Farmers reject Shah offer, set talk terms

Farmers union threaten to block all entry points to Delhi, demand Cabinet Committee for talks; Shah assures high-level team of Ministers for dialogue if farmers shift to Burari

SHEKHAR SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

A day after Union Home Minister Amit Shah held out an olive branch to farmers protesting at Delhi's borders for four days against the new farm laws for talks anytime provided they move to the Burari ground, the farmers on Sunday rejected Shah's offer and said they will not accept any conditional dialogue and threatened to block all five entry points to the national Capital.

The All India Kisan Sangharsh Coordination Committee (AIKSCC) on Sunday demanded the Centre to name and authorise a Cabinet committee or a group of Ministers for future discussions with the farmers.

"The condition laid down by Home Minister Amit Shah is not acceptable to us. We will not hold any conditional talks. We reject the government's offer. The blockade will not end. We will block all five entry points to Delhi... The condition put for talks is an insult to farmers."

"We will never go to Burari. It is not a park but an open jail," Surjeet S Phul, Bhartiya Kisan Union's Punjab president, told reporters.

Reacting to their demands, the Centre on Sunday once again appealed to the farmers to shift to a ground in Delhi's Burari and said a high-level team of Union Ministers is ready to hold talks with them at the capital's Vigyan Bhavan once they move to the designated place.

Later in the evening, Shah, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh and Agriculture Minister Narendra Singh Tomar held deliberations over the farmers' protest against the three Central farm laws with BJP president JP Nadda.

As the standoff showed no signs of easing, Prime Minister Narendra Modi again batted for the new laws in his monthly radio address. Shah on Sunday said they were meant for the welfare of farmers and called their agitation apolitical.

Speaking to reporters, he said, "The new farm laws are meant for the welfare of farmers."

After a long time the farmer is going to come out of a locked system. Whoever wants to oppose it politically let them do it. I have never said the farmers protest is political and would never say (that it is political)."

The Home Ministry too assured the farmers' organisations that a high-level team of Union Ministers will talk to them once the protesters move to the designated site. A meeting of over 30 farmer groups was held to discuss Shah's offer for talks before the scheduled date of December 3 once they move to Burari in the city, but thousands of protesters refused to budge and prepared for spending another night in the cold at the Singhu and Tikri border points. Their representatives said Shah's condition that they shift the protest is not acceptable and claimed Burari ground is an "open jail".

FARMERS' BODY ASK KISAN TO MARCH TO DELHI, URGE THEM TO START NATIONWIDE STIR FROM TOMORROW

New Delhi: The All India Kisan Sangharsh Coordination Committee (AIKSCC) has decided to intensify stir, protests to start in other States from December 1. The AIKSCC has asked all farmers' organisations to immediately mobilise farmers to Delhi and to hold protests across the country from December 1.

MAN SLEEPING IN CAR NEAR PROTEST SITE ON CAPITAL BORDER CHARRED TO DEATH

New Delhi: A 55-year-old man from Punjab was burnt alive after the car in which he was sleeping caught fire on Saturday night near the Delhi-Haryana border. Janak Raj had come to Delhi border to express solidarity with the agitating farmers. A tractor repairman, he had gone to Delhi to voluntarily fix tractors that were being used by farmers camping near Delhi, to protest against the Centre's agricultural laws that were passed recently.

Don't be swayed by rumours as farm laws pro-farmers: Modi

New legislations have opened 'new doors of opportunities', benefits for farmers, says PM

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

In the backdrop of demand by farmers for guaranteeing Minimum Support Price for their produce, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday asserted that new farm laws have opened "new doors of opportunities" and benefits for farmers and that "awareness" was key to progress in life.

Addressing the nation through his monthly radio programme 'Mann Ki Baat', Modi touched on the varied issues including coronavirus pandemic and need to preserve cultural heritage.

Even as hundreds of farmers continue protest against the Centre's farm laws which have been described "anti-farmer", Prime Minister stressed that these farm laws had broken the shackles of various farmers and begun to lessen their problems.

Giving example of one farmer Jitendra, he said the farmer was not getting full-payment of his produce sold and he made use of new farm laws to receive payment with the intervention of District Magistrate who, according to new farm laws, is mandated to solve payment problem within one month.

"Don't be carried away by rumours, be aware", Modi said. Similarly, Modi gave example of a Haryana farmer Virendra Yadav who he said sold his "parrot" to paper mill to earn Rs 1.50 crore in two years. "Jagruti hi Ivaantata hain", he said seeking people to be fully aware about developments around them.

The PM said while coronavirus vaccine is still on its way, "any carelessness could be fatal" during the pandemic.

CoviShield volunteer seeks ₹5 cr for ill effects

Drugs Controller General of India initiates probe into complaint

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Drugs Controller General of India (DCGI) has initiated probe into the complaint by a Chennai-based volunteers about alleged adverse complications reported in a CoviShield vaccine trial. While the volunteer has demanded Rs 5 crore compensation for causing medical complications, the Serum Institute of India (SII) has also served a legal notice seeking damages of ₹100 crore from him, calling his complaint "malicious".

According to reports, the 40-year-old Chennai-based business consultant, who was a volunteer for the third phase of the vaccine trial conducted by Pune-based Serum Institute of India (SII), has sought Rs 5 crore compensation for alleged suffering serious neurological and psychological symptoms after taking the dose.

He was administered the shot at Chennai's Sri Ramachandra Institute of Higher Education and Research (SRIHER), one of the trial sites on October 1.

Now on his behalf, a law firm has sent a legal notice to

Director General, ICMR, Drugs Controller General of India, DCGI, CEO, AstraZeneca UK, Professor Andrew Pollard, Chief Investigator, Oxford Vaccine Trial and Vice Chancellor of Sri Ramachandra Higher Education and Research.

The man has sought a compensation of Rs 5 crore and that the testing, manufacturing and distribution of the vaccine be stopped immediately. The SII has partnered with British-Swedish biopharmaceutical giant AstraZeneca for manufacturing the Oxford vaccine candidate for Covid-19.

On its part, issuing notice against the complainant, SII refuted the allegation, terming his claims "malicious and misconceived in nature".

The Pune-based pharma giant claimed that "there is absolutely no correlation with the vaccine trial and the medical condition of the volunteer".

"The allegations in the notice are malicious and misconceived. While the Serum Institute of India is sympathetic with the volunteer's medical condition, there is absolutely no correlation with the vaccine trial and the medical condition of the volunteer."

Hooda extends support to the farmers' cause, warns of bigger stir

WAR OF WORDS BETWEEN HARYANA AND PUNJAB CMS

'Will hold Punjab CM responsible if farmers' gatherings aggravate Covid'

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Aggravating the war of words between the two neighbouring chief ministers on farmers' protest, Haryana Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar on Sunday said he would hold his Punjab counterpart Amarinder Singh responsible if farmers' gathering on the State's borders with Delhi leads to an aggravation of the COVID-19 situation in the state.

Khattar made the assertion while pointing out that the Haryana government had only recently decided to limit the number of people attending social gatherings like marriages, religious and political functions to contain the recent surge in COVID-19 cases in Haryana. "In view of the rising coronavirus cases, we had decided to limit indoors gatherings to 100 and outdoor ones to 200 for all types of functions including family, political and religious ones," Khattar told reporters in Hisar on the sidelines of an event.

Referring to the Hisar event, he said, "Even today for this function here, we permitted only 200 people." With thousands of farmers from Punjab having reached Delhi borders forcing their way through Haryana on the call for protest against the three central farm laws, Khattar said he was surprised why the Punjab government encouraged the movement of such big gatherings amid the pandemic.

"Who will be responsible if this disease has an impact here?" he asked, adding: "I will hold the Punjab government responsible if the (Covid) situation (in Haryana) aggravates."

Hitting back at his Punjab counterpart Capt Amarinder Singh, Khattar said that the use of unconstitutional language does not suit any Chief Minister.

"One Chief Minister should not use such language about another Chief Minister. I do not need to react to such language and the public is already condemning the language used by the Punjab Chief Minister on social media. It is not in my values to behave like this," Khattar said.

The Chief Minister said that it is not true that he did not try to speak with the Punjab Chief Minister. The current farmers' movement is entirely sponsored by the Punjab Congress. Precautionary measures regarding the protest were taken by the Haryana Government so that COVID-19 pandemic does not take catastrophic proportions, he added.

The Union Home Minister has assured that he will hold talks with the protesters. As soon as the protesters will gather in Burari field, an appropriate solution will be found by negotiating with them, Khattar said.

The tussle between the Chief Ministers of Punjab and Haryana does not seem to end soon as they are engaged in a war of words over the ongoing farmers' protest against three agricultural laws. While Capt Amarinder has slammed Manohar Lal for stopping farmers from moving towards the national capital, terming it as "totally undemocratic and unconstitutional", the latter asked the Punjab Chief Minister to stop inciting innocent farmers. Khattar has alleged that the ongoing farmers' stir is politically sponsored and motivated.

Punjab CM trashes call records released by his Haryana counterpart

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Trashing the so-called call records released by his Haryana counterpart as complete fraud, Punjab Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh on Sunday said that flouting a page of his own office register cannot condemn ML Khattar's lies, and if he really wanted to connect, he could easily have used official channels or called up on the mobile phone.

Dismissing it as a pathetic attempt by Khattar to prove his claims, Capt Amarinder said that by releasing the call record copies, purporting to be of his office's attempt to get in touch with him, the Haryana Chief Minister had, in fact, exposed his deception even more sharply.

