Nadda takes up BJP reins

New chief first task is to galvanise party in Delhi polls next month

DEEPAK K UPRETI ■ NEW DELHI

BJP working president Jagat Prakash Nadda on Monday took over the reins of the party from Amit Shah and is faced with several tough electoral and organisational challenges in the days ahead.

Nadda's first task will be to galvanise the party to take on Kejriwal-led AAP Government in the next month's Delhi Assembly polls. The AAP is seen as a clear favourite and Nadda would require all his skills to make it an even contest. His other challenges are Assembly elections of Bihar, West Bengal, Assam, Kerala and Tamil Nadu, all scheduled within one year or so.

The reverses faced by the party in Jharkhand and loss of power in a big State, like Maharashtra, have made Nadda's task all the more difficult. Nadda would be required to revamp party organisation in several States and also step up the BJP's pro-CAA (Citizenship Amendment Act) campaign across the country.

Enjoying the confidence of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Shah, the new head of the BJP is largely expected to continue with the course it took under Shah with Modi laying out the broader agenda.

Considered an affable and accessible politician, Nadda strikes good rapport with all top party leaders and is seen as seasoned organisation man.

Union Home Minister Amit Shah with newly elected BJP national president JP Nadda at BJP headquarters in New Delhi on Monday. Veteran party leader LK Advani and Prime Minister Narendra Modi are also seen Nadda, with parental roots in Bihar, was associated with the Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad (ABVP) from his college days before joining the youth wing of the BJP and rising through its ranks.

Nadda has also served as a Minister in the BJP Governments in Himachal Pradesh, his home State, and at the Centre. He has also been in charge of the party's campaigns in a number of States, including in Uttar Pradesh, during the 2019 Lok Sabha elections.

Nadda was unanimously elected as BJP president in party headquarters here at a function in the presence of Shah and all top Central leaders, Ministers and Chief Ministers of the BJP-ruled States. The PM, who later joined party leaders in felicitating Nadda, said he is sure that the party will scale new heights during his presidency.

The PM also praised Shah for his contribution, describing him as "an outstanding karyakarta (worker)". "I do not think words can do justice to the rich contribution of Shah as the BJP president. During his presidency, the BJP got opportunities to serve in several parts of India," Modi said in a series of tweets.

New president is quintessential organisation man

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Soft-spoken, affable and low-key, the newly elected BJP president Jagat Prasad Nadda is a quintessential organisation man who is expected to consolidate the rapid gains the party has made under his predecessor Amit Shah.

He takes over at a time when the BJP is witnessing vigorous challenge from a united opposition in assembly elections amid signs that it needs to rejig its electoral strategy following a string of losses in state polls.

If a relatively inexperienced Shah in 2014 was seen as Prime Minister Narendra Modi's handpicked man to shake up the saffron organisation by easing out veterans and infusing young blood to galvanise party cadres and fuel its expansion drive, Nadda is considered a seasoned hand who will build on these gains without causing too many disruptions.

His immediate challenge is the February 8 Delhi Assembly polls where the BJP is locked in a tough fight with Aam Aadmi Party, followed by year-end elections in Bihar.

SAD won't contest polls in Delhi

Cites differences with BJP on CAA, NRC; offered less seats: Sources

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Citing differences on Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) and National Register of Citizen (NRC), BJP's old ally Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD) Badal, on Monday announced that the party will not contest Delhi Assembly polls. However, well placed sources in the BJP said that the SAD wanted to contest elections on six seats whereas they were offered three seats.

SAD was also not very keen to contest on BJP's 'lotus symbol' as it wanted to contest on its own party symbol of 'weighing scale'. BJP leaders tried to convince SAD leadership to let its candidate contest on its symbol as they have won while going with this symbol during past elections. SAD president was not very keen to forego his party's identity and decided not to field its candidates on the seats being offered by the BJP.

Importantly, the SAD will keep its alliance with the BJP intact and remain in the National Democratic Alliance (NDA).

Incidentally, SAD leader Manjinder Singh Sirsa, the sitting MLA from Rajouri Garden Assembly constituency who had won on BJP symbol said, "SAD and BJP have an old relationship but SAD's stand has been quite clear on CAA and NRC."

The SAD president has welcomed the CAA which was supposed to include people from all religions but we never demanded that any one religion should be excluded from the list.

Stuck in rally, Kejriwal to file papers today

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

AAP national convener and Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal, who missed filing his nomination due to the delay in rally, will file it on Tuesday.

Kejriwal said he will file his nomination on Tuesday. "I was supposed to file my nomination today but the office closes at 3 pm. I was asked to go in between and file the nomination but I said how can I leave people at the road show and go? I will go to file nomination tomorrow with my family," he said.

Thousands of AAP supporters gathered in Central Delhi on Monday to take part in Kejriwal's mega roadshow called 'Walk With Kejriwal' which was to be followed by him filing his nomination but was postponed till Tuesday owing to the delay in the rally.

The rally started at Valmiki Mandir near RK Ashram Marg metro station to the Hanuman Mandir near Connaught Place traversing around 2.2 kilometres in over two hours and dancing to the tunes of the party's anthem - 'Acche Beete Paanch Saal, Lage Raho Kejriwal'.

VSSUT to ink pact with ISRO for innovation centre

PNS ■ SAMBALPUR

The VSSUT at Burla will very soon sign a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) for an innovation-cum-incubation centre here. A group of academic staffs of the VSSUT led by Vice-Chancellor Prof Atal Choudhury has already met ISRO Chairman Dr K Sivan and held a detailed discussion about the project, for which the ISRO would provide Rs 50 lakh in the first phase.

A team of ISRO representatives would come here in the last week of February to sign the MoU, VSSUT sources informed.

Notably, after knowing about the 'sounding rocket', developed by the VSSUT Innovation Club, getting a place in the Limca Book of Records, the ISRO selected this premier technical institute as an innovation centre. With this centre in place, the students here would get better scope for study and research in astronomical science.

It needs to be mentioned that Dr Sivan was to be felicitated in the recent convocation of the VSSUT, but he couldn't come due to his busy schedules. Hence, a VSSUT delegation went to the ISRO for the purpose.

When contacted, VSSUT VC Prof Choudhury said, "The (proposed) MoU is to be cleared first by legal department of ISRO at New Delhi. And then it will be signed sometime in February-end or March first week."

TFL to produce 1.27-MMTPA neem-coated urea

To create 4,000 jobs
Environ, CCEA approvals achieved; pre-activities begin

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

The coal gasification-based urea plant of the Talcher Fertilizers Ltd (TFL), which is set to be commissioned by 2023, would have an output of 1.27 million metric tonne per annum (MMTPA) of neem-coated urea.

The plant would ensure easy availability of urea in Odisha and adjoining States, informed Secretary, Department of Fertilisers Chhabilendra Roul at a Press meet here on Monday.

The TFL, a joint venture of GAIL, CIL and RCF, would implement the revival of the FCIL Talcher.

The plant would promote alternative use of abundantly available domestic coal in an environment friendly manner. It would produce 2.38 million metric standard cubic meter per day (MMSCMD) natural gas equivalent synthesis gas (syngas) from coal leading to reduction in import bill of liquefied natural gas (LNG).

The ammonia urea complex being set up at Talcher would have a design capacity of 2,200 tonne per day (TPD) of ammonia and 3,850 TPD of urea. The plant would produce around 100 TPD of sulphur flakes as a saleable byproduct.

The gasification process to be adopted at Talcher unit will emit negligible amount of sulphur oxides, nitrogen oxides and free particle emissions as compared to directly coal fired processes. Carbon dioxide, a greenhouse gas which is emitted from coal, would be partially captured in closed loop process and recycled for production of urea.

The project is expected to significantly improve the quality of life and socio-economic status of the people in the area as it will generate opportunities in the form of direct and indirect employment in the region.

Up to 10,000 people are expected to be employed during the construction period and over 4,000 direct/indirect employment opportunities once the plant comes under operation.

Commitment of more than Rs 8,000 crore has already been made so far by the TFL under various awarded contracts.

The TFL has been allotted captive coal mine in the Talcher region to run the plant. Mine development activity has commenced.

Environment clearance and CCEA approval for RCF equity contribution have been received. An MoU has been signed with the IOCL for supply of pet coke to the plant.

The Wuhuan, which has been awarded the job for coal gasification and ammonia/urea package, has prepared the basic design (BDP) and a detailed engineering is underway. Site mobilisation is expected by end of the current financial year.

Pre-project activities like site grading and construction of power and water supply systems are near completion and another major job related to construction of roads, culverts, drains etc is underway.

Mineral theft, smuggling continue unabated

MALAY MOHAPATRA ■ KEONJHAR

Mineral thefts in Keonjhar district are still taking place.

Recently, the Barbil police arrested a gang of six miscreants while they were smuggling 26 metric ton of iron ore worth Rs 5 lakh by a truck near Kasia village. Similarly the Rugudi police also seized two trucks carrying theft iron ore of 30 metric ton worth more than Rs 6 lakh this week. Three thieves were arrested in this case.

Regularly vehicles carrying illegal manganese and iron ore are seized by police and forest staff which shows that mineral smuggling has not stopped in the area.

The present system only tracks mineral transportation from operating mines through 13MS and GPS. But mineral theft and smuggling from the abandoned mines, crushers and non leased forest areas continue by mining mafias to neighboring Jharkhand in many unguarded village and forest roads along the State border in spite of laws for prevention of mineral theft.

Since the lease period for most mines is about to expire, mineral production and transportation is in full swing using all means. With the hike in price of iron and manganese, the smugglers find it profitable to use four wheelers to transport minerals safely in small quantities without being noticed. Even transport through railways also creates scope for transport of excess materials to destinations by manipulating the weight in wagons.

Neither the Shah Commission nor the Government agencies have probed into the massive illegal mining outside lease areas and transport of theft minerals through railways. The iron and steel industries are the only end users of these minerals.

Hence, a backward verification of minerals quantity purchased by iron and steel industries from mines and exporters including quantity of minerals transported through road, rail and ship will unearth huge scams in the ongoing illegal mineral trade, a mining expert remarked.

State urged to release ₹100 crore for NINL

Firm lacks funds to meet operational costs

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

The Odisha Government has been requested to release ad-hoc payment of Rs 100 crore immediately in favour of the Neelachal Ispat Nigam Limited (NINL) to run the plant and avoid its shutdown.

MMTC CMD Ved Prakash has made this request to the State administration as the steelmaker is facing tough time due to paucity of funds.

While the NINL is regularly requesting MMTC to release funds for the plant, now MMTC has approached the State Government to provide fiscal cushioning for the steelmaker.

Source said the MMTC has infused Rs 470 crore in the NINL during the last one year. Earlier, NINL Managing Director SS Mohanty had also written to the State Government requesting to release Rs 250 crore as the plant is facing labour unrest for pending dues.

Currently, the NINL is facing hardship in paying the bills for power port and other statutory charges like bank charges to avoid NPA. Railway freight charges are needed to be paid in time to avoid stoppage of coal movement. Similarly, funds are also needed for operation of iron ore mines.

In the meantime, the NMDC has provided Rs 60 crore. It is now expected that the Odisha Government, which is a shareholder, will release an ad hoc payment to ease fiscal stalemate.

While the Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs (CCEA) has accorded approval for strategic disinvestment in the NINL, the company, according to the Governments, has got wide scope for 1-MTPC to 10-MTPA with infusion of funds.

The Centre has decided to disinvest the shares of MMTC, NMDC, BHEL, MECON, OMC and IPICOL in NINL.

Now, the shareholders are to infuse funds to run the plant so that it will fetch high value during disinvestment and keep alive the plant, said an industry expert.

KISHORI LAL ■ MANDI

Edu must teach children to serve others: Justice Ghose

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

Education is not about earning degrees but about the values and life lessons a person imbibes in the process of learning, said Lokpal of India Justice Pinaki Chandra Ghose here on Monday.

"Education is a holistic process. We learn not to get a job but illuminate our own self with what we have learned," he said while delivering the 2nd SOA Lecture at the Siksha 'O' Anusandhan University here.

Education, he said, is about hands on learning, about gaining practical knowledge and it should equip a person to use intelligence and capabilities to face real-life situations, he said.

University Protem Vice-Chancellor presided over the programme.

Stating that perfection or divinity in man is nothing but a result of education, Justice Ghose, quoting Swami Vivekananda, said, "Education is manifestation of perfection in man."

An educated person should be unselfish which is not the case in present world. "It is actually the parents who infuse selfishness in the children who are directed not to share their study notes with fellow students as they thought the other children might secure better marks than their own. They don't understand that by sharing, the children would learn more," he said.

He said education which does not help the common mass to equip themselves for the struggle for life, bring out the strength of character, imbibe a spirit of philanthropy and courage, would not help.

Narrating an anecdote, Justice Ghose said a father brought two fruits for his two children at home giving one to each. The elder child straightaway headed towards his room with the fruit, relished it and then came out. The other one took the fruit, found it good and went straight to his friends in the courtyard and shared it with all of them.

Though the first child was intelligent, his intelligence turned into mere cleverness as he was self-centered. But the second child had grown into a person and had spiritually expanded so as to think of others, care for others and had developed the spirit of service. Between the two children, who was the truly educated one, he asked.

He said a teacher is a social architect who has a great role to play to shape the life of his students.

PNS ■ JAMSHEDPUR

Police have solved the murder case of 21 year old youth by arresting two 25-year-old youths from Lokmanya Tilak Station in Mumbai on Sunday. The two assailants have been identified as Rishu Srivastava and Rahul Dubey, both residents of Ulidih in Mango.

Police have revealed that the 21-year-old youth Suman Rakshit was murdered due to a dispute over transaction of money related to betting in international cricket matches between Australia and India four months ago.

The police recovered a nine MM pistol and a live cartridge from Rishu and also a motorcycle that they used in the murder.

Senior SP, Anoop Bitharay said that as per their investigation they found that Suman had betted Rs 3 lakh for the match between India-Australia, but lost the challenge.

Rishu and Rahul wanted to take the Rs 3 lakh from Suman, but the latter was not willing to pay the betting money. As a result of which both Rishu and Rahul had visited the victim's house on several time for the money, but after Suman refused to pay them so they decided to teach the victim a lesson.

"We have gathered crucial information that Rishu had opened the shot while Rahul was riding the bike. After the attack, the duo had left the bike Pujanjali apartment in Ulidih and left for Ranchi in another bike. From Ranchi they took a train to Mumbai, were they were arrested," said Bitharay.

During interrogation, Rishu had revealed that they wanted to simply injure Suman, but incidentally the pellet had hit the victim's chest and proved fatal.

According to the senior SP, during the same international cricket match, Suman had won betting and Rishu and Rahul had paid him to the betting money he had won, but when he lost the betting he had refused to pay the assailants the money, resulting enmity between themselves.

The senior SP said that they had tried to make the two arrested persons to reveal if anyone else was involved in the betting racket, but they did not reveal anyone's name. "As per our plans we will take both the accused to police remand and will try to find out the kingpin of the betting racket in the steel city," Bitharay said.

Punjab CM Capt meets NHAI chairman

Agrees on expeditious commencement of work on Delhi-Amritsar-Katra expressway project

PNS ■ NEW DELHI /CHANDIGARH

Punjab Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh and National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) chairman Dr Sukhbir Singh Sandhu on Monday agreed to expeditiously start work on the prestigious Delhi-Amritsar-Katra Expressway project.

Acquisition of land for the Rs 30,000 crore project, of which Rs 10,000 crore will be spent by the NHAI on 300 km stretch in Punjab, will commence soon, said an official spokesperson after a meeting between the Chief Minister and the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) chairman on Monday afternoon.

The NHAI chairman informed the Chief Minister that decks for the project had been cleared since the shorter alignment proposed by the Authority had now been finalized.

During the meeting, Capt Amarinder also sought early execution of Shambu-Jalandhar (old NH-1), Ludhiana-Talwandi Bhai Section of NH 95, and demanded termination of toll collection on NH 44 as work on the same had not yet been completed.

Referring to four-laning of Kharar-Banur-Tepla road on NH 205A, the Chief Minister pointed out that despite the road having been transferred to NHAI since May 2017, work on its four-laning project had not commenced till date. He urged the NHAI to get work on the project initiated without further delay.

Demanding a comprehensive review of the toll road in Zirakpur town by NHAI, along with GMADA and local Municipal Council, the Chief Minister pointed out that as a result of the road currently being a toll road, there were frequent and major traffic bottlenecks in Zirakpur town on the existing NH 22 section.

As a result of the dense residential or commercial activity on both sides of the road, severe traffic jams were witnessed there, necessitating a relook at the toll arrangement, he added.

PM interacts with students at 'Pariksha Pe Charcha'

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ NEW DELHI

A technology-free room in the house and keeping oneself away from gadgets for some time everyday were the two big takeaways for the students from Prime Minister Narendra Modi's 'Pariksha Pe Charcha' on Monday.

Modi used examples from cricket to the Chandrayaan 2 mission besides experiences of his personal life to reach out to the students, teachers and parents on a range of issues, including exam stress and time management.

Through the third edition of the programme in the national Capital, while Modi asked the examinees not to get demotivated by temporary setbacks, he also urged over 10 crore audiences across 28 countries not to become slaves of technology.

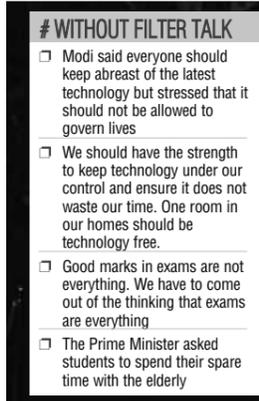

smart phones, computers and televisions daily for some time besides a technology-free room.

"Good marks in exams are not everything. We have to come out of the thinking that exams are everything," Modi said.

