RMS Microbiology report released today

NEW DELHI

No new cases of COVID-19 were reported in India today, according to the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare. The government has been restricting the movement of people and imposing curfews in various areas to contain the spread of the virus. The ministry has been publishing daily updates on the number of cases, recoveries, and active cases across the country.

At least 48 of the 115 cases under the age of 30 tested positive for COVID-19, including 25 women, who are at greater risk as they are in the reproductive age group. The number of positive cases under 30 has doubled since April 30, when there were 18 cases.

Book Review: A Book on Writing

By A L P R A I M C H C

As an attempt to understand the complexities of Amrit Pal Chauhan’s famous book, there is a palpable sense of translation being employed, with the notion of translation having both positive and negative connotations. The book, published in 2006 under the imprint of Oxford University Press, is a blend of wisdom, experience, and the author’s effective writing skills.

Corona could be much ado about nothing: Veteran doctors

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN IN MYSORE

Coronavirus has been raging around the world and has caused a lot of panic among the masses. However, veteran doctors have said that it is much ado about nothing.

Kumar Chellappan, a veteran physician, said, "The current situation is being exaggerated. The virus is not new and has been around for a long time. It is not as deadly as people think."

Several other doctors have echoed similar sentiments, saying that the virus is not as deadly as the media portrays it to be. They have advised people to stay calm and take necessary precautions to prevent the spread of the virus.

However, the government and health authorities continue to urge people to take necessary precautions and follow the guidelines issued by them.

Pakistan violates ceasefire again

The Pakistan Army on Monday launched a cross-border attack on the Indian Rajouri district and injured several people, according to the Indian Border Security Force (BSF).

The BSF said that the Pakistan Army was using heavy artillery and mortars to violate the ceasefire agreement. The attack was carried out in the absence of any official ceasefire.

The Indian government has called on Pakistan to stop such violations and ensure peace along the Line of Control (LoC).
Zafar Islam Khan’s attempt to reach out to the Muslim world is an affront to the core values of our secular Constitution. His comments are deplorable and must be contested strongly.

The country also boasts of a robust and independent judiciary that reflects every aspect of the democracy, various groups will have to try and find solutions. The country is in the grip of the COVID-19 pandemic, the virus has claimed many lives and it has highlighted the need for us to work together towards a common goal. We need to ensure that everyone gets vaccinated and that we take necessary precautions to prevent the spread of the virus. The government has taken several measures to contain the spread of the virus and we need to follow these guidelines strictly.

Learning from tragedy

The COVID-19 crisis has brought to the fore an urgent need for international community action. While we have seen examples of cooperation, there is a need for more and better cooperation in terms of medical supplies, vaccines, and other critical resources. This is crucial given the interdependence of economies and the global nature of this pandemic. The pandemic has highlighted the importance of international cooperation to address such global challenges effectively.

The COVID-19 pandemic has had a severe impact on economies worldwide. The World Bank estimates that the global economy could shrink by 5.2% in 2020, the steepest decline since the 1930s. This is a testament to the interconnectedness of the global economy and the need for collective action.

International cooperation is essential to overcome this crisis. Countries must work together to develop and distribute vaccines, ensure access to medical supplies, and support vulnerable populations. The G20, for instance, has pledged $5 trillion to support the global economy, highlighting the importance of international cooperation.

In conclusion, the COVID-19 pandemic presents a unique opportunity for international cooperation. By working together, we can learn from this crisis and build a more resilient and equitable global system. This requires a renewed commitment to multilateralism, a commitment to collective action, and a focus on the well-being of all people.

Build more, build faster with prefabs to beat Covid induced slowdown: Gadkari

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Monday reviewed and adjusted the list of banks whose bonds will be included in the government's special central securities deposit (CSD) scheme.

The government, in its budget for the financial year 2021-22, had announced that it would provide a special CSD facility for bonds of up to 5 years maturity to meet the needs of large and medium-sized corporates.

The RBI has now reviewed the list of eligible banks and has included a few new banks while removing some others.

In its list, the RBI has removed Bank of Maharashtra and Karvy National while it has added Axis Bank, HDFC Bank, IndusInd Bank, ICICI Bank, and YES Bank.

The RBI has also revised the eligibility criteria for banks to be included in the scheme. Banks are now required to have a minimum net stable funding ratio of 95 percent as of March 31, 2021, to be eligible.

The scheme, which was announced in the budget, aims to provide a new source of funding for banks and help them to meet their liquidity needs.

In a statement, the RBI said that the scheme will help in reducing the cost of funding for banks and improving their access to a wider range of investor segments.

The scheme is expected to have a positive impact on the banking sector and the economy as a whole.

Cardiovascular diseases claimed more than 17.3 million cases of adult deaths in India in 2019. For prevention, regular physical activity is highly recommended. Epidemiological data show that engaging in moderate physical activity for at least 40 minutes, 4 days a week, can reduce the risk of a second cardiac event, or post operative complications in cancer patients. Exercise may also lead to mental health benefits for patients. Furthermore, physical activity can improve the quality of life and enhance overall emotional well-being of an individual.

Cardiovascular rehabilitation is a multidisciplinary program designed to help patients improve physical fitness, body and mind of the patient. It involves recovery from cardiac events. It is designed to strengthen the heart, body and mind of people who have suffered a heart attack, or previous cardiac event. Cardiac rehabilitation programs focus on activities that can improve cardiovascular health.

Who is a candidate for cardiac rehabilitation?

