despite ban on 101 defence imports

P C Bhardwaj argued that the proposed ban on 101 defence imports is discriminatory and will affect the indigenous industry to a large extent. He added that the ban will also lead to a rise in the prices of defence equipment. Bhardwaj also pointed out that the ban is not in line with the government's Atmanirbhar Bharat mission and will hinder the country's self-reliance in defence manufacturing.

On the other hand, defence analysts and industry experts have welcomed the ban on defence imports as a step towards promoting indigenous defence production. They have highlighted the need for a robust domestic defence industry to ensure national security and reduce dependence on foreign suppliers.

In conclusion, the ban on 101 defence imports is a significant development that will impact the country's defence sector. It is hoped that the government will continue to take steps towards promoting indigenous defence production and reducing dependence on foreign suppliers.

Rajendra Prasad Singh said the antibody tests which have been conducted at all the testing centres. “All the labs are uploading the reports of the patients who have been tested positive, so the patients are either in hospital or in home isolation. We have directed private labs in the city carrying out Covid-19 tests to feed out the correct data to the portal with the correct data by sending a one-time password (OTP) to the patients’ mobile numbers.

The state has reserved antigen testing as maximum number of tests. For a day, maximum number of tests can be carried out and the results can be sent to the patients’ mobile numbers within an hour prior to the testing itself,” he said.

“First, we would make provisions of two samples and then test them. If we found a pool of positives, we would conduct full tests for the rest of the persons provided dictators and also given extra time. At various centres, pool testing has been done from the last few days and the rest of the results will be out in a day or two. We have made a proper arrangement for this and the results will be out in the next two days,” he said.

Rakesh Nirmal Nigam, the BEd-JEE examination in-charge, said the examination was conducted smoothly one month and the result will be declared by April 2021.

Meanwhile, ITI director Ashok Dhawan said that during this examination, the Lucknow cluster which is carrying out Covid-19 testing has come to frontline in the state. “Every day, 40,000 tests are being carried out and a minimum number of tests are being carried out on a daily basis in lucknow, of which were rapid test while 30,000 tests are carried out with the help of Antigen test, antigen and other tests. The CMO said that to control the growing number of cases, they have also started closed contact tracing and white coats to all the workers and close contacts of the confirmed patients who are expected good results because of the increased testing. In Agars, this is a trusted value, which is being done for the people below age of 21 who have been hospitalised to follow the dose of their treatments at the Intensive Care Unit and Critical Care Unit. It was decided that a separate ward will be created in the case of the latest generation, which is the Lucknow cluster consisting of ITI, BEd-JEE and CCEM and CCMC. Dhawan has conducted the maximum number of tests.

The result from the CMO’s office was that over the evening, the patient’s condition was not found to be critical and he was shifted to a general ward. However, he was discharged from the hospital on Sunday. She said that in Lucknow, the CMO has reported from any maximum number of tests which have been conducted. Gadkari hints at launch of electric trucks in India

Pawan Rawat | Oct 14, 2020

Union Minister for Road Transport and Highways Nitin Gadkari hinted at the launch of electric trucks on Indian roads soon. The minister said that work is already going in this regard, he disclosed. Gadkari said that while the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways is already working on the guidelines for electric vehicles, the Department of Electronics and Information Technology has already set up a panel on safety and regulations for electric vehicles.

When asked whether the panel’s work has been completed, the minister said, “There is still a lot of work to do.”

When asked by how much the killer curve would be reduced if electric vehicles were launched, the minister said, “It is difficult to say as it would depend on the area, the road, and the speed limit. But it is obvious that the killer curve would be reduced.”

The minister further said, “The government has already taken steps to reduce the number of accidents and fatalities on Indian roads. The use of electric vehicles can further help in achieving this goal.”

Parents of disabled kids advised to keep in touch with trainers

According to a recent survey, over 1.5 million children with disabilities in India are not being provided with proper education and training. The Government of India has taken several initiatives to address this issue, including the launch of special education programs and the provision of assistive devices.

However, parents of children with disabilities face several challenges in ensuring that their children receive the necessary support. These challenges include accessing quality educational and vocational training programs, obtaining appropriate medical and assistive devices, and securing adequate employment opportunities.

To help address these challenges, the Government of India has taken several steps, including the launch of the National Mission for Persons with Disabilities (NMPD) and the National Program on Persons with Disabilities (NPPD).

These initiatives aim to provide a comprehensive framework for the delivery of services to persons with disabilities, including education, rehabilitation, and employment.

The measures to be taken under these initiatives include the provision of special educational and vocational training programs, the establishment of special schools and rehabilitation centers, and the provision of financial assistance to persons with disabilities and their families.

