already perceived to be acting under executive pressure, ever since the Narendra Modi Government came to power and emasculated institutional powers, the judiciary should not appear to be "guided" in the riots case. Anyway, the line between fact and fiction has blurred with too many ground truths held back from the public domain. And disproportionately, the Government narrative of stereotyping the riots as another volatile expression of communal angst has been gaining ground. The Delhi Police is capable of conducting a sound probe but appears to be under pressure to "manage" a certain narrative so that courts have very little to deliberate on. Certainly, nothing could be a bigger travesty of justice. And if the Delhi Police looks toothless, one would dread to imagine what happens in the State police forces of Uttar Pradesh and Haryana, where the ruling party sentiment will sit in judgment on the right to protest.

Hate crime, again

Cow vigilantes beat up a young man suspecting he was transporting beef. Only he wasn't

It is official. India has a major law and order problem on its hands as communal conflicts are rising and are being settled outside the justice system. Hate Crime Watch documented 254 criminal attacks targeting religious minorities between January 2009 and October 2018, which killed 91 people and injured 579 others. And to worsen matters, our police force is inefficient, ineffective and distressingly complicit in most crimes and atrocities that are committed on religious minorities, Scheduled Castes, tribes, backward classes and the underprivileged. The most recent example of this chilling indifference and perversion of the law comes from Gurugram where a group of five cow vigilantes beat up a young man with a hammer in the presence of policemen on the suspicion of transporting beef. Later, it turned out that it was buffalo meat that the young man was transporting at the behest of his boss, who has been in the business for 50 years. For now, the victim, who was beaten within an inch of his life, is alive, but who is to say what will happen tomorrow? This incident is a throwback to the Dadri lynching case of 2015 when one Mohammad Akhlaq was killed by cow vigilantes in Uttar Pradesh for allegedly slaughtering a cow and consuming its meat. The Gurugram incident, that occurred on the eve of Eid al-Adha, which is colloquially known as "Bakri Eid", shows that it was pre-planned and pre-meditated as the cow vigilantes were out to create trouble or even spark off communal disturbance. Just like the Dadri case, the police was faster at sending the meat to a lab for testing than taking the half-dead victim to the hospital or catching any of the suspects. This also reminds one of the Alwar policemen, who delayed rushing another lynching case victim, Rakbar Khan, to the hospital and were reluctant to take action against the guilty cow vigilantes despite video evidence.

It is obvious that emboldened by political patronage and police inaction, cow vigilantes, basically criminals posing themselves as wingmen of Hindutva, are no longer afraid of the proverbial long arm of the law and don't hesitate to violate it with impunity. What else can explain the fact that assaulters continued to beat the young man even after dragging him to his village with the police watching in silence? In fact, so brazen and fearless were the men that they turned on the cops themselves when they finally deigned to intervene. This loss of respect for the law and the guarantee of protection for a "majoritarian cause" are the reasons why there has been a surge in kangaroo courts across the country over the last two months. The vigilantes dispense instant justice for what they call "theft" and "selling beef." This latest incident not only shows how cow vigilantism is on the rise again in India but that the politics of otherisation is set to be the new pandemic.

Seeds of conflict

Turkish nationalism could only emerge at the expense of Muslim identity. For the Greeks, by contrast, religion continued to be a decisive factor in shaping their national identity

PRIYADARSHI DUTTA

Edwin A Grosvenor (1845-1936), an American historian and author, who for some years lived and taught in Constantinople — as Istanbul was still called in the late 19th century — found that the Turks regarded Aya Sofia (Hagia Sophia) with "pride of conquest than affection." The exquisite cathedral was still functioning as a mosque when Grosvenor wrote the history of the Ottoman capital in two volumes, Constantinople (1895). Nevertheless, since the end of the Crimean War (1854-56), its ground floor and the gallery were thrown open to the visitors for payment of a fee. The Christian characteristics of the cathedral were so pronounced that "its structural form has always resisted the requirements of Moslem ritual."

The Turks, being conscious that "though the mosque is theirs, it is not of them", had to import two distinctive symbols connected with the pulpit. The first was a pair of silken flags, "significant of victory of Islam over its parent faiths, Judaism and Christianity." Second, every Friday, when its Sheikh (Imam) climbed the steep pulpit steps to preach, he held in his right hand an unsheathed sword, indicative of the manner in which the Hagia Sophia was conquered. "So, would the Moslem forget the long past of the church?" asked Grosvenor. "He cannot, for the flags and sword are there" (Constantinople, Vol-II, Pg, 543)

It is speculative whether the flags and sword would be reintroduced in Hagia Sophia, which was recently reverted to a mosque. Turkey's President Recep Tayyip Erdogan, however, did not re-claim Hagia Sophia for Islam in a manner reminiscent of Sultan Mehmed II in 1453 AD. Erdogan achieved his end through a presidential decree, published in the official gazette on July 10. He has, thus, clothed himself in the role of "Gazette Ghazi."

Mustafa Kemal Pasha, former President of Turkey, was also known as a "Ghazi" (vanquisher of infidels) for 14 long years before he adopted his last name Ataturk in 1935. This title was conferred upon him by the new Turkish National Assembly in September 1921, at the height of the Greco-Turkish War (1919-1922) that he led as the Field Marshal. To many of his countrymen, especially those who never saw him, the title conjured a glamourised image.

Once, when Kemal Pasha "Ghazi", as biographer Patrick Kinross informs, was visiting a mountainous village in Turkey, he found that an artist had drawn his portrait from imagination on a wall. It was that of a formidable warrior, with sweeping moustaches and a seven-foot long sword. The villagers, however, were shocked to discover a clean-shaven Ghazi in European style summer suit, a sports shirt open at the neck and a Panama hat. So great was their disbelief that they barely managed to clap as the Ghazi walked past his imaginary portrait. The conqueror was wearing the costume of the infidel (Ataturk: The Rebirth of a Nation, Pg, 414).

More than his western attire, Kemal's westernising policy was likely to scandalise his countrymen, who had been direct subjects of the Caliphate for 400 years. However, it was much less than what we might assume. Kemal, by sheer force of his personality, no less than the weight of his achievements, was able to ramrod secularisation in matters of State policy and national life of Turkey. He abolished the Caliphate, eliminated religious courts, abolished the fez cap, discouraged veil for women, suppressed religious brotherhood, closed sacred tombs as places of worship, declared the Gregorian calendar as a national calendar, replaced Sharia with a new civil code law, introduced Latin alphabets in place of Arabic for writing Turkish and made the adoption of the last name mandatory (himself took up Ataturk) among others.

Even the name of the republic viz, Turkey (which citizens called Türkiye), clearly revealed its European origin. The term Turk, profoundly connected with Islam, had originally been given by the Europeans in the 11th century. Whether the modernisation of Turkey could have been achieved without brazen westernisation is a matter of opinion. However, through these measures, Ataturk built up a Turkish identity founded on language and territory but delinked from religion. "In the imperial society of Ottomans, the ethnic term Turk was little used and then chiefly in a derogatory sense" says Bernard Lewis, "to designate Turcoman nomads or later ignorant and uncouth Turkish speaking peasants of Anatolian villages. To apply it to an Ottoman gentleman of Constantinople would have been an insult" (The Emergence of Modern Turkey, Pg 1-2). Until the 19th century, the Turks had thought of themselves purely as Muslims. Turkish nationalism could only emerge at the expense of Muslim identity. Ataturk's republic, however, was one-party rule. Therefore, he could enforce his policies without any organised opposition. He did not banish religion from the republic but controlled its institutions, clergy and instructions through State apparatus.

For the Greeks, by contrast, religion continued to be a decisive factor in shaping their national identity. The Lausanne Convention on the compulsory exchange of population between Greece and Turkey (January 30, 1923) defined a Greek as one belonging to "Greek Orthodox religion" and Turk as "Moslem" without any reference to a person's mother tongue. Greece's democratic Constitution (2001) begins counter-intuitively "in the name of Holy and Consubstantial and Indivisible Trinity" rather than Solon, Clisthenes, Themistocles and Pericles.

The reason for the indissoluble bond between Eastern Orthodox Christianity and Greek identity is two-fold. First, during the Byzantine era (mid-fourth to mid-15th century AD) orthodox religion cemented spiritual and national unity of the Greeks. The Hellenic past of the Greeks witnessed conflict of philosophy and religion as well as extreme political disunity. Second, under the Ottoman rule (mid-15th century to 19th century), the Church formed the nucleus of the Greek nation. Under the millat system, the Greek patriarch based in Constantinople also acted as the secular head of the Roum millet (Roman nation) comprising all Christian subjects in the Ottoman empire. It, thus, functioned as a State within the Empire, whose influence continued to increase as Ottoman power declined vis-à-vis Europe.

