India has not lost its head in corona crisis

As of Saturday morning (9.45 am), the fourth day of the national lockdown, the number of coronavirus cases in India has touched 873. Does this mean that we are still behind the curve or, as many of the "experts" suggest, this is just the lull before the country experiences the pandemic tsunami?

Like the overwhelming majority of India, I don't know. Over the past three weeks all of us have been subjected to so many conflicting versions of this global epidemic that has changed the world in ways that none of us thought was possible that we have stopped trying to be amateur pundits. When the WHO announced that every corner of the world was vulnerable to the what President Donald Trump evocatively describes as the "Chinese virus", every person seemed to have a view of what needed and didn't need to be done. These ranged from doing as little as possible but acquiring immunity through different means to suggesting policy prescriptions. Today, the voices of the loud know-alls are becoming less and less heard. The "experts" have their views, but no one is sure whether this expert view will outlive 48 hours.

A strange form of collective helplessness is visible. As law-abiding citizens, the overwhelming number of Indians have confined themselves to their homes, hoping that after April 15 they will be able to pick up the pieces and return to the daily routine. Meanwhile, watching a re-run of the Ramayan, what many of us experienced each Sunday morning in the late-1980s, will have to suffice.

In moments such as this, there is an irresistible temptation to outsource decision-making to a higher authority. For most it is God - articulated in different ways. But this unseen force isn't the only one we bank on. The secular authority we put our trust in moments of anxiety is the Government. Although the trust is never blind, there is the temptation to let others - with information, expertise and resources at their command - take decisions and do the thinking on our behalf. This relationship of the citizen with the state is based on trust and - but only to a limited extent - coercion. If the trust broke down, there is no lathi-waving policeman who would succeed in imposing a national lockdown.

A national lockdown has been successfully undertaken in a country of India's size and diversity. I don't know if the lockdown will achieve its objectives. I pray it does. But regardless of the outcome, how we have conducted ourselves makes me proud to be an Indian. It also makes me proud of our leader

In recent history there are times when either trust breaks down completely or competing authorities start pulling in different directions. I always cite the example of what happened in France in the spring of 1940 when the German army broke through the seemingly impenetrable Maginot Line. The authority of the all-powerful French state broke down and produced social chaos. It was this upheaval that led to collaboration with the Germans and the trust placed in Marshal Pétain and his fragile Vichy regime.

It may sound politically incorrect to say so, but imminent military defeat does not always lead to social breakdown and chaos. By the beginning of 1945, for example, it was sufficiently clear that the collapse of Nazi Germany was only a matter of time. There was just no way that Hitler's regime would be able to withstand the combined might of the USA and the Soviet Union. The Germans didn't give up and fought bitterly, despite the huge military and civilian casualties. But what has escaped attention is the fact that an unending tale of military defeats since mid-1944 and the decimation of nearly every German city by enemy bombers didn't lead to a social breakdown, as happened with less provocation in France. Till the very end the authority of the German state remained intact.

It is of course possible to read these two experiences with reference to the type of regimes France and Germany had at these moments of upheaval. France in 1940 was democratic while Germany in 1945 was a regimented, totalitarian state. Maybe totalitarian states have a better record of holding a society together in times of crisis. If, for the moment, the theory of COVID-19 being a grand Chinese conspiracy is ignored, it is worth looking at the relative success of the authorities in managing the total lockdown of Wuhan. True, the extent of inconvenience was perhaps understated by the absence of an open media and the rigid control that the state maintains over its citizens. But in the face of the pandemic, such extreme measures can be condoned.

It is the inability of democracies to emulate the Wuhan model that has led to Western European countries shying away from cracking the whip, leaving the last mile to people's good sense and failing to meet the desired objective. Apart from Northern Italy and Spain where the number of deaths have skyrocketed, most other democratic countries have faltered in imposing lockdowns.

It is in this context that the national lockdown in India must be seen. Frankly, if it hadn't been Narendra Modi at the helm, lesser leaders would have preferred to have settled for half-measures, citing a combination of economic constraints and human deficiencies. India is a democracy and there is total freedom for intellectuals, contrarians and the fifth columnists to point to deficiencies, real and imaginary. The international media, particularly those based in the Anglophone world, also find it easy to present India as a land of chaos, heartlessness and stupid bigotry. There is enough in the subcontinent to feed this appetite. But what needs careful scrutiny is the fact that a national lockdown has been successfully undertaken in a country of India's size and diversity. The economic costs of this lockdown will be unimaginably high. But the fact that we have put people over money is reason enough to believe that India hasn't lost its head in a crisis.

I don't know if the lockdown will achieve its objectives. I pray it does. But regardless of the outcome, how we have conducted ourselves makes me proud to be an Indian. It also makes me proud of our leader.

Migrants march to different tune

As exodus hits social distancing, Shah asks States to use disaster relief fund to rehab migrants

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The panicky march of the thousands of migrant workers is turning out to be a major stumbling block for the Centre in its effort to enforce social distancing to curb the spread of coronavirus. With experts warning that such unruly assembly could help the contagion to explode - two migrant workers from Rajasthan tested positive on Saturday - the Home Ministry has come out with a measures to deal with the grave situation.

The measures include raising tents along the highway to accommodate these workers and provide them food and medical assistance. The march of the migrants has alarmed health experts, who feel that it will defeat the very purpose of the lockdown. Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar has also expressed unhappiness over the move by States Governments to arrange buses for migrant workers who want to return to Bihar.

"The entire purpose of lockdown will be defeated if thousands of migrants are sent to Bihar by buses. My Government has already asked the Bihar Resident Commissioner in New Delhi to coordinate with different State Governments and reimburse the cost involved in providing food and shelter to migrants who are on their way to Bihar. We have already announced ₹100 crore package for them," said Nitish on Saturday.

Nitish was right in his apprehension. At least two migrant workers, who travelled from Indore to Rajasthan amid coronavirus lockdown in the country, have now been found positive for COVID-19.

Against the backdrop of these developments, Home Minister Amit Shah on Saturday spoke to many Chief Ministers to accommodate the migrant labours in the States itself by providing food and shelter, rather than transporting them to their home States. Shah said the Government is committed to offer all support to migrant workers during the lockdown period and suggested that schools and colleges can be used for sheltering the migrant workers.

The Home Ministry changed the guidelines of State Disaster Relief Fund (SDRF) to allow States to use the fund for the purpose of rehabilitation of the migrant workers.

"With the intent of Modi Government to provide all possible support to migrant workers, the Union Home Secretary has again written to States requesting them to immediately set up relief camps for migrant workers/pilgrims, etc, who are returning to their domicile States or trying to do so during this lockdown period. States have been advised to give wide publicity and awareness, using public address systems, technology and by utilising the services of volunteers and NGOs," said the Home Ministry in a statement.

The Ministry also asked States to set up tented accommodation to ensure that these persons will stay in the relief camps till the lockdown orders are in place. The shelters are to be organised, keeping in view various precautions including social distancing, with adequate medical check up drives to identify and separate cases requiring quarantine or hospitalisation.

Meanwhile, Road Transport Minister Nitin Gakari asked NHA chairman and toll operators to provide all help to migrant workers by providing food and water. "I have advised chairman NHA and Highway Concessioners/toll operators to consider providing food, water or any kind of support to migrant workers/citizens who are trying to reach to their respective native places. At this time of crisis we have to be compassionate for our fellow citizens," he said.

Commerce and Railways Minister Piyush Goyal has appealed to Industries and trade bodies to take care of their workers and not allow them to go to home States in the time of crisis. In a video conference, Goyal said, "Don't let your workers go away" to the industrialists across the country.

Talking to representatives from various manufacturing, industry and trading associations, He said they are not only their assets and resources, but also could become potential carrier of COVID-19, if they are allowed to migrate to leave en-masse during this pandemic.

Delhi-UP border choked as labourers rush to Bihar, UP

Kejriwal says Govt has arranged buses for migrant workers, but urges them to stay on

SHEKHAR SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

Left without any source of income, thousands of migrants mostly from Uttar Pradesh and Bihar on Saturday hit the streets and highways connecting Delhi-NCR in hope to get support from the Government to reach their homes.

Their exodus choked Delhi-UP border at Ghazipur and Anand Vihar bus terminal Minister Arvind Kejriwal on Saturday said his Government has arranged for buses to transport migrant workers who were already walking back via roads to their respective home States.

Also, the CM appealed to migrant workers leaving Delhi to stay back. Kejriwal in his Press briefing on Friday announced that food will now be served in 325 Government schools after which the Government will officially have the capacity to feed 4 lakh people across 500 centres.

Delhi Minister Rajendra Pal Gautam went to Anand Vihar to meet migrants.

Cases near 1K, fight stepped up

No community transmission; dedicated Covid hospital set up

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The count of confirmed COVID-19 cases raced towards 1,000 on Saturday, but the Centre maintained that India is yet to witness community transmission of the viral infection and it is focusing on management and prevention of the disease by ramping up Covid-19 hospitals, sample testing, contact-tracing besides intensifying social distancing measures.

According to Statewide confirmed case tallied by different monitoring sites, the total number of positive cases stood at 944 on Saturday evening. However, the Health Ministry's Saturday morning count showed 877 positive cases in the country.

The tally was not revised till late in the evening. The pandemic has claimed 20 lives in the country.

With cases on the rise, the Centre has asked the State Governments to set up health check-up camps and tents for migrant labourers who are travelling back to their native places to prevent them from spreading the disease, if any.

Giving details of the steps being taken to combat coronavirus which has killed over 28,000 people across countries, Health Ministry Joint Secretary Lav Aggarwal said that doctors from the States are being trained on management of Covid-19 patients with the help of AIIMS in Delhi while rigorous contact-tracing is underway. Many States are in the process of setting up dedicated Covid-19 hospitals.

They have also been asked to ramp up their capacity to manage an increasing number of cases. At least 17 States have started work on it.

'Quarantined' man bites woman to death

Theni: A young man under home quarantine for coronavirus after return from Sri Lanka suddenly ran out of his house nude and fatally bit a 80-year old woman in his neighbourhood in a village near here, police said on Saturday.

500 police helplines for public grievances

CUTTACK: As people are unable to visit the police stations or district police offices to put their grievances in person over different matters due to the lockdown, the State police have strengthened their phone-based system for redressal of public grievances.

This was stated on Saturday by DGP Abhay and a video-conference was held with senior officials in this connection. A robust system of over 500 helplines has been developed.

Each district police headquarters now has a functional police control room with one or more phone lines for people to lodge their grievances. The district Control Room number has been publicised through Twitter, Facebook and Press releases.

Each police station is also publicising its landline number. Most phone numbers of district Control Rooms and police stations have been uploaded on the Odisha police website.

324 cases for violating coronavirus norms

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

Police have registered 324 cases against violators of regulations and guidelines relating to coronavirus (COVID-19) across the State in last 24 hours. These cases were registered from the morning of March 27 to the morning of March 28.

While 308 cases were registered for violation of the nationwide lockdown, 15 cases were registered for violation of home quarantine. Besides, police registered one case on other issues relating to COVID-19.

IMPLEMENT DACP FOR DOCS, SAYS CM

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik on Saturday announced immediate implementation of the Dynamic Assured Career Progression (DACP) for medical officers of the Odisha Medical and Health Services (OMHS) cadre.

In the present situation of COVID-19 pandemic, the medical officers of the OHMS cadre, who are at the forefront of the health sector, play a vital role in the management of the pandemic.

Though promotion of medical officers under the DACP scheme was announced a year ago, they could not get promotion under this scheme due to want of required PARs. In order to fast-track the DACP, the Government has onetime relaxation for promotion under the scheme.

The entire exercise would be completed by April 30, 2010.

112 came in contact with State's 3rd corona patient

- 15 yet to be traced; samples of 11 sent for tests
- 4 SCB medicos accompanying patient to remain in isolation

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR/CUTTACK

During contact tracing, it has come to light that as many as 112 persons came in contact with the third COVID-19 positive patient in the State before he was tested positive for the virus, informed State Government's COVID-19 Chief Spokesperson Subroto Bagchi on Saturday.

Bagchi said of 112 contacts, 15 have not been traced so far. Samples of 11 persons were sent for tests. Out of these, one person was found to be negative for COVID-19 while reports of 10 remaining persons are yet to be received, Bagchi said. Other sources said four postgraduate students of the SCB Medical College Hospital in Cuttack have been asked to remain in isolation due to their contact history with the State's third positive patient. Four medicos were passengers of the same IndiGo flight by which the patient returned to Bhubaneswar from Delhi on March 10. This was revealed after details about the patient's seat allotment in the flight came to the fore during a contact tracing exercise. Later, the four medical students registered their names by dialling 104 Helpline.

The sources said that among the four medicos, two have complained of cold and cough and the other two are stated to be in good conditions. They had returned to Bhubaneswar on March 10 after attending a conference held in Dehradun and were sitting behind the patient. Reports said the four medical students had been on duty at the hospital after their return to the State. Even, they had assisted doctors in several surgeries. Bagchi at his Press meet informed that till Saturday noon, 256 samples from the State were sent for tests. Of them, three were found to be positive. Conditions of the two earlier positive cases are stable while the third positive case is showing improvement in his condition, he said. A total of 56 suspects have been kept in isolation at different hospitals in the State. A total of 7,080 persons have registered themselves through the COVID-19 portal and Helpline-104, he said.

Bagchi also said 4,286 returnees from overseas have registered online and 104 Helpline whereas 2,794 returnees from other States have registered themselves too. Cattle and poultry feeds have been included as essential items and shops selling them are exempted from the lockdown restrictions. Also, grocery stores are allowed to sell cattle and poultry feeds, Bagchi added.

'An actor should never say never'

Known for shows like Kalash and Bepanah Pyaar, APARNA DIXIT loves experimenting with roles and genres. She speaks with MUSBA HASHMI about her latest show and how she has evolved

■ What is your role in Pyaar Ki Luka Chuppi?

I play Srishti, a small-town girl with values. She is extremely talented but when it comes to love and family, she is emotional and thinks only from her heart. Her satisfaction lies in little pleasures of life and is family-oriented who believes in success but not at the cost of relationships. A lot of people will find the character relatable.

■ One thing that you like and dislike about your character?

I love everything about my character. From being soft spoken to respecting everyone, Srishti is a love driven person and has no anger or ego issues. The only thing that I dislike is, how she allows people to take her for granted which she will start realising soon. With different experiences in life, she is now learning to take a stand for herself.

■ From Mahabharata to now Pyaar Ki Luka Chuppi, how has your journey been?

My journey has been beautiful. I have played some amazing characters in the past and made friends for life in this journey. I feel grateful to be a part of this industry which has blessed me in ways for which I can't be thankful enough.

■ What was the most challenging project?

The most challenging project is also the one that is close to my heart — Kalash. I loved the graph that my character had. I got to play various shades and try different looks.

■ How do you think you have evolved as an artist?

An artist is always evolving. With every new character that you play, a new project that you do, you learn something new. You become better at the craft day by day. As an artist, I am always on the go to learn and explore new things. It is a never-ending process.

With every new character that you play, a new project that you take, you learn something new. You become better at the craft day by day. As an artist, I am always on the lookout to learn and explore new things. This is a never-ending process

■ How do you think TV has evolved?

The last couple of years have seen an evolution in content with the shifting paradigm. Over the last decade, television has evolved progressively. The industry is witnessing a revolution by portraying strong independent female protagonists. Serials are being made where the conversation is around strong women characters. There are stories of empowerment of women from small towns and villages of India which are finally being told. Content on TV is progressively influencing the lives of audiences who are now readily accepting strong headed women who are finally speaking up for themselves.

■ Having explored different genres, which one did you enjoy the most?

Having played various characters over the years, daily soaps have been the most enjoyable to me as I get to dramatise all emotions and the situations and story lines are also quite relatable. I absolutely enjoy every bit of my time on the sets which makes me enjoy my work all the more.

■ A role that you would say no to.

I believe as an actor it is important to explore every role. An actor should never say never.

■ Upcoming projects.

Currently, I am only focusing on my show Pyaar Ki Luka Chuppi which airs on Dangal TV. If you engage yourself in different projects at the same time, you tend to lose focus. Therefore, I want to concentrate only on this show first. Rest only time will tell.

TELLYTALE

PUJA'S WEDDING POSTPONED

Actor Puja Banerjee, who recently made her comeback on TV with Star Bharat's mythological show as grown-up Vaishno Devi, had recently announced her wedding with actor Kunal Verma on social media. She made an announcement that she will tie the knot on April 15 and started preparing for her wedding.

Puja and Kunal's wedding was supposed to take place in a traditional Bengali ceremony. However, the couple is now contemplating postponing their nuptials due to the coronavirus scare.

According to sources, Puja had applied for leaves and production house had granted her the same. As of now their wedding shopping has also come to a halt and Puja is spending time at home with her family due to lockdown situation in the city.

Puja shares: "The situation is such that we have to sit with our families and decide the situation after March 31."

Well let's hope, Puja and Kunal get married soon and their fans get to witness this grand moment in the coming days.

MEET KANNIKA'S BEST FRIEND

Kannika Kapur, also known as Suman from the most loved show of Sony Entertainment Television Ek Duje ke Vaaste 2 reveals on how she would select her partner. Kannika is her Daddy's princess and certainly would not take any decision without considering with her father and she has the same clause for her future boyfriend.

