Surge of elation on bhoomi puja eve

Ayodhya decked up, PM to lay foundation of Ram Mandir at 12.44-12.45 pm

BISWAJEET BANERJEE ■ AYODHYA

The temple town of Ayodhya has been fortified and decked up like never before, painted all over in yellow hue, for the 'bhoomi puja' for the construction of Ram Temple at the Ram Janmabhoomi Complex. Prime Minister Narendra Modi will lay the foundation stone on Wednesday.

The foundation stone function will start at 12.30 pm and the shila (stone) will be laid between 12.44 and 12.45 pm after offering prayers to Lord Ganesh, Chhampat Rai, general secretary of the Ram Janmabhoomi Teerth Kshetra Trust told this reporter.

The PM will lay a 40-kg silver brick to symbolise the start of construction of the Ram Temple that is core to the ruling BJP's ideology and poll promises. A campaign for the temple marked the rise of the party to the national spotlight in the 1990s.

Rai said that religious functions like different pujas have started. These include Ramachan Puja, where prayers are held to invite all major gods and goddesses who consider Lord Ram as their Isht (the god of worship). Vedic saints are conducting the prayers facing Ram Lalla on his temporary seat, Rai said.

A total of 21 priests from Varanasi, Ayodhya, and Prayagraj started the ritual of Bhoomi Puja by organising Gauri Ganesh Puja at the Bhoomi Puja site on the Ram Janmabhoomi premises. Priests are also performing puja at the Hanuman garhi and Ram ki chavni temples and aarti at the Saryu ghat in the evening.

On Tuesday morning, Ramacharya puja along with dhawaj and Nisan puja of Lord Hanuman were performed at the Hanuman garhi temple. Except for the priests of the temples, none was allowed to attend these pujas due to Covid pandemic.

Pandit Kalikram handed over a green colour dress along with a religious flag to the head priest of the Ram Lalla temple Acharya Satendra Das, which Ram Lalla will wear on Wednesday. Ram Lalla will wear a yellow dress on Thursday.

Pandit Kalikram has been presenting the dresses for the idols for the last two years. He will also light diyas at almost all the temples of Ayodhya in the evening of August 5.

The city has been turned into a fortress with barricades put up across the main thoroughfare of Ayodhya - particularly those lanes which connect the city to Ram Janmabhoomi Complex. The jawans of the paramilitary force are deployed around the city. The shops are closed. The road side eateries have downed their shutters, but the local residents are not complaining.

"Our movements have been restricted for two days but we are not complaining. This is an indicator of good things to come. We will have our own Ram Temple after almost five centuries. And for that why will we complain," Dilip Maurya, who owns Maurya Tea Stall near Ghatghat, said.

There is an air of festivity around Ayodhya. Religious songs or the chanting of Sunderkand wafts through the air as one drives through the empty roads of Ayodhya.

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Not invited to attend the puja ceremony in Ayodhya on Wednesday, the architect of the Ram temple movement and veteran BJP leader LK Advani on Tuesday reminisced his role in 'galvanising the aspirations, energies and passions of its countless participants of the movement.'

Claiming that it was a historic and emotional day for him and for all Indians, Advani recalled the 'pivotal duty' he

A day before Prime Minister Narendra Modi lays the foundation stone for a Ram temple in Ayodhya, Advani said in a statement it is his belief that the Ram Mandir will represent India as a strong, prosperous, peaceful and harmonious nation with justice for all and exclusion of none to truly usher in 'Ram Rajya, the epitome of good governance'.

CBI probe into Sushant death, proposes Bihar

PTI ■ PATNA/MUMBAI

The Bihar Government on Tuesday recommended a CBI enquiry into actor Sushant Singh Rajput's death case. Chief Minister Nitish Kumar said, a move contested by Rhea Chakraborty's lawyer, who insisted the State had no jurisdiction to make such a recommendation.

As Patna and Mumbai Police were locked in a bitter turf war over who had the mandate of law to investigate the sensational death of Rajput, Nitish earlier said his Government will recommend handing over the case to the central police agency after the actor's father gave his consent.

The PM will fly from New Delhi at 0935 hours on Wednesday morning by a special IAF aircraft and will reach Lucknow at 1035 hrs.

Police were locked in a bitter turf war over who had the mandate of law to investigate the sensational death of Rajput, Nitish earlier said his Government will recommend handing over the case to the central police agency after the actor's father gave his consent.

KK Singh, Rajput's father, had on July 25 lodged a police complaint against Chakraborty, a budding actor and his son's rumoured girlfriend, of abetting his suicide, keeping him in wrongful confinement and defrauding him of crores of rupees.

The actor's father spoke to the DGP and gave his consent for a CBI probe. Since he had lodged an FIR with Bihar police, we could not have recommended a CBI enquiry. Now that he has consented, I have asked the DGP to complete all formalities today itself, Nitish had told journalists.

Rhea Chakraborty's lawyer, Satishmane Shinde, meanwhile, called into question the Bihar government's decision. "There cannot be transfer of a case which had no legal basis to begin with for the Bihar police to get involved," he said.

Aaditya slams 'dirty politics', says he has no role in case

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

A mid indirect insinuations being made at him by the BJP-led Opposition on issues relating to actor Sushant Singh Rajput's alleged suicide, Maharashtra's influential Minister Aaditya Thackeray on Tuesday slammed opponents for indulging in 'dirty politics' and 'malicious' him and his family, and categorically said he has nothing to do with Sushant's suicide.

Aaditya's statement came on a day when Maharashtra's former Chief Minister and BJP's Rajya Sabha member Narayan Rane alleged that the actor and his ex-manager Disha Salas were 'murdered'. So much so that Rane claimed that Disha was 'raped' and 'murdered'. He also alleged both the incidents were linked.

Breaking his silence over the allegations linking him to Sushant's suicide made against him over the past several days by the BJP leaders without naming him, 30-year-old Aaditya, who is the son of Maharashtra's Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray, issued a statement in Marathi on his twitter in Marathi on his twitter handle, denying his role in matters relating to the actor's suicide and said his political opponents were desperately indulging in 'dirty politics'.

Trump bans hiring of H1B visa holders, blow to Indians

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

In another huge blow to Indian IT professionals eyeing the US job market, President Donald Trump has signed an executive order asking federal agencies to hire Americans and preventing them from contracting or subcontracting foreign workers, mainly those with H-1B visas.

The move came over a month after the Trump administration on June 23 suspended the H-1B visas along with other types of foreign work visas until the end of 2020 to protect American workers in a crucial election year.

The H-1B visa, most sought-after among Indian IT professionals, is a non-immigrant visa that allows US companies to employ foreign workers in speciality occupations that require theoretical or technical expertise. The technology companies depend on it for tens of thousands of employees each year from countries like India and China.

"Today I am signing an executive order to ensure that the federal government lives by a very simple rule, hire American," Trump told reporters in the Oval Office of the White House on Monday before signing the order against hiring H-1B visa holders for federal contracts.

Mumukh Rajpurohit, daughter of a forest department officer has also proved her talent in the exam by scoring 173rd rank. Originally from Jodhpur, her parents stay at Circuit House in Jamshedpur. "There was so much cooperation from all the members of the family. My father and mother were

Chief Minister Hemant Soren and his spouse Kalpana Soren tested negative for Covid-19 for the second time on Tuesday, health officials said.

Swab samples of Soren and his family members were collected on Tuesday morning after at least 19 staff at the chief minister's office and residence were found Covid infected.

The chief minister and his family members have tested negative for Covid-19 once again," said Ranchi civil surgeon Dr. VB Prasad.

Kalpana Soren's personal driver and a personal secretary rank official were among the people who had come in contact with the Soren family after getting infected, sources from the chief minister's office said.

Members of the Soren family were tested for Covid-19 for the first time on July 11 after contact tracing of a cabinet minister and a Jharkhand Mukti Morcha (JMM) MLA led to the chief minister. There was no immediate need to Meanwhile, at least 18 prisoners, including two former MLAs, at Birsa Munda Jail tested positive for Covid-19 on Tuesday, taking the total count of Covid-infected inmates in Jharkhand's largest jail to 30, prison officials said.

While jail authorities have informed the Ranchi district administration about the development, they have been directed to keep the infected prisoners in isolation inside the jail premises itself.

All the infected prisoners have been put in isolation in the jail premises itself. There was no immediate need to hospitalise them as all of them are asymptomatic," said jail superintendent Hamid Akhtar.

The Covid tests, Akhtar said, were carried out on the basis of contact tracing of the prisoners who were found infected earlier. As per the protocol, authorities cannot disclose identity of Covid patients. However, officials said that both the VIP prisoners, who tested positive for the virus on Tuesday, are former MLAs and have held important positions in political parties. Jharkhand's Covid-19 tally

More teeth to Covid task force after docs complain of overburden

Trauma centre, dentistry staff roped in

SAURAV ROY ■ RANCHI

The administration at Rajendra Institute of Medical Sciences (RIMS) has retained the existing team of Covid task force, but allowed involvement of manpower from other departments in a bid to ease the pressure on task force members – a development that comes close on the heels of the task force's plea seeking relief from their responsibilities citing overburden and stress.

"We have been allowed to involve staff of trauma centre and dentistry department for different works of the Covid ward," said coordinator of Covid task force, Dr. Prabhat Kumar. "Staff from dentistry wing will be involved in supervision works related to Covid care now," he added.

Kumar had shot a letter to RIMS acting director Dr. Manju Gari on Sunday seeking a break for the members of the task force, who were allegedly overburdened with work and under stress due to tight shifts and pressure of dealing with the rapidly rising number of patients.

In the letter, Kumar had stated that the team be relieved of its responsibilities as the members were facing "stress and strain". However, on Tuesday, Kumar said that the task force members were satisfied with RIMS administration's decision of allowing involvement of more hands in dealing with Covid cases.

"The team will remain the same. But we will get help from staff in other departments. All the task force members have also been given set responsibilities, which will ensure accountability and not put added pressure on any one member," he said.

Members of the task force said that they did not face any difficulty in treating patients till end of June. However, cases started soaring in July and managing the Covid ward became a challenging task. "We needed additional manpower. The team that dealt with 30 cases a day cannot deal with 150 cases a day without reinforcement," Kumar said.

All the 100 beds at RIMS Covid ward were occupied on Tuesday, while several patients were sent to other Covid care centres due to shortage of beds at RIMS, doctors said.

A 10-member Covid-19 task force at RIMS was constituted to manage the Covid ward of the premier state-run hospital back in March. The idea behind constituting this team was to have a group of expert doctors who could not only treat patients but also ensure safety standards in Covid wards. The task force has remained unchanged since its formation.

Crisis in Punjab Cong after MP, Raj

Punjab Congress chief Sunil Jakhar has written to party president Sonia Gandhi seeking action against 2 RS members for flaying State Govt over hooch tragedy

PNS | NEW DELHI

After Madhya Pradesh and Rajasthan, internal wrangling within the Congress has now surfaced in Punjab.

Punjab Congress chief Sunil Jakhar on Tuesday said he has written to party president Sonia Gandhi seeking immediate action for anti-party activities against the party's two Rajya Sabha MPs Pratap Singh Bajwa and Shamsher Singh Dullu who have gone to town attacking its own Government over the tragic hooch incident.

Both Bajwa and Dullu have petitioned the Governor demanding a CBI and ED probe into the hooch tragedy and directly blamed Chief Minister Capt. Amarinder Singh for turning a blind eye to the alert they had sounded earlier.

Jakhar described the attack of the two MPs on their own government as a 'copy-paste job' of what happened in Rajasthan in January when in the wake of 107 infant deaths there, Sachin Pilot had flayed his own government that added to his rift with Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot.

"Had action been taken against Pilot then itself, what is happening today in Rajasthan could have been avoided," Jakhar said.

Pointing out that Bajwa and Dullu had been engaging in anti-party activities and were in touch with BJP for quite some time by talking against their own party and targeting the Amarinder Singh government, Jakhar said their attacks had increased after the Chief Minister announced his decision to contest the 2022 elections.

"It is time to stem the rot and save the Congress from the petty machinations of the likes of Bajwa and Dullu, who have no shame in biting the hand that feeds them," Jakhar said.

Jakhar in his letter to Sonia sought strict action against the two MPs who were 'disgracefully exploiting' a tragedy to further their own political ambitions and interests. Asserting that the actions of the duo could not be tolerated any longer, the Punjab Congress

Talks option open if Pilot camp leaves Khattar's hospitality, says Congress

PNS | NEW DELHI

With the Rajasthan Assembly session scheduled next week, the Congress is making attempts to hold talks with the rebel MLAs of the Sachin Pilot camp on the condition that they leave the hospitality of Manohar Lal Khattar-led BJP Government in Haryana.