The pioneer of the Greek War of Independence (1821-29) was Germanos, the Archbishop of Patras, who on April 4, 1821, proclaimed the insurrection against the Turks. Several high dignitaries of the Orthodox Church, including Patriarch of Constantinople Gregory IV himself, suffered martyrdom. Thus, Church and Greek independence somehow got interconnected from the beginning. This is a legacy that even 21st century Greece continues to respect. However, the Church and the State were separate even during the Byzantine Empire, with no scope for conflict between the Emperor and the Patriarch, unlike between the Pope and the monarchs in Latin Christendom. The same continues to be true in the republic of Greece, where the Church has no role in statecraft. Turkey, meanwhile, has dented its own image by reversion of Hagia Sophia into a mosque.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

NEP idealistic

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "New curriculum" (July 31). Coming after a gap of 34 years, the new educational policy unveiled by the Government is still idealistic. But it is timely considering that in a post-COVID-19 world, the educational pattern will undergo a sea change. The proposed shift in the existing (10+2) system to (5+3+3+4) will lead to the overall development of children. Vast changes will ensure universal access to school education, focus on early childhood care and education, restructure the school curriculum and pedagogy, reform the assessment system and invest in teacher training. All of this will significantly transform the educational system.

Yet NEP's success depends on the finer details. It is up to the Government to create an atmosphere, infrastructure and teaching resources for the smooth phasing of this transition stage. And it must ensure transparency and accountability. But most importantly, it must bring out an action plan for a pan-India implementation,

NEP: Challenge lies in implementation

This refers to the editorial, "New curriculum" (July 31). The first thing that strikes the eye is the proposed Higher Education Commission of India that dispenses with every other autonomous regulator in the sector. Notwithstanding its unbecoming proclivity for ideological ascendancy on education per se, the BJP, in the National Education Policy (NEP), 2020, has but added frills to the 1986 education policy without altering the main motif. The continuity is welcome.

In doing away with rigid separations between arts, commerce and sciences; curricular and extra-curricular activities; vocational and academic streams, the reshaped policy is akin to converting overnight medical clinics to multi-speciality hospitals. Students can now select subjects across streams. This would exponentially drive additional infrastructure, be it of funds, quantity, variety or quality of faculty. Taken together, the management of such involved matrix of matching each course to resources would need first-rate professional administration. Our education spend is to be boosted. Our enduring incapacity to improve our healthcare spend has been mercilessly exposed by COVID-19. One hopes the Government has the will to fund two major social sectors simultaneously.

Game-changer jets

Sir — The induction of five Rafale jets will boost the Indian Air Force (IAF)'s airpower and military prowess. The procurement of the jets is a very significant development for India, which is in the midst of a bitter military standoff with China in eastern Ladakh and heightened tensions with Pakistan along the LoC.

Technical experts claim that the supersonic Rafale can be used for ground and sea attacks and can undertake electronic warfare, air defence, ground support and in-depth strikes. The biggest asset, however, is its weapon carrying capability and air-to-air missile feature. Being claimed as the most potent aircraft in South Asia, the flight is equipped with scalp long-range missile and can hit a target more than 300 km away. It can also detect threats well in advance and neutralise them.

However, in the context of the border confrontation with China, so long as Beijing refuses to restore status quo ante along the LAC, the Rafales should be used as a bargaining chip or as a contingency tactic. But in the changed security environment, India needs to fast-track the procurement of the subsequent batches of the jets. Unfortunately, the political system is always more concerned about accusations of scandals regarding arms purchases than what they mean for security.

Where we lag behind

Sir — This refers to the editorial, "New curriculum" (July 31). The NEP offers a lot of hope but the Government must simultaneously work on improving the quality of teaching and research. It must also improve its funding structure. Due to the lack of opportunities, researchers prefer moving abroad to pursue PhD. We need to give them job offers and financial security.

A search for some answers

One wonders if people are suffering more from being infected by Corona or from almost driving themselves over the edge by the fear of the virus

VINAYSHIL GAUTAM

One is living almost cocooned in an equilateral triangle. One arm of the triangle is the terrifying COVID-19 situation, the second arm of the triangle is an economy in a tailspin, with little understanding of how deep the dive is going to be or how it can be brought under control. The third arm of the triangle is made of the travails and trials of an ordinary life. The COVID age — for want of a better phrase — that the world is currently passing through, is known to have just as much of an impact on the psyche and lifestyles of people as the Coronavirus has on the human body. How long can one survive in a bottomless pit of anxiety is a question to which there can be no definitive answers. Even history is silent on this very vital issue of human endurance.

One wonders if people are actually suffering more from being infected by the virus or from almost driving themselves over the edge by the fear of being infected by COVID-19. The governance process itself seems to be in a trial and error mode with a hands-on situation. A few weeks ago, a locality of a major district of an important State was claimed to have no place in the listing of containment zones issued by the District Commissioner's Office. Yet, when the police department was contacted, they claimed it was still in the containment zone. Similarly, a Chief Minister asked the people to come out in large numbers and promote the economy. He said the weekly bazaars and hotels would open and much, much more lay ahead. The Lieutenant-Governor negated the instruction and the hapless citizens struggled to understand what the content of Unlocked 3.0 was.

There are millions of questions about the virus that remain unanswered. To what extent is surface transmission of the disease real? Do the envelopes received in the mail pose a risk? One former director of a major national medical institute says he keeps the mail and packages in the sun, for a while, before opening them. He didn't have an answer on what to do when it rains. A doctor from England advised the use of gloves while opening envelopes received through an agency, or at least sanitising the hands after opening the mail. However, the World Health Organisation (WHO), in an advisory says that it is safe to receive a package from any area where COVID-19 has been reported. So, who does one believe in a situation like this?

Then there is the case of newspapers. Epidemiologists say newspapers are safe while others have their doubts. It is difficult to identify which is an authoritative source of information in so many aspects of the so-called COVID-era. And then, what happens to currency notes? The packaging of the kitchen ingredients which any household would need? Or the milk packets brought from the dairy?

As noted above, one side of the triangle is that of one being currently caught up in the actual experience of acquiring the Coronavirus infection. The other side of the triangle is the kind of collateral experience when trying to live a normal life through a pandemic. Even if one forgets about the vaccines, the high and mighty of the medical profession are still not unanimous on the nature, extent and the reality of the actual infection.

If one is not clear there, one can only keep washing hands, sanitising surfaces, not go out of the house beyond a certain point and hope for the best. Therein comes the third arm of the triangle. The ways of earning, while staying at home, (the ordinary life) are limited by class and profession. The circulation of the service class is so large and unstructured that contact tracing can sometimes become like trying to put together a ten thousand-piece puzzle.

Add to it the travails of real life. The other realities don't disappear because the COVID-era is in focus. Where does one find a safe dentist? In the rainy season one will contract cold because of change in weather. How does one find out whether it is the first stage of the Coronavirus or an overheated imagination? One of the estimates says that over 16 lakh Indians have fallen ill in the last three months of the pandemic from the Coronavirus. Is there any figure available of how many people fell ill from diseases other than the Coronavirus, in the same period?

During the same period, the number of unemployed rose by 10 crore. Even milk registered a lower availability by 30 per cent. One of the news channels ran a random survey, where 11 per cent of those surveyed were found to be suffering from mild depression and another six per cent from depression. Reportedly, in a Parliamentary Committee proceeding, there has been reference to an addition of 12 crore to the number of people who have, further, sunk below the poverty line. The auto sector has registered loss of jobs to the tune of 30 per cent and the retail sector up to 60 per cent.

More statistics can be quoted. The relevant part is at least to ask whether the Coronavirus is the bigger malaise or the collateral damage done by it? For a solution in either case, a scientific method and its comprehensiveness will be the acid test. (The writer is a well-known management consultant)

Own the hybrid war

The armed forces must set the tone for tech-based warfare and create a roadmap so that they can reach 'Military 4.5' quickly and guide the industry rather than be dictated by it

PUS PANNU

The modern military is increasingly becoming technology-reliant and, therefore, industry-dependent. Hybrid warfare — the current flavour of war-fighting — is fast transforming into a technology-based, non-contact, ambiguous and transitory model. The rapidity of change comes from exponential growth in every facet of human life, largely fuelled by computers, generating competition between man and machine as well as combined man-machine teams. Bursts of concentrated technology innovation periods like these — so productive, so game-changing — move into an entirely new category: Industrial revolution.

The military has been constrained to follow and adapt to what technology and the industry provide through these cycles. Throughout revolutions historically, the industry has been just a level ahead of the military. Today we are deep into Industrial Revolution 4.0, marked by data and machine learning (ML). For the military, that means moving our industrial platforms and war machines to be run by Artificial Intelligence (AI) engines. The current security dynamics dictate that the military must do that, albeit with caution, to finally pull a half-level ahead of the industry.

The armed forces must set the tone for technology-based warfare and create the roadmap so that they can reach 'Military 4.5' as quickly as possible and guide the industry rather than be dictated by it. This is a call for the military fraternity and their counterparts in the industry. If a country is inferior in technology, by inference, it would be inferior in national security.