"If at all someone from his office called my residence, why were the calls made to an attendant? Why were official channels not used to get in touch with me?" asked the Punjab Chief Minister.

"Top officials of the Punjab Government, at Principal Secretary and DGP levels among others, have been in touch with each other on the farmers' issue for the past several days, yet none of these officials conveyed Khattar's desire to talk to me at any point in time," the Chief Minister pointed out, adding that his Haryana counterpart's attempt to seize high moral ground on the farmers' Dilli Chalo march was pathetic. "How many times in the past has Khattar used the attendant channel to get in touch with me," he asked, asking the Haryana chief minister to stop lying.

In any case, said Capt Amarinder, "I have an attendant to receive calls at my residence only from 9 am to 5 pm, as I don't believe in ill-treating my staff members. Khattar could simply have picked up the phone and called me on my mobile phone."

Capt Amarinder said that the fact of the matter was that the Haryana Chief Minister was out to suppress the farmers and had no serious intent of discussing their protests with him. "If I can talk to a whole lot of central leaders, right from the Prime Minister, on the issue of the farmers' protest, why would I try to wriggle out of talking to Khattar on the same?" he quipped, assailing his counterpart in the neighbouring state for politicizing the genuine demands of the farmers and their very real on-ground fight for survival. The Chief Minister also lashed out at Khattar over his remarks that "Amarinder would be responsible if COVID-19 spreads now due to the farmers' protest."

Punjab, I-DAIR signs MoU for development of digital technologies in health sector

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Ushering in a new era in terms of responsible and inclusive deployment of digital technologies for health, Punjab Government on Sunday inked a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with International Digital Health and Artificial Intelligence Research Collaborative (I-DAIR) for development of digital technologies in the state's health sector.

While signing the MoU on behalf of Punjab Government, the state's Additional Chief Secretary (Governance Reforms) Anirudh Tewari stated that the COVID-19 pandemic reminds us of the importance of public health for the personal, social, and economic wellbeing of citizens.

Data and Artificial Intelligence (AI) can play an important role in combating infectious diseases and the forgotten pandemic of non-communicable diseases, he said.

Meanwhile, the state Principal Secretary (Health and Family Welfare) Hussan Lal informed that the Punjab Government and I-DAIR will be laying the groundwork for key projects in the coming months that will include data interoperability, real time epidemiology and dashboard, benchmarking of digital health solutions and ways to enhance synergy across communities of practice which will supplement and build on the ongoing digital health work of the State Government.

Congratulating the team for this unique initiative, the state Chief Secretary Vini Mahajan said: "We are proud that Punjab has been chosen as the first government partner of I-DAIR in developing models of people-centric digital infrastructures for health."

Taking part in the deliberations, I-DAIR CEO Ambassador Amandeep Singh Gill pointed out that this collaborative endeavour would provide digital opportunity to nearly 30 million Punjabis to reinvent and reinvigorate the delivery of health services in the world. "The I-DAIR team looks forward to developing this strategic partnership over the coming years to ensure the best medical and healthcare facilities to the citizens," he said.

Haryana CM inaugurates International Synthetic Track

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Haryana Chief Minister Manohar Lal on Sunday said that the synthetic track constructed at a cost of Rs 4.85 crore at Girti Centre in Chaudhary Charan Singh Haryana Agricultural University, Hisar, will prove to be a milestone for sportspersons. After practicing from here, the sports persons will bring laurels to the state and country at the national and international level, said Manohar Lal while addressing a gathering at the inauguration of the international synthetic track. The Chief Minister also inaugurated the International Scientists' Hostel in the University. The Chief Minister said that the 'Khelo India' programme is being run for the sports persons up to the age of 19 years, with very positive results. With this, the sports persons are able to make their mark at the national and international level by practicing in their teens, he added.

He said that Haryana will host the Khelo India Games-2021 and its main centre will be Panchkula. In this game, 12,000 to 15,000 sports persons from all over the country will participate and 20 types of events will be organized during the Games.

The competitions are usually held in November or December under Khelo India, but this time it was not possible due to COVID-19 pandemic. Therefore, Haryana will host these games in the coming year, he said.

Manohar Lal called upon the sports persons to start preparing for it so that they can perform well in these sports.

He expressed hope that along with hosting these games, the emphasis will be on winning as well.

On this occasion, the 100 meters race was organized for girls and 400 meters for boys.

Apart from this, the Chief Minister, the Vice-Chancellor, and other officers also raced on the track.

Reservation a necessity, says Haryana CM

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Haryana Chief Minister Manohar Lal Khattar on Sunday said that reservation is a necessity at present.

"After getting the required support, when society moves forward, reservation will probably not be needed," Khattar said while addressing the people during a rally organized at Hisar.

Vidhan Sabha Deputy Speaker Ranbir Singh Gangwa had organized the rally to felicitate the Chief Minister for providing eight percent reservation to Backward Classes-A.

The Chief Minister said that when the matter of giving reservation to Backward Class-A in Panchayati Raj was brought to his notice, he felt that this demand was justified and fulfilled it.

He said that the State Government will help all who are in need. If a child who wants to study abroad, wants to become a doctor, engineer or do research, then parents will not have to give guarantee for the loan.

The government will give the guarantee, he added. It is the priority of the State Government to ensure the overall development of the most underprivileged persons of the society by delivering the benefits of government schemes to them first, he said.

Manohar Lal said that there was a time when government jobs were given to people who had money but now recruitments are being made 'Bina Parchi, Bina Kharchi'. Middlemen are excluded from the system now. Also, Antyodaya, Saral Kendra, e-Duk Kendra, and Atal Seva Kendra have been set up everywhere to deliver the benefits of government schemes to the general public. The amount of the schemes is sent directly to the eligible beneficiaries in their accounts, he said.

The Chief Minister further said that despite all this, he is still not satisfied. The system to identify eligible and ineligible still needs further improvement and for this Parivar Pechan Patra are being issued.

52 percent of its registration work has been completed. The Parivar Pechan Patra will carry the details of the family which will be used to identify the person and family who are still deprived of the benefits of the government schemes, Manohar Lal said.

Describing the backward society as craftsman and the working class, the Chief Minister said that this society is the foundation of our economy. At the time of Independence, the backward class society, which did the work of textile, jewellery, utensils and crafts, had a 24 percent share in our economy, but the skills of this class have not been able to develop as per the modern era, he said.

trees. Alongside each tree are eight-foot high panels that carry a picture of the tree, along with a description of its botanical features as well as the relationship between the tree and the historical and religious background of the shrine.

MONIKA MALIK ■ CHANDIGARH

Protesting on roads of Delhi — more than 200 kilometers away from their homes during harsh winter conditions, Punjab's farmers are not alone in their fight against the powers that be. Not just the 'support', but also assistance — in cash, kind, or gestures — is flowing in from all sides for the farmers gushing into the national capital since Thursday (November 26).

As the state farmers — who have been feeding the nation by toiling hard in open fields — have decided to hold their fort at the national capital, people from all quarters are making an effort to do their bit.

From the villagers or rural folks to the Non-resident Indians (NRIs), from medics to mechanics, dhaba owners to locals — massive support is being extended by almost everyone to the farmers in their struggle against the Centre's three farm legislations.

What is more, the people who are coming forward for help are not only from Punjab, but also from Haryana and Delhi.

Renowned for his lip-smacking traditional cuisines, Amrik Sukhdev Dhaba in Haryana's Murthal threw open its gates to the protesting farmers moving towards the national capital as a part of their 'Delhi Chalo' agitation since Thursday, offering free meals.

Doctor-turned-politician Dr Dharamvir Gandhi, who has been strongly supporting the farmers' agitation, stationed at Punjab-Haryana interstate borders along with his team on Thursday to provide medical assistance, if needed, to the protesting farmers.

Besides, some doctors from Haryana have also started a medical camp for farmers at the Kundli border, and in fact, distributed medicines, worth Rs 15,000, for free. Notably, the farmers were attacked with tear gas shells and batons by Gurjant Dhanu and Jagjit Dhanu, offering "free tractor repair" to all the "Kisan veer" (farmer brothers), along with the mobile number.

"Yes, we have offered our services to the farmers and asked the people to spread our message to the maximum people. We, a group of three-four mechanics, had left for Delhi

With PM justifying farm laws in Mann ki Baat, talks with farmers destined to be futile: Punjab Cong chief

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH

Punjab Congress president Sunil Jakhar on Sunday said that the cold shoulder given by the Prime Minister Narendra Modi to farmers' concerns during his 'Mann Ki Baat' speaks volumes of insensitivity and apathy of BJP towards the issue of farmers and reflects its arrogance.

"The Prime Minister's attitude has made it clear that he neither cares for the farmers nor is sincere in resolving the farmers' concerns through negotiations nor have any respect for their sentiments," said Jakhar.

He said: "By justifying the anti-farmer laws prior to the meeting, slated to be held on December 3, with farmers, the Prime Minister has made his Government's intentions crystal clear."

Also assailing the Prime Minister for saying that these laws have benefited the farmers and these laws have "sent framed in consultation with all the stakeholders, Punjab Congress chief said that in reality, these laws have been framed in consultation with corporates only to the detriment of the farming community.

"The Prime Minister must tell the nation if the maize farmer, whom he referred to in today's program, has received the minimum support price (MSP) for his maize crop? If the agriculture bills are really pro-farmers, the BJP government must explain why payment of Rs 12,000 crore to the sugarcane cultivators is still pending and not paid within three days as stipulated in the new laws," he asked.