Kannika is best friends with her father and shares all aspects of her life with him. Her father too understands her and supports her and guides her wherever the need be. Kannika who recently turned 25 has revealed that her father has no problems with her dating somebody. It is just that the guy should follow some clauses set by her father. Speaking about the same Kannika Kapur aka Suman said: "I am comfortable sharing my personal life with my parents and they have been supportive of it. I am currently not dating anyone but my father has surely set some clauses for me if I date someone in the future." When asked about what kind of a guy she or her father wants, she said: "The guy should be as responsible as I am. Currently I am focusing on my career and I expect the guy to do the same. Looks doesn't matter to me, but the guy should focus on building up his own career and support me in what I do. It is okay for me to date a guy who is outside of the industry, he should also respect my parents and treat them like his own. Also, he should have my father's approval. In short, my king will select my prince charming."

The current track of Kannika's show is taking a major twist as Shruvan's secret would be revealed in Anish's party and the new friends Suman and Shruvan would be seen fighting while Suman slaps Shruvan. What is this secret? Will the two star-crossed lovers unite back?

ENT SPECIALISTS ON IBD

Sony Entertainment Television's latest offering, India's Best Dancer is garnering a lot of positive attention for its interesting content and the variety of talent that is being showcased on the dance show. The contestants who have come from different cities across the country are battling it out with each other only to bag the coveted title of India's Best Dancer. While the judges, Malaika Arora, Geeta Kapur and Terence Lewis are evaluating contestants on three factors mainly ENT, which is Entertainment, Nessness and Technique, they are having a tough time scrutinising them considering the phenomenal talent that is being featured in the show.

One such talent who left the judges spellbound with her performance is Swetha Warrior from Kerala. Swetha performed western-classical fusion along with choreographer Aishwarya on the song Dilbar. She got positive comments from all three judges for her act. However, Malaika was quite intrigued by her performance and was happy to know that both Swetha and her choreographer Aishwarya hail from Kerala, which is also where Malaika belongs to. So much so that Malaika even coined a term for the two, she said on the show she would like to call them "Malla ke Mallus." Seeing them perform took the dancing diva back to her roots in Kerala and she even complimented their act in Malayali.

Swetha, who was happy to receive good remarks from judges, said: "I started dancing when I was three and half. My mother is my inspiration. She is a professionally trained dancer and I still learn from her." Swetha's mother was touched seeing her daughter perform on stage and the mother-daughter duo later even performed Bharatanatyam on the song Aarni

Je Tomar in front of the judges.

SIDDHAANTH'S TRANSFORMATION

Siddhaanth Vir Surryavanshi has been a popular TV face for years now and he has a massive fan following, especially amongst the ladies. Being part of several top shows, we've seen him don several looks. But for Zee TV's upcoming fiction show — Kyun Rishton Mein Katti Batti, the actor wanted to have a slightly different look. Playing a dashing, jet setting businessman on the show, he had to look a certain way and the makers experimented with several looks with the actor before arriving on one!

To be the hot and happening Kuldeep as they had envisioned, Siddhaanth had to reinvent his fitness regime. He along with the makers wanted to break the image of onscreen fathers and hence, they planned to make him look like a desirable man with quite the physique. Thus began the actor's transformation where he had to lose some of his belly fat, build six pack abs and gain some muscle. For the same, he went on a special diet and worked out regularly for a period of six months and, well, the results speak for themselves. But the transformation wasn't easy for Siddhaanth! The actor had recently undergone a surgery and just as soon as he recovered, he took on the role and committed himself to playing it to the hilt!

The actor revealed: "You know, there is this notion in everyone's mind that all the fathers on TV shows look a certain way. But who says dads can't be sexy? So, to break this mindset, we finalized on a ripped look and I knew there was a lot of hard work in store for me, especially post my surgery. After being diagnosed with stage one arthritis in my shoulder last year, I had to get a surgery done for the same. In fact, when the show was offered, I was still undergoing rehab. But my transformation phase helped me not only get into the skin of the character but also feel fitter overall."

Talking about his regime, Siddhaanth mentioned: "I just worked out regularly for six months, not missing one day or one session. Having three different trainers allowed me to focus on all the aspects of my body and they helped me tone down and get into the shape that we envisioned for Kuldeep. I also focused on my diet, which comprised of healthy alternatives and protein-rich food which helped us achieve the ripped body look."

QUOTEUNQUOTE

Seeing my children's happy faces, spending time, wrestling and cuddling with them, is my happiness potion. I think the best thing that this catastrophe has brought is that we are getting to spend times with our families. Gyms are shut but for me fitness can never take a back seat. I've been working out at home religiously. Maintaining a positive mindset is even more important now.

— Ashish Chowdhry who plays MJ in Beohadh 2

In times of the deadly Covid 19, I am majorly following reliable news sources in order to stay informed and avoiding public places and spending time with my family which we rarely get because of our busy schedule. Also, keeping my self busy by doing gardening and helping my wife with cooking and other household work.

— Tushar Dalvi who plays Sai in Mere Sai

I know the time is not right and everybody is on panic mood and scared. Even though we understand that being completely locked-down at one place and being home-bound is not easy to bear for so long but I would request all to avoid stepping out. We know the way Covid-19 is increasing day by day and people are falling sick and dying and we need to do our part to save us and others around us. Also, if you step out from your building to buy groceries, please get it for elderly in your society too and don't let them go out.

— Rishina Khandari who plays Rani in Ishaaron Ishaaron Mein

These are tough times. While we can't physically fight this virus, we can all do our bit and prevent it from spreading further by staying indoors and strictly observe social distancing. Given the schedule that we normally follow, it surely gets difficult to stay put indoors but this too shall pass. On the positive side, I'm spending a lot of time with my family and we are ensuring ways and means to keep ourselves occupied. From board games to movies to gardening and DIYs, we have been at it. I hope and pray for the well-being of everyone.

— Sourabh Raaj Jain who plays Chef Neil Oberoi in Patiala Babes

I am spending enough time reading all the novels in my 'To Read list'. I don't get enough time on the set to read despite sitting with it after almost every shot. Currently, I am reading a book that comprises of the most unusual poetries written that I started reading a couple of weeks ago. I hope to complete reading this book in the coming week. Other than reading, I also love folk music. I intend to sing and upload videos of it on my social media channels to keep myself as well as my fans entertained.

— Kamna Pathak who plays Rajesh in Happu Ki Ultan Paitan

The biggest thing I miss out the most on is spending time with my family especially my daughter. Now that I have some time, we've made a sort of to-do list to spend time together. Most of it includes trying all her craft DIYs (laughs) which she likes watching. Besides that cooking some delicious meals for her and my husband. Although I would have loved visiting my extended family back in Indore with her but looking at the current scenario it is in our best interest to stay at home. And this is something I would like to urge all the viewers too. Please take all the necessary precautions and stay indoors... Kyunki hum ghar ke andhar, toh corona baha! Stay safe and stay indoors.

Due to shoot schedules, my fitness regime would often get neglected and I was able to work out for one or two days in a week. Now that I've got some time off, I have begun exercising at home and I'm enjoying it. Prior to taking up the character of Anjani in &TV's Kahat Hanuman Jai Shri Ram, I was pursuing Yoga which is performed in an extreme hot environment. I have once again begun practicing it at home where I switch off the A/C and fan and do the regular yoga asans. It helps in maintaining my weight plus brings an abundance of positivity especially at a time when we are enveloped in an environment of serious health concerns. My sincere urge to everyone is to take good care of your health by staying indoors and keep up with the exercise routines.

— Sneha Wagh who plays Anjani in Kahat Hanuman Jai Shri Ram

Shooting a daily soap is hectic and during that time I didn't get time to watch even my show. So, finally now I am binge watching my show. Also I am a big time foodie and staying away from family, I don't get much of my favourite dishes so, I am learning to cook.

— Mohit Kumar who plays Shruvan in Ek Duje ke Vaaste 2

In this Quarantine season as the shoots are on hold, I am trying to use most of my time catching up with my hobbies. I really like painting but because of busy schedules I don't get enough time. But right now, I am making painting which I wasn't able to complete or the ones I wanted to make from long time.

PM Narendra Modi ji gave a directive of 21-days lockdown which I will dedicatedly follow. I have been at home since last 15 days and I will be indoors unless the lockdown is lifted. I have stored basic essentials and I will only step out if I need to buy groceries or medicines. There are people who don't understand and leave their houses on bikes or cars, I really urge those people to stay at home as if we save ourselves, we will save the country. This is the chance to stay home and spend time with your family, eating healthy food, doing yoga and keeping yourselves fit and I myself am doing that.

Street vendors to get ₹3K aid

200 poor to get cooked food in each GP: CM

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik on Saturday announced a financial aid of Rs 3,000 for each of the 65,000 registered street vendors in 114 ULBs across the State. Notably, these street vendors have suffered financially as they have kept their shops closed as a measure to maintain social distancing for checking spread of deadly novel coronavirus (COVID-19) for a few days now. Besides, the Chief Minister also announced that 100 to 200 poor people would be provided cooked food in each gram panchayat from Sunday. SHGs would be entrusted the responsibility of cooking and distributing cooked meals. Poor people can take cooked food from SHGs and eat the meals in their respective houses, said the Chief Minister in an official release. He said that about 10 lakh poor and distressed people would benefit from the scheme. On Friday, the Chief Minister had announced distribution of ration items to poor people for three months and old-age pension for four months. He urged people once again to stay home and remain safe from COVID-19.

'Help Odisha people stranded outside' NAVEEN URGES ODIA OUTFITS

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

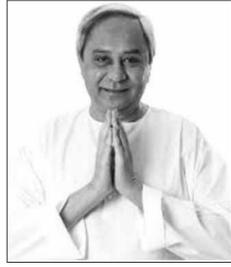

Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik on Saturday appealed to all Odia associations functioning across the country to come forward and help fellow Odias stranded in various States due to the COVID-19 lockdown.

Through a video, Patnaik said many people from Odisha are stuck up in various States and some may be in distress condition requiring food and medicines.

"I had requested Chief Ministers yesterday to assist them through local administrations. Now, I request all Odia associations in these States to come forward to help fellow Odias," said Patnaik.

We will reimburse the cost (of assistance) from Chief Minister's Relief Fund (CMRF)

Stay home, study; Minister urges students

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

School & Mass Education Minister Samir Ranjan Dash on Saturday urged the students to stay at home and concentrate on studies during the corona lockdown period.

He said the midday meal (MDM) has been provided to the students in advance for three months. The normal MDM programme would resume from June 15.

"Meanwhile, the textbook from Classes-I to VIII have already been dispatched to their schools. The department will make arrangements to send the books to students after overcoming the pandemic situation arising out of coronavirus," he said.

PNS ■ BRAHMAPUR

People in Ganjam district would no more have to rush to hospitals to avail healthcare services. They can get it sitting at their homes.

In a unique initiative to ensure social distancing as a measure against spread of coronavirus, the district administration has launched telemedicine services for people who would seek medical consultations in the district.

The administration has released contact details of a number of doctors and specialists of various genres who would provide consultations over phone calls and WhatsApp.

The doctors would be available during both morning and evening hours.

K'mal villagers use Sal leaf masks

PNS ■ PHULBANI

In view of a huge shortage of masks to curb the coronavirus spread, villagers of tribal Kandhamal district have adopted a creative method of preparing masks out of plant leaves for their use.

Residents of Mundigarh under Tumudibandh block are using their handmade masks as well as spreading awareness among others about the virus. They are wearing the masks made of Sal leaves collected from forests.

They have put up posters in the village appealing to everyone to abide by the lockdown rules.

They are also prohibiting people from entering into and moving outside the village during the lockdown.

The conscious locals are also making others aware about hand sanitisation to prevent coronavirus infections by placing a bucket, a mug and soaps on the village outskirts.

Ulaka was a member of the Andhra Odisha Border Special Zonal Committee of the outlawed CPI(Maoist) and actively involved in various Red rebel activities in the Narayanpatna area of Koraput district.

She shunned the path of violence and surrendered before Koraput SP Mukesh Kumar Bhadoo. She would be rehabilitated under the State Government's Maoist Surrender and Rehabilitation policy, the SP said.

'Are Tata BSL workers' lives less valuable?'

Suparno protests running of D'nal plant

PNS ■ DHENKANAL

While most of the world and the whole of India is undergoing a lockdown to fight COVID-19 pandemic, the factory of Tata BSL in Dhenkanal district of Odisha is working as usual.

The management of Tatas is openly defying the lockdown directive and has forced hundreds of its workers to work at their plant.

This extremely serious matter came to light with two tweets of sociopolitical leader and Smt Nandini Satpathy Memorial Trust chairman Suparno Satpathy. One of his tweets is addressed to Ratan Tata and the other to CM Naveen Patnaik. In his tweet he asks if the life of the workers at the Tata BSL plant was any less valuable.

The Dhenkanal SP said there are directives given by top officials to allow the smooth running of the plant during the lockdown.

Hundreds of factory workers are daily hoarded in busses and made to work in the factory.

Close Post Offices as infection chances high: NFPE

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

National Federation of Postal Employees (NFPE), Odisha unit chairman Bruhaspati Samal has urged the Postal Directorate and Government of India to take immediate action for suspension of Post and RMS offices till restoration of normalcy in the wake of the lockdown clamped for COVID-19.

He said only the bigger post offices like General Post Office, Head Post Office and Mukhya Dak Ghars may be opened in skeletal mode with minimum number of staff on roster basis keeping in view the guidelines of Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, Unicef and WHO with full preventive measures to provide the basic services. And this can only help to maintain social distancing and contain spread of COVID-19.

Samal said in Odisha, out of 8,172 post offices, all the 6,976 Rural Branch Post Offices and all bigger offices like Mukhya Dak Ghar, Head Post Office, General Post Office numbering 220 are ordered to be kept open. While use of biometric devices has been dispensed with by Government of India, in a recent order issued by the department on March 25, the department has emphasized to ensure financial transactions in biometric mode and for booking and delivery of accountable articles.

The federation said that there is higher risk of infection as 25,000 postal employees working in 8,172 post offices across Odisha are interacting with hundreds of customers daily in each post office at the counters and handling lakhs of mails coming from various sources including foreign mails.

The condition is same for 5 lakh postal employees in 1.55 lakh post offices across the country. The federation said that opening the postal services and booking of articles is meaningless at a time when there is absence of any transport facility including rail, air and road.

Besides for cash transactions, ATMs would come handy and there is no need to open any Post Office, he added.

'Don't deprive city Red Cross bodies of grant'

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

The Indian Red Cross Society, Police Commissionerate Branch executive committee member Dillip Dashsharma has thanked Chief Minister Naveen Patnaik for providing financial assistance of Rs 44.50 crore to the district Red Cross Societies.

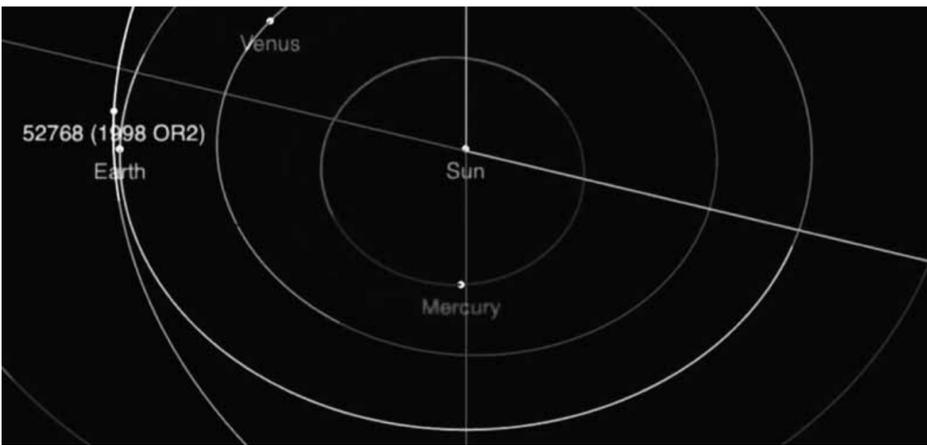

However, Dashsharma demanded that the Government provide financial support to the Bhubaneswar-Cuttack Commissionerate Branch and Rourkela City Branch along with 30 district branches.

He also demanded that district Collectors of Khordha and Sundargarh be asked to ensure that these two branches are not deprived of Government support.

Dashsharma has written a letter to the Chief Minister in this regard.

'Asteroid not to hit Earth on Apr 29'

PNS ■ ATHAGARH

An asteroid would make a pass-by close to the Earth on April 29 at about 3.26 pm but would not collide, NASA scientist Dr Deepak Kumar Karan, who hails from Athagarh, has said.

Dr Karan said the asteroid was first observed on July 24, 1998 by astronomers of the Near-Earth Asteroid Tracking System of NASA at the Haleakala Observatory, Hawaii.

It has a huge estimated diameter of about 1.8 to 4.1 km (about two to three times the length of Mahanadi bridge, Cuttack).

At the point of its closest approach, distance from the Earth would be around 63 lakh km. So, there's no fear of its collision with the Earth, Dr Karan said.

According to the above criteria, the NASA has classified the asteroid as 'potentially hazardous'. On April 16, 2079 the asteroid would again safely pass by the Earth at a distance of around 18 lakh km, he added.

Dalmia Cement suspends production

PNS ■ BHUBANESWAR

To maintain social distancing and protect the workforce from novel coronavirus (COVID 19), the Dalmia Cement (Bharat) Ltd has suspended cement production at all its 12 manufacturing units located in nine States in the country.