Facing an adversary with better technology, you are that much weaker, more porous and behind the curve. If you are vulnerable, you are also exploitable by nations that are high on research and development and innovation. That advantage extends well beyond military might to the negotiating table, to diplomatic efforts, to trade and financial markets. Overall, security is driven by accelerating technological prowess. For example, China feels comfortable, as it projects and flexes its muscles, leveraging technology and military power in tandem.

Moving the military to 4.5 will represent a major hurdling of significant obstacles i.e. our cultural aversion to swift change. Right now, we have yet to fully subsume the elements of Industrial Revolution 4.0. We're frankly closer to 3.5. But who better to determine what is needed and put forth to the industry than the armed forces, the tip of the spear. We need the industry to deliver today on the most promising technologies of tomorrow.

Neo-Nanotechnology: Light, small and fast, nanotechnology and miniaturised components offer the military some obvious benefits in terms of portability, protection and connection. But it needs to go further. We need the military version — neo-nanotech — that's even smaller, refined for reliable performance, and rugged and hardened enough to withstand the rigorous demands of field operations.

Human augmentation to match the machine: As systems become more networked and the machines get smarter, the sheer speed and connectivity will challenge the human beings they are meant to serve. They will need to keep up. Fast and capable, these systems will easily outstrip their operators unless some augmentation technology pairs with the person to prevent fatigue, circumvent relatively slower thinking and fuels a better decision-making cycle. This intelligent augmentation is crucial to controllable autonomous applications. For context, consider the modern-day flight deck, which relies on human input to set up a flight plan. But the execution of that flight is now undertaken by the onboard flight computer, a machine. Why? Humans are now the weakest link in the chain, vulnerable to lapses in attention, fatigue, even informational, psychological, biological and chemical warfare. Autonomous systems are much more impervious to such influences.

True network-centric operations: When target acquisition and robotics are brought together, we will have nearly achieved the Industrial Revolution for Military 4.5. Call it C5ISR-STAR2 (Command, Control, Communications, Computers, Cyber, Intelligence and Information — Surveillance, Target Acquisition, Reconnaissance and Robotics). It is a substantial name for a substantial capability, a networked battlefield where decentralised, robotic-initiated decision-making would be the norm. The Command, Control and Surveillance would largely be linked through space. These assets in space would need protection. How that is achieved is another race.

Imagine, for example, that humans pre-programme a satellite to identify targets in a certain area. AI can enable them to set the parameters by which the target would be eliminated autonomously — the system would designate the weapon for doing so and take action if the criteria fits. In another situation, humans might serve as the final confirmation before the autonomous system locks on to a target for action. Another step forward would be to designate pre-sanctioned targets, to be engaged on appearance.

The Internet of Military Things (IoMT): Network-centric operations won't happen without the fusion of smaller, smarter sensors, network connectivity, signal intelligence devices, aircraft, UAVs and so on. A secure, private network is the core layer to communicating this data. That will require scalable satellite connectivity for narrowband applications plus fibre and microwave links to support broadband applications. These would ultimately connect millions of devices and sensors operating ubiquitously and support data transfer. AI would play a critical role, enabling the IoMT to transition from mostly telemetry and sensing to complete autonomous action guided by rules defined by individual countries.

Computer networks are efficient, desirable tools as they can move massive machine data simultaneously to multiple subscribers. This can also turn disastrous if disruption is caused through technology limitations, an incident driven by adversarial action or a simple human error. The military has this challenge — it needs its machines and networks secured and protected against these possibilities. High assurances and strong protection tools will need to be delivered by the industry. Call it military-grade secrecy; security protocols would need to be well-defined.

Secure Chips, Quantum Technology and IP concealment (ie, no IP Address) would essentially form this baseline. None of the above will be possible if the industry cannot pin down the fundamental, base-layer PME (Power, Materials, and Electronics) capabilities. Military superiority will come from innovations that can deliver lighter, more sustainable power, perhaps delivered through nuclear, renewables or rechargeable through motion.

It will come from lighter, stronger, self-healing materials designed to maximize survivability for the war-fighter and bear up under temperatures that span the extremes of heat and cold.

It will come from next generation electronics that are tiny, light and programmable. It will come from developing the technological mechanisms that make it possible for humans and machines to partner in powerful new ways. PME would expand the possibilities for a single fighting machine to perform operations in all three spheres — air, ground and water — with almost equal efficiency and sustainability. The AI engines would enable them to be networked as swarms and self-assign targets between machines. Networks will make it possible to build H-M2M-H (Human-Machine to Machine Human) interfaces to bring battles to be planned, regulated and controlled from manned war rooms, yet fought by machines in the field. The groundwork has clearly been laid. We have data, advanced computing, new materials and engineering methods that are translating into the fastest evolution of physical systems in human history.

We can process data in seconds and run experiment after experiment based on the evolving results. Even small companies can better innovate at scale because it's cheaper and faster to do so. There are simply no excuses for failure.

If the industry can deliver on this considerable potential, the military can deliver and fulfil its prime directive: Ensuring national security that underpins all else. We can do it while preserving human life and outsourcing the truly dangerous jobs to robotics and autonomous systems. Military 4.5 is not a holistic war-fighting solution but a concept to guide the industry to push the envelope beyond 4.0.

For all actors, elements of war-fighting (ethical, unethical and ambiguous) are coming together in a new technology-enabled paradigm — hybrid war — that will challenge us to be more thoughtful. The Grey Zone is expanding, stitching non-State and State actors as legitimate participants of the hybrid war. The conventional battles are subsiding the sub-conventional. Technology is the common denominator but it needs ethical military guidance along the way.

Socialist ideas and an indifferent working class

Complex political and cultural ideas that stem from upper and middle-class discourses often mean little to the working class looking for upward mobility

NADEEM PARACHA

An acquaintance associated with an advertising firm once related a rather telling anecdote. Two years ago, his firm prepared a campaign for a food company owned by a gentleman from Faisalabad. The owner of the company was a self-made man who, decades ago, had begun his career as a worker in a factory after arriving as a teenager from a village.

He had passed his matriculate exams but because of his family's deteriorating economic situation, he could not attend college. However, this did not stop him from diligently working his way up. From a factory worker, he became a foreman and then, years later, with some money borrowed from a friend, he first set up a grocery store and then a small food company. The business was a success and by 2006, he was a rich man.

The campaign that the advertising firm presented to him was based on phrases and antics popularised by archetypal Punjabi films. After the firm was done presenting, the owner began giving his feedback. He told the agency's executives that he would never want to use the campaign.

He then explained: "For years, Punjabis like me have been struggling to eliminate this image of us as people who look and do things like Sultan Rahi in Punjabi films." The businessman was disappointed that a group of educated executives from Karachi could not visualise his company as a modern entity as they would do for a multinational.

This was a case of how superficially sometimes members of urban middle-classes perceive people from humbler backgrounds. The advertising executives had been told by "insiders" in the company about the owner's rural origins. So, in a bid to appeal to this aspect of his personality, they assumed that Punjabi films were accurate depictions of the province's rural life and, therefore, such imagery would suffice to get the owner's approval.

In the early 1990s, Imran Aslam, playwright and former editor of an English daily where I worked as a reporter, told me that when he was a young man and "experimenting" with communism, there used to be a trend among communists from well-to-do middle-class families to "prove their socialist credentials" by taking up "working class vocations".

Imran said that he once joined a group of labourers working at a construction site but the workers simply refused to let him work. This was not because his presence threatened them. In fact, according to Imran, it actually amused them no end. They just could not figure out why a person with a good education, spacious home and the potential to bag a lucrative job would leave all of it to lift bricks with a group of men who would rather have a good education, spacious homes and the potential to bag lucrative jobs.

According to Imran, his young, idealistic self had sketched a romanticised picture of how working class people think. He believed they would be pleased to see a member of a more prosperous class join them in doing what they did for a living. Imran said that, eventually, some of the labourers told him that one day they would like their children to have the kind of life he had before he arrived at the construction site. Imran went back home.

In 2015, at that year's Karachi Literature Festival that I attended as a speaker, I bumped into a relative of the late communist leader Hasan Nasir. Nasir, who hailed from an aristocratic family in India, was associated with the Communist Party of Pakistan. He was arrested by the Ayub Khan dictatorship in 1960, tortured and killed. His relative is married to one of my mother's cousins. He (the relative) told me that Nasir was arrested from a shanty town in Karachi. When I asked him if he was hiding there, the relative smiled and said, "No, he was living there." He said that Nasir was constantly at odds with his privileged background and made sure he challenged it by residing in areas where working-class people lived, in their huts and tiny apartments.