In the event organised by HRD Ministry for which preparations went on for a month, was telecast and streamed live, Modi said everyone should keep abreast of the latest technology but stressed that it should not be allowed to govern lives.

"Technological trends are changing quickly. It is essential to stay updated with these trends. Fear of technology is not good. Technology is a friend. Mere knowledge of technology isn't enough. Its application is as important," he said.

"We should have the strength to keep technology under our control and ensure it does not waste our time. One room in our homes should be technology free. Whoever enters will not carry any gadgets," he said. The Prime Minister asked students to spend their spare time with the elderly.

The Prime Minister appealed to students to not be demotivated if they face temporary setbacks and take failures in their stride. "We can add enthusiasm to every aspect of life. A temporary setback doesn't mean success is not waiting. In fact, a setback may mean the best is yet to come. Motivation, demotivation are very common. Everyone goes through these feelings," he said. "In this regard, I can never forget my visit to ISRO during Chandrayaan and the time spent with our hardworking scientists. I was told I shouldn't attend Chandrayaan landing as there was no guarantee of success but I needed to be there," he added, recalling the failed landing of the Chandrayaan-2 mission's Vikram lander.

The PM sought to speak to the students in their own language and said his conversations with them will be "hashtag without filter".

During the freewheeling course, the PM also asked students to remember the India-Australia test series in 2001 to emphasise his message about positive thinking. "Our cricket team was facing setbacks. The mood was not very good. But in those moments can we ever forget what Rahul Dravid and V V S Laxman did? They turned the match around. Similarly, who can forget Anil Kumble bowling with an injury. This is the power of motivation and positive thinking," he said to the much interest of the youngsters at the jam-packed Talkatora Stadium.

The Prime Minister also highlighted the importance of taking on extra-curricular activities and said there is a growing tendency among parents to push their children into activities considered "glamorous" which they can discuss in their conversations with their friends. "Parents should instead take time out to find out what their children want to do," he said.

Asserting that children should be "pursued not pressured into studies", he recommended that students read his book "Exam Warriors" to get over the stress of appearing for exams. He urged students to be confident about their own preparation.

Students who got to ask questions to the Prime Minister were short-listed on the basis of essays submitted on five subjects — Gratitude is Great, Your Future Depends on Your Aspirations, Examining Exams, Our Duties, Your Take, and Balance is Beneficial.

The 65-member team of women will display its acrobatic skills on 350 cc Royal Enfield Bullet motorcycles towards the end of the over 90-minute-long parade.

It will be the first time that the women bikers will perform in the Republic Day parade. This squad was raised in 2014 to involve women in the entire spectrum of roles performed by the Force.

The contingent will be led by Inspector Seema Nag, who is deployed with the Rapid Action Force (RAF), a special anti-riots combat unit of the CRPF.

The Central Reserve Police Force is the world's largest paramilitary force with about 3.25 lakh personnel in its ranks.

The members of the squad have been specially chosen from various combat units of the Force and are in the age group of 25 to 30, officials said.

This contingent had earlier performed at the birth anniversary celebrations of country's first Home Minister Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel on October 31 last year at Kevadia in Gujarat, an event that saw Prime Minister Narendra Modi in attendance.

Reacting to reports that the Government's tax collection is likely to fall short of its estimate by Rs 2.5 lakh crore or 1.2 per cent of GDP in 2019-20, Yechury said that the Centre will be made accountable.

"This is not mere mismanagement of the economy. It is the destruction of lives and livelihoods of millions of Indians, while Modi's rich cronies continue to benefit and fund the BJP. The people on the streets have taken note, accountability will be fixed," he tweeted.

Quoting an Oxfam study which said that India's richest one per cent hold more than four-times the wealth held by 953 million people who make up for the bottom 70 per cent of the country's population, while the total wealth of all Indian billionaires is more than the full-year budget, Yechury said that this is the reason

Prime Minister Narendra Modi doesn't want people to know who funds the BJP.

"The whole electoral bond scheme is opaque and points to a collusion between the BJP and those who have become richer as a majority of Indians become poorer," he claimed.

POLNET 2.0 armed with multi-media facility launched

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Union Minister of State for Home Nityanand Rai on Monday inaugurated revamped police communication services — POLNET 2.0. The new platform is armed with a robust multi-media facility and is a captive satellite-based network that provides video, audio and data connectivity across the country, especially in times of disasters when regular communication either gets jammed or crashes.

"The operationalisation of POLNET 2.0 is a big achievement for the country and the DCPW is to be complimented for rendering this task. This system will work in any weather," Rai said while launching the facility at Vigyan Bhawan here. The Directorate of

Coordination Police Wireless (DCPW) that operates POLNET or the police network services in the country has brought out an enhanced communication platform for police and security forces to communicate better during law and order problems and disasters, including linkup from remote border and coastal areas. The DCPW was set up in 1946 and it was placed under the Ministry of Home Affairs in 1950 with the primary mandate of coordination between state and central police and security agencies for radio communication and frequency allocation. It has been operating POLNET since 2006.

The new platform is named POLNET 2.0 and for the first time it will provide video-conferencing facility to four entities sitting at different locations in the country with Internet-enabled multimedia services, a senior official said. From its control room in Delhi, it can host 40 people talking at one point of time, the official added. POLNET 2.0 will also have a phone calling facility for personnel of police and paramilitary forces deployed in remote areas to talk to their families.

Modi extracts wealth from poor, gives it to capitalist friend: Rahul

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Monday alleged that Prime Minister Narendra Modi extracts wealth from India's poor and gives it to his "crony capitalist friends" and the big power brokers he is dependent on.

Rahul Gandhi's attack on the prime minister came over an Oxfam report which claimed that India's richest 1 per cent hold more than four-times the wealth held by 953 million people who make up for the bottom 70 per cent of the country's population.

"Modi extracts wealth from India's poor and gives it to his crony capitalist friends & the big power brokers he's dependent on. 1% of India's super rich, now own 4 times more wealth than 1 billion of India's poor," the former Congress president said in a tweet.

The total wealth of all Indian billionaires is more than the full-year budget, said the study titled 'Time to Care' which was tagged by Rahul Gandhi Oxfam also said the world's 2,153 billionaires have more wealth than the 4.6 billion people who make up 60 per cent of the planet's population.

The Gandhi scion has often used the term 'crony capitalism' to attack Modi. He first used the term post demonetization when he alleged that Prime Minister's demonetisation decision was a "huge scam" and its objective was to rob from the common people of India to benefit his crony capitalist friends. He again used the same terminology during the Rafale scam controversy.

Doctors want standardised pharma marketing

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ NEW DELHI

Amid the controversy over Alpha firms allegedly 'bribing' medical professionals, the Alliance of Doctors for Ethical Healthcare (ADEH), a network of doctors from across the country has demanded that the Uniform Code of Pharmaceutical Marketing Practices (UCPMP) framed five years ago be made mandatory.

"Presently, even after five years the code remains voluntary. This is despite the fact that several medical organisations have demanded this repeatedly from the Government. The global experience also shows that voluntary code does not work," said Dr GS Grewal, one of the ADEH members and former president- Punjab Medical Council, Ludhiana.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi, as published in a section of the media has warned pharmaceutical companies not to indulge in unethical practices and stop giving freebies to the doctors with a purpose to procure business. However, that any such deliberations occurred in the meeting with the Prime Minister has been denied by the pharmaceutical companies, said Dr Grewal. He alleged that the companies spend crores of rupees through associations by sponsoring the medical conferences. "They spend huge amount on travel, accommodation and other expenditures on the doctors for lavish arrangements of the conferences."

As per the clause 7.2 of the UCPMP "companies or their associations/representatives shall not extend any hospitality like hotel accommodation to healthcare practitioners and their family members under any pretext."

The implied meaning of this is that even extending benefits to the doctors through associations is unethical. But this is being flouted with impunity, alleged Dr Arun Mitra, ENT specialist and former Chairperson, Ethics Committee of the PMC, Ludhiana.

It is also equally important that the freebies from the pharmaceutical companies be made taxable. These were taxable earlier but the decision was reversed later by the Pune Bench of the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, said the doctor.

Study reveals Sepsis linked to 1-in-5 deaths worldwide

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ NEW DELHI

Though preventable and treatable, sepsis — a life threatening complication of an infection — claimed about 11 million lives worldwide in 2017, almost twice as high as previously estimated.

According to a study published in the latest edition of The Lancet, among the victims are a disproportionately high number of children in poor areas. Sepsis is caused by the body's defense system (immune system) working overtime to fight infection. The large number of chemicals released into the blood during this process triggers widespread inflammation.

Blood clotting during sepsis reduces blood flow to limbs and internal organs.

This deprives them of nutrients and oxygen. In severe cases, one or more organs may fail.

India too is facing tremendous sepsis burden. At least, 34 per cent of sepsis patients died in the intensive care unit (ICU) in 2016, as per another study.

The Lancet study, which is led by researchers at the University of Pittsburgh and University of Washington schools of medicine, revealed 48.9 million global cases of sepsis in 2017 and 11 million deaths, representing 1 in 5 deaths worldwide.

The large majority of sepsis cases — 85 per cent in 2017 — occurred in low- or middle-income countries, higher among females than males. By age, the incidence of sepsis peaks in early childhood, with more than 40 per cent of all cases occurring in children under 5.

"I've worked in rural Uganda, and sepsis is what we saw every single day. Watching a baby die of a disease that could have been prevented with basic public health measures really sticks with you," said lead author Kristina E

Rudd, assistant professor in Pitt's Department of Critical Care Medicine.

For their analysis, Rudd and colleagues leveraged the Global Burden of Disease Study, a comprehensive epidemiological analysis coordinated by the Institute for Health Metrics and Evaluation (IHME) at the University of Washington School of Medicine.

The study findings are unprecedented as they represent mortality both in and out of the hospital.

"We are alarmed to find sepsis deaths are much higher than previously estimated, especially as the condition is both preventable and treatable," said senior author Mohsen Naghavi, professor of health metrics sciences at IHME at the University of Washington School of Medicine.

"We need renewed focus on sepsis prevention among newborns and on tackling antimicrobial resistance, an important driver of the condition."

The study authors analyzed annual sepsis incidence and mortality trends from 1990 through 2017 and found rates are improving.

In 1990, there were an estimated 60.2 million sepsis cases and 15.7 million deaths; by 2017, incidence had dropped by 19 per cent to 48.9 million cases and deaths by 30 per cent to 11.0 million.

"So what is the solution? Well, to start with its basic public health infrastructure. Vaccines, making sure everyone has access to a toilet and clean drinking water, adequate nutrition for children and maternal health care would address a lot of these cases," said Rudd.

The research was funded by The Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, the National Institutes of Health Pitt, the British Columbia Children's Hospital Foundation, the Wellcome Trust and the Fleming Fund.

CITIZENSHIP AMENDMENT ACT

No explanation can satisfy me, says Ker Guv

PTI ■ THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

Kerala Governor Arif Mohammad Khan said on Monday that he was not satisfied with the explanation given by the Chief Secretary on the Left Government moving the Supreme Court against the Citizenship law without informing him.

"No explanation can satisfy me", the Governor told reporters here this evening. "My view is approval is needed. They have gone to the Supreme Court without informing me. That is an unlawful act. Not legally correct. Hence it is neither a clash of egos or personal differences", he said.

Chief Secretary Tom Jose met the Governor on Monday, a day after the latter sought a report from the Left government over moving the apex court against the Citizenship Amendment Act without informing him.

Mamata to pass anti-CAA resolution in House

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

After Kerala and Punjab it is Bengal's turn to pass resolution rejecting the Citizenship Amendment Act. Accusing the BJP of playing a "dangerous game" by forcibly imposing CAA and National Population Register Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Monday said the Trinamool Congress too will pass a resolution against the CAA soon. The move is a sharp departure from the stand taken by her Government a few days ago.

Moments before leaving for North Bengal where he subsequently told an audience that her Government would never allow either CAA or NPR to take place in Bengal, Banerjee said "the NPR is a very dangerous game ... it is National Citizenship Register in disguise and is being pushed through in the name of NPR. We condemn the Centre's move for NPR."

Accusing BJP for trying to squeeze out absurd information from the citizens in the name of NPR so as to use it against them in future Banerjee said CAA, NRC and NPR are multiple sides of the same act adding her Government would soon pass a resolution rejecting CAA. "We passed a resolution against NRC and CAB — which was only a bill then — a few months ago. Now as it has become a law will pass a resolution against CAA and demand its withdrawal," Banerjee said adding the resolution will be passed within 4-5 days.

Chief Minister for "making volte-face too often." Opposition Leader Abdul Mannan and Left Legislature Party Leader Sujan Chakrabarty said: "only a few days we had brought the proposal in the State Assembly but the government stopped the Congress and the Left from bringing a resolution against the CAA like Kerala and Punjab ... now finding that the public opinion is going against her she has hurriedly decided to pass the resolution."

On NPR Banerjee said, "I have come to know from media reports that they are demanding absurd information about the parents of a person in the NPR format. There is a column seeking information about parents, their birth place and birth certificate. How can anyone provide such information..."

"They say that the column is optional. Have you seen any blank column in the mark sheet when you appear for an examination. This is a mischievous column. I want to know that if this column is not mandatory then why they have put it there? Again where is a guarantee that if you do not provide the information your name will not be marked for future reference in NRC or things like that? We have passed a resolution against NPR and request all the States including the BJP-ruled states of the North East to follow suit." State BJP leader JP Majumdar said such resolutions are of little value in the face of a parliamentary law.

In a public meeting at Darjeeling, she said, "Even I will not be able to provide these documents," adding how the other parties were acting hypocritically by making loud comments in the media against the CAA but joining the meeting in Delhi on NPR.

When asked as to whether she would like to call a meeting of opposition leaders in order to unite them Banerjee said she might invite the Chief Ministers particularly of the north-eastern States to take a decision on the issue.

"I have no problem in hosting a meeting of the Chief Ministers in Kolkata if they are interested to join it," she said appealing to all the Chief Ministers and Governments of the North East like Tripura, Assam and elsewhere to oppose, CAA, NRC and NPR.

Meanwhile, BJP leader Chandra Bose on Monday wondered whether imposing any law on the people without their consent was the right way of doing things. The grand nephew of Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose said, "you cannot impose a law. You cannot threaten the people to follow some law. This is not fare in democracy."

Missionary school principals, church priests rally against it

Kolkata: Principals of missionary schools and church priests on Monday took out a rally to register their protest against the Citizenship Amendment Act and the National Register of Citizens.

The participants walked a 1.5-km distance from St Paul's Cathedral to the Gandhi statue in the city, holding placards that read "No division among people", "We are all children of Jesus" and "No CAA". They also chanted hymns in English and Bengali.

"We only wanted to drive home the message that all are equal and we should not discriminate between religions and communities," said the principal of a renowned missionary school. The Kolkata diocese of the Church of North India (CNI) also urged other protestant churches to join the rally.

"This was the first time the CNI, Kolkata Diocese, convened such a large anti-CAA rally here. We chose two points for the march — St Paul's Cathedral, that is part of the heritage of the city, and the statue of Mahatma, an apostle of non-violence and harmony," a spokesman said.

Seers to 'clear confusion' over citizenship law: VHP

Allahabad: The Vishva Hindu Parishad on Monday said seers will travel to villages to dispel the "confusion" being created over the Citizenship Amendment Act.

The decision was taken at a meeting here of the VHP "margdarshak mandal". Mandal member Akhileshwaranand told reporters that the "sadhus" will go from village to village and tell people, especially Muslims, that the new law does not take away anyone's citizenship.

He said the seers also expressed happiness over the abrogation of the special status of Jammu & Kashmir and thanked the Union Government for "removing hurdles" in the way of national unity.

On the construction of the Ram temple in Ayodhya, Akhileshwaranand said the VHP will declare a date after the Centre sets up the trust for that.

In a landmark judgment on November 9 last year, the Supreme Court had directed the Centre to set up a trust in three months to formulate a scheme for the construction of a Ram temple at the site where the Babri mosque was demolished.

He said the mosque was demolished.

Akhilesh pitches for caste census; criticises NRC, NPR

Lucknow: Samajwadi Party president Akhilesh Yadav on Monday called the Centre's plans on NPR and NRC "anti-poor" and pitched for conducting a caste census. Yadav has made the suggestion in the past as well. His demand now comes days after the Odisha Cabinet adopted a resolution seeking revelation of caste details in the next Census.

Referring to an earlier Census, he said, "We all wanted a caste census but the Congress did not let that happen and the numbers did not come out."

He said the Census is going to take place again. "But again we are not going to be counted."

"The reason is that the day the caste census takes place, the Hindu-Muslim conflict will come to an end," he said without elaborating. He added that once this happens "nobody will be upset with Yadav brothers". Yadav was addressing party workers at an event here to welcome new members to the SP. They included leaders at the block panchayat level and those who had fought elections in the past.

Criticising the National Register of Citizens (NRC) in Assam, he claimed it had created a rift in that state.

Lakhs of people in Assam had found themselves excluded from the NRC at the end of the exercise to weed out illegal migrants. The SP chief claimed that the NRC and the recently enacted Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) are "anti-poor". In an apparent reference to the recent criticism of the NRC and the National Population Register (NPR), he said the poor will find it difficult to get their date of birth certificates.

"Earlier there were no calendars and the birthdays of most people in villages were based on festivals," he said. He compared this to the inconvenience people went through when the Narendra Modi government demonetised high-value currency notes.

"The BJP created a rift between the rich and poor through demonetisation. All of us stood in queues. Tell me how many farmers benefited. And the dream that corruption and terrorism will be eradicated, what happened to it?" he said.

Hitting out at the BJP Government in Uttar Pradesh, the former chief minister claimed that the state has now become "number one in cybercrime, crime against women and children, bad quality midday meals, fake encounters, unemployment and farmer suicides."

