On Monday, patients were discharged from the All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS) in Raipur, after recovery from Covid-19. They were discharged on Saturday by the AIIMS Institute of Medical Sciences (AIMS) in Raipur, leaving just 10 patients who need to be in isolation conditions.

The total number of positive Covid-19 cases in Chhattisgarh was 855, of which 468 have been cured. The death toll has been reported till date.

In a novel gesture, the Chhattisgarh Police distributes food packets to migrant workers of neighboring states entering the state on foot. These labyrinthine are then shifted to their home state borders as per the Chattisgarh Migrant Protect Order.

C’garh to run 11 trains to bring home people

STAFF REPORTER • RAIPUR

The Chhattisgarh government plans to run 11 special trains to bring back migrant workers, students, people in distress or those in need of medical care related to Covid-19 from various states to Chhattisgarh. A team of eight doctors are treating patients who are said to be in critical condition.

According to a medical bulletin issued by the Director of the Hospital, due to respiratory arrest oxygen treatment, a team of eight doctors are treating patients who are said to be in critical condition. A 16-year-old thalassemia patient from Koriya Deo, a 16-year-old thalassemia patient from Koriya Deo, was discharged from AIIMS Raipur on Saturday, adding that the treatment required to the Thalassemia patient includes one drug from Pathakhawan (Pathakhawan) and one drug from a local hospital.

The state government has arranged arrangements for ferrying migrants walking on railway tracks. Migrants can be revocable to C’garh via these trains.

Those seeking to board these trains will have to apply online in the portal of the Chhattisgarh Labour Department.

Other ailments too must be treated: Cabinet Secretary

DrDO develops automated contact-less sanitisation cabinet to fight coronavirus

LDMA issues new safety guidelines to factories to avoid future disasters

NSP in NEW DELHI

P S Biber

Playing a key role in the Indian Army's strategic planning, the Defense Research and Development Organization (DRDO) has deployed a contact-less sanitisation cabinet in the country for the first time. The DRDO has designed and built the cabinet, called Defence Sanitation Cabinet (DSC), which can be used to sanitise the hands of people without direct contact.

The cabinet is designed to be used for various purposes, including sanitising officials in administrative offices, staff in hospitals and doctors, and for sanitising the hands of doctors and nurses in hospitals. It can also be used for sanitising the hands of army personnel and other security forces.

The cabinet is equipped with a touchless mechanism, which allows users to sanitise their hands without touching any surface. It uses ultraviolet-C (UVC) radiation to kill germs and bacteria, and can be used for sanitising the hands of up to 10 people in a single session.

The cabinet is designed to be easy to use and can be set up in different locations, such as hospitals, offices, and military bases. It is also compact in size and can be easily transported from one location to another.

The DRDO has already made the cabinet available to various government departments and organisations, and is likely to make it available to the public in the future. The cabinet is expected to be a game-changer in the fight against the spread of the virus and can help in reducing the transmission of the disease.
A physical therapist in Kerala has filed a police complaint under the age-old statue of the Indian Penal Code against the filmmaker, alleging that his new film is a copy of a script written by her. The incident is a reminder of the ongoing debate around the issue of copyright infringement in the film industry.

The therapist, who has filed the complaint, alleged that the filmmaker had copied her script without her permission. She said that the film was released without her knowledge and consent, and that it had caused her significant financial loss.

The complaint was filed under Section 373 of the Indian Penal Code, which deals with the theft of movable property. The case is now being heard by a local court in the Kerala High Court.

The incident highlights the challenges faced by artists and professionals in protecting their intellectual property rights in the face of rampant piracy and theft in the entertainment industry. It also underscores the need for stronger laws and effective enforcement mechanisms to protect the rights of creators.

While the film industry has made strides in recent years to combat piracy and theft, there is still a long way to go to ensure that creators receive the recognition and compensation they deserve for their work. The Kerala therapist’s case serves as a stark reminder of the urgent need for stronger legal frameworks and effective enforcement to protect the rights of creators.
Lockdown for clean air

There is some merit in suggestions by ex-SG judge on rotational lockdowns in States to maintain green norms.

Some workers return

Web portals by Punjab and Haryana Governments, listing job and project sites, are helping reverse the exodus of migrant workers. An exodus of migrant workers from villages to cities has been halted, according to two workers who have applied on the Haryana government website portal to return to the State to work at units and project sites.

Sir — Indian industries are heavily dependent on manpower. The lockdown has caused a severe dip in the number of workers available for work in industries. The situation has been worse in urban areas, where workers from poor villages have returned to their home States.

To this end, the Punjab and Haryana governments have been actively trying to establish a mechanism to bring back the migrant workers.

The Punjab government has taken several steps to bring back the migrant workers. The state government has announced a scheme to provide Rs 5,000 to every migrant worker who willing to return to the state. The state government has also arranged special trains to bring back the migrant workers.

The Haryana government has also announced a scheme to provide Rs 5,000 to every migrant worker who willing to return to the state. The state government has also arranged special trains to bring back the migrant workers.

It is clear that the lockdown has caused a severe dip in the number of workers available for work in industries. The situation has been worse in urban areas, where workers from poor villages have returned to their home States.

Care for the workers

While the workers are returning, the government and social organizations should take necessary steps to ensure that the workers are well taken care of. The government should provide necessary medical facilities to the workers who have returned.

However, the government and social organizations should also ensure that the workers are not exploited by the employers. The government should provide necessary legal protection to the workers.

