Pelosi to send impeachment articles for Senate trial 'soon'

Washington: House Speaker Nancy Pelosi said Wednesday she would send the articles of impeachment against US President Donald Trump to the Senate for trial, saying that Trump’s actions posed a threat to American democracy.

Speaking to reporters, Pelosi said the House was taking action to end a constitutional crisis that had endured for months as US House Democrats weighed whether to impeach Trump over his role in pressuring Ukraine to investigate his political rivals.

House impeachment managers will deliver the articles to the US Senate at 1 p.m. Thursday.

Pelosi said the articles of impeachment would be delivered to the Senate to begin the process of a trial that could begin as early as this week.

The move comes as the US Senate is scheduled to reconvene for the first time since the impeachment trial of Trump ended last week.

Pelosi said she would deliver the articles to the Senate in order to "begin the process of holding the President accountable for trying to cheat in the election".

Trump is accused of abuse of power, for allegedly pressuring Ukraine’s president to investigate his political rival, former Vice President Joe Biden.

The impeachment process is a historic moment in American politics as it marks the first time in US history that a sitting US president has been impeached for a second time.

Pelosi said the House had already voted to impeach Trump twice, but the Senate had not.

She said the House would deliver the articles of impeachment to the Senate on Thursday, adding: "This is a sad day for America."

Many political analysts expected the Senate to vote against acquitting Trump, but the outcome remains uncertain.

US Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell has said he would follow standard procedures for the trial, which would begin after the articles are delivered.

Trump has denied any wrongdoing, saying he was only carrying out American foreign policy and national security interests in his dealings with Ukraine.

The articles of impeachment accuse Trump of abuse of power and obstruction of Congress.

Pelosi’s move to deliver the articles to the Senate on Thursday is a significant development in the impeachment process.

The House of Representatives impeached Trump on Dec. 18, when it voted to charge him with abuse of power and obstruction of Congress.

The articles of impeachment will now be considered by the US Senate, which will conduct a trial to determine whether to remove Trump from office.

Pelosi said she was confident the Senate would vote to remove Trump from office, saying: "I think this is going to be an easy vote for the US Senate."

The US Senate is expected to vote on the articles of impeachment on Friday, with a final vote on Saturday.

Obstacles to outer space taxation

International cooperation should be encouraged to come up with a global mechanism for space exploitation and all countries should manage benefits and derived from this activity. It is a key provision of the Outer Space Treaty and Article 10(1) of the Space Station Agreement (1984) that states “no one shall assert sovereignty over any object launched into outer space.” The treaty also states that “objects launched into outer space, including satellites and other space vehicles, remain under continuous digital darkness for 152 years after their launch.”

In countries like Estonia, France and Costa Rica, the digital darkness principle has been recognized as a fundamental right. In the Spanish BIC State of Baja California Sur, the constitutional provision that grants digital rights to treat the internet as a public utility has been challenged in court. In Kenya, the government has been forced to pay a fine of $1.2 million (Kenyan) internet and digital rights. In Pakistan, the Supreme Court has ruled that the internet is a fundamental right and that a government official cannot ban access to it.

Dubai changed his guns as he hammered two boundaries in five overs as both reached close to 150. Making optimum use of the break, he backed it back to back, hitting three boundaries and one four and another through extra cover off Lahiru Kumara. This was being cooked along well.

After two quiet overs, Dubai was cleaned up by Hasaranga who gave him a nudge. Soon after completing his third 50+ innings, Dubai was out caught by a full-toss by Hasaranga. However his innings was for nothing and the choice of Rahul Sharma pair did back for the upcoming Australia series.