Jakhar said that despite the fact that demonetization had a devastating effect on Indian economy, the BJP leadership was still hailing it. "As a matter of fact, these farm bills are worse than demonetization and would have far more severe repercussions in the coming days," said Jakhar adding that the Congress party is seeking the rollback of these black laws otherwise the entire economy of the country would be ruined.

Support pouring in from all sides for farmers; clear 'no' to political support where we repaired lot many tractors, and other vehicles. We are still here," said Gurjant, while speaking with The Pioneer over the phone from Delhi.

Besides them, the arhtiyas (commission agents) have also extended their support by providing the financial assistance besides the groceries.

The arhtiyas body in Machhiwara had collected a sum of Rs one lakh for the farmers.

Punjab are also collecting money to further the cause of farmers, to send more ration and other necessities to the protestors in Delhi.

Not staying behind, the NRIs are also coming out in moral and monetary support of the protesting farmers in Delhi.

Raja Dhalwal of Canada's World Financial Group and the executive team has donated around 50,000 Canadian dollars (Rs 25 lakh) for providing langar to the farmers. The money has been given to the Khalsa Aid.

"I stood by the farmers and would also raise my voice for economic, community and political support," said Dhalwal, in a video message. Besides, Canadian Defence Minister Harjit Sajjan, NDP leader in Canada Jagmeet Singh, and UK MP Tanmanjeet Singh, Dhesi have also expressed their open support to the farmers in the social media.

"Our morcha is getting full support by the people of Delhi and Haryana. Like people from real industry, common man, shopkeepers, big hospitals, hotels, petrol pumps, etc are providing all the necessary facilities like water to the farmers for bathing and washing clothes. Then lavatory arrangements have also been made for women accompanying us," said Bhartiya Kisan Union, Dakonda, state president Buta Singh Burjill.

He said that in the same way, people are also coming with vegetables, fruits, milk, ration, warm blankets and mattresses.

Burjill said that the farmers are ready to negotiate with the Central Government but with any condition, and we will not remove our morcha from Tikri border.

FARMERS SAY "NO" TO POLITICAL SUPPORT

Declaring to fight their own battle, Punjab's farmers have categorically said "no" to all political parties and its leaders. So much so, they have literally chased several leaders away who have come to meet or offer help to the farmers protesting in Delhi.

"We've decided that we won't allow any political party leader to speak on our stage, be it Congress, BJP, AAP (Aam Aadmi Party) or other parties. Our Committee will allow other organizations, who are strongly protesting, to speak if they follow our rules," said BKU Krantikari (Punjab) president Surjeet Singh Phul.

"The government is busy blaming us and it is shameful that the government is blaming their handworking naive farmers," said BKU Rajewal president Balbir Singh Rajewal when asked about some leaders dubbing farmers agitation as a "politically-motivated".

Notably, the farmers had strongly protested and shouted slogans against Congress MP from Ludhiana Raveesh Singh Bittu, Aam Aadmi Party's Punjab unit president Bhagwant Mann, Shiromani Akali Dal's MLA Gurbart Singh Wadala, among others when they have approached the farmers to show their support and hold talks.

"Where were they when we were struggling on roads, and the police was lashing us with tear gas and water cannons. Now seeing the success of our protest, they have come to us," said a farmer at Singhu border at Delhi.

In BJP-RSS vision of India, Adivasis and Dalits should not have access to education: Rahul

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Sunday attacked the Government over a media report which claimed that scholarship for 60 lakh SC school students was stuck after Central funding was ended and alleged that in the "BJP-RSS vision of India, Adivasis and Dalits should not have access to education".

Along with his tweet attacking the government, Gandhi tagged the media report which said a key central scholarship scheme to help over 60 lakh Scheduled Caste students of classes 11 and 12 to complete their schooling has nearly shut down across more than 14 states after the Centre ended funding to states under a 2017 formula.

"In BJP/RSS vision of India, Adivasis and Dalits should not have access to education," Gandhi alleged.

"Stopping scholarships for SC-ST students is their way of ends justifying their means," the former Congress chief said in the tweet.

Not in favour of having cells in party on caste basis: Gadkari

PTI ■ NAGPUR

Union Minister Nitin Gadkari on Sunday said he was not in favour of having cells in a political party on the basis of castes, religions or communities, and added that talent was more important than these factors.

He was referring to the cells formed within political parties to represent different castes or communities, like the minority community and Scheduled Caste (SC).

The minister was addressing a rally for Sandip Joshi, BJP's graduates' constituency candidate from East Vidarbha.

"I have a clear opinion that a man is not great by his caste, but by his talent. In BJP also we have different cells. When I was the party president, I had expe-

"I am of the opinion that no cell should be formed on the basis of caste and religion, as there is no use of such units. The representatives of such cells ask how many tickets people from their caste have got from the party," he said.

"I always say that our party, our workers are our family. We have never done politics on the basis of caste and community. We stand behind those party workers who work hard, considering them as the members of the family." This is the specialty of the BJP," the Minister of Road Transport and Highways said.

Gadkari said that while carrying out any social work or helping the needy, he never considered someone's caste or religion.

"We have never done politics of caste and community. Our party has never done it and will never do it. Caste is only in the minds of the leaders, caste is not in the mind of the public or party workers," he said.

NIA denies reports that it recovered straw and sipper from Stan Swamy

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The NIA on Sunday denied reports that it recovered straw and sipper from Elgar Parishad case accused Stan Swamy and sought 20 days time from the court to respond to his plea to allow him a straw and sipper in Talaja Central Jail.

These are false, incorrect and mischievous reports as the agency neither recovered straw and sipper from the accused nor sought 20 days time to file reply in the said application before the court, the NIA said.

Swamy was arrested by NIA on October 8 for his involvement in the activities of CPI (Maoist) and for furtherance of the agenda of the banned terrorist organisation as one of the conspirators in Bhima Koregaon Elgar Parishad case.

The case relates to widespread violence, arson and stone-pelting resulting in loss of lives and property near Bhima Koregaon, as a result of the provocative speeches during organisation of Elgar Parishad programme at Nashik, Maharashtra, Pune on December 31, 2017.

After arresting accused Swamy, the NIA had produced him before the Special Court in Mumbai along with chargesheet on October 9 and never took his police custody, the agency said.

"All the necessary legal formalities such as his medical examination etc. were duly observed. Since then, accused Stan Swamy has been in judicial custody at Talaja Central Jail. Nearly after a month, i.e. on 6/11/2020, accused Stan Swamy filed an application in the NIA Court at Mumbai for getting back his straw and sipper, (which he falsely claimed to have been kept by NIA)," it said.

The court asked the agency to file its reply on next date, which was scheduled on November 26.

The NIA filed its reply in the court on the scheduled date stating therein that it had conducted his personal search in presence of independent witnesses and no such straw and sipper were recovered.

The court rejected Swamy's application but issued direction to the jail authorities to provide straw and sipper to Swamy.

As the accused was in judicial custody, the matter was between him and the jail authorities which come under the Maharashtra State Administration, the NIA said in a statement.

NMC issues do's and don'ts to ensure safety of staff, students from Covid-19 infection

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Days after the Union Health Minister advised the States and Union Territories to reopen medical colleges, the National Medical Commission (NMC) has issued guidelines to the education institutions enlisting do's and don'ts to ensure safety of the staff and students from Covid-19 infection.

It has also asked the colleges administration to take extra care of the anxiety, mental health and psychological issues of students developed during the lockdown period and fear of infection after the opening of the campuses.

The colleges have also been asked to set up helplines for mental health, psychological concerns and well-being of students in their campus which "need to be regularly monitored by Counsellors and other identified faculty."

As directed by the NMC, the NIA has advised all medical colleges to re-open on or before December 1, 2020 to maintain uniformity in academic sessions.

Sanitisation of premises, thermal screening, ensuring physical use of face mask, face cover/mask wearing, respiratory hygiene and hand-hygiene etc. are some of the day-to-day basic Covid-19 preventive measures that the colleges/Universities have to follow regularly, as per guidelines.

The universities/colleges have been advised to re-open in phase-wise manner with such activities where they can easily adhere to social distancing, use of face mask and other protective measures. This may include administrative offices, research laboratories and libraries etc.

Institutions should have a plan ready for students who cannot join the programme due to travel restrictions. Online teaching-learning arrangements should also be made for them, it said.

Cultural activities, meeting etc. may be avoided. However, such extra-curricular and sports activities may be allowed where physical distancing is feasible and is in accordance with the Union Home Ministry, it said.

All Students must bring all a RT-PCR report that is negative at the time of re-joining the hostels and they must be re-called in batches. "However, the sharing of rooms may not be allowed in hostels. Symptomatic students should not be permitted to stay in the hostels under any circumstances," said the guidelines.

Also, noting that residential students may be coming from different locations, the guidelines permit that they shall remain in quarantine and self-monitor their health for a period of 14 days before being allowed to attend classes or as per the policy opted by the State government for quarantine.

"We are also envisaging a test report or the university/college plan to test them on arrival."

The ties between India and Sweden are on an upswing in the last few years. In April 2018, Prime Minister Narendra Modi visited Stockholm during which both sides agreed to further deepen innovation partnership for a sustainable future.

It was a visit to Sweden by an Indian prime minister after nearly three decades.

Asked about Sweden's Global trade and investment, Molin said this year the programme comprised several elements "which strengthen the synergies our two countries share as partners with complementarity."

"We are also envisaging a virtual interaction between Swedish Trade Minister Anna Hallberg and the 200 plus Swedish companies in India, where the minister would give her outlook on Global trade and investment scenarios, and more specifically trends for Sweden and Swedish industry in the ongoing pandemic," he said.