Congress' chief spokesman Randeep Surjewala on Tuesday maintained that the only condition for talks with the dissenting Rajasthan MLAs is that they leave the BJP's 'suraksha chakra' (protection).

"Innocent kids are being killed, gang rapes are taking place, people are being beaten up in Gurugram. There is no police available for them, but 1,000 policemen are deployed for the security of 19 upset MLAs. The legislators should first give up the Haryana police's security, and friendship and hospitality of the BJP, return home and only then will the dialogue take place," said Surjewala on the sidelines of party briefing.

The Congress has accused the BJP of making attempts to topple the Ashok Gehlot-led Congress government in Haryana by luring Pilot and a few dissidents MLAs who have been camping at a hotel in Haryana arranged by the BJP.

Rajasthan chief minister Ashok Gehlot, who earlier used harsh words against his former Deputy CM, struck a softer note saying he would welcome his deputy back and other dissident MLAs as well if the party's high command forgives them.

"If the high command forgives them (dissident MLAs), I will hug them. I have no prestige point," Gehlot said while talking to the media outside a Jaipur hotel, where the MLAs were to be shifted ahead of the assembly session from August 14.

Gehlot has also rejected the claim of dissident Congress MLAs that their work was not being done.

The rift in the State Congress came to the fore before they can cause any serious damage. Enough is enough now and he has demanded serious action against them from the party president," Jakhar said.

"Such back-stabbing members should be shown the door

In the news for the wrong reasons, the JNU has over 8,000 students who are accommodated in 18 hostels with one even for married students.

Despite the students' unrest, the University received a record 1,35,462 applications, which is 22% higher than last year, for admission to various courses this year. In 2019, the university had received 1,08,982 applications for admissions to several undergraduate, postgraduate, MPhil and PhD courses.

Bihar polls: EC seeks parties' opinion by Aug 11

PNS | NEW DELHI

Despite a growing demand to postpone the upcoming Assembly polls in Bihar due to the coronavirus pandemic and floods, the Election Commission (EC) has asked national and regional political parties to suggest their inputs by August 11 on how to conduct election campaigns and public meetings in the State in view of the crisis.

In a letter addressed to presidents and general secretaries of recognised political parties — both state and national — the EC stated "response from many parties is still awaited". Amid the ongoing pandemic situation, "the EC has directed that some more time may be given to the political parties who have not sent their suggestions". Earlier, the poll body had sought their views and suggestions by July 31.

The term of the current assembly ends on November 29 and a new assembly has to be constituted before that. Presently, 13 districts are reeling under severe floods while the pandemic is expected to peak by October and November.

Several parties of Bihar have demanded that the polls be deferred.

Army to start process of screening women officers for Permanent Commission soon

Application invited by Aug 31

PNS | NEW DELHI

The Army will soon start the process of screening women officers for giving them Permanent Commission (PC). It will convene a special Selection Board for this purpose and the women officers wanting to opt for PC will have to submit relevant documents by August 31.

Towards this end, detailed administrative instructions have been issued to all affected women officers for submission of applications for consideration by the board, the Army said in a statement on Tuesday.

Women officers who have joined the Indian Army through the Women Special Entry Scheme (WSES) and Short Service Commission Women (SSCW) are being considered and all of them have been instructed to submit their application forms, option certificate and other related documents to Army headquarters not later than August 31, it stated.

Specimen formats and detailed checklists have been included in the administrative instructions in order to facilitate correct documentation, the Army said adding the selection board will be scheduled immediately after receipt and verification of applications.

On July 23, the Defence Minister issued the Government Sanction Letter specifying grant of PC to women officers in all streams in which they presently serve -

Army Air Defence (AAD), Signals, Engineers, Army Aviation, Electronics and Mechanical Engineers (EME), Army Service Corps (ASC), Army Ordnance Corps (AOC) and Intelligence Corps in addition to the existing streams of Judge and Advocate General (JAG) and Army Educational Corps (AEC).

The orders follow the Supreme Court verdict in favour of the women officers in the Army that granted PC and command postings in all services other than combat. More than 300 women officers are likely to benefit from the new order.

Due to the prevailing restrictions imposed in view of the COVID situation, multiple means of dissemination of administrative instructions have been adopted to ensure that these documents reach all affected women officers on priority, the statement added.

Singhvi favours comprehensive, aggressive policy against China

PNS | NEW DELHI

In the backdrop of confrontation at the Line of Actual Control (LAC) in Ladakh, India has to go in for a comprehensive and aggressive policy on China, Congress leader Abhishek Singhvi has said. He also advocated a three-pronged shift in the strategy of dealing with the eastern neighbour.

Airing these views in a seminar recently, Singhvi was in favour of the three-pronged strategy including New Delhi investing in building military capability, increasing diplomatic efforts by aligning with like-minded groupings such as Quad and inflicting economic injury to China.

A webinar organised by Law and Society Alliance, a think-tank and the Defence Capital, a national security and strategic affairs platform here, Singhvi said India and its polity has to grow beyond local party politics to usher in single-minded, focused, and unified response to the China challenge.

He also called for a change in the mindset of the Indian bureaucracy and diplomats in providing strong, deft and resolute handling of the Chinese challenge on all fronts, be it geopolitical, economic or diplomatic.

"India and China are two swords in one scabbard called Asia. There has to be forced respectability between the two. In the real world, both respect and outward likeability have consequences on the ground. The need is to generate fear about India in China. Only this is going to set the equilibrium between the two giants," the Congress leader said.

Strongly proposing that India should work towards leveraging its ties with Tibet and Taiwan, he said the divinity and glory of His Holiness the Dalai Lama needs to be given the right place that he deserves in India, and New Delhi must unhesitatingly enhance diplomatic relations with Taiwan.

World Uyghur Congress director for China Affairs Ilshat H. Kokbore, in his presentation, highlighted the alleged human rights abuses by China on the minority Uyghur community in East Turkestan. He said in 2014, Tibetans organised an event on persecuted communities of China. "Out of many leaders, only I was able to attend while all others were not allowed," he added.

Recalling the intolerable human rights violations on him and his family, Ilshat said because he was outspoken against the Communist regime in China, his family was persecuted. His brother killed in 2004, his sister arrested in 2014 and his father died of shock.

Amity researchers develop prototype of cost-effective, multi-mode portable ventilator for Covid-19 patients

PNS | NEW DELHI

A team of Research Scholars & Scientists from Amity University's ASET Design Centre has developed the prototype of a cost-effective, multi-mode portable ventilator specifically designed for Covid-19 patients.

Some of the salient features of this smart ventilator are volume and pressure control in accordance with the age of the patient: The ventilator offers a feature to adjust the breath volume supply to the patient according to their age.

On the advice of the medical experts, the operator just needs to select the required age and the ventilator will supply the necessary volume and pressure of the breathing air automatically to the patient, the University said in a statement.

Also, the ventilator can be rapidly deployed to any location as the majority of the parts can be 3D Printed and assembled locally. It is priced at under ₹10,000.

Covid-19 virus more virulent to males compared to female

PNS | NEW DELHI

The Covid-19 virus seems to be more virulent to males when compared to their female counterparts. Sample this: About 68 per cent of deaths due to virus is reported among male patients and 32 per cent among female patients in India, said the Union Health Ministry while sharing the details of the profile of the Covid-19 patients.

Also, 50 per cent of the total Covid-19 deaths reported in India so far are among people aged above 60, said Union Health Secretary Rajesh Bhushan at a press briefing here.

"About 37 per cent of COVID-19 deaths in India took place in the age group of 45 to 60 years, while 11 per cent of deaths were recorded in the age group of 26 to 44 years," he said.

According to a study involving thousands of patients from Europe, men have higher concentrations of angiotensin-converting enzyme 2 (ACE2), an enzyme that enables the SARS-CoV-2 virus infect healthy cells in their blood, than women and this may probably help explain why men are more vulnerable to Covid-19 than women.

The study has been published in the European Heart Journal.

Sharp spike in Covid-19 cases likely in coming days

PNS | NEW DELHI

Amid increasing efforts for ramping up the Covid-19 test capacity across the country, the Government on Tuesday indicated a further sharp surge in the infection in the coming days with case-laden already set cross the 19-lakh mark on Tuesday.

Almost 50,000 Covid-19 cases are being reported daily over the past few days. However, the cases are all set to be on the higher side as more tests means detection of more cases, indicated Union Health secretary Rajesh Bhushan while addressing a press briefing.

He said that presently 28 states and UTs are performing more than 140 Covid-19 tests per day. The rate of testing per lakh or per million population as the parameter defined by the WHO.

However, as the remaining seven States are yet to improve their testing capacity, the officials do not rule out more cases once they too enhance their test rate.

"A total of 28 states and UTs are conducting more than 140 COVID-19 tests per day per million population. India is the rate of testing per lakh or per million, what is the test positivity rate," she said in an interactive session through video conference.

have a Covid-19 positivity rate of less than 10 per cent, while India's positivity rate as on date is 8.89 per cent. Many states have increased their testing capacity, both RT-PCR & Rapid Antigen tests. Goa, Delhi, Tripura, and Tamil Nadu have increased their testing capacity, said Bhushan.

More than 2 crore Covid-19 tests have been conducted, including more than 6.6 lakh tests in the last 24 hours. Recovered cases are now double of the active cases.

In fact, Soumya Swaminathan, WHO's chief scientist at a video conference at Geneva too expressed concerns that India has a low testing rate when compared to some of the countries that are successfully trying to curb it.

"In India as a whole, the testing rates are much lower compared to some of the countries, who have done well like Germany, Taiwan, South Korea, Japan. Even the United States is testing a huge number of people."

"So we need to have some benchmark and every public health department needs to have benchmarks on what is the rate of testing per lakh or per million, what is the test positivity rate," she said in an interactive session through video conference.

More than 18K desi ventilators supplied within 2 months

PNS | NEW DELHI

Imported till May, ventilators manufactured within the country are now meeting the domestic demand with the Union Health Ministry stating that in less than 24 months more than 18,000 Make-in-India ventilators have been supplied to the States/UTs /Central Govt Hospitals/DRDO facility.

Union Health Secretary Rajesh Bhushan on Tuesday also said that funds from PM Cares fund were utilised to procure about 30,000 ventilators worth ₹2,000 crore.

An order for 30,000 ventilators has been placed with Bharat Electronics Limited (BEL). Bhushan said adding that Scannray provides tech support to BEL. Further orders of 13,500 ventilators from Andhra Pradesh MedTech Zone (AMTZ) and 10,000 ventilators from AgVa have been placed by the Union Health Ministry.

In response to a question about the rejection of AgVa ventilators, Bhushan said that these devices of a different make were rejected in Mumbai. He further clarified that the ventilators in question were donated to BMC-run hospitals and other healthcare facilities in Maharashtra by an NGO.

Bhushan said that only 0.27 per cent of total active cases in India are on ventilator support across the country

Stating that export of ventilators will not impact the domestic supply, Bhushan said that only 0.27 per cent of total active cases in India are on ventilator support across the country. "About 18,000 ventilators have reached states," he said.

In response to a question about the rejection of AgVa ventilators, Bhushan clarified that these devices of a different make were rejected in Mumbai. He further clarified that the ventilators in question were donated to BMC-run hospitals and other healthcare facilities in Maharashtra by an NGO.

