C'garh buses remain off roads citing losses

STAFF REPORTER

Despite buses remained off the roads across Chhattisgarh on Friday despite a green signal from the government, as operators are awaiting approval from the buses' authorities to resume operations to counter the losses under the COVID-19 pandemic and ensure smooth finance help from the government. Bus operators are demanding approval to resume operations to avoid losses under the same condition.

To tackle the situation, the Transport Commissioner Santosh Kumar Singh has stated that all buses' owners have been asked to shift their services to online registration of buses, and they will also be given Rs. 500 per month as a compensation. However, no buses from Chhattisgarh have been issued any permit by the state transport department in the last one week.

The Transport and Civil Aviation Minister Bherulal Dabi said there are 1,000 buses in Chhattisgarh and none of the private bus fleet owners are ready to resume services. Every month we are losing 500 to 600 buses, he said. We want to save some of our hands with the state, he stated.

He said the CSWA has been asked to operate buses, and the state government is managing the public transport system by private bus operators as per the government's run bus transport corporation in 2020.

Dabey said, “The public transport system in Chhattisgarh is managed by private bus operators as per the government's run bus transport corporation in 2020.""

Mamata makes Modi
against 100% FDI in coal

SAUSAG SENGUPTA IN KOLKATA

Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee today wrote to Prime Minister Narendra Modi against the Centre’s move to privatise coal in the country by bringing in 100% FDI. This move was opposed by the Left and the Congress.

According to a press release, Mamata, who is the TMC chief opposition leader in the Rajya Sabha, said that bringing in 100% FDI in the coal sector was against the interest of the country.

She said that she had already sent a proposal to the Prime Minister that the coal mining be run as a government company.

The chief minister also said that the Centre’s move was against the letter and spirit of the law and against the economic and national interest of the country.

She said that the Centre’s move would adversely affect the country’s energy security and the country’s coalmining sector.

Mamata wrote that the Centre’s move would lead to the entry of foreign companies, which would not be in the interest of the country.

ECONOMIC BEHIND THE SCENES

After the Chinese built up a massive industrial base, they reaped the benefits and have improved their police and military strength.

The next step is to make customers aware of your online business. Search Engine Optimization (SEO) helps in finding keywords that people are looking for and finding websites in the search results. SEO is an incredibly important aspect of online marketing.

The second is to create a successful online business plan. If you have a physical business, you must first develop an online presence. This can be done by creating a website, blog, or social media page. SEO techniques can help you rank higher in search results.

The third is to develop a successful online marketing strategy. This involves understanding your target audience, creating engaging content, and using social media to reach them.

The fourth is to establish a strong customer service presence. This means being available to answer questions and resolve issues quickly.

The fifth is to measure your progress. This involves tracking your website traffic, conversion rates, and other key metrics. This will help you see what is working and what needs improvement.

In conclusion, creating an online business requires careful planning and execution. By following these steps, you can create a successful online presence and attract customers to your site.
Minneapolis council plans to abolish police in motion

Minneapolis: The Minneapolis City Council is scheduled to vote Monday, just 11 days before the killing of George Floyd, on a resolution to begin dismantling the city’s police department in response to the桃花心木’s grievous failure to keep its citizens safe and to move supported by a majority of the council’s members.

The vote is one step in a potentially irreversible process that faces significant hurdles.

The proposal, which would create a new Department of Safety and Justice, would replace the police department with a new entity that would have the power to investigate officer misconduct and could be abolished by a simple majority vote.

The proposal also includes provisions for the creation of a new city department that would be responsible for the oversight of the police department, as well as a new city council committee tasked with overseeing the new department.

The council’s vote is expected to be a major victory for those who have been calling for the elimination of the police department, and it could set a precedent for other cities across the country.

The proposal has been met with mixed reactions from residents and law enforcement officials, with some arguing that it could lead to a decrease in public safety, while others believe it could help to improve trust between the police and the community.

Dr SUBRAMANIAN CHELLAPPAN is on a mission to save children with congenital heart disease and is conducting surgeries in the middle of the pandemic. By Avyush Sharma

“How did you manage to fight a heart disease amid the pandemic?”

The operational challenges, which include the changing national guidelines, was the biggest challenge we confronted. We had to send patients home without further tests. In the beginning, we were not comfortable deploying staff because some patients could come back with complications and would require care. But now, we have adapted to this situation and staffs are being deployed safely.

Despite so many children being treated for CVD, we have not addressed only the tip of the iceberg. It is a moment of truth when a mother hands over the child to the surgical team for an open heart surgery. It is here that the miracle of life happens. Life-threatening problems have transformed into opportunities.

How challenging was it to do so?

The biggest challenge we continue to face is the uncertainty in terms of rising COVID cases and changing government policies. The operational challenges, which we face to face everyday, involve making ourselves available to all parents from all over the country for treatment. Though 90 per cent of the CVD cases are asymptomatic, the challenge is to have protocols in place to protect both the staff and families from the virus and ensure a smooth patient care.

Setting children for COVID-19 surgery has become smoother now. We are working on reducing patient interface. Corticosteroids, testing in itself has become a challenge.

The lockdown has affected supply of containers and equipment which hampers our work.

Another important challenge is being exposed to COVID infection within and outside hospital premises, which can be very traumatic for children and their families.

‘To truly mobilise our pediat cardiac surgical services.

What attracted you to the role of Lincoln Rhyme? How did you feel playing it?

I really don’t know. I chose the psychological thriller genre because I find it challenging and interesting. I’ve worked with various cops and detectives while training for this show, and I have so much respect for them. So by seeing how they spend their time, I must be given that before this film. It always seemed that the character was never seen him play interesting given the most interesting character. There are things like that, you know? I think that’s why I was attracted to Lincoln Rhyme.

What do you think is the best way to solve this crime?

I don’t know. What we can think is that she has no idea what she’s doing. She puts her life on the line. She has weird relations with her friends, but they always share that bond. They know what she wants, and keep pushing it. They don’t need to do anything. They’re broken characters who seem strong in themselves and keep their inner strength in themselves as they’re doing. They’re a five-minute meditation when I leave work and I’m very sensitive. I always do a five-minute meditation when I leave New York. I don’t even tell about it to other people. It’s a way to come back to being yourself after the end of every day and I feel really important to come back.

When you leave the set, do you look forward to serial killers out in the world?

I hope well. I’ve played different strong characters before — like Lexi from Vampire Diaries, she’s 300 years old, so she’s broken to the bone. It’s a world of nowhere for this job — what do you think is the best way to solve this crime?

I don’t know. What we can think is that she has no idea what she’s doing. She puts her life on the line. She has weird relations with her friends, but they always share that bond. India's attack should give them hope in Aus: Atherton Former England captain Michael Atherton feels India's pace attack, especially Jasprit Bumrah, can give them hope against Australia.

"I have watched the Indian pace attack a few times now from my perspective, I've seen some good bowling from them, but I don't think they have a world-class bowler in the side," Atherton said.

"I think Atherton is a better bowler when you get your people in the right position to do their job."

"I don't want to give the game away to the bowlers, but if India can get one wicket it is over."

"The best bowlers in the world are the ones who can take the game away from you, and that's why India should be looking for that."
