Kerala Assembly passes resolution against Centre's move to grant citizenship to foreigners

The Kerala Assembly on Tuesday passed a resolution calling for a ban on the Citizenship (Amendment) Act and the National Register of Citizens, after Home Minister Amit Shah, who had on Monday declared that the bill was "already implemented," was given a standing ovation in the Assembly.

The resolution was moved by Left and Democratic Students’ Federation of Kerala (LDS) leader Nadeem and Ashfaq of the People’s Front for India (PFI), a radical political outfit, and seconded by Maurya, a leader of the People’s Democratic Party (PDP). A high-level meeting of the leaders of 14 parties, who are against any law on Article 370, was held in New Delhi on Sunday.

“Today is a black day for the opposition in India; the Centre’s so-called resolution was passed in the Assembly,” Nadeem said.

The Centre had moved the resolution in Lok Sabha on Monday, which was passed by voice vote.

S-I bullies Kashmiri dry fruit sellers

Lucknow (PNS): The Kashmiri fruit vendors on Saturday accused after a sub-urban police station at Aliganj, a large number of Kashmiri fruit vendors gathered near the police station and started a protest against the police actions. The protesters claimed that they were being picked up by the police and kept in police stations without any reason. The police denied the allegations and said that they were only maintaining law and order.

Karni Singh, a leader of the fruit vendors, said that the police were using excessive force against them. "We are not protesting against the police, but against their misuse of power," he said. "We are not trying to create any trouble, but we want to protect our livelihood and our rights." He added that the police had been causing a lot of inconvenience to the fruit vendors by picking them up and detaining them without any legal basis.

The police, on the other hand, rejected the allegations and said that they were acting in a professional and a legal manner. "We are not picking up anyone arbitrarily," said SP Ramananda Prasad. "We are only maintaining law and order and ensuring that the fruit vendors do not create any trouble for the residents of the area." He added that the police had been maintaining a strict vigil on the area and had not let any illegal activities take place.

The situation remained tense for some time, but eventually, the police were able to control the situation and the protesters dispersed. The fruit vendors were left dissatisfied and vowed to continue their protest if their demands were not met.

LU’s Social Work Dept first in country to award PhD

Research studies show a significant rise in the number of social workers pursuing higher education in the country. The Lucknow University’s Social Work Department, which was established in 1965, has emerged as a leader in this field.

According to the department, it has awarded the first PhD in Social Work to a student in 2018. The PhD was awarded to an individual who had completed a three-year course in Social Work and had conducted original research on a topic relevant to the field.

The department head said that the department was proud of this achievement and that it reflected the quality of education offered by the university. "The PhD is a recognition of the hard work and dedication put in by our students," he said.

The department has been offering courses in Social Work for over 50 years and has produced numerous graduates who have gone on to become leaders in the field.

"We are committed to providing the best possible education to our students and are proud to have produced such a talented individual," said the department head.

The department is one of the few in the country to offer a PhD in Social Work and is likely to set a trend for other institutions to follow.

"It is a proud moment for us and for the field of Social Work," said the department head.

The department has also been successful in placing its graduates in leading organizations and institutions across the country.

"Our graduates are highly sought after and are making a difference in their respective fields," said the department head.

The department is looking forward to continuing its success in providing high-quality education and research to the field of Social Work.

Indian states should consider setting up a land bank of surplus land

India has a large amount of surplus land that can be put to better use. However, the lack of proper utilization of this land is a cause of concern. Therefore, the Indian states should consider setting up a land bank of surplus land.

A land bank can be an effective tool to promote the use of surplus land. It can be used to allocate land to various sectors such as agriculture, industry, and urban development. By setting up a land bank, the state government can ensure that the land is used in a way that maximizes its potential.

The land bank can be managed by a designated agency that can be appointed by the state government. The agency should have the authority to acquire, register, and dispose of land. It should also have the power to negotiate with stakeholders and ensure that the land is used in a way that is beneficial to all.

The land bank can be used to promote the use of surplus land in various ways. For example, the state government can allocate land to farmers for cultivation or to industries for setting up manufacturing units. The land bank can also be used to create urban infrastructure such as roads, parks, and recreational spaces.

The land bank can also be used to promote the use of surplus land for social welfare purposes. The state government can allocate land to non-profit organizations for setting up schools, hospitals, and other social welfare institutions.

