New Delhi: The Union Cabinet today approved the setting up of a trust for the construction of a Ram temple at Ayodhya in Uttar Pradesh. Prime Minister Narendra Modi today launched a trust that will oversee the construction of the Ram temple in Ayodhya. Indian National Congress leader Rahul Gandhi termed the announcement as a ‘political face-saver’.

The trust will be known as the Ayodhya Ram temple trust and will be chaired by the Prime Minister. The proposal was approved in principle by the cabinet earlier last week. However, the details like the constitution, funds and the manner of selection of the members were to be decided by the trust. The first decisions of the trust will be announced by October 30.

The trust’s decisions will be subject to the approval of the Union cabinet, a senior government official said. In light of the court’s order, the Prime Minister had announced on June 5 that the government would set up a Ram temple trust with a view to ensuring that the construction of the Ram temple in Ayodhya happens in a time-bound manner.

The trust will oversee the construction of the Ram temple and will have members from the Hindu community, RSS and other stakeholders, the prime minister had said. The Prime Minister had also said that the Ram temple trust will have the prime minister as the chairperson.

The Union cabinet today decided to set up the Ram temple trust under the chairmanship of the Prime Minister, and the union minister will be the ex-officio member of the trust. The union minister will be the ex-officio member of the trust and will have the power of the chairperson.

The Prime Minister said that the trust would be established in a constitutional and transparent manner and that it would have the same power as the Supreme Court.

Mr. Reddy said that the government would ensure that the trust will be established in a transparent and constitutional manner. The Prime Minister also said that the trust will have an independent status and will have decision-making power, and that it will have the power to decide on the construction of the Ram temple.

Indian Army leaders, especially in the western region, are facing a shortage of officers. A recent survey by the Indian Army has shown that the officer corps is facing a critical shortage of officers, especially in the western region. The survey, conducted by the Army headquarters, revealed that the shortage is mainly due to the high number of retirements and the low number of officers joining the Army. The survey also highlighted the need for immediate action to address the shortage, as it is affecting the morale of the soldiers and the efficiency of the Army operations.

The shortage in the officer corps is a long-standing issue that has been worsening over the years. The Army has been facing a shortage of officers for a decade, and the situation has reached a critical point. The shortage is not only affecting the western region but also other parts of the country. The Army has been trying to address the shortage through various initiatives, such as increasing the number of officer training colleges and improving the recruitment process. However, the shortage continues to be a major concern for the Army.

The Indian Army is one of the largest armed forces in the world, and it plays a crucial role in maintaining the security of the country. The officers are the backbone of the Army, and their shortage is a matter of great concern. The Army is taking various steps to address the shortage, but it requires a long-term strategy to tackle the issue effectively. The Army needs to focus on improving the officer training system, attracting more young men to join the Army, and retaining the officers who join the service.
NRC on hold?

This may just be a pleasure garden and will be back polls the BJP's performance in State polls.

PRAYAGRAJ: BUTTA

It is speculative how the military hierarchy and the Civil Administration view the Republic Day celebrations at Republic Square. The centre of the Government of India was consumed in India's exit from Afghanistan, theLRD and the two testing centers between them. More essentially, it is the military's mission to go to a planning-based census or justify itself as a way of rounding out illegal immigrants. Clearly, a civil society movement has grown such a swell among common citizens across India, from students to grannies, from working class to businessmen, and affected the nation's productivity to such an extent as to demand a comprehensive ending. Combating with the venom of the hate speeches flying far and fast and the moral misrepresentative apology and narrow view again of any sector of a school play, the strong agenda push has even left to applicants and defendants somewhat relievably.

The civil unrest across the country has given us a prima facie lesson in democracy. Many people who might vote in elections are being beaten up; many others are not being allowed to vote. And it means that the people's verdict needs to be respected, that it needs to be reflected upon. If the people's mandate cannot be reflected upon, then what is the latest Home Ministry clarification in Parliament that then was no plan for the NRC. The Government has been Industrious to find a way out of the problem. It has come at a time when the Home Ministry, including Home Minister Amit Shah, and even Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath, has said that the NRC is but temporary to offset general fury over the country's economic and political climate. With shrinking habitats and a reduced prey base, our aim is to develop 25

Abuse of child rights in Bihar: A blight on BJP

PRADEEP LOKAV NAG

T he police investigation of a nine-year-old girl's murder in a school in Kaimur district in Bihar, in connection with a pedophile scandal in the Government of India (GoI), constitutes a flagrant abuse of child rights. It is a terrible reflection on the current GoI administration in any circumstances. The police probe into the murder of the child — which is also being investigated by the Seemanchal Police — reveals how many pathetic cases with similar circumstances are being handled; how many pathetic cases are remaining without any hope of justice. The school in question was only five minutes away from the police station and the girl's body was found in her classroom. It was a short day and she had just gone for lunch. Her clothes were still stuck in her body. She must have been stabbed several times. Her body, with several stabs in the back, was found in her classroom.

One is naturally curious about the fact that the GoI, in its capacity as the State Government, failed to protect the child after the murder. It is a matter of concern that the GoI, in its capacity as the State Government, failed to protect the child after the murder. It is a matter of concern that the GoI, in its capacity as the State Government, failed to protect the child after the murder.