Assam's prominent personalities write to CJI

Guwahati: Ten prominent personalities of Assam, including Sahitya Akademi awardees Hiren Gohain and Homen Borgohain and eminent filmmaker Jahnua Barua, have written to Chief Justice of India Sharad Arvind Bobde urging him to deliberate on the prevailing "public outrage and anger in the country".

The letter, made available to the media on Monday, stated that the Government has characterised the ongoing protests across in the country as being organised by "mischievous elements" whereas the "reaction of thousands of people has earned the sympathy of all right thinking sections of the society".

"It is quite possible that there may have been certain excesses, as mentioned in some press reports, and these are to be deplored but the public discontent and unrest can hardly be dismissed as wilful violence, as is being currently done by the Government," the letter said.

Signatories to the letter include Sahitya Akademi awardee Nagen Saikia, scientist Dinesh Chandra Goswami, former Gauhati University vice chancellor Gajendra Nath Talukdar and ex-principals of Cotton College and Gauhati Medical College, Udayaditya Bharali and N N Barman respectively.

"The younger generation as admitted by all impartial observers is particularly aggrieved and agitated by certain issues that have cast a dark shadow on their lives.

"In Assam, the threat of unchecked migration from neighbouring countries like Bangladesh had been compared by the Supreme Court to a silent invasion and the NRC for Assam was expeditiously prepared under the monitoring of the highest Court," it said. The letter said that at this juncture, granting citizenship to a large number of foreigners will put immense pressure on scant resources of the state and its native population.

PTI ■ THANJAVUR (TN)

Chief of Defence Staff Gen Bipin Rawat on Monday said it was very difficult to predict if a scenario of a war with Pakistan would emerge or not but all the defence services were prepared to take on any challenge.

The top general, who inducted the Sukhoi-30 MKI squadron here, was responding to a question about any possibility of a war emerging between India and Pakistan.

"All the defence services are tasked to be prepared for any option that may emerge. It is very difficult to predict a scenario. But, we are always prepared for any task that may be assigned to us," Gen Rawat said.

The Chief of Defence Staff (CDS) said his new role was aimed at integrating defence systems and the three services (the Army, the Navy and the Indian Air Force).

It was for this reason the post of CDS was created, he said.

"...We will keep moving towards better integration and jointness," Rawat, who was appointed the country's first Chief of Defence Staff on December 30 last year, added.

On strengthening the Air base here, Air Chief Marshal Rakesh Kumar Singh Bhadauria said it will undertake the role of the southern peninsula's air defence.

The Indian Air Force commissioned a squadron of Sukhoi-30 MKI at the Air Force Station here, the first such base in south India for the high profile fighter jets, seen as a gamechanger in guarding the strategically important Indian Ocean Region (IOR).

AP introduces Bill to give shape to 3 capitals plan

Amaravati: The YS Jagan Mohan Reddy Government on Monday introduced a Bill in the Andhra Pradesh Legislative Assembly to give shape to its plan of having three capitals for the state, with the executive capital in Visakhapatnam, Legislative capital in Amaravati and judicial capital in Kurnool.

The AP Decentralisation and Inclusive Development of All Regions Bill, 2020, also provides for dividing the State into various zones and establishing zonal planning and development boards. The village and (municipal) ward secretariats system that the Government brought in in October last year now gets statutory backing as it has been made part of the new Bill.

Moving the Bill in the Assembly on the first day of the extended winter session, Finance and Legislative Affairs Minister Buggana Rajendranath said the government decided to enact a new legislation for decentralisation and inclusive development of all regions in the state for ensuring "balanced and inclusive growth" of AP.

"Regional imbalances, absence of equitable growth have caused an acute sense of deprivation among various sections of the state population, leading to disturbances.

"The logical solution would be to lay emphasis on distributed development and decentralised administration to ensure fruits of socio-economic progress are enjoyed equally by people of various regions," the Minister said, quoting the recommendations of the High-Power Committee of ministers and bureaucrats, which formed the basis of the new legislation.

The TDP members raised objection to the introduction of the Bill and stormed the Speakers podium. Amid the din, the Government also moved another Bill to repeal the AP Capital Region Development Authority Act, 2014. The Government said it intended to constitute a new Amaravati Metropolitan Region Development Area under the provisions of AP Metropolitan Region and Urban Development Authorities Act, 2016.

The CRDA Act was enacted on December 22, 2014 for the development of the state capital post-bifurcation with a specific area demarcated as the Capital region. PTI

Satisfied with CM's assurance, villagers call off stir

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

A fierce controversy over Pathri village in Parbhani district being declared as birthplace of Saibaba blew over on Monday, after Maharashtra Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray withdrew his earlier statement and said that Pathri would be developed as a pilgrim centre and not as the birthplace of the 19th century saint.

The people of Shirdi and 30 neighbouring villages — who had on an agitation for the past few days in protest against the chief minister's recent statement that Pathri would be developed as Saibaba's birthplace — called off their indefinite agitation after a delegation of their leaders, Shri Saibaba Sansthan Trust (SSST) CEO, local elected representatives met Uddhav, his Cabinet colleagues Ajit Pawar, Congress Balasaheb Thorat and Aditya Thackeray.

At the meeting, Uddhav told the aggrieved villagers that he was withdrawing his earlier statement describing Pathri as the birthplace of Saibaba. He said that Pathri village in Parbhani district of Marathwada region would be developed as pilgrim centre at a cost of ₹100 crore and not as the birthplace of Saibaba.

The people of Shirdi and neighbouring had opposed the chief minister's reference to Pathri as the birthplace of Saibaba so much so that they had observed a total bandh in the temple town on Sunday, causing considerable inconvenience to thousands of devotees visiting the place for a darshan of the presiding deity at the temple there.

During his meeting with the delegation from Shirdi, the chief minister said: "I do not know if Pathri is the birthplace of Saibaba or not. I am not a researcher. Based on the information that I had received, I had made a mention of Pathri being the birthplace of Saibaba."

"You should have taken me into confidence before resorting to a bandh in Shirdi... Let's not have a controversy over Saibaba's birthplace. The state government will allocate funds to Pathri village as a pilgrim centre. As the Chief Minister, all the people are equal to me. Let's all of us pray before Saibaba," Uddhav told the delegation of villagers that met him. In all, there were 40 representatives in the delegation. The delegates from Shirdi and neighbouring villages told the chief minister that they had no objection whatsoever in Pathri village being developed as a pilgrim centre and not as the birthplace of Saibaba. However there is evidence to suggest that Saibaba came to Shirdi when he was about 16 years' old in 1858 and he remained there till his death in 1918.

Three months ahead of his death on October 15, 1918, Saibaba told his devotees he would soon be "leaving his mortal body" (dying). By the end of September 1918, he had high fever and stopped eating. As his condition deteriorated, he asked his disciples to recite holy texts to him and continue to meet visitors. On October 15, 1918 which happened to Vijayadashami, he breathed his last.

His mortal remains were interred at "Buti Wada" in Shirdi, after which it has now become place of worship known today as Shree Samadhi Mandir or Shirdi Sai Baba Temple.

The claim that Saibaba was born in Pathri village in Parbhani district of Marathwada region is based on a reference made in the eighth edition of "Sai Charitra" (history of Saibaba), a Hindi publication brought by the Sai Sansthan between 1972 and 76. So far, the Sai Sansthan has brought out 36 editions of "Sai Charitra".

Incidentally, the eighth edition of "Sai Charitra" in which a mention of Saibaba's birthplace has been made has gone missing. The Shirdi temple authorities have ordered an inquiry into the missing publication which can now be considered as an authenticated document.

BJP's new chief

J P Nadda is being considered a proxy for Shah but has organisational strengths of his own. Will he be allowed to rise?

When LK Advani was the BJP president and clearly the more "seen" face of a resurgent Right, having steered the Rathayatra and the temple campaign in Ayodhya, he stepped back and proposed the name of the moderate and avuncular Atal Bihari Vajpayee as the party's prime ministerial candidate. That was in 1995 and Advani's wisdom lay in understanding why governance needed a softer, inclusive and acceptable face and a broader alliance with other parties. He had the foresight to set the foundation upon which a winning formula could be built. In that sense, the BJP president's post became important in carving out a legitimate space for the Right within the coalition template of the times and ensuring that it emerged as a sound electoral alternative to the Left of Centre Congress-dominated narrative. That was a tough time of building and managing the party, positing all that the Congress was fast-losing — a credible organisational decorum, regular elections, fair processes and an inner-party democracy. To that extent, the party president's post was originally intended to be sacred. The arrival of Narendra Modi and Amit Shah clearly changed all that, the two building the BJP's base not so much by processes but the weight of their persona. While Modi concentrated on building a pan-India image as a trusted leader, deputy Shah took up backroom mathematics and personally weighed in on even the microscopic, unit-level decisions of the party. During his tenure of over five-and-a-half years, Shah's focussed aggression strengthened the BJP's matrix and ensured its political conversion as the party's best ever electoral performance. Barring a few setbacks in State polls, the party has managed to become the single-largest in the Lok Sabha. That gave him more than stature; the cadres held him in awe. And he revelled in the arrogance of that absolutism, pushing most contentious issues in the BJP manifesto as Home Minister in the Government, a man in a hurry to prove his heft in the party than in people's minds. And now that he is the Home Minister, he is duty-bound to honour the party's "one person, one post" formula and has handed over its reins to Jagat Prakash Nadda, a loyalist and a low-key worker of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), the BJP's ideological anchor that, at this point of time, has complete hold of policies and deliverance, and cares not much about realpolitik. In many ways, therefore, Nadda is being considered a proxy for Shah, who would like to be remembered as the usherer of Right wing legacies and a neo-cultural revolution, one that seeks to overturn liberalism as an imposition and Hindu theocracy as the natural evolution of history — the Ram temple, the abrogation of Article 370 and the review of citizenship based on ancestry. Shah wouldn't want to relinquish this helmsmanship of BJP's transitional moment. The ascension of Nadda, therefore, seems to be about ticking off the right boxes. Besides, it also allows Shah to escape the heat arising from the citizenship row at the moment. Seen as the architect of the otherisation politics in the country and linking the party's agenda to Government policy, the delegation of party responsibilities to Nadda is an attempt to seemingly dilute this autocracy.

Nadda may be following Shah's footsteps but in the end will have to be the media face and explain the BJP's most difficult phase — keeping the faith of the Lok Sabha verdict and presiding over the social unrest over citizenship. The extent of civil society protests proves that it is fast losing hope in the BJP as a "party with a difference." If the States the BJP lost after the general election are any indication, then the people now want it to account for its non-performance on the economy and jobs crisis and subversion of social equilibrium through religious polemics. Nadda, while continuing the existing party's agenda, can do so subtly and use his newness to soothe anxieties through sensible outreach programmes. There are parts to Nadda that the BJP can use smartly to change perceptions before the next round of general elections. A student leader, who has plodded his way up the ranks, he has a grasp on grassroots, having been in-charge of the BJP's Lok Sabha campaign in Uttar Pradesh and the Maharashtra polls. He has to deliver Delhi and Bihar, the former quite a difficult challenge. But going by the speeches of the Modi-Shah duo at his anointment, it seemed the election of the BJP president was another missile aimed at the Congress which is yet to hold the most basic of organisational elections. Nadda may appear to be gifting BJP a "lit" moment but that will have little value if he is a cipher.

Flying kites

The Government may be testing waters with silly proposals. But this points to a lack of creativity in policy-making

The bureaucrat, who thought about the preposterous suggestion to limit duty-free alcohol purchases to a single bottle, will one day head the entire department. And that frankly is more worrying than the proposal itself because such ideas can come only from the heads of narrow-minded individuals with a puritanical sense of morality. Of course, one is not encouraging alcoholism or smoking. It remains unlikely that the Government will ever go down the route of prohibition, although given some previous illogical decisions taken by it and the fact that the ruling BJP is an ally of arch-prohibitionist Nitish Kumar, nothing can ever be ruled out. That said, drinkers and smokers are a rich source of funds for the Government and Bihar is still reeling from the after effects of Kumar's bizarre decision. In addition, the Commerce and Industry Ministry led by Piyush Goyal wants to restrict the volume of goods Indians can bring into the country while coming back. The derision that these decisions have been met by is completely justified. But what boggles one's mind is that the Government is looking at such minor issues when it should be thinking about ways and means of reviving the economy. If the thinking is that Indians will suddenly quit their Scotch whisky and start buying the shudh desi molasses-derived liquid that masquerades as "whisky", then one can safely assure the powers that be that it won't happen. Such thinking will only take us back to the command and control economy of Indira Gandhi when smuggling and bootlegging ruled. Ironic then that the BJP is trying to highlight Indira's links with Mumbai's most notorious smuggler of that era, Karim Lala.

The simple fact is that to get the economy going again, the Government needs a whole new thinking, the concept of wealth transfer from the very rich being impractical. The Modi Government, despite such schemes as Digital India and Start-up India, hasn't been able to spur entrepreneurial growth. Job creation is at its lowest and India risks turning its demographic dividend into a time bomb. The greatest advantage this country has is being squandered with a pliant Opposition, which has sought to focus on issues that do not have large-scale appeal. But the Government is more keen on looking at silly minutiae than the bigger picture. At the end of the day, a masterpiece not only has fabulous details but looks appealing overall. This Government is concentrating on trying hard to choose the colour for a dull, monochromatic image of modern India.

A new lurking danger

The three-day Ijtema organised by the Tablighi Jamaat last year points towards a larger trend of home-grown radicalism within the country. Radicalisation of the vulnerable must end

SANDHYA JAIN

Few would have missed the videos of children (under 10 years of age) chanting azadi and abusing the Prime Minister and Home Minister for alleged animosity and evil intent towards one community. Since one cannot expect children of such tender age to have knowledge or understanding of the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) and the National Population Register (NPR), it is safe to conclude that family elders tutored them to express such visceral anger towards the Government.

A dangerous radicalisation of the Muslim community is being fostered — with deliberate intent — the consequences of which are yet to unravel. Barring perhaps Saudi Arabia, it is doubtful if even Islamic countries make girls of such tender age wear full abaya (head and neck covering). Certainly, it has not been seen in India before. This points to deep indoctrination of every family within a targeted area and does not bode well for the future.

On the one hand, it will intensify the ghetto mentality within the community. On the other, it will make other citizens wary of dealing with those who wish to leave or avoid the ghetto. This is a double-edged sword that can only harm the Muslim community in the long and short run.

Doubtless, a powerful section of the community is behind the radicalisation agenda, for reasons unknown. The first indication of this phenomenon came during the three-day Ijtema (religious gathering) organised by Tablighi Jamaat (November 30 to December 2, 2018), when 15 lakh Muslims gathered at Bulandshahr, Uttar Pradesh, though permission was given for only two lakh people. Many guests came from abroad.

The proceedings of this gathering are not known. It attracted national attention when some cows were killed in a village on the road to Bulandshahr. Police inspector Subodh Kumar Singh died in the violence that followed but managed to contain the situation within the affected village. The Ijtema concluded peacefully but analysts said such a large gathering should not have been permitted in such a sensitive State and by such an orthodox body. Tablighi Jamaat exhorts Muslims to strictly follow practices adhered to during the lifetime of the Prophet, especially in matters of dress and ritual. All traces of non-Islamic (syncretic) behaviour are to be erased.

This converges with a larger trend of home-grown radicalism within the country. After the Students Islamic Movement of India (SIMI) and the Indian Mujahideen (IM) were banned, the Kerala-based Popular Front of India (PFI) emerged as the successor militant body and spread to Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Telangana, Maharashtra, Gujarat, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh and Bihar.

Experts expect the Islamic State (IS) to formally tie up with the PFI to entrench itself in India and reach Nepal, Bangladesh and Myanmar. Sri Lanka has already been radicalised by people who visited southern India before the Easter blasts in 2019. Several youth from Kerala have travelled to Syria, Iraq and Afghanistan to join the IS; others have been caught doing online propaganda for it. Intelligence agencies are aware that the IS is attracting youth in India and in May 2019, it announced a new "Wilayah of Hind" (Hind Province) without specifying its geographical limits.

The Counterterrorism Group (CTG) Analysis & Intelligence Report (November 2019) states that after being driven out of Syria and the Middle East, the IS asked its leaders to move to South-east Asia as almost every country in this region has deep ties to the Middle East. Its focus is on female domestic workers in Hong Kong and Singapore, who are vulnerable on various counts; Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines are next.

Female migrant workers are chosen because of their low (but stable) incomes, familiarity with English and wide network of international connections. Typically, they earn around $1.00 to $1.50 per hour and are often in need of financial help, for which they agree to join the Caliphate. English-speaking workers help the IS reach other demographics and regions. They help it acquire resources and intelligence from areas its members normally don't frequent.

Migrant workers are easy to manipulate as they are poorly educated, live in an alien environment and are lonely. Radicalisation usually begins after a traumatic event such as divorce, financial hardship or culture shock. The recruiter contacts the most vulnerable and offers a secure, romantic, and loving relationship; soon the migrant is invited for training via online chat rooms. Often migrants are recruited by fellow workers at a prayer group or social gathering on their day off. Some workers have been known to reach out to militants; they are quickly inducted into radical groups and groomed to become militants.

In a survey of radicalised domestic workers, the Institute for Policy Analysis of Conflict (IPAC) found that at least 50 Indonesian women working overseas as maids, nannies and caretakers for the elderly were radicalised by the IS and its affiliates. A study between 2013 and 2018 found that around 800 domestic workers from South-east Asia tried to enter Syria or Iraq to join the IS after being radicalised abroad. This shows the efficacy of the IS' recruitment methods. IPAC has asked Governments to create mandatory training modules to educate migrant workers about the signs of exploitation and to help exploited victims.