Sweden acknowledges India's role as 'pharmacy of world'

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Acknowledging India's role as the "pharmacy to the world," leading European nation Sweden said it is focusing on expanding bilateral cooperation in the areas of health and life sciences in view of the coronavirus pandemic.

Swedish Ambassador Klas Molin also said Sweden and India have been working "firmly and unequivocally" in the fight against terrorism even as he noted the growing Indian role in the Indo-Pacific region.

On the long-pending free-trade agreement between India and the European Union, the envoy said there is still some work to be done in calibrating expectations and scope on both sides, noting that it will be mutually beneficial for both sides.

Molin told PTI that overall bilateral ties between India and Sweden have been excellent and that both sides are looking at broader cooperation in eight key areas including innovation, trade and investment, health and defence.

"The pandemic has focused our thinking, and our cooperation in health and in life sciences has increased.

"India is the pharmacy to the world and some of our companies, some already established here, some venturing here now, are looking for new matchups," the ambassador said. "AstraZeneca is a well-known example, currently in phase three trials for a COVID-vaccine, but also researching other vaccines in India in other areas," he said.

India has supplied medicines and other medical assistance to over 150 countries in the last few months to help them deal with the coronavirus pandemic at a time when the country itself was reeling under its impact.

India's medical assistance has drawn recognition from several countries as well as multilateral fora.

Molin told PTI that he waits for a COVID-19 vaccine. British-Swedish pharmaceutical company AstraZeneca Plc and the University of Oxford are holding trials of a vaccine candidate.

"In India, AstraZeneca is partnering with the Serum Institute of India (SII) for the potential vaccine.

To a question on security issues, Molin said that India and Sweden stand together firmly and unequivocally in the fight against terrorism.

"We firmly believe that an FTA would be mutually very beneficial.

There is still some work to be done in calibrating expectations and scope on both sides.

"This year's EU-India Summit opened on a high-level economic dialogue. Hopefully, this will pave the way for resumption of negotiations," he said.

The FTA talks have been stalled since May 2013, when both sides failed to bridge substantial gaps on crucial issues, including data security status for the IT sector.

Launched in June 2007, negotiations for the proposed agreement have witnessed many hurdles.

Asked how the overall ties progressed after the visit of Swedish King Carl XVI Gustaf and Queen Silvia to India last year, the ambassador said the relations have been "excellent" and it was reflected in the visit.

"The pandemic has meant that some of the contacts have been focused on new areas as we try to help each other cope with this unprecedented challenge.

And Sweden are on an upswing in the last few years. In April 2018, Prime Minister Narendra Modi visited Stockholm during which both sides agreed to further deepen innovation partnership for a sustainable future.

It was a visit to Sweden by an Indian prime minister after nearly three decades.

Asked about Sweden's Global trade and investment, Molin said this year the programme comprised several elements "which strengthen the synergies our two countries share as partners with complementarity."

"We are also envisaging a virtual interaction between Swedish Trade Minister Anna Hallberg and the 200 plus Swedish companies in India, where the minister would give her outlook on Global trade and investment scenarios, and more specifically trends for Sweden and Swedish industry in the ongoing pandemic," he said.

Environment-friendly 'kulhad' to replace plastic tea cups at railway stations

PTI ■ JAIPUR

Tea will be sold in environment-friendly 'kulhads' (earthen cups) in place of plastic cups at all railway stations in the country. Railway minister Piyush Goyal said speaking at an event organised at the Digawara railway station in Rajasthan's Alwar district, the minister said the initiative will be the contribution of the Railways towards a plastic-free India.

"Tea is given in 'Kulhads' at nearly 400 railway stations in the country today, and in future, it is our planning that tea will be sold only in 'Kulhads' at all the railway stations in the country.

This will be the contribution of the Railways towards a plastic-free India," he said.

The minister said before addressing this gathering, he was having tea in a 'Kulhad' and the taste was really different.

'Kulhad' saves the environment and lakhs of people get employment from it, he said.

The minister was speaking at an event to mark the inauguration of the newly electrified Dighawara-Bandikui section under north-western Railways.

The minister said before the Narendra Modi government came to power in 2014, the railway sector was ignored in Rajasthan as electrification had not been taken up in the last 30 years after the electrification of Delhi-Mumbai route.

He said the investment by Railways and infrastructure development projects in Rajasthan have increased multiple times between 2014-2020 as compared to that between 2009-2014.

Goyal said 65 underpasses were constructed from 2009-14 while 378 underpasses have been constructed from 2014- September 2020.

He said only four over-bridges were constructed in five years till 2014 whereas 30 such bridges have been constructed from 2014 to September 2020.

While Bhumi Adhikar Andolan have urged the judiciary to actively come forward and make sure no coercive action is taken against any protesting farmer and put an end to the rabid allegations against farmer organizations and their leaders by paid media channels and other political leaders.

Meanwhile, President, BKU Krantikari (Punjab) Surjinder Singh said they want to allow any political parties including Congress and AAP to share their stage during the ongoing protest.

The minister said electrification of railway lines across the country will save the environment as engines will run on electricity produced in the country, saving fuel, money and time.

Also, the speed of trains will also be increased, he said.

"This will also help farmers who will be able to take their crops to any part of the country (through rail freight transport) in less time," he added.

Goyal said the prime minister is very concerned about the environment and therefore emphasis is being given on electrification.

The minister flagged off the first train on the newly electrified 34 km-long Dighawara-Bandikui section.

He said after the entire line from Rewari to Ajmer has now been electrified with the electrification of this stretch.

Dausa MP Jaskar Meena, GM-NWR Anand Prakash and other public representatives and railway officials were present in the function.

Polls no solution to Kashmir problem, hold dialogue with Pak: Mehbooba

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ JAMMU

Struggling to revive fortunes of her own party in the electoral politics of Jammu & Kashmir, Peoples Democratic Party (PDP) Chief Mehbooba Mufti Sunday claimed elections would not be the solution to the "Kashmir problem".

She also batted for holding a dialogue with the people of Jammu & Kashmir and Pakistan to resolve the issue.

Angry PDP Chief also accused the Bharatiya Janta Party (BJP) government of muzzling dissent and burying an ecosystem in which there is no place for democracy.

Addressing a press conference at her residence in Srinagar, a day after more than 50 percent voters participated in the first phase of the DDC polls in Jammu and Kashmir, PDP Chief asked a question, "If Abrogation of Article 370 has resolved all the issues then why 9 lakh troops are still stationed in Kashmir and why they have not been sent to the borders?"

Referring to the heavy turnout of voters, the former Chief Minister said, "In the past, the polling percentage has been higher than this (DDC polls) but it is no solution to the Kashmir problem. Kashmir problem is still there as long as there are nine lakh soldiers in our state. She asked, "Which state of India has so many soldiers that too in civilian areas".

She added, "In an election, how many people participate and how many don't have nothing to do with the Kashmir issue. Kashmir issue is going to be there as long as there is no resolution through a dialogue with the people of Jammu and Kashmir and with Pakistan."

Cornering the Bharatiya Janta Party led government at the Centre PDP Chief said they had "made a mockery of democracy".

"Black laws prevail in the country and the weapon which they use is UAPA. Muslims are being called Pakistani. Sardars are called Khalistani. Activists are called Urban Naxals. Kashmiris are called tukde-tukde gang. Women who protest are called anti-national. If everyone is a Khalistani, Pakistani and anti-national then who is Hindustani in this country? Only Bharatiya Janta Party workers?" she said.

Referring to the 25000 crore Roshni scam, Mehbooba Mufti said, "The Jammu and Kashmir government had cancelled all land transfers that took place under the Roshni Act."

"The Roshni scheme was a law passed during the time of the National conference and implemented during the time of (Ghulam Nabi) Azad sahab. It was a law, it was made by our assembly. If anyone legalised their land in that law, how is it a scam? If they think rich people have taken a lot of land, go after that. Why are they going after poor people who have 3 marla, 5 marla land?" she noted.

Mufti also accused the BJP government of silencing her voice. I am being told "directly and indirectly" not to talk about Article 370.

"Why do they get rattled by what I say when their own leaders talk about Article 370.

They want to go after me because I raise my voice. They want to get to me. They want to ban my party," she said.

She said, "After we decided to participate in the DDC election, the degree of oppression has increased in Jammu & Kashmir. Candidates of PDP are confined and are not allowed to go out for campaigning. How can candidates contest if they are not allowed to organise their campaign meetings?"

UP registers 1st case under new anti-conversion law in Bareilly

Lucknow: Uttar Pradesh has registered its first case under the new anti-conversion law in Bareilly district based on a complaint from the father of a young woman.

The case was registered at the Devarianvay police station in Bareilly district on Saturday, officials said.

In a statement issued here on Sunday, Additional Chief Secretary (Home) Awanish Awasthi said a case was registered by Tikaram, a resident of Sharif Nagar village under Devarianvay police station (in Bareilly), who accused a man — Uvaish Ahmed — of the same village of trying to convert his daughter through "allurement" (bahla-phus-laakar).

The case was registered against Uvaish Ahmed under sections of the Indian Penal Code and the new anti-conversion law.

Senior Superintendent of Police Rohit Singh Sawan said four police teams have been formed to arrest the accused.

According to the complaint, Tikaram's daughter and Ahmed studied together in Class 12.

Three years ago, the accused started exerting pressure on her to undergo religious conversion and perform 'nikaah' (marriage). But when the woman opposed, he threatened to kidnap her, Tikaram alleged.