Stressed out? Anxious? PRACTISE YOGA

Paidam Naidu, who has been teaching yoga to people for free since 2011, speaks to V SATEESH REDDY on how he helps people deal with stress and anxiety by doing yoga and more

The beginnings of yoga in India can be traced back 5,000 years ago. Since then, yoga has been taught to people wanting to take care of the mind and body through physical and mental disciplines to achieve a peaceful body and mind. Vijayawada-based Paidam Naidu who studied MBBS at Osmania University and has a Diploma in Yoga Therapy from Swami Vishuktananda Yoga Centre, Bangaluru, gives free yoga lessons. Till date, he has helped more than 50,000 people learn yoga. Speaking to The Pioneer, Naidu said: “Usually, people learn yoga to get relief from stress. But most of the yoga classes taken by the people are not regulated. Many of the yoga centers take thousands of rupees as fees to teach people. To overcome this problem, I started Yoga Bharathi in 2011 to give free yoga classes to people. Till date, I helped more than 50,000 people learn yoga.” Naidu said that yoga classes not only help relieve stress and anxiety but also help in curing many diseases like gastric problem, cervical spondylosis and more. He shared, “I’ve treated thousands, which is common among people these days. Trichrotosis is common among youngsters and is treated for three months. The other issues include Arthi Chakrasanam for arthritis, Vayuchrotsam for gastric problems, Patana Mahaa Aurangam for back pain, and Tushanna Paddatuloo for thyroid, Gomukhasanam to treat skin problems. He said the response from the participants of his yoga classes has been positive. “Many people thanked me for helping them in curing their chronic ailments. One participant appreciated my work and even shared it on Twitter. He said that he was inspired to learn yoga after reading my book. It was a great compliment for me!” The book he published recently includes some simple asanas to follow and tells the do’s and don’ts of performing asanas. He said that 20 minutes of yoga every day helps people feel peaceful and gives confidence to face any problem. “Since then, I have been conducting regular yoga camps and competitions to inspire people.”

“Till date, we conducted more than 70 free yoga camps for people in rural areas. We are also conducting yoga championships every year to inspire people to expand our services across Telugu states,” he said.

Electronic media is experiencing a digitalized phase in the space. “It is the moment when the digital is merging with the physical. I heard about a country where the digital news, which is also used by the FICCI Ladies Organisation (FLO), spoke about various topics including her prizewinners on the elections in Delhi, Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), National Register of Citizens (NRC), and more. One thing I learnt with over 20 years of experience is that journalism is to serve people well. But it looks like news can be an advantage. People now have more access to news and central elections. Based on this, I feel that news has to have an advantage.” According to Barkha, there is a changing trend among people in consuming news. “People are increasingly going towards the internet because it is easy, you can read it at any time. The old-fashioned newspaper is also vanishing. In fact, I read an article recently. It says a bus has also shifted its sights to help students.”

Speaking of media literacy, she said children need to be taught about media. “Media literacy is an important aspect of children’s lifestyle. A special class should be designed where students are asked their views and how they listen to the news programmes,” she explained. “Giving an insight about media, Barkha said, “My first book, ‘The Disappearing Journalist’ was not well. A walk for life

Coronavirus and Ayurveda are the most important and well-researched concepts in preventing and treating the disease through natural medicine and herbs. Elle Bauer’s work on Ayurveda is highly recognized and she is known to be a leading expert in this field.

Pallavi, Gopinath, Chair of the National Council on Women’s Rights, is a noted Ayurvedic expert and is known for her work on Ayurveda. She has written several books on Ayurveda and is known for her ability to simplify complex concepts and make them accessible to everyone.

Pratibha, Secretary of Ayurveda, is another well-known expert in the field of Ayurveda. She has written several books on Ayurveda and is known for her ability to simplify complex concepts and make them accessible to everyone.

The government has also started several programmes to promote Ayurveda and help people understand its benefits. One such programme is the AYUSH (Ayurveda, Yoga, Unani, Siddha, and Homoeopathy) Mission, which aims to promote and develop the use of Ayurveda and other traditional systems of medicine. The government has also launched several Ayurvedic hospitals and dispensaries across the country to make Ayurveda more accessible to people.

‘When women raise voice, govt listen’

Electronic media is experiencing a digitalized phase in the space. “It is the moment when the digital is merging with the physical. I heard about a country where the digital news, which is also used by the FICCI Ladies Organisation (FLO), spoke about various topics including her prizewinners on the elections in Delhi, Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), National Register of Citizens (NRC), and more. One thing I learnt with over 20 years of experience is that journalism is to serve people well. But it looks like news can be an advantage. People now have more access to news and central elections. Based on this, I feel that news has to have an advantage.” According to Barkha, there is a changing trend among people in consuming news. “People are increasingly going towards the internet because it is easy, you can read it at any time. The old-fashioned newspaper is also vanishing. In fact, I read an article recently. It says a bus has also shifted its sights to help students.”

Speaking of media literacy, she said children need to be taught about media. “Media literacy is an important aspect of children’s lifestyle. A special class should be designed where students are asked their views and how they listen to the news programmes,” she explained. “Giving an insight about media, Barkha said, “My first book, ‘The Disappearing Journalist’ was not well. I am coming out with another book on the failures of the Opposition party in India. This book will be out this year.” Speaking about news, she said when women rise, raise their voice governments and other institutions will also rise. She added: “What you call against anything that they feel strongly about.”

Ram-raja storms into doubles quarters

Parthiv Ramdas and Ramandeep Singh were on fire against the Mexicans in the Ram-raja doubles match. Both had a vision to get their teams into the quarters from where they could book their place in the quarters. Ram-raja finished 15-7, 15-8, 8-10, 8-6, 6-3 against Guatemalan pair of Linares and Mengel to set up a semi-final clash against French pair of Cian Lenoir and Gabriel Morel. Meanwhile, Mukund managed to get the better of the Mexican duo on the court. His 15-11, 11-9 victory saw the Mexican duo off the court. The Indian rising star played the perfect mix of aggressiveness and patience in the crucial group stages of the tournament.
