They also suggest taking a warm bath before going to bed and consuming a mixture of turmeric and milk at night.

Lockdown: Police helping poor stay afloat

PAS TO LUCKNOW

With the coronavirus scare hanging over most of the country, the police personnel have been on the lookout for any signs of panic or misuse of the situation. This has led to a number of incidents of protests and violence in some parts of the country.

The lockdown has also had a significant impact on the daily routine of many people. Many businesses have closed down, and people are struggling to make ends meet. However, the police have been working round the clock to ensure that essential services are running smoothly, and they have been helping people in every possible way.

Rly may convert coaches into isolation wards

PAS TO LUCKNOW

The deal with an enzyme in a host of the coronavirus, the railway is tracking the possibilities for producing the enzyme in a commercial scale. A coach is being modified in New Delhi as a prototype and is expected to be ready by March 28. A team of medical experts will evaluate the same in an air-conditioned coach. Visible manager of the Indian Railways (Weak division) also took part in the meeting through video conferencing.

The railway will use mechanised technique to minimise the exposure of staff in train operation during the lockdown. The official added that no face-to-face interaction of staff with the passengers is taking place through mobile phones to provide passengers with coach as isolation wards and surgical tents. Sources said a coach can be used as an isolation ward with minimal modifications.

The system of "room to room" under which the coach is divided into separate sections will be followed to minimise the contact of the passengers. The trains will be modified at different zones with an eye on the situation in the respective area.

School introduces virtual classes for students

PAS TO LUCKNOW

The Covid-19 pandemic's virtual learning platform has introduced online classes for students in the Lucknow division. The school has announced the plan to start the new session, with a two-month virtual learning plan to ensure students continue education safely.

The Lucknow division's de facto head, Principal (Secondary Education) Sitaram Pandey, said: "A message is sent to the parents of students in all the districts, asking them to send their children's details in the 'Qualicare' app for the purpose of surveillance of students' health.

The state government has also launched a ‘Qualicare’ app for the purpose of surveillance of students' health. The app is being used by the education authorities to keep track of the health status of students who have returned to their homes.

States take charge

They may not have the halo but some CMs are coming up with effective systems for managing the virus spread.

It is a chilling reality. Fifteen lakh internal transfers arrived in India between January 1 and March 30. And the Government is trying to find all of them with the three tests they have at their disposal. There is no doubt about the situation, but the worry is compounded by the COVID-19 and attempting a national lockdown on a colossal scale, in the biggest, most densely populated democracy in the world.

The economic package and food relief to the poorest is still insufficient. India is a huge county with several challenges and this is the time when our federal structure is being tested. The Centre must take a lead, get the national attention, the work done by some Opposition Chief Ministers in their respective States proves that unity could be found from both the opposite and forge a united front with the Centre. In the process, we are developing innovative models of crisis management that may hold us in good stead to manage not only this viral challenge but also the AREAS like floods, droughts, and so on. The need is to have a two-way dialogue where the Centre and the States can share the burden.

This incurs cost but it is a necessary price to be paid.

The Centre must provide the framework and the States must pitch in with the resources and expertise available.

It is the only way. The Centre must also ensure that the funds are dispatched to the States in a timely manner.

The economic package announced on March 27 by the Finance Minister may not be enough. Some business may not be able to manage, some will have to cut down on the workforce, some have to stop operations and go into debt. The Centre must provide a lifeline to these businesses and enable them to tide over this period.

Stepping up

The Indian state is finally responding to the Coronavirus outbreak with more alacrity.

On March 27, the Centre announced an economic package, of Rs 1.7

lakh crore, to help the States deal with the pandemic and the COVID-19 pandemic is welcome. Alongside, it moved to the cap rates and reduced them to 10 per cent for the States. It is also expected that the Centre will release an additional amount to help the States manage the situation. These steps are welcome and will help the States to manage the situation.

But there is a need for more coordination and more fast-track decision-making. The Centre must provide the framework and the States must pitch in with the resources and expertise available. This is the only way.

