In a landmark judgment, the Supreme Court on Monday allowed permanent commission to women officers in armed forces in India for the first time, following which the Delhi High Court ordered the Centre and the competent authority to promote women officers to the rank of lieutenant colonel, adding, "The best before/expiry date of the case will be Monday, June 13."

The Supreme Court order paved the way for women in the armed forces in India to become permanent officers with the rank of lieutenant colonel. The Court also directed the Centre to ensure that women officers are included in the pool of officers for promotion to the rank of colonel, including by the end of April, 2022.

The decision was hailed as a landmark in the struggle for gender equality in the armed forces, with women officers now able to serve in key leadership roles and participate in all aspects of military operations.

The Union Home Minister, P. K. Joseph, in his statement, said, "This is a historic day for women in the armed forces. The Supreme Court's order will provide a steep台阶 for women officers to scale the heights of military service." He added, "Women officers have proven their mettle and have been integral to the Indian armed forces for decades. Today's verdict is a testament to their hard work and determination."

Kumar chariappillai

When he was sworn in as Chief Minister of Tamil Nadu on February 12, 2017, even though it was his first term, he had been thrust into the role for a year. He was 61, had not been an MP and as the AIADMK was split, the party in power in the state had no clear leader. He was the leader of the opposition and had been granted bail in a sedition case, which he had been arrested under, and was facing another one.

The 60-year-old was elected as the leader of the AIADMK in March 2017. Following Jayaram Jayalalitha's death in December 2016, the AIADMK cadres looked to him for leadership. They were in a recession mode after the defeat of the AIADMK in the 2016 assembly elections. The AIADMK cadres had been demoralized and were not able to act in co-ordination with each other. Palaniswami was the only choice for the AIADMK cadres.

He was confident of winning the assembly elections and had said during the campaign that he would introduce laws to hand over 10 acres of land to every poor family in Tamil Nadu. As the AIADMK had promised a CM who would work for the people, he had cleared the assembly elections. The AIADMK had won the assembly elections and he had been sworn in as the CM.

Giving women offices to get command positions in the Army and genuine use of gender indicators as an argument.

The Supreme Court, women officers in the Army can now get command positions in the front line, which are full of risks and break the glass ceiling in the forces. In non-officer commands, it was a big setback that they had to fight for legally rather than being naturalized in the just order of things, concerning which they were part of the Army in 1992, a long 28 years ago. This move is a step in the right direction. In this sense, the ruling is more than significant.

For the first time in its history, the Indian Army has followed the precedent of military women officers in the Army. This move is a major development in the history of the Indian Army, and the women officers are now entitled to the same rights and privileges as their male counterparts. This is a significant step towards gender equality in the Indian Army.

If demand doesn't improve, firms might retain the tax cut bonanza instead of investing. It would've been better to put more cash in the pockets of individuals by giving ITI relief.

Taxpayer's Guide: How to Opt for ITI

1. Determine Eligibility: Check if your income falls under the ITI eligibility criteria. ITI is generally available to individuals with income below a certain threshold.
2. Apply for ITI: Visit the official website of your tax department or use online tax portals to apply for ITI. You may need to submit relevant documents as proof of income.
3. Claim Your ITI: Once approved, you can claim ITI by filing your tax returns. The ITI will be automatically deducted from your tax liability.
4. Optional: Consult a Tax Professional: If you're unsure about the eligibility or claiming process, consider consulting a tax professional.

Additional Notes

- Income Tax Slab: The income tax slab rates vary depending on your age, marital status, and specific income sources.
- Penalties for Delay: Late payment of taxes incurs interest and penalties, which can accumulate over time.
- Tax Avoidance: Always ensure that your tax planning complies with all tax laws and regulations.

Oncogenic cancers are one of the most preventable cancers. This was highlighted by Dr. Amita Naithani and Dr. Kranti Pawade, two gynecologists from Rajiv Gandhi Cancer Institute and Research Centre, Greater Noida, who have conducted a study on cervical cancer, the most common cancer among women worldwide. They found that the risk of cervical cancer is significantly reduced by vaccination. It is one of the most preventable cancers, and the benefits of vaccination are evident in reducing the incidence of cervical cancer. Vaccination is recommended for girls aged 11-12 years, and a total of three injections need to be given. The Cervical vaccine programme has been successfully implemented in India, with over 30 million girls vaccinated so far. This is a considerable achievement, and it shows that the benefits of vaccination can be replicated in other countries as well.

Regarding the treatment, Dr. Amita Naithani, Consultant - Gyna Oncology, and Dr. Kranti Pawade, Consultant - Gynecological Oncology, emphasized the importance of early detection and treatment. Cervical cancer is highly treatable if detected early, and the survival rate is significantly higher in cases of early detection. However, the treatment can be extensive and may involve surgery, chemotherapy, or radiation therapy, depending on the stage of the cancer and the patient's overall health.

The study highlights the importance of vaccination and early detection for preventing cervical cancer, and it underscores the need for continued efforts to increase vaccination coverage and improve early detection programs. The benefits of vaccination are not only limited to the vaccinated individuals but also to the community as a whole, as the infection is highly contagious and spreads rapidly. Therefore, it is essential to continue advocating for vaccination programs and early detection programs to reduce the incidence of cervical cancer and improve the outcomes for those affected.
Tokyo: An additional 99 people have tested positive for the coronavirus in the Tokyo region, the country's biggest cluster of infections, according to government data released on Monday. The rise comes amid a tightening of restrictions to curb the spread of the virus in the capital and surrounding areas, with schools and other institutions closing and a state of emergency declared in several prefectures.

Beijing: China confirmed on Monday that 105 people died of the coronavirus in January in the southern city of Guangzhou, raising the total number of deaths in the country to 366. Separately, China's National Health Commission said that the country had no new locally transmitted cases of COVID-19 as of Sunday morning, marking the first time since late January that no new infections were reported.

A fall in critical illness patients, an expert said, had allowed hospitals to develop a vaccine and treatment for the disease, a process that would typically take years. "We have to be honest, it's a miracle," said Dr. Li Zeng, who heads the Beijing Medical Administration Department.

A plane carrying hundreds of medical supplies landed at Tokyo's Haneda Airport on Monday to deliver equipment to aid workers in the capital's worst-affected areas. The equipment includes personal protective equipment and medical supplies.

Eighty per cent of the population in Wuhan, the city at the epicentre of the outbreak, has been tested for the virus and found to be negative, according to the Chinese National Health Commission. The commission said the number of new cases in the city had been on a steady decline since the outbreak began.

A 62-year-old woman, who had recently returned from China, tested positive for the virus in Japan on Monday, bringing the total number of cases in the country to 824. The woman, who lives in the city of Sapporo, had visited Wuhan earlier this month.

Coronavirus impact: No entry for Chinese wrestlers in Delhi

The Chinese national team has been denied entry into Delhi to participate in the Senior Asian Wrestling Championships, which are scheduled to take place in the national capital from November 13 to 17. The decision was taken in view of the ongoing coronavirus pandemic.

According to reports, the Chinese team was scheduled to arrive in Delhi on November 12, but the Indian Wrestling Federation (IWF) had to rethink its plans due to the virus.

Indian wrestlers will not face any Chinese competitors in the championship, which is scheduled to take place in Delhi's Jakhani Wrestling Stadium. The event will be held in the presence of a limited number of spectators, as per the guidelines issued by the Delhi government.

The IWF had earlier informed the Ministry of Sports that it had granted visas to the Chinese team, but the visas were later revoked due to the ongoing pandemic.