In September 2019, Singapore arrested three Indonesian women domestic workers who promoted the IS online in their spare time, donated money to militants overseas and became so committed that at least one was ready to die as a suicide bomber in Syria. One Indonesian maid revealed that she listened to Salafi podcasts while working and an Indonesian butcher she met online encouraged her to go to Syria to join the IS. However, the Singapore authorities discovered her plans and deported her back to Indonesia in 2017.

Zachary Abuza, expert on IS in South-east Asia at the National War College, Washington, says the real stuff happens in dedicated chat rooms on encrypted apps — from bomb designs to active coordination. The female recruits serve as financiers, recruiters and coordinators; they collect funds from radicalised maids and send them to domestic jihadi groups. India is sitting on a tinderbox. When elementary school children chant obnoxious slogans against the nation and its top leadership, the masterminds behind the scenes should ponder what poison harvest they will reap from these toxic seeds. Azadi cannot hide behind the tiranga; India will never submit to further loss of territory.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Whose sentence?

Sir — One fails to understand why so many chances are being given to depraved humans indulging in heinous acts. Why do we need to empathise with an undeserving handful of the worst behaved citizens? It is time to change this thinking. There is a worldwide debate on whether the death penalty stands scrutiny. There have been strong arguments for and against. Suffice it to say that our legal system currently allows death penalty to be prescribed only for the rarest of rare cases.

Rather than discussing this aspect, I would like to draw attention to the "sentence" meted out by criminals to innocent citizens for no fault of theirs. The relatives of the accused, sometimes abetted by the local officials, put pressure on the victim to withdraw the case. The victim and her family thus live under fear and dread constantly. Now activists have joined the bandwagon. Instead of focussing on the human rights of the criminals, why do we not vociferously argue about the right to life and liberty of the victim as guaranteed by Article 21 of our Nation at the cusp of political extremes

The nation is passing through trying times with the Modi Government at its nadir of popularity. Its reputation as the architect of "modern" India has taken a sound beating. The nation-wide protests over the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA) has doused all intentions of the Modi-Shah duo to usher the country into a "golden" period. Branded as "dictatorial", the BJP's rule has only created a wedge between communities. Every decision of the Government that was flung at the people has been met with "distrust" and "apprehension." A slew of laws that have been passed in recent times have had a debilitating effect on the secular fabric of the country. The ruling dispensation's agenda, which is to alienate the masses, is not difficult to understand.

Nevertheless, one would certainly not want to believe in "hearsay" and rather expect the Government to come clean on its will and intention on issues that matter to the country. By allowing "misinformation" and "rumours" to dwell in the minds of the people, the saffron party is doing a disservice to its own image. The highly-hyped "Sabka Saath, Sabka Vikas, Sabka Vishwas" slogan sounds all but hollow now. A massive public mandate does not give any Government the right to push through with its agenda at the cost of public sentiments.

Constitution? Or the human right against cruelty in the Universal Declaration?

It is ironic how those, who brutally violate the rights of another, clamour for their own rights to be protected and are listened to with a great show of fairness. Those adults, who commit these heinous crimes, know it well that they are punishable with severe sentences.

Sir — US President Donald Trump and Swedish climate activist Greta Thunberg are both attending the ongoing World

Agreed, every Government is well within its right to frame legislations. But shouldn't they be implemented after proper deliberations? More importantly, after taking the people into confidence? What we see now is that a "popular" Government installed at the Centre is hell-bent to dislodge its predecessor but has earned the wrath of the countrymen for "authoritarianism" and "evasiveness" that has become its "virtue." Will the citizenship imbroglio make the people of the country seek a change of guard at the Centre? In any case, oscillating between the Congress and the BJP is the only answer right now.

Pachu Menon

Economic Forum (WEF) meet. For sure, Trump will renew his running battle with the young climate campaigner when they join the A-list movers and shakers attending the 50th anniversary of the Davos conclave this week. Thunberg has already made her message clear: Put an end to the fossil fuel "madness." That her missive is aimed at Trump, among others, would be anybody's guess.

Thunberg hogged the lime-light when she began a grassroots campaign at the age of 15 by skipping school every Friday to demonstrate outside the Swedish Parliament. The protests had inspired millions of young people to take action against climate change. Her meteoric rise from an ordinary school-going child to becoming a world-renowned climate campaigner must be appreciated. If Trump and other leaders cannot appreciate her efforts to fight climate change, then we can only pity them. If they can't help her cause, they must at least not throw a spanner in her efforts to fight climate change.

Centre must not lose the vision

Nobody would like solar and wind power generators also to turn into NPAs with the key parameters being compromised

AMIT KUMAR

The national vision of infrastructure services, which raises the quality of life and ease of living in India to global standards, sets the context of the recently-unveiled National Infrastructure Pipeline (NIP) for the next five years. Projects in energy, roads, railways, urban, rural and social infrastructure constitute the NIP. Of the ₹102 lakh crore outlay of the NIP, energy takes the lion's share at 24 per cent of the total investment. Within the energy sector, the share of conventional power, renewable and nuclear energy is 48 per cent, 38 per cent and six per cent respectively. About 42 per cent of the projects are already under implementation whereas 19 per cent are under development and 31 per cent are in the conceptual stage. In both the latter categories, key projects are in the renewable energy sector. According to Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, the Central and State Governments would have an equal share of 39 per cent each in the NIP. The private sector, on the other hand, would have a 22 per cent share, which the Government expects to increase to 30 per cent by 2025.

Elaborating on the energy sector vision 2025, the NIP Task Force envisages an increase in the total installed capacity from the present 356 GW to 619 GW. Furthermore, it expects the share of thermal power to come down from 66 per cent to 50 per cent while the share of renewables rises from 22 per cent to 39 per cent in 2025. Indeed, renewable energy's share in consumption is envisioned to reach 19 per cent from the present nine per cent. The continued thrust on energy transition is certainly encouraging. Interestingly, unlike the conventional power sector where only six per cent of the NIP is implemented by the private sector, in the renewable energy sector, 100 per cent of implementation would be by the private sector.

Without going into the merits of the projected capacity of 619 GW in a decelerating economy at a time when the existing capacity is either severely underutilised or stressed, the private sector's appetite to reach 241 GW in five years has to be viewed critically. Reasons for slippages in the 12th Five Year Plan outlined in India's National Electricity Plan, 2018 include problems in acquisition of land; issues in timely completion of power evacuation systems plus capacity of the transmission system and issues in availability of adequate finances from banks and financial institutions.

In fact, even now, the challenges pertaining to land availability, transmission infrastructure/connectivity, inordinate payment delays, and discoms' disinclination to sign Power Purchase Agreements (PPAs) for renewable energy continue to act as roadblocks to the sector's growth. On top of it is the tendency of some discoms to renegotiate the existing PPAs because of an excessive obsession with low tariffs elsewhere, without understanding the dynamics of renewable energy technologies. All these factors ultimately have put a dampener on the sentiments of private players. The spate of tender cancellations or multiple rounds of re-bidding is a testimony to this troubling trend.

This in turn has resulted in a perception of political peril among the renewable energy industry, something that would have been unimaginable earlier. Couple it with the risk-averse approach of financial institutions on one hand and a general lack of appetite for new investments by the private sector on the other, and we have a scenario not exactly conducive to implementation of renewable energy projects.

While several Government initiatives such as reverse auctions and ultra-mega solar parks successfully catapulted this sector to commendable heights, it is time for the Government to provide another push by working proactively to remove already well-recognised bottlenecks. A consistent policy regime with long-term visibility is a prerequisite to encourage private sector investments, whether domestic or foreign. Unfortunately, even at the Central level, lack of clarity on various aspects such as applicable GST and safeguard duty did actually disrupt the pace that the industry had gathered. As electricity is a concurrent subject between the Centre and States it adds another layer of complexity. A conducive policy environment at the Centre alone is not sufficient unless it is backed by an equally supportive State-level policy framework. Discoms being the primary buyers of renewable electricity, whether from large plants or from distributed solar energy, their financial health and willingness to purchase renewable electricity play a crucial role. Curtailment from renewable energy generators, overdue payments and reluctance in adopting solar energy are not only indicators of archaic mindsets but are roadblocks. This reinforces the urgent need for reforms in the power sector — much more fundamental and structural than the ones undertaken so far, backed by strong political will. It is equally important to recognise the risks associated with unviable tariffs. No one would like solar and wind power generators also to turn into NPAs with the key parameters being compromised for the sake of artificially created tariff caps. Against this background, it would be crucial for the Centre to seize the initiative to take along the States, bringing them on board for effective delivery through the infrastructure pipeline.

Social experiment gone awry

Because of CAA, even the NRC exercise gets debunked. This gives a further jolt to ethnonationalist identities, who take CAA to be a bigger threat than illegal immigration

PRAZENJIT BISWAS

Do those among the linguistic and religious minorities of Assam, who have failed the test of citizenship in the recently-concluded updation of the National Register of Citizens (NRC), become the soft target of the heightened cry for protection of indigenous identity in Assam and North-east India? With the passage of the Citizenship Amendment Act (CAA), one section of those left out of the NRC now gets an opportunity to be citizens, solely on the basis of religion, while another section remains ignored. Does such a contrived outcome make anyone happy in Assam?

Assam's Bengali-origin religious minorities, popularly called Miyas or Bhatiyas in Brahmaputra Valley and Bangals in Barak Valley face the biggest threat of proving their credentials after being left out of the NRC. Those excluded will now have to prepare for a complicated legal battle to prove their citizenship through the Foreigners' Tribunals. These tribunals are supposed to decide the fate of an estimated five lakh presumed illegals and how many would succeed in such a trial is anyone's guess. The tribunals, governed by the Foreigners' Act, 1946, place the 'onus of proof' on the suspect and not on the prosecution, making it difficult for a 'suspect' to get natural justice. As citizenship is considered the most basic right to have or not to have all other rights, the shifting of the 'onus of proof' makes it extremely difficult for anyone to prove credentials. Worse is the case when the tribunals at random ex parte declare too many people foreigners. Many of those people have been put in inhumane detention camps in six places, numbering around a thousand, of which 23 have already died in custody.

The protest against the CAA remains silent on this humanitarian crisis and the ignominy of effacing these unfortunate excluded people from public discourse. With the coming of CAA, a section of these excluded people now wait for some redemption, while another section silently prepares for a long and uncertain legal battle that lies ahead. Both the sections, however, face another cultural test of proving their antecedents, which could be satisfied only by accepting the dominant language of the State.

Any democratic movement, such as one currently against the CAA, should have taken into account the plight of these people. But they are looked upon as 'foreigners' and 'illegal immigrants' whose very presence threatens indigenous language and culture. This is how, much of the protesters favour the NRC to weed them out while they reject the CAA. The CAA bears the signature of sheltering 'persecuted religious minorities from three neighbouring countries' and thereby changes the rules of the game with which the NRC was carried out. Because of CAA, even the NRC exercise gets automatically debunked. This gives a further jolt to ethnonationalist identities, who take CAA to be a bigger threat than illegal immigration. The layered and nuanced ideas of citizenship as indigeneity stand in contrast to granting citizenship to a section of illegal immigrants on the basis of religion. In effect, old faultlines between indigenous ethnic identity and non-indigenous Indian citizens is reinvoked, turning both the CAA and NRC exercise as detrimental to the language, land and culture of ethnic groups. The question is no longer just saving the indigenous habitats of North-east from illegals but it is also a question of 'protective discrimination' for the native and the indigenous from non-indigenous Indian citizens. The land policy of the Government of Assam stated clearly why non-indigenous citizens, being settlers cannot buy/own land.

CAA's exclusion of the Sixth Schedule tribal States from its ambit created a sense of heightened anxiety in Assam and Tripura for being forced to accept those non-indigenous settler immigrants who would be legalised by the CAA. The possible demographic impact and squeeze on language and culture has reinvoked the fear of getting outnumbered. To rein in such a majoritarian impact of the CAA, there are rising demands for introduction of an Inner Line Permit (ILP) system to physically restrict the movement of other citizens from outside the State.

In a sense, the CAA meets its toughest resistance from such demands of protective discrimination, as it would further alienate the North-east and its people from the mainstream while ensuring their specific rights. Certainly this would negatively impact economic transaction between the North-east and the rest of India and as a corollary break the idea of seamless economic connections with South and South-east Asian countries, as mooted in the Act East Policy of the Centre.

The governance structure of States in the North-east seemingly is not able to face the implosion of sentiments of ethnic and indigenous groups against the CAA and is also unable to contain the fight against the CAA from relapsing into a full fight against the State and the Government. In an Assam-specific way, a slew of measures like amendment to Article 345, 347 and Article 371B to ensure protection of Ahomias as the State language, culture and identity of the people of Assam has been announced by the State Government to neutralise the anti-CAA protests, but social organisations are not convinced of some measures. They argued that if protective measures had preceded CAA, probably it would not have become such a big protest. The shift of focus in the protest from illegal immigrants to strict measures of protection in Assam and Tripura not only created an alternative political discourse of pre-colonial identity assertion and securing of homelands, but it also harmed those who are supposed to benefit from the CAA, notably the Hindu Bengalis. This change into community affirmation rigidly redraws several boundaries, creates a reverse discrimination towards the beneficiaries of the CAA by uniting everyone else.

The announcement of the National Population Register (NPR) at the national level and much of the resistance to the idea that the NPR and National Register of Indian Citizens (NRIC) are the same arose from transmission of Northeastern reactions to the mainland due to greater visibility of protests in the North-east. After the first wave of protests in the North-east, major Indian cities witnessed a stir against the NPR and NRC exercise that are supposed to supplement CAA by separating the infiltrators from persecuted religious minorities. This inherently differentiating tenor of CAA made a nationwide resurgence of demands for a caste census and rejection of any test of citizenship. The dystopic Assam experience occupied much of the national imagination in calling for a boycott of NPR cum NRIC, especially when CAA makes it clear for whom the bell will toll.

The fear and anxiety surrounding the new entries relating to father's birthplace and date of birth in the NPR format and dropping of all Muslim festivals from the list of holidays, as suggested in the NPR, create a bigger sense of discrimination. The sense of protection generated out of fear of being outnumbered in the North-east feeds this fear of discrimination at the national level and vice-versa. Although fear transmits easily, yet the cause and purpose of anti-CAA protests also remain different between North-east and the rest of India. The question of defending the Constitution, an essential part of the pan-Indian discourse of resistance to CAA finds very little speck in the North-east where the it is more about protection from the non-indigenous and the illegals. The convergences and the divergences are both ingenious as they promise to set up new equations and alliances between social identities. The beauty of such disjointed resistance to the CAA is that it gives rise to a new form of federal relations. How the Government manages it will decide the future course of politics in India.

It is also worth nothing the debates centering around some of the States opposing implementation of the CAA and their moves by filing cases against it in the Supreme Court. Interestingly enough, Arunachal Pradesh, being a State with ILP is exempted from CAA, yet it has decided to file a petition in the apex court opposing any procedure to grant citizenship to Chakma and Hajong refugees. It is also widely contended that the CAA might lead to exodus of tribal refugees from CAA-exempted tribal States of the North-east to Tripura and Assam, where they can apply for citizenship through CAA. The case of Bengali Hindu refugees in Bodoland Territorial Council of Assam is even more dismal, as they have to move out of areas falling under the council and resettle in a neighbouring district within Assam to become eligible to apply under CAA. While these anomalies continue, the lived reality of 'illegal immigrants' continues to be difficult, as they try to survive through double-edged laws granting benefit and withholding them at the same time.

Let religion lead to peace, prosperity

Religious leaders and theologians from across the country should come together to review the different faiths from the perspective of pluralism and social justice

EDUARDO FALEIRO

Religion has emerged as a major source of conflict across the globe. Ideological strife has now given place to the 'clash of civilisations' and it is felt that in the foreseeable future, religion will be a major source of conflict within and among nations. The possibilities of conflict are greater in countries such as India where different cultures and religions meet. However, such clashes can be prevented if appropriate strategies are formulated and implemented at an early stage so as to ensure religious harmony.

The United Nations (UN) designates the first week of February every year as the World Interfaith Harmony Week. All religions lead to the same God and differences among them are not essential. Indeed, the goal of every religion is the same. The spirit of the founders of the different religions was the same though rituals differ. All religions proclaim similar principles.

Mahatma Gandhi, who devoted a large part of his life to the study of religion and discussions with religious leaders of all faiths, affirmed that every scripture should be treated equally, that there is no justification for the claim of supremacy of any one religion and that we are all children of the same God. He said, "What is needed is a living friendly contact among the followers of the religions of the world and not a clash among them in the fruitless attempt on the part of each community to show the supremacy of its faith over the rest."

Swami Vivekananda asserted that all religions preach ethics, virtues and good character. Yet, all major religions, instead of uniting people often divide them due to the lack of understanding of the purpose of religion by their followers.

India has the largest number of religions and religious people in the world. In our country, we have millions of Hindus, Muslims, Christians, Sikhs, Jains and Buddhists. There are also Parsees and Jews. We have eight religions in India, the maximum number of religions and religious people anywhere in the world. Communal harmony is essential for peace and stability in the country.

Article 51A of the Constitution affirms that it is the fundamental duty of every citizen to promote harmony among the people of the nation transcending religious, linguistic and regional or sectional diversities. Respect for religious diversity and interfaith dialogue are an essential and urgent need.

Some years ago, I decided to study the issues that affect inter-religious peace and harmony in the country. In this connection, I visited several States and held meetings with leaders and organisations of different religions. I spent the whole of September 2004 in the villages of Odisha, in the districts of Kandhamal and Mayurbhanj, where Graham Staines and his two sons were killed some years earlier.