In conclusion, the lockdown has caused a severe dip in the number of workers available for work in industries. The situation has been worse in urban areas, where workers from poor villages have returned to their home States.

Some alcohol spills trouble

Sir — The Supreme Court took a suo moto decision to review the issue of liquor licences being granted in other states and to ensure that the liquor trade is being properly regulated.

The Court observed that the issue of liquor licences is a matter of public interest and that the Government should take necessary steps to ensure that the licences are granted in a proper manner.

The Court further observed that the Government should also ensure that the licences are not granted to persons who are not fit to hold such licences.

In view of the above, the Court has directed the Government to take necessary steps to ensure that the licences are granted in a proper manner.

We hope that the Government will take necessary steps to ensure that the licences are granted in a proper manner.

Sincerely,

A. K. Sharma

Donald Trump tries to move stepping up in the absence of a said Rep. Mikie Sherrill, D-N.J., makers of both parties, from the Washington:

"It's part of the reason why so many Americans have died in the COVID-19 pandemic has been the time, "said Ethem Topaloglu, Turkey's senior citizen. "It's been a terrible year for all of us."

A United Nations report found that the COVID-19 pandemic has been responsible for a significant increase in domestic violence, with many victims finding it difficult to escape their abusers due to lockdowns and social isolation measures.

In addition to the physical violence, the pandemic has also had a psychological impact on many individuals, with rates of mental health issues such as depression and anxiety increasing significantly.

UK expected to stick to lockdown as Boris outlines future

London: Taking a difficult task than most others, British Prime Minister Boris Johnson has announced that the country's coronavirus lockdown will be extended until at least mid-February, with strict social distancing rules still in place. The government said it is "absolutely crucial to reduce the transmission of the virus" and that the country cannot yet "return to normality.

But there's a glimmer of hope on the horizon as the government sets out its plan for the future, with a focus on the vaccine rollout and the potential for lifting restrictions in the near future.

Johnson said: "We have come a long way in the last few weeks, but we still have a long way to go. We have made great progress, but we cannot be complacent. We must continue to follow the rules and support our vaccination programme."

Citing virus, Iran says it's ready for prisoner swap with US

Tehran: Iran's negotiators say they are ready to negotiate with the United States to release six Iranian women and a Chinese prisoner. "We are ready to negotiate with the US to release the detainees, including the women and the Chinese prisoner," said Iran's foreign ministry.

But a US diplomat has said that negotiations are "very complex", given the ongoing tensions between the two countries.

President Donald Trump has said he is "open to" negotiating with Iran, but has also warned that any deal must be "very good" for the US.

Iranian officials have expressed hope that a prisoner swap could be reached, but have also warned that any deal must be "fair and equal".

South Korea reiterates proposal to join talks with North Korea

Seoul: South Korea's government has reiterates its proposal to join talks with North Korea, as the two countries have been in talks for over a year.

North Korea has been so anemic and divided that there has been a growing interest in the possibility of a reunification of the two Koreas.

President Moon Jae-in has said that he is "open to" negotiation, but has also warned that any deal must be "fair and equal".

"We have to be prepared for the possibility of a reunification, but we must also be prepared for the possibility of a division," he said.

Young South Korean politician has proposed his proposal to talk to North Korea, as the two countries have been in talks for over a year.

But there are still many obstacles to overcome, with the nuclear issue and other issues still unresolved.

The two Koreas have been divided since the Korean War ended in 1953, with North Korea ruling the northern part of the peninsula and South Korea ruling the southern part.

PK reports record 1,991 new cases, tally crosses 29,000

Islamabad: Pakistan reported a record 1,991 new cases of COVID-19, taking the total number of cases to 29,088. The government has been under pressure to take more measures to control the spread of the virus.

"It's very nice to be out of the hospital," said a patient who recovered from the disease. "I'm so grateful to the doctors who saved my life.

But the government has been criticized for not doing enough to control the spread of the virus, with many people still contracting the disease despite the lockdown measures.

Chinese city bordering North Korea imposes martial law after spike in COVID cases

Shenyang: A Chinese city bordering North Korea has imposed martial law after a spike in COVID cases. The city has been hit by a new wave of infections, with over 100 cases reported in the last week.

"We have been working very hard to control the spread of the virus," said the city's governor. "We have isolated the cases and traced their contacts.

But there are still many challenges to overcome, with the border area still at risk of new infections.

Ankara: Turkey's senior official has said that the country has reached a "decisive stage" in its fight against the virus. "We have been working very hard to control the spread of the virus," he said.

"It's been a difficult year for all of us," said the official. "But we have been working very hard to control the spread of the virus."

Social skills are essential for children with autism. They help them interact with others and build relationships. Providing opportunities for social interaction, such as playdates or group activities, can help children with autism develop their social skills.

Communication

Communication is a vital aspect of a child's development. Children with autism may have difficulty communicating their needs and desires. It is important to work with the child's therapist or education specialist to create a communication system that works for them.

Physical health

Physical health is also crucial for children with autism. They may be at risk for certain health conditions, such as obesity and diabetes. Regular check-ups and a balanced diet can help prevent these conditions.

Autism spectrum disorder (ASD)

Autism spectrum disorder (ASD) is a developmental disorder that affects how a child communicates and interacts with others. It is characterized by social, communication, and behavioral challenges.

Support for parents

Parenting a child with autism can be challenging. It is important to seek support from professionals and other parents who understand the unique needs of children with autism.

Conclusion

In conclusion, it is crucial to prioritize the child's well-being and happiness. By following these strategies, parents can help their children overcome their challenges and lead fulfilling lives.
