Dealers, registered vehicle owners in a fix

PNS | HYDERABAD

The decision not to register a class of motor vehicles with Bharat Stage 4 (BS IV) engines, that too after March 31 and to sell BS IV vehicles was a severe blow for small vehicle dealers, finance houses and the owners of two-wheelers and three-wheelers.

More than 2 lakh unregistered BS IV vehicles worth Rs 1.50 crore each would be stranded if the government takes a stand before March 31.

The vehicle owners do not get insurance, it is impossible for them to use such vehicles. They are in a fix as to what should be done with them.

The government is likely to take steps to shift the possession in the owner's name to a dealer and also to sell such vehicles. It is learnt that the government is mulling over taking the decision on the same day.

The measure has been accompanied by a closure of all schools in other countries during previous global health crises, such as the SARS epidemic in 2003 and the H1N1 outbreak in 2009. Though the stakes are high for all the major religious tourism destinations around the world, the impact will be felt differently depending on the region and the specific industry. For example, in the Middle East, where religious tourism accounts for a significant portion of the GDP, the closure of pilgrimage sites and the reduction in international travel will have a severe economic impact. In contrast, in countries where religious tourism is not as important, the impact may be less significant.

In the end, the religious tourism industry will need to adapt and find new ways to engage with visitors, perhaps through virtual tours and online experiences. These innovations can help protect the industry from future pandemics and ensure its continued success in the years to come.

Rajamouli feels Rise, Roar and Revolt would go well with other languages as well as it is in tune with the characterisations of his lead stars, finds NAGARJU GOUĐ

RRR: RISE, ROAR & REVOLT

What is currently the buzz is that Prabhas’ upcoming film Executive Producer Radha Krishna,党委书记 RR to be made into a full-fledged pan-India film. While the film’s working title RRR was earlier confirmed, what the makers have confirmed now is that Rise, Roar and Revolt would go well with other languages as well. It is in tune with the characterisations of his lead stars, finds Chiranjeevi.

Although multiple titles have been going with the film, RRR (abbreviation of Raghu Ramesh Krishna) stands tall as the working title of the film. RRR, directed by SS Rajamouli, has Prabhas as the lead in the film which will also feature Ram Charan, Jr NTR and Alia Bhatt in important roles. The film is set in the era of Bhima, with English being the language of the film. Although the working title has been changed numerous times, Rise, Roar and Revolt has the most acceptance so far.

While the film was expected to release in the summer of 2021, the makers have now decided to release the film on the first look poster release. The makers have also revealed that the first look poster will feature Prabhas in the role of Bhima from the film. It is also revealed that the first look poster will be released on Prabhas’ birthday, which is on October 23.

Phones under $90 taking market share by storm

The rise of smartphones under $90 in the Indian market has been taking off at a significant pace as the price point is becoming attractive for a broader audience. The price points are in the $100 to $150 price range, and there is a strong possibility of more users being attracted to the segment. The low-price point devices are becoming popular due to their attractive features and low pricing.

The trend is expected to continue as smartphone manufacturers are focusing on creating a strong competitive environment with attractive offers and services to attract customers. The increasing popularity of smartphones under $90 is expected to create a significant impact on the overall smartphone market in the country.

We are not bad players of short ball: Rahane

Karachi: In a conversation with the media here on Thursday, team India skipper Virat Kohli, who was in the headlines due to his voluntarily taking a salary cut, defended his team's batting as he said that they are not bad players of short ball.

"I am not too much worried about the current situation because the short ball is a part of our routine play and I don't think it is something that has become a major issue," Kohli said.

"I think the team is doing well in terms of preparing ourselves for the upcoming situation. We are working hard and trying to make sure that everything goes well."

"We have always been good at playing short ball and we have always taken the wickets and scored runs with it," Kohli added.

The team is currently in Pakistan for the three-match Test series against the country in the United Arab Emirates.

The series is known to be a challenging one for the Indian side due to the conditions and the physical challenge it presents. Kohli, who is a key player for the team, has been working hard to ensure the team is well-prepared for the series.

"We are confident in our preparations and we are looking forward to the series," Kohli said.