As I showed my appreciation, the relative smiled again and said, "But they (the poor) always treated him differently. He was never accepted as one of their own. All they were interested in was whether he could get them better jobs or a better education for their children. All else they understood as just talk by a young man." This is interesting because, as a student leader, during my involvement in a campaign for a political party for the 1988 elections, I remember that when we used to visit low-income areas, the people there would nod, smile and applaud the fiery speeches that the party's younger cadres delivered. But they were far more interested to meet the candidate and talk to him about whether he was capable of providing them jobs or schools, or how the candidate planned to resolve the area's infrastructural issues.

Finally, one day, I asked the candidate how he was able to engage with the voters in such areas where our revolutionary speeches about solidarity with the poor were failing to attract similar traction. He replied: "They dream about becoming what you are. They don't want to see another them. They want to see themselves becoming you, or at least believe that their children can. That's what I promise them. Things and tools to better their lot."

In his 1937 book, The Road to Wigan Pier, George Orwell writes about his experiences living as a socialist among coal miners and factory workers. According to Orwell, the poor were simply interested in improving their lives with better pay and conditions. They had no interest in the theoretical aspects of any ideology. Orwell believed that the reason the socialists failed to fully engage with the workers was because the socialists bring with them people who preach complex political and cultural ideas that have everything to do with upper and middle-class discourses and nothing to do with the realities and aspirations of the working-classes. In some cases, this may also mean using ideological rationales to keep the poor from even thinking about any upward mobility because that would be "beneficial to capitalism." (Courtesy: Dawn)

Bengal takes Rs 1,022-cr loan from Centre

KOLKATA: West Bengal has taken a Rs 1,022-crore transition loan from the Centre to help its power distribution company tide over liquidity stress amid the Covid-19 pandemic. The loan is part of the central government's Rs 90,000-crore 'Atmanirbhar Bharat Abhiyan' package to assist stressed distribution companies. The WBSEDCL has been facing financial woes with minuscule collections in April and May resulting in an over Rs 2,000-crore shortfall, officials said. With a consumer base of about two crore, WBSEDCL caters to the entire state except Kolkata and a part of its adjoining districts. "We have taken a Rs 1,022-crore loan to clear dues of various Central and state entities," Minister Sobhondeb Chattopadhyay said.

FPIs net buyers for 2nd month in Jul; invest Rs 3,301 cr

NEW DELHI: Foreign portfolio investors (FPI) remained net buyers for the second consecutive month in July by pumping in Rs 3,301 crore in Indian markets amid hopes of a coronavirus vaccine. According to the depositories data, a net sum of Rs 7,563 crore was invested in equities while Rs 4,262 crore were withdrawn by FPIs between July 1-31. The net investment during the month stood at Rs 3,301 crore. In the previous month, FPIs put in a net Rs 24,053 crore in Indian markets. Some factors that led to investment in July include surge in markets which provided FPIs good profit booking opportunity, improvement in sentiment on the back of rising hopes of a coronavirus vaccine, said Himanshu Srivastava, associate director - manager research, Morningstar India.

Lupin recalls 35,928 bottles of antibiotic drug

NEW DELHI: Drug major Lupin is recalling 35,928 bottles of a generic antibiotic drug in the US market following unfavourable result in retention samples, the US health regulator said in a report. As per the latest Enforcement Report of the US Food and Drug Administration (USFDA), the Mumbai-based company is recalling Cefdinir for oral suspension USP, 250 mg/5mL, packaged in 60 ml bottles. The lot has been manufactured at Lupin's Mandideep (Madhya Pradesh) manufacturing facility, and then supplied to company's Baltimore-based arm, Lupin Pharmaceuticals, Inc, which has initiated the country wide recall on July 2.

Discoms' outstanding dues rise 47% to Rs 1.33L cr in June

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Power producers' total outstanding dues owed by distribution firms rose over 47 per cent year-on-year to Rs 1.33 lakh crore in June 2020, reflecting stress in the sector.

Distribution companies (discoms) owed a total of Rs 90,655 crore to power generation firms in June 2019, according to portal PRAAPTI (Payment Ratification And Analysis in Power procurement for bringing Transparency in Invoicing of generators).

The portal was launched in May 2018 to bring in transparency in power purchase transactions between the generators and discoms.

In June 2020, the total overdue amount, which was not cleared even after 60 days of grace period offered by generators, stood at Rs 1,20,041 crore, as against Rs 72,362 crore in the year-ago period.

According to the latest data on the portal, total outstanding dues in June has increased over the previous month. In May 2020, the total dues of discoms stood at Rs 1,26,963 crore. The overdue amount in June 2020 also increased from Rs 1,13,869 crore in May 2020.

Power producers give 60 days to discoms for paying bills for the supply of electricity. After that, outstanding dues become overdue and generators charge penal interest on that in most cases.

In order to give relief to power generation companies (gencos), the Centre enforced a payment security mechanism from August 1, 2019. Under this mechanism, discoms are required to open letters of credit for getting power supply.

The central government had given some breachers to discoms for paying dues to power generating companies (gencos) in view of COVID-19-induced lockdown. The government had also waived the penal charges for late payment of dues in the directive.

In May, the government announced Rs 90,000 crore liquidity infusion for discoms under which these utilities would get loan at economical rates from Power Finance Corporation and REC Ltd. This was an initiative of the government to help gencos to remain afloat. The government reportedly is in the process to increase liquidity infusion package to Rs 1.25 lakh crore after it received requests from some states in this regard.

Discoms in Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh, Jammu & Kashmir, Telangana, Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka and Tamil Nadu account for the major portion of dues to power gencos, the data showed.

Overdues of independent power producers amount to 34.78 per cent of the total overdue of Rs 1,20,041 crore of discoms in June. The proportion of central PSU gencos in the overdue was 36.58 per cent.

Among the central public sector power generators, NTPC alone has an overdue amount of Rs 19,298.77 crore on discoms, followed by NLC India at Rs 6,280.76 crore, Damodar Valley Corporation at Rs 5,570.99 crore, NHPC at Rs 3,518.97 crore and THDC India at Rs 2,551.32 crore.

RBI's MPC meets next week amid urgency to revive growth

PNS ■ MUMBAI

The Reserve Bank's rate-setting Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) will meet next week to decide on the policy stance amid the urgency to revive the coronavirus-hit economy and increased demand for one-time loan restructuring by industry chambers.

Experts are, however, divided over the possibility of another rate cut by the RBI in its forthcoming policy arguing that one-time loan restructuring was more essential at this juncture to tide over the COVID-19 situation.

The MPC, headed by RBI Governor, is scheduled to meet for three days beginning August 4 and announce its decision on August 6.

The central bank has been taking steps proactively to limit the damage to the economy caused by the COVID-19 pandemic and subsequent lockdowns. It is to be noted here that a fast-changing macroeconomic environment and the deteriorating outlook for growth necessitated "off-cycle meetings" of the MPC - first in March and then again

RBI policy, cos' earnings to decide market course

NEW DELHI: The domestic equity market in this coming week will be driven by a host of key developments like RBI monetary policy, macro-economic data release and corporate earnings, analysts said.

At the start of the week, the market will also take cues from July auto sales numbers which signal a recovery in the sector hit hard by COVID-19.

With most parts of the country in unlock phase, the automobile industry has performed better in July over the previous month in terms of sales and is now marching towards normalcy in terms of production as well.

On the macro data front, market participants will be keenly awaiting PMI manufacturing and services sector numbers that are scheduled to be released in the first half of the week.

On the earnings side, Bharti Airtel, Tata Steel, Lupin, Titan, Voltas Apollo Tyres, Canara Bank, Adani Power and M&M, among others, will announce their quarterly numbers during the week.

in May 2020. SBI's research report 'Ecowrap' said with the 115 basis points (bps) reduction in repo beginning February, banks have already transmitted 72 bps to the customers on fresh loans in the interregnum which is perhaps a milestone in terms of the fastest policy rate transmission in India. Large banks have transmitted as much as 85 basis points. "...we believe an August rate cut is unlikely," it said. It believes the MPC could now well debate what further unconventional policy measures could be resorted to in the current circumstances to ensure financial stability is continued to be addressed.

However, several experts, including from banks, have opined the RBI may go for yet another reduction in repo rate of at least 25 bps on August 6.

MSME gives nod for scheme for 'agarbatti' production

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

MSME Minister Nitin Gadkari has approved an employment generation programme proposed by Khadi and Village Industries Commission to make India self-reliant in agarbatti production.

The programme named 'Khadi Agarbatti Aatmanirbhar Mission' aims at creating employment for unemployed and migrant workers in different parts of the country while increasing domestic agarbatti production substantially, the MSME Ministry said.

"The proposal was submitted to the Ministry of MSME for approval last month. The pilot project will be launched soon and on full-fledged implementation of the project, thousands of jobs will be created in the agarbatti industry," the ministry said. The programme aims at handholding artisans and supporting the local agarbatti industry. The current consumption of agarbatti in the country is approximately 1,490 MT per day but local production is just 760 MT.