The purpose of my visit was to study and understand the open confrontation that has existed for long in that State between Christian and Hindu missionaries for conversion and re-conversion (ghar vapsi) respectively. I informed Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik of what I had observed in those areas and he promised to take necessary action. Mainline Christian theologians see both the Sangh Parivar's Hindutva ideology and Christian campaigns for evangelization as having a fundamentalist attitude and an aggressive methodology to achieve their respective goals.

Proselytism is opposed on several grounds; it attacks other religious beliefs and practices and asserts that its own religion is the only way to moksha (salvation). It is often supported by financial resources and marketing techniques that make local religious activities seem shabby.

The Federation of Asian Bishops Conferences (FABC) articulates its theological vision thus, "Asia is the womb of the great world religions. All great scriptural religions were born on Asian soil. The Church has to be in constant dialogue with the religions of Asia and to embark on this with great seriousness... There may be more truth about God and life than is made known to us through the Church. As such, Christians who take Jesus Christ's injunction seriously must search for this truth in the various religions of the world."

On the question of proselytism, the FABC says, "A phenomenon which continues to awaken the most resentment among the peoples of Asia is that of proselytism and conversion. In the minds of Asians, the Church's primary objective seems to be to convert as many people as she can so as to increase her little flock. The Church's expansion is also seen as a Western extension. The increase in the number of Church movements engaged in aggressive evangelisation (understood in the very narrow sense of the word) is certainly a cause for concern for our brothers and sisters of other faiths. Perhaps, it might be good to be reminded of the golden rule which nearly all religions speak of: Do not do to others what you do not want done to yourself."

The traditional way of teaching religion puts emphasis on theology and rituals ignoring the social dimension, namely the need for interaction and tolerance among the followers of different religions. Religious leaders and theologians from across the country should come together to review the different religions from the perspective of pluralism and social justice.

The following steps ought to be taken to ensure peace and harmony in India: Organised drives for conversion and reconversion should stop. They violate the Constitution. The Government should promote an agreement among the religious heads of all the major faiths in the country to stop proselytism. Given the positive mindset of theologians belonging to different religions, this is possible.

Combat all forms of expression which incite sectarian hatred and take action against dissemination of such material in the media.

Adequate training and awareness programmes about religion and religious harmony for young leaders at all levels and Government officials, particularly the police and other law enforcement agencies, judges, teachers and social workers must be held.

Introduce inter-religious education in schools as part of the curriculum so as to promote communal harmony.

Assure all victims of religious intolerance adequate support and speedy administrative and judicial remedies.

Provide effective access to all citizens, including religious minorities, to the decision-making process in society.

Counter social exclusion and marginalisation in particular by providing adequate access to all to education, health and employment. Pay specific attention to development of vulnerable groups such as tribals and other weaker sections and those who suffer discrimination on different grounds.

With this we will ensure peace that fosters inclusive development.

IMF cuts India's growth forecast to 4.8%

PTI ■ DAVOS

The IMF on Monday lowered India's economic growth estimate for the current fiscal to 4.8 per cent and listed, the country's much lower-than-expected GDP numbers as the single biggest drag on its global growth forecast for two years.

In October, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) had pegged India economic growth at 6.1 per cent for 2019.

Listing decline in rural demand growth and an overall credit sluggishness for lowering of India forecasts, IMF Chief Economist Gita Gopinath however said the growth momentum should improve next year due to factors like positive impact of corporate tax rate reduction.

"Global growth, estimated at 2.9 per cent in 2019, is projected to increase to 3.3 per cent in 2020 and inch up further to 3.4 per cent in 2021," the IMF said while releasing an update to its World Economic Outlook (WEO).

Compared to the October WEO forecast, the estimate for 2019 and the projection for 2020 represent 0.1 percentage point reductions for each year while that for 2021 is 0.2 percentage point lower.

"A more subdued growth forecast for India... Accounts for the lion's share of the downward revisions," the IMF said ahead of the start of the World Economic Forum (WEF) annual summit here.

India-born IMF Chief Economist Gita Gopinath said growth in India slowed sharply owing to stress in the non-bank financial sector and weak rural income growth.

The country's growth is estimated at 4.8 per cent in 2019, projected to improve to 5.8 per cent in 2020 and 6.5 per cent in 2021 (1.2 and 0.9 percentage point lower than in the October WEO), supported by monetary and fiscal stimulus as well as subdued oil prices, it added.

2019 refers to fiscal year 2019-20.

India's economy grew just 4.5 per cent in July-September 2019 period --- the weakest pace in nearly six years. The Indian government has been taking various measures to bolster growth.

For the emerging market and developing economy group, the IMF said growth is expected to increase to 4.4 per cent in 2020 and 4.6 per cent in 2021 (0.2 percentage point lower for both years than in the October WEO) from an estimated 3.7 per cent in 2019.

"The growth profile for the group reflects a combination of projected recovery from deep downturns for stressed and underperforming emerging market economies and an ongoing structural slowdown in China," it noted.

Gopinath also said the pickup in global growth for 2020 remains highly uncertain as it relies on improved growth outcomes for stressed economies like Argentina, Iran and Turkey, and for underperforming emerging and developing economies such as Brazil, India and Mexico.

Further, the IMF said the balance of risks to the global outlook remains on the downside, but less skewed toward adverse outcomes than in the October WEO.

Taking earnest attempt to decriminalise

Companies Law: FM

PTI ■ CHENNAI

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman has said the government's earnest attempt was to decriminalise everything that has to do with Companies Law or related acts as part of initiatives towards a $5 trillion economy.

She said the Government does not want a law that could treat every business house with suspicion.

Delivering the Nani Palkhiwala Memorial lecture on Sunday evening here, Sitharaman said she was impressed with the comments made by TATA Sons Ltd Chairman N Chandrababhan who remarked that the government should treat people and its own citizens.

"My first attempt and also an earnest attempt which continues today is to decriminalise everything to do with Companies law or related laws. The very point Prime Minister (Narendra Modi) keeps talking," she said.

Sitharaman said in Companies Law, there are a number of sections leading to a criminal approach and penalties of even jail terms.

"I had gone through this with a tooth comb. Decriminalising Companies Law ensuring no other act of Government whether it is Income Tax or your PMLA (Prevention of Money Laundering Act) will have such an impact.

We are making sure that aspect will be addressed," she said. Elaborating, she said "we do not want a law which is going to treat every business house with suspicion. That is not the intent of this government at all".

She said it was one of the initiatives the government had planned as part of steps towards taking the country to a USD 5 trillion economy, ensuring trust between the government and businesses.

Govt begins probe into deposits of unaccounted cash by jewellers during DeMo: Sources

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Armed with information emanating from data analytics, the finance ministry has initiated enquiry into huge amount of cash deposited by jewellers, disproportionate to their known sources of income, during the demonetisation period.

These jewellers under scrutiny have also not reflected such transactions in their return of income for the Assessment Year 2017-18, sources said.

It has been found that huge amount of unaccounted cash was deposited by a number of jewellers during the demonetisation period which they could not explain or justify as sale proceeds and which in one of the case was almost 93,648 per cent of the cash deposited by him vis-a-vis the corresponding period of earlier year, sources said.

India among top 10 FDI recipients, attracts $49 bn inflows in 2019, says UN report

PTI ■ UNITED NATIONS

India was among the top 10 recipients of Foreign Direct Investment in 2019, attracting $49 billion in inflows, a 16 per cent increase from the previous year, driving the FDI growth in South Asia, according to a UN report released on Monday.

The Global Investment Trend Monitor report compiled by United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD) states that the global foreign direct investment remained flat in 2019 at $1.39 trillion, a 1 per cent decline from a revised $1.41 trillion in 2018.

This is against the backdrop of weaker macroeconomic performance and policy uncertainty for investors, including trade tensions, it said.

Developing economies continue to absorb more than half of global FDI flows. South Asia recorded a 10 per cent increase in FDI to $60 billion and "this growth was driven by India, with a 16 per cent increase in inflows to an estimated $49 billion. The majority went into services industries, including information technology," the report said.

India attracted an estimated 49 billion dollars of FDI in 2019, a 16 per cent increase from the 42 billion dollars recorded in 2018, it said.

The FDI flows to developed countries remained at a historically low level, decreasing by a further 6 per cent to an estimated $643 billion.

The FDI to the European Union (EU) fell by 15 per cent to $305 billion, while there was zero-growth of flows to United States, which received $251 billion FDI in 2019, as compared to $254 billion in 2018, the report said.

Despite this, the United States remained the largest recipient of FDI, followed by China with flows of $140 billion and Singapore with USD 110 billion. China also saw zero-growth in FDI inflows. Its FDI inflows in 2018 were $139 billion and stood at $140 billion in 2019. The FDI in the UK was down 6 per cent as Brexit unfolded.

The report added that cross-border M&As decreased by 40 per cent in 2019 to USD 490 billion — the lowest level since 2014.

Slowed down by sluggish Eurozone growth and Brexit, European M&A sales halved to $190 billion. Deals targeting United States companies remained significant — accounting for 31 per cent of total M&As.

The fall in global cross-border M&As sales was deepest in the services sector (a 56 per cent decline to $207 billion), followed by manufacturing (a 19 per cent decline to $249 billion) and primary sector (14 per cent decline to $34 billion), the report said.

In particular, sales of assets related to financial and insurance activities and chemicals fell sharply. The decline in M&A values was driven also by a lower number of megadeals. In 2019, there were 30 megadeals above $5 billion compared to 39 in 2018, it said.

₹ settles 3 paise down at 71.11 against $

PTI ■ MUMBAI

The rupee slipped 3 paise to close at 71.11 against the US dollar on Monday, tracking a steady rise in crude oil prices and weakness in domestic equities. Forex traders said the drop in the rupee was largely due to a spurt in crude oil prices following rising tensions in the Middle East and North Africa.

At the interbank foreign exchange market, the local currency opened on a weak note at 71.07 and fell further to a low of 71.15. It finally settled at 71.11, lower by 3 paise against its previous close.

World's 22 richest men have more than all women in Africa: Oxfam Davos: The number of billionaires has doubled in the past decade and the world's 22 richest men now have more wealth than all the women in Africa, Oxfam said Monday in an appeal to the Davos elite to get serious about inequality.

"Our broken economies are lining the pockets of billionaires and big business at the expense of ordinary men and women. No wonder people are starting to question whether billionaires should even exist,"

Oxfam's India head Amitabh Behar said.

"Women and girls are among those who benefit least from today's economic system," Behar said ahead of the annual World Economic Forum in Davos, where he will represent Oxfam.

"The very top of the economic pyramid sees trillions of dollars of wealth in the hands of a very small group of people, predominantly men," the Oxfam report said. AFP

BATTLE FOR MIAL Arbitration tribunal restrains Adanis from buying Bidvest stake

Mumbai: In a major setback to the Adani Group's bid to get a hold on Mumbai airport, an arbitration tribunal has restrained it from going ahead with buying out the 13.5 per cent stake of South African partner Bidvest Services in the country's second largest airport.

The tribunal has also asked Bidvest to maintain status quo on its stake but asked GVK, which owns 50.5 per cent in the airport, to compensate it for the delay by way of paying interest on the agreed share purchase agreement (₹1,248 crore) till the pendency of the case.

It is directed that pending the final disposal of the arbitration proceedings, Bidvest Services or anyone acting for and on behalf of it is restrained from alienating in any manner its 16.20 crore (13.5 per cent) equity shares in Mumbai international airport" the tribunal said. PTI

Exercise the pain away

Wear and tear is a natural and inevitable damage that affects not just machines, but human beings too. As we age and constantly keep up with the activities of everyday lives, our bodies might show fatigue and degeneration. Thankfully, advances in medical sciences have helped us cope better. Human body parts can be repaired, refurbished or replaced. Knee replacement surgery is an elective clinical procedure performed to resurface a damaged knee. Metal and plastic parts along with the knee cap are used to top the ends of the knee joint bone. However, not everyone resumes to their normal pain-free lifestyle after the surgery. Pre-rehabilitation or rehabilitation before the knee replacement surgery has been a respite for many since it has been proven to bring considerable difference in patient's quality and pace of recovery.

A fit body always recovers first is a no-brainer. Yet most patients undergoing knee replacement surgery consider rehabilitation only after the procedure. After the surgery, in most cases, patient receives physical therapy sessions in the hospital for only a couple of days until discharge. Normally, physiotherapist will advise exercises which should be followed at home for up to three months to improve balance, strength and movement. However, patients who followed an active lifestyle and performed pre-rehabilitation tactics including performing of exercises for up to eight weeks until the surgery, recover faster.

Exercising before the surgery can be painful since it involves the movement of the damaged joint. Therefore only light impact exercises are recommended during this time. Activities like swimming, walking and cycling can help in keeping one to stay active without laying much stress on the knee. It is important to warm up before any exercise and only gradually move to vigorous movements.

Exercising before surgery can be painful. Therefore only those with light impact are recommended. Activities like swimming, walking and cycling can help

The following set of knee exercises will help you recover to optimum function and activities soon after a knee replacement surgery. ■Knee Straightening: Place a rolled towel under the knees and another between the thighs. Squeeze the thighs inward while lifting one foot to straighten the knee. Hold for five to 10 seconds. Repeat eight to 15 times. You can do this exercise for three to five days a week.

■Ankle activities: Lie on your back keeping legs straight. Now pull your ankle up towards you and push back the opposite way. Repeat six times.

■Heel slides: Pull your knee to your chest using a towel under the thigh and slide heel towards the buttocks. Hold it for five to 10 seconds and repeat at least 10 times.

■Sitting knee bend and straighten: Sitting on the edge of a chair, move your heel backward to bend the knee and forward to straighten it.

■Hamstring stretch: Sitting up tall on the edge of the chair, pull your lower belly to the spine. Now bend forward from your hips until you feel the stretch at the back of the thigh.

■Arm chair push ups: Strengthen the muscles under your arms called triceps through this exercise. Sit in a chair with arm rest with hands on it, elbows bent. Now try to lift your body by straightening the elbows. Hold for five to 10 seconds and repeat for at least eight to 15 times per day.

All the above are indicative and actual exercises shall be personalised based on your existing condition.

Pre-rehabilitation before knee replacement surgery comprises of several components beyond exercises including diet adjustment, pain management, counseling and lifestyle modifications. This systematic way of preparing the body for the surgery reaps significant results in the recovery.

WARMFOODS

BROCCOLI: Broccoli is an edible green plant in the cabbage family whose large flowering head and stalk is eaten as a vegetable. It is rich in many vitamins and minerals, including folate, potassium, manganese, iron, and Vitamins C and K1 which may help promote skin and bone health.

It also help in preventing heart diseases and cancer. Two of the main carotenoids in broccoli, lutein and zeaxanthin, are associated with a decreased risk of age-related eye disorders.

It is also known to have a warm taasir (nature) which makes it a great option for winters. It also contains numerous other vitamins and minerals in smaller amounts. In fact, it provides a little bit of almost every nutrient that your body needs.

NOT SO SWEET

Winters can take a toll on the health of people having Diabetes. ARCHANA JYOTI speaks with doctors to tell you what one can do to stay safe

With no let-up in the extreme cold, health experts have advised the people with Diabetes to be extra careful as bitter weather can play havoc with their well-being in many ways given their weak immune system.

They warn that fluctuating sugar levels often stemming from a weaker immune system and slower circulation during the winter months reduces the effectiveness of insulin. They can be prone to stroke, hypertension and heart-attacks. Elderly people report low blood sugar levels with disturbed gaits. Type II Diabetes is a chronic disease that can cause blood sugar (glucose) to be higher than normal.

Dr V Mohan Chairman and Chief Diabetologist from Chennai based Dr Mohan's Diabetes Specialists Centre explains that due to the cold weather, their walking schedule is affected. "It means that their blood sugar can go out of control because the dose of medicines may not be sufficient to control their Diabetes minus their usual exercise schedule," he tells you.

It is known that cold weather can aggravate chest pain related to heart or angina. But people with Diabetes need not have the usual symptoms of chest pain because of autonomic neuropathy which affects the nerves which produce pain.

Hence they should be careful when walking or doing exercise in cold weather specially when walking up a slope or a hill, he warns.

Besides these, extreme cold weather can lead to frostbites which in a person with Diabetes can lead to gangrene. Hence, proper

KEEP WINTER BLUES AT BAY

- Check your feet regularly, at least twice a day. Test your blood sugar regularly to keep your sugar levels under control. Be particularly mindful of what you eat. A little exercise will keep you warmer and increase your body's ability to use insulin better. Stay hydrated and use moisturisers to fight dry skin problem.

footwear and gloves have to be used by people with Diabetes.

"While frigid weather by itself may not increase the blood sugar levels, during the winter people are more prone to cold cough, throat infections bronchitis and pneumonia. If they develop upper or lower respiratory infections, this can profoundly affect the blood sugar level. An increase in medicines may be required, hence more frequent sugar level check-up should be done," Dr Mohan says.

Dr AK Jhingan, Diabetologist and chairman of Delhi Diabetes Research Center warns that sudden exposure to extreme cold can result in high blood sugar due to constricted blood vessels. There are chances of getting stroke, heart attacks and accelerated hypertension, hence one should be extra careful while going out in the cold. High blood glucose levels make it hard to fight infections.

Smokers, alcohol consumers, or those sick or with asthma and elderly ones are more vulnerable.

Even just a little physical activity each day can help your glucose levels in a number of supporting ways. Also, people tend to eat more during the winter in a bid to keep themselves warm.

Besides, this is also a festive and marriage season so people tend to eat more. So "no fast and no feast" policy should be followed.

Studies have revealed that herbs and supplements have shown promise in lowering blood sugar, boosting insulin sensitivity and reducing high blood pressure and cholesterol.

For instance, there are anti-diabetic herbal drugs like BGR-34, developed by the scientists from prominent research institutes like Central of Science and Industrial Research (CSIR) scientists. Formulation of time-tested herbs like gudmar, jamun, vijayar and fenugreek have properties to enhance immunity level and lowering blood sugar level, said former senior scientist with CSIR who had helped developed the drug.