The units have a combined annual capacity of 26.5 million tonnes. Commenting on the decision, company MD and CEO Mahendra Singh said, "With its People First motto, the Dalmia Cement has risen to the calls of Prime Minister Narendra Modi and concerned Chief Ministers and decided to suspend production across all our plants. The plants will remain closed till further notice. All employees and communities living around our plant locations will be provided with any support that they may need."

Ambulance driver fined ₹31,500

PNS ■ BHADRAK

An ambulance driver was fined for carrying passengers in his vehicle near Dahanigadia Chhak in Bhadrak district on Saturday.

The ambulance carrying seven passengers was going towards Ghanteswar village under Chandbali block from Bhadrak town. A joint team of the Bhadrak police and RTO intercepted the ambulance. During a preliminary inquiry, the team came to know that the ambulance driver was taking the passengers violating the COVID-19 guidelines.

A fine of Rs 31,500 was imposed on the driver by the RTO.

Shut industries in Rayagada: MP Ulaka

PNS ■ RAYAGADA

Koraput Congress MP KSaptagiri Ulaka has tweeted CM Naveen Patnaik urging him to ensure a complete shutdown of the industries in Rayagada district, part of his constituency, to contain further spread of COVID-19. He has also asked the authorities to expedite spending of District Mineral Fund (DMF) for the cause.

Notably, in exercising the powers conferred by the Health & Family Welfare Department, district Collector PK Behera has allowed industries like Utkal Alumina International Ltd (UAIL), JK Paper Mills (JKPM), IMFA, Fimkum India to operate their plants.

Many other prominent persons have supported Ulaka's suggestion for closure of industries. Senior scribe Bijaya Mishra said, "Take the case of UAIL. As hundreds of huge trucks and bulkers with containers carrying coal, lime, caustic acid, FO, etc., from neighbouring States everyday are getting into Rayagada, we are apprehensive."

Former Principal of Rayagada Autonomous College Dr K Salvaraju said, "The plants need to completely shut down. If the Indian Railways can be closed down then why not UAIL, Vedanta, JK & IMFA?"

For peace, accept life as it is, dispel fear

SUBHASHREE DAS

Phantasm and illusion are the misapprehensions of life. Reality of life is something very different from all these. In the present scenario, we need to come out of this mirage and frame an individual life. All the human experiences such as anxiety, alienation and depression imply the presence of mental illness in every individual. But the existential psychotherapy sees these experiences as natural stages in a normal process of human development and maturity. In facilitating this process of development and maturation, existentialism involves a philosophical exploration of an individual's experiences stressing the individual's freedom and responsibility to facilitate a higher degree of meaning and wellbeing in one's life. No matter what happens around the world or in our individual lives, there is always a look for a place of stability. Searching for a purpose or wondering if anything in life really matters or even if they matter, people seek out a sense of identity, an inner knowledge of who they are. There are a few who hunt for a relationship with God, or a deepening sense of spiritual connection in whatever forms that might take. Many search for connection with other human beings, whether that is friendship, deepened intimacy or someone with whom to grow old with. And a few are those who are searching for a way out -- a way out of pain in all its forms, a way out of disappointment, regret, shame, anger, sadness, loss, anxiety and fear, and at times in the mundane too.

There is exploration for other things that are really nothing at all, like the requirement of ample time, more relaxation and more confidence, less stimulation, more beauty, more happiness, information, knowledge or skills. Maybe peace of mind isn't something we have or we need to find, but something we do nurture and cultivate in ourselves. Maybe, it's right under our nose. Living our lives in alignment with what truly matters to us isn't about searching, trying to be something other than we are. It is living with ourselves, our histories, and going forward to create a life worthy of our time on this planet. That kind of peace is durable. We end each day with the news that the stock market is tumbling. The number of coronavirus cases is increasing. The reach of the virus is widening. And it's creating a kind of preemptive hysteria. The root of these thoughts is that they are "negativity bias" of the brain. It's an evolutionary trait that served us well while living on the savannah thousands of years ago. Fear sparks a deep desire to be in control. Inner peace comes not from control, but from letting go of the illusion. There is a direct correlation between the intensity of our resistance to this reality and the amount of suffering that we are experiencing. In this regard, it's very obvious to remain confused and automatically the stress moves on searching for a point of releasing the depth of anguish in the form of a trust with something that can purify the stress and add calmness to mind; or else severe anxiety and stress can result in a complete meltdown. This response can cause long-term damage to our health and lower the ability to perform optimally. At a point, certain degree of mental and emotional detachment is very much essential to start focusing about the peace of mind. To accept what cannot be changed, can bring back a sense of happiness and freedom. Inner peace eventually leads to external peace. By creating peace in one's inner world and own life, the same inner peace can be easily shared to the external world and to other people's lives. When one is composed, sufficiently practiced and self-assured, one is poised for success. A coping strategy needs to be developed where both our mind and heart need to develop the adjustments for a social connectivity. The time is knocking where we need to end the dilemma that we should not lose ourselves in the labyrinth of the little streets. # Civic body stamps Haasan as 'home quarantine' by mistake

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ CHENNAI

Kamal Haasan, actor-turned-politician — was in for a shock on Saturday morning when he saw the Chennai Corporation's green sticker warning people pasted on the gates of his house in Alwarpet.

The green coloured "Home Quarantined" sticker was a warning to outsiders to stay off the premises of the palatial house of Ulaga Nayagan (Universal Hero), as the actor prefers to be addressed by all.

Local TV news channels, who are looking forward for signs of even minute 'mishaps' went to the town with Breaking News that the actor has tested positive for coronavirus and has been quarantined at his house.

Within one hour, employees working for Haasan got the sticker removed and told onlookers that it was a case of mistaken identity. The actor himself issued a clarification stating that he was no more a resident of the house at Alwarpet and it is being used as the office of the political outfit launched by him.

G Prakash, Commissioner, Chennai Corporation, told reporters that it was a case of mistaken identity. "It is a clerical error. The concerned officials in Chennai Corporation had received information that the resident of the house had returned from Dubai recently and as part of government guidelines that they have to be in isolation for the next fortnight," said Prakash.

It was found that Gautami, Tamil film industry's lead star in yesteryears who was a live-in partner of Ulaga Nayagan, had given the address of Alwarpet in her passport.

Though the two parted ways some years ago, she did not inform the passport office about the change of address. The civic body officials who were under the impression that the duo were staying in the same house pasted in the sticker cautioning outsiders about the quarantined star.

"The sticker was based on the passport details. One or two instances may happen like this. Please don't blow it up," said Prakash.

The Saturday morning faux pas brought smiles to the faces of the actor's neighbors who are familiar with his adventure filled romantic life.

Coronavirus too has its lighter moments, one of the onlookers was heard telling.

Cuts development cycle from 15 years to 10 days

Hyderabad: Amid a frightening picture being painted by coronavirus concerns across the world, there's a ray of hope emerging from the University of Hyderabad (UoH). In what could be a welcome breakthrough for the country and even the world, a faculty member of the biochemistry department has developed a possible vaccine against the dreaded coronavirus infection.

A statement issued by University of Hyderabad (UoH) states that Dr Seema Mishra, faculty of the Department of Biochemistry, School of Life Sciences, has designed potential vaccine candidates, called T cell epitopes, against all the structural and non-structural proteins of novel coronavirus-2 (2019-nCoV) for experimental testing. These vaccine candidates are small coronaviral peptides, molecules which are used by cells to trigger an immune response to destroy cells harbouring these viral peptides.

Using powerful immunoinformatics approaches with computational softwares, Dr Seema Mishra has designed these potential epitopes in a way that can be used to vaccinate an entire population.

Usually, vaccine discovery takes 15 years, but the powerful computational tools helped in quickly enlisting these vaccine candidates in about 10 days.

A ranked list of potential candidate vaccines, based on how effectively they will be used by human cells to stop the virus, has been generated. With no matches present in human protein pool, these coronaviral epitopes pose no cross-reactivity to human cells and hence, the immune response will be against viral proteins and not human proteins. However, these results have to be investigated experimentally in order to provide conclusive evidence.

These results have been disseminated to the scientific community using ChemRxiv preprint platform for urgent experimental assays.

Acknowledging that currently social distancing remains the best defence against nCoV infections, the University of Hyderabad (UoH) stated that vaccination will take some time as further work is needed on the candidate epitopes.

"We are hopeful that our computational findings will provide a cost-and-time-effective framework for rapid experimental trials towards an effective nCoV vaccine," the statement said.

The University of Hyderabad clarified that although the research has been disseminated, the scientific community, in vitro studies are required to be conducted for establishing the findings conclusively.

TATA ANNOUNCES ₹1,500 CR TO TACKLE COVID-19

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

The Tata Trusts and Tata Sons have collectively announced ₹1,500 towards tackling the situation arising out of the coronavirus crisis in the country.

"The current situation in India and across the world is of grave concern and needs immediate action. The Tata Trusts and Tata group of companies have in the past risen to the needs of the nation. At this moment, the need of the hour is greater than any other time," Industrialist Ratan N Tata, chairman of Tata Trusts, and Messrs Tata Sons said in a statement issued here on Saturday.

"In this exceptionally difficult period, I believe that urgency emergency resources need to be deployed to cope with the needs of fighting the COVID-19 crisis, which is one of the toughest challenges the human race will face," Tata said.

The Tata Trusts committed ₹500 crore for: personal protective equipment for medical personnel on the frontlines, respiratory systems for treating increasing cases, testing kits to increase per capita testing, setting up modular treatment facilities for infected patients and knowledge management and training of health workers and the general public.

Meanwhile, in a separate statement, Messrs Tata Sons announced ₹1,000 Crores support towards COVID 19 and related activities.

"Tata Sons announces an additional ₹1000 Crores support towards COVID 19 and related activities. We will work together with the Tata Trusts and our Chairman Emeritus Ratan N Tata and would be fully supporting their initiatives, and work in a collaborative manner to bring the full expertise of the group," N. Chandrasekaran, Chairman, Tata Sons said in a separate statement issued here.

"In addition to the initiatives articulated by Tata Trusts, we are also bringing in the ventilators necessary and are gearing up to also manufacture the same soon in India. The country is facing an unprecedented situation and crisis. All of us would have to do whatever it takes to alleviate and enhance the quality of lives of the communities we serve" Chandrasekaran said.

Palaniswamy demands ₹1 lakh cr from Centre

Coronavirus cases touch 40

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ CHENNAI

The number of patients tested positive for coronavirus in Tamil Nadu touched 40 according to Dr C Vijaya Baskar, Minister of health. Both the patients were passengers who reached the State from West Indies and Britain. "Both travelled from abroad transit via Middle east. Patients are in isolation and stable," the Minister said in a social media post.

Saturday saw Chief Minister Edappadi Palaniswamy asking Prime Minister Narendra Modi to provide an aggregate amount of at least ₹1 lakh crore as a special grant to the State Governments to combat the COVID-19 virus and kits aftermath. In a letter to the Prime Minister on Saturday, the extracts of which were released to the media, Palaniswamy pointed out that under the Indian Public Finance System, only the Government of India can in an eventuality, borrow freely from the monetary authority, the Reserve bank of India.

"The economic impact of the lock-down is likely to be very severe and unprecedented. Such difficult times call for unconventional measures to ensure that the economy is revived and re-invented. Conventional economic doctrines and dogmas will need to be set aside temporarily. Hence, I request that the Government of India, in addition to permitting the additional borrowing by State Governments, should provide an aggregate amount of at least Rs.1 lakh crore as a special grant to the State Governments to combat the COVID 19 virus and its aftermath," the chief minister said in his letter.

The chief minister said that funds could be distributed in proportion of the size of each State's GSDP to the national GDP, since the expenditure out of this grant would also pump prime the economy and lead to its revival. "I request that Tamil Nadu may be given a grant of Rs.9000 crore under this special dispensation," he said in the letter.

It may be remembered that the chief minister in a letter to the Prime Minister on Wednesday had asked for special assistance of Rs 4,000 crore for augmentation and strengthening of the health infrastructure and for essential equipment, medicines and for preventive public health measures at this crucial juncture.

Number of patients afflicted with corona virus had reached 38 by late Friday night. Though three deaths were reported from Kanyakumari district on Saturday morning, the district administration is waiting for the causes of death.

"All three were admitted for ailments which were not connected with Corona virus symptom. We have sent samples for analysis and waiting for results. By late tonight, we hope to get the details," Prashant Wadnere, district collector, Kanyakumari, told The Pioneer over telephone.

Minister Vijaya Baskar appealed to all voluntary organizations and NGOs in the State to come forward and arrange hand washing facility at the entrance of their streets, apartments, and offices with water and liquid soap to prevent virus spread.

Interestingly, rural Tamil Nadu has taken up the fight against corona virus in a big way. Vehicles and people entering the premises of villages are forced to wash their hands and legs with water boiled with herbs and medicinal plants.

The village population is making use of the neem trees planted along the roads. In Pudukottai and Tirunelveli districts, those who got of the villages have to not only wash their hands and legs before reentering the villages but have to gargle their mouth with medicated water which has turmeric, neem leaves and tulsi. "Experiences in the past have taught us that this concoction is an ideal protector against any kind of contagious diseases," said S Muthukrishnan of Tirunelveli. Needless to say the villages where these people reside are yet to report any instance of corona.

13 fresh cases test +ve in J&K, tally reaches 30

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ JAMMU

A middle-aged couple with a travel history to Mumbai, and four others who had come in contact with the first victim of coronavirus from Kashmir, were among 13 fresh cases tested positive in Jammu&Kashmir on Saturday.

The final tally of active cases till late evening stood at 30 with Kashmir valley alone recording 23 cases and Jammu region recording 7 cases so far. Two cases, admitted in the Government medical college hospital in Jammu have fully recovered and released from the hospital while one patient, hailing from Hyderpora area of Srinagar died on March 26.

Spokesman of the Jammu & Kashmir Government, Rohit Kansal on Saturday tweeted, "Tough to be harbinger of unpleasant news. But being informed is being prepared. 7 more positive cases in Srinagar today, 4 cases- history of contact with already positive cases of religious congregation; other three- travel history outside J&K contacts being traced".

Five villages of Rajouri district have been declared as 'red-zone' after majority of contacts of three positive cases were traced to these areas

Meanwhile, five villages of Rajouri district have been declared as 'red-zone' after majority of contacts of three positive cases were traced to these areas. Official sources claimed, they have managed to identify maximum number of contact list and have quarantined them while three positive cases have been isolated inside the dedicated ward for Covid-19 patients in Rajouri hospital.

In Samba district also, a big cluster of residential homes, located in the close vicinity of a religious place, was declared out of bounds after the district authorities decided to put them in home quarantine.

According to official sources, out of seven fresh cases, four of them had come in contact with a religious preacher during a congregation in the first week of March.

They are aged between 28-35 and at present receiving treatment in Soura medical institute. Another patient, a resident of Jawaharnagar in Srinagar, with a travel history to Indonesia was tested positive while a couple was admitted in the chest disease hospital after they developed symptoms on their return from Mumbai.

'Red Zone' scare in Hyderabad, GHMC steps in to clear the air

Hyderabad: With confusion and panic setting in different areas of Hyderabad over reported declaration of some areas as 'Red Zones' in the wake of the emerging COVID-19 scenario, the authorities stepped in to control the damage.

The Greater Hyderabad Municipal Commission (GHMC) issued a statement on Saturday that GHMC Commissioner Somesh Kumar has not announced any 'Red Zones' in the city.

Earlier, on Saturday, several media outlets and television channels had reported that "the Telangana government declared several areas of Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corporation as 'Red Zones'. People in the red zones have been ordered to remain indoors for 14 days. Essentials will be supplied to doorsteps in these areas. Hyderabad localities declared red zones include Chandanagar, Kokapet, Gachibowli, Turkayamjal, Kothapet," read the statements on some of the TV channels. The news saw people emptying the streets in these localities and rushing to their homes. In the morning, many people had gone to nearby markets to purchase essentials, when the reports began doing the rounds.

Telangana has witnessed a spurt in the number of COVID-19 positive cases over the last two days. On Friday, the chief minister had said that 10 new positive cases were detected in one day.

The number of COVID-19 cases in the state stood at 59 on Friday.

Covid-19 cases reach 181 in Maha

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

In a disquieting development, the number of coronavirus infected people in Maharashtra jumped to 181 as 28 more persons tested positive for the pandemic, while the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC) started two quarantine facilities with 285 beds at two different places in the metropolis.

"Of the newly infected Covid-19 patients, Mumbai accounted for a maximum of 22 patients, while two persons were diagnosed positive for Coronavirus in Nagpur. The remaining four infected patients are from Palghar, Vasai-Virar and Navi Mumbai," a medical bulletin put out by the Public Health Department of the Maharashtra government under the Integrated Disease Surveillance Programme (IDSP) said.

"As many as 104 patients admitted to various hospitals are not showing any symptoms of Covid-19. However, the condition of four hospitalised persons is serious," the bulletin said. There have so far been six Covid-19 deaths in Maharashtra. The latest death was reported on Friday from the PD Hinduja Hospital, where an 85-year-old doctor died on Thursday night.

The coronavirus had claimed first life in the state on March 17, when a 63-year-old disease-infected had died at the Kasurba Hospital. Subsequently, another 63-year-old male patient, who had been admitted to private hospital in Mumbai died on March 21. Later on March 24, a 65-year-old COVID-19 patient died at Kasurba Hospital in Mumbai. On the same day, 65-year-old woman died in a hospital at Navi Mumbai.