There is a huge gap between the demand and the supply and hence, immense scope for job creation, said the ministry. Under the scheme, KVIC will provide automatic agarbatti making machines and powder mixing machines to the artisans through the successful private agarbatti manufacturers who will sign the agreement as business partners.

KVIC has decided to procure only locally-made machines by Indian manufacturers. The Centre earlier took two major decisions by placing the agarbatti item from "free trade to 'restricted' trade in the import policy and enhancing the import duty from 10 per cent to 25 per cent on 'round bamboo sticks' used for manufacturing of agarbatti for the benefit of the domestic industry.

KVIC Chairman Vinai Kumar Saxena said the two decisions of the central government created a huge employment opportunity in the agarbatti industry. "In order to encash the huge employment generation opportunity, the KVIC designed a programme namely 'Khadi Agarbatti Aatmanirbhar Mission' and submitted to the Ministry of MSME for approval," Saxena said.

KVIC will provide 25 per cent subsidy on the cost of the machines and recover the remaining 75 per cent of the cost from the artisans in easy instalments every month.

Under the scheme, the business partner will provide raw material to artisans for making agarbatti and pay them wages on job work basis.

Akshaya Patra raises $950,000 in US

PNS ■ HOUSTON

An Indian nonprofit organisation Akshaya Patra has raised USD 950,000 through a virtual event hosted by its Texas chapter in the US to feed mid-day meals to school children in India.

The event, Virtual Gala - Technology for Change, was attended by over 1,000 businesses, non-profits, government officials and philanthropic leaders from around the world, supporting the organisation's dual mission of addressing childhood hunger and promoting education for underserved children in India. The Texas gala, hosted by the cities of Austin, Dallas and Houston, was held on July 25. The evening celebrated volunteers and chapter teams from Austin, Dallas, and Houston who continue to work towards alleviating classroom hunger.

The event included conversation with Narayana Murthy, co-founder of software giant Infosys, by Siva Sivaram, president of Western Digital, who was recently appointed Chairman of Akshaya Patra Foundation USA along with Vice Chairman Srivatsan Rajan.

6 of 10 most valued companies lose Rs 1.38 lakh crore

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Six of the 10 most valued companies witnessed a combined erosion of Rs 1,38,839.83 crore in their market valuation last week with Reliance Industries and HDFC Bank emerging as major losers.

During the last week, Sensex fell 522.01 points or 1.36 per cent.

The market valuation of Reliance Industries Limited (RIL) plunged by Rs 50,239.78 crore to Rs 13,10,323.21 crore.

HDFC Bank's valuation tanked Rs 46,374.63 crore to Rs 5,67,877.74 crore.

The market capitalisation of ICICI Bank eroded by Rs 22,631.74 crore to Rs 2,24,659.85 crore and that of HDFC dipped Rs 10,078.06 crore to Rs 3,09,254.09 crore.

ITC's valuation declined by Rs 6,815.12 crore to Rs 2,38,660.74 crore and that of Bharti Airtel dipped Rs 2,700.5

crore to Rs 3,02,701.60 crore.

In contrast, the market valuation of Tata Consultancy Services (TCS) jumped Rs 47,054.91 crore to Rs 8,56,463.05 crore.

Infosys added Rs 18,591.83 crore to its valuation that stood at Rs 4,11,554.51 crore while Kotak Mahindra Bank's m-cap rose by Rs 3,481.72 crore to Rs 2,70,600.52 crore.

In the ranking, RIL retained the number one position followed by TCS, HDFC Bank, HUL, Infosys, HDFC, Bharti Airtel, Kotak Mahindra Bank, ITC and ICICI Bank in that order.

Sebi to set up virtual museum of securities market

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Regulator Sebi is planning to set up a virtual museum of securities market to highlight achievements and milestones in the Indian capital market.

In a notice, Sebi has invited Expression of Interest (EOI) from agencies to develop the virtual museum.

The museum is intended to be a visual online organised collection of history of evolution, achievements and milestones in the Indian securities market over the decades in terms of market infrastructure, regulation and enforcement, among others, Sebi said.

The achievements will be told through photos, videos, articles, media clippings, interactive display like quiz, paintings, drawings, diagrams, graphs, newspaper articles, transcripts of interviews and numerical databases, among others.

Trai poses more questions to Airtel, Voda Idea on priority plans; seeks explanation

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Not satisfied with responses submitted by Bharti Airtel and Vodafone Idea on priority plans, regulator Trai has shot off additional "technical" queries to both the telcos and asked them to explain their stand on August 4, a source said.

The Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai) wants the two companies to substantiate their claims that the contentious priority offerings, which are under the regulator's lens, have neither deteriorated experience of other network users nor violated any norms.

Another source said that Bharti Airtel has been asked over two dozen questions, including if limits for data speeds have been set for platinum and non-platinum users, and about the levels of throughput for platinum users.

Trai sent out fresh set of questions to both Bharti Airtel and Vodafone Idea on July 31, and the operators have been asked to respond to the questions on August 4.

Emails sent to Bharti Airtel and Vodafone Idea did not elicit a response. Trai has said it is desirable that points raised in the questionnaire be covered in a presentation scheduled on the issue on the same day. The regulator has asked the companies to back their claims via data, the source said.

A Trai official said that the previous responses received from companies were "vague" and gave no real assurance to address regulator's concerns over whether network preference to specific customers resulted in deterioration of services for other non-premium subscribers.

Indian steel market showing signs of recovery: Aditya Mittal

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Indian steel market has started showing signs of recovery after being hit hard by the COVID-19 pandemic and subsequent lockdowns, ArcelorMittal Nippon Steel India Chairman Aditya Mittal has said.

Aditya, son of steel baron LN Mittal, said that operations at ArcelorMittal Nippon Steel India's (formerly Essar Steel) Hazira plant in Gujarat are running at full capacity.

He said that the COVID-19 pandemic severely disrupted domestic demand, in particular during the month of April; however, there is a recovery visible in the market.

"We are seeing the domestic market recover and that's a reason why our operations are running at full capacity (at Hazira in Gujarat)," he told PTI on a query pertaining to the domestic demand.

Aditya Mittal, who is also president and CFO of parent company ArcelorMittal, was appointed chairman of AM/NS India, while Dilip Oommen was appointed as the CEO.

ArcelorMittal posted a net loss of USD 559 million for the second quarter ended June 30, 2020 amid COVID-19 disruptions and termed the quarter as the most difficult period in its history.

GOQii plans expansion to Japan, SE Asia by yr-end

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Healthcare platform GOQii is planning to expand its operations to international markets like the UK, Japan and Southeast Asian countries, talking its smart wearables and ecosystem of offerings to these countries, by the end of the year, a top company official said.

The company, which has launched two new devices featuring temperature monitor and integrated pulse oximeter in the past few weeks, said it has seen a massive jump in sales amid the COVID-19 pandemic.

"...there are plans to go outside of India, and we are talking and looking at Southeast Asia, UK and Japan.

Our key goal was to focus on India... International markets, we are hoping to (enter by) end of the year because we are waiting for the lockdowns and travel restrictions to get over," GOQii CEO Vishal Gondal told PTI.

He added that COVID-19 is bringing in a long-term change in people.

PE investment in warehousing segment falls 92%

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Private equity (PE) investment in warehousing and industrial space segment plunged 92 per cent to USD 102 million (around Rs 750 crore) during the first six months of this year as investors turned cautious because of COVID-19 pandemic, according to Colliers International.

Investment and leasing activity are likely to remain muted over the next year due to slower decision-making by investors because of the pandemic, but the long-term outlook for the segment remains promising, Colliers International said in a report.

PE Investment in India's industrial and warehousing segment fell to USD 102 million in January-June from USD 1,250 million (about Rs 9,300 crore) in the year-ago period, the consultant's data showed.

"Since 2017, the sector has attracted investment inflows of Rs 27,800 crore (USD 3.7 billion). Between 2017 and H1 2020, the sector garnered a considerable 17 per cent share of total private equity real estate investment," the report said.

The consultant noted that the industrial and warehousing sector has attracted significant investor interest since 2017 owing to the reforms introduced by the government.

These reforms include implementation of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) regime, accordance of infrastructure status to the sector, creation of logistics park policy and development of multimodal infrastructure, among others.

"The warehousing sector that was characterized by fragmented sheds and godowns in the past is now becoming more organized, buoyed by the government policies," Colliers said.

To capitalize on the growth potential of the reorganized segment, the sector has attracted significant investor interest. "This segment's share of total private equity real estate investment in India has been increasing year-on-year since 2017, signifying the increasing attractiveness," the report said.

During 2019 through H1 2020, the industrial and warehousing segment garnered the third highest share of PE investments after office and retail.

The investment capital came from foreign investors such as the Abu Dhabi Investment Authority, Canada Pension Plan Investment Board (CPPIB), Ivanhoe Cambridge, Ascendas and Blackstone among others.

"Investment activity may be muted for the next one year due to slower decision-making by investors because of the ongoing pandemic.