The complainant's daughter married someone else in June this year. However, Ahmed continued to harass her family members, he said.

According to the complaint, Ahmed went to Tikaram's house on Saturday and asked him to bring his daughter back from her in-laws.

Threatening her family, the accused told Tikaram that the woman will have to undergo religious conversion and marry him, according to the complaint.

"Tikaram subsequently approached the police, and a case was registered against the accused."

Deputy Inspector General of Police, Bareilly range, Rajesh Kumar Pandey told reporters that the case was being investigated.

Uttar Pradesh Governor Anandiben Patel on Saturday gave assent to an ordinance against forcible or fraudulent religious conversions that provides for imprisonment up to 10 years and a maximum fine of Rs 50,000 under different categories.

The promulgation of the Uttar Pradesh Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Ordinance, 2020, came four days after the Yogi Adityanath government approved the ordinance, legislation which also curbs religious conversions only for the sake of marriage.

Under the law which deals with different categories of offences, a marriage will be declared "null and void" if conversion of a woman is solely for that purpose, and those wishing to change their religion after marriage need to apply to the district magistrate.

The ordinance mainly envisages that no person shall convert, either directly or indirectly from one religion to another by use or practice of misrepresentation, force, undue influence, coercion, allurement or by any fraudulent means or by marriage nor shall any person abet, connive or conspire such conversion.

The onus to prove that the conversion has not been done forcibly will lie on the person accused of the act and the convert, it said. PTI

8 TMC leaders including Mins, MPs to join BJP soon: Soumitra

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

Close on the heels of senior TMC leader and Bengal Minister Suwendu Adhikari resigning his post sparking speculations of his joining the BJP the saffron outfit on Sunday claimed that at least eight Trinamool Congress Ministers were preparing to join it.

BJP MP from Bankura Soumitra Khan said that eight TMC leaders including ministers and MPs were in touch with the BJP and would soon join the party. Hours after State BJP president Dilip Ghosh said December was going to be a disheartening month for the TMC as the Bengal ruling outfit would find people leaving a sinking boat.

Khan was more direct in taking the names of senior TMC leaders even as he said ministers "Subroto Mukherjee, Rabindra Ghosh and Gautam Deb will leave the TMC soon." Besides he also named senior leader and MP Saugato Roy among the list of possible deserters. "I am not a party MP. Deb and Roy said they had no intentions of quitting the Trinamool Congress, sources said that the leadership was keeping close watch on them and many others. "We respect our ideology of tri-colour and so will never accept a communal ideology," Deb said.

Other TMC MLAs who have openly rebelled against the party and have dropped hints of quitting it are Singur legislator and veteran farm leader. Rabindranath Bhattacharya, Sitai MLA Jagdish Basunia, Barrackpore and Diamond Harbour MLAs Sibhadra Dutta and DipakHadar.

"Wait till December there are many TMC leaders who are in touch with us and would soon be with us... We will take all of them provided they have a clean record and are willing to work for our ideology and the people," Ghosh said.

Meanwhile, the TMC tried to put a brave face on Sunday with party MP and Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee's nephew Abhishek Banerjee taking powerful East Midnapore satrap Suwendu Adhikari head on saying "those who talk of not taking the lift but breaking the stair cases and taken the stair case and not taken a lift like many others to rise up in his political career. He was apparently indicating Banerjee who has replaced him as the Trinamool youth wing chief."

Adhikari had a few days ago said that he had been with the people and taken the stair case and not taken a lift like many others to rise up in his political career. He was apparently indicating Banerjee who has replaced him as the Trinamool youth wing chief."

"Wait till December there are many TMC leaders who are in touch with us and would soon be with us... We will take all of them provided they have a clean record and are willing to work for our ideology and the people," Ghosh said.

Meanwhile, the TMC tried

Narendra Mod, Amit Shah, Kulul Roy again tried to put the BJP's allegations against my name and I gave them a legal reply in the High Court... they know that if they do that again I will drag them to the court."

Baptism by fire

As Uddhav Thackeray completes a year in office, the reluctant politician seems to have mastered some rules of the game

Nobody had any expectations of Uddhav Thackeray. Not even as a descendant of Shiv Sena supremo Bal Thackeray, who always had a wish of one of his own becoming the Chief Minister. But Balasaheb had probably not bargained for the circumstances under which Uddhav became one. Or imagined him to stand out with quietude and resolve in a hostile environment of competitive politics. For years after tamely acquiescing to his bigger partner, the BJP, the Shiv Sena stood up to it following its improved performance in the Assembly elections last November and demanded chief ministership on that basis. The BJP the single largest party, thought it could rustle up the numbers to form its own Government and was surprised when Uddhav snapped ties with it, engineered a coalition with the opposition Nationalist Congress Party (NCP)-Congress combine and negotiated the chief ministership. A manoeuvre that was so not expected from a man who was hardly thought capable of the aggression of Thackeray senior. But one year down the line, he is on a steady course, walking with ideologically divergent partners, not overstepping the ego of the Maratha strongman and NCP chief Sharad Pawar, who is believed to have been the architect of the alliance based on a shared pursuit of power. Apart from a few creases here and there, Uddhav hasn't been an embarrassment for the Congress despite his avowed commitment to Hindutva causes and that party's to its minority plank. The BJP, not quite accustomed to the Sena's revolt yet, has expectedly been placing hurdles along the way of the coalition government, be it through gubernatorial interference, by thrusting Central probes or generally shaming Uddhav's lack of administrative experience. As for the last, Uddhav had no time to settle in as the State recorded its first COVID-19 case on March 9, posing a severe challenge to the healthcare system. And before he could get a grip on it, Maharashtra became the State with the highest number of cases across India. Then the exodus of migrant labourers caught him by surprise, a fact played up by the BJP as an example of his ineptitude and lack of foresight. Still, Uddhav did not lose his cool and went in for aggressive containment measures, testing and medical protocols as Asia's biggest slum, Dharavi, put him on trial. Today, Mumbai is doing better than Delhi in handling the pandemic despite infrastructural weaknesses. Its case load is going down, it is going for a graded reopening of sectors — unlike other States giving in to populist and commercial pressure — and is the first State in the country to have introduced international-style travel protocols to control the spiral of imported infection. The management of the Dharavi outbreak is a model example of how effective community engagement, awareness and deployment can tame the virus in resource-scarce and congested clusters. As the worst-hit State with a spiralling death count, Maharashtra seems to be finally getting there. And Uddhav, who may be borrowing lessons from the governance he'll get of the NCP-Congress, must be credited with having the will to deliver without drawing attention to himself. In fact, given his administrative inexperience, he has empowered efficient bureaucrats and shunted out the slackers, clearly emphasising that performance would be the only qualifier of assessment. The best part is he hasn't failed to call a spade a spade. He publicly admonished the police for indiscriminate use of force during the lockdown and in matters religious has taken an apolitical stand despite his Hindutva moorings. So when Maharashtra Governor B G Koshiyari prodded him on opening temples, wondering if he was delaying because of his "secular" partners, Uddhav shot back, asking if Hindutva meant simply opening religious places and as someone who had sworn on the Constitution, was he denying the secularism enshrined in it? Besides, he managed the festival season with reason. By confining the Ganesh Mahotsav to a largely indoor celebration, he avoided a super spreader event. In an editorial in Saama, he even questioned the utility of all shrines in a pandemic. At the same time, he calibrated his response to Muslims, considering the Sena's stand on the Babri masjid and the Ram temple. He used the Congress to urge the community not to congregate in mosques and stayed away from fanning the fire on the Tablighi Jamaat. In fact, Uddhav, in his own way is trying to posit his Hindutva as nationalism rather than the BJP kind of communalism so that he can justify his togetherness with the NCP-Congress. And given the Sena's history of rowdiness, he is trying to split his politics from bogeyism.

Uddhav's assets so far have been his straightforwardness and realism, which have held him in good stead. His respect for Pawar in keeping the coalition largely frictionless is the other reason for his stability. But he has to watch out against ambitious leaders who have already accused him of setting up a coterie to enable a smooth transition to his son Aaditya. And a jilted BJP with the means won't give up trying to break him and picking up dissenters. It almost had him on the lynching of sadhus in Palghar, who were mistaken by villagers for thieves and child lifters. Luckily for Uddhav, who was slow on the investigation, some BJP office-bearers were found to be among the lynch mob and spared him the criticism of running over another Hindu cause. Of course, the BJP baited him on the suicide of actor Sushant Singh Rajput, though the CBI ultimately ruled out a conspiracy. But going by the State Government's demolition drive at an actress' office or a journalist's arrest, Uddhav must stop falling prey to the BJP's design of reactive politics. He certainly could have handled these cases better despite the provocation. If he is to last a full term, he needs equanimity. He doesn't need to flex muscles.

Bubble trouble

The problems with the Pakistani cricket team in NZ highlight the challenges of sequestering sportsmen

While the Indian cricket team began its tour of Australia, not minus some controversy surrounding the fitness of Rohit Sharma, it had already spent a few weeks in quarantine without any issues. Not so for the Pakistani cricket team playing across the Tasman Sea. While every player carried a clean bill of health on leaving Pakistan, it is reported that seven cricketers have tested positive for the Coronavirus since they arrived. This throws into doubt Pakistan's COVID-19 testing regime and with the players being a bit loose and fast regarding the quarantine. The New Zealand cricket board issued the Pakistani team "a final warning" and if the latter is in contravention of the quarantine or if more players test positive, then it could be sent home without having played a single match.