After Ayodhya

As the foundation stone is laid for the temple, we must not let triumphalism get the better of Lord Ram's dharma

Years of politics and the clash of "isms" have actually overlooked the cultural consciousness and the civilisational ethos that Lord Ram represents. Revered variously as Maryada Purushottam Sri Ramchandra Raja of Ayodhya or the Imam-e-Hind, he has, beyond being a central figure of the Hindu pantheon, been an anchor of the Indic way of life and the way it should be lived. As Swami Vivekananda said, "he is an embodiment of truth, morality and ideals." The God-king of Ayodhya, who set an example of what social order should be and how it should be conducted, is, therefore, more of a human construct, one we could model ourselves after easily. And he was a selfless leader of people, putting them first. His wars were on principle of the right over wrong; he could have converted all the rakshasas into his own clan after killing Ravana but he chose not to. Simply because he respected his limits and that of others and believed in upholding the sense of righteousness. It is this vision that pervades our collective consciousness and regardless of whether a temple at his birthplace was demolished and a mosque built in its place, which in turn was overrun, the fact is Ayodhya is unanimously believed to have been the place where he was born. In that sense, it is our existential fountainhead. He is a belief and emotion so strong that restoring his birthplace is not about historical corrections but a return to the truth as it should be seen and practised. To that extent the bhoorn puja, or the foundation-stone laying ceremony at the site, is not just a milestone, it is an edict on what dharma should be. It should not be about Hindu triumphalism but about upholding values exactly the way he would have wanted. Lord Ram was a pluralist, not an isolationist. Celebrating him shouldn't be about symbolism, for majoritarian might is measured by grace, not by muscularity of an imposition. But that is a tall order in today's show and tell politics. What began as a mass movement to reclaim the site, launched by the BJP in 1989 to chart an alternative political path, gained massive traction once the then party supremo LK Advani began a Rathayatra from Gujarat. Although he couldn't complete the yatra, it aroused passions across the country and paved the way for the party's ascendancy to political power. And in the process, religiosity overtook secularism as an electoral agenda. Only social justice forces in the shape of VP Singh, Mulayam Singh Yadav and Lalu Prasad Yadav held out. But that led to polarisation and Ram became less of a guiding visionary with his neo-disciples becoming more like avengers of historical insult. Hinduism became Hindutva. In fact, the Congress, too, was taken in by the Hindutva wave with Rajiv Gandhi himself allowing the opening of the Babri Masjid gates and "shilanyas" prayers to be held inside for fear of losing the Hindu vote. This opened the floodgates for the right-wing fringe like the Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP) and the Bajrang Dal to claim political centrality. That's when the temple became more than a symbolism, a runaway cause to justify everything from a majoritarian perspective. Rajiv Gandhi had grossly misjudged that the mosque, too, could co-exist. That was not to be. Advani had merely sought a balanced discourse where Hinduism could be defined not by exclusion, revisionism and minority appeasement but as an inclusive philosophy of national life. One that translated into the reasoned prime ministership of Atal Bihari Vajpayee. Unfortunately, today he and many seniors have been benched, not even consulted or properly invited to temple affairs. Meanwhile, the headline extremism and otherisation of non-Hindus have become the centrifugal force of the BJP, one that has been condoned by a tacit electorate, which returned the Narendra Modi Government with a brute majority. One that has the silent approval of the Opposition, which has fallen in line, swept aside by the tide of identity politics.

So what after Ayodhya? Is it the culmination of temple politics or will it be milked further electorally? Or will it spur a demand for more reclamations at Kashi and Mathura? At one time, hardliners would have been enthusiastic but the BJP's ideological anchor, the RSS, is itself cautious about continuing the temple issue beyond the Ram janmabhoomi. In fact, RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat has categorically said that there are no plans for either Kashi or Mathura, that the RSS does not get into agitations and that the Ram temple was an exception. Having won a massive mandate, the BJP had to address its core constituency and has delivered a promise made many years ago and which at one time seemed just manifesto material. But both the RSS and the BJP are also realist about consolidating power. While the nation heaved a collective sigh of relief at the resolution of the Ayodhya dispute, there is undoubtedly a sense of fatigue about continuing politics in the name of Ram. There are much bigger concerns in the post-pandemic world to tackle, the bleak economy and restarting the nation once again. Even Ayodhya wants to get back to normal, hoping the temple will accelerate the local economy. Besides, the BJP's image has already taken a beating courtesy hate crimes, cow vigilantism and the anti-citizenship law protests and it wouldn't want to create new faultlines or give ammunition to others to do so. Ram raja may be ideal but the BJP has got to get real.

Forlorn hopes

Wholesale dispatches for the auto industry are climbing back to 2019 levels. Is this a good sign or a false dawn?

When reports from the automotive industry came early in August, they were reassuringly positive. The country's largest carmaker, Maruti-Suzuki, said that wholesale dispatches to dealers were up by one per cent from July 2019. The country's second-largest carmaker, Hyundai Motor India, registered a decline of two per cent for domestic dispatches. While both carmakers have showed a considerable decline in exports, other producers, too, displayed a relatively healthy number of wholesale dispatches for July 2020 compared to July 2019. Even two-wheeler companies, Hero Motocorp, Honda and TVS, showed considerable numbers in July 2020, almost matching July 2019 numbers and importantly climbing significantly over sales in June 2020. And in a sign that the rural economy is picking up, tractor sales for July 2020 continued to surpass expectations, showing double-digit growth for all leading manufacturers.

However, there are some signs that things have not all returned to normal. Commercial vehicle sales are still muted, with transporters still having excess capacity. With educational institutions and public transportation services limited, there has been almost no offtake of buses in the past four months. One must draw attention to the difference between wholesale and actual retail sales; the latter are yet to recover. While most manufacturers have managed to get their production in order, thanks to special permissions even in lockdown zones, retail sales have been hit as dealerships have had to stay closed on days when cities, districts and even whole States endured lockdowns. What must also be remembered is that the entire automotive industry was suffering in 2019. Sales had been muted as the economy was still sputtering. In fact, last year, sales were down sharply from 2018. One should wait and watch to see how actual retail sales in the months of August and September pan out. These are historically weak months leading up to the bonanza of the last three months of the year, the so-called "festive season." And while it is encouraging to see that auto manufacturers have managed to get their houses back in order, much more needs to be done for the entire economy to get back on track after the Wuhan virus derailed all hopes of growth. These might be green shoots but they may not be enough to ensure that the plant called the economy grows big and strong by 2021.

Turning liability to asset

Merely privatising the PSBs will get us nowhere. Along with this move, the Government must bring sector-specific reforms. And they must come quick

GOURAV VALLABH

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) in its Financial Stability Report released on July 24 warned that the Non-Performing Assets (NPA) ratio of scheduled commercial banks (SCBs) could rise up to 14.7 per cent by March 2021 from the current 8.5 per cent in March 2020. This piece of news was followed up by former RBI Governor Urjit Patel's shocking revelation that the central bank wanted to be tough against the loan defaulters but the Government wanted him to "go soft", which eventually forced him to resign. A series of happenings in the banking sector in recent times has made everyone doubt the character and intentions of the current Government to recapitalise public sector banks (PSBs).

Recently, the All India Bank Employees Association (AIBE), too, released a list of 2,426 borrower accounts that have been categorised as "willful defaulters" with dues amounting to ₹1,47,350 crore to the banking system. It also mentioned that such huge amounts are being technically written off by the NDA Government. Moreover, recently, the Union Government announced that only five PSBs would continue to exist and that the rest of the unmerged banks would be sold off to private bidders in the name of recapitalisation. Only last year, the Government had merged 10 State-owned banks into four, creating a handful of larger banks in the process.

On the one hand, the Government is trying to infuse private capital into the PSBs and on the other, it is forcing both the State Bank of India (SBI) and Life Insurance Corporation (LIC) to bail out failed private sector banks such as Yes Bank. The statements and actions of the Government appear to contradict each other. A comparison of the BSE PSU bank index of India (SBI) from 2014 to 2020 reveals that the former has seen no growth in the last six years while the latter has seen a steady rise. The BSE PSU bank index has instead fallen by 2.63 per cent, while the overall index has grown approximately by 11 per cent on a CAGR basis. This clearly reflects that investors are not happy with the way the PSBs have been functioning.

On the one hand, the Government is pushing for a technical write-off of bad loans, on the other, it has failed to investigate or punish the willful defaulters. This is evident from the fact that SBI has been recovering less than one per cent of its write-offs each year. As per reports, SBI's technical write-off of bad loans in the last eight years amounted to ₹1.23 lakh crore, while recovery from bad debts during the same period was less than ₹9,000 crore, which is less than one per cent of the collection efficiency every year.

Around ₹4,545 fraud cases — involving about ₹1.85 lakh crore — were reported by scheduled commercial banks and select FIs during 2019-20 as per RBI in an RTI response. This takes the total loss to ₹3.6 lakh crore due to frauds in the last six years (FY 2014-15 to 2019-20). Since July 19, 1969, when 14 banks were nationalised, they have been contributing immensely to build credit lines for the marginalised sectors like agriculture. The National Credit Council, in its meeting held in July 1968, emphasised that commercial banks should finance priority sectors like agriculture and small-scale industries.

Over the years, the priority sector lending norms have seen major changes and have, in fact, evolved with a greater focus on those segments that have traditionally been neglected from accessing credit. Thus, it has become a handy tool to address the problem of financial exclusion.

In the latest report of its Internal Working Group to review agricultural credit, the RBI said that the impact of the institutional framework put in place has largely leveraged formal credit to the agriculture sector. From ₹37.71 billion in 1981 (approximately 16 per cent of the agricultural GDP in 1980-81), the SCBs' outstanding advances to agriculture and allied activities have grown significantly to ₹13,694.56 billion in 2017-18, which formed approximately 16 per cent of total bank credit ie, ₹86,254.25 billion and approximately 51 per cent of agriculture and allied GVA at current prices.

Merely privatising the PSBs will get us nowhere. Along with this move, the need is for sector-specific reforms. In his book, What the Economy Needs Now, Rajan has suggested that privatisation be just one element of the overall reform process. It should not become the foremost plank in banking sector reform and is fraught with adverse consequences.

To put it simply, Rajan is of the view that "simple" solutions like privatising PSBs may be no panacea. Consolidation and privatisation of PSBs can have little to do with setting Indian banking right as these actions may be necessary but will not be sufficient by a long chalk.

The Government should clarify its approach to steer the PSBs out of the crisis. It should come up with a white paper that must be prepared in consultation with top economists, former Finance Ministers and RBI Governors among others. The white paper should include divestment plans for PSBs. A thorough investigation into the divestment process, too, is a must. Further, steps must be taken to ensure utmost transparency in the valuation of brand, network and the value for the number of accounts created over the last 51 years through significant brand-building.

The Government also needs to clarify the future of bank employees. The challenge is also for it to continue providing cheap agricultural credit to farmers once the entire banking sector becomes driven by the private sector. No doubt, the state of the PSBs has been of great concern to a common citizen of our country. The country needs them to perform better. Delays in the recognition of the inevitable has haunted India's financial sector. Reforms must come quick.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Better late than never

Sir — PV Narasimha Rao should be remembered for being a tactful Prime Minister, who handled a peculiar situation that developed in the country when an uncontrolled gathering pulled down the disputed structure at Ayodhya on December 6, 1992, paving the way for the ultimate foundation stone-laying ceremony for a grand Ram temple today.

He will also be remembered for successfully running a minority Government for a full five-year term and paving the way for a new era of economic reforms. It is indeed regrettable that like many other Congress veterans, he was not only sidelined by his own party but even insulted after his death. The Congress still refuses to look beyond the Gandhis.

Though a bit late, the present ruling Government has done well to honour forgotten national heroes such as Rao and Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, a real tribute, however, will be when Rao is honoured with the highest civilian award of Bharat Ratna. He deserves the maxi-

COVID-19 fallout on children

Data collated so far show that children are less affected clinically by COVID-19 than adults; they are not completely immune to SARS-CoV-2; are only less susceptible to contracting the virus and developing severe disease from it; and they can be carriers but are far less likely to spread the contagion than adults. However, the Coronavirus pandemic affects children less in terms of health but its impact on their lives and growth is incalculably immense. It has turned their world upside down; has exacerbated the problems already faced by them due to poverty, malnutrition, regressive cultural values and practices, poor parenting and physical abuse.

The pandemic has caused a decline in economic activity, fall in household incomes and has forced millions of families to subsist on reduced daily intake of food. Deprived of adequate nourishment, children suffer stunted physical and cognitive growth. Governments must arrange to provide food to children who used to get mid-day meals in schools. Children are creative, inquisitive and agile; they need classrooms and playgrounds to grow up and blossom. They are at an impressionable age; they are profoundly affected by what happens to them and around them. The pandemic makes it a ceaseless struggle between their resilience and vulnerability to cope with its impact. It is important to ensure that children don't will and come to think of themselves as the "lost generation." Their protection, health and well-being must be the world's priority.

Change for good

Sir — Once again, the Prime Minister's Office intervened at the right time to help the common man. This time, it has brought an end to the practice of eateries charging exorbitant prices for snacks and beverages at the Kochi airport. The snacks and beverages sold at food outlets at the airport burnt a hole in the passengers' pocket as a heavy amount was charged.

The PMOs intervention has brought the prices down to tea and snacks being sold at ₹15 and coffee at ₹20. Earlier, people had to shell out ₹100 for a cup of tea and a minimum of ₹200 for snacks. Other airports across the country must take cue and slash prices of refreshments.

Trust Govt hospitals

Sir — With the Coronavirus having breached the 1.8 million mark, it has spared none. Even Bollywood celebrities, as well as many of our leaders, have been hit by the virus. Union Home Minister Amit Shah is the latest one to have contracted the disease and has been hospitalised in one of the best and costliest private hospitals in the country.

Several other Ministers at the Centre as well as in States have contracted the virus. Shockingly, most of them were treated and continue to be admitted in private hospitals. To the contrary, when an average person falls sick, he/she prefers reaching out to a Government hospital as private ones are unaffordable. Our administrators must start trusting the Government facilities.