Dr Jhingan sums up saying that never leave the medicine and don't ignore the symptoms of feeling suffocation or pain.

With some adjustments during winters, one can lead a healthy life.

With kids at home, especially boys, minor injuries — cuts and scrapes — are common. There are a few home remedies that moms can do for healing that are natural and easy to follow, says ROSHANI DEVI

Almost all of us have got into scrapes and ended up with minor cuts and bruises while playing or just falling down. A visit to a doctor for many kids can be harrowing. However, the wound has to be treated. Here are a few quick tips that mothers can follow.

The most important and basic rule — clean the wound properly to remove any dirt with clean water. Be gentle while doing so.

One can always use alovera. The gel is soothing and improves healing.

In most homes there is honey, especially in winters. Natural honey has great healing power. Apply this on the dressing and put it on the wound and wrap.

Coconut oil is an effective healer. It has anti-bacterial, anti-inflammatory, moisturing and healing properties. The oil keeps infection at bay and prevents scarring. Apply pure coconut oil. Put a bandage over the cut. Do this two-three times a day and change the bandage each time. Do this for a week.

One should not forget the turmeric, a natural antiseptic and anti-biotic agent. Mix half a tablespoon of turmeric in flaxseed oil and make a paste. Apply it on the wound two-three times a day to prevent infection.

A report by the World Health Organisation (WHO) revealed that 7.5 per cent of the Indians suffers from some form of mental disorder. It predicts that by 2020, roughly 20 per cent of India will suffer from mental illnesses. What is worrying is that to treat these, we only have 4,000 mental professionals. In such a scenario, the book When The Soul Heals: Explorations in Spiritual Psychology by Dr Pulkit Sharma, a practicing clinical psychologist since 2005 makes for not just an interesting read but can be of great help who are looking for self-help.

STUDYCENTRE

Researchers have revealed that less active infants may accumulate more fat, which in turn may put them at risk for obesity later in life.

For the study, published in the journal Obesity, researchers tracked the physical activity levels of 506 infants using small ankle-worn accelerometers for four days per tracking period at ages three, six, nine and 12 months.

For each tracking period after three, average physical activity increased by about four per cent, in line with infants becoming generally more mobile and active over the course of their first year.

Among infants, higher physical activity measured by the accelerometer was associated with lower central adiposity, a measure of lower-torso fat accumulation, the study said.

"This is the first study to demonstrate an association over time between higher levels of objectively measured physical activity and lower central adiposity in infancy," said study lead author Sara Benjamin-Neelon from Johns Hopkins University in US. Of this group, the research team were able to get adequate accelerometer data for 506 infants.

The researcher noted that larger, longer-term studies will be necessary to determine the sustained effect of infant physical activity, but that preventing extended periods of inactivity for infants will almost certainly be good for them.

US PRESIDENT impeachment

AP ■ WASHINGTON

US President Donald Trump's defence team and the prosecutors of his impeachment are laying out their arguments over whether his conduct toward Ukraine warrants his removal from office.

Trump's lawyers on Sunday previewed their impeachment defence with the questionable assertion that the charges against him are invalid, adopting a position rejected by Democrats as "nonsense."

The trial resumes on Tuesday with what could be a fight over the ground rules. By then, both sides will have submitted briefs and four Democratic presidential candidates will have been forced back to Washington from the early nominating states to join every other senator in silence, sans phones, on the Senate floor.

What they're likely to hear in this extraordinary setting is the House Democrats' impeachment articles that charge Trump with abuse of power and obstruction of Congress over his pressure on Ukraine for political help. From the White House, the senator-jurors are expected to hear that Trump committed no crime, the impeachment articles are invalid and he's the victim of Democrats who want to overturn his election.

"Criminal-like conduct is required," said Alan Dershowitz, a constitutional lawyer on Trump's defence team. Dershowitz said he will be making the same argument to the Senate and if it prevails, there will be "no need" to pursue the witness testimony or documents that Democrats are demanding.

But the "no crime, no impeachment" approach has been roundly dismissed by scholars and Democrats, who were fresh off a trial brief that called Trump's behaviour the "worst nightmare" of the country's founders. In their view, the standard of "high crimes and misdemeanors" is vague and open-ended in the Constitution and meant to encompass abuses of power that aren't necessarily illegal.

The White House is pushing an "absurdist position," said Rep. Adam Schiff, D-Calif., the lead Democratic prosecutor of the impeachment case. "That's the argument I suppose you have to make if the facts are so dead set against you," Rep. Jerrold Nadler, D-N.Y., another impeachment prosecutor, called it "arrant nonsense" and said evidence of Trump's misconduct is overwhelming.

The back-and-forth came as all concerned agitated for the Senate to get on with the third impeachment trial in the nation's history. Behind the scenes, the seven House managers were shoring up which parts of the case and doing a walk-through of the Senate.

No senators were more eager to get going than the four Democratic presidential candidates facing the prospect of being marooned in the Senate ahead of kickoff nominating votes in Iowa and New Hampshire.

"I'd rather be here," said Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders on New Hampshire Public Radio while campaigning Sunday in Concord.

During the trial, Sanders and other senators are required to sit for perhaps six grueling hours of proceedings daily — except Sundays, per Senate rules — in pursuit of the "impartial justice" they pledged to pursue. But there was scant evidence that anyone's mind was really open about whether Trump earned vindication or ouster.

Mystery, however, abounded over the trial's ground rules. Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., shed no light on how the proceedings will follow — and differ from — the precedent of President Bill Clinton's impeachment trial in 1999.

"The President deserves a fair trial. The American people deserve a fair trial. So let's have that fair trial," said Democratic Rep. Jason Crow of Colorado, one of the seven impeachment prosecutors.

Whatever happens in the Senate, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., has said, Trump will "be impeached forever." Members of Trump's team countered that if they win a vindication for Trump, it means "there will be an acquittal forever as well," Trump attorney Robert Ray said. "That is the task ahead."

5 former police officials sentenced to death over attack on Hasina's motorcade in 1988

PTI ■ DHAKA

Five former police officials were sentenced to death by a Bangladesh court on Monday for opening fire on a motorcade of then Opposition leader Sheikh Hasina in 1988 that killed her 24 supporters during an anti-government rally.

The court in Bangladesh's southeastern port city of Chattogram handed down the verdict on Monday after the completion of the defence's argument. As many as 53 witnesses testified in the court over the attack on the current Prime Minister Hasina's convoy.

"They will be hanged by neck until they are dead," pronounced Chattogram District and Sessions Judge Md Ismail Hossain, as four of the five convicts were present in the crowded courtroom while the fifth convict, a former police inspector, was tried in absentia as a fugitive. On January 24, 1988, police opened fire on a procession which was escorting the motorcade of Hasina while she was going to address a rally in the port city against regime of then military dictator HM Ershad.

Hasina narrowly escaped the attack in which her 24 supporters were killed. Attack was seen by Awami League leaders as an "attempt to assassinate" Hasina. Prosecution said Hasina was visibly the target but she escaped the shooting as her supporters formed a human shield to protect her. The shooting was dubbed as "Chattogram massacre" when police cremated the bodies at a Hindu crematorium regardless of the victims' religious identities, giving their families no chance to see them.

May pull out of N treaty over Europe dispute: Iran

AP ■ TEHRAN

Iran said on Monday it will consider withdrawing from the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT) if a dispute over its atomic programme goes before the UN Security Council.

Britain, France and Germany launched a process last week charging Iran with failing to observe the terms of the 2015 nuclear deal, a move that could eventually see the Security Council reimpose international sanctions on the country.

Iran has accused the three EU member states of inaction over sanctions the United States reimposed on it after unilaterally withdrawing from the landmark accord in 2018.

The European move "has no legal basis" and if they take further measures "Iran's withdrawal from the NPT will be considered," Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif was quoted as saying by the Iranian parliament's website.

The landmark 2015 deal reached with Britain, China, France, Germany, Russia and the United States gave Iran relief from sanctions in return for curbs on its nuclear programme. Since the US pullout, Iran has progressively rolled back its commitments to the accord — the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action — in retaliation.

It has hit out at the three European nations that remain party to the JCPOA for failing to live up to their promises to ease the impact of US sanctions on its oil-based economy.

"If the Europeans return to the commitments, Iran will also stop reducing its commitments, but if the Europeans continue as they have been... We have different options," said Zarif.

The foreign minister said Iran's President Hassan Rouhani had warned former EU foreign affairs chief Federica Mogherini about such consequences in three letters sent in 2018.

"It was stated in the president's letter that if this issue is referred to the Security Council, Iran's withdrawal from the NPT will be discussed but to bring Iran back into compliance and save the accord.

But Iran's foreign ministry on Monday warned more measures could be taken in retaliation for the European move.

Evacuation crackdown ordered as Philippine volcano 'recharges'

Tanauan (Philippines): Philippine authorities ordered a crackdown Monday on evacuees' daily visits to their homes in the danger zone around Taal volcano as scientists warned it could be "recharging" for a more powerful explosion.

More than 110,000 people have taken refuge in evacuation centres since Taal burst to life a week ago, but many hard-hit towns have let residents back for hours each day to fetch items, feed livestock and clean up their houses. "We are directing DRRMCs (civil defence officers)... Not to allow anyone to enter the danger zone," said Epimaco Denying, undersecretary for the Department of Interior.

Iraqi protesters ramp up pressure as deadline expires

Baghdad: Thousands of Iraqi anti-government protesters grappled with security forces in a bid to shut streets across the country on Monday, a deadline they had given authorities to implement long-awaited reforms. Rallies have rocked Iraq since October but fearing they would lose momentum amid spiralling regional tensions protesters last Monday told the government it had one week to meet their demands or they would escalate.

They have called for early elections under a new voting law, an independent prime minister to replace outgoing premier Adel Abdel Mahdi and for all corrupt officials to be held accountable. On Sunday, young protesters began sealing off highways and bridges across Baghdad and Iraq's south. They tried to do the same early Monday in the capital but security forces acted fast, with the military saying it had reopened a major Baghdad thoroughfare and arrested nine young men who had attempted to seal it off.

Xi orders resolute efforts to contain new virus as China reports 3rd death

PTI ■ BEIJING

Chinese President Xi Jinping on Monday ordered resolute efforts to curb the spread of a new coronavirus that has infected more than 220 people and resulted in the death of three persons in the country as an expert warned that the virus is contagious between people.

Chinese authorities said a third person died over the weekend from coronavirus infection in Wuhan city where the virus was first reported. As public concerns mounted specially ahead of Chinese New Year festival starting January 24 during which millions travel within and outside the country to avail week-long public holidays, Xi said the Government and departments at all levels should put the health and safety of the people first.

He said it's "extremely crucial" to take every possible measure to contain the virus, especially during a time when

FM cancels attendance at Davos summit

Tehran: Iran's top diplomat has cancelled his trip and will not be attending the Davos Forum, the Iranian Foreign Ministry said on Monday amid a crisis with Washington and disputes with Europe over Iran's nuclear steps.

The summit in the Swiss resort also comes after Iran earlier this month shot down a Ukrainian passenger plane, killing all 176 people on board. Tensions also remain high between Iran and the US after an America drone killed Revolutionary Guard Gen. Qassem Soleimani in Baghdad. Iran's top diplomat, Mohammad Javad Zarif, had been invited and plans had been made for him to attend the annual meeting of the World Economic Forum in Davos, Foreign Ministry spokesman Abbas Mousavi said.

3 Sikhs stabbed to death in east London in clash within community

London: Three persons were stabbed to death after a clash between two groups within the Sikh community in east London, police said on Monday. The victims were believed to be in their 20s or 30s, they said. Police said they received a call about 19:40 GMT on Sunday to reports of a disturbance in Elmstead Road in Seven Kings, Ilford. "We believe the groups involved are members of the Sikh community," Chief Superintendent Stephen Clayman was quoted as saying by the Telegraph.

Spain WOLOPED BY HEAVY SNOW, RAIN, GALES

Madrid: Heavy snow, rain and gale-force winds lashed many parts of Spain on Monday, killing at least two people and prompting five provinces to go on top emergency alert. The storm forced the closure of Alicante Airport and some 30 roads in the eastern region.

UK LOOKS TO AFRICA FOR TRADE TIES AFTER BREXIT

London: British Prime Minister Boris Johnson and Prince Harry touted the UK as an ideal business partner for Africa on Monday as their country prepares for post-Brexit dealings with the world. But Britain faces tough challenges as it seeks to assert itself on a continent with several of the world's fastest-growing economies, and one whose youthful 1.2 billion population is set to double by 2050.

Trend Slazer

Amitabh unveils first look of Jhund

Actor AMITABH BACHCHAN treated his fans by sharing the first official poster of his forthcoming film Jhund.

First glimpse of #Jhund," Big B wrote on Instagram.

In the poster, Amitabh can be seen showing his back to the camera as he stares into what appears to be a dilapidated football field.

Directed by Nagraj Manjule, Jhund is reportedly based on the life of Vijay Barse, who is the founder of Slum Soccer. Amitabh plays the role of a professor who channelises the street children to build a soccer team.

The look of Big B has left his fans in awe of him.

'I have been making films based on horror and paranormal. But this time I chose to use a subject very close to reality by showcasing the real horror of matters in daily lives. In this age of social media, everybody is vulnerable to being hacked and nobody knows about it. It would just take one clever hacker to ruin our lives.'

Actor RAVEENA TANDON will be writing and producing a web series on multiple personality disorder.

The web-show will be in the psychological space and is based on the concept of split-personality.

"I am really excited for the world to see a story that I have worked very hard for. This web-series is a gripping story that I have written and it will surely keep the viewers on the edge of their seat. Concept-wise, this web-series is something very different I have tried. I just hope that people love it," Raveena said.

'My kids are sad that I didn't win'

Actor CHARLIZE THERON's children are not hopeful when it comes to her chances of winning at the 2020 Oscars.

Theron was nominated for the "Best Actress" prize for her role in Bombshell. But after already losing out at the Golden Globes and Critics' Choice Awards, her children aren't getting their hopes up for success. "It's been a thrilling couple of weeks. I was nominated for a Golden Globe. I was nominated for a Critics' Choice... Spoiler alert: I didn't win," she said.

She shared that her children were sad and angry when they found out that she lost at both awards shows.

A ROUND OF APPLAUSE FOR...

While Parasite made for a historic win and Robert De Niro talked against the blatant abuse of power, the 26th Annual Screen Actors Guild Awards made way for new faces and opinions to emerge and take the limelight

Off-camera and during commercials, the stars at the 26th annual Screen Actors Guild Awards got to rub shoulders, give congratulatory kisses, and meet for the first or the 50th time. Here are some of the more memorable moments from the Sunday night's ceremony

Party time for Parasite

The Parasite table was one of the happier places in the Shrine ballroom — and that was before its cast won the night's biggest award. Song Kang Ho and the film's other stars got whoops, whistles and a standing ovation from much of the room of mostly American actors early in the show, when they took the stage to present their nominated film. That was followed by a full-blown ovation at the end, when theirs became the first foreign-language film to win the best ensemble SAG Award. In between the two hours, the gleeful cast and director Bong Joon Ho, savoured their moment in the Hollywood spotlight, taking group selfies during every commercial break. They greeted a steady stream of fellow-actor fans, including Steve Buscemi. "I'm a little embarrassed," cast member Lee Sun Kyun said after the show through a translator. "We're feeling a little like the parasites of Hollywood now."

Some SAG stars loom larger than others

TV and film screens tend to obscure actors' heights, but when they're all in a room together it's very clear who looms over whom. The winners of the show's first two awards for actresses, Phoebe Waller-Bridge and Laura Dern, both reportedly five-foot-10, made it seem like the night was going to be dominated by the tallest nominees, but the trend ended there. The win of a much shorter Joaquin Phoenix — for Joker — over a reportedly 6-foot-3 Adam Driver for best actor in a film was more typical of the night. And the tallest actor and actress in the crowd, Stephen Merchant of Jojo Rabbit, who stands about 6-foot-7, and Gwendoline Christie of Game of Thrones, who stands about 6-foot-3, never got to take the stage with their casts, over whom they towered when they stood up during commercial breaks.

Lithgow visits driver's seat

John Lithgow

is even taller than Driver, and is nearly 40 years older, but it was Lithgow doing the looking up when the two met for the first time during a commercial break. Lithgow, nominated along with the rest of the cast of Bombshell, smiled and gushed to Driver, nominated for best actor for Marriage Story, expressing his admiration for Driver's run of recent performances. "Great to meet you Adam," Lithgow said with enthusiasm as the SAG Awards telecast returned from commercial and Lithgow rejoined Charlize Theron, Margot Robbie and his other cast mates at the neighbouring table.

Small stars scramble for SAG selfies

You could be excused for thinking it was "Take Our Daughters and Sons to Work Day" for the professional actors of the SAG Awards. Actually, the wee ones running around the ballroom were acting pros, too, on a night where children abounded among the nominees. The kid actors from Big Little Lies, including brothers Cameron and Nicholas Crovetti, were all over the ballroom during commercial breaks, taking photos with stars including their cast mates Nicole Kidman and Reese Witherspoon. Twelve-year-old Roman Griffin Davis sat proudly at his table like he utterly belonged alongside his fellow Jojo Rabbit cast members, who include Scarlett Johansson. Leonardo DiCaprio politely spoke to a steady stream of people excited to meet him during commercial breaks, but he positively beamed when his 10-year-old Once Upon a Time ... in Hollywood co-star Julia Butters, in a shiny silver suit, brought three young friends to meet him. He greeted each of them with a huge grin just moments before he lost out on best actor to Phoenix.