"However, we expect the inflow from both foreign and domestic funds to grow over the next 2-3 years as existing participants expand their portfolio and new players enter the market," the report said.

The consultant expects the warehousing segment to bounce back quicker than other segments of real estate, driven by robust demand from e-commerce and other consumer-led occupiers. US-based Colliers International is a leading global real estate services and investment management company. It has operations in 68 countries, with 14,000 workforce.

Celebrating

from miles away

With everybody, including celebrities promising and advocating staying at home as much as possible during the pandemic, they're definitely stumped over not being able to meet their siblings to celebrate Raksha Bandhan. But they thank the internet for keeping them going, finds The Pioneer's RACHEL DAMMALA, while talking to them about their plans.

It's Raksha Bandhan, a festival that celebrates the bond of siblinghood. Sisters tie a rakhi around the wrists of their brothers by symbolically sharing with them the responsibility of their care and protection and receiving a gift in return. The festival, which is the first of the several festivals to come in the second half of the year, usually has brothers and sisters, moving even across the globe, to visit their siblings to celebrate the day. This year, however, since people have been asked to travel only when necessary, moving cities or even across cities is a big no-no. But everybody's sure putting in their best efforts to make their siblings smile. Here's how our dear celebrities are making their siblings' day.

PRIYADARSHI

The actor's Rakshabandhan this year is quiet but definitely happening. "My sister, Nagaja and I, although live in the same city, aren't going to meet for safety reasons. She'd probably send me a Rakhi. I'll connect with, wish and celebrate her via a phone or video call," shares the Pelli Chooopulu star about his plans.

MANNARA CHOPRA

This actress, who made us all fall for her in the film Seetha, is staying at home, safe with her family in Delhi. "My sister's with us too. We'd be having a sweet celebration at home. We don't have a brother, we're enough for each other. Our parents brought us up teaching us that we don't need to look for a guy to get us out of trouble. We love, respect, and protect each other, and this year's celebrations will be inside the safety of our home," the Zid actress says of her bond with her sister.

NANDINI REDDY

The director of Ala Modalaindi and Oh! Baby fame says her younger brother has been busy now that restaurants in the city have opened up. But that won't stop her from celebrating Raksha Bandhan. "We'll probably follow the tradition via a video call and talk our hearts out from our homes, staying safe indoors and protecting each other that way," says Nandini Reddy.

SEJAL KUMAR

The YouTube personality and video blogger with millions of subscribers and fans will miss her brothers this year, who're away from the country. "We will have the traditional Rakhi ceremony over a video call with both my brothers who're currently living abroad. I'm going to miss them this year, but we hope to meet soon," Sejal Kumar tells us.

THIRUVEER RUSK RAGHU

The actor who wowed fans and critics alike with his performances in George Reddy, Palasa and Sin, is grateful he's staying with his sister at his home around this time, unlike most people who miss meeting their siblings in person this year. "We're under the same roof currently, so we'll be celebrating it like we do every year — the traditional tying of the Rakhi and gifting," shares Thiruveer.

The actor, author, and director, who's a household name now, has strictly been following rules laid by the government, to stay indoors, but will still connect with his sister who's studying in Ohio, via a video call. Raghuram shares, "She has something planned for the day. I'm looking forward to it, I miss her, but will stay home and definitely not go anywhere."

'I always wanted to be an IAS officer'

More and more women are taking up sports as a career choice, thanks to several women winning and making the country proud at several championships. One such sportswoman that many girls look up to is Indian cricketer Mithali Raj. The star talks about her journey, playing for passion, qualifying for the World Cup and more, finds K RAMYA SREE

Women have emerged to be the frontrunners of India's success at the Olympics, Commonwealth Games and World Championships across all sports. Andhra Pradesh and Telangana have been at the center of all the action contributing to the maximum number of women World Champions. To celebrate these champions and inspire a generation of sports lovers, Star Sports 1 Telugu now presents a brand-new show Girl Power-Sarileru Manakevaru that will feature the tales of such women champions through a special series dedicated to our sportswomen.

Mithali Raj who has paved a path where no cricketer has gone before spoke about the challenges in women's cricket on the launch day. In a career that spanned 20 years, Mithali Raj is the highest ODI run-scorer in the world with 6,808 runs. She also holds records for the highest number of centuries, maximum ODIs played, and the player to play for the longest time for the Indian team. She is the only player to have played in more than 200 ODIs in the world. She is also the first player from India (both male and female) to score 2,000 runs in T20s.

Right from the beginning of her career, Mithali chalked out her goals and pursued them. Speaking about her career choices and goals, the cricketer said, "Honestly cricket happened to me. It didn't come by choice. I didn't choose to get into cricket. You can see, my teammates, those who have different stories, played with their brothers and some of them were inspired by their brothers. They played in the streets. But for me it was nothing like that. My dad took me to the academy and I was straight away into a full-fledged academy for girls. I was too young to make a choice. If at that time somebody could ask a 10-year-old Mithali, 'what you want to become, I would have said that I wanted to become an IAS officer'. Not a sportsperson, not a dancer. I always felt I had it in me to be an IAS officer."

Mithali Raj has faced many challenges in her career. The Indian women's team has gained immense popularity in the last few years. Playing for India since 1999, she has seen the shift in perception and support for Women's cricket. She was a part of the team when it transitioned from WCI to BCCI.

Speaking about the challenges involved in women's cricket, she said, "Women's cricket came under BCCI at the time of 2006-07. I feel if it had happened five years before that, it would have been better. Many talented players at that time, because of lack of money and financial instability through this game, had to shift to different fields. After turning 23-24, parents ask 'what is next?' So, as a woman cricketer what can you tell parents? 'I don't earn money, I am playing for passion?' Nobody's going to like it. If BCCI happened to us earlier, they would have added an extended career and we would have more pool of players in women's cricket."

Mithali is the only Indian player (both male and female) to have captained in more than one World Cup final, doing it in 2005 and 2017. The next world cup is scheduled in 2021. So how is she preparing for the World Cup? "In 2013, when India hosted the world cup, we didn't even qualify for the super six stage. I was hurt and quite disappointed. I thought 'let me give it a try in the 2017 World Cup'. Then I really worked hard for the World Cup. As a player, as a captain, I did a lot of homework. I thought, when we were in the finals, if we win the finals, then I will retire. After playing for so many years, probably I had everything, except that one World Cup. So, we were the runners up in 2017 and now I think, in 2021, I'm going to give it another try, hopefully with everybody's wishes and God's blessings, should be able to crack it."

The show marks also the debut of Rashmi Gautam who rose to fame with comedy show Jabardasth. She will anchor her first programme in sports through the show. Rashmi will be seen in conversation with female sporting legends from Andhra Pradesh and Telangana.

'IT IS NOT THE FILM INDUSTRY BUT THE FILM THAT MATTERS TO ME'

Aditi Rao Hydari has appeared in several South Indian films over the past couple of years but her release count in Bollywood has been rather low. The actress insists says it is not the language or film industry, but the film that matters most to her.

"More than often I am told that now I am focusing on my career in South and have left Mumbai. But I have not gone anywhere. Scripts and opportunities took me everywhere. Why should I say no to a film if the story is exciting? I think we are a generation of actors for whom the length of the role does not matter but substance does," said Aditi.

In Telugu, the actress was last in Antariksham 9000 KMPH. Around 2018, where Aditi had two Bollywood releases in supporting roles, has done five films down South, across Tamil, Telugu and Malayalam languages.

Her upcoming Hindi film is The Girl On A Train, starring Parineeti Chopra, while she has two Tamil and one Telugu film lined up for release.

"I look for something in which I am artistically challenged while trying out something new. For instance, look at my role in the film Padmaavat. When Sanjay (Leela Bhansali) sir called me, he told me that among all the four characters in the film, my role would be smallest. "But he promise you, the story will be incomplete without your character," he added.

Eventually, when I started receiving good words for the character of Mehrunisa, I was happy. For me, the impact of my character matters," she claimed.

Agent Sai Srinivasa Athreya to be a trilogy

In some good news for film buffs and fans, the makers of Agent Sai Srinivasa Athreya are set to make it a trilogy, by taking up more such mysterious cases. News about the Telugu Sherlock Holmes movie was announced on the birthday of film producer Rahul Yadav Nakka.

The film that was both a box office hit and appreciated by critics, will soon begin shooting the second part of the trilogy soon. The wait is until director Swaroop RSJ finishes shooting his current film.

Meanwhile, the film is going to be remade in Hindi, Tamil and Malayalam soon. Kannada remake rights too, are soon to be bought. Apart from this, Japanese dubbed version of the film will grace the theaters on 11th of September. Notably no Telugu film in recent times was remade in so many languages which is a big achievement.

Dil Raju wins 'dils' online

Hours after Bollywood actor Sonu Sood announced on Twitter that three orphaned kids whose parents died in Yadadri district of Telangana would be his responsibility, Tollywood producer Dil Raju offered to adopt the trio.