The Congress must decide

The party needs leadership, direction, revival, a new narrative and unity. Maybe even a non-Gandhi at the helm, soon

KALYANI SHANKAR

For the first time since Sonia Gandhi took over as the Congress president after the resignation of Rahul Gandhi last August, the rift between the "old guard" loyal to Sonia and Team Rahul has come out in the open. The reason for this is simple. Both the senior and younger leaders are frustrated with the status quo in the party when it sorely needs to revive, with a strong leadership at the helm. However, this "old guard" versus "young Turks" fight in the Congress is not new. It was there even during Indira Gandhi's days when she split the party in 1969, pushing out the syndicate led by the then Congress president K Kamraj. The syndicate thought that they could manipulate Indira but she proved to be a shrewd politician and emerged stronger despite the split. After she won the Bangladesh war, politically she reached her zenith. Later, when the Congress party split in 1978, Congress (Indira) emerged as the real Congress.

When Rajiv Gandhi succeeded Indira in 1984 after her assassination, he was surrounded by his own coterie. But he also kept some of the senior leaders close to him. Since Rajiv was a politically strong leader with over 400 Congress MPs backing him, the feud between the seniors and younger leaders was muted.

Later, after Rajiv's assassination, a section of the old guard brought Sonia into the party in 1988. They were loyal to her while she also depended on them for support and guidance as she was a political greenhorn. It was a big task to guide such an old party as the Congress. Things went smoothly for years and over time Sonia tightened her grip on the party.

However, the fight between the old guard and the young leaders began when she promoted her son. While the senior leaders were apprehensive about their future, Rahul's team was getting impatient to get madder roles within the party and in Congress-ruled States. The politically-savvy old guard managed to block all attempts to bring a non-Gandhi to the helm of the party and bring back Sonia when Rahul resigned last August. Rahul himself criticised the old guard in the May 25 Congress Working Committee meeting.

Now, with the departure of Jyotiraditya Scindia in March and rebellion by Sachin Pilot — two of the closest aides of the Gandhi son — Team Rahul is further agitated. The fact that the newly-elected MP Rajiv Satav, said to be close to Rahul, was bold enough to be critical of the old guard and the UPA-2, says a lot about the divide within the party. It was only after senior leaders like Anand Sharma, Manish Tiwari, Milind Deora and so on retorted strongly that Satav withdrew his remarks about UPA-2.

Sonia and Rahul are not like Indira and Rajiv. Leading a weakened Congress is different from leading a powerful one. The departure of two young and charismatic leaders like Scindia and Pilot in the last four months and the loss of Madhya Pradesh and a wobbling Rajasthan have weakened the leadership further. Younger leaders from Team Rahul like Milind Deora and Jitin Prasada are likely to leave soon.

The immediate urgency in the party is the leadership vacuum. If Rahul wants to come back as the party chief, he should do so at the earliest. The "Bring Rahul" chant has already begun. Fortunately for the Gandhis there is no challenge to Rahul. However, if he does not want to come back, Rahul should make it clear now.

Dissent in the Congress is also not new as it functioned as an umbrella party providing space for all kinds of opinions. But discussing differences within the party forum and publicly airing grievance are two different things. The generational divide in the Congress goes much beyond and if no corrective measures are taken, it will affect the revival of the party.

Can this issue be resolved? It is indeed tricky, as both camps are not willing to wait. With both Sonia and Rahul helplessly watching the fight and with a leadership crisis plaguing the party, they need some quick and out-of-the-box thinking. As the old guard says, now is the time for introspection and correction. The party should have a convective like I did in Pachmarhi and Shirdi.

Former Minister Salman Khurshid has put the present crisis in perspective. In an article, he sums up, "The loss of promising young leaders, irrespective of the reason, is indeed unfortunate and sad. But the young, who feel we, the older generation, are not giving way, must not forget that there are even younger ones waiting on the sides. The crisis is not about young and old but about those who want to leave and those who are determined not to abandon the ship in stormy weather."

The erosion has begun in the party like it happened before Sonia took over in 1998. The Gandhis should realise that 2020 is not 1998. Also, the family has proved that they are not vote catchers now. The party needs leadership, direction, revival, a new narrative and unity. Maybe even a non-Gandhi at the helm, soon. But it needs to decide fast as time and tide wait for none.

Miles to go in J&K

Politically, the revocation of Articles 35A and 370 marks the fulfilment of the BJP's poll promise but emotional integration may take more time and requires imaginative handling by all stakeholders

PRAMOD JAIN

During the last one year, Jammu and Kashmir (J&K) has seen many far-reaching changes.

On August 5, 2019, the Parliament revoked Articles 35A and 370 of the Indian Constitution and reorganised J&K through an Act of Parliament, carving J&K as well as Ladakh as Union Territories (UTs) out of the erstwhile State. The J&K Constitution became inoperative, all Central laws now extend to J&K and many State laws are inoperative. The other major changes included the abolition of the bicameral legislature and its replacement by a unicameral arrangement and reduction in the life of the Assembly from six to five years. There is now only one flag in J&K i.e. the Tricolour. Though politically, the revocation of Articles 35A and 370 marks the fulfilment of the BJP's long-held election promise, emotional integration may take more time and requires imaginative and sustained handling by various primary and secondary stakeholders.

Institution-building for good governance: Good governance is predicated upon a reasonably robust institutional framework in terms of both structure and agency. While a lot has been done in terms of the structure, the agency needs due attention, keeping the long-term horizons in view.

J&K never had direct British rule or the Indian Civil Service (ICS). The All India Services (AIS) were extended to it as late as the 1960s and have not yet bloomed in the real sense. Till recently 50 per cent localisation — especially when the State services are themselves recruited on a very narrow, limited-to-J&K base — was a regressive policy that has been done away with. For administrative integration and for higher standards of public administration, the UT should have 100 per cent direct recruit AIS officers. Fortunately, the IAS, IPS and IFS cadres have been reviewed and are being expanded shortly. There are quite a few bright women in the State services; they need encouragement, exposure and training. Post-1990, the J&K Police managed to get enormous authority, manpower, infrastructure and funds. But they need to adequately attend to maintaining law and order, crime management and counter terrorism. This should be done in a manner that is transparent and ensures public access as well as accountability at various levels of the civil set-up.

Civic engagement: To build a progressive and modern UT, the focus must be on strengthening, even re-doing, from the perspective of the user-citizen, the institutions of governance so that they speedily and professionally respond to public issues, people's problems and local needs. Civic engagement and public outreach programmes like "Back to Villages", devolution of more powers including control over staff, functions and funds to the elected municipal and panchayat bodies, block development councils (BDCs) et al are indeed welcome steps. Giving good monthly honoraria to all, having life insurance and providing the protocol equivalence of District Magistrate to all the BDC Chairmen will boost their morale and motivate others to join public life, thereby strengthening the local democratic institutions. However, the new initiatives must be supplemented by a "Back to Basics" programme. This should be done in the UT secretariat and in the field, so as to attend to the basic but forgotten/ignored/diluted aspects pertaining to the very reason d'être of governance.

At the core of this approach lies the need for an enhanced civic engagement and to afford an opportunity to the enlightened citizens, especially urban, to relate to and become a part of the system, thereby enhancing the "ownership" of the

“INCLUSIVE DEVELOPMENT BASED ON CIVIC ENGAGEMENT HAS TO BE A GENUINELY PARTICIPATORY EXERCISE, IN WHICH ALL DELEGATED RESPONSIBILITY IS DISCHARGED BY THE ELECTED REPRESENTATIVES; ALL DECISION-MAKING HAS TO BE THEIRS. THE TRADITIONAL BUREAUCRATIC AND TECHNOCRATIC APPROACH, JOKINGLY CALLED 'YOU PARTICIPATE, I DECIDE', HAS TO BE REPLACED BY A PRO-PEOPLE ORIENTATION IN THE GOVERNMENT MACHINERY, ESPECIALLY IN THE STATE RURAL DEVELOPMENT AND PANCHAYATI RAJ DEPARTMENT AND PANCHAYATI RAJ DEPARTMENT.”

Government-funded schemes and projects. This enervation of the administrative structure and agency, coupled with enforcing accountability and productivity, especially at the cutting edge levels, will reduce citizens' trust deficit, enhance social capital and mainstream the marginalised population — the processes of social engineering necessary for inclusive development.

People as stakeholders: Inclusive development based on civic engagement has to be a genuinely participatory exercise, in which all delegated responsibility is discharged by the elected representatives; all decision-making has to be theirs. The traditional, bureaucratic and technocratic approach, jokingly called "you participate, I decide", has to be replaced by a pro-people orientation in the government machinery, especially in the State Rural Development and Panchayati Raj Department and in the Urban Development Department, besides others having a significant public contact.

The newly-empowered Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) and municipal bodies must not be seen as the Government's departmental appendages or field units, as the officers tend to be seen, but as separate loci of power. Better functioning bodies must be given additional responsibilities and funds so as to build their stake in local area development. A new and revamped grievance redressal mechanism needs to be put in place so that people can raise their voice about all that is unwanted or unacceptable. The old practice of officers holding regular camps in villages and at the tehsil headquarters needs to be strengthened and institutionalised. All complaint seats in panchayats, BDCs and other bodies must be filled up through early elections. Now that the 73rd and 74th constitutional amendments have been extended to J&K, bringing about positive changes is both imperative and logical. The statutory post of the ombudsman for the PRIs also needs to be filled up early.

Restoring basic services: Connected with the above is the task of restoring basic services like 4G, which will go a long way to assuage the grievances of the younger generation and help businesses. Essential services like high-speed internet, power and water supply must keep pace with the citizens' expectations. While there is a marked improvement in the supply of quality electricity in the twin capitals and major towns, similar improvement is yet to be registered with regard to rural areas. People often complain that every wind and rainstorm leads to a power breakdown. Better power and water supply and other managerial issues must be tackled with the people's participation, taking PRIs on board, with the Divisional Commissioners and District Development Commissioners playing the key role of coordination and monitoring.

Strengthening the rule of law: The rule of law is a basic ingredient of a democratic system, free society and a market-led economy. It postulates that all citizens are equal before law, none is above the law, none can be a judge in his own cause; there would be no arbitrariness in decisions taken by public authorities. The celebrated historian and author, Niall Ferguson, avers that the decline in the rule of law is a major factor contributing to the degeneration of nations.

In almost every Assembly session in J&K, there have been acrimonious debates, inter alia, on the alleged backdoor appointments, political bigwigs being asked to recommend names for selection of candidates, appointments through relaxation of rules and so on. In this backdrop, the rule of law needs to be strengthened and re-established, wherever required, in the day-to-day working of the administration at various levels, and it needs to be visible. The task may require training and re-training the decision-makers, their intensive monitoring and introduction of checks and balances as well as giving punishments for wrongdoing. It is indeed difficult, though not impossible.

Political party development: Though the timing of the electoral event is the sole discretion of the Election Commission of India, election to the State Assembly is the logical next step. Since political parties are a necessary part of the electoral and democracy-building processes, they need to come out of their current, self-imposed hibernation. All parties need also to seriously go in for "political party development." They should groom ideologies with a grip over the political economy and public policy issues, those who can link up the macro and micro, and devise vision, mission, strategy and plan of action to establish a bottom-up interface with the voters, especially the younger ones.

All parties perhaps need a new pedagogy and communication approach, through social media platforms, emails and text messages. They also need to strengthen the governance institutions because people's political behaviour is always influenced by the institutions, political and administrative. Collectively all of them have a responsibility to ensure that democracy delivers, and deliver to the satisfaction of the electorate at large.

Limitation of stereotypes: It has been seen that J&K-related stereotypes don't generally capture the essence of all that is good, bad and ugly, and only strengthen the archetypal discourse fixed on the media platforms, emails and text messages. The need of the hour is a broad spectrum of new, bold, long-term and sustainable policy initiatives and their time-bound, effective and professional implementation. Lieutenant-Governor GC Murmu will do well to nudge political parties to resume political activity sooner than later. He is already consolidating on the work done by the Union Ministries and the UT administration but the efforts need to be speeded up and expanded as early as possible. There cannot be a trust deficit for long.

The kingmaker with the heart of a king

Now that Amar Singh is no longer with us, I am sure he will be remembered by the ordinary people as long as they live for his kindness

SANTANU GANGULY

It was August 2018 and I was curating a Bengali Film Festival in Delhi. National Award-winning actress Rituparna Sengupta was one of the guests at the festival. While heading towards her hotel from the airport, she told me, "I have invited Amar Singh for the opening ceremony."