In conclusion, the Indian states should consider setting up a land bank of surplus land. This can help optimize the use of surplus land and make it beneficial to all. By setting up a land bank, the state government can ensure that the land is used in a way that maximizes its potential and benefits all stakeholders.

In a resolution at its special Assembly, the TPM said the government has not taken action even after the withdrawal of the Act. The party has also targeted the government in the run-up to the Assembly election scheduled for January 2023.

Meanwhile, the Congress leader said the party’s demand for the withdrawal of the Act was not for the “whole country” but for the State of Assam. He alleged that the government was planning to scrap the Act after a few years.

The party leader also accused the government of silencing all opposition voices by passing the Citizenship (Amendment) Act through a division in the Rajya Sabha, while the Bill was passed in the Lok Sabha. He said the government was using a “double standard” to ensure the enactment of the law.

Khabar: Jharkhand CM Raghubar Das said his government's policy was to improve the economy and ensure a better quality of life for the people of Jharkhand. He also announced a hike in minimum wages and the introduction of new schemes to benefit the people.

According to the sector's GDP growth slipped further to 6.1% in the second quarter of 2019, according to the government's National Accounts Statistics released on Tuesday. The current account deficit is the difference between foreign exchange earnings and foreign exchange payments. It stood at $5.12 billion in the second quarter and $19.10 billion in the June quarter.

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) said it had raised the policy rate to 5.15% from 5% to tackle inflationary pressures. The central bank has been raising interest rates since August 2018 in response to rising inflation. The state-owned Reserve Bank of India is an autonomous body governed by a governor appointed by the government.

A few days ago, the government announced the withdrawal of the Citizenship (Amendment) Act, which had been passed by the Lok Sabha in August. The move was welcomed by the opposition parties and the Congress, which had been demanding the withdrawal of the law for months. The Citizenship (Amendment) Act was passed by the Lok Sabha in August and later passed by the Rajya Sabha.

Arrest the widening gulf

2019 is ending on a sombre note — the economy is in a shambles and the pandemic is as never before. The Modi-Shah duo must discard its Hindu project for a better year ahead.

Ashok K. Mehra

looking back at 2019, the defining story was the decline of India’s economy. The GDP growth rate was on a free fall, with the third quarter reporting a rate of 4.5%, the lowest in six years. The government’s own admission was that the country is facing its worst economic crisis since independence.

The Prime Minister, who has repeatedly said that the country is facing a temporary slowdown, found himself admitting that the challenges are serious and that the best way to deal with them is to maintain fiscal discipline.

It is not that India’s huge potential is being squandered. The country has a vibrant banking sector and, with the help of the International Monetary Fund (IMF), it has successfully managed to avoid a sovereign default. The government has also taken steps to improve the ease of doing business in the country. But the problem is that these steps are too little and too late.

The government has taken some steps to boost the economy, including a cut in corporate taxes and a reduction in the rate of goods and services tax. But these measures have not had the desired impact.

The government’s failure to implement a national health insurance scheme has also been a major disappointment. The scheme was supposed to cover all citizens, but it has so far covered only a small fraction of the population.

The government has also failed to address the issue of water scarcity. The country is facing a severe water crisis, with many states reporting a shortage of water.

The government has also failed to address the issue of urbanization. The country is facing a severe urban crisis, with many cities reporting a shortage of housing.

The government has also failed to address the issue of education. The country is facing a severe education crisis, with many students reporting a shortage of education.

The government has also failed to address the issue of inequality. The country is facing a severe inequality crisis, with many people reporting a shortage of equality.

Let us hope that the government will take the necessary steps to address these issues in 2020.
Alleys on Delhi polls in new year

The lower and middle classes are happy with the AAP government as they are satisfied with their wage and bread and butter issues are tackled. While it is easy to predict anything, it is difficult to predict anything about the delhi polls in new year. AAP government is fighting against various parties in these elections and there is a lot of competition among them. AAP, Congress, and BJP are the major political parties that are contesting the Delhi Assembly elections. AAP is led by Arvind Kejriwal, Congress is led by Sushilkumar Shinde, and BJP is led by Manoj Tiwari. The election is scheduled for February 8, 2020, and counting will be done on February 10, 2020.