As many as 323 persons were admitted to various hospitals in the state on Saturday. "Since January 18, 3816 people have been hospitalized in various isolation wards across the state owing to them developing symptoms such as fever, cold, cough etc. Out of the total admissions, 3391 laboratory samples were negative and 181 have been tested positive for coronavirus until today," the medical bulletin said.

Twenty six patients who have recovered completely from COVID-19 have been discharged from various hospital. "As many as 18,295 people are home quarantined in the state, while 5928 people are in institutional quarantine centres," the bulletin said.

In a related development, the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC) — in twin measures — started a new 250 bed Isolation centre at MCGM Centre for Municipal Capacity Building & Research (MCMCB) at Powai in north-east Mumbai and a 35-bedded Isolation Centre at Seven Hills Hospital and OPD with the support of HN Reliance Hospital. "The Isolation centre at Seven Hills Hospital for citizens," a BMC release said. Confirming the Coronavirus-related death of a 85-year-old male patient at a private hospital in Mumbai late on Thursday night, the BMC release said: "He was known case of diabetes mellitus and had a permanent pacemaker with no history of travel. He was in contact with close relative who had travelled to the United Kingdom. Patient positive on March 26 for Covid in a private laboratory which is being confirmed now."

In another statement relating to the death of 85-year-old doctor, BMC's Executive officer said that the son and grandson of the doctor who died at the Hinduja Hospital on Thursday had tested positive for Covid-19.

"In an effort to spread of Covid-19 following the death of the doctor who was a cardiac surgeon at Saifee Hospital, we have asked the Saifee Hospital administration to several measures including testing of all high and low risk contact swabs for Covid-19, putting to a stop to OPD work and admissions and cordoning of the Operation Theatre and ICU visited by the deceased doctor," the BMC release said.

Meanwhile, Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray announced the setting up of a "Chief Minister Relief Fund - COVID 19"

Uddhav appealed to industrialists, company heads, voluntary, religious organisations and citizens to join the Maharashtra government in fighting Corona virus on a war footing. We have set up the Chief Minister Relief Fund - COVID 19. I request you to donate money generously to this fund," the chief minister said, in an appeal made here on Saturday.

Don't throng shops to buy mangoes, fish: Goa CM

Panaji: Goans tend to "go crazy" when it comes to mangoes and fish, Chief Minister Pramod Sawant said on Saturday, urging them not to throng vendors selling the king of fruits and fish and maintain social distancing in the wake of the nationwide lockdown that is in place to fight the coronavirus outbreak.

The plea from Sawant comes at a time when the state government appears to have failed to home deliver essential commodities to most parts of Goa and grocery stores in the state are closed due to dearth of stock.

"Goans tend to go crazy when it comes to mangoes or fish. Do not throng (parked) vehicles carrying cargo of mangoes and fish. This is not safe," Sawant told a press conference on Saturday. "We will be able to eat mangoes and fish in the years to come after the dread of coronavirus passes," Sawant also said.

Mango is the most popular seasonal fruit in summer and fish is a part of the state's staple diet. Fish markets in the state, which are classified as "wet markets", have been closed in view of the coronavirus crisis.

Vijayan, Congress condemn cop for punishing people

Thiruvananthapuram: Kerala Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan on Saturday condemned the act of Kannur Superintendent of Police Yathish Chandra, who was seen punishing three people by making them squat on the road, as they ventured out on the streets.

"This does not augur well and a report from the officials concerned has been sought. It is acts like these which play spoilsport to the general excellent work done by the police under trying times. These sort of acts won't be tolerated," he said as the video of the SP's action went viral.

Kannur is the the home district of Vijayan. However, Chandra told the media that "since we did not want to use the cane against older people, we made them to do it".

"People fail to understand the reason why they are asked to remain home. This is the only way we can keep down the spread and for some reason, people do not understand it," he said. In the video, he is seen telling the three, as they were engaged in squats, "Why is that you fail to understand what the media, the police, the governments are saying all the time... not to venture out."

State Congress president Mulappally Ramachandran said what they all saw is "totally unacceptable".

"Such an act never even happened during colonial rule. This should have never happened and it cannot be accepted," said Ramachandran, a former Union Minister of State for Home. State police chief Loknath Behra reacted by saying personally he does not accept what happened.

"Now, we will wait for a report on what happened.. let it come," said Behra. Chandra was in the news when at the height of the Sabarimala temple protests in the then Union Minister of State Pon Radhakrishnan, when he reached the temple town.

Be prepared, PM tells AYUSH professionals

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Maintaining that the country must be ready to use the entire healthcare workforce to meet the Covid-19 challenge, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday asked Ayurveda, Yoga, Unani, Siddha and Homeopathy (AYUSH) professionals to be in all readiness so that if the need arises, help from private doctors connected with alternative medicine system may be sought by the Government. Currently, there are 7,99,879 AYUSH professionals from various streams across the States. It has been observed that Indian rural health system is totally dependent on ayush practitioners and Government hospitals. The National Health Policy 2017 has already advocated mainstreaming the potential of AYUSH systems within a pluralistic system of Integrative healthcare. Interacting with AYUSH professionals, he also underlined the importance of countering and fact-checking unsubstantiated claims of AYUSH having cure for the disease. He asked AYUSH scientists, ICMR, CSIR and other research organisations to come together for evidence-based research.

Interacting with AYUSH professionals from around the country through video conferencing, the Prime Minister said that there role has increased manifold in the ongoing efforts to tackle COVID-19.

He also observed that the network of AYUSH practitioners is spread throughout the length and breadth of the country and "it is imperative for them to utilise this network, while working according to WHO guidelines, to spread the message of good practices which need to be adopted in the efforts to control the spread of the virus."

Last week, the Union Cabinet had approved the inclusion of AYUSH Health and Wellness Centre (AYUSH HWC) component of Ayushman Bharat in the National AYUSH Mission (NAM). It aimed at establishing a holistic wellness model based on AYUSH principles and practices focusing on preventive, promotive, curative, rehabilitative and palliative healthcare by integration with the existing public health care system.

Modi also praised the AYUSH Ministry in promoting yoga at home to de-stress the mind and strengthen the body during this difficult phase.

Modi also suggested that AYUSH medicine producers

He also highlighted the importance of enforcing social distancing with full vigour to counter the spread of the pandemic.

The AYUSH practitioners also lauded the Prime Minister for leading the country's fight against COVID-19 and talked about the impact of these traditional practices towards boosting immunity.

All BJP MPs to release ₹1 cr each from their MPLAD fund: Nadda

DEEPAK K UPRETI ■ NEW DELHI

BJP president J P Nadda on Saturday announced that all party MPs will release ₹1 crore from their annual development fund to the Central relief fund to fight coronavirus pandemic even as he, through a video-conferencing, spoke to State BJP presidents of West Bengal, Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh and Karnataka and reviewed party's programme to feed five crore people daily.

Nadda, who announced BJP parliamentarians' contribution of ₹1 crore through MPLADS (Member of Parliament Local Area Development Scheme) fund, also said that all party MPs and MLAs will donate their one month salary as well towards the country's fight against the pandemic.

"All MPs & MLAs of Bharatiya Janata Party will donate their one month remuneration/salary to the central relief fund to support the fight against Covid-19. All MPs of BJP will release Rs 1 crore from their MPLADS fund to the central relief fund in support to fight against Covid-19," he said in his tweet.

The party at present has 386 MPs — 303 in Lok Sabha and 83 in Rajya Sabha. An MP gets ₹ 5 crore every year as part of the MPLADS.

Nadda through videoconferencing reviewed party's cooked food distribution programme by speaking to state presidents, General Secretaries, senior office bearers, MPs, MLAs and district presidents of West Bengal, Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh and Karnataka, and sought them to make the food distribution a success. He said not a single person should be left hungry "in this hour of crisis".

BJP General Secretary (Organization) B L Santosh was present during the meeting.

Nadda asked BJP workers to help out administration of respective states in the conduct of transportation and enforcement of lockdown as also assist the people who are self-quarantined. BJP has an estimated 11 crore of workers and is thus also recognized as the largest party in the world. A week before the lockdown, BJP had cancelled its all programmes across the country.

BJP president appreciated union health ministry's establishment of a task force, purchase order of 40,000 new ventilator, five lakh antibody kit through ICMR and seven lakh RNA kit and described it as positive step. Modi-government has made provision of ₹15,000 crore to deal with COVID-19.

Nadda highlighted Prime Minister's "statesmanship" during the crisis and his meetings with every section of society and in this series recalled his videoconferencing with the editors of print and electronic media as also with RJs (radio jockeys).

BRO personnel working hard to replace 'Daporijo bridge'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Notwithstanding the threat of COVID-19, the Border Roads Organisation (BRO) personnel are working relentlessly to completely replace Daporijo bridge (430 feet Multi-Span Bailey Bridge), the only lifeline of Upper Subansiri district, Arunachal Pradesh to restore Lines of Communication for all 451 villages and security forces located along the Line of Actual Control (LAC) facing China.

The armed forces have also activated isolation wards near the LAC and the Line of Control (LOC) facing Pakistan to deal with any case of the pandemic. The Army may also recall retired personnel with medical expertise if a need arises to shore up resources.

Giving details of the BRO undertaking the mission to construct the bridge, officials said here on Saturday more than 100 personnel of 23 BRTF/Project Arunank, on special request from the local administration, is working in full swing in spite of the dilapidated state of the existing bridge.

They said the BRO is committed to opening this vital line of communication by planned date, with all necessary precautionary measures. This bridge will ensure uninterrupted supplies like food and ammunition to the soldiers deployed on the LAC besides catering to the needs of the local population, sources said.

The BRO is the lead construction agency to build strategically important roads all along the LOC and LAC in inhospitable terrain and inclement weather. At present, the BRO is entrusted with the responsibility of constructing 72 strategic roads mostly in states having the LAC facing China.

Given this backdrop, the BRO in the northern part of the country is presently engaged in snow clearance operations on Manali - Leh axis, day and night despite inclement weather and COVID 19 threat to provide relief to Lahaul valley and Ladakh in an earlier time frame. Presently, Rohtang Pass and Baralachala Pass are being cleared by four snow clearance teams. This is the first time, BRO personnel were inducted by air to Sarchu to carry out snow clearance of mighty Baralachala Pass from Sarchu side.

In a connected issue, Director General Armed Forces Medical Services (AFMS) Lt General Anup Banerji said here isolation wards at peripheral hospitals were activated at Army formations along LOC and LAC.

Moreover, "Intensive information, education and communication campaigns are going on for serving personnel. Leave extension of those on leave as well as curtailment of leave to bare minimum have been imposed. Segregation facilities have been set up to observe troops already back from leave from various States," he said.

As regards the ongoing efforts to fight the pandemic, he said 28 Service Hospitals were earmarked as COVID hospitals for managing purely Corona virus cases. This will include Armed Forces as well as civilian patients transferred from state health authorities, in case their capacity is overwhelmed.

Banerji also said as of now, there are five hospitals across Army, Navy and Air Force which can carry out COVID test. These include Army Hospital Research and Referral, Delhi; Command Hospital Air Force, Bangalore and Armed Forces Medical College, Pune; Command Hospital (Central Command) Lucknow; Command Hospital (Northern Command) Udhampur. Six more hospitals are being equipped shortly with the resources to begin testing.

On the availability of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE), the AFMS chief said it is a challenge at national as well as global level, adding that advisory for rational usage of PPE has been issued to the Services.

"The AFMS is presently geared up with adequate PPEs for use in our hospitals. Additional procurement is also being planned to tide over crisis foreseen during the coming weeks and months since the Armed Forces have been directed to augment medical resources for the civil health set up also," he added.

Min urges corporate, biz houses based along highways to help migrant workers on move

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Union Minister Ravishankar Prasad on Saturday said he would advise corporate and business houses, which have their factories or premises along the highways or roadsides, to provide help to migrant workers on the move in the wake of coronavirus shutdown. "If any India corporates have factories or premises along roads in Delhi, UP or Bihar, I would advise them to make arrangement for their food and shelter after isolating them," said Prasad even as he pointed out that the Government was reviewing the situation on a daily basis.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi has tasked all in the government to take a specific responsibility and spoken to all Chief Ministers and bodies of pharmacist and doctors, he said adding constant supervision is being made as to how masks, ventilators or other medical equipments are being purchased.

On why the Government did not envisage workers' exodus and make arrangements while it airlifted Indians from abroad, Prasad said if workers had stayed back provisioning for food would have been made. "If you go out, you are inviting trouble... Long walk of 500 km is not acceptable," he said.

The Minister said he has personally spoken to 19 District magistrates and SPs in Bihar and has been told by them that all migrant workers who have come from abroad and outside Bihar have been quarantined.

Prasad said the Uttar Pradesh Government has opened community kitchens at different places to provide support to labourers on the roadsides. He said all States including Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh were cooperating and working in unison.

Online education on rise since corona outbreak

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

With people and students staying indoors ever since the beginning of the country wide lockdown, there has been an increase of users on the digital platforms of education.

According to the HRD Ministry, the digital education initiatives have registered an increase in users and HRD Minister Ramesh Pokhriyal Nishank said that the access to the National Online Education Platform SWAYAM and other Digital Initiatives has tripled in the last one week.

The increase in the users is also because of the provision of free access. Earlier the courses on SWAYAM were time bound and students needed to register in advance.

The SWAYAM courses can now be viewed by any learner free of cost without any registration. About 50,000 people have accessed SWAYAM since March 23, 2020. This is over and above the 25 lakh students/learners who are already enrolled in the 571 courses of the January 2020 semester of SWAYAM. SWAYAM has about 1900 courses which can be accessed by people in over 60 countries. The videos of the SWAYAM Prabha DTH TV channels are viewed by around 50,000 people every day. The National Digital Library is now being accessed by about 43,000 people daily which is more than double of the usual number of persons accessing it. The Education portals of NCERT like Diksha, e-pathasala, NROER and NIOS and the other ICT initiatives like Robotics education (e-Yantra), Open Source Software for Education (FOSSEE), Virtual experiments (Virtual Labs) and Learning programming (Spoken tutorial) are also experiencing very large access rates.

National Book Trust too has opened for free downloads of several titles in the last one week.

Human rights bodies ask police to ensure marginalised are not mistreated during lockdown

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The Amnesty International and the Human Rights Watch (HRW) on Saturday urged police forces in the country to act with restraint while maintaining law and order during the coronavirus lockdown.

The lockdown has left millions stranded, struggling to search for food and water, Amnesty International India (AII) executive director Avinash Kumar said in a statement. "Unfortunately for these people, a state machinery has become a larger threat than the COVID-19 pandemic," he said.

This is "unfortunate" and the Indian Government must ensure that "insensitivity and brute force be replaced by people-friendly measures in battling the pandemic," he said.

Kumar said India should respect and protect the rights of those under quarantine and ensure that their basic needs are met, including adequate shelter, food, water and sanitation. HRW South Asia director Meenakshi Ganguly too urged Indian authorities to ensure that everyone has access to food and medical care, and that the poor and marginalised are not mistreated or stigmatised.

"The Indian Government's responsibility to protect its people from the outbreak should not come at the cost of human rights violations," she said.

Tens of thousands of out-of-work migrant workers are stranded with rail and bus services shut down in the country. "Police actions to punish those violating orders have reportedly resulted in abuses against people in need," she alleged.

Indian police should be ordered to act with restraint while enforcing the lockdown. In several states, photos and videos show police beating people who are trying to get essential supplies. In West Bengal, police allegedly beat a 32-year-old man to death, after he stepped out of his home to get milk," she said.

Cong forms task force to mitigate people's sufferings

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Congress on Saturday constituted a task force to intensify efforts of party-ruled States to deal with the situation due to COVID-19 and help mitigate the sufferings of people.

The task force includes former Union Ministers P Chidambaram, Jairam Ramesh, M Veerappa Moily and Tamradhwaj Sahu.

A statement from the AICC said that the Congress president Sonia Gandhi has constituted a task force to intensify the efforts of Congress-ruled State Governments to deal with the situation prevailing on account of COVID-19, in a coordinated manner.

The members of the task force will start work immediately with the respective Congress-ruled State Governments to ensure that the daily distress and suffering of people is mitigated, the statement said.

"P Chidambaram, Jairam Ramesh, Tamradhwaj Sahu and Veerappa Moily, i.e. the chairmen of respective manifesto implementation committees in the Congress-ruled States will be its members," the Congress communication added.

The Congress has been criticising the Centre for not initiating enough measures to mitigate the sufferings of the poor and marginalised, who are facing hardships in view of the countrywide lockdown declared by the Prime Minister.

UP to release 11K prisoners for 8 weeks

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

The Uttar Pradesh Government ordered the release of around 11,000 convicts and undertrials housed in 72 jails of the State to ease overcrowding and thereby prevent the spread of coronavirus.

A high-level committee headed by senior judge of Allahabad High Court, Justice Pankaj Kumar Jaiswal, and two members, Additional Chief Secretary (Home) Awanish Awasthi and DG (Jails) Anand Kumar made the recommendation to the Government which was approved by Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath on Saturday.

Of the prisoners to be released are 8,500 under-trials and 2,500 convicts.

Earlier, the Supreme Court had ordered all states to consider the release of convicts on parole, whose punishment was not of more than seven years, so that the jails could be saved from overcrowding to prevent the spread of virus among prisoners.

As per officials, undertrials would be given bail for eight weeks on personal bonds while the convicts would be given parole for eight weeks in a similar manner.

In Gujarat, There was confusion as grain APMCs has been told to open markets on Thursday, but on Friday said that they had spoken to all farmers and traders, with all of them having agreed to resume on April 2.