This incident, rather a series of incidents, highlights the problems of athlete bubbles and indeed the "bubble" travel system anywhere. Even with vaccine development moving along at an unprecedented rate, it is still at least two years before a substantial number of people worldwide can be inoculated. With the delayed Summer Olympics still on track and several other major international sports tournaments, such as the European Football championships, also due to be played, it is vital that national authorities and sports federations work out the kinks as quickly as possible. And that includes player behaviour. Athletes are almost always extremely young men and women, so asking them to stay locked up for a period of up to two weeks requires immense self-determination that not all of them have. These are challenges that have to be met if we expect a completely normal sporting calendar for 2021 and if eventually fans are to return in full numbers to stadia. And on that last point, there were several Indian supporters during the first One-Day International between Australia and India. Despite the stadium only being at half capacity, Indian fans were clearly ignoring social distancing protocols, which looked Covidiotic and callous on television.

A DBT for manufacturers

The PLI scheme is result-oriented. The cash incentives will be paid only if the manufacturers make the goods. It is a better alternative

SUBHASH CHANDRA PANDEY

The Central Government has approved production-linked incentives (PLI) for manufacturing in 13 sectors. It essentially means that if an eligible manufacturer produces and sells/exports eligible goods worth ₹100 crore, the Government will give him ₹5 crore (assuming five per cent incentive) as a reward/incentive because such sale/export of locally-manufactured goods will create local jobs.

The PLI will be available for sale/export for the next five years in addition to the existing incentives. Now this is one of the concerns that remains for investors and would need to be addressed. To make the scheme a success, As the PLI benefit has been assured only for five years, the investor has to assess the financial viability of the project beyond the PLI period. Once a manufacturing unit has been set up with a lot of fixed investment, recovery may be difficult. So the five-year period has to be utilised to make life easy for all businesses and job creators. In other words, the "ease of doing business" has to improve substantially.

The Government expects that it may be called upon to pay about ₹2 lakh crore, which means a total sale/export of about ₹40 lakh crore (assuming five per cent PLI rate) during the next five years. This PLI will increase local manufacturing of eligible goods by an output equal to about 10 per cent of the current GDP.

Thus, the second concern is changing growth dynamics and the global demand scenario, especially in the post-pandemic world. To get free cash of ₹2 lakh crore from the Government, specified goods worth about ₹40 lakh crore would need to be produced in India and a matching demand would be needed in a world where the cut-throat competition is going to deepen.

The third concern is about how this PLI benefit will be used to boost the investor's actual post-tax income. In October, the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MEITY) approved PLI benefits (four per cent to six per cent) to 16 companies. The PLI is available for the sale of goods manufactured in India five years subsequent to the base year (FY 2019-20).

Now, whether the incentive of four per cent to six per cent of invoiced price for five years would be enough compensation to offset the cost disadvantage in India and has been a major point in favour of the new manufacturing units is 15 per cent corporation tax that was announced last year. For them, manufacturers of highly branded products like Apple iPhones, the PLI scheme and reduced corporate tax are major incentives.

Since such manufacturers face little competition for their products, they can set prices of their products on their own. The PLI benefit may or may not be fully passed on to the retail buyers in this particular case.

Most other manufacturers may face stiff price competition and may not be able to fully pass on the PLI benefit to their cost disadvantage. Their discerning, hard-bargaining buyers will demand price discounts on the basis of the PLI benefit.

The percentage of PLI benefit may vary across beneficiaries and depending on the competition, the post-tax actual benefit could vary from investor to investor. The PLI scheme, therefore, needs supplementation by sustained investor facilitation and improvement in ease of doing business.

Incentives like income tax and Central excise exemptions, VAT/GST reimbursements, interest and insurance subsidies, subsidies on plant/machinery and so on are typically provided for industries set up in industrially backward areas like North-eastern states.

At present, the total manufacturing output of all items (whether PLI eligible or not) in a year is about 16 per cent of the GDP. The services sector has a 55 to 60 per cent contribution in GDP and has been a major employer so far.

The PLI will be available to all new manufacturing units and also to existing manufacturing units for their extra production, additional over baseline output. For example, existing mobiles and electronics manufacturers are entitled to PLI benefit for whatever they produce over and above the 2019-20 level production in the next five years. The manufacturing units will have to apply, register and go through a vetting process and enter into proper agreement with the Government so as to ensure that only eligible manufacturers get the incentive for actual local manufacturing.

On April 1, a PLI scheme promising ₹40,951 crore incentive (four to six per cent of production value) was notified for manufacturers of mobile phones and other electronic components. Medical devices and bulk drugs (active pharmaceutical ingredients) were added to PLI eligibility in July and on November 11, 10 more manufacturing sub-sectors were added.

The PLI scheme aims to make India a manufacturing hub of global repute, reduce imports and generate employment. It covers both low-value and high-employment items like textiles and food as well as high-value and low-employment items like automobiles, mobiles, electronics, white goods, including high technology items like Advanced Chemical cell battery. Incentivising local manufacture of items like ACC battery, auto and electronics components will help India and technical textiles (₹10,683 crore); high-efficiency solar PV modules (₹4,500 crore); white goods like ACs and LEDs (₹6,238 crore) and specialty steel (₹6,322 crore).

For its move in October to approve grant of PLI benefit (four to six per cent) to 16 companies, MEITY received a very good response from mobile handset manufacturers.

The production of mobile phones surged from about ₹18,900 crore in 2014-15 to ₹170,000 crore in 2018-19. Samsung, Foxconn Hon Hai, Rising Star, Wistron and Pegatron have been granted PLI benefit only for manufacturing high-end phones (invoice value ₹15,000 and above).

Foxconn Hon Hai, Wistron and Pegatron are contract manufacturers for Apple iPhones. They expect to have a major export turnover for high-end phones. Some Indian mobile phone companies, including Lava, Bhagwati (Micromax), Padget Electronics, UTL Neolynx and Optiemus Electronics, have also been approved for PLI.

This scheme aims to make India a manufacturing hub of global repute, reduce imports and generate employment. It covers both low-value and high-employment items like textiles and food as well as high-value and low-employment items like automobiles, mobiles, electronics, white goods, including high technology items like Advanced Chemical cell battery. Incentivising local manufacture of items like ACC battery, auto and electronics components will help India become part of the global value chains. The automobile industry turnover already accounts for almost half of the total value of manufactured items.

The auto, electronics and pharma industries, which have substantial import dependence and also high export potential, are major beneficiaries of the scheme while textiles and processed food are major employment generators.

A pertinent question is why should the Government give financial assistance of ₹900 to a phone manufacturing company for every phone sold at ₹15,000 (assuming six per cent PLI)? After all, more than half of the value of a phone may comprise imported components. The answer to this question is local employment.

The exports, in any case, are tax-free. Under the WTO rules, a Government can refund all taxes collected from exports so that the local taxes are not exported to foreign buyers. So, whatever Customs excise duty and GST are paid on exported items, they are eventually refunded by the Government. Often, exporters face the problem of working capital if the refund is delayed.

There is a growing demand in the world for diversification in supply chains and India can become a major player. The promotion of the manufacturing sector means forward integration with global supply chains and backward linkages with the MSME sector.

The domestic electronics hardware manufacturing faces a lack of large-playing field vis-à-vis competing nations. It is assessed that it costs about 8.5 per cent to 11 per cent more to manufacture electronic items in India on account of lack of adequate infrastructure, domestic supply chain and logistics; high cost of finance; inadequate availability of quality power; limited design capabilities and focus on R and D by the industry; and inadequate skill development. Sunrise sectors need support in the initial stages.

Traditionally, we have tried to attract investors with investment subsidies like giving land at concessional rates and subsidising plant and machinery cost at a fixed percentage of say 15 per cent to 20 per cent of price. Thereafter, if the unit does not properly run, the subsidy goes waste. The PLI scheme is result-oriented. The cash incentive will be paid only if the manufacturers make the goods. It is a better alternative from the Government's viewpoint.

Memories of Diego

Sir — Football legend Diego Maradona visited our football-crazy Indian cities during his lifetime — Kolkata and Kannur. We cherish the day when Maradona came to our city, Kannur, eight years ago. He came, he saw and conquered the hearts of thousands.

This city, which has given to the country some of its best footballers, was decked up with huge welcome posters and hoardings. Soccer fans came from everywhere to catch a glimpse of the "god of football." I still remember how the area outside his hotel was jam-packed. As soon as they saw him waving from the balcony of his room, they were euphoric. There was a big cheer for him from the people, who were whistling, clapping, shouting, dancing and some even crying.

Later at Jawahar stadium, Maradona mesmerised the crowd — perhaps the biggest in the city so far — with his unique brand of stunts and tricks. There was a cake in the shape of the football stadium. He made sure that he didn't slice the ball because for him, they say, it was his life and soul. The

Farmers have the right to protest

The right to hold a protest is intrinsic to a democratic society. The blockade of major highways in order to prevent farmers from nearby States to enter Delhi constitutes a curtailment of this right. The denial of democratic space to farmers shows the Government is disinclined to adopting a consultative approach in dealing with their issues.

The crackdown on farmers with water cannons and tear gas shells was disturbing and inappropriate. The authorities did more harm than good by using strong-arm tactics against farmers and widened the trust deficit. Thankfully, the Government has now belatedly allowed the protesting farmers to gather in Delhi and even promised discussions. We hope that the Government will wisely defuse the situation instead of levelling baseless charges against parties in the opposition for "instigating" the farmers to protest. The Government should not turn its back on them but be empathetic to their community that provides food security to the nation.