The efforts to be undertaken under these initiatives will be monitored by the National Council for Persons with Disabilities (NCPD) and the National Advisory Council on Persons with Disabilities (NACPD).

Tragedy in Kozhikode

The Modi Govt is in a fix today, not because of the negligence of previous regimes but because of its own deliberate neglect of the military. We have failed to learn lessons.

There was not the slightest chance of a successful rescue effort after the Kozhikode tragedy. The pilots were fully aware of the gravity of the situation. The Supreme Court has already given a direction to the Central government that relief work must be done by the Navy and the IAF. The Kozhikode accident was a perfect storm. There was not a single cloud that the pilots could have used to avoid it. This was a case of human error, not any fault of the aircraft. The IAF or the Navy could not have done anything to prevent it.

The fact that the pilots were not able to land the aircraft is a matter of concern. It shows that the aircraft was not fully under control. This is a matter of concern for the Aviation Ministry and the Ministry of Defence. They need to investigate how the pilots were able to land the aircraft. The IAF and the Navy should have been able to prevent the accident. They failed to do so.

Kerala reports 1,211 new cases

Death toll in Dilkulki landslide at 42 now

The authorities clarified that the list of districts with 292 Covid-19 cases was prepared with the help of the Tamil Nadu Government.

The Prime Minister reiterated that India has a huge opportunity in several areas of tourism, including medical tourism, in the absence of global tourism. He said it is becoming difficult to stop any tourist from coming to India.

Keralites, battered and bruised by nature and nurture, are united today continuing to draw out of all the disasters and heal the pandemic on the India’s door. The people of Kerala have been in touch with each other from the very beginning. They have taken to the streets and without let or hindrance, the numbers are increasing day by day.

The Stellar RMC team, which has been collecting data from the testimonies of the survivors, has been working to get in touch with all the patients who were admitted to the hospitals and who have been discharged.

The ED officials had also confirmed the same. Police records show that there were three SIT teams who were investigating the case.

The police are looking to arrest the accused who are still roaming at large.

The money has been sent to the relatives of the deceased in the form of a cheque.

The official statement released by the ED said that the agency had conducted fresh probe into the case.

On Sunday, 1,278 persons were admitted to the hospitals across the State, according to the data provided by the Health Department.

The police also confirmed that the accused had been in contact with the victims and that there were no clues to suggest that the incident was a case of honour killing.

The family members of the deceased have also confirmed that they had filed a complaint with the police in this regard.

The police are yet to confirm whether the accused has been charged for any crime in the past.

The family members of the deceased have said that their relative was a keen supporter of the party and had been involved in various activities. They said that the deceased was a hardworking and honest person and had always stood up for justice.

The police have also said that they are looking into the matter and will take appropriate action.

The ED had submitted a list of names to the NIA, which had been investigating the case.

Asia-Pacific may see $31.4-54.3 bn remittance losses due to COVID-19: ADB

India's migrant worker problem

By Anurag Kulkarni

The COVID-19 pandemic has left a devastating impact on the Indian economy, with millions of migrants losing their jobs due to the lockdown. The pandemic has also disrupted the remittance inflows to the country. The Asian Development Bank (ADB) has estimated that the pandemic could result in a loss of $31.4-54.3 billion in remittance inflows to the region. The ADB said that the remittance inflows have already fallen by 20-30% from their pre-pandemic levels. The report also highlighted that the impact on remittance inflows is likely to continue until 2021.

The ADB report said that the remittance inflows are likely to be impacted due to the following reasons:

- Job losses stemming from the lockdown
- Migrant workers returning to their home countries
- Reduced income from export-oriented businesses
- Reduced demand for imports from the region
- Reduced global demand for goods and services

The ADB report also noted that the impact on remittance inflows is likely to be worst in South Asia, where the pandemic has hit the hardest. The report said that the remittance inflows in South Asia are expected to fall by 22-24% in 2020, compared to a 17-19% fall in South America.

The ADB report also recommended that governments should focus on providing support to migrant workers and their families. The report said that governments should ensure that migrant workers have access to healthcare, food, and shelter. The report also recommended that governments should provide financial assistance to migrant workers and their families.

The ADB report concluded that the impact on remittance inflows is likely to be temporary and will gradually improve over time. The report said that the remittance inflows are likely to recover by 2022, with a full recovery expected by 2023.
Trump signs virus relief order for Americans

Washington: President Donald Trump signed an executive order extending existing coronavirus relief measures for Americans on Monday and assuring them of desired access to the country's medical facilities outside the state. The order, which Trump said was popularly approved by the Republican party and opposition, was announced on a new stimulus package.

“The need is real, and we’re going to save American jobs and American workers,” he said at a talk that he addressed to Congress.

With double digit unemployment and unprecedented numbers of businesses from small to large dying at a rapid rate, the economic cost of the virus continues to rise.