In Mumbai, several restrictions have been imposed on mandis to avoid gatherings. However, most mandis dealing in essentials have started functioning. Grain market, vegetables, onion-potato all have resumed operations with staggered timing for loading, unloading and traders. According to officials of Ministry of Agriculture, over 2,000 wholesale mandis have started functioning after the nationwide lockdown across the country. In Azadpur mandi, which is Asia's largest subzi mandi also are opened.

There is no shortage of vegetables and fruits but there is no labour. Several trucks of farmers come to Azadpur on Saturday.

The agriculture ministry says there is no scarcity of vegetables and fruits in mandis. The grain mandis get activated during the time of harvest. Right now, the focus is on vegetable and fruit mandis. To normalise supply in major cities, the Centre has asked Mother Dairy's Safal vegetable outlets in Delhi, Safal Bangla retail outlets in Kolkata, Hopcoms retail outlets in Bengaluru and similar outlets in Chennai and Mumbai to monitor movement of supplies and coordinate with local administration.

Punjab, Haryana farmers explore 'sell-from-farm' option to neutralise 'corona effect'

RAJESH KUMAR ■ NEW DELHI

Given the mass exodus of labourers due to the nationwide lockdown, farmers of Punjab and Haryana are exploring the option of 'off-market' sale or what they call it as 'sell-from-farm'. For its part, the Maharashtra Government has asked farmers to form groups to sell vegetables and other essential items directly to consumers during the lockdown and to allow farmers to ferry the produce. Presently, 1,600-1,800 wholesale mandis has started functioning partially and fully despite the shortage of labourers. There are 6,900 mandis in the country.

Farmers across the country are in panic because the ripening fruits and vegetables will rot because mandi operations have almost stopped, and labour cannot reach farms due to transport bottlenecks. Marketing of produce is now becoming a challenge for the farmers. Officials of Haryana Agriculture Department said that farmers who usually sell their crops through an established supply chain that was set up by the Agricultural Produce Marketing Committee's (APMCs) have adopted a method to avoid market yards and sell their produces from their doorstep. Several farmers have started to sell their products from the farm and started supplying through their tractors.

According to farmers, losses will mount because it is harvest time for grapes, watermelons, bananas, muskmelon, chana, cotton, chillies, turmeric, jeera, coriander, onion and potato. Farmers are more concerned about dispose of their vegetables and fruits that is perishable.

In each case, doctors, nurses and paramedics posed in front of forest green surgical drapes, the bland backdrop of their sterile wards

Tech volunteers use 3D printers to make crucial virus masks

Edinburgh: 3D printer owners across Britain have answered the call of health leaders by teaming up to produce thousands of face visors to protect medical workers from being infected with coronavirus. The project, known as 3DCrowdUK, launched on Monday after medical institutions raised the alarm about potential equipment shortages due to the closure of supply factories affected by the virus. "We are basically getting all the people around the country who have 3D printers and we're enlisting them in our project to create face shields for the NHS," digital artist and 3D printer owner Seb Lee-Delisle told AFP. "We literally set it up on Monday and by now we have got hundreds and hundreds of people involved." The shortage of masks arose after factories in China closed due to the spread of the coronavirus in January and February. The masks are easy to assemble. Once the 3D printers have created the headband, a plastic film is placed on the front and elastic attached the back to hold it in place. AFP

Clashes erupt as people try to enter virus-hit Hubei

Beijing: In a rare display of public anger in China, dozens of people in central Hubei province, the epicentre of the coronavirus outbreak till recently, attacked official vehicles after they were stopped from crossing a bridge and travel to neighbouring Jiangxi after the lifting of the lockdown. Hubei province with over 56 million people was kept under lockdown from January 23 as part of aggressive measures to bring down COVID-19 cases which rapidly spread in the area. Videos on Chinese social media on Friday showed unprecedented scenes of police from Hubei and Jiangxi clashing on the bridge connecting the two provinces over barricades erected from stopping Hubei people from moving out over fears of coronavirus spreading. Policemen from both sides argued over how to verify if people were allowed to enter Jiangxi, according to local media reports. It was a major relief for millions of people in Hubei province, when the Chinese Government which kept it under lockdown lifted the restrictions on travel. The Government will permitted people from the province to travel if they hold a green health code, meaning no contact with any infected or suspected COVID-19 cases. PTI

Xinhua news agency reported. 10 of the 11 primary S&P 500 sectors traded lower, with energy down 6.93 per cent, becoming the worst-performing group. Utilities climbed 0.53 per cent, the only gainer among the sectors. The US became the country with the most COVID-19 cases worldwide on Thursday, according to Johns Hopkins University. As of 2 pm Eastern Time on Friday (1800 GMT), there were 94,238 confirmed cases in the United States, with 1,438 deaths, data from the university's Centre for Systems Science and Engineering showed. A shocking number of Americans applied for jobless benefits last week due to the coronavirus outbreak. US initial jobless claims, a rough way to measure layoffs, were registered at 3,283,000 in the week ending March 21, an increase of 3,001,000 from the previous week's revised level, the Department of Labor reported Thursday. The reading easily crushed the previous record rise of 695,000 in October 1982. Following a Senate approval earlier this week, the US House of Representatives on Friday passed a US $2 trillion COVID-19 stimulus package by voice vote, sending it to President Donald Trump for signature. Will speak to banks to facilitate cash flow, ensure timely access: FM

Lauding efforts of bankers in this difficult time, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Saturday said that she will speak to all banks to facilitate cash flow and enable timely access to all. She also assured that she will talk to states and ensure that there are no restrictions in the movement of cash, bankers, vendors or bank mitra. "Appreciate the service Bank Mitra/Banking Correspondents are undertaking across the country. Will talk to states — request no restrictions in their movements. Will speak to all banks to facilitate cash flow. Let's ensure timely access to all," the Finance Minister said in a series of tweets. It is to be noted that the Government earlier this week announced a slew of measures, including direct benefit transfer of cash assistance to poor, old age people and disabled, for mitigating hardship posed by outbreak of coronavirus. "The entire banking fraternity deserves recognition and thanks for their tireless and brave efforts to ensure that banking services continue in these adverse times and that every customer is reached in a timely and safe manner," she said. Appreciating efforts of bankers, she said, "Bank officials and staff have consistently been on the frontline in providing services to customers during this time of adversity, whether it is physically providing cash where it is needed or keeping branches open no matter what." According to Indian Banks' Association (IBA), 1,05,988 bank branches across the country were operational on Friday. However, banks are closed on Saturday and Sunday. Meanwhile, IBA has appealed to customers to strictly observe social distancing and avoid visiting branches unless very necessary. Avoid touching counters, common places by maintaining proper distance from staff before and after physical transactions, IBA said.

Cyber security risk increases amid 'work from home' trend

SIANS ■ NEW DELHI
With companies across the globe turning to work from home, via the online medium amid the COVID-19 outbreak, threats to cyber security have increased. Deepak Bhawnani, CEO at Alea Consulting said: "Companies, large and small, will be impacted due to ramifications of work from home, as this will lead to cyber security risk concerns. Proprietary corporate data is being accessed from laptops and home PCs that may not have the same level of firewall and security as in-office setups. Management and IT managers will subsequently need to reassess the risk to their data, and proactively evaluate their data loss prevention processes, as this can impact their reputation going forward, he added. Further, cybercriminals has also started to exploit fears around the COVID-19 outbreak to conduct email scams, phishing and ransomware attacks. Palo Alto Networks' Regional Vice President for India & SAARC Anil Bhasin said: "Cyber-criminals have been exploiting fears around the COVID-19 outbreak to conduct email scams, phishing and ransomware attacks. These emails and messages entice users to open malicious attachments by offering more information related to the COVID-19 situation but contain malicious files masked under the guise of links, pdf, mp4 or docx files. With employees taking to work-from-home, cyber security threat multiplies, says Debasish Mukherjee, VP, Regional Sales APAC at SonicWall. "These are exactly the times when hackers get creative with their malicious intent of hacking into devices and stealing data," Mukherjee said. From creating malicious links to developing otherwise unsuspecting apps, the hackers of the digital age are getting creative in executing their attacks. PTI

GLOBAL DEATH TOLL OVER 28,000

Virus infections top 6L worldwide, long fight ahead

While US now leads world in reported infections — with more than 1,04,000 cases — 5 countries exceed its roughly 1,700 deaths: Italy, Spain, China, Iran and France

AP ■ BERLIN

The number of confirmed coronavirus infections worldwide topped 6,20,000 on Saturday as new cases stacked up quickly in Europe and the United States and officials dug in for a long fight against the pandemic.

The latest landmark came only two days after the world passed half a million infections, according to a tally by John Hopkins University, showing that much work remains to be done to slow the spread of the virus. It showed more than 6,07,000 cases and a total of over 28,000 deaths.

While the US now leads the world in reported infections — with more than 1,04,000 cases — five countries exceed its roughly 1,700 deaths: Italy, Spain, China, Iran and France.

"We cannot completely prevent infections at this stage, but we can and must in the immediate future achieve fewer new infections per day, a slower spread," German Chancellor Angela Merkel, who is in quarantine at home after her doctor tested positive for the virus, told her compatriots in an audio message. "That will decide whether our health system can stand up to the virus."

The virus already has put health systems in Italy, Spain and France under extreme strain. Lockdowns of varying severity have been introduced across Europe, nearly emptying streets in normally bustling cities, including Paris where drone photos showed the city's landmarks eerily deserted.

Merkel's chief of staff, Helge Braun, said that Germany — where authorities closed nonessential shops and banned gatherings of more than two in public — won't relax its restrictions before April 20.

Spain, where stay-at-home restrictions have been in place for nearly two weeks, reported 832 more deaths on Saturday, its highest daily total yet, bringing its total to 5,690. Another 8,000 confirmed infections pushed that count above 72,000.

Doctors, nurses and ambulance drivers in its worst-hit regions are falling ill at an alarming rate and working nonstop. More than 9,000 health workers in the country have been infected.

"We are completely overwhelmed," said ambulance medic Pablo Rojo at Barcelona's Dos de Maig hospital. "Seven or eight (patients transported today) and all with COVID-19. ... And the average age is decreasing. They're not 80 years old anymore, they are now 30 and 40 years old."

"Sometimes you become a bit paranoid, you don't know any more when you pick up the phone if you have cleaned your hands, if you've sanitized them or not. You touch your face with your hands," Rojo said.

to transport the supplies directly from China to reduce waiting times.

As the epicenter has shifted westward, the situation has calmed in China, where some restrictions on people's lives have now been lifted. Six subway lines restored limited service in Wuhan, where the virus first emerged in December, after the city had its official coronavirus risk evaluation downgraded from high to medium on Friday. Five districts of the city of 11 million people had other restrictions on travel loosened after their risk factor was downgraded to low.

For most people, the coronavirus causes mild or moderate symptoms, such as fever and cough that clear up in two to three weeks. But for others, especially older adults and people with existing health problems, the virus can cause more severe illness, including pneumonia, and lead to death.

More than 130,000 people have recovered, according to Johns Hopkins' tally.

In one way or another, the effects of the COVID-19 outbreak have been felt by two powerful and the poor alike.

On Friday, British Prime Minister Boris Johnson became the first leader of a major country to test positive for the virus.

He said he would continue to work from self-quarantine. Countries are still scrambling bring home some citizens stranded abroad by border closures and a near-shutdown of flights. On Saturday, 174 foreign tourists and four Nepali nationals on the foothills of Mount Everest were flown out days after being stranded on the only airstrip serving the world's highest mountain.

In neighboring India, authorities sent a fleet of buses to the outskirts of the capital to meet an exodus of migrant workers desperately trying to reach their home villages during the world's largest lockdown.

Thousands of people had fled their New Delhi homes after Prime Minister Narendra Modi announced a 21-day lockdown that began on Wednesday and effectively put millions of Indians who live off daily earnings out of work.

In parts of Africa, virus prevention measures have taken a violent turn as countries impose lockdowns and curfews or seal off major cities, with police in Kenya firing tear gas and officers elsewhere captured in mobile phone footage whacking people with batons.

In the United States, New York remained the worst-hit city, but Americans braced for worsening conditions elsewhere, with worrisome infection numbers being reported in New Orleans, Chicago and Detroit.

New Orleans' sprawling Ernest N. Morial Convention Center, along the Mississippi River, was being converted into a massive hospital as officials prepared for thousands more patients than they could accommodate.

In New York, where there are more than 44,000 cases statewide, the number of people hospitalised with COVID-19 passed 6,000 on Friday, double what it had been three days earlier.

Gov. Andrew Cuomo called for 4,000 more temporary beds across New York City, where the Jacob K. Javits Convention Center has already been converted into a hospital.

The struggle to defeat the virus will take "weeks and weeks," Cuomo told members of the National Guard working at the Javits Center.

President Donald Trump invoked the Defense Production Act on Friday, ordering General Motors to begin manufacturing ventilators.

Trump signed a $2.2 trillion stimulus package, after the House approved the sweeping measure by voice vote. Lawmakers in both parties lined up behind the law to send checks to millions of Americans, boost unemployment benefits, help businesses and toss a life preserver to an overwhelmed health care system.

Dr. John Brooks of the US Centres for Disease Control and Prevention warned Americans remained "in the acceleration phase" of the pandemic and that all corners of the country were at risk.

"There is no geographic part of the United States that is spared from this," he said.

Singapore Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong on Friday said "the tide is still coming in" as the city-state reported 49 new confirmed coronavirus cases, taking the number of COVID-19 patients in the country to 732. Lee said the tide has not turned here. "The tide is still coming in and we have to keep a very vigilant eye as the virus is still getting into Singapore," he said

With families across Europe confined to their homes to curb the spread of the novel coronavirus, fears are rising of a surge in domestic violence. From Berlin to Paris, Madrid, Rome and Bratislava, associations that help victims of domestic violence have sounded the alarm after Europe overtook China to become the epicentre of the pandemic. Washington: President Donald Trump will send off a naval hospital ship on Saturday before it heads to New York City, as he aims to highlight the federal response to the coronavirus pandemic. The USNS Comfort, a 1,000-bed hospital ship, had been undergoing planned maintenance, but was rushed back into service to aid the city which is now the epicentre of the nation's outbreak. It is scheduled to arrive

Monday at a Manhattan pier a week after its sister ship, the USNS Mercy arrived in Los Angeles to perform similar duty on the West Coast. The president acknowledged that making the 140-mile trip to Naval Station Norfolk wasn't necessary, but said he was doing it to recognize the work of sailors and medical professionals who worked to get the ship out of maintenance more than a week ahead of schedule. ### Spain counts 832 deaths in 24 hours, pushing toll to 5,690

Madrid: The death toll from coronavirus in Spain surged over 5,600 on Saturday after a record 832 people died in 24 hours, and the number of infections soared over 72,000, the government said.

Spain has the world's second-highest coronavirus death toll after Italy with 5,690 fatalities. The number of confirmed cases have jumped to 72,248 as the country moves to significantly increase testing.

Although Spain's latest figures showed a daily increase of more than 8,000 cases, the rate of new infections appears to be slowing, with officials saying the epidemic appeared to be nearing its peak.

Madrid remains the worst-hit region, with 2,757 deaths and 21,520 infections, leaving hospitals and mortuaries overwhelmed, and the regional authorities working to open a second temporary morgue in an unused public building near the airport to house the dead. An initial site was opened last week at the ice skating rink at the Palacio de Hielo (Ice Palace) shopping centre. AFP

Abe says country at critical stage

Tokyo: Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe says the country is at a critical stage in dealing with coronavirus infections but not at a point to declare a state of emergency.

Abe says Japan has managed to keep clusters under control by carefully following infection routes. But the initial strategy is now having a difficulty, with a rise of infections that are no longer traceable -- an early sign of infection explosion.

He says once there is infection overshoot, "our strategy of slowing down the peak of the infections will instantly fall apart." He adds "under the current situation, we are just barely holding up. But I understand we are standing on the edge." Abe convened a taskforce Thursday, the day after Tokyo Gov. Yuriko Koike made a stay-at-home request to its 14 million residents after seeing a spike in the number of new cases of the COVID-19 to 41.

Japan has 2,180 confirmed cases, including 712 from a cruise ship, with 59 deaths, according to the Health Ministry. AP

UK VIRUS DEATHS PASS 1,000: OFFICIAL

London: The number of coronavirus deaths in Britain jumped by 260 in one day to pass 1,000, official data showed on Saturday, the day after Prime Minister Boris Johnson himself tested positive. At 5:00pm (1700 GMT) on Friday, the death toll was 1,019, up from 759 at the same time on Thursday, the health ministry figures showed.

As of 9:00am on Saturday, a total of 120,776 people in Britain had been tested, of whom 17,089 were confirmed positive.

Johnson and his health minister, Matt Hancock, were confirmed on Friday to be among those infected, although both said they had only mild symptoms.

Their cabinet colleague, Scottish Secretary Alister Jack, revealed on Saturday that he too had developed mild symptoms and was self-isolating, but had not been tested.

In a video message on Friday from Downing Street, where he lives and works, Johnson said he would continue to lead the government's response to the outbreak.

Media reports suggest his pregnant partner, Carrie Symonds, who normally lives with him in Downing Street, moved several days ago to the couple's south London home to self-isolate there. AFP

Brazil's Bolsonaro makes life-or-death gamble

Rio De Janeiro: Even as coronavirus cases mount in Latin America's largest nation, Brazilian President Jair Bolsonaro has staked out the most deliberately dismissive position of any major world leader, calling the pandemic a momentary, minor problem and saying strong measures to contain it are unnecessary.