The farmers' organisations are just in asking the Government to either repeal the new law, pushed through unilaterally without consulting them, or to give legal guarantees on the Minimum Support Price (MSP). The Government can't reject their demands using vague claims that the new law will open up the markets and benefit them.

The farmers are fully justified in opposing the new Acts, which have the potential to undercut the prices of their produce. It will pave the way for contract farming and even the loss of their agricultural fields. We urge the Central government to accede to the farmers' demand and rescind the anti-farmer laws.

BJP's desperation

Sir — A desperate BJP, seeking to gain a toe-hold in the Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corporation, has ruffled feathers in a big way in its local rank and file as "outsiders" have been appointed to oversee the December 1 election.

One immediate reaction to the paratrooping of the saffron party's leadership was the self-innovation bid by a grassroots worker in Musheerabad division in front of the OBC

Morcha National president Dr K Laxman's camp office. The unfortunate incident reflects the seething anger among the BJP workers against the unwell come moves made by the party leadership. The incident occurred hours before Congress leader and former Hyderabad Mayor Banda Karthika Reddy joined the BJP.

The appointment of BJP general secretary Bhupendra Yadav and four deputies from other States to oversee the GHMC polls, ignoring Union Minister of State for Home G Kishan Reddy, party's State unit president Banda Sanjay Kumar and other State leaders, has not gone down well with the party cadre. Following the party's success in Bihar polls, the BJP leadership is counting on Yadav to deliver in Hyderabad. Even though the State is represented by Reddy at the Centre, party president JP Nadra preferred Yadav over him. This is quite demoralising for the cadre. One should not ignore workers of a region just for political gains.

What of India's 'Act East' policy?

By rejecting the RCEP membership, we have given China a free hand to integrate its economy with Asian nations. Maybe India should look West now

SANJIB POHIT

The 'Act East' policy, with a focus on an extended neighbourhood in the Asia-Pacific Region, has been the cornerstone of India's diplomacy in the current decade. While it was originally conceived as an economic initiative, in recent years, it has gained political, strategic and cultural dimensions, including the establishment of institutional mechanisms for dialogue and cooperation. India has upgraded its relations to a strategic partnership with Indonesia, Vietnam, Malaysia, Japan, the Republic of Korea, Australia, Singapore and the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) and has, thus, forged close ties with all countries in the Asia-Pacific. Further, apart from the ASEAN, the East Asia Summit (EAS) and the ASEAN Regional Forum (ARF), it has been actively engaged in regional fora, such as the Bay of Bengal Initiative for Multi-Sectoral Technical and Economic Cooperation (BIMSTEC), Asia Cooperation Dialogue (ACD), Mekong-Ganga Cooperation (MGC) and the Indian-Ocean Rim Association (IORA). The 'Act East' policy has laid emphasis on India-ASEAN cooperation for our domestic agenda on infrastructure, manufacturing, trade, skills, urban renewal, smart cities. Make in India and other initiatives. The objective is to promote economic cooperation, cultural ties and develop strategic relationships with countries in the Asia-Pacific through continuous engagement at bilateral, regional and multilateral levels.

As a follow-up, India has entered into Regional Trade Agreements (RTAs) and comprehensive economic engagements with many Asian countries. Notable among them are RTAs with the ASEAN, Malaysia, Japan, Singapore, Thailand, APTA (Bangladesh, China, Korea, Laos and Sri Lanka) and South Korea.

However, India decided against joining the mega trade bloc or the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP). It is a free trade agreement (FTA) between the Asia-Pacific nations of Australia, Brunei, Cambodia, China, Indonesia, Japan, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, New Zealand, the Philippines, Singapore, South Korea, Thailand and Vietnam. These 15 countries account for about 30 per cent of the world's population (2.2 billion people) and 30 per cent of the global GDP ($26.2 trillion) as of this year, making it the biggest trade bloc in history.

The fear is that India's agricultural and manufactured goods will not be in a position to stand up to competition from cheaper imports from abroad. Of course, lobbying by multiple associations protecting the interests of processed agricultural product and manufactured goods makers plays a significant role in the policymakers' decision. In contrast, India's service sector, which no doubt would have benefited by gaining access to the large market, could not play its cards well. In the end, the belief that India's merchandise trade deficit (already negative with ASEAN and other Asian countries due to the existing RTAs) will further worsen, tilted the balance in deciding that the country's interests would be best served by not joining the RCEP.

In the long run, this decision will hurt India in a big way. Let me flag up the issues on this count. First, when we have RTAs with some members of the RCEP, it will be a Herculean task to stop merchandise from third countries being routed through these nations with whom we have an existing pact. For instance, imports from China may be routed through ASEAN members like Vietnam and Malaysia with whom we have RTAs. Of course, one can argue that the 'rules of origin' clause will stem this flow. However, in reality, the 'rules of origin' clause is not effective enough to curtail third country imports.

Second, India is missing the golden opportunity to be a part of the global value chain. If multinational corporations (MNCs) are thinking of shifting their value chains from China to other countries, they would go for any member of the RCEP like Vietnam and so on. This will be a win-win situation as they will have access to a large market and also benefit from the economies of scale of production. The same holds true for new investment from the European Union or US firms. The usual argument that India has a demographic dividend and MNCs can come here to make a production base falls flat. Given the income inequality, a significant part of the population does not have jobs and thereby income to purchase consumer goods. Gains from the demographic dividend are realised only when people are employed or else it becomes a burden on society.

Third, the service sector, where India has a comparative advantage, would be at a disadvantage because of this decision. Fourth, this decision should have been made based on long-term gain and not based on a higher trade deficit in the short run. By joining the group, Indian industries may suffer in the short-run. But in the end, they will be more competitive, which will open up opportunities in the world markets. It will be a win-win situation for the consumers, too, as they will have access to a variety of goods at a cheaper price. Also, there is no one to lobby for the consumers' interests.

Fifth, is it realistically possible to 'Act East' without entering the mega trading bloc of the East? By rejecting the RCEP membership, India has given China a free hand to integrate its economy with Asian countries. Maybe India henceforth should look West.

A wake-up call

Let not the recent incident at Nagrota meet the fate of similar encounters in the past. It should ring warning bells and lessons should be learnt from it

ANIL GUPTA

The recent encounter at Nagrota, near Jammu on National Highway (NH) 44, in which four Kashmiri-youths were killed by the Indian security forces, has once again exposed the fact that the 'Deep State' in Pakistan continues to rule the roost with the singular agenda of bleeding India through a thousand cuts. Similar encounters had taken place on the same highway in the past, too. Pakistan continues to use the International Border (IB) sector as a preferred route of infiltration not only for terrorists but also for narco-terrorism, as it provides the twin advantage of movement into Jammu and Kashmir (J&K) and Punjab. Also, the modus operandi adopted in most cases is near identical. After revocation of Article 370 in J&K, Pakistan's desperation to create trouble has increased manifold. With the Indian Army adopting a very strong counter-infiltration grid on the Line of Control (LoC) and an equally impenetrable counter-terrorism grid inside the Valley, the Pakistan Army has shifted its focus to the IB sector with a comparatively higher success rate.

Pakistan is going through the worst phase of its history. Ever since its formation, the country has suffered the dilemma of identity. Regional loyalties have surpassed national ones, leaving the Pakistan Army alone as a symbol of national identity. This has been exploited by the Army to its advantage by becoming the virtual ruler. To ensure its continued hold over the nation's defence and foreign policy, the Army has created a myth of India being a mortal threat. At the same time it has promoted Kashmir as an unfinished agenda of the Partition and as our jugular vein. Despite Islamabad's obsession with Kashmir costing it dearly, both economically and strategically, it refuses to relent. Terrorism continues to remain an instrument of its State policy. Kashmir continues to be the raison d'être for the continued supremacy of its Army.

Politically and economically, Pakistan is on the verge of collapse. Prime Minister Imran Khan is the target of a domestic rebellion against his Government by the conglomeration of 11 Opposition parties under the banner of the Pakistan Democratic Movement (PDM). Even Imran Khan's nephew, Chief of the Army Staff General Bajwa, and his ISI chief are not being spared by the public. This has unnerved the Army as it is quite conscious of its image among the people. But that aura is gradually eroding due to the involvement of senior Army officers in corruption. While the common man is finding it difficult to survive, the Army is eating up a large slice of the national budget. The economy is in the doldrums. Saudi Arabia, a liberal donor till now, is unhappy with Imran Khan due to his growing proximity with Turkey. Pakistan is neck deep in debt and is resorting to borrowings to service it. Unemployment and inflation are common and Imran Khan is doing nothing to resolve these issues. His total surrender to China is also being resented by Pakistanis.

Pakistan is close to an implosion at this stage due to the growing turmoil in Balochistan, increased unrest in Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa, revolt in Pakistan-Occupied J&K and Gilgit-Baltistan and the growing unbridled sensual and overtly emotional behaviour of the PDM. Attempts to integrate Gilgit-Baltistan as its fifth province and holding of elections there have been met with stiff opposition from the locals. The results of the elections are being contested as fudged. The Balawaristan Movement for an independent Gilgit-Baltistan is gaining momentum.

With the Pakistan Army under tremendous pressure from China to tie down the Army to the time-tested Pakistani formula of creating an India bogey at home has been put into practice to generate an anti-India public opinion. Repeated unprovoked ceasefire violations and attempts to push in terrorists have become a norm. Apart from attempts to distract public attention at home, these are also being used to keep Kashmir in the focus of the international community as a potential flashpoint.