De Niro and Streep make SAG crowd swoon

If anyone inspired more awe in the ballroom than DiCaprio it was Robert

Robert De Niro

De Niro, to whom DiCaprio presented the "SAG Life Achievement Award" during the ceremony. Many major stars came to pay tribute to De Niro as he sat at a table that included his The Irishman co-stars Al Pacino and Harvey Keitel. But when Meryl Streep — his co-star in The Deer Hunter more than 40 years ago — stopped by to exchange kisses and kudos, photographers descended in droves and phone cameras came out on all sides to capture the meet-up of the pair that many regard as the greatest actor and actress of their generation.

Telling teleprompters

Virtually the entire ballroom can see the SAG Awards telecast's teleprompters if they look over their shoulder, and can see who's going off-script. When Ray Romano said while introducing the best ensemble nomination for The Irishman that he still couldn't believe he played a mob lawyer opposite De Niro and Keitel, Keitel roasted him by responding "I can't believe it either." Romano replied, "Hey, that's not up there," pointing at the teleprompter. Romano was right. It wasn't.

Rogers, Judy Garland are neighbours

Actors usually sit with their cast

Brad Pitt

Jennifer Aniston

mates at SAG Awards tables, but sometimes the seating chart yields more novel pairings, like the adjacent placement of Tom Hanks, nominated for A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood, and Renée Zellweger, nominated for Judy. The pairing made theirs a popular table for fans and cameras, and it proved prescient. They met up again onstage late in the show, when Hanks handed Zellweger the trophy for best actress in a film.

De Niro gets political as he accepts SAG Awards honour

De Niro received the "Screen Actors Guild lifetime achievement Award" to praise for his illustrious career and thunderous applause from his fellow performers, but spent much of his acceptance speech on politics.

"There's right and there's wrong, and there's common sense and there's abuse of power," said De Niro, who received a standing ovation that lasted nearly a minute after Leonardo DiCaprio presented him with the award. About half of the room stood and applauded when the actor said it was his responsibility to speak about politics and seemingly took aim at President Donald Trump, whose name he didn't mention. "As a citizen, I have as much right as anybody — an actor, an athlete, anybody else — to voice my opinion. And if I have a bigger voice because of my situation, I'm going to use it whenever I see a blatant abuse of power," he added. —AP

Revenge or money?

Actor ASIA KATE DILLON talks about the conflict between preserving an ethical centre and keeping a strong sense of identity in Billions Season 4. By TEAM VIVA

An you give us a rundown of how things were left in season 3 and what's new this season?

The scene where the third season left and the fourth picks up is that Taylor has left Axe capital, he is on the odds with not only Bobby but with Wendy and Ben Kim as well. The only person Taylor has on their side is the loyal Mafee, who as we know was the first person we saw Taylor with in season 2. So it's been quite an evolution for Taylor in particular.

What motivated Taylor's decision to pull the Axe capital?

At the beginning of season 3, Taylor was put in charge of Axe capital, while Bobby sorts out all his problems. They handle the ups and downs quite well. And we also see that Bobby becomes obsessed with saving his money and reputation. I also think Taylor gets swapped to their side because when he asks how to help Mafee, Axe tells him that they didn't need his help right now. Hence, Taylor starts feeling left out. Taylor is too smart to not see the moves ahead more than Axe does. Moreover, once Axe stepped in and ruined Taylor's relationship with Oscar for the sake of the business, that broke the trust and loyalty between Taylor and Axe.

It seems as if this season is about shifting loyalty. Who is loyal to Taylor? Whose loyalty did he break?

Loyalty is a huge theme in every season of Billions and particularly the fourth one. There are things from Taylor's past that are going to come up. I don't want to spoil anything but I think Taylor would like to be out of access line of fire.

Where do we pickup with Taylor at the beginning of this season?

At the beginning of season 4, Taylor runs his own company, dealing with the ups and downs of what it means to be in-charge of his own ship for the first time. So, during season 3 there is a scene between the two where Taylor really comes down hard on Axe about the money move that he wanted to make.

Taylor is playing a big game this season. I think he is the type of person who functions at their best when put under pressure. The pressure that comes from Axe and Axe Capital is just fuelling Taylor to work even more efficiently than ever. This time we get to see more about Taylor's past, specifically, in relation to his family.

What do you feel about the script of the show and what excites you the most?

Working in this show was really the best. The scripts are incredible, unexpected, exciting, entertaining and socially relevant. Though I work in the show, but as its fan I would say it makes for a great drama, which is exciting and entertaining.

What is Taylor's biggest conflict during this season?

I think Taylor's biggest conflict during season 4 is figuring out how to maintain moral ethical centre and a really strong sense of identity.

What motivates Taylor the most in season 4?

I'm weary of naming it, but I certainly think revenge or money. Also just wanting to be the best at what he does, which is trading since he is a mathematical genius. I think that's just the world that they live in and the only way that they know themselves.

(The show airs on AXN on every Saturday and Sunday at 10 pm.)

'Filmmakers not valued enough'

Actor Kangana Ranaut says being an actor is the most privileged job in our country while filmmakers are not as valued as they should be.

Kangana's observation came while she was commenting on the controversy that erupted when she took over the directorial reigns of her 2019 release, Manikarnika: The Queen Of Jhansi. She was in the capital to promote her forthcoming film Panga, directed by Ashwiny Iyer Tiwari.

"There was no panga. The director left the film and I completed it. It was just that. If I helped my producer and studio, toh us cheez ke liye mera sammaan hona chahiye (I should be revered for that). People should see I am so responsible. I got many brickbats and I am shocked," she said.

She then added: "I think being an actor on set is the most privileged job. (Being) a director, I am sorry to say, and even Ashwiny will agree with me, is not as valued as it should be. Filmmakers in our country, unlike America, are literally de-valued. This industry is of the actors."

Kangana also said that she wants to pursue her moviemaking ambitions. "There is a part of me that wants to pursue my filmmaking ambitions but if you ask me, it is a privilege to be an actor on the set — especially if your director is sorted," she added.

Panga also features Neena Gupta, Richa Chadha and Jassie Gill. The film, slated to hit screens on January 24, revolves around a kabaddi player, played by Kangana, who wants to make a comeback in the game after marriage and motherhood.

From grandma's stories to canvas

Ten works of GANESH PYNE, which will be showcased at the India Art Fair, revolve around his memories of Kolkata in the 1940s. By UMA NAIR

Recreating the anthologies written by iconic writers of Bengali literature, Kolkata-based Aakriti Art Gallery brings artist Ganesh Pyne's 10 drawings to the year's India Art Fair, setting a tone of 'less is more'. He showcases the 1982 illustrations for Shoborsher Roopkatha — 100 years of fairy tales. The authors include the Tagores to Ishwar Chandra Vidya Sagar to Sunil Gangopadhyay.

ROMANTICISM AND PLAY OF LIGHT

The 10 pen and ink works are not just about drawing but also the art of concealing rather than revealing. Pyne, the foremost exponent of the Bengal School of Art, was known for his ability to blend fantasy and romanticism along with an inventive play of light and dark. In Mone, we look at the labyrinths of the subconscious in the imagery of the young prince smelling the flowers. The expression of solitude and the narrative of simplicity both come together in the fine line detailing that he creates without being oppressive or overt.

SAAT BHAI CHAMPA

Pyne shapes his signature style of drawings with dulcet ease and effortlessness. The piece de resistance of the suite of works belongs to Saat Bhai Champa, the famous Bengali fairytale, which translates to Seven Champak flower brothers. Originally collected in the Thakurmar Jhuli (Grandmother's Bag of Stories), it received a detailed update in 1944.

The King gazing at the seven flowers offers us a scent of the story and we can imagine him in his garden. The king's robes, head dress, almond-shaped oriental eyes and the cross-hatching of the skies make us think of the sun leaning across its windows and sentient shadows nestling in its deep recesses, a spectacle of light and darkness enacted every day. As the king gazes at the seven flowers that finally become his seven sons, you can feel a hint of the radiation of a subtle magnetism. Pyne takes us back to the world of grandmother's tales which stimulated the wide-eyed wonder of children.

ENCHANTING ALLURE

Pori-ir Golpo is absolutely captivating for its compositional control and the strokes are as enchanting as the story. It makes one go back to the stories of how Pyne's grandmother narrated tales to him on the verandah of his home during the evenings in the 1940s. Pyne's imagination and sensitivity both come into play when you look closely at these drawings. It is said that as a result of listening to the stories, Pyne as a child artist was able to invent his own private mythology and familiar kingdom.

Questions come to our minds when we look at the drawings — What tales would a Bengali Hindu grandmother narrate in the early 1940s to her grandson? Epics, religious fables, folktales, and stories of valour and bravery and that of victory of the good over evil?

PYNE, THE PERSON

Essayist and critic Nanak Ganguly states, "Pyne's fascination with the fables and mythology in various settings depict not only a reality but primeval values about what an artist chooses to look at and his strong and subliminal feelings about it."

The beauty of these drawings is the fact that it gives us a window into the meticulous working of Pyne's hand and mind as in Rajkumar Poncho and Maniraj. We are also compelled to recall that Pyne as a painter worked mostly in tempera. His paintings were rich in imagery and symbolism.

One also recalls Pyne talking about his early life in a crumbling Kolkata mansion, his evenings in smoky cafes discussing communism and Picasso with friends. "My childhood memories revolve around Kolkata. The sounds and smells of this city fill my being. I love Kolkata," said Pyne in one of his exhibitions.

SOLITUDE AND STRUCTURE

Pyne's signature style has shaped from his own experiences of solitude, sight of sorrow, pathos of pain, heartened horror and tenderness and tranquility. At times, in these drawings, we see a minimalist resonance with poetic and lyrical annotations.

The contours and lines alternate between bold and soft, loose and controlled to give us a series that emerge in potency both in context and content. Stripped of colour, their monochromatic mood has about it an architectonic quality in the structuring of the imagery and the weaving in of the tale.

Equally enticing is the suggestion of his life's leanings—we recall how Pyne had drawn inspiration from movies made by Fellini and Ingmar Bergman. This booth is bound to ensnare you in the ambience of nostalgia.

(The fair starts from January 30 to February 2.)

A mere survival of the art is not the aim. The mission is to promote artists and their various art forms for the years to come and make them popular among the global audience.

Confluence: Celebrating India-Bangladesh Printmaking, organised by The Art Route, features a group of printmakers from both the nations who aim to promote the medium of creative expression, which has survived the test of time even after current technological advancement.

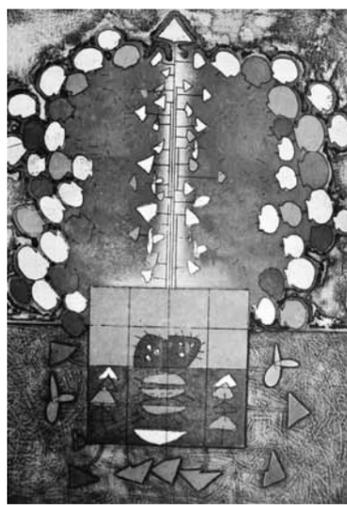

Lubna Sen, co-curator and organiser, says, "It has always been our endeavour to promote art forms which deserve a broader platform of recognition. The value of this art needs to be promoted through a framework of education, experimentation and patronage. Confluence was born out of this mission to create something collectively for printmaking to promote a deeper appreciation amongst the collectors and to extend its scope."

Artist Ananda Moy Banerji says that the artists will present a confluence of body, mind and soul. "Art, culture and sports are the three major wings of a great flight between any two borders and our "confluence" of prints will certainly open up a pragmatic and broader perspective."

Another main objective of the exhibition is to educate and inform connoisseurs and the public in general about printmaking. The term 'print' provides limited understanding for a generation, which is mostly used to the concept of digital

At the end of the festival, the team hopes to have generated appropriate value to the fine art of printmaking through a framework of experimentation, promotion and patronage. There will be a display of portfolio prints, history of printmaking in India. Participants will also organise curated walks of the show, workshops and camps on printmaking, research presentations on printmaking through seminars by senior art practitioners.

The Visual Art Gallery is set to exhibit works of 24 contemporary artists from India and Bangladesh who established a niche of their own with their virtuosity and commitment to the medium. The artworks showcased in the exhibition will include various techniques of printmaking — intaglio, relief, serigraphy, mix media — and will also stretch the traditional boundaries of printmaking into the realm of further experimentation.

NOVAK SURVIVES TOUGH STRUFF

AFP ■ MELBOURNE

Novak Djokovic survived a scare to join Roger Federer and Serena Williams in the Australian Open second round as heavy downpours caused chaos on Monday, forcing organisers to postpone a swathe of matches.

Defending champion Djokovic was made to sweat before beating Germany's Jan-Lennard Struff in four sets on the first day, when fears over air pollution were replaced by disruption caused by rain.

While play continued at the three stadiums with retractable roofs, half of the 64 scheduled matches were postponed, ensuring a big backlog for Tuesday.

Wet conditions are unusual for the Australian Open, which is more used to extreme heat and was plagued by smog from bushfires during qualifying, when players suffered coughing fits and breathing problems.

Air quality was rated 'good' as the first round started on Monday but about four hours later play was suspended on outside courts when the heavens opened in Melbourne.

World number three Federer was briefly hauled off court while the roof was closed on Rod Laver Arena before returning to complete a routine 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 victory over American Steve Johnson.

Williams, on the hunt for a record-equalling 24th Grand Slam title, won the first set against Anastasia Potapova in just 19 minutes tory. Former US Open champion Sloane Stephens was the biggest women's casualty on day one when she crashed out in three sets to Zhang Shuai of China — her fourth first-round exit in Melbourne.

SHAPOVALOV RACQUET ROW

Defending champion Naomi Osaka was done well before the downpour as she dismissed Marie Bouzkova of the Czech Republic 6-2, 6-4 in 80 minutes, smashing one powerful serve that broke a net fastener.

"It was really tough for me trying to control my nerves," said Osaka. "It's tough to play someone you've never played before in the first round of a Grand Slam."

Later on the covered centre court, Australian world number one Ashleigh Barty recovered strongly from a set down to beat Lesia Tsurenko 5-7, 6-1, 6-1.

In the men's draw, Greek sixth seed Stefanos Tsitsipas, who beat Federer en route to last year's semis, crushed Salvatore Caruso 6-0, 6-2, 6-3.

Player anger over smog dominated the final days before the tournament, which is taking place after bushfires ravaged large parts of Australia, destroying thousands of homes and killing 29 people.

Tournament officials are closely monitoring pollution and will halt play and close the three main stadiums' roofs if particulate matter suspended in the air hits PM2.5 200.

In other results, Canadian 13th seed Denis Shapovalov argued furiously with the umpire over a code violation for throwing his racquet as he lost in four sets to Marton Fucsovics.

Croatian 25th seed Borna Coric was another first-round loser as he went down to experienced American Sam Querrey, while Australia's Sam Stosur bombed out against Caty McNally.

But former champion Caroline Wozniacki, playing her last tournament before retiring, safely reached the second round as she beat Kristie Ahn 6-1, 6-3.

PSG see off plucky Lorient to reach French Cup last 16

Pablo Sarabia put Paris Saint-Germain into the last 16 of the French Cup on Sunday with the late winner in a tight 1-0 win over spirited Lorient.

Spaniard Sarabia headed home the only goal with 10 minutes remaining to put Thomas Tuchel's much-changed side into the next round after struggling to break Ligue 2 leaders Lorient down in an underwhelming contest.

They have been rewarded with a tie at third-tier Pau, who knocked out Ligue 1 side Bordeaux on Thursday.

PSG came into the match missing a host of injured stars including Edinson Cavani, Marco Verratti, Juan Bernat and Marquinhos, and with both Neymar and Kylian Mbappe on the bench the away side lacked creative spark despite the presence of in-form striker Mauro Icardi.

The French champions were lucky to go into the break level after Yoane Wissa somehow managed to head Jimmy Cabot's pinpoint cross wide from just a couple of yards out.

The second half continued to lack clear chances for either side, with Paul Nardi doing well to charge down Icardi's close range header in the 68th minute before pushing Pablo Sarabia's shot wide 11 minutes later.

However the 25-year-old could do nothing about Sarabia's header seconds later, the Spaniard beautifully guiding home Thiago Silva's cross to squeeze the top flight outfit into the next round.

Cristiano Ronaldo struck twice as Juventus beat Parma 2-1 to pull four points clear of Inter Milan at the top of the Serie A table.

Inter's title push hit another stumbling block after a 1-1 draw at lowly Lecce on Sunday while Ante Rebic fired city rivals AC Milan to a last gasp 3-2 win over Udinese.

Ronaldo broke through just before the break, to score in a seventh consecutive league game, and almost set up a second just after for Aaron Ramsey, but the Welsh international rattled the post.

Andreas Cornelius scored with a towering header to get seventh-placed Parma back level ten minutes after the break.

But the visitors hardly had time to celebrate when Ronaldo broke through again after latching onto a Paulo Dybala cross for his 11th goal in seven games to bring his league tally this season to 16.

The eight-time reigning champions have a four-point cushion on Inter, who have won only two of their last six league games, and are now also under threat from Lazio, who are just two points behind with a game in hand after hammering Sampdoria 5-1 on Saturday.

had looked set to take maximum points from his hometown team, where he started his footballing career in the 1980s, when Alessandro Bastoni headed the away side in front with 18 minutes remaining.

But Marco Mancosu grabbed a precious point for the southerners five minutes after going behind.

IBRA BOOST

Croatian forward Rebic hit a brace, including the stoppage time winner, against Udinese that gave troubled AC Milan back-to-back league victories and moved them up to eighth, two points from the Europa League spots.

Star striker Zlatan Ibrahimovic got his first start at the San Siro after scoring last weekend at Cagliari.

The 38-year-old Swede did not get to celebrate in front of the home crowd but he has provided a confidence-boost for the seven-time European champions, who have taken seven points in three matches since his return.