Sonu Sood saw the plight of the children via a tweet and immediately said he'd take care of them. Following this, state Panchayat Raj Minister Errabelli Dayakar Rao, who came to know about the children's plight, got their details from ruling TRS MLA Gongidi Sunita Mahender Reddy, in whose constituency their village Atmakur is located. Meanwhile, it is said that film producer Dil Raju had called up the minister and offered to take care of these children. Dil Raju said the children would be adopted and taken care of through the 'Ma Palle' Charitable Trust established by his family.

'KAITHI' TO BE SCREENED AT IIFT IN TORONTO

Kollywood actor Karthi's Kaithi (Khaidi in Telugu) directed by Lokesh Kanagaraj and produced by SR Prakash Babu, SR Prabhu, Thiruppur Vivek under DreamWarrior Pictures, has scored a blockbuster attaining a cult status among the audiences. Fans of the Angry Hero were overjoyed upon learning that the film 'Kaithi' has been selected for screening at the International Indian Film Festival which will be held in Toronto from August 9th to August 15th, 2020. Kaithi will be screened on August 12th from 6:00 PM onwards. Elated makers of the film expressed their happiness about Kaithi being selected for official screening at IIFT and thanked the entire team of Kaithi.

T-town inspires fans to take up #GreenIndiaChallenge

The most recent installment of the #GreenIndiaChallenge was started by Rajya Sabha MP Joginapalli Santosh Kumar and there has been no stopping celebrities and commoners since then. Every day has several celebrities accepting the challenge and planting saplings and nominating their friends, colleagues, and fans to do the same.

Music director Jeevan Babu accepted the challenge on Sunday and planted saplings at his residence. He said that everyone must plant trees so as to be able to have enough greenery and oxygen left for future generations. He further nominated Rahul Sipliganj, composer Arun Chiliveru among others to take up the challenge and nominate others too.

Comedian Ali too accepted the challenge by the Rajya Sabha MP and nominated others to do the same.

Mallesham fame actress Ananya Nagalla too planted saplings in a park at Jubilee Hills as part of the challenge nominated by Dinesh Teja, and asked her colleagues, fans, and family to take up the initiative and spread it further.

Man loses penis, has new one built on his arm

A man from the UK, who lost his penis to a severe blood infection, has become the world's first to have a new one built on his arm. Malcolm McDonald, a mechanic by profession, suffered a long-term perineum infection in 2014 that turned into sepsis to turn his fingers, toes, and genitals black. The infection becomes so severe after a point that he lost his manhood, according to The Sun. For a while, he found it very difficult to cope with the tragedy. He turned into a recluse and began drinking heavily. Malcolm said he felt a 'shadow of a man' for two years after losing his penis. 'I knew deep down it was gone and I was going to lose it, then one day it just dropped off on to the floor. Because I had been through the devastation of knowing I was going to lose it, I just picked it up and put it in the bin,' he said. 'My life really fell apart because I had no self-confidence. I drank too much. I didn't see family and friends - I just didn't want to have to face up to it,' he added. But then, Malcolm found a phallus expert who once created a 'bionic penis' for a person who was born without one. Professor David Ralph of London's University College Hospital told Malcolm about the so-called 'penis master'. Ralph told Malcolm that an arm-graft procedure needed to be done.

Man wakes up finding cobra inside his jeans!

In a spine chilling incident, a cobra made its way to a man's pants while he was sleeping. After coming to know about the situation he kept standing for seven hours so that the snake could be retrieved. Fortunately enough, the poisonous reptile did not bite the man. According to a report published in Times Now, the incident took place in Sikandarpur village in Uttar Pradesh's Mirzapur. A man named Lovekesh Kumar was sleeping with other labourers after dinner. The group of labourers had been at the site for installing some electricity poles and wires. On coming to know that the venomous reptile had slithered in his pants, Lovekesh stood at a spot for seven hours, while the locals managed to find a snake catcher. In a few hours, locals, police, snake catcher all had come to the place of the incident. The video of the rescue operation has been shared by a user on Twitter. In the clip, one can see the snake catcher cutting the man's pants so that the snake can perhaps make its way out. Captioning the over two minutes long video, Koushik Dutta said, 'cobra snake enters young man jeans pant while sleeping man stands for 7 hours holding a pillar at Mirzapur up.'

Man washes cash to remove Covid traces, suffers loss

The COVID-19 scare still continues to loom over the people. Every single day, items are sanitized or kept in quarantine in order to remove the infection on their surfaces. Many also try to wash it off with the help of water. While some can still survive after being drenched, for some it is the end of the road. The latter took place for a person living in Seoul in South Korea. According to The Associated Press, a person whose gender is unspecified had put around 50,000 won (around Rs 3137) into a washing machine. This was done to make sure the notes were 'disinfected' from the coronavirus infection. The amount of money that was given to him or she was basically condolence money given by relatives and friends during a family funeral. However, the results were not desirable. Most of the notes looked extremely damaged after one spin therefore they were unusable. Then, the person reached out to the Bank of Korea to help her out. Due to the 'considerable' damage caused to the wad of cash, it became impossible for the bank to exchange it for the newer notes. Bank official Seo June Woun told the news agency that the 50,000-won bill was exchanged at the half value of 507. However, they do not know the exact amount that was 'laundered' in the washing machine. The damage is considered to be severe.

This restaurant sells Corona-themed dishes

In the wake of the novel Coronavirus pandemic, a restaurant in Jodhpur has introduced two corona-themed dishes as part of its menu. Vedic, a vegetarian restaurant that serves traditional Rajasthani and North Indian cuisine, is also selling Covid Curry and Mask Naan. Yes, you read that right. In a post on Twitter, Vedic tweeted pictures of the two preparations. Naans were made in the shape of face masks. Covid Curry is basically a gravy dish with a rich sauce and koftas made in the shape of the deadly virus. Vedic, in their post, said that the aim of introducing the two particular dishes is to spread awareness about the novel coronavirus. 'Overcome the fear of corona with world's first ever invented in corona pandemic. Covid Curry served with Mask Naan. We are super proud of being world's first inventor of this unique concept. The motto behind this dish is to bring awareness about #corona,' Vedic said in the caption of their post. Pictures of the dishes went viral on Twitter as netizens shared funny reactions. In April, a shop in Kolkata made headlines for selling coronavirus-shaped sweets, labeled as Corona Sandesh. India has recorded over 17 lakh novel coronavirus cases so far. The death toll has surged past 37,000 in the country.

Auba's brace help Arsenal sink Chelsea in FA Cup final

LONDON
The only time Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang looked uncertain was when it came to collecting the FA Cup. Two goals from the forward had turned around the final for Arsenal, sealing a 2-1 victory over Chelsea on Saturday in the first cup final to be staged without fans. The coronavirus restrictions also meant there was no Prince William at Wembley Stadium to hand over the silverware in the royal box. So Aubameyang had to pick up the cup himself on the field as captain. Taking the base as well, no wonder Aubameyang dropped it. 'I saw him walking with the bottom bit attached,' Arsenal defender Rob Holding said, 'and I was like, 'You need to take that off!'' The cup was soon raised aloft, with gold streamer showering the Arsenal squad in a mostly-empty 90,000-capacity stadium after the 139th final of the world's oldest football competition.

'He needs more experience with trophies, we can get him more used to that,' Arsenal manager Mikel Arteta said. 'He knows what I think about him. I want to build the squad around him. I think he wants to stay and it is just about getting the deal done.' That is no certainty, with Aubameyang yet to commit to staying beyond the end of his contract next year. 'I am really not thinking about this,' he said. Winning the record-extending 14th FA Cup does at least give Arsenal a spot in the Europa League, after missing out on qualifying through the Premier League after an eighth-place finish. 'The journey has been long,' Aubameyang said. 'But today we enjoy it.' A competition that began on August 9, 2019, featuring teams from ninth and 10th tiers, ended later than it had ever done before - two months after the final was scheduled. Never before had the FA Cup final been staged in August. And never before without fans.

We are going ahead with women's IPL on time: Ganguly

NEW DELHI
BCCI president Sourav Ganguly on Sunday said the Women's IPL or the Challenger series, as it is better known, is "very much on", ending speculation about the parent body not having a plan for Harmanpreet Kaur and her team. The men's IPL will be held between September 19 and November 8 or 10 (final date yet to be locked in) in the UAE due to the surge in COVID-19 cases in India. The women's IPL will also be fit in to the schedule, according to the BCCI chief. 'I can confirm to you that the women's IPL is very much on and we do have a plan in place for the national team also,' Ganguly told PTI ahead of the IPL Governing Council meeting later on Sunday. The BCCI president, who is awaiting a Supreme Court verdict on waiver of the cooling off period to continue in the position, did not divulge details but another senior official privy to the development said that women's Challenger will be held during the last phase of IPL like last year. 'The women's Challenger series is likely to be held between November 1-10 and there could be a camp before that,' the source said. The former India captain also said that the centrally contracted women players will have a camp which has been delayed due to the prevailing situation in the country. 'We couldn't have exposed any of our cricketers - be it male or female to health risk. It would have been dangerous,' Ganguly said. 'The NCA also remained shut because of COVID-19. But we have a plan in place and we will have a camp for women, I can tell you that,' he added.