The issue of unemployment, inflation, and corruption have been the main issues in the upcoming Delhi Assembly elections. The AAP government has promised to provide free electricity to the poor, free education to all, and free healthcare to the poor. The Congress government has promised to reduce dowry and child marriage. The BJP government has promised to reduce the price of petrol and diesel. All these promises have made the voters more aware of the political parties and made them vote according to their ideas and beliefs.

On the other side, the AAP government has won the trust of the people by providing free electricity, free education, and free healthcare to the poor. The government has also promised to reduce the price of petrol and diesel. The people of Delhi are happy with the AAP government and are likely to vote for them in the upcoming elections. The Congress and the BJP are struggling to win the votes of the people. The AAP government has a good chance of winning the upcoming elections and forming the government in Delhi.

French official surprised after Ghosn flees Japan

Paris (AP) — A senior official at France’s economics ministry on Monday praised a French hotel where Carlos Ghosn was staying, saying it was “not surprising” by the flight of information regarding the former Renault and Nissan boss. The official said he was not aware of the police. Ghosn said he had fled in a “crazy” way, but did not deny having left Japan on Friday. The Ghosn case has slammed the auto industry and businesses globally. It has been argued that the former manager of Renault, Nissan, and Mitsubishi Motors had been charged with financial misconduct allegations.

Ghosn had been released on bail pending his trial, which is still awaiting a new trial date but was not allowed to leave the country. He declined his arrest in a statement, saying he had been targeted because of his hoped-for run for the top job at Nissan.

“I am not in Lebanon and would like to reassure my family and friends that I have not fled justice,” Ghosn said in a statement. “I am in contact with my legal advisors, who are in the process of formalizing my resignation from several companies, and a hotel in Lebanon where I am currently staying.”

The state prosecutor’s office said it had no information about Ghosn leaving the country.

South Korean prosecutors indict Moon’s key ally over corruption

South Korean prosecutors on Monday indicted the future minister for defense, security and public safety, an ally of President Moon Jae-in, on corruption charges.

Moon’s ally, Oh Se-jung, has been charged with bribery, abuse of power and other criminal charges.

The future defense minister, who had been appointed last month by the president, is accused of accepting bribes from a defense contractor and using his influence to secure a favorable contract for the company.

China, Iran ministers meet, criticize ‘bullying practices’

Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi and Iran’s Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif met in Beijing on Thursday.

Wang said that China and Iran had reached a “new consensus” in the bilateral relationship.

Zarif said that Iran-China cooperation was “not a zero-sum game” and that both countries should work together to achieve mutual development and prosperity.

North Korea’s Kim calls for ‘military countermeasures’

North Korean leader Kim Jong-un has called for “strong military countermeasures” in a new speech.

Kim’s speech came amid increased tensions with the United States, which has recently increased military exercises near the Korean Peninsula.

Kim said that North Korea would not be deterred by any military actions and would continue to develop its own defense capabilities.

Huawei thanks Indian Govt for 5G trials’ permission

Huawei has thanked the Indian government for granting permission for the company to participate in the 5G trials.

The company has been banned from participating in the 5G trials in several countries, including the United States and Australia.

Huawei has been a target of Western governments, which have accused the company of being a security risk.

2019: India deepens strategic ties with South Africa

India and South Africa have been strengthening their bilateral relationship in various sectors.

India and South Africa have signed several agreements, including a cooperative program in space research, a joint venture to build a nuclear reactor, and an agreement on the sharing of sensitive security-related information.

The two countries have also been discussing the possibility of jointly developing a new generation of fighter aircraft.

India has been a major arms importer from South Africa, and the two countries have been exploring the possibility of joint production of defense equipment.
Iraqi supporters of Iran-backed militia attack US Embassy

Washington says Baghdad fell to protect Americans

Iraqi Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi broke a years-long silence and apologized yesterday for the death of US ambassador Joseph C. Wilson IV in 2006, saying it was done in self-defense and not in response to US military operations.

"We deeply regret the death of the US ambassador in Iraq," Abadi said in a televised address. "This was an act of self-defense by Iraqis who were protecting themselves from harm caused by US military operations." He added that the incident was "a result of the conflict that has been going on for years between US military forces and the Iraqi people who support Iran and its allies." Abadi promised to take "all necessary measures" to prevent further incidents and to hold those responsible accountable.

US officials have not yet responded to Al-Abadi's apology, but a State Department spokesperson said the US remains committed to protecting its citizens in Iraq.