Trump said his decision to circumvent Congress with executive orders would mean “real people getting real money” without the fear of a government delay, and he said the action would allow doctors to quickly respond to the needs of patients across the country.

Democrats pushed for a $3 trillion package aimed at preparing the federal economic recovery for months. The order, however, was limited to about $600 billion in new stimulus money.

Trump’s order will provide emergency aid to hospitals, which are running out of medical supplies and personal protective equipment, but relies on private insurers and state governments to help the rest of those in need.

A fourth measure — the first of its kind — was also announced by the president. The measure aimed to provide $1.25 billion in funding for state and local governments to boost their testing capabilities. It was also aimed at helping the states that have been hardest hit by the virus in recent weeks.

Trump was flanked by a group of governors who he said were appreciative of the funding and would provide the necessary support to the states.

State officials have been critical of the federal government’s response to the virus and have called for more federal assistance. The reputable funds range from $750 million to $1.25 billion, depending on the state’s population.

The president has said the federal government was not responsible for the pandemic and that the states were to blame for the lack of preparedness.

“COVID-19 is not a federal problem. We need states to take responsibility,” Trump said. “The federal government cannot and will not be there forever.”

Rajapaksa takes oath as Lanka PM, family’s grip on power

Colombo: Mahinda Rajapaksa has taken the oath as Lanka’s new prime minister after his United National Party (UNP) returned to power in the general election.

The Rajapaksa family has been in power for 26 years, making it the longest-serving political dynasty in the country.

“For the last four years, the UNP led by Mahinda Rajapaksa at a gathering in the presence of diplomatic and senior officials of the SLFP to celebrate his winning the 2015 general election, announced the release of 400 TTP prisoners,” said Aruna Sirimanne, a secretary who ruled at the National People’s Front (NPF).

The deal negotiated between the two sides was sensitive. The government was under intense pressure to release thousands of inmates who were on the run for fear of getting “raped” or “murdered”.

The release of inmates, however, was not seen as a gesture of goodwill. The UNP leader, who has been in politics for more than 30 years, has been accused of corruption and human rights violations.

Rajapaksa has denied most of the allegations, and has blamed the government for the release of inmates.

The release of prisoners was a significant step in the government’s efforts to ease tensions with the opposition and build a more stable political environment.

Washington’s peace envoy, James Zama, said last week that the final deal will be signed by the end of the year.

The deal, however, has not been welcomed by the opposition, which has long been critical of the government’s做法.

The release of prisoners, however, has been seen as a positive move towards reconciliation and the easing of tensions in the country.

Fakw urges Afghan council's referendum

Kabul: A traditional Afghan council of elders tasked with gathering 10,000 signatures of Afghan citizens in the north to negotiate with the Taliban for the release of more than 10,000 prisoners has ended.

The declaration read out in a joint statement by the representatives of Afghans in Herat, Balkh and Faryab provinces and the representatives of the Taliban in Paktia, Jowzjan and Ghor.

The decision was made by the council of elders to negotiate with the Taliban for the release of more than 10,000 prisoners who are held in Afghanistan's prisons.

The council of elders announced that it would work on releasing prisoners for at least four months.

The council of elders, however, has not been well received by the Taliban, who have so far refused to negotiate with the council.

W ith the COVID-19 pandemic, everyone is trying to adapt to the new normal that has become inseparably linked with our daily lives. Many companies are now implementing strict protocols, such as the POSH (Prevention of Sexual Harassment at Workplace) Act, 2013, to create a safe and respectful working environment. However, with the advent of remote working, employees are now working from home, which has presented new challenges.

REDESSAL OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE
During WFH, employees are spending more time at home, which can lead to an increase in domestic violence cases. However, the policy has become gender-neutral, allowing employees to work from home even if they are using the POSH policy gender-neutral, a positive step in the right direction.

COBYS/WORLD
Well, the policy is gaining more prominence among departments. The policy is now being implemented by all departments to safeguard employees who work in sensitive positions, to prevent the spread of workplace and personal violence.

CURRENT SITUATION
As of now, the policy has become gender-neutral, allowing employees to work from home even if they are using the POSH policy gender-neutral, a positive step in the right direction.

WITNESS A CHANGE
The POSH policy has become gender-neutral, allowing employees to work from home even if they are using the POSH policy gender-neutral, a positive step in the right direction.

PROFESSIONALISM AND WELL-BEING
The POSH policy has become gender-neutral, allowing employees to work from home even if they are using the POSH policy gender-neutral, a positive step in the right direction.

CULTURE AND EMPLOYEE BEHAVIOUR
The POSH policy has become gender-neutral, allowing employees to work from home even if they are using the POSH policy gender-neutral, a positive step in the right direction.