Bolsonaro says his response to the disease matches that of President Donald Trump in the U.S., but the Brazilian leader has gone further, labeling the virus as "a little flu" and saying state governors' aggressive measures to halt the disease were crimes.

On Thursday, Bolsonaro told reporters in the capital, Brasilia, that he feels Brazilians' natural immunity will protect the nation. "The Brazilian needs to be studied. He doesn't catch anything. You see a guy jumping into sewage, diving in, right? Nothing happens to him. I think a lot of people were already infected in Brazil, weeks or months ago, and they already have the antibodies that help it not proliferate," Bolsonaro said. "I'm hopeful that's really a reality."

A video titled "Brazil Cannot Stop" that circulated on social media drew a rebuke from Monica de Bolle, a Brazilian senior fellow at the Peterson Institute for International Economics.

"Do you know what will happen, Bolsonaro? Brazil WILL stop. Your irresponsibility will bring thousands to avoidable deaths," she tweeted Friday.

"The destroyed lungs of these people, as well as the organs of those who won't be able to have medical care, will fall on your lap. And Brazil will not spare you," Bolsonaro, 65, shows no sign of wavering even as the nation's tally of confirmed COVID-19 cases surpasses 3,400, deaths top 90 and Brazilians overwhelmingly demand tough anti-virus measures. Pollster Datafolha this month found 73% of people supported total isolation, and 54% approved of governors' management of the crisis. Bolsonaro's backing was just 33%.

Does Bolsonaro actually believe, as he says, that the virus will be vanquished by a cocktail of drugs and Brazil's tropical climate? It's possible, but analysts say a more calculated political gamble may underlie his increasingly defiant position. PTI

Vatican official tests positive

Vatican City: The Vatican says neither Pope Francis nor any of his closest aides are involved with six cases among Vatican residents or employees who tested positive for COVID-19.

Vatican spokesman Matteo Bruni has confirmed news reports earlier in the week that an official of the Holy See's secretariat of state office tested positive for the coronavirus. Bruni also has confirmed that the official lives at the Santa Marta hotel where Pope Francis lodges, too.

The health condition of the official "doesn't at the moment present any particular critical" aspects, according to Bruni. But as a precaution, the official has been admitted to a Rome hospital for observation.

Bruni says more than 170 COVID-19 tests have been conducted on Vatican employees and residents of the hotel. The Vatican hasn't specified if Francis was tested.

But Bruni added: "I can confirm that neither the Holy Father nor his closest collaborators are involved" with infected cases. AP

Virat 'boss' of Indian cricket

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Head coach Ravi Shastri has called Virat Kohli the "boss" of Indian cricket and said the support staff is there to "take the burden off" the skipper.

Batting maestro Kohli has been at the heart of India's world-record 12 Test victories in a row on home soil.

"The captain is the boss, I always believe that. The job of the coaching staff, as far as I'm concerned, is to prepare the guys in the best possible way to be able to go out there and play brave, positive, fearless cricket," Shastri said.

Shastri was speaking to former England captains Nasser Hussain and Michael Atherton and Rob Key during a Sky Cricket Podcast.

"The captain leads from the front. Yes, we are there to take off the burden but you leave him to do his job in the middle. The captain sets the tone and is encouraged to set the tone. In the middle, he controls the show."

Shastri, who took over as the head coach in 2017, largely attributed India's march to top of the ICC Test rankings to Kohli.

He also spoke about how Kohli's relentless focus on fitness rubbed on to his teammates.

"When you talk about fitness, the leadership came from the top and that is Virat. He is not a guy to mess around."

"He woke up one morning and said if I want to play this game I want to be the fittest player in the world and compete against the best in all conditions and he let his body go through one hell of a lot."

In recent years, Kohli is one of the very few regulars of the team to have played almost non-stop, across formats.

"It was not just the training but the sacrifices he made with his diet. I could see that change happening all the time. He got up one day and said 'Ravi, I'm vegetarian!'"

"When he sets those standards, it rubs off on others. Test cricket for us is the biggest form. It's the benchmark. We want to set standards," Shastri said.

'WELCOME REST'

Sport coming to a standstill owing to the COVID-19 pandemic is a "welcome rest" for India cricketers, feels Ravi Shastri, who has spent barely 10-11 days at home since leaving for the World Cup last May.

"(This rest) cannot be a bad thing because towards the end of the New Zealand tour, you could see some cracks coming up when it came to mental fatigue, physical fitness and injuries," Shastri said.

According to him, the players may use the time to re-energise themselves, especially after a gruelling New Zealand tour where India played five T20Is, three ODIs and two Tests.

"The amount of cricket we have played over the last ten months, that was beginning to take its toll. Guys like me, and some other guys from the support staff, we left India on May 23 for the World Cup in England. Since then we have been at home for 10 or 11 days."

"There are certain players who played all three formats, so you can imagine the toll it has taken on them, especially being on the field, adjusting from T20s to Test match cricket and all the travel that goes with that because we travelled quite a lot," Shastri said.

After the World Cup, the Indian team travelled to the West Indies, then played a long home series against South Africa that was followed by a full tour of New Zealand.

"So it has been tough but a welcome rest for players," the coach said.

India is currently in a 21-day lockdown and according to Shastri, his players knew something like this was imminent when the series against South Africa, right after the New Zealand tour, was called off.

"It came as a shock but to be honest, having been on the road during the South Africa series, we guys anticipated it," he said.

"We knew something was on the cards as the disease had just started spreading. When the second ODI was called off, we knew something was gonna happen and a lockdown was imminent."

"I think the players knew it was coming, they sensed it in New Zealand. There were apprehensions towards the end of that tour, when flights were coming through Singapore, out of Singapore."

"By the time we landed (in India), I thought we got out at just the right time. There were only two cases in New Zealand at that time, that has rocketed now to 300. "The day we landed, that was the first day they were screening and testing people at the airport. So (we came back) just in the nick of time."

Kohli wasn't only one to struggle in NZ: Hesson

IANAS ■ BENGALURU

Former New Zealand coach Mike Hesson feels that India were probably the best equipped team to have played a Test series in New Zealand in recent years even though they ended up losing 2-0. India were completely outplayed by the Kiwis, losing the first Test by 10 wickets and the second by seven. But the former Kiwi coach begs to differ and feels that the conditions were tough.

"I thought India are probably be the best equipped to have travelled to New Zealand, but the conditions were challenging," Hesson told the Mumbai Mirror. "They weren't ridiculous in any means, and they were challenging in both games (in the two Tests which India lost)."

India had batted first in both Tests and Hesson said that was an important factor as conditions got better as the matches wore on. "The New Zealand conditions were challenging for everybody, especially in the first innings. Things certainly got easy later on. The first innings was challenging for anyone coming from overseas," he said.

Hardly any Indian batsman made a mark in the series, including captain and second ranked Test batsman in the world Virat Kohli. Hesson feels that Kohli and the others simply didn't get any time to adjust to the conditions.

"When the ball seams, there is very little time to adjust. You need time to adjust your technique. He certainly was not the only one (to have struggled). Also, New Zealand's plans for Virat were exceptional. New Zealand have had the best of attacks for a long time and they challenged the Indians," he said.

Dhoni's India ambitions might be over: Bhogle

IANAS ■ NEW DELHI

With uncertainty looming over the upcoming edition of the Indian Premier League, celebrated cricket commentator Harsha Bhogle feels it might be the end of the road for MS Dhoni as far as his ambitions of playing for India are concerned.

"My gut feel is that his (Dhoni's) India ambitions might be over. I don't think Dhoni would have been looking to September-October for the T20 World Cup. Maybe if he just had a great IPL but my gut feel is that was beyond him," Bhogle said while speaking on Cricbuzz.

The IPL, which had already been postponed to April 15, could be cancelled after India went into a 21-day lockdown from March 25 to fight the coronavirus pandemic.

Dhoni, 38, last played for India at the 2019 World Cup in England where the Men in Blue were knocked out in the semi-finals. Since then, he has been on a sabbatical and is due to appear on the cricket field in the upcoming IPL edition.

The former India captain who will turn 39 in July was practicing with his team Chennai Super Kings (CSK) but had to cut short his stay in Chennai after the IPL was pushed back.

Bhogle further said that even though Dhoni might not make it to the Indian team for the T20 World Cup, he still may want to contribute for CSK.

"Last year towards the end of the IPL, towards the end of the league stage I got an opportunity of doing a couple of post-match presentations and there was Dhoni and he wasn't holding back at the presentations which were normally three four minutes but this one seven to nine minutes almost and when Dhoni is in that talkative mode we don't stop him," he said.

However, Dhoni's childhood coach Keshav Banerjee said the wicketkeeper-batsman should be a part of India's squad for the T20 World Cup.

"In a World Cup, you need experience. Rishabh Pant is still learning an KL Rahul as a keeper for a World Cup, I don't think that's the best idea when Dhoni is available for selection," Banerjee had said.

"This Indian team still needs him in a World Cup. Behind the wicket, he is an asset and in the middle, he still binds the innings together," Banerjee added, backing his ward who led India to 2007 T20 World Cup and 2011 50-over World Cup titles besides winning the 2013 ICC Champions Trophy as captain.

Love the way Raina does his business at CSK: Hogg

IANAS ■ SYDNEY

Former Kolkata Knight Riders spinner Brad Hogg has picked countryman David Warner and Chennai Super Kings deputy Suresh Raina as the best batsmen in the powerplay overs when it comes to Indian Premier League.

Taking to Twitter, Hogg posted a video where he said: "At the top is David Warner. He is very strong on the offside, he runs hard between the wickets, he is a busy batsman."

"I absolutely love the way Raina does his business down at CSK. He comes in at vital situations and revitalises the innings. He targets certain bowlers and rotates the strike well."

The fate of the 13th edition of the Indian Premier League is hanging in balance as the coronavirus outbreak has seen the tournament postponed after it was supposed to start from Sunday with defending champions Mumbai Indians taking on Chennai Super Kings in the opening encounter at the Wankhede Stadium.

While the BCCI is confident that they can pull off the league even if it starts from the first week of May, an important area of concern will be the entry of the foreign players as visa restrictions need to be removed first.

RAINA DONATES

Suresh Raina has pledged ₹52 lakh in the fight against coronavirus. While he is set to give ₹31 lakh to the PM-CARES Fund, he will hand ₹21 lakh to the UP CMs Disaster Relief Fund.

In his message to his followers on Instagram, he further asked everyone to do their bit and stay at home as the world fights the pandemic that has brought countries across the globe to a standstill.

Piedt eyes cricket career in USA

PTI ■ JOHANNESBURG

In an unusual move, South Africa off-spinner Dane Piedt is giving up his career in the ICC elite member nation and will move to the USA, with dreams of guiding the associate into a World Cup one day.

Piedt, who has played nine times for South Africa, will leave for the United States in the next few months to be part of the new Minor League T20 tournament, which is due to launch this summer.

"The USA were given ODI status last year so it's not completely out of the question," Piedt told ESPNCricinfo.

"I just signed the deal this morning but no one really knows when I will be able to travel. It was an opportunity I just couldn't pass up, financially and for lifestyle reasons, but it was still a tough decision to make."

While he doesn't see himself being picked in the South African team in the near future after losing ground to other spinners, Piedt fancies his chances in America, where there is a dearth of cricketers with experience of playing in the top-flight.

"Shammoo (Tabraiz Shamsi) has really made a mark in white-ball cricket and Keshav (Maharaj) has done exceptionally well for the Test side, he has done exactly what the team needs," Piedt said.

"And if you look at the schedule, South Africa are not due to tour the subcontinent again soon and that's the only place where I might get a game."

The spinner has never travelled to the USA and doesn't even know where he will be based in the long term.

Piedt said he has been taking tips from former South Africa seamer Rusty Theron, who helped him secure the deal.

Theron has been living in the USA for several years and made his ODI debut for the country last year.

"He has given me some information, especially about the cricket scene there. It's a decent set-up and I know they have some good cricketers like Xavier Marshall and a few Australians and Indians who played in national Under-19 teams and then moved."

I've been thinking about how to articulate my thoughts on this for a couple of days now, so here goes. Everyone knows how much the Olympics means to me and how proud I will be to participate in my home country. Of course I am disappointed that it won't happen this year, but we'll all be ready to go stronger than ever in 2021! I support Prime Minister Abe's brave decision and the IOC 100%. Sport will eventually unite us again and be there for us always, but that time is not now. This is the time for people from all countries, backgrounds and races to rally together to save as many lives as we can. To me, that is the Olympic spirit. To the people of Japan: stay strong, hang in there, and let's show the world our beautiful country when the time is right in 2021. Stay safe everyone, take care of each other, be kind and we will make it through. Love, Naomi

Naomi Osaka on Saturday said Japan Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and IOC took a brave decision of postponing 2020 Tokyo Games due to the coronavirus pandemic. In a post on her Twitter, Osaka said that although she was disappointed that Olympics will not take place this year, she is sure that "we all be ready to go stronger in 2021"

Gopi praises SAI's online workshop for athletes

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The frustration to remain in the confines of their homes amid COVID-19 lockdown is palpable and no wonder SAI's various training modules of online workshop kept athletes and coaches glued on the opening day, earning praise from none other than Pulla Gopichand.

The sessions on opening day was attended by athletes and para athletes from all sport, including Olympic probables shooters Divyash Panwar, Apurvi Chandela, Abhishek Verma, Anish Bhanwala, boxers Lovlina Borgohain and Nikhat Zarin along with swimmer Srihari Nataraj.

Praising the initiative, national badminton coach Gopichand said: "In these testing times with the Coronavirus, it is important to keep oneself physically and mentally active and find ways to use our time better. These online sessions will certainly help in achieving that."

"Sport is not only about being competitive, challenges will be thrown up and it is how we face them with the best of our ability and keep moving forward," the chief national coach said.

The first session of the 24-series workshop started on Friday with physiotherapist Dr Nikhil Lately speaking about how to train at home during the time of Corona, getting over 8K views.

This was followed by a session on nutritional requirements during Corona by Ryan Fernando, which had more than 15K viewership from athletes, coaches and fitness enthusiasts.

Gopichand and former Indian hockey captain Viren Rasquinha were among many others.

Speaking about the sessions, Olympian wrestler Pooja Dhandu said: "The sessions are very informative. It helped me think differently about training while at home and helped me focus on the key areas. I look forward to the other sessions as well."

Lately on his part said: "For a lot of us, the moment the lockdown is lifted, we can get back to doing what we do, but it's not same for athletes."

"They are unsure if they will be at the same level as they used to be in the absence of regular training and competition."

"This is why we need to come forward and help our athletes and make them utilise their time and these online sessions initiated by SAI are so useful. With the nationwide reach that SAI has, it will definitely have a positive impact."

New Tokyo date 'won't satisfy everybody': Coe

PARIS: World Athletics president Sebastian Coe admitted on Friday that settling on a new date for the Tokyo Olympics in 2021 will not satisfy everybody.

"All sports have made it pretty clear they have particular challenges at particular times of the year," said Coe.

"We are probably not going to reach a solution that meets with the approval of every sport."

"But there does have to be an element of flexibility and there is going to be flexibility for the next two years."

The 2021 World Athletics Championships, for example, are scheduled to be staged in August next year in Eugene, Oregon.

The 2020 Olympics, which were set for July 24-August 9 this year, were postponed until 2021 by the International Olympic Committee this week.

However, there is no definite date yet for the rescheduled Games with IOC chief Thomas Bach saying on Tuesday the Olympics "must be rescheduled to a date beyond 2020 but not later than summer 2021". There have been suggestions even that the rebooted Olympics could be held in the spring and so allow athletes to avoid competing in the brutal heat and humidity of Japan's summer.

"There are clearly demands for this decision to be taken as quickly as possible — the athletes and the federations need clarity," added Coe.

"Once the decision is made, we can build (the calendars) around it." AFP

IOA ask NSF's their tentative roadmap for postponed Olympics

NEW DELHI: IOA President

Narinder Batra on Saturday said the Tokyo Olympics qualification events, postponed due to COVID-19 pandemic, will be held once the health crisis is resolved and asked the National Sports Federations (NSFs) to prepare a list of such tournaments in their respective sports.

The Indian Olympic Association (IOA) President also asked the top brass of all the NSFs to share calendar of their athletes' preparations for the Tokyo Games.

"The qualification events which were postponed will happen again at revised dates once this virus issue is resolved. Draft tentative planning for that. Please share details of all the qualification events yet to happen in your sport," Batra wrote in a letter to the presidents of all the NSFs.

Batra also said the IOA and NSFs need to plan on the extension of contracts of the coaches whose tenures were to end this year.

The contracts of many coaches, including those from abroad, were to end by August when the Tokyo Games were to end before they were postponed to next year.

"As you are already aware that 2020 Olympics is postponed to 2021. We now need to plan for: Extension of Contracts for HPD (High Performance Director), coaches, support staff etc till end of 2021 as many such contracts are ending in 2020, the process needs to start as soon as possible," the IOA chief said.

IOA president Narinder Batra in file picture IOA/Twitter

"Draft training calendar for Athlete's preparation for 2021 Olympics. Please update on the present location of the athletes and their health," he said in the letter with copies marked for Sports Ministry and Sports Authority of India.

He said under the present circumstances, it will be very difficult to give everyone on same page."