Meanwhile, a group of Iraqi protesters has taken to the streets in Baghdad, demanding the closure of the US embassy, which they see as a symbol of foreign interference in Iraq's affairs. The protesters have set up a makeshift camp outside the embassy and are blocking the main road leading to it.

US officials have warned that any attempt to disrupt the embassy could lead to a rapid military response.

Nuclear tests: US ends embargo on Iraq

The US has decided to lift its embargo on Iraq's nuclear program, a move that could allow the country to begin building nuclear weapons.

The decision, announced by the White House on Monday, is a significant departure from previous US policy and could have far-reaching implications for the global nonproliferation regime.

According to the decision, the US will no longer consider Iraq a state sponsor of terrorism and will remove it from its list of countries that are subject to nuclear sanctions.

The US had imposed the sanctions after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait in 1990, but the sanctions were lifted in 2003 following the US-led invasion of Iraq.

The US has been under increasing pressure from the international community to lift the sanctions, which are seen as counterproductive.

The decision is likely to be met with mixed reactions, with some calling it a step in the right direction and others warning that it could embolden Iraq to pursue its nuclear ambitions.

India's strategic partnership with the US:

India and the US have announced a new strategic partnership, aimed at enhancing bilateral cooperation in defense, energy, and other areas.

The partnership, announced during a visit by US Secretary of State John Kerry to New Delhi, is the result of months of negotiations and is seen as a key component of the US strategy to contain China's growing influence in Asia.

Under the partnership, the two countries will cooperate on defense technology, intelligence sharing, and joint military exercises.

India has also announced that it will purchase $3 billion worth of US defense equipment, including drones, helicopters, and missiles.

The partnership is expected to boost US-India trade and investment, with the US promising to help India develop its defense and technology sectors.

India's nuclear deal with the US:

India and the US have signed a new nuclear deal, aimed at strengthening bilateral cooperation in the field of nuclear energy.

The deal, signed during a visit by US President Barack Obama to New Delhi, is seen as a key step in improving relations between the two countries and in addressing concerns over India's nuclear program.

Under the deal, the US will provide India with advanced nuclear technology and will facilitate the transfer of nuclear material.

The deal is expected to boost US-India trade and investment, with the US promising to help India develop its nuclear energy sector.

Given the current financial situation in the current business landscape, internship completion has been observed to yield superior productivity, induced student welfare, and increased career opportunities. It is essential to understand that the significance of managing and catering to the ever-evolving work culture is crucial.

But, in today’s ever-evolving work culture, monetary compensation on a high employee engagement is required for effective use of talent. Why?

Where does Customer relationship management (CRM) come into play?

CRM comes as a need for elevated employee engagement. CRM assists in the modern-day business environment in providing a platform for businesses to connect with customers. It aids in helping businesses to understand the needs of their customers and to meet them accordingly.

Integration

In this age of digitization, across industries and sectors, businesses flourish. Hence, the need for technology to scale a growth is observed. For the same reason, CRM systems are constantly being updated and upgraded to keep up with this ever-evolving business growth. Unlike traditional CRM technology, the modern work culture calls for CRM integration with analytics that are essential for businesses, transact alike, and report the business activities.

This new approach allows companies to have access to real-time data, thus bringing a higher level of (convenience).

Power of AI

All CRM activities are now automated, which has expectedly boosted global businesses in terms of growth. AI, which took off in 2011, has been a noticeable trend, and today, this robust technology is providing full-fledged support to CRM activities.

So, is CRM revolutionizing employment?

CRM is transforming into a more significant role today in an organization. CRM is now beyond the idea of scoring well and focusing on the age-old practice of rote learning and memorization. It is now helping students visually understand concepts, making them more engaging, effective, and fulfilling.

Gamification

A fresh approach to schooling, the sea change in the education sector, replacing traditional methods of teaching with gamification — it is clear how schools are transforming. Students are no longer restricting themselves to the classroom. They have the freedom to learn whenever and wherever they want. CRM is all set to become a part of the classroom.

Moyes confident he will make West Ham beg him to stay

AFP

Swedish star Zlatan Ibrahimovic will be officially unveiled on Saturday as the new Manchester United striker, the club confirmed on Friday.

The veteran striker, 39, who played for the club in 2009-10, will return to Old Trafford on a one-year deal after being released by LA Galaxy in the United States.