So I conveyed the message to the organisers. But to my surprise, they informed me that the Samajwadi Party leader and Rajya Sabha member was not to be accommodated as the festival got support from the Chief Minister of Delhi, Arvind Kejriwal. The Chief Minister's Office had clearly mentioned that as per established protocol, no other political persona from any other political party could be present at the function. It was a very peculiar situation and the organisers were very tense as they did not want to offend the Chief Minister.

So, the moment Amar Singh arrived, I took him to the conference room, since the opening ceremony was yet to begin. I made him comfortable, gave him a cup of tea and set up an interview with Doodardashan. My intention was to let the Chief Minister arrive and take his seat on the stage before seating Amar Singh in the front row among the audience.

Those moments spent with Amar Singh, while waiting for Arvind Kejriwal to arrive, turned out to be very memorable. I got the opportunity to talk to the veteran politician, industrialist, the close friend of Bollywood royalty Amitabh Bachchan and the kingmaker of Indian politics over very close to half an hour. I call him kingmaker, because of the way he saved the Manmohan Singh Government in a floor test in Parliament. Even his harshest critics will have to agree that he had been blessed with exceptional floor management skills in Parliament.

During our chat, I was amazed to hear him speak fluent Bengali. Then he claimed himself to be a Bengali at heart and began talking about his school and college days in Kolkata, the time, the memories, the culture, the people and, of course, the politics.

It was then that I reminded him of his great contribution to the Cinefan: Asian Film Festival, 2003.

This was before Cinefan was merged with Osiatis. Aruna Vasudev had a hard time organising the festival as she got very nominal Government and corporate support. So she had approached Amar Singh on the recommendation of Vasant Sathe. At that time, Amar Singh gave us the ₹1 lakh we needed as the cash award for the Best Film voted by the audience. That was received by veteran filmmaker Gautam Ghose, for his Bengali film Abar Aranye (In the forest, again). As Amar Singh was very busy with some political engagement, he requested Vasant Sathe to present the award.

After listening to my tale, Amar Singh just smiled and said, "You know the ordinary people and the poor people always gratefully remember whatever little I have done for them. It has happened many times that during my visit to my constituency, many people come along with their children and ask them to touch my feet. They tell their children that 'he is your grandfather. He did our Kanyadaan. Without his help our marriage would not have been possible'. Frankly speaking I don't even remember the occasion or I personally don't recall the people who remember my help. I think my purpose in life is solved." After a small pause, he continued, "But whatever I have done for rich people... no one ever thinks about those efforts." I could see the sadness on Amar Singh's face when he said that.

During the course of our conversation, I discovered that he was an avid reader and had an amazing collection of books in his personal library. After learning this fact, I requested him to visit the book store next door to the auditorium going to the auditorium. He readily agreed and chose a good amount of books, mostly on history and politics. The store employees panicked as they did not have the facility to take payments through a credit or debit card and the bill was a whopping ₹20,000. Unfazed by this, Amar Singh just murmured "Oh! That's not a big amount", and took out the money from the pocket of his kurta and gave it to them.

Meanwhile, Kejriwal arrived and the opening ceremony of the film festival began. So we proceeded inside the auditorium. Amar Singh got his designated seat and everything went smoothly.

After the ceremony, when Kejriwal got off the stage to leave, Amar Singh just got up and with folded hands said to him in Hindi, "Krun, nahi polichane ji" (Didn't recognise me?). Kejriwal, with his popular and charming smile, quickly held Amar Singh's hands and exchanged greetings very cordially.

Anyway, at the end of the day, all of us were discussing Amar Singh's next acknowledgement of the fact that the ordinary people remembered his good deeds but the rich never remembered his kindness. Somehow, to this day, I can't forget the sad, hurt face of Amar Singh. Now that he is no longer with us, I am sure he will be remembered by the ordinary people as long as they live.

GIVING WINGS TO CREATIVITY

The Coronavirus pandemic has reconfigured the home as a site of creativity, one glimpsed through webcams and headphones. The format will surely vanish when arts venues reopen around the world. But for some women musicians this year, before and during the lockdown, the domestic space has offered artistic liberation at odds with the home's reputation as a place of constraint for women.

AFGHAN PRISON ATTACK

Kerala doctor among ISIS suicide bombers

Kabul/New Delhi: Of the 11 ISIS suicide bombers involved in the Afghanistan prison break terror attack that left 39 people dead on Monday, one was a doctor from Kerala.

Official sources told IANS that the ISIS suicide bomber has been identified as Kallukettia Purayil Jias, a physician and resident of Kasargod in Kerala.

On Sunday evening, as per official sources on Kabul, 11 ISIS terrorists stormed the Jalalabad prison to break free their cadres, killing 39 people. In a fierce gun-battle which lasted for almost 24 hours, the Afghan security forces killed all the 11 attackers.

Jias, according to the National Intelligence Agency (NIA) which has been investigating his case, went to Afghanistan to join the Islamic State's Khorasan Province branch of Daesh, the global Islamist terrorist group, in 2016. As per the NIA, Jias was in the case, Jias had gone to Afghanistan along with his pregnant wife Refaella. While Jias at the time was 33 years old, his wife was 26. Sources said Refaella and their child are in the custody of Afghan authorities.

July 2016, a parent from Kasargod had lodged a police complaint, stating that his 30-year-old son Abdul Rashid was missing along with his wife Ayisha (Sonia Sebastian) and child for almost two months after they had gone to Mumbai.

Around the same time, 14 other cases of missing people, including Jias, were registered by their parents and relatives in the police station of the same area. Preliminary investigation revealed that the missing persons had left India to join the ISIS.

During the investigation by Kerala Police, the role of 29-year-old Yameen Mohammad Zahid, a resident of Batla House in Jamia Nagar, New Delhi, but originally from Sitamarhi district in Bihar, as a co-conspirator of Abdul Rashid was revealed.

She was arrested on August 1, 2016, after she got intercepted at the Indira Gandhi International Airport in New Delhi while attempting to flee India for Afghanistan along with her child.

As per the Kerala police, Yameen was actively aiding Abdul Rashid in his activities, including raising funds to support the ISIS. The case was handed over to the NIA after she was arrested.

The NIA investigation revealed that Yameen "was highly influenced and radicalised with the pro-jihad ideology" and recruited the main accused Abdul Rashid. She "compelled her husband to divorce her and upon her compulsion, her husband pronounced third talaq in the month of Ramadan, 2015. Immediately after the third talaq, she had left her place of work at Kollam and gone to the house of Jias at Kasargod for attending the secret, pro-ISIS classes conducted by Abdul Rashid," the NIA chargesheet said.

The NIA investigation revealed that Abdul Rashid, Yameen and others were involved in activities to further the objectives of the ISIS in Kerala and other places of India. Fifteen people, including Jias, had fled the country to join the terror group in Nangarhar province in Afghanistan. Though the NATO and Afghan forces claim to have killed most ISIS members in Nangarhar, sources said many escaped from the region. In the chargesheet, the NIA listed Jias, a resident of Hamsa Sagar, Thekkupuram, near the government hospital in Padana, Kasargod, as an accused and absconder in the case. IANS

UK lawmakers urge sanctions over Hong Kong police violence

London: British lawmakers investigating rights violations by Hong Kong police have urged the UK Government to sanction the city's leader for allowing "excessive police violence" toward humanitarian workers helping those injured in pro-democracy protests.

Tuesday's report from the bipartisan All Party Parliamentary Group on Hong Kong said first aid workers, as well as doctors and nurses, have been subjected to intimidation, threats, physical violence and arrests during months-long clashes between police and protesters that began in the city last year.

"The Hong Kong Police Force's treatment of humanitarian aid workers and their interference within hospitals have resulted in injured protesters not receiving the required medical care at any time or at all," the report said.

Lawmaker Alistair Carmichael, who co-chairs the parliamentary group, said the violence was "not the actions of a few rogue officers" and was "Clearly a systematic and quite deliberate" change that aligned more with policing in mainland China.

The report's authors said they drew their conclusions after receiving over 1,000 pieces of written evidence and hearing many firsthand experiences from witnesses.

It called for Britain to urgently impose sanctions on Hong Kong leader Carrie Lam and the city's police commissioner.

The semi-autonomous city has seen its most violent anti-government protests in the past year, as demonstrations against a proposed law that would allow suspects to be extradited to China grew into a much wider protest movement. AP

Lankans to vote in parliamentary election today

Colombo: Sri Lankans will vote in the twice-postponed parliamentary election on Wednesday with the powerful Rajapaksa family-run party expected to gain control of the assembly that could allow them to amend the Constitution to restore presidential powers.

Over 16 million people are eligible to vote to elect 196 out of a total of 225 lawmakers for the next five years. Twenty-nine others will be named from a national list according to the number of votes received by each party.

The counting would take place only on the following morning - a departure from the practice of counting the ballots from 8 pm on the election night. President Gotabaya Rajapaksa has hopes for a two-thirds majority for the Sri Lanka People's Party (SLPP) in the general election so that he can amend the Constitution to restore presidential powers curbed by a 2015 constitution. His older brother is the former premier Mahinda Rajapaksa, who is seeking reelection as prime minister, is assured of a sweeping victory as the main opposition is badly divided. PTI

China accuses US of 'outright bullying' over TikTok

Beijing: China accused the United States on Tuesday of "bullying" over popular video app TikTok, after President Donald Trump ramped up pressure for its US operations to be sold to an American company.

In the latest diplomatic spat between the world's two biggest economies, Beijing hit back after Trump gave TikTok six weeks to arrange a sale of its US operations - and said that his government wanted a financial benefit from the deal.

"This goes against the principles of the market economy and the (World Trade Organization's) principles of openness, transparency and non-discrimination," said foreign ministry spokesman Wang Wenbin.

The app has been under fire from the US national security groups, and Trump said that Microsoft was in talks to buy TikTok.

He has given ByteDance until mid-September to strike a deal, a tactic that is almost unheard of.

"It's got to be an American company... it's got to be owned here," Trump said on Monday. "We don't want to have any problem with security."

The US and China have clashed over various fronts recently, essentially barring Chinese telecoms company Huawei from the US market and waging a global campaign to isolate the company over national security concerns.

Beijing slammed the latest move as a "political manipulation," Wang told a regular press briefing Tuesday. "The US, without providing any evidence, has been using an abused concept of national security... unjustifiably suppressing certain non-US companies."

Malaysia police raid Ijazera's office, seize 2 computers

AP ■ KUALA LUMPUR

News broadcaster Al Jazeera said Malaysian police raided its Kuala Lumpur office Tuesday, calling it a "troubling escalation" in a government crackdown on media freedom.

Police opened an investigation last month into an Al Jazeera documentary on the treatment of undocumented migrants after officials complained it was inaccurate and biased. Seven Al Jazeera staff members have been grilled by police as part of the probe for alleged sedition, defamation and violating the Communications and Multimedia Act.

Al Jazeera, a Qatari-state owned broadcaster, said in a statement that police seized two computers during Tuesday's raid, which it called "an attack on press freedom as a whole." It urged Malaysian authorities to cease the criminal investigation. AFP

Pak court appoints 3 senior lawyers as amici curiae in Jadhav's case

Islamabad: A top Pakistani court has named three senior lawyers as amici curiae in the case of Kulbhushan Jadhav as it ordered the Pakistan government to give "another chance" to the military court for the death-row prisoner.

Jadhav, the 50-year-old retired Indian Navy officer, was sentenced to death by a Pakistani military court on charges of espionage and terrorism in April 2017.

India approached the International Court of Justice against Pakistan for denial of consular access to Jadhav and challenging the death sentence.

The Hague-based ICJ ruled in July 2019 that Pakistan must undertake an "effective review and reconsideration" of the conviction and sentence of Jadhav and also to grant consular access to India without further delay.

A two-member bench of the Islamabad High Court (IHC) comprising Chief Justice

Athar Minallah and Justice Mianul Hassan Aurangzeb appointed the three lawyers on Monday as it held a hearing of the petition filed by the Pakistan government to appoint him as the military court.

"We feel that in order to ensure the effectiveness of the review and reconsideration of the conviction and sentence of Commander Jadhav, a reasonable opportunity ought to be extended to the latter and the Government of India to arrange legal representation and to file a petition."

"We, therefore, at this stage restrain ourselves from appointing a counsel on behalf of the government and will advise the Government of Pakistan to extend an opportunity to Jadhav and the Government of India for arranging legal representation in terms of Article 32(1)(c) of the constitution and in accordance with the applicable law the court order said. PTI Hassan Manto, Mr. Hamid Khan, Senior Advocates of the Supreme Court and former counsel to the Pakistan Bar Association, and Mr. Makhdoom Ali Khan, Senior Advocate Supreme Court and former Attorney General of Pakistan, as amici curiae in general and in the present case. The judgement of the International Court is effectively implemented," the court said in its order.

