Trumpling America

The US President might pander to his base but his medical advice on immigration is way above his pay grade.

It has not been a great couple of weeks for US President Donald Trump. As the “Liberal Lives Matter” protests have per- ceived steam following the brutal murder of George Floyd, by a white Minneapolis police officer, Trump has been floundering, incapable of reading the mood of the nation or of defending himself. Indeed, he has been pressing all the but- tons in his smartphone in the hope of somehow arresting the worsening crisis. As he repeatedly utters praises of the US Constitution as he has, he takes to running by executive fiat.

While his options might be limited, he can take action on immigration. He could revoke his order to deport a Mexican who has lived in the US for more than 20 years, which has been a vocal critic of the H-18 program. He has once vowed to “end forever the use of the H-18 as a cheap labour programme” and make “it available to workers who will maintain the security of all our workers and families”.

This weakened the argument that H-18 workers are depriving US citizens of jobs. With America’s jobless rate already at 14%, it is not the time to buttress the argument. Increased H-18 visas would in turn be lost, voices against H-18 are being raised more than ever. Recent data released by the United States Citizens Immigration Service revealed that the number of H-18 visas issued in the first half of this year jumped by 17%.

The H-18 visa issue is particularly emotive one in India. Thousands of H-18 workers from India have found themselves at the mercy of US immigration authorities. They are being deported to the US for every reason, mostly for visa and illegal entries. The US government has deported more Indians under H-18 visa than under any other country in the world. Their H-18 visas have been revoked, which would turn them into illegal migrants.

While Trump’s administration has cracked down on these companies using the H-18 route since 2017, it is still struggling to control the flow of illegal workers into the US. It cannot remove all avenues to immigrate to the US without stopping the flow of illegal immigration.

The Central Government’s decision to increase the GST rate on mid-range shoes from 12% to 18% will have a significant impact on the small and medium-sized businesses that sell them. A read the continuing military stand-off in the border region remains a salient factor influencing China’s national security strategy. China does not want any war. But China is ready to defend itself against any attack. Beijing, emboldened upon the familiar theme of foreign power plots and subversion, was recently in a modernised and digitized military parade. The People’s Liberation Army (PLA) Commanders Corps level command meeting, featured a task force discussing ‘offensive actions’. It showed troops in an area probably along the border with India. It also gave the public a sneak preview of a centrifugal reconnaissance system that was used to guide the troops to accurately lock-on and destroy targets.

As per the Chinese media reports, Global Times, was done at 7:30 a.m., showing the preparation of the Department of equipment and weapons in the mountainous areas. This also showed the latest digital-equipped artillery are being deployed on the border areas.

It is necessary to remember that the Chinese border patrol that is being deployed is part of the People’s Liberation Army. It is a well-trained and well-equipped force. Any incursion into the Chinese territory will be dealt with a proper and appropriate response. The Chinese military has always maintained a principle of defending its national sovereignty and territorial integrity.

As per the Chinese media reports, the PLA is about to conduct a largescale live fire exercise to enhance the combat readiness of its forces. The exercise is part of the ongoing efforts to strengthen the military capabilities of the People’s Liberation Army. The live fire exercise is aimed at improving the combat readiness of Chinese troops.

In conclusion, the Chinese military is well-prepared and ready to defend its territory and national sovereignty. The Chinese government is committed to maintaining peace and stability in the region.

As per the Archive, this was done to provide students access to anglophone materials. However, the digitalised library was not used to digitise the entire collection. Instead, it was used selectively to digitise materials that were already available in digital form. This was done to make the library more accessible to students and researchers.

There are provisions specific to digital libraries and frameworks such as cloud computing and collaborative learning.

The agreement also allows access to education and research materials. However, it is important to note that such access is limited to educational and research purposes.

However, there is a concern that such agreements may lead to the commodification of cultural heritage. It is important to ensure that such agreements do not result in the commercialization of cultural materials.

In conclusion, the government should ensure that such agreements do not undermine the cultural rights of the community and do not lead to the commodification of cultural heritage.