"The arrival of Ibrahimovic has given us even more depth and conviction, which has helped us," said coach Stefano Pioli.

Messi's strike ensure Quique starts Barca campaign with win

AFP ■ MADRID

Quique Setien may want a different Barcelona but he needed the same old Lionel Messi on Sunday as the Argentinian gave his new coach a winning start by scoring in a 1-0 victory over Granada.

Messi's strike in the 76th minute decided a cagey contest at the Camp Nou and prevented the much-anticipated launch of Setien's new era becoming something of a damp squib.

Victory also sends Barca back to the top of La Liga on goal difference, after Madrid had briefly claimed first place following their win over Sevilla on Saturday.

I already saw some of them against Atletico (last weekend) because Barca has been doing great things for many years." It would have been different if Granada's Yan Eteki hadn't struck the post with just over 20 minutes left or their central defender German Sanchez had been sent off for a needless second yellow card soon after.

The extra man was the boost Barca needed and Messi duly poked home his 17th goal in 21 games this season following good work by Arturo Vidal, Antoine Griezmann and the 20-year-old Riqui Puig.

All three had reasons to impress, particularly Puig, whose inclusion on the bench was an early indication of Setien's belief in youth. Puig's contribution after coming on should mean more opportunities are to come.

Setien said last week that if he could make one guarantee, it was that Barca would play good football while he is in charge and although few could argue this was a transformative display following the sacking of Ernesto Valverde, there were certainly some encouraging signs.

Need to improve one-on-one tackling: Reid

PTI ■ BHUBANESWAR

Indian men's hockey team chief coach Graham Reid feels his wards need to improve their "one-on-one" tackling and 3D skills ahead of the FIH Pro League ties against Belgium and Australia.

The Indian team made a dream debut at the FIH Pro League, beating world number three Netherlands 5-2 in the first tie of the double header on Saturday. The hosts then came from two goals down to beat the Dutch 3-1 in shoot-out after the second game ended 3-3 in regulation time.

India garnered five points (3 from the outright win and 2 from the second game) from their opening

Pro League tie.

India will next host world champions Belgium on February 8 and 9 followed by two more home ties against Australia on February 22 and 23.

"The good thing was we struggled to win this (second) match and sometimes, it's good to struggle for a win because you learn a lot and also it is a proof that if we apply ourselves and use some aggressiveness, we can bounce back," Reid said.

"I still feel our one-on-one tackling can improve and we have also been working on 3D (three dimensional) skills to beat players in short space.

"This can help create penalty corners and when you have a world-class dragflick battery, we can definitely make use of this."

It was at the 2015 FIH Hockey World League Final in Raipur when India had managed to overcome a 0-2 goal deficit in the first half to draw against the Netherlands 5-5 in regulation time before prevailing in a penalty shootout to secure the bronze medal.

And dragflicker Rupiner Pal Singh, who scored a goal on Sunday, said the team has matured a lot in the last two years.

"If this probably happened to us two years ago (conceding early goals), we may not have been able to make a comeback. But I think we have now matured, players are taking responsibility and adhering to coach's instruction of 'tackle and play forward'," he said.

"There is definitely a change in attitude on how we approach a game even when we are down," added the dragflicker, who was adjusted man-of-the-match on Sunday.

Virat confident of good show in NZ

Citing recent result Indian skipper says his team will try to put Black Caps under pressure from start

PTI ■ BENGALURU

A series win against a strong Australia and the performance in New Zealand last year gives India a lot of confidence ahead of a fresh tour beginning on January 24, said skipper Virat Kohli whose team will be aiming to put the Black Caps under pressure from the word go.

India will be playing five T20s, three ODIs and two Tests in New Zealand. They had beaten the hosts 4-1 in ODIs before losing the T20 series 1-2.

"We are taking a lot of confidence from our performance (in NZ) last year. We were very positive in how we played, very sure of what we wanted to do. The thing about playing away is if you're able to put the home team under pressure, you can enjoy your cricket," Kohli said.

"You have to win at home, there's that sort of feeling (for hosts). So if you bring out your A game, you can really put them under pressure. That's what we did last year, squeezed them in the middle overs, picked up wickets, spinners were outstanding. Looking forward to take that same intensity into the series."

Ahead of the New Zealand tour, Kohli said it became even more important to win the home series against Australia here on Sunday. The team leaves for New Zealand on Monday night.

"We spoke of that at the huddle, that this is the last game we're playing in the series and if we win, you go on a tour on a happy note. If you lose, it can go under the radar, you can brush it aside as 'oh it's just one loss'."

"But when you win and win under pressure, the last two games were tough wins, it boosts your confidence which we're carrying forward," he said.

On the limited overs leg of the New Zealand tour, Kohli picked out the areas of improvement.

"Again, we want to bat well when

Virat Kohli bats during the third one-day international cricket match between India and Australia we bat first and in case we're defending a low total, we should be able to do that as well. We can't afford to ease into the series after two games, because then it keeps getting tougher and tougher, so we'll look to make a mark in the first game that we play," he said.

The skipper loves playing against Australia as it brings the best out of him. He explained why he relishes the Australian challenge.

"Last year (at home) after 2-0 up, we thought we're definitely going to win one of the three at home, but they showed us that they understand these conditions very well now (to win 3-2), having played here a lot in the IPL and so many tours over the years," Kohli said.

"So, although they had a stronger side (with Steve Smith and David Warner back) than last time, we thought if we play good enough, we can beat this team. The only thing we needed to be wary of was our body language and intent because that's Australia's strongest point.

"All the teams in the world are skilled but these guys play with the intent of making things happen every over you play against them. So you can't take your foot off the pedal at all, that's what we've done in the last two games. The partnerships that I mentioned today, even the singles were taken with intent," said Kohli.

India raced to victory in the series-deciding third ODI against Australia, courtesy fine knocks from Kohli himself and Rohit Sharma. They both could not stay till the end but the finishing touches were provided by Shreyas Iyer, who remained unbeaten on 44.

"I don't think he's (Iyer) going to have any issues anymore because he really went after their best bowlers and got the results. It took pressure off of me as well not having to take risks and the other guy striking at 140-145. I think it was really smart how we went about it" Kohli added.

Kohli, Rohit consolidate top batting positions

PTI ■ DUBAI

India captain Virat Kohli and his deputy Rohit Sharma consolidated their top two positions in the batting chart, while pace ace Jasprit Bumrah continued to lead among bowlers in the ICC ODI Rankings issued on Monday.

Following their stellar performances against Australia in the just-concluded series, which India won 2-1, Kohli (No.1) and Rohit (No.2) have strengthened their positions.

With 183 runs under his belt against Australia, Kohli was the player-of-the-series while Rohit was a close second, garnering 171 runs in the rubber, including a match-winning 119 in the deciding ODI in Bengaluru on Sunday.

Kohli (886 points) and Rohit (868 points) have gained two and three ratings points, respectively to occupy the top two positions in the batting rankings.

Left-handed opener Shikhar Dhawan has also gained seven slots to reach 15th position with 170 runs in two innings, missing a chance to bat in Bengaluru after injuring his shoulder while fielding. K L Rahul, who opened in his place in the final ODI, has gained 21 slots to reach 50th position with an aggregate of 146 runs.

Bumrah, who returned from injury in the Australia series, is atop the bowlers chart with 764 points, ahead of New Zealand left-arm pacer Trent Boult and Afghanistan's Muejeb Ur Rahman. South Africa's Kagiso Rabada and Australian Pat Cummins complete the top five.

India all-rounder Ravindra Jadeja has moved up two slots to be 27th among bowlers after finishing with four wickets in the series.

He also scored 45 runs in two innings and has gained four places in the all-rounders' list to be ranked 10th.

Australian Steve Smith, who topped the series with an aggregate of 229 runs including a knock of 131 in the final ODI, has been rewarded with a four-place jump to 23rd position.

David Warner, a former top-ranked batsman in the format, has also moved up one place to sixth while captain Aaron Finch has moved up one place into 10th.

Wicketkeeper Alex Carey is in 31st position after gaining two slots.

Leg-spinner Adam Zampa's five wickets in the series saw him advance 20 places to reach 37th position, while Kane Richardson has moved from 77th to 65th.

Kohli greatest ODI player of all-time: Finch

PTI ■ BENGALURU

Australian captain Aaron Finch has rated his Indian counterpart Virat Kohli as "probably" the greatest ODI player of all-time, while picking Rohit Sharma in the top-five.

Rohit (119) scored his 29th ODI hundred and Kohli made 89 off 91 balls as they shared a match-winning stand of 137 in the decisive third game against Australia here on Sunday.

For Finch, what stood out was that India overhauled the 287-run target with ease despite opener Shikhar Dhawan not coming out to bat due to a shoulder injury.

"They've got Virat who is probably the greatest ODI player of all-time, and Rohit who'd probably be in the top five batters of all-time. They're exceptional, and the thing with the Indian side at the moment is their experienced players are getting the job done in the big games," Finch said.

"Rohit's 100, especially without Shikhar there tonight, for them to shuffle and their two most dominant players to still get majority of the runs is a sign of a really settled and really quality top-order," said Finch.

Australia could not get the final flourish they were looking for, mustering only 63 runs in the last 10 overs at the loss of five wickets, far too many in Finch's view.

"In the last two games we have had the bowlers batting for the majority of the last few overs. Which we saw in Rajkot the damage that KL (Rahul) could do in the back end because he was a settled batter. I think that's an area we just missed a couple of tricks.

"Just not having an in batter being in and having faced 20 or 30 balls to get us deeper and get us to the back end," Finch said.

He also praised India's death over bowling at the same time.

"But credit to India, their death bowling in the last few games was exceptional. (Mohammed) Shami was nailing his yorkers, (Navdeep) Saini in the last two games and (Jasprit) Bumrah. In both games they were exceptional.

You can look at where we could have improved but also that you've got some credit to India," said Finch.

England team celebrate taking the wicket of Rassie van der Dussen

AFP ■ PORT ELIZABETH

England completed a comprehensive win by an innings and 53 runs on the fifth day of the third Test against South Africa at St George's Park on Monday, taking an unbeatable 2-1 lead in the four-match series.

England were held up by a last wicket stand of 99 between Keshav Maharaj (71) and Dane Paterson (39 not out) and it needed a direct-hit run-out by Sam Curran from mid-on to clinch the result shortly before lunch. South Africa were bowled out for 237.

The partnership between Maharaj and Paterson was easily South Africa's best of the match and showed up an otherwise poor batting performance by the hosts.

South Africa added 135 runs in losing their last four wickets, which seemed unlikely when Vernon Philander chipped a catch to midwicket off Stuart Broad three balls into the day.

Mark Wood and Dom Bess also took wickets but England captain Joe Root could not add to his four wickets taken on Sunday, conceding 56 runs in 10 overs on Monday to finish with four for 87.

TRIUMPH

Maharaj hit Root for three fours and two sixes in an over which ended with four byes, costing 28 in total.

Despite the late face-saving flourish for the hosts, it was a result which was a triumph for England's youth policy, while the way South Africa were outplayed was a devastating blow for captain Faf du Plessis and new coach Mark Boucher.

Even before Monday's last rites there was speculation about Du Plessis' future. He has expressed his desire to lead South Africa in the T20 World Cup in Australia in October and November, by which time he will be 36.

It seems possible that the fourth Test in Johannesburg from Friday could be his last home series in charge.

It was South Africa's seventh defeat in their last eight Tests, the only exception being their win in the first Test against England when it seemed that radical changes in the team management might have heralded a new dawn.

Tiripano strikes early to give Zimbabwe edge

AFP ■ HARARE

AFP ■ HARARE

Donald Tiripano struck early to remove Oshada Fernando and complete an excellent second day of the first Test for Zimbabwe against Sri Lanka in Harare.

The 31-year-old seamer had earlier made a handy 44 not out batting at number eight as Zimbabwe advanced from their overnight 189 for two to 358 all out.

Left-arm spinner Lasith Embuldeniya, playing in his sixth Test, was the stand-out bowler with five for 114.

When bad light stopped play for the day, Sri Lanka had reached 42 for the loss of Fernando who had his off stump flattened by Tiripano's very first delivery.

The day began with Zimbabwe Craig Ervine well set on 55 and looking for his third Test century.

The 34-year-old progressed comfortably to 85 until pace bowler Suranga Lakmal nipped one through his defence shortly before lunch.

It was the third wicket to fall during the morning as Lakmal also produced a full inswinging to leave Brendan Taylor leg before for 21 and Zimbabwe captain Sean Williams edged left-arm spinner Embuldeniya to Niroshan Dickwella behind the stumps.

The left-arm spinner removed Regis Chakabva shortly after lunch but Sikandar Raza and Tiripano then both settled in.

Raza fell for a flighty 41, stumped by Dickwella as he charged at Embuldeniya, who also bowled Jarvis.

Ndlovu was brilliantly snapped up at short-leg by Kusal Mendis off Lahiru Kumara. Lakmal dismissed last man Victor Nyauchi just after the delayed break to finish with three for 53, leaving Tiripano undefeated on 44.

Simmons blasts 10 sixes as WI rout Ireland

AFP ■ BASSETERRE (SAINT KITTS AND NEVIS)

Opening batsman Lendl Simmons blasted 10 sixes in an undefeated 91 as West Indies routed Ireland by nine wickets in the third and final Twenty20 International at Warner Park here on Sunday.

Simmons, the nephew of West Indies coach Phil Simmons, also hit five boundaries in his 40-ball blitz. It was his highest score in the format and came just five days before his 35th birthday.

Chasing a modest 139 to win, Simmons won the match in style with a six over midwicket off spinner Simi Singh whose three overs cost 41 runs.

Fellow opener Evin Lewis made 46 with four boundaries and three sixes as West Indies raced to victory with 54 balls remaining.

The three-match series ended 1-1 after Ireland edged a first-game thriller by four runs in Grenada before Saturday's match at Warner Park was abandoned due to rain. Earlier, veteran all-rounders Kieron Pollard and Dwayne Bravo shared six wickets as West Indies restricted Ireland to 138 all out. Captain Pollard, who produced the best bowling spell by a West Indian in T20 internationals (4-25) in Saturday's abandoned game, claimed 3-17.

Bravo finished with 3-19 to become the West Indies' leading all-time wicket-taker in the format with 57 victims in his 69th game. That beat the previous best of 54 by leg-spinner Samuel Badree.

Put into bat, Ireland raced to 50-0 off just 3.3 overs with openers Kevin O'Brien (top scoring with 36) and Paul Stirling again getting their team off to a storming start. However, Pollard dismissed O'Brien after the Irishman hit his runs off only 18 balls with Bravo then accounting for Stirling (11).

Ishant's injury adds to Delhi woes as Vidarbha take complete control

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Delhi's miserable season just got worse as premier speedster Ishant Sharma twisted his ankle after another woeful outing with the bat against defending champions Vidarbha in a Ranji Trophy group A encounter on Monday.

On a helpful track, former India U-19 seamer Aditya Thakare's career-best 7 for 55 restricted Delhi to 163 in reply to visitors' first innings score of 179.

By the time, play was called off due to bad light, Vidarbha were 35 for no loss as the track got easier for batting.

Vidarbha now have an overall lead of 51 but more importantly, the pitch has eased out. With a bowler short and the wily artist Wasim Jaffer longing for an easy second innings pitch, Delhi at the moment is looking down the barrel. And it didn't help Delhi's cause

YADAV'S DOUBLE TON FLOORS MUMBAI

Mumbai: Batsman-wicketkeeper Upendra Yadav's maiden double ton propelled Uttar Pradesh to a mammoth 625/8 declared on the second day of their Elite Group B Ranji Trophy game against Mumbai on Monday.

Twenty-three-year-old Yadav was the cynosure of all eyes at Wankhede Stadium as he took a listless Mumbai attack to the cleaners first in the company of Saurabh Kumar (44 off 47 balls; 8x4) and then with skipper Ankit Rajpoot (32 off 63 balls; 5x4) and Yash Dayal (41 not out).

Yadav (203 not out off 239 balls) conjured 72 runs for the seventh wicket with Saurabh to take the game away from Mumbai, and then forged a 119-run eight-wicket stand with Rajpoot, as Uttar Pradesh took complete control. Adding to Mumbai's woes, Yadav and Dayal put up an unbroken 131-run stand for the ninth wicket.

Yadav, who registered the highest score by a number 7 batsman against Mumbai, smashed 27 fours and one six in his 239 balls unbeaten knock.

TIWARY TRIPLE TON TO PUT BENGAL ON TOP

Kalyani (WB): Senior batsman Manoj Tiwary cracked his maiden first class triple century to put Bengal in the driver's seat against Hyderabad in their Ranji Trophy Group A clash here on Monday.

The 34-year-old, who has played 12 ODIs and 3 T20 Internationals, was at his sublime best, smashing 30 fours and five sixes, en route to his unbeaten 303 from 414 balls at a strike rate of 73.19. His marathon knock lasted 10 hours and 30 minutes.

His final 50 came off just 37 balls as he got to the landmark in the fourth ball of the final session of the second day, gliding part-timer Buddhi Rahul through covers boundary. Bengal immediately declared their first innings at 635 for seven.

Tiwary, who last played for India in 2015, also became the only second batsman from Bengal to hit a triple ton — after Devang Gandhi's 323 versus Assam at Guwahati in 1998-99 season. His previous best was 267 as Bengal skipper against Madhya Pradesh in a drawn encounter in Kolkata in 2011-12 season.

After Tiwary's sensational innings, it was time for Bengal pace duo of Akash Deep (3/46) and Mukesh Kumar (2/29) to wreak havoc as they reduced Hyderabad to 83 for five in the final session. Hyderabad still trail Bengal by 552 runs with two days left.