The Pakistan government in its petition has claimed that Jadhav refused to file a review petition or an application to reconsider the verdict against him in the military court.

"We feel that in order to ensure the effectiveness of the review and reconsideration of the conviction and sentence of Commander Jadhav, a reasonable opportunity ought to be extended to the latter and the Government of India to arrange legal representation and to file a petition."

UK suspends digital visa processing tool amid allegations of racism

London: The UK government on Tuesday said that it will be suspending the use of a digital tool to process visas amid a legal challenge that claimed it amounted to "racism" as the computer algorithm discriminated against applicants on the basis of nationality by design.

The Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants (JCWI) and digital rights group Foxglove, which had initiated the Judicial Review challenge against the system in the High Court in London in June, celebrated the suspension of the artificial intelligence (AI) based decision-making system, which will take effect from Friday.

"We have been reviewing how the visa application streaming tool operates and will be redesigning our processes to make them even more secure and robust," a UK Home Office spokesperson said.

"We do not accept the allegations Joint Council for the Welfare of Immigrants made in their Judicial Review claim because it lacks evidence and is still ongoing it would not be appropriate for the department to comment any further," the spokesperson said.

From Friday, the current Streaming Tool will no longer be used, with a redesign expected to be in place in a few months' time by autumn.

In the interim period, the Home Office said the streaming or sifting of the "overwhelming majority" of visa applications will be done by reference to person-centric attributes, such as evidence of previous travel, and nationality will not be taken into account.

The Streaming Tool is said to have used a traffic-light system to assess every country's visa application to the UK since 2015. PTI

Netanyahu warns Hezbollah after Israeli strike in Syria

Jerusalem: Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on Tuesday warned the Lebanese militant Hezbollah group and others after Israeli forces said they thwarted an infiltration attempt from Syria by suspected militants.

The Israeli military announced late Monday that it had struck targets in Syria after the militants tried to plant explosives in the Israeli-controlled Golan Heights.

Israel struck the four suspects, who were believed to have been killed. Netanyahu, who toured a military base on Tuesday, said Israel would not hesitate to take further action.

"We hit a cell and now we hit the dispatchers. We will do what is necessary in order to defend ourselves. I suggest to all of them, including Hezbollah, to consider this," he said.

The incident came amid heightened tension on Israel's northern frontier following a recent Israeli airstrike that killed a Hezbollah fighter in Syria and anticipation that the militant Lebanese group would retaliate.

Following the airstrike, the Israeli-controlled Golan Heights was hit by explosives fired from Syria and Israel responded by attacking Syrian military positions and beefing up its forces in the area.

Last week, Israel also said it thwarted an infiltration attempt from Lebanon by Hezbollah militants, setting off one of the heaviest exchanges of fire along the volatile Israel-Lebanon frontier since 2006 war between the bitter enemies. AP

Man beaten with bats over face mask dispute in Paris suburb

AP ■ PARIS

A resident of a Paris suburb was beaten with baseball bats because he asked a fellow laundromat patron to wear a face mask - a requirement in all indoor public places in France to fight resurgent coronavirus infections.

Surveillance video of the attack published Tuesday by Le Parisien newspaper shows two people with bats and two others attacking a masked man inside the laundry facility then leaving him face down on the floor.

The victim, identified only as Augustin, told BFM television that he was beaten because he had asked one of the attackers to wear a face mask. He entered the laundromat in the town of Soisy-sous-Montmorency north of Paris.

The final dates for the Common Law Admission Test 2020 (CLAT) have been declared and will be conducted on August 22, 2020. The exam is an aptitude-based exam where the intent is to test the student's interest towards law and not their knowledge of law. A degree in law has got huge popularity since many decades, and the reason which makes it a favourable choice for students is primarily that the course is neutral to all the streams whether commerce or engineering. Further, it has huge scope in terms of career and respect in the society.

Keeping this intent in mind, the CLAT consortium has come up with a new pattern wherein they also plan to extensively test the student's reading and comprehending skills as they feel that these skills are imperative for the budding law aspirants. Hence, the approach that was best suited for the old pattern of CLAT, may not be the same for CLAT 2020.

CLAT comprises five sections, namely English Language, Current Affairs, including General Knowledge, Legal Reasoning, Logical Reasoning and Quantitative Techniques, each section requiring a different approach. However, one thing that stays uniform throughout the five sections is your Reading and Comprehension skills.

Section wise strategy

It is recommended that one should develop a reading habit. Read editorials and newspapers daily and focus more on burning Socio Legal issues among other things from reputed media houses. If that is something you have not been doing already, it is recommended to create a depository of the important editorial articles from the last one year and go through them thoroughly. It will definitely help you at this stage.

There'll be a lot of passages this year, (up to 450 words each) so one must develop a habit of sitting, reading and solving problems for more than 2 hours at a stretch. Go through the sample papers and analyse the type of questions that are asked in these exams. Also don't forget to go through the previous year papers. Though there is a new pattern this year, the previous years question papers will help you to understand the basic concepts and the approach to such an exam. This has also been reiterated by the CLAT consortium in their notifications/tweets.

Current affairs: As per the CLAT website, the passages will be derived from news, journalistic sources and other non-fiction writing. The questions may include an examination of legal information or knowledge discussed in or related to the passage,

TAKE THE LEGAL CAREER PATH

With only two weeks left for CLAT, it is time for students to pull up their socks. AMANDEEP RAJGOTRA tells students how to prepare for the new pattern and ace the exam but would not require any additional knowledge of the law beyond the passage. To understand the topics and kinds of questions important for the exams, one should go through the previous year papers. Identify the topics on which questions are asked. Read editorials/opinions on burning socio-legal news that took place between May 2019 to present.

■ English language: Practise reading comprehensions on a daily basis and make sure you are used to solving reading comprehension questions at a stretch because you'll have to do the same while appearing for the exam. Practise solving Reading Comprehension on screen to replicate the experience that you'll face in the exam.

■ Quantitative techniques: As per the official website, "Quantitative Techniques section of the UG-CLAT 2020 will include short sets of facts or propositions, graphs, or other textual, pictorial or diagrammatic representations of numerical information, followed by a series of questions." The best way to solve this section is through practise. The more

Practise reading comprehensions on a daily basis and make sure you are used to solving reading comprehension questions at a stretch because you'll have to do the same while appearing for the exam. Practise solving Reading Comprehension on screen to replicate the experience that you'll face in the exam you practice, the better you'll get.

■ Logical reasoning: One should expect Verbal Reasoning questions dominating the section. As per the official website there'll be multiple short paragraphs based on which questions would be asked. If you are good at critical reasoning, you'll have a great advantage.

■ Legal reasoning: The passages may relate to fact situations or scenarios involving legal matters, public policy questions or moral philosophical enquiries. One will benefit from a general awareness of contemporary legal and moral issues to better apply general principles or propositions to the given fact scenarios. The best part is that the preparation for Current Affairs and Legal Reasoning go hand in hand. Read about the socio legal issues prevalent in the country. One should also expect Principle Fact based questions in their CLAT 2020.

It is clearly mentioned on the official website that through the paragraph, one would have to identify and infer the rules and principles set out in the passage and apply such rules and principles to various fact situations. So, make sure you are conceptually clear when it comes to Torts, Contract, Criminal Law or The Indian Constitution.

The ideal way to practice questions and assess your preparation is through the help of Mock Tests. Prepare for all these sections and attempt as many mocks as possible. One should analyse their mocks post their attempt.

One must identify the grey areas as soon as possible. Identify your strong and weak subjects. Don't categorise a subject as your strong or weak based on how much you enjoy studying it, but on the basis of how much you score in them. The sample size should be good to determine this and should not be based on just a mock or two.

Once identified, allocate more time to your weak areas without totally avoiding your strong sections. Just follow the above mentioned and stay positive. All the best!

A different approach to education

In these unprecedented time, technology and digitisation will play an enormous role in making learning for the differently-abled more accessible and inclusive, says PRASHANT AGARWAL

While the world has been speaking of the sudden break and the challenges that COVID-19 has put forth for the world, one can sense a major impact of this on the education and skilling sector which had most of its functionalities congregating with face-to-face interactions. Touching is believing, what was once a necessity has slowly shifted to strictly being driven by digitisation in the education sector.

Career choices and opportunities are now integrated through online platforms where one such example is virtual trainings and internships which are being implemented by leading companies across the globe. However, while many institutions and organisations have developed and integrated technology in their regular functionalities, what do we see as a scope for the differently abled and how do they fit the bill in these challenging times within the mainstream career opportunities.

Before COVID-19 where the focus to impart education for the differently abled was through art and therapy, a lot has changed since then. There has been a shift where the differently abled were first considered to be restricted with the jobs they were recruited in and the career opportunities were also limited. However, with technology in place and post COVID-19 massive changes in the entire foundation of functionality newer opportunities have been cropping up for the differently abled to explore.

Adaptive technologies that would help the differently abled in various ways have been implemented by multiple organisations such as On-screen boards, text-to-speech synthesizers, magnification applications, screen readers, electronic pointing devices, alternative keyboards, computers with visual output and voice output and many more. The Government has also laid various training and skilling programs exploring Digital Literacy for the differently abled under the PMKVY Scheme by introducing Skill Council for Persons with Disabilities (SCPWD). The organisation was inception with a National Vision of skilling Persons with Disability and offering them meaningful industry relevant skill based training.

EdTech applications: Content accessibility plays an important role in imparting knowledge and skilling the differently abled. Content that is easily accessible through applications that are developed to be user friendly have proven to be great sources of education. Institutions both in urban and rural areas can utilise the bandwidth connectivity and impart skill trainings through online platforms and content that can be easily delivered through videos, online lectures and various applications.

E-libraries: While most of the content that is available online curriculum that is up-to-date as per industry standards is a must. E-libraries and their access with added text to speech technology can help the differently abled students to access their curriculum from anywhere.

Knowledge mobility: While many companies have been adopting ways through which they can contribute to the social cause of imparting education to the differently abled, it is suggested that they must offer affordable smartphones to students studying in rural areas. This would accelerate affordable smartphone ownership, and strengthening supply of contextualised and engaging content directly to students.

In these unprecedented times, technology and digitisation will play an enormous role in making learning for the differently abled more accessible and inclusive. However, technology can alone not achieve these aspects unless there is a positive participation and communication across all stakeholders to equally contribute for making learning more accessible and inclusive. The National Education Policy also suggested that the new school curriculum should involve vocational and technical education from class VI.

CHANGE IS CONSTANT

Organisations that will embrace the digital transformation quickly and more comprehensively are more likely to survive as compared to those who are resistant, says DR NARENDRA SHYAMSUKHA

The COVID-19 pandemic has turned out to be the most significant disruptive event witnessed by this generation. From mainstreaming remote working, cutting global travel to a comprehensive digital shift, the outbreak has changed the way businesses are conducted. This transformational effect is not momentary; it is significant and is here to stay.

One of the most notable elements of this transformation is the way organisations have been forced to embrace digital marketing to be able to survive the crisis. As traditional marketing strategies stand curtailed due to the pandemic, businesses have moved quickly to embrace digital marketing and transform the way they attract and engage customers and clients.

As people stay indoors, malls and roads stand deserted there has been a shift to a space where businesses and customers interact less physically and more through the online route. Digital services providers will tell you how there has been a surge in organisations seeking to create new websites or update existing ones, creating elaborate social media campaigns and launching new e-commerce channels. Truth be told, organisations that embrace this transformation quickly and more comprehensively are the ones that are more likely to survive as compared to those who are resistant to change.

Here are some more changing phases of entrepreneurship that are adjusting to the new normal:

The age of webinars: As live conferences and face to face engagement activities take a backseat, organisations are working out new ways to engage with customers. Webinars have emerged as a very popular way of achieving digital thought leadership and getting quality leads. At the same time, customer engagement is also taking place through webinars. There is a sea of webinars everywhere spreading the message. Even when the crisis ebbs, people are likely to continue to conduct a part of their thought-leadership events through webinars as more and more people realise that they serve the same purpose at a fraction of the cost. Webinars that have now filled the gap of traditional conferences are likely to become a mainstream marketing strategy in the new normal.

Increased usage of data analytics: In a digital age, data analytics has always been a valuable proposition. However, as organisations increase their digital presence, the importance of creating useful databases has only increased. With more people spending longer time on social media, their chances of seeing ads on such platforms or coming in touch with content marketing blogs are growing. This is why data analytics need to create valuable databases, analyse them and use this information intelligently to reach out to the target audience. Tracking pattern of consumer behavior, tracking online traffic patterns, analysing consumer behaviour and getting a break up of which products are enticing what type of customers are essential elements of data analytics that organisations need to use more to boost their online sales.

