Contaminated meat claims one life

Kerala: The second case of novel coronavirus has been confirmed in the state on Tuesday. The patient, a 28-year-old male, was admitted to Kollam Medical College Hospital on Monday, before being shifted to a government hospital in Nedumbassery.

The patient is stable and is being closely monitored, it said. There was no travel history, and he had not been in contact with any person infected with the virus.

The state government has set up an expert team, which is investigating the matter.

In an advisory, the Kochi Municipal Corporation warned residents of the danger posed by infected meat. It advised people to boil meat thoroughly before consumption.

The patient is being treated with antiviral drugs and other supportive measures. The health department has also intensified surveillance in the area.

While the Maharashtra government has confirmed 12 cases of coronavirus, the state health department said there has been no local transmission of the virus in the state. The only case of local transmission was reported in a returning Indian traveller from a virus-hit country.

In the United States, the number of cases has exceeded 1,000, with more than 40 deaths reported. In China, the number of cases has passed 80,000, with over 2,700 deaths.

Though the High Court said that the disposal of all pending cases in the Vigilance Commission's office in the JAC city could take some time, Neelam Shawney, the joint director of Vigilance, said the government had already done a lot in the wake of the Centre's orders.

Though Kurnool has been declared as the capital of AP, these two offices are yet to be set up. It is expected that the new office will be functional on the premises of Collector Md Imtiaz and District Magistrate.

Chief Minister YS Jagan Mohan Reddy, who had earlier inspected the flyover under construction, will inaugurate it on February 3, under the supervision of Union Minister for Road Transport, Highways and Shipping Nitin Gadkari.

Researcher work on battery sharing

The researcher is working on a technology that enables electric vehicles (EVs) to share their unused battery power with one another when required. The concept is based on a network of EVs, each equipped with a high-capacity battery, that can communicate and coordinate with each other to share their unused power.

The researcher has implemented a prototype of this technology in a laboratory setting, demonstrating its feasibility and potential for real-world applications. The technology has the potential to significantly reduce the energy consumption of EVs and improve their overall performance.

The researcher continues to refine the technology and collaborate with industry partners to bring it to market, aiming to make electric vehicles more accessible and sustainable for a broader audience.

The researcher's work on battery sharing holds great promise for the future of electric vehicles, potentially revolutionizing the way we think about mobility and energy consumption.
The FM has not acknowledged these two challenges

The Indian economy is demand-constrained and investment-starved. The FM has not acknowledged these two challenges. Consequently, she has proposed no measures or adjustments to these two challenges. Instead, she has moved the goalposts. The economy will not recover until the FM acknowledges these two challenges.

New Zealand stand-in skipper Rohit Sharma’s hole deliveries during death overs have been the most telling for India in the T20 series. It was a fairy tale of a match, a complete domination by India over New Zealand. India’s pacers, led by Jasprit Bumrah, shared seven wickets and it was a complete performance by the team. The bowlers did all they could with left-arm spinners and they bowled well.