Individuals who are eligible for cardiac rehabilitation programs typically include:
- Patients who have had a heart attack or other cardiovascular event
- Patients who have undergone a coronary angioplasty or coronary artery bypass surgery
- Patients with heart failure
- Patients with peripheral arterial disease
- Patients with atrial fibrillation

Cardiac rehabilitation programs may include:
- Aerobic exercise, such as walking, cycling, or swimming
- Strength training exercises
- Flexibility and balance exercises
- Education on lifestyle changes, including diet and smoking cessation
- Cognitive-behavioral therapy or other mental health interventions

It is highly recommended to enroll in a cardiac rehabilitation program to help improve physical fitness, quality of life, and reduce the risk of future cardiovascular events. Exercise is highly recommended as it can improve physical fitness, body and mind of people who have suffered a heart attack, or previous cardiac event.

A word of caution: Exercise should be performed under the guidance of a healthcare professional. People with certain medical conditions, such as heart failure or unstable angina, may need to start with lower-intensity exercise programs and gradually increase the intensity and duration of exercise over time. It is important to consult with a healthcare provider before starting a new exercise program.

Put Breathe Easy in Corona Times

On World Asthma Day, DR ANIMESH ARYA tells you that there are no proven risks associated with asthmatic patients related to COVID-19, especially when they are breathing fresh air in many areas.

CAREFULNESS - Disease

WHO has reported that COVID-19 is a respiratory disease known to cause symptoms like fever, cough, shortness of breath, fatigue, body aches, headache, chills, muscle and/or joint pain, and loss of taste or smell. It is contagious and spreads through respiratory droplets. It is highly recommended that you avoid close contact with individuals who have respiratory symptoms, especially if they have a cough, fever, or difficulty breathing.

Asthma is a common chronic condition that affects approximately 262 million people worldwide. It is characterized by inflammation of the airways, which can cause airway narrowing and obstruction. The inflammation can worsen during episodes of asthma, which can lead to wheezing, shortness of breath, chest tightness, and coughing.

Asthma is often triggered by allergies, exercise, or respiratory infections. It is important to recognize the early signs of asthma and seek medical attention promptly. Early treatment of asthma can reduce the risk of severe episodes and help prevent future exacerbations.

This World Asthma Day, we encourage everyone to learn about asthma and its management to help prevent future exacerbations and improve the quality of life for those who live with this condition.

Cardiac rehabilitation programs may include:
- Aerobic exercise, such as walking, cycling, or swimming
- Strength training exercises
- Flexibility and balance exercises
- Education on lifestyle changes, including diet and smoking cessation
- Cognitive-behavioral therapy or other mental health interventions

A MEMOIR OF A THOUSAND MILES

British textile historian JENNY HOUSEGO lays bare her idyllic childhood, aspirations and struggles in her recent e-book, A Woman; co-authored by journalist MAYA MIRCHANDANI BY SAKSHI SHARMA

Co-founder of Shudra of India and Kashmiri ki, Housego has sought for years to exorcize her attachment to the land she has always fantasized as her "breadth of the earth," but without colour evokes a different emotion. And in her previous book, "Taj," which married elements of fiction with memoir, she says, "I am not a woman who can go without the sense of a world. I am not a woman who can just stand as a woman."

What would be a valuable contribution to the understanding of the Indian textile industry? She says, "I want to share my knowledge with the world, and to show that the textile industry in India is full of creativity and innovation." She is currently working on a memoir that will explore the rich history and culture of the textile industry in India.

In addition to her work as a textile historian, Housego is also a researcher at the Victoria and Albert Museum in London. She has conducted extensive research on the textile industry in India, and has written several articles and books on the subject.

In her memoir, "A Woman," Housego reflects on her experiences growing up in a textile family, as well as her own personal journey as a woman in the textile industry. She writes about the challenges she faced as a woman in the field, and how she overcame them to become a successful textile historian.

The book also talks about her experiences with discrimination and gender roles in the textile industry, as well as the importance of creativity and innovation in the industry.

"My mission in life is not merely to survive, but to thrive; and to do so with so much passion and enthusiasm that all the dull spots in the world turn green and others say, 'How was he able to turn the corner? How was he able to keep going? How was he able to find the way through?'"

But it is not just about surviving, it is also about thriving. "I want to share my story with the world, and to show that the textile industry in India is full of creativity and innovation," she says. "I want to inspire others to follow their dreams, regardless of the challenges they may face."
World Test Ch'ship can follow Olympics path: Tendulkar

India's cricket legend Sachin Tendulkar feels the International Cricket Council (ICC) can follow the Olympics path and postpone the ICC T20 World Cup to the next available window due to the coronavirus pandemic.

"If we have to play the ICC T20 World Cup in October-November if teams aren't cancelled totally, they have been postponed. So, along with the tours, the championship also gets postponed," Tendulkar said in a tweet on Monday.

The ICC is due to meet later this week to decide the fate of the 2021 World Cup and the T20 World Cup, which were both due to be played later this year but have been postponed to 2022.

"If the ICC decides to call the 2020 Olympics, then the T20 World Cup will also be postponed," Tendulkar added.

"The World T20 and the Olympics are both once-in-a-decade events, and the decision needs to be taken in the best interest of cricket and the world," he said.

"We need to plan ahead and ensure that the sport doesn't take a hit due to the pandemic," Tendulkar said.

The 49-year-old, who played 27 Tests and 146 ODIs, said "India's cricket has grown at a rapid pace over the past two decades, and we need to continue with the momentum."