Nearly 80 Indian athletes have so far qualified for the Tokyo Olympics in seven sports — athletics, archery, boxing, equestrian, hockey, shooting and wrestling. The IOA was expecting to rise the number to more than 120. PTI

STOP, LOOK & GO

RULES OF COMMUNICATION ON SOCIAL MEDIA

In times when social media is proving to be an important tool of information and expression, it is best to use this medium effectively to build relationships with people in your areas of interest and engage with them. Treat people with the same respect as you would expect from them, writes HORY SANKAR MUKERJEE

Social media is new opium of our masses. A two-way gate, where you listen to people and connect with people, instantaneously. Almost everyone uses it, in some form or the other, consciously or unconsciously guilty of making mistakes. With its rising popularity comes the challenges of bullying, trolling, circulating fake news, misinformation, violence, FOMO (Fear of missing out) and manipulations of facts. In such volatile environments, the onus cannot be put on 'no one', but 'everyone'. It becomes essential that we act 'now' to communicate with a sense of responsibility, empathy, care and compassion. The 'traffic light' approach-stop, look and go, is the first check point for you.

Stop: Stop before you read, write and post. Pause for a minute. You probably may want to revisit if you want to read, write or post.

When I started investing, I had an ocean of information floating around, later to realise that I do not have enough bandwidth to read, much of it being repetitive and things I never need to know. I pruned it down to two, saving time. Social media is loaded with information. Everything that you read; you forget some, retain some and use some of this information later. What goes in, eventually, comes out in some form. Ensure that you are reading or writing about things which is worthy of your attention and not garbage for your mind, heart and soul. Would you be more interested to read about a celebrity and his Mauritius vacation or a scientific invention that has the potential to change the world? While both are okay depending on 'who you are, what you want to read and where your interests lie', thumb rule is to 'downplay what you do not want to read'. Keep asking, 'am I enriching myself by reading this piece of information?' If yes, move ahead, if no, shun it down or block it. Limit yourself to an area or two that interests you. It could be your hobby, research, work or a social group.

The post that you just read is a wonderful piece and it agrees/disagrees to your established thought processes. Your hand itches to put down some comments, give a 'piece' of your mind to the author or laud him. Do you want to spend your precious minutes and is it worth doing it? If you are still not convinced, think about the dog who barks when your car passes by. It really does not matter for both. Irrespective of what role you play (dog or the driver), remember that the dog will forget after your car has passed and the driver will not have a second glance on you. When you are hurt, angry, rejected, dejected, in pain, avoid writing. When you want to vent out your frustration, correct someone who is grossly incorrect, bully someone or troll, rethink your decision. Applauding, appreciating, sharing your thoughts can be done without being a miser or sarcastic.

Stop being a virtual source of junk or a JIJO — Junk In, Junk Out. We have this precarious habit of sending out the information to everyone we know, or 'think' we know. Stop being the middleman for junk. People probably may be thoroughly offended with the piece of information shared, and you risk losing your personal brand and reputation. Be careful with your action. First, avoid spreading information unless it comes from an authentic source and second, avoid passing it on to others. If at all you need to, ensure that the information you spread around, is not negatively impacting any person, organisation or group adversely.

Look: Look, if your words or actions would demean someone, socially, physically or mentally. Are you being sarcastic, rude or just posting to have fun at the cost of the other? Is your intention good and acceptable?

If you have now decided to write it down, forward or post, ensure that you have a sanity check in place. Avoid the usage of 'biased' words. Ascertain your company's policies on social networking. Avoid posting or writing on topics related to acts that are defamatory, political, or religious in nature. Ensure that the nature of your post is not damaging you or your organisation's reputation. Are you oversharing, things which are untrue or unverifiable? Are you reacting to events or incidents, especially when things are flaring up? Are you lying or speaking half the truth? If yes, hold your message back. Remember that your image will be associated with 'your' content. Would you like to risk your reputation?

Go: Go, only if you are clear of your conscience that this is now ready for sharing, reading and adds substantial value to your readers. Posting to the social media means exposing yourself to everyone. Remember that some organisations as well as governments take keen interest in what you post. Their decisions as well as your future employment opportunities and your image can be severely affected based on what you post or what your interests are.

Communicating in the world of social media is different and complex. The audience is diverse and can reach out to everyone. You also need to keep doing the right things to keep your audience engaged. Here are some tips that are likely to help you:

Get your facts: Have you done your research for what you want to write. If you want people to read, you will need to engage them in a few words. The relevance of your content would matter the most to your audience. Understand your audience before you write and post. Get the right demographics and their level of understanding. Write content that is original or things that people would not have read anywhere. Your audience will check the 'freshness' of your post before it is read till the last.

IN THIS CHAOS OF ENGAGING IN MULTIPLE SOCIAL MEDIA PLATFORMS AND DELIVERING ENGAGING CONTENT TO YOUR AUDIENCE YOU NEED TO BE EFFECTIVE AND EFFICIENT WITH WHAT YOU DO. IF YOU ARE THE ONE, WHO ENGAGES MOSTLY INTO READING AND NOT GENERATING CONTENT, YOU SHOULD SPEND TIME CHOOSING ON WHAT YOU INTEND TO READ OR NOT TO READ/COMMENT

Choose the right social platform: Choose the right platform. While posting on all platforms seems beneficial, it may not actually have the desired results. Find out what works for you. Do not spend money on a medium (if you are running a business) and forcing it to work for you. What works in Twitter, does not work with Facebook or vice versa.

Talk in a language, they understand: If you are a technology consultant writing a blog, you will need to use terminologies that your audience understand. Ensure that you know for whom you are writing and what you are writing. Keep it simple, precise and clear. Remember the KISS principle — Keep it simple, silly. Keep your language simple, easy to comprehend. Use headings, bullets and images. Avoid writing dragging paragraphs with one or two central ideas.

Use the 'right' images and videos: Never under play or over play with this powerful tool. It helps you tell a story and a picture is worth thousand words. But when the content is lousy and boring and refuses to engage the audience, it creates negativity. It can make or break your post, therefore use with clarity and be clear about how it helps you achieve your objective.

Call to action: Do you want only likes or upvotes or do you want to hear from your audience, or do you want them to share the content? Prompt your audience with what action you would want them to take. If you have not, then probably they would not.

Cross promote your profile or other content: If you are using multiple platforms or writing on different topics that interests you, ensure that you are cross promoting yourself. Ensure that you link to other articles, posts and write ups that interest you or encourage people to click on other things that you would have written.

In this chaos of engaging in multiple social media platforms and delivering engaging content to your audience you need to be effective and efficient with what you do. If you are the one, who engages mostly into reading and not generating content, you should spend time choosing on what you intend to read or not to read/comment. Follow the traffic light approach and spend a part of your day engaging with social media content.

If you are the one doing both, you may find yourself hard pressed against time. Your effectiveness will be guaranteed when you make the best use of the platforms. Here are things that would help you become effective:
First, give it some quite time of your day. It should not be the first thing in the morning, while driving or on the dining table but some time to respond to the social media activities. Ensure that you are not at the habit of responding immediately nor delaying your responses. You must have something original to offer or a pressing need. If you are talking something which people already know, you will not be able to garner their interest.

Second, cut down on peer pressure to 'be in'. 'Are you on Instagram?' and you immediately start off with an account. You are a member of many such platforms, which you rarely visit or maintain. Can you find out a way to rationalise your social platform requirements? Can it be limited to only three? Ask these questions: First, are my contacts available in the platform I am using? Second, does the connections really justify a new platform? Third, how much of my leftover time will it take to manage this new platform.

Third, if you are managing your business and needs to connect to your customer or stakeholders, you cannot be doing it, alone. Take professional help. Agencies that will help you get your word ahead. In case you cannot, fix up a person from your organisation who would be doing that.

Fourth, remember that managing social media for businesses are different from that of individuals. The approach, methodology, purpose, usage, time required would be different. Responding to the messages, creating engaging content and writing is different. Use the most suitable platform. Don't force it to work. Consider your limitations.

Fifth, acknowledge that social media is a two-way communication method. Just as you write, it is important to listen. When you listen, you tend to understand the likes and dislikes, of your audience, sharpening yourself. This needs a balance with your interests and skills sets. People will read you or follow you only when you are consistent. If you are irregular or spending too little time, posting or writing, your audience will not be incentivised to come back to read. A teaser on 'what follows next' can also motivate people to come back.

Use social media effectively to build relationships with people in your areas of interest. Share your expertise, offer help and engage with them. Treat them with the same degree of respect you would give, when you meet them in person. There is no denying that social media is effective in connecting with people and an excellent way to collaborate. But be aware that it is making us indolent and disrupting our need for a great conversation.

BEYOND POLITICAL IDEOLOGIES

Despite their leanings, spiritually conscious people respect all others on a spiritual plane, irrespective of one's material position, writes RADHANATH SWAMI

In modern political world there has been a constant conflict between values of conservatism and liberalism, fascism or socialism. The values of right wing are egalitarianism — social equality among all strata of society, fairness, etc. Values of either of the wings are important but the question arises, how to make decisions which satisfy interests of the both of the parties.

Spirituality synthesises ideologies of both that is, the left and right wing. Spirituality acknowledges that on physical platforms there has to be hierarchy based on the natural order and individual preferences based on the psychophysical inclinations but on the spiritual platform, everyone is similar in nature beyond the physical boundaries of creed, caste, race, nationality or color. So, while dealing in this world, one may acknowledge differences, and act as per assigned roles and responsibilities, and yet respect the others, understanding their spiritual nature.

Spiritually conscious people respect others on a deep spiritual plane which is irrespective of one's material position. The spiritual concept of Karma helps one to understand the reason for inequality seen in this world, still encouraging one to live a life with good karmas to have better opportunities for present and future and be not callous for the sufferings of other.

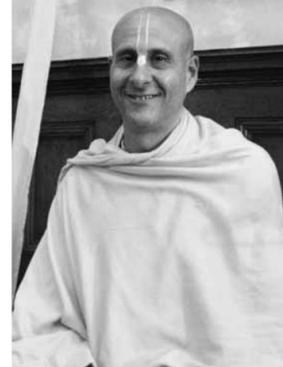

To give another example, left ideologists recommend higher taxes on the high net worth individuals for redistribution of wealth. But it risks of making people dependent on government and lazy. Spirituality aims to achieve same goal of equality by compassion and education. When individuals are educated about the equality of the living beings on the spiritual platform, they can see oneness among all other differences.

For those who learn spiritual path, practicing compassion becomes necessary to go ahead on the chosen path. Sharing of ones gifts with others becomes a source of pleasure and way of furthering ones prospects in the spiritual line. In this way, spiritually conscious people willingly share what they possess to those who need through the medium of God, although, such charity is not meant for lazy ones who want to avoid their duties but for those who are weak links of society or those who are contributing to the world without personal financial gains.

Right wing ideology focuses on preservation of one's culture and heritage, specifically religiosity through government support, such conservative attitude sometimes results in violence or coercion against those who transgress the traditional norms and customs. Freedom of expression is seen as transgression by rightists when it doesn't fit in traditional cultural ideas.

Leftists see such a place as a police state where people are controlled with the help of security establishment. Spirituality achieves aim of protection of one's culture and heritage, religious tenets not through enforcing beliefs upon people by coercive means but by educating them about its importance, benefits and relevance. Such educated people willingly adhere to traditions if they find reasonable logic behind them.

There is no wonder that western world is getting more and more enamoured by the oriental wisdom over the decades, since there has been consistent efforts by various eastern philosophers to logically introduce them with their philosophy and practices, it has resulted in mushrooming of Yoga studios, kirtan clubs and Ayurvedic treatment centers all over the West especially USA. There are 300 million yoga practitioners all over the world including 36 million people in USA itself, it is an indication that people are increasingly adopting an age old practice when results are proven with the help of education and practical demonstration.

Spiritually advanced people know the art of changing the forms of traditions but maintaining the substance to have the same effect. The spiritual education which would happen at Guru's ashram in forests, now happens in an air-conditioned classrooms of our temples, with the help of various types of media, although the gist of the content remains same. In this way the external aspects may be modified as per the time, place and situations to accommodate more quantity of people, but the core principles remain same to maintain the quality of them.

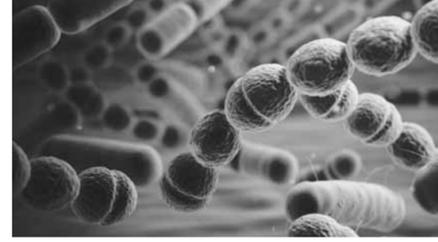

In this way, spirituality can play a major role in filling the gaps between these ideologies to have a peaceful society.

Lessons to learn

These are difficult times. More importantly, these are times to learn some most basic lessons which humanity forgot in its ambitious march to conquer everything. As the threat of Covid-19 spreads, mankind realises how vulnerable it is in the face of a crisis that emanates from the nature. The difficulties have their own lessons to offer. They are testing human resilience in times of adversity. That mankind will emerge from this is also certain. History has proved this time and again. Of course, a price was paid each time, but what mattered was the indomitable will to survive from the crises. However, the essential point was that with time the same mistakes that led to those crises were forgotten and the same pursuits went on. Human beings have hardly learnt from their past mistakes and their memories are woefully short. But the micro-organisms keep on learning from their past and continuously adapt to regain their strike power. The multidrug resistant micro-organisms that give rise to the same old diseases that struck humanity ages ago keep on bouncing back. The coronavirus that has struck this time with a vengeance is a grim reminder of this basic fact. The adaptability of the virus is something that must give humanity a lesson or two. There are other lessons, too, that the present crises offers. First and foremost, that despite those geographical boundaries, racial and cultural differences, the uniformity in reaction to this corona threat proves emphatically that humanity has a common thread. And the collective unconscious hypothesis of Carl Jung holds goods. Rightly did Napoleon opine that two things unite humanity — fear and self-interest. Look the way people are reacting globally. Same 'me first' mind set where it comes to survival interest, and same 'me-not' mind set when it comes to threat. Though it is rather a tall order, yet can we not think of others, for a change? Rather than thinking of buying provisions to last till eternity can we not think of leaving something for the others to buy? An extreme example is that of the people of the United States of America who as per newspaper reports are going for panic buying of guns and cartridges. And the reason is quite strange. It is based on a chain of assumptions. First that the virus threat will last long. Second, if it lasts long there will be scarcity of basic necessities. Third, the deprived will be forced to think of snatching and looting those who have it. So the conclusion is that the guns will have to be used for defense. The point is how much can be stored and how many can be kept at bay by fire power. Sanity is giving way to vanity. To quote former President of the US, John F Kennedy — "If a free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich". We need to learn to share our resources in these trying times. In times of crises that threaten collectively, we need to stand collectively. Not just for me and myself but for us. These adversities are times that test not just our wit and grit, but also our character. There is little justification of people running from isolation wards and risking others. Behaving responsibly is what these times call for. Time to be human and act human.

The formula of happiness

Breathe-Observe-Smartphone fasting — Just add these three principles to life and see the difference it makes to your inner world, says VENUGOPAL ACHARYA

There are some things that we have known since we were kids, and then there are others that we realise intuitively that guide us to what is good for us and what is not. Yet we never give it a serious try. And that could very well be the cause of our distress. Here are three known but least-tolerated life-changing principles to achieve happiness and contentment

B: BREATHE. JUST PAUSE

We all breathe but are we conscious of it? In my seminars, I often ask participants to place their hands on their stomach and feel it as they inhale and exhale. When you breathe in, does your stomach come out or go in? What happens when you exhale? The class is often divided with half the students claiming that their stomach goes in during a deep inhale and the other half is unsure. The point driven home is emphatic: we don't even know how to breathe, something which even animals do so naturally. Our disconnect with our self and nature is acute; we could therefore first learn to breathe normally and consciously.

A simple technique is to inhale deeply to the count of four, hold the breath to the count of eight and then exhale slowly to the count of eight. Focus on the sound of your breath; listen carefully as you inhale and exhale. In no time, you'll catch your mind wandering. Gently bring the mind back to breathing and in 10 minutes you'll be recharged with fresh energy. A five-minute break a few times during the day or even a ten-minute breathing break could make your day more productive.

O: OBSERVE MORE, JUDGE LESS

Secondly, you could try simple 'observations' where you gently pull the mind back to the present and remove judgements. Once I was on a flight and saw a passenger stand up from his seat. He looked around, his face even twitching, and then with a sudden grin, he hurriedly sat down again. A few seconds later, he rose again and paced up and down the aisle, murmuring to himself. He's definitely angry with his wife, I thought to myself. Then I instantly realised I'd made a judgement. After all, how could I say he was 'angry' or she, his 'wife'? Then I admonished myself for 'judging' the man and that again was a judgement! This time I gently said to my mind, "Please come back dear mind and observe without judgement."

When you observe without attaching labels, you release yourself from your disarrayed mind and enter a higher dimension of reality. This is a platform beyond your own prejudices. Often we err because we observe little and analyse a lot. Instead, if we observe more and judge less, it's likely we'll see the real picture and paradoxically, improve our judgement! Observation practices are like bright sunshine; they help us remove the fog of confusion and bring clarity.

S: SMARTPHONE FASTING

The overdose of social media and the virtual world could potentially throttle their individuality. An inordinate time on the electronic world tends to disconnect one from his or her feelings and needs.

A modern variant of traditional fasting is giving up your gadgets for some time in a week. In many monasteries, monks occasionally fast from cooked grains and rice. Besides the spiritual benefits, this gives rest to our digestive system. The body releases toxins and you feel an overall sense of wellness. Likewise in our internal world, a lot of clutter gets flushed out when we 'fast' from social/electronic media. We could for a change experience 'real' exchanges.