Content is the king: Businesses must focus on expanding social media presence by creating intelligent and attractive content. With the shift from outbound marketing to inbound marketing, it becomes essential to engage consumers in ways that they might find interesting. However, it is important to understand that content distributed on social media should not be totally promotional in nature as it kills consumer interest. Your content must be knowledge and awareness-based. It must engage consumers emotionally rather than blatantly promoting your product.

The demand for data science experts continues to grow and employers are investing time and money in them. Becoming one is worth the effort opening lucrative options, says PANKAJ MUTHE

An enormous explosion of data has been generated and retained by modern businesses across the globe. With every action that is being taken, whether data is being created, shared or discarded, a massive pile of information is getting generated and accumulated every second of the day.

More and more enterprises are tapping the benefits of big data and unlocking the potential for their business. They are eagerly building their data capabilities to capture the opportunity that looms just over the horizon.

The COVID-19 outbreak is further driving an intelligent use of data that can help businesses find better solutions across sectors be it healthcare, logistics, or banking — to fight the on-going pandemic. With this, the value of the data scientist will increase as they will be the ones turning this dormant data into meaningful insights.

SCOPE Data scientists can also be referred to as modern-day superheroes, but most are still unaware of their value in an organisation. In one of the surveys last year, it was revealed that around 97,000 data analytics job posts are unoccupied in India due to a lack of skilled professionals.

The use of data analytics in almost every industry has contributed to a sharp increase of 45 per cent in the total jobs related to data science. Selecting data science as a career option has a lot of scope and will remain so in the near future.

Besides retail, data science has made extensive impacts on other fields like healthcare as well. Take the case where new drugs are discovered constantly and there is an opportunity to ensure better care for patients too. All these are made possible by churning out huge volumes of data through electronic medical records, billing, clinical systems, data from wearables and drawing actionable insights from aggregated patients' data.

Another field that can truly benefit from data science is education. With technology like smartphones and laptops becoming an integral part of the education system, data science can help create better opportunities to help students learn and enhance their knowledge in a constructive manner.

Banking and finance is another sector that needs data science to improve their financial products and make themselves relevant to more customers. The industry leverages data science applications

With technology becoming an integral part of the education system, data science can help create better opportunities to help students learn and enhance their knowledge in a constructive manner to generate information about risk modeling, fraud detection, customer life-time value, customer retention and real-time predictive analysis, among other things.

Since data science is helping meet the trials and tribulations of the increasing demand and sustainable future, the opportunities for data scientists to come up with a wide range of solutions for meeting the challenges across multiple sectors.

SKILLS & ROLE

There are different roles for a Data Scientist this includes Data Researcher, Data Developers, Business Analyst, BI Analyst, System Administrator, Data Modeler and Data Architect. To qualify for these roles, the skills and education required are largely universal.

A master's degree in computer studies, economics, finance, business studies, statistics, and mathematics is certainly an advantage. However, new-age employers are eager to integrate such requirements with relevant skills and real-world experience.

So, those who are considering a career as data science must be proficient in excel and have a good practical knowledge of statistics, mathematics, data mining, correlation and predictive analysis. They should also have basic knowledge of scripting languages like SQL, Python, Java, R and the confidence of working with BI tools. However, if a data scientist is familiar with other the database systems like MySQL and Hive, it can be an additional advantage.

REMUNERATION

A data scientist role is definitely lucrative in India. Glassdoor has listed the average data scientist salary between ₹10 lakh to ₹20 lakh annually.

In India, since the demand for data science expertise continues to grow and employers are investing significant time and money in data scientists, becoming one is worth every effort one makes. That said, the most important thing will be to start focusing on acquiring the right skillsets and taking into consideration the specifics of the data science landscape in India.

'Innovations can help businesses'

Technology is a vast area and if used efficiently it can be lucrative and help in achieving the set business goals, says SANJEEV JAIN

In today's time, technology is an essential life hack for every business, big or small. Technology has become an integral part of every business and the evolution of technology significantly impacts every sector. It makes life easier and faster; the daily tasks can be accomplished in a lesser time. One of the greatest opportunities for all entrepreneurs, innovators, start-up owners, IT sectors professionals, is digital transformation. It helps in using technology to transform every aspect of your business, and this further helps in the growth of the business. Technology is a vast area and if used efficiently, it can be lucrative and help in achieving the set business goals. Here is a compilation of various aspects of a business where technology plays a vital role.

Sanjeev Jain
Founder-MD, Technology Never Sleeps
Networking Solutions Pvt Ltd

Moderates Time: One of the most important benefits of using technology is that it can reduce the time consumption for a specific task. When used efficiently, technology can simplify the complicated, abundant, and difficult work and organise the outcome effectively. In order to run smooth business operations technology plays a vital role, it can reduce the burden of an employee by contributing to petty things like setting reminders or calculations etc. This not only saves time but frees people to spend time on more creative aspects of business like strategy, product development, collaboration, marketing and sales.

Income and Turnover: Technology has the ability to build and sustain engagement for any brand which can help in business growth by attracting the right customer base. It helps in reaching millions of people within a few seconds something that was never possible before. Technology can assist in multiplying the growth and turnover of the business by creating a platform through which businesses can help customers with their problems. It helps in creating new opportunities by allowing businesses to use unique ideas to add value and set a benchmark in the competitive market.

Output: With the help of technology, productivity surges and helps in getting good outcomes for business. Technology increases the productivity of a business, no matter the size. Technology helps in getting more work done without increasing manpower providing scalability. Also, technology is helpful in generating more queries for any business and thereby helping business generate more revenue.

Efficiency: Technology can be relied upon to complete the work which otherwise requires accuracy. It eases various tasks like manufacturing, marketing and finance and helps in preventing errors. Important data/information can be stored and be password protected, this information can have ease of remote access.

Insights: Technology helps in creating precise and significant insights for business. It helps in storing and calculating large amount of data which collates all the information in one place. Technology also helps people to upgrade their skills and knowledge which can be used to enhance their performance at work. It helps in gathering important insights which add value to the business.

Today's age is one of cut-throat competition and challenges lurking around every corner. In such a demanding environment, the old-school model of rote-learning that results in negligible ability to implement knowledge is widely becoming inadequate to prepare students for a 21st-century world of complex enigmas.

When it comes to creating a generation that is adaptive, innovative and future-ready, education is the primary driver. Technology is disrupting and transforming both professional and personal landscape at an unprecedented pace. Herein, the responsibility of equipping students with the tools to deal with these developments lands on the shoulders of instructors across the educational paradigm.

Contrary to the conventional methods of teaching, project-based learning (PBL) is a collaborative and application-driven approach. It uses real-world situations as vehicles to facilitate enhanced learning and a spirit of inquiry, while also integrating academic subjects across the curriculum.

These projects are different from the regular, short-term projects that are undertaken after a course ends, for instance, as a tool to revise the course components. On the contrary, these projects drive the primary framework of curriculum and course instruction.

Within PBL, as this approach is often referred to, students can further use any medium viable for their research - field trips, presentations, exploring various materials, creating 3D models, experiments, and many more.

Students engage in such a project for an extended period, depending on their coursework - ranging up to an entire semester - working on finding innovative solutions to a complex question around a real-world problem. Ultimately, they demonstrate the skill learning through a report, a presentation or an actual product at the end of the project cycle.

Not only does this model inculcate deep knowledge about the subject in the students, but it also unleashes a hoard of soft skills like communication, team-building, collaboration and creativity in them.

There have been numerous researches over the years on the impact of project-based learning approach on the learning outcomes, students' and teachers' motivation, skill-building and general attitude towards learning (Strobel & van Barnevel, 2009).

The PBL encourages students to become independent workers, critical thinkers and problem-solvers. It urges students to form questions of their own, developing a sense of ownership of their learning process and outcome. Teachers, in this ecosystem, function as facilitators rather than instructors, moving away from the overworked chalk and talk pedagogy.

Connecting real-world situations to academics is perhaps one of the biggest benefits of project-based learning, pushing students to learn from trial and error and succeed based on their interpretations and logical deductions. This equips them for the professional world since these techniques are what will eventually be used by them at their workplaces.

Also, since such projects are often large and complex, students are forced to work in groups, encouraging even the most silent of the lot to speak and work collectively with conflicting personalities to find mutual accord, learning how to defuse tensions in a diverse team. This not only has a high impact on their interpersonal skills, but it also introduces them to specialisation, optimal allocation of resources and delegation, concepts prominent in the material world.

The market need for skilled workers necessitated the shift from classical models of blackboard teaching, and project-based learning does just that - simulating real-world problems to prepare students for progress by developing a balanced and diverse approach, as an individual as well as a team member. Project-based learning effectively bridges the gap between theoretical and practical education.

STUDY ABROAD

'Commitment to a holistic learning approach'

Studying in France offers a good return on investment for higher education making it the best destination, says ASHLEY FERNANDES

France plays an important and pivotal role in the European construct. Brexit has not impacted France, in fact in many ways it has helped France emerge as a coveted destination. Education is no exception. The return on investment on French higher education is one of the best in the world. As for COVID-19, although the full impact is yet to be assessed, it seems it has helped higher education transition to a more digitised proposition.

From this perspective, emlyon business school has been pioneering globalisation, digitalisation and hybrid education. COVID-19 is a black swan disruptive type of event that can crystallise innovation and help in the emergence of a new value model for the benefit of students. If you add to this, the incredible French cultural scene and art de vivre, you have the je ne sais quoi that makes France in general and Lyon in particular one of the best destinations to consider today.

At emlyon business school, we were extremely swift in our response to the coronavirus pandemic, and quickly set up a crisis centre to help students, teachers, staff and other stakeholders. In the midst of the crisis, we went beyond the usual scope and released an emergency fund of 200,000 Euro (the biggest emergency fund released by a French B-School) in support of our students. We also increased the response of the wellness centre we had launched years back as part of our commitment to a holistic approach (financial, emotional, intellectual, social) and well-being of our community.

The French Ambassador has also recently emphasised the overall strong Indo-French bilateral cooperation and the French attractiveness in the fields of research and higher education. A significant testimony to this strengthening relationship is the 50 per cent increase in scholarships for the academic year which translates to ₹10 crore (₹1.3 million).

IN BRIEF

PARENTS INVOLVEMENT IN ACADEMICS HELPFUL

Indian parents and students are mutually helping each other with daily chores and academics during the lockdown, as revealed by the latest Brainly survey. And, the students over Brainly seem to be loving it. The responses received from 2,138 participants show exciting trends. To begin with, a whopping 87.5% of Brainly users say they help their parents in daily chores during the lockdown. Besides, 85.1% of students have learned new skills from their parents while at home. Not having to commute to school for education is definitely giving ample time to students to partake in other activities. It is helping them learn new skills as well. The contribution of online learning platforms in enabling learning from home cannot be ignored in achieving this. The other aspect to it is that with additional time in hand, now almost 82.3% of students spend extra time with their parents.

Indian parents are increasingly getting involved in the academics of their children. 85.2% of Brainly users find their parent's involvement in their learning as helpful. Approximately three-fourth of Brainly users at 74.1% admitted enjoying learning from home with the help of their parents.

ONLINE LEARNING MODULES FOR LITTLE LEARNERS

The KinderPass is launching multiple online learning modules for kids aged between three-six years old. With an objective to make the parents understand how early stage learning lays the foundation for later learning, it has come up with its first online learning programme - KinderRead - a carefully arranged programme in five levels. It is a methodology for teaching young children to read and spell words and develop the preschoolers into confident readers using a play-based synthetic phonics approach. Sumedha Khochu, co-founder, KinderPass said: "The recently launched National Education Policy 2020 regarding early child care and education reinforces that young brains learn through play and activity. Taking cue from these recommendations, the online learning modules launched at KinderPass are flexible, multi-faceted, multi-level, play-based and activity-based."

SMART INDIA HACKATHON 2020

The Smart India Hackathon (SIH) is an initiative that provides students a platform to solve some of the pressing problems we face in our daily lives. It is conducted every year since 2017 in two formats - SIH Software and SIH Hardware Editions. This year, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the SIH software edition is being conducted online. For this purpose, SP Mandal's principal LN Weingar Institute of Management Development and Research (WeSchool) has been selected as one of the nodal centres. Total 35 teams having 210 participants will compete against seven problem statements from three organisations - CDK Global, MathWorks and MiXOR. Each problem statement has a winning amount of ₹1 lakh. WeSchool will present We-Inspiration awards each of prize money ₹ 25,000 to two teams.