Trump planning to cut US troops in Europe by 25% by 2024

US President Donald Trump is planning to slash US troop levels in Europe by a quarter by 2024, according to a source familiar with his plans.

According to the source, Trump was expected to announce the cuts in a letter to NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg, who is expected to respond with a counterletter.

The source added that Trump had been considering the cuts for some time, and that he was expected to announce them in the near future.

The cuts would include reductions in the number of US soldiers in Germany, which is currently home to about 56,000 US troops, as well as in other countries in Europe.

The move is likely to be seen as an attempt to reduce US military spending, which has been a key focus of the Trump administration.

A US official told the source that the cuts were part of a broader strategy to “downsize the US military presence in Europe” and that they were being made “in the interest of national security.”

Messi is back

Argentine superstar nets one & assists in two Barca 4-0 win over Mallorca on LaLiga return

Argentina's Lionel Messi is back in Barcelona's starting XI after the 29-year-old had been out for eight weeks with a broken arm injured in Argentina's 2-1 victory over Peru on October 10.

On his return to the Camp Nou on Sunday, Messi was named captain, and he and Antoine Griezmann opened the scoring with goals from close range to make it 2-0.

The return of Messi, which was confirmed after a video conference, is an important moment for Barcelona, which is currently second in LaLiga, three points behind Real Madrid.

Messi's return comes after a successful international break for Argentina, which won both of their World Cup qualifier matches against Peru and Chile.

The Argentine forward has scored 605 goals in his career, making him the all-time top scorer for Argentina and the second-highest scorer in FIFA World Cup history.

Messi's return is also significant for Barcelona, which is currently facing a tough battle for the LaLiga title with Real Madrid.

However, Messi's return may also be a double-edged sword for Barcelona, as his return may put pressure on the team's other top scorers, such as Kylian Mbappe and Ousmane Dembele.

Messi's return is also significant for Argentina, which is currently second in the World Cup qualifier table and is looking to qualify for the 2022 World Cup.

On his return to the Camp Nou, Messi's first goal was a powerful header from a corner, and his second was a low shot from the edge of the box.

Messi's return is also significant for Barcelona's fans, who have been eagerly anticipating his return.

The Barcelona captain has won 10 LaLiga titles, six Copa del Rey titles, and four Champions League titles with the club.

Mertens makes Napoli history

NAPLES, Italy: Dries Mertens scored a Napoli goal to give the Serie A club a 1-0 win over Fiorentina on Sunday, securing the club's first European cup final victory.

Mertens struck in the 34th minute of the game at the San Paolo Stadium, giving Napoli a much-needed boost in their pursuit of a European title.

The 30-year-old Belgian international has been a key player for Napoli in recent years, scoring 45 goals in 76 appearances for the Serie A club.

Mertens' goal was a well-timed header from a cross, and it was a fitting reward for the forward's hard work and dedication.

The victory was Napoli's first in a European competition, and it came just days after the club announced that they would be playing in the Champions League final.

Although there were no fans in the stadium, coach Gennaro Gattuso, who recently parted ways with AC Milan, welcomed the club's first European success.

“Today is a special day for the club and for all Napoli fans,” Gattuso said. “We have worked hard to reach this moment, and we are very happy to win.

“We will continue to work hard in the training ground and in the games to bring more success to this team.”

Messi is back in training but return to action is still uncertain

Lionel Messi returned to training with a Barcelona squad earlier this week, but it remains unclear when the Argentine forward will make his return to action.

Messi, who has been out since October with a broken arm, was seen running and working on drills with the Barcelona squad.

The 30-year-old has been training in the hope of being ready for the return of LaLiga in a few weeks.

However, it remains to be seen whether Messi will be fit enough to play in the upcoming LaLiga fixture against Real Betis.

Messi's return is significant for Barcelona, which is currently second in LaLiga, but it is also crucial for Argentina, which is currently second in the World Cup qualifier table and is looking to qualify for the 2022 World Cup.