More than ever before, we need to now pause, disengage from the loudness of it all, and look at the vast expanse of the sky above our heads, rather than on our gadgets. Let's connect deeper to our own inner selves and catch the grace around us.

Tamoguna is lurking...

Born of ignorance, tamoguna (or darkness inducing properties) causes delusion to all living entities, says AJIT KUMAR BISHNOI

The Bhagavad Gita explains tamoguna: "The mode of darkness, that is tamoguna is born of ignorance. It causes delusion to all living entities. It binds with carelessness, laziness and sleep. (14.8) Darkness signifies anger (intolerance), greed, idle talk, violence, being a parasite, hypocrisy, excessive physical efforts, quarrel, lamentation, illusion, depression, being pathetic, excessive sleep, false expectations, fear and laziness. (Bhagavad Gita 11.25-4)

When this mode is predominant, absence of illumination, lack of motivation towards duty, carelessness, delusion and foolishness all these arise. (14.13) Consciousness gets covered with foolishness and dullness. Given to lamentation and getting deluded, one sleeps excessively; indulges in false hopes; and displays violence towards others. Awareness gets limited and one is unable to concentrate. The mind gets affected and there is preponderance of ignorance and depression. One, who dies predominantly in this mode is hell-bound, and, ultimately, is born in lower species. Work is impelled by violence and envy, and the strength of wicked people increases.

How do we identify if someone is essentially in tamoguna? One will get angry readily; worships God seeking His help for causing harm to one's enemies; considers oneself a material body, not the soul that one is; takes shelter of a gambling den; performs acts without considering their consequences; is unable to tell right from wrong; eats food, which is unclean and which causes distress; is hardly conscious during sleep and has faith in irreligious activities. One's happiness is in delusion and being pathetic; knowledge is at the material level and spiritual knowledge is alien to such a person.

We all have a percentage of this in us besides the mode of passion (rajoguna) and the mode of goodness (sattoguna). Together they constitute us, and they always try to overpower one another. (14.10)

Have you ever wondered as to why some people commit suicide? Because the tamoguna in them overpowers them. This tamoguna, when it is at its peak, completely possesses and make one do what goes entirely against even our basic instinct of survival. How does it become so powerful inside of us? Because we associate with it its various forms. Beginning with the mind, we harbour sexual thoughts, angry feelings, greedy plans and hateful ideas, etc. One may feel that these are harmless. They are not; they reinforce tamoguna in us. And the punishment is from inside; one implodes. They cause fear, anxiety depression, etc. When such feelings peak, one harms the self helplessly, even to the extent of killing one's own self.

How should one deal with this vicious internal enemy? Try to avoid associating with it. The mind should be controlled and no illicit or harmful thoughts should be encouraged. Nothing is harmless. Thoughts are also karmas and they cause karmaphalas. Similarly, we have to be careful in what we eat, see, hear, speak, etc. They all count. Eating meat and drinking alcohol reinforces tamoguna. Lust also enhances tamoguna in oneself. The same goes for hearing and speaking. Then the enhanced tamoguna acts from within. It causes fear, anxiety, depression, etc. Once it becomes highly potent, it can kill or force one to commit suicide.

I have realised the dangers associated with tamoguna, and have taken shelter of God. I pray regularly seeking God's help in controlling my mind and senses. Whenever my mind strays, I chant. Similarly, when I have to make choices in what I eat, see or hear, I seek God's guidance, and He obliges with the right intelligence. I am determined not to allow tamoguna inside me to cause havoc; I fully intend to tame it with my Lord's help.

Lessons to learn from deferral of Olympics

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) at last postponed the Tokyo Olympic 2020 for a year. Echoing the sentiments of the sporting community world over, its president Thomas Bach said, "These postponed Olympic Games will need compromises by all of the stakeholders." It's not only Japan, particularly the city of Tokyo, but also thousands of sportspersons and allied agencies who were supposed to be an integral part of this landmark event have all been hit by the deadly Covid-19.

The historic flame of the Olympic was handed over by Hellenic Olympic Committee president Spyros Capralos to Naoko Imoto (former Olympian swimmer), who represented the Tokyo Organizing Committee, on March 19. And the flame reached Japan through a special aircraft named "Tokyo 2020 Go". As a significant part of the Olympic Movement, the flame is quite often linked to the messages of hope and peace. The Tokyo 2020 torch relay concept known as "Hope Lights Our Way" was designed to unite the entire Japanese people with emotion. But then unfortunately, before the flame was to be started from Fukushima to the rest of Japan on March 26, the IOC took the historic decision to push the Games to the next year. Though it was nearly sure for an immediate cancellation of the Tokyo Games, yet the Japanese Government was hoping against all odds to organise it.

The opening ceremony for the Olympic Games was supposed to start on July 24 and the Paralympics were scheduled from August 25. Interestingly, Tokyo, one of the most populous cities in the world, was going to host the largest sporting event of the globe. By the end of the 2019, the organisers calculated the total cost of the Games around 1.33 trillion yen i.e. 1.12 billion Euros. And this entire cost was incurred by three parties --- the City of Tokyo, the Japanese Olympic Organizing Committee and the Central Government of the country. But the experts say the real cost of organising this mega event would be ten times higher than what has been revealed in public so far. The mascot of the Tokyo 2020 "Miraitowa" has a personality inspired by the Japanese proverb, "learn from the past and develop new ideas". It is taken from Japanese words, "mirai" meaning "future" and "towa" meaning "eternity". Thus this mascot represents the idea that this game will lead to a future of everlasting hope in the hearts of everyone around the world. If we look at the history we observe that it was only the historical World Wars that led to the cancellation of the Olympics in the past. But the current trend is that other phenomena such as politics, terrorism and pandemics with global underpinnings have forced all of us to call of such sports extravaganzas. Since the opening of the Modern Olympic Games in Athens (Greece) in 1896, the game has only been cancelled three times --- first during the World War I in 1916, second and third time during the World War II in 1940 and 1944. It must be noted here that until the advent of coronavirus pandemic, that has forced the IOC to postpone the Olympic, the game has weathered all other crises in the past. In 1916, the German Empire was to host the Olympic but with the outbreak of the First World War, it was simply cancelled. Many of the nations who were to send participants to the games had eventually indulged into the war. In 1940, the Summer and Winter Olympics were to be held in Japan, but it forfeited its rights as it got involved in a war with China. Else Japan would have been the first non-Western country to host the games. Again London was to host the Games in 1944 and because of the Second World War, it was summarily cancelled. Though opinions vary, economic analysts simply come to one single point: As the Games has been postponed, the toughest task for the Japanese economy would be to wading through the prolonged pandemic in the days to come. Now, the rechristened Olympic 2021 will have to be planned entirely on the basis of a new global sports calendar. And also Bach clarified that rescheduling is not restricted just to the summer months. All the options are on the table, before and including the summer of 2021. The IOC has given the responsibility to a task force called "Here We Go" to find out all possibilities for organise this historic event held once in four years. The team's job is to interact with probably 33 sports federations and to look into the world sports calendar so as to plan the grand Olympic 2021. But what now seems is that the IOC is working with the other sports organisations to arrange a July-August window to fix the dates for Tokyo Olympics 2021. This time could be better as the Tennis Grand Slams of Wimbledon and the US Open slated to end respectively in mid-July and in late August. John Coates, the chief of the Coordination Commission of the IOC is hopeful that within a month the final dates for Olympic 2021 may be locked. It is also agreed that more or less the same arrangements would be there for the Games in 2021 such as the planning the marathon in northern city of Sapporo instead of Tokyo to escape the heat. This would be finally boosting the lost morale of many investors and sponsors of various events as now they all could focus on channelising their resources. Hope lies ahead for sure. The health experts, researchers and pharmaceutical enterprises all together are working hard to bring out an effective drug to stop the deadly Covid-19. At this juncture, the world community badly demands leadership and unity among the nations. Accusing one another for spreading the virus and movement of the migrants would not definitely provide us any solution. It's just a virus and a lethal one. Countering the same requires precaution first and of course timely supply of drugs at an affordable price. Taking hard decisions and then delivering better is a daunting task. What Bach looks forward is simply this only. Even he is eyeing on all options, and one of them could be planning the games just before the start of the Japanese summer season. At this gloomy scenario, mixed feelings are being aired by sportspersons all around the world. This deferring may lead to an end of the active careers of our time. Because some of the greats, like Michel Phelps, who have been named as the most decorated athlete in Olympic history, is now talking about the "mental health" of the players across the world. To him the postponement is nothing but a "total bamboozle" so to say. Yes it's true. Many of them would be suffering from high levels of depression. Certainly apart from ones who are purely garrulous, we must understand the depth and impact of the Covid-19. Postponing at this moment is not a gaffe; it is absolutely a wise decision. Fighting this pandemic is like a countering a "Third World War", but without arms and ammunition. The last two World Wars had witnessed the pouring of large sums of money, muscle power and sophisticated weapons, including the most deadly atomic bombs. But then still we are all looking for an opportunity to fight, though not a real war, but of course a virtual one. Days of sabre-rattling have gone. A real and extremely poisonous threat in the form of Covid-19 has taken a toll on humanity for now.

A banner for the Olympic torch relay is removed at J Village where torch relay was scheduled to start, in Hirono, Fukushima Prefecture, on March 26

Keeping the global preparedness in mind, we all must realise the fact that we need a robust strategy, particularly public health emergency to handle pandemics like Covid-19. Life certainly comes first; therefore creating kerfuffle around such crisis is a folly. Rather, we must gather courage to fight the menace out and look forward to Tokyo 2021 with renewed vigour and conviction

Keeping the global preparedness in mind, we all must realise the fact that we need a robust strategy, particularly public health emergency to handle such epidemics. Life certainly comes first; thus creating kerfuffle around such crisis would only lead to more panic among the commoners. The global sports community must be really hopeful that this pandemic will teach all of us a strong lesson to usher into a Tokyo 2021 with renewed vigour and conviction. ## PERSPECTIVE

Misinformation militates against Covid-19 management

The Government should rope in social media giants to plan a mechanism that all searches about the pandemic reach the Government/WHO websites in order to stem the flow of canards

DUSHYANT SINGH

While there is a minor issue like a slight mismatch between the figures of Covid-19 cases in India reported by the Government of India and those by global bodies like Worldometer, the more serious and exigent matter is the coronavirus misinformation that is flooding social media. We are dealing with an unprecedented pandemic and in such a catastrophic situation, we should rely only on authentic sources of information. All data and measures taken or suggested are regularly updated at WHO and the Government of India websites. Accordingly, on issues related to symptoms, treatment and other Covid-19 related management practices, public should pay heed to only that information available on the official resources i.e., Ministry of Health at the Central and State Governments or their appointed spokespersons. Misinformation which is being spread in the public sphere through various social media channels, intentionally or inadvertently, about Covid-19 is going to hinder the management and treatment of the pandemic. There have been reports on the social media about some people associated with the Government machinery endorsing unscientific treatments to deal with Covid-19. We need to learn from the experience of other countries so as to not repeat the same mistakes. Nigeria had faced tremendous problems in managing the Ebola crisis due to misinformation campaign in 2014. Even now despite only 39 cases, the Nigerian Government has found it difficult to control misinformation related to Covid-19. As per a Global Development Community Media (a well-known media platform associated with reputed world development agencies) report written by William Worley and Vidya Krishnan, the level of misinformation being spread about Covid-19 is the highest in India. It has highlighted a number of incidents of conflicting information coming out of official and non-official sources, besides the social media. Some samples from their report are: 1) While, the Health Ministry, including the Public Health Foundation of India, is working closely with the World Health Organization to launch a coordinated response, another arm of the Government — AYUSH Ministry — has been at the centre of a large-scale misinformation campaign that undermines the Health Ministry's response. This needs to be corrected. 2) Second incident is that of a politician who was proposing raw cow urine (gaumutra) as a treatment of Covid-19, even while the scientists, including those in India, are battling to find a solution. Similarly if we scan the social media, especially YouTube, one can find solution being suggested by all and sundry, ranging from outright astrology to homemade remedies, without any scientific backing. Information of some myths prevailing in the social media domain such as "longevity of coronavirus", "non-survivability of the virus in hot climate", "totkas", "possible alternate medicines to cure Covid-19", "holding the breath, to check if someone is affected by corona" and so on will only cause complications and problems in management of affected cases. Towards this end, Prime Minister Narendra Modi's strong message of not taking any medicines without proper consultation with a qualified doctor hopefully will go a long way in curbing the misinformation campaign. However, the PM's call has to be backed by a focused mechanism to eradicate the menace of misinformation campaign. How can we do it? Some of the measures suggested are as follows. 1)

Ministry of Health can set up a task force in consultation with Ministry of Information to scan the social media and put out the truth on regular basis in the form of press briefs or press bulletins using all available media networks for countering or clarifying such messages and information. It is not that the task force should respond to every fake and silly news. However, it must put out clarification on any incorrect and fake news item that is likely to cause harm to human lives and national economy. If we do not curb the misinformation campaign in time, the 21-day lockdown may not be fully successful and as PM Modi had warned nation will have to pay a heavy price in terms of unprecedented loss of human lives and economic cost. 2) Second measure could be co-opting the technical giants like Facebook, WhatsApp, twitter and other technical firms to direct all searches related to Covid-19 lead either to Ministry of Health or Ministry Information or WHO sites only, so that people are given correct information. As per the report mentioned above, some of the big technological companies are already helping the WHO in this regard. There is a need for Indian Government to also see the feasibility of doing the same in our context. 3) While the Government has launched an awareness campaign about Covid-19 through caller tunes and advertisements, there is need for a focused nationwide programme on important aspects dealing with the pandemic at a fixed time in the day with repeat broadcast by all TV and radio channels. This slot must capture the highlights of the day and important procedures to be followed in managing Covid-19. The importance of curbing misinformation can be best understood by the statement made by WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus. He had said recently that "Misinformation about Covid-19 is not limited to India. We're not just fighting an epidemic; we're fighting an infodemic." Therefore, in this period of infodemic, the safest advice is to stay indoors, wash hands regularly, maintain social distancing, and if in doubt seek early medical assistance and help Government help you in remaining safe. # Revive age-old hygiene traditions

The whole world is faced with a panic situation because of coronavirus scare. With over 175 countries in its grip, and the number of casualties heavily mounting, the pandemic is taking a toll on the physical and mental health of people and the state. The entire world is in a lockdown state and all of this is certainly going to take a toll on our economy, which was already hit hard. Such situations serve as a reminder about the harsh realities of life, which most of us, caught up in the mundanities and routine, often forget. Ancient Indian learned masters, through allegories and similes, tried to raise our consciousness and make us aware that the world is a unified organism. One, that is set into an interdependent framework, where no individual has a reality independent of the entirety. The obvious implication is that resonance of the echoes at one end of the globe shall have far reaching consequences. That makes it imperative that aberration of even a few, knowingly or inadvertently, could threaten our very existence. So, no wonder, what began in China, has spread its wings all across the globe.

That calls for remaining conscious about our collective obligation even while pursuing one's individualistic aspirational urges. The above concept seems to have gone out of the reckoning of most of the leaders of leading nations, not to say anything on individual beings. Otherwise, they would not be passionately trying to excite emotional chord of people to build up their vote bank, as has been evident in the recent years. The present crisis is a wake-up call for them. If, however, they join hands, quality of human life may improve substantially, not simply in terms of health but economy as well. Statistics available suggest that whenever world trade goes strong, each country's economy grows. But whenever world trade took a downturn in the past, world war happened. The universe being a unified organism, would also mean that there remains connect and correspondence between the cosmic line up, continuously changing, and the live world on the earth. That offers us with the opportunity to foresee things expected to happen through prognosis of the changing dynamics of the planetary line up in the cosmos. Most important markers in this respect, in so far as mundane matters are concerned, are major eclipses happening every year. During eclipse, the Sun, which is supposed to be health manager of the Universe comes under cloud together with Moon which signifies masses. Whenever the Ascendant at time when the Sun and Moon are in exact conjunction, has close linkage with the death indicating 8th house denominator, points to the possibility of heavy mortality. Major eclipses during the years, 1915, 1918, 1920, 1957, 1968, and 2009 bear testimony to the above fact. No wonder pandemic overtook almost the whole world during those years when more than hundred thousand people died because of one form of virus or the other. Another common factor noticed, except in 1920 was cluster of more than four planets on eclipse axis. But then, in 1920's chart, death indicating 8th lord Saturn was placed adverse to Rahu. The Sun and Moon were ill-disposed off to mischievous Neptune and Uranus, meaning massive death unusual way. Kindly recall my discussion on eclipse chart of December 26, 2019 in the opening issue of the year. There was a cluster of seven planets — the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Jupiter, Ketu, Saturn, and Pluto on the eclipse axis. Out of them, Saturn and Pluto are death indicating planets, the latter being more lethal. If that would not be enough, even the 8th lord Mercury happened to occupy lunar constellation owned by another death indicating planet Ketu. What further worsened the situation was placement of Rahu in Mercury owned sign Gemini. Even otherwise, Gemini relates to lungs. Bear in mind: the world is premised on the concept of 'Unity in Diversity'. Accordingly, it's time now that we resolve to remember our collective obligations, remain alert, and revive our age-old tradition of maintaining cleanliness. Till recent past, in our villages, whenever somebody came from outside, they washed their hands and feet before entering the house. Even as on date, Muslims wash their hands, feet and face before they enter the Mosque to offer their prayer. The writer is an astrologer, vastu consultant and spiritual counsellor.