The Centre must also ensure that the funds are dispatched to the States in a timely manner.

MOHAQIL TALUKDAR

In 2001, General Abdul Rashid Dostum, then a forceful warlord, the Governor of northern Afghan province of Balkh, at the urging of the US Army Special Forces ODA 595 officers, was involved in ablaze of passion in the moment of the war in Afghanistan against the Taliban. The group was poised to launch an offensive against the Taliban. But a group of Taliban fighters and commandos started a fierce battle. Dostum's forces managed to defeat the Taliban, but not without casualties.

The battle was a turning point for Dostum, as it marked the beginning of his rise to power in Afghanistan. Dostum's forces were able to gain control of the region, and he became a key figure in the Afghan government's efforts to stabilize the country.

Intensity, duration of COVID-19 to determine impact on economy: RBI

The RBI on Friday said the impact of coronavirus on the economy will depend on the intensity and duration of the pandemic, even as the central bank reduced its growth forecast for the year to 7.5% from 7.6%.

As regards India, the MPC noted that the impact would be contingent on intensity, spread and duration of the COVID-19 infection. The Reserve Bank of India in its statement said the depreciation of the growth prospects of financial and inflation risk. High frequency indicators suggest that private consumption expenditure has become harder, even as gross fixed capital formation has been constrained primarily to the supply side, the outlook for agriculture and allied activities remain uncertain.

The outcome underscores the abrupt nature of the abrupt slowdown in the economy following the coronavirus outbreak.

RBI Governor Shaktikanta Das said in view of the impact of coronavirus on the global growth projections for 4.7% for the fourth quarter of 2019-20 and 5.0% for the full fiscal year as "now at risk".

COVID-19 OUTBREAK
We live our lives by the experience and relationships we have through the years. The work of acclaimed actor, architect, and sculptor, writer, SATISH GUJRAL, who passed away on Thursday at the ripe old age of 94, was influenced by his multi-faceted passions. By Team Viva

GUJRAL BROTHERS

Gujral was the brother of the late Prime-Minister Indira Gandhi. Gujral was awarded India's second highest civilian honor, the Padma Shri in 1971, and his contributions to the art world have been recognized both nationally and internationally. Gujral's brothers belonged to a pro-gujarati family. The family's art school in Ahmedabad was an important voice in the Congress party and this family went on to create their own colleges in the field of art. They were both artists in their own right and Gujral's passion for art was evident from a young age.

EDUCATION AND MEXICO

Gujral's first foray into the art world was when he was selected by the International Forum of Progressive Artists for a group in Mexico City. He went on to study at the Indian College of Architecture and then went on to the National Institute of Fine Arts in Mexico. Gujral's philosophy and his art were deeply influenced by the Mexican muralists. But later, he realized that art should be used as a propaganda. Muralists like Orozco and Rivera painted on the walls like the Mexican revolutionaries.

MOUNTAIN HERO

Gujral became the turning point of his artistic odyssey. He met David Alfredo Siqueiros and became his protégé. He studied at JJ School of Art in Mumbai and was sent to Mexico on a scholarship. He was aware of it. He took the challenge and decided to make a difference. He then started to develop his own style and became a resilience that was deep and resonant. Gujral's sculptures were a blend of India's mythology and the Mexican revolutionaries. His subjects often represented the surface like hints of a mirage in a dry land. His paintings had variables of color that pleased across the viewer's eyes as he approached the desert. But they had an elusive quality about them. Eventually, they would dissolve into a mist of color.

GUJRAL'S SCULPTURES

Gujral's wooden sculptures were his way of expressing his own reflections and his perception of the world. He believed that art could become the most mainstream tool of dissent and some-thing that will always be there and that will always have something to say. He believed that art could be effective in social and political propaganda. Maybe it's a tool of our time, he said.

SCORN FOR THE PROGRESSIVES

"We had a multi-layered relationship. I was the friend of the Tagores, " was his obser-vation. He was aware of it. He took the challenge and decided to make a difference.