Eng beats Ireland by 4 wickets

SOUTHAMPTON
Opener Jonny Bairstow smashed 82 off 41 balls as England beat Ireland by four wickets in the second one-day international to take an unassailable 2-0 series lead. England overcame a middle-order wobble to finish on 216-6 in 32.3 overs in reply to Ireland's 212-9 at the Rose Bowl on Saturday. After Adil Rashid had taken 3-34 to reach 150 ODI wickets, Bairstow equaled the record for the fastest 50 in this format by an Englishman off 21 balls. Bairstow, Eoin Morgan and Moeen Ali were dismissed as England lurched from 131-3 to 137-6, before an unbroken 79-run stand between Sam Billings and David Willey helped the hosts to their target with more than 17 overs to spare. The pair had been the stand-out performers in Thursday's opener and came to the rescue here, Billings finishing on 46 not out while Willey followed up his 2-48 with an unbeaten 47 in the evening sunshine. Earlier, Ireland overcame another poor start after winning the toss and being reduced to 91-6 before Curtis Campher led the recovery. Campher, in only his

Trying to fit the best XI in white ball format: Morgan

SOUTHAMPTON
England captain Eoin Morgan hailed the depth in his squad after they beat Ireland by four wickets at the Ageas Bowl in Southampton to claim a 2-0 lead in the three-match series. England are playing with a side that has none of the players from the Test team that played the West Indies in a three-Test series in July. 'We have a lot of guys who can change the match with the bat at the top of the order, they have the potential. These guys take the game away from the opposition,' said Morgan in the post-match presentation ceremony. 'I was going to bat at 4 and then we changed it. I am more than happy to give guys opportusecond ODI, scored an 87-ball 68 with eight fours before being dismissed by seamer Saqib Mahmood (2-45). Campher shared two key partnerships late in the innings - a seventh-wicket 60-run stand with Simi Singh (25) and 56 runs for the eighth wicket with Andy McBrine (24). Players again took a knee to support Black Lives Matter before the game. The three-match series, which is being played with no fans present, marks the start of the ICC Cricket World Cup Super League. The third ODI is on Tuesday.

IPL can't be selection criteria for MS: Nehra

NEW DELHI
Mahendra Singh Dhoni at this year's IPL can be a talking point but the tournament cannot be a selection trial for the enigmatic former India captain, reckons former pacer Ashish Nehra. Dhoni has retired from Test cricket and has not played for India in the limited overs format since last year's World Cup, where India ended semifinals. His comeback and retirement has been a matter of intense speculation. His much-awaited comeback is expected to be with Chennai Super Kings at the upcoming IPL, set to be held in the UAE from September 19. 'For me, MS Dhoni's game never came down,' Nehra said on Star Sports' show 'Cricket Connected'. 'He knows how to run the team, he knows how to push youngsters forward and all these things I don't need to repeat again and again but I don't think this IPL makes any difference in MS Dhoni's stature or his aura as a player,' added the 41-year-old Nehra, who played 17 Tests and 120 ODIs. 'I don't think a tournament like the IPL should be MS

Dhoni's selection criteria, it's probably just a talking point.' 'As far as MS Dhoni's international career I don't think this IPL has anything to do with it. If you're a selector, you're a captain, you're a coach and MS Dhoni...if he is ready to play, he will be my number one name on the list,' he said. The former left-arm pacer said players will have to behave responsibly during the IPL to avoid protocol breaches like that by England's Jofra Archer during the recently concluded England-West Indies series.

Rahane won't mind family's absence in UAE

NEW DELHI
Ajinkya Rahane would want his wife and daughter to be around during the IPL in the UAE but mindful of the risk it poses amid the COVID-19 pandemic, he wouldn't have an issue if the BCCI bars players' families from the event. The IPL is all set to be played from September 19 to November 8 in the UAE, a move forced by the rising COVID-19 cases in India. Rahane, who has changed base to Delhi Capitals from Rajasthan Royals, said health should be top priority. 'As an individual, you take COVID-19 situation aside, you would want your family to travel with you, but because of this situation, safety is important, safety of your wife, family and daughter, obviously safety of your teammates is really important,' Rahane told India Today's show 'Inspiration'. 'Right now, I feel first health and then cricket is really important. We had a good 4-5 months with our family (during the lockdown)'. 'As I said, safety of our family, safety of our players and safety of each and every individual is important. The decision is completely up to the franchises and the BCCI. 'But as I said, there is still corona around, you got to think about each and every individual, think about your family especially about my wife and daughter. Safety is really important,' he said. Rahane moved to Delhi Capitals in the lead up to the upcoming IPL edition and the 32-year-old right-hander said he is looking forward to working with the 'exciting bunch of players' and head coach Ricky Ponting. 'I am really excited to play for Delhi Capitals. I got an opportunity. Last year when I was playing for Hampshire, Delhi Capitals asked me if I was interested in playing for them. 'I took my time and I thought it's an opportunity for me to learn something new. To take my game forward, to take my T20 game forward,' he said.

Kyrgios won't play US Open

SYDNEY
Nick Kyrgios has withdrawn from the US Open because of concerns over the coronavirus and in honor of the 'hundreds and thousands of Americans' who have died from COVID-19. Kyrgios said in an Instagram post on Sunday that he had no problem with the United States Tennis Association proceeding with its plans to hold the tournament from August 31 to September 13. But he cited health and safety concerns amid the coronavirus pandemic as he joined fellow Australian and world No. 1 Ash Barty in opting out of the Flushing Meadows Grand Slam tournament. 'I will not be playing this year at the US Open. It hurts me at my core not to be out there competing in one of the sport's greatest arenas, Arthur Ashe Stadium,' Kyrgios said in the video. 'But I'm sitting out for the people, for my Aussies, for the hundreds and thousands of Americans that have lost their lives, for all of you. It's my decision.' 'We can rebuild our sport and the economy,' Kyrgios adds, 'but we can never recover lives lost.' Kyrgios also criticised players who have continued to play exhibition tournaments in the past several months, chastising them for 'dancing on tables, money grabbing your way around Europe, trying to make a quick buck hosting an exhibition.' There have been a number of exhibition events held, the most high-profile one organised by No. 1-ranked Novak Djokovic. It was held in several countries and photographs of spectators at the events showed poor social distancing.

Bajrang tips wrestlers to win 3-4 medals at Olympics

MUMBAI
Asian Games Gold medalist Bajrang Punia is confident of Indian wrestlers performing well and winning medals at the Tokyo Olympics next year. The star grappler believes India's performances at the World Championship shows they are in good form. 'I think we will win three to four medals from wrestling in the Tokyo Olympics. The World Championship is a tougher tournament than the Olympics but we performed well there. So I think Indian wrestlers are in top form which makes them strong contenders for a medal haul in Tokyo,' Punia said during the 17th episode of budding international padder Mudit Dani's online live chat show 'In The Spotlight' on Saturday night. The Olympic Games, which were initially scheduled to take place in 2020, have been postponed by a year due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Along with Punia (Bronze, 65kg), Deepak Punia (Silver, 86kg), Vinesh Phogat (Bronze, 53kg) and Ravi Kumar Dahiya (Bronze, 57kg) also won medals at the 2019 World Wrestling Championship in Kazakhstan and secured an Olympic berth in the process. During a freewheeling chat with Dani, 26-year-old Punia said he would have lived a normal village life if he had not pursued wrestling. He also rated his first World Wrestling Championship medal as the most memorable accolade of his career so far. The Haryana boy had an impressive outing at the 2013 World Championship where he won bronze at the age of 19. The online live Instagram chat series 'In The Spotlight', that 21-year-old Dani has begun with the sole purpose of delivering inspiration to other young athletes and fans, has seen champion athletes like Abhinav Bindra, Leander Paes, PV Sindhu, Sathiyan Gnanasekaran and Union Sports Minister Kiren Rijiju participate, among others. Talking about the competition in his current weight category 65kg, Punia said: 'I feel 65kg is the toughest category in the world. There is no wrestler who has successfully won world championship titles or Olympic gold medals. There is always a new champion in every edition. There are strong wrestlers in this category who can beat anyone on their day.' The grappler further praised government and sports federations for organising events such as Khelo India. It has provided a much-needed platform for young athletes to showcase their talent. 'The way we have been organising events at the grass-root level such as Khelo India, a lot of youngsters are getting much-needed support from it which was not there earlier. And if they keep getting this kind of support, not only in wrestling, India will win medals in every sport at the Olympics,' he concluded.
