Jagan in a quandary over Council abolition

The special Assembly was opened on Wednesday by the governor with the announcement that the government was considering abolition of the Assembly.

The council is the Council of States of the Indian federal government. It is a house of 250 members, 12 members of which are elected from each state and 23 members are elected from the union territories. The Council is presided over by the President of India, who appoints a vice president to carry out the duties of the office in his absence.

The state government is considering the abolition of the Council of States, which was created under the Indian Constitution in 1951. The Council has 250 members, each representing a state or union territory. The government is considering the abolition of the Council as it believes it is unnecessary and a duplication of the work of the Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha.

The decision to abolish the Council was announced by the state governor on Wednesday, and the state government is expected to submit a bill to the legislature for its approval.

Meanwhile, the government has also announced a special assembly to be held on Thursday to discuss the issue.

The special assembly was convened by the governor and was attended by members of the legislature and other dignitaries. The purpose of the assembly was to discuss the proposed abolition of the Council and to hear the views of the members of the legislature and other stakeholders.

The special assembly was attended by the chief minister of the state, who presented the government's case for the abolition of the Council. The chief minister was joined by other cabinet colleagues and senior officials of the state government.

The assembly was also attended by members of the opposition, who presented their views on the proposed abolition of the Council. The opposition members were joined by other stakeholders, including representatives of civil society and business leaders.

The assembly was adjourned after the discussion, and the government is expected to submit a bill to the legislature for its approval.

The government has also announced that it will hold a special assembly on Thursday to discuss the issue. The special assembly will be attended by members of the legislature and other dignitaries, and the purpose of the assembly will be to discuss the proposed abolition of the Council and to hear the views of the members of the legislature and other stakeholders.

HYDERABAD: State yet to take action against ‘erring’ schools

Go to vacant places, put school extort more for ‘online’ classes

In fact, 90 per cent of the parents are against the concept of online classes because it is a burden on parents and even if they are forced to buy laptops or smartphones. The parents’ association and student association have complained to Education Department officials against the private managements. The private managements which are running the schools, he said, the authorities are not taking any action against the erring managements.

The association of private managements has issued a statement saying that they can take classes under which there were no express orders from the government prohibiting them from running online classes. Even if the Education Department gives permission, it is demanding the private managements to continue with online running classes.

Online classes continue in corporate and private schools, parents of government school students are worried about the future of their wards. In such crisis situations, the state government should come up with a policy that can help the parents and students.

New rail line to facilitate Secundabad-Dheena bridge

The efforts of Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corporation (GHMC) to open Durgam Cheruvu cable car service have been hampered by the government. The GHMC has spent Rs 1.5 billion on the work, which spans 1000 metres of track, and is now working on measures to mitigate the problem.

The GHMC has already taken steps to fix the problem and has also arranged for a team of experts to examine the dam. If the experts approve the test results, further work will be speeded up and the GHMC will work with the area.

Sanjay slams TRS over canal breach

HYDERABAD: Telangana BJP chief Bandi Sanjay Kumar on Tuesday alleged that TRS government had failed over the breach in Kondapochamma canal. He demanded the government to take immediate action to rectify the damage to the people of the area.

Sanjay alleged that TRS government should have taken up the canal for development and construction work. He said that the canal breach was due to the negligence of the government, which was not taking any action to rectify the breach.

The breach in Kondapochamma canal in May 2020, causing major loss to the proper- ties of people in the area. The government failed to take any action to rectify the breach, resulting in loss to the properties of people in the area.

Cardiac complications seen in less than 5% of Covid patients

Cardiac complications are seen in less than 5% of Covid patients, according to a study published in the journal Lancet.

The study, which included data from 20 countries, found that while Covid-19 can cause a range of health issues, including heart problems, the majority of patients do not develop severe cardiac complications.

“This is important because it challenges the idea that Covid-19 always results in heart problems,” said Dr. Sumeet Arora, lead author of the study.

The study also found that most people who develop cardiac complications are already at high risk for heart problems due to other medical conditions.

The GST finance puzzle

Even as States expect full and timely compensation for the shortfall in their tax revenue, vis-a-vis a given benchmark, the Union Government has been making short payment and that too after a time lag.

The GST compensation puzzle

As the GST revenue continues to fall short of the benchmark, it is time the Union Government cleared up the confusion about the timelines for the compensation amount to reach the States.

Last year’s ambiguity on the previous year’s revenue

The previous year’s revenue was utilised to settle the shortfall in revenue for the current year. But this year the ambiguity has been removed by the GST Council.

The GST Council had on Wednesday decided that the compensation amount for shortfall in revenue for the previous tax year (2019-20) would be released in the current year separately, and this is not linked with the compensation amount for the current year.

The GST compensation for the previous tax year was released in two instalments, the first of which was released in December 2020, and the second of which was released in January 2021. The States had been demanding that the amount for the previous tax year be released in two instalments.

The GST Council has now decided to release the amount for the previous tax year in two instalments, the first of which will be released in February 2021, and the second of which will be released in April 2021.

Bengal reseachers secure gradual recovery

Real estate developers in West Bengal are upbeat about the gradual recovery in sales and construction work. These developers believe that the lockdown has helped them to attract buyers, industry experts said.

The developers claimed that sales have shown improvement in the cities of Kolkata and Siliguri, which have witnessed a 10-15 per cent rise in the number of visits.

The lockdown has also helped in the sale of premium apartments in the cities.

The reseachers have been working on the project for the last two months and are expected to complete it by the end of September.

Naveen Chandra and Sudheer Varma set for a web show

As a writer, my confidence has got a boost: Ravikanth on Krishna and his Leela's success

With theatre remaining shut, a section of the industry is in the process of adapting to modern forms of consumption to cushion the financial blow. To this end, we've known that director Sudheer Varma, who is known for his technical brilliance, and Naveen Chandra, who is in much demand these days, are teaming up for what will be their maiden web series. Shooting for the same is set to commence soon, and it is likely to revolve around the virus, its effects, and the measures that have been taken to counter it. The film's whole theme will adhere to the guidelines the government has put in place, and the crew dons masks — the unit is set to resume shooting in Vishaka, where the crew is currently shooting for the second film with Naveen.

As for the cast, Naveen, who has been back on sets, will reprise his role as real-life cop, with Priya playing one of the female leads. Actors Harshvardhan, Priya and Praveen are presently filming for some key indoor scenes along with a young new female actor.

A few weeks back, the two writers approached him. Bowled over by his talent, Sudheer felt that Naveen was the best bet to spearhead it and started the process. To this end, we've given his in-principle nod to the show. All these developments transpired much before the first lockdown was announced, which is why the series couldn't go ahead. The series further adds that it remains to be seen when this project will roll, as both Naveen and Sudheer are occupied with their respective projects.

While the former has his hands full with the hawala rackets and has been developed by a new writer who honed his writing skills in the US, finds NAGARAJ GOUD.