PAK SET FOR ENGLISH TEST

We're very well prepared: Azhar

IN ANS ■ MANCHESTER

England will be wary of the unpredictable Pakistan side when the two teams clash in the first Test of the three-match series at the Old Trafford beginning Wednesday.

This will be the visitors' first appearance in an international match since coronavirus stoppage while for the hosts, they will look to bring their form and confidence over from the recently-concluded three-Test series against West Indies.

In the World Test Championship (WTC) points table, England moved up to third position following a 2-1 series win over Jason Holder's troops. The hosts have a chance to leapfrog Australia to second place, while Pakistan can overtake New Zealand to fourth position.

For this series, England have named the same squad that clinched them the Wisden Trophy and it will once be interesting to see what will be their bowling combination for the first Test.

A lot has been said about veteran fast-bowlers Stuart Broad and James Anderson playing together. They started just one of three matches in the last series together and showed in the final Test why they remain England's best bet in home conditions.

"Jimmy and Broad go together like Morecambe and Wise or Bonnie and Clyde," former England spinner Graeme Swann was quoted as saying by mirror.co.uk.

"They have formed one of the most successful bowling duos would you want to chuck it out before its sell-by date?" can understand the attraction of 90mph pace, and both Jofra and Woody are huge assets. But I'm sorry, you don't discard blokes with 500 Test wickets lightly," he added.

Not to forget talismanic all-rounder Ben Stokes, who recently displaced West Indies captain Jason Holder from the top of the ICC all-rounders' list. He will once again have a huge say in the outcome of the series.

As for the visitors, they lack proper match practice going into the first Test but head coach Misbah-ul-Haq has stated players have done well to acclimatise themselves with the tough English conditions.

"When you play after a long gap there is bound to be some sort of nervousness but that is natural. As soon as the players step on the field, it will go away," Misbah said. "The players are fresh and anxiously waiting for the series to begin."

Pakistan will also be pinning their hopes on young fast-bowling duo Shaheen Afridi and Naseem Shah to shine in the bowler-friendly by conditions of England. Not to forget they could unleash spinners at the Old Trafford.

"We will keep an eye on the pitch and the weather conditions, today and tomorrow, before taking a decision on whether to play two spinners or not," Misbah said. "It is a possibility and an encouraging sign for us."

"The pitch and weather conditions might be favouring us at the moment but you still have to execute your plans properly to win," he added.

Pakistan will also take confidence from the fact that they have done well in the last two Test series in the England. The 2018 series ended in a 1-1 draw while the 2016 series also ended with both teams sharing spoils after the conclusion of four-Test series (2-2).

Pakistan Test captain Azhar Ali said that the players are raring to go after their long break enforced by the coronavirus pandemic. Pakistan take on England in a three-match Test-series starting on Wednesday. This will be followed by a three-match T20I series and the team has been in the country since late June.

"All players are excited to play the series, COVID-19 is there and for the moment we have to carry on with it," Azhar told reporters on the eve of the first Test which will be played at Old Trafford.

"We are lucky that we will be playing cricket which is what we love the most. A lot of talk is going on about cricket happening in these tough times but I feel that the best thing is that we are wanted to play and we are now getting to that. Credit to ECB (England and Wales Cricket Board) and PCB (Pakistan Cricket Board) for arranging this series."

"We have prepared very well with whatever facilities we had with us and ensured that no player gets left behind and gets frustrated. We enjoyed the camp a lot."

"The 35-year-old admitted that the visitors' pace battery may be inexperienced but is confident of them performing well considering the talent that they have. "Our fast bowling attack is inexperienced but you have seen their talent and how they have bowled in the last few series. I think of myself as very lucky as a captain that we get bowlers like these who can threaten any team in Test cricket. You can't buy experience, that comes with playing matches but there is a lot of capability there. "Our batting experience is better. There is Shariq Masood, Asad Shafiq and I have all played a lot. Babar Azam has gained a lot of experience now. As a team our combination is pretty good."

Dhoni is one of a kind: Rohit

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

India's prolific opener Rohit Sharma feels Mahendra Singh Dhoni is "one of a kind" playing down recent comparisons of his leadership style and composure with the two-time World Cup-winning former captain.

In a Super Over podcast, out-of-favour India batsman Suresh Raina called Rohit the "next MS Dhoni for the Indian cricket team".

Rohit, who is the vice-captain of India's limited overs teams and also leads Mumbai Indians in the IPL, reacted to his leadership style being likened to Dhoni. "Yes, I heard about that comment from Suresh Raina," Rohit said in a twitter video he posted in reply to a fan question.

"MS Dhoni is one of a kind and nobody can be like him and I believe comparisons should not be made like that, every individual is different and has his strengths and weaknesses."

Raina is impressed with Rohit's record of leading Mumbai Indians to a record four IPL title triumphs, one more than Dhoni at Chennai Super Kings.

Rohit has also led India to title wins at the Nidahas Trophy (T20I format) in Sri Lanka and the Asia Cup (50 overs) in 2018 while standing in for Virat Kohli.

Overall, he has led India in 10 ODIs and 19 T20Is, winning eight and 15 of them respectively.

"I have seen him, he is calm, he likes to listen...I have played under him when we won the Asia Cup in Bangladesh," Raina had said.

"MS Dhoni was brilliant. He (Rohit) has won more (IPL) trophies than MS, but they both are very similar. Both of them, as captains, like to listen."

"When you captain is listening, you can solve a lot of problems, you can solve the mental aspects of the players. So in my book, they both are wonderful,"

Agarwal must have learnt a lot from NZ tour'

IN ANS ■ NEW DELHI

Former Indian pacer Ashish Nehra feels opening batsman Mayank Agarwal has shown a lot of promise in the initial days of his international career and will only get better and score a lot of runs in the days to come.

Agarwal has so far played 11 Tests for India in which he has scored 974 runs, including three hundreds and four half-centuries.

"He (Agarwal) has done really well in domestic games and India-A and that's how he got his chance. He is not somebody who has been standing in for Virat Kohli. The 29-year-old however wasn't able to perform to his potential on the New Zealand tour. In the two-Test series which India lost 0-2, he could manage scores of 34, 58, 7 and 3.

However, Nehra said New Zealand is the "most difficult" place to bat in the world and that's why after playing there, Agarwal would have gathered a lot of experience."

"It takes time and New Zealand is not an easy place. With my experience, for batters, the most difficult place on this planet when it comes to cricket-playing nations is New Zealand. New Zealand has always been tough, so Mayank Agarwal, I am sure has learnt a lot from the New Zealand tour," said the former left-arm pacer.

Starc does not regret missing IPL

PTI ■ MELBOURNE

Left-arm Australian pacer Mitchell Starc doesn't regret giving the IPL a miss this year, saying he is comfortable training for the upcoming summer season.

Starc had pulled out of the lucrative T20 event to focus on the T20 World Cup in Australia which was postponed last month due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

"I know hindsight is a wonderful thing and now the IPL is on at a different time but no, I wouldn't change it," the 30-year-old, who played for Royal Challengers Bangalore for two years, was quoted as saying by Cricket.Com.Au.

"I'm happy to spend that time when the blokes are at the IPL in September I'll be getting ready for a summer."

"The IPL will be around next year and if I feel the urge or people want me around I'll definitely consider it, but as of this year, I'm very comfortable with the decisions I've made."

Starc was bought by Kolkata Knight Riders in the 2018 IPL auction but was ruled out of the season due to an injury and was eventually released in November.

The left-arm pacer is currently training with his NSW state teammates and waiting for a confirmation for Australia's white-ball tour of the UK.

"It's still very much up in the air which is the way of the world at the moment. It's changing day by day. We're having weekly meetings about the challenges of the tour and where this all sits. We've got another one on Thursday to see if there's any progress on that," he said.

"All the players are preparing to play and planning to go. It's now up to Cricket Australia and the government on both sides as to whether we jump on that plane. In terms of the cricket, we're just ready for the series."

Australia's tour of England comprising three T20s and as many ODIs is scheduled to begin on September 4, pending clearance.

Aus-WI postpone T20 series

PTI ■ MELBOURNE

Cricket Australia said it has put on hold a three-game T20I series against the West Indies which was scheduled to be held in Melbourne.

Matches of the T20I series were slated to be held in Townsville, Cairns and the Gold Coast on October 4, 6 and 9 respectively.

Cricket Australia said in a tweet.

"Serving as warm-ups for the ICC T20 World Cup, the series will now coincide with the rescheduled T20 World Cup in Australia in either 2021 or 2022."

Top players from both the countries will now take part in the rescheduled 13th IPL, which will be held in the UAE from September 19 to November 10.

Australia's ODI series against Zimbabwe, which was scheduled to begin on Sunday, has already been postponed.

Australia's next assignment is a limited-overs tour of England in early September but it remains to be seen if it will be held.

Last week, South Africa indefinitely postponed their tour of West Indies in September as their players will be busy with the IPL.

West Indies were hoping to host South Africa for either two Tests or 5 T20Is in September.

Tennis resumes with no handshakes

AP ■ PALERMO

Tour-level tennis resumed after a five-month enforced break on Monday, and players at the Palermo Ladies Open hoped to handle their own towels and not shake hands of opponents.

The strict rules because of the coronavirus included no showers on site, and no autographs or photos with fans. Players in the singles main draw came from 16 European countries and Argentina.

A limited number of fans were allowed into the 1,500-seat stadium court and had to follow social distancing measures.

They watched sixth-seeded Donna Vekic of Croatia beat Arantxa Rus of the Netherlands 6-1, 6-2 in windy conditions in the first official match - for men or women - since early March.

"I'm definitely happy I didn't forget how to play tennis, how to play matches, how to win," Vekic said in a video conference.

"It's a huge relief so I'm really happy right now. It was definitely a bit strange. I was really nervous yesterday, even more today, but after the first few games I just kind of relaxed and I was focused."

Vekic sealed a place in the second round on her second match point, breaking for the sixth time in the match when Rus hit a forehand wide.

Vekic will next face Italian teenager Elisabetta Cocciaretto, who beat Polona Herczeg of Slovenia 7-6 (1), 6-3 for her first victory over a player ranked in the top 50.

But beyond this week Vekic has little idea if her place could change as the pandemic continues to affect events worldwide.

Vekic is hoping to compete in the U.S. Open, where she reached the quarterfinals last year, and the French Open as well, as Rome.

"Things are changing every week so I think we just have to take it week by week and try to adapt as best as we can, and hope to play as much as we can," Vekic said.

"The uncertainty gives everyone a lot of anxiety." The U.S. Open is scheduled to begin Aug. 31, and the French Open from Sept. 27.

Laura Siegemund of Germany also eased through in straight sets, beating Irina-Camelia Begu of Romania 6-3, 6-4.

Siegemund next faces either fourth-seeded Anett Kontaveit or Patricia Maria Tig.

It was harder for Sara Errani, the only previous champion in the draw. The 2012 winner took nearly three hours to secure a 7-5, 1-6, 6-4 success over Sorana Cirstea of Romania.

The Italian next faces Kristyna Pliskova or third-seeded Maria Sakkar.

A third Italian is also through to the second round after Jasmine Paolini rallied from a set and a break down to beat Daria Kasatkina of Russia 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

In other results: eighth-seeded Ekaterina Alexandrova also recovered from a set down to beat Daria Kasatkina of Russia 5-7, 6-0, 6-1, and seventh-seeded Dayana Yastremska triumphed 6-3, 6-4 over Sara Sorribes Tormo.

Casillas ends his playing days

AP ■ MADRID

Former Spain and Real Madrid goalkeeper Iker Casillas officially announced the end of his playing days on Tuesday, more than a year after his last match.

The 39-year-old Casillas was with Portuguese club Porto but hadn't played competitively since a heart attack in May last year.

"What is important is the path you travel and the people who accompany you, not the destination to which it takes you," Casillas said on Twitter.

"With hard work, you will always arrive where you want. I can say, without a doubt, that it has been the path and the destination that I've always dreamed about." Casillas said announcing his retirement was one of the "hardest" and "most difficult" days of his career.

His contract with Porto ended after the team defeated Benfica last weekend to win the Portuguese Cup. He didn't play but celebrated with his teammates and lifted the trophy.

Casillas joined Porto in 2015 after helping Real Madrid win five Spanish league titles and three Champions League trophies. He also helped Spain win one World Cup and two European Championships.

Real Madrid called Casillas "one of the biggest legends of our club and of world football" and "the best goalkeeper in the history of Real Madrid and Spanish football."

"Today one of the most important footballers in our 118 years of history calls it a day as a professional player, a player we love and admire, a goalkeeper who has made the Real Madrid legacy bigger with his work and exemplary behavior both on and off the pitch," Real Madrid said in a statement.

"He was formed here and defended our shirt for 25 years, becoming one of our most emblematic captains of all time."