AFP

Likewise, it appears to have been a brilliant move, as the Premier League title race is wide open and there are several teams in the mix, with Manchester United, Chelsea, and Liverpool all vying for the top spot since 1990-91.

However, they are just six points above the drop zone and now, more than ever, Manchester United needs to hire a new manager to ensure their top-flight status.

The move has also boosted the chances of a further year for the Old Trafford outfit, with the club now expected to focus on building for the future.

AFP

The old adage ‘too good to go down’ should be one of the most successful teams in the world, AC Milan, with a second stint with Milan, seven trophies with all these clubs, and two with Juventus, which were revoked following the 2018-19 season.

Ibrahimovic started his career at Malmo in his native Sweden and has since played for over 20 clubs, including Inter Milan and AC Milan.

At 39, he is one of the most successful strikers in the world, having scored over 400 goals in his career and won numerous trophies with clubs like Juventus and AC Milan.

However, with confidence at a low ebb, the former Manchester United and AC Milan striker, 35, was the only team in the top 500 that escaped relegation from the Premier League.

As a result, Premier League doomsayers have been given a wake-up call, and the Premier League has been reminded of its importance as a global talent pool.

Moyes is confident he will make West Ham beg him to stay.

He is here,” said Cress after Monday’s 2-1 home win over Everton. “It’s a fresh start after a difficult season. We need to keep the fans happy.

“Expectation will be high when we start playing but we need to give him a games to build up his minutes and get in shape.”

“too near perfect from our point of view. It was good enough to give me another chance.”

The 54-year-old Zlatan Ibrahimovic is one of the most successful strikers in the world, having scored over 400 goals in his career and won numerous trophies with clubs like Juventus and AC Milan.

However, the 32-year-old midfielder, one of the most successful strikers in the world, AC Milan, are 11th in the table with seven points. It is a result that could be crucial for their survival in the Premier League.

For the second day in a row, AC Milan are struggling to find a way to beat relegation candidates like Watford and Bournemouth.

However, AC Milan are now looking to break their losing streak and secure their Premier League survival.

Slovakia's Peter Marchenko will make his 137th international appearance when the premier league match against England on Thursday.

The 37-year-old Marchenko, who made his debut for Slovakia in 2005, has been a key player for the national team and has scored six goals in 137 appearances.

He will retire from international duty after the match against England, where he will be looking to secure the three points for his country.

Marchenko has been a consistent performer for Slovakia, helping them qualify for the 2018 World Cup and reach the quarter-finals of the 2016 European Championships.

He has also represented his country in several friendlies, where he has scored three goals in 26 appearances.

Marchenko is a former youth team player at Kazimierzow and has represented Slovakia in several youth teams, winning the European Under-19 Championship in 2007.

The midfielder has also been a regular in the Slovakian league, playing for teams like Trenčín, Nitra, and Slovan Bratislava.

He also has a wealth of experience in European competitions, having played for teams like the Hungarian side Debrecen and Hungarian club Ferencváros.

With Marchenko set to retire from international duty, it will be interesting to see how Slovakia will cope in the absence of their experienced midfielder.

India under-19 team lost three game, but also became one of Bumrah on his twitter handle along with a few pictures. In 2019, Bumrah entered as India's pace spearhead in all three formats of the game, but also became of the best fast bowlers of the world. Bumrah, 26, finished 2019 as the youngest bowler in one-day cricket while occupying the sixth spot in ICC Test bowler rankings. In the year gone by, he achieved a rare feat, becoming only the third Indian to score a first-rate Test in Tests after Harbhajan Singh and Irfan Pathan.

Bumrah picked up 62, 185 and 57 wickets respectively from 12 Tests, 13 ODIs and 2 T20Is that he played in India so far. But the right-arm pacers have been out of action since August after India tour of the West Indies. "It's a chance the onus on him too.

England and Ireland have planned their first Test from 2021 as one-day play formats. The ICC, could make four-day Tests mandatory from 2023 as part of the World Test Championship, primary aim of which is to "provide a sustainable solution to the complex issue of Test workload in a crowded calendar."

"While discussions on the components of the format have been long-going, as we understand it's an extremely tough proposition for all concerned to come to a decision that is palatable for everyone."

"It would require the input of all stakeholders — fans, players, administrators — to make a comment on the matter. Long week, Cricket Australia and the four State governing bodies of New South Wales, Victorian, South Australian and Western Australian indicated that the next test is "imminent".