Pakistan's nuclear blackmail has been exposed and is no longer being used as a threat by its leadership. So it has increased its dependence on terrorist activities in India and the 'Deep State' is involved in spreading its tentacles in other parts of the country apart from Kashmir. However, Kashmir for the time-being continues to remain its main focus because of the realisation that with the passing of each day peacefully, Pakistan is losing its relevance there. That was the main reason behind infiltrating a heavily-armed group with about 750 kg of RDX to create mayhem in Kashmir on the eve of the District Development Council elections in J&K.

Plus, China is egging Pakistan on to keep the pot boiling in Kashmir. It needs a hold in Gilgit-Baltistan and does not want to part with Shaksagan and Aksai Chin. Hence, irrespective of the success achieved by us at Nagrota, Pakistan is not going to relent. We have to be proactive and make the cost of such attempts as prohibitive for the 'Deep State' as possible.

Unfortunately, the IB sector remains our weakness, which is being exploited by the enemy. Many questions need to be answered by the Border Security Force (BSF) which is responsible for guarding the IB. Why is it that the tunnels are detected only after infiltration has taken place? Why is no action taken to pin responsibility for the lapses? Why are no proactive measures taken to prevent similar failures in the future? Is it lack of resources, professionalism or sincerity?

The Government has spent crores of rupees to equip the BSF so that it can stop infiltration, including the Comprehensive Integrated Border Management System (CIBMS) to overcome the difficulties of the terrain. Not very long ago BSF officers had displayed to the media a tractor modified for tunnel detection. There were also claims of importing tunnel detection equipment. What happened to all that and why is that equipment not being used?

The BSF has been provided with seismic sensors and any underground disturbance is meant to be picked up by them. Definitely, the digging of a 150-metre-long tunnel should have been picked up by these sensors but it wasn't. Are these sensors non-functional or have they not been sited and deployed tactically? Incidentally these tunnels serve a dual purpose and the BSF knows that apart from sneaking in terrorists, these are also used for smuggling narcotics. Plus, what was the need to make the detection of the tunnel public? Rather it should have been booby-trapped and kept under surveillance. We have to accept that there are major chinks in our armoured ovalism, this is exactly what the IB sector is concerned and the enemy is exploiting these to its advantage.

Knowing the enemy's compulsion to keep Kashmir on the boil, strict measures need to be taken to prevent Islamabad from treating the IB sector as a preferred route for infiltration. First and foremost the BSF needs to reconsider its pattern of deployment of ambushes at night. Apart from avoiding predictability, it needs to give up the pattern of deploying in a single line without depth. For day patrolling, it needs to be provided with detection equipment.

A 'no gap pattern' deployment of CIBMS has to be ensured, including liaisoning with neighbouring units to cover gaps. The fact that the terrorists trekked on foot for nine km undetected and thereafter boarded a truck on the NH and travelled up to Nagrota unchallenged is a matter of concern and exposes the gaps in the surveillance and vigilance of depth areas and the NH. Hence, armed highway patrols have to be activated. Mobile checkpoints have to be established to avoid predictability. Cameras need to be installed 24x7. There is an urgent and inescapable need for full body scanners at select places on the NH.

There is a valuable asset of co-service men in these areas. A Border Defence Volunteer Force to strengthen the depth area surveillance and patrolling should be raised for utilising the services of these ex-servicemen. They should be deployed on either side of the NH, up to a depth of five-10 km, depending on the distance of the IB from the NH. It will strengthen the hands of the local police.

A serious review of command and control of all border guarding forces on the Line of Actual Control (LAC) and the IB is an urgent requirement. To have greater coordination and effective command and control, these need to be placed under the Ministry of Defence and the local Army formation. The present system has been found wanting time and again. Let not this act of national security become a victim of turf wars. Let not the recent incident at Nagrota meet the fate of similar encounters in the past. It should ring warning bells and lessons should be learnt from it. Pakistan is not going to change, we will have to change ourselves if we want to have a zero tolerance policy against terror.

Through the eyes of 'the other'

The term is used to define 'the self' in contrast. But 'self-Orientalism', ironically, looks towards assumed Western authority for validation

NADEEM PARACHA

In philosophy and literary criticism, the term 'the other' means an entity which is constructed to define the self. According to J. Miller in The Sage Encyclopedia of Quantitative Research Methods, "the other" is the opposite of the self. Both are perceptions though, constructed by an individual, community or the State. For example, the Nazis in Germany perceived the Jews as being racially inferior compared to the pure Aryan races. So the 'imperfect' Jews were constructed as 'the other' to define the 'perfectness' of the Aryans (white Germanic races). The self in this respect can be an individual or an ideology belonging to a perceived social, religious or political whole that can only be defined in contrast to 'the other', which is either explained as being inferior, different or even threatening to the whole. The nationalist idea which led to the creation of Pakistan was almost entirely based on this. Muslim nationalism in India could only be defined in contrast to Hindu majoritarianism, 'the other', which was explained as being 'culturally different' and politically threatening to the Muslim community of the region.

In the same way, Hindu nationalism cannot be defined without the Muslim 'other'. The self in this context can only reassure and strengthen its perceived self-image by assuring the assumed dissimilarities of 'the other'. Scholars such as Edward Said and the post-modernist philosopher Michel Foucault severely criticised the self as an agent of conformity. To bolster the power and self-image of social and political conformity (of an elite), it demonised non-conformists as 'the other'. To Said, the act of European colonialists of imagining the colonised native as an uncouth, entirely sensual and overtly emotional, al being was an act of enhancing the self-image of the superiority of the European self in contrast to the oriental other.

In his 1961 book, Madness and Civilisation, Foucault argues that the conventional idea of madness was a 'social construct' imposed by a conformist elite upon those who refused to conform. Years later, Foucault went on to praise the 1979 Islamic Revolution in Iran by deriding Western powers for demonising Ayatollah Khomeini as 'the other'. According to the Lebanese author Kim Ghattas, in her book Black Wave, Foucault did not retract his praise for Khomeini even when he established an authoritarian theocracy and ordered the execution of hundreds of Iranian men and women.

On the other hand, according to the critics of Edward Said's Orientalism, Said dubbed together a diverse array of colonised peoples of Africa and Asia as a homogenous whole and then defined this abstract totality in contrast to a ruthless European colonialist. In other words, to define a perceived homogenous self, he created 'the other' in the shape of a colonial European elite, which was dismissed, in a rather binary manner, as being an entirely evil entity. This is understood as 'Occidentalism'.

This can imply that 'the other' is not always passive. But on occasions, rather ironically, it strikes back, not by overturning how it is being perceived and demonised by a conformist collective-self, but by actually becoming exactly that. Foucault praised Iran's revolution as a 'spiritual' event which was not understood by the 'non-spiritual' West. He believed this was why the West was demonising Khomeini as being fanatical and mad.

Yet, in response, Khomeini himself used the term 'the other' to differentiate 'Islamic Iran' from the secular West. He moulded a collective Islamic self in Iran in contrast to a Western secular other. This often leads to what is known as 'self-Orientalism' or when 'the other' begins to think exactly how a colonialist self portrays and perceives it as being.

The idea is either to own the characteristics and labels given to it by the collective self and weave them into an aggressive ideology against the collective self, or to own these labels and present them as being superior as that to the collective self. Khomeini owned the label given to him by Western governments of being 'a fanatic' and used it to intimidate the West, and on the other hand, normalise it as an ethos in Iran. Muslim radicals around the world followed suit.

Things in this respect are even more intriguing in India. For decades, self-Orientalism in India meant producing cultural and spiritual products that were designed according to how 'mystical, magical and spiritual' India was perceived in the West. This play was good for business and public relations. But 'the other' was missing. This made Indians seem entirely passive and, as the historian Markus Daechsel demonstrates in his book The Urdu Middle-class Milieu in Mid-twentieth Century India, this image was problematic and too 'effeminate' for Hindu nationalists, especially compared to the 'masculinity' of some forms of Muslim nationalism.

After 2014, once Hindu nationalists gained an overt governing majority in the Parliament, they began to create a 'masculine' self-image and a collective self in contrast to 'the other': i.e. the Indian Muslim community. Ironically, decades earlier, by creating a Hindu other to define his idea of Muslim nationalism, this is exactly what Jinnah was warning about. So, in a way, Hindu nationalists eventually decided to own and then flex the label that Jinnah gave them.

That of being hegemonic and a threat to India's Muslim community. Self-Orientalism is often used by tourism industries to cater to the 'Orientalist' perceptions of the West. But even if some practitioners of Self-Orientalism pose as being anti-coloonial and authentic (as in being non-Western, or more spiritual), they are usually overly conscious of how the West is perceiving them. During the 2013 elections in Pakistan, campaign commercials of Imran Khan's Centre-Right party, the PTI, showed a Pakistani being gladly welcomed by an immigration officer (in a blonde wig) at a European airport. Here the post-colonial self was seeking validation from a post-colonial Western other.

Sometimes indigenous acts are performed just to gain traction from Westerners. In 2003, the former chief of Jamat-i-Islami, the late Qazi Hussain Ahmad, said there was nothing wrong in behaving or looking religious "because the West is more appreciative of this." This is an example of how self-Orientalism looks towards the West for validation. An image was adopted (of religiosity) to attract attention (and maybe praise) of 'the others' by confirming to the perceptions of a 'pious Muslim'.

'Chinese activities along Indian border provocative'

PTI ■ WASHINGTON

An influential US lawmaker has expressed concern over reports of China's continuing construction activities along the Indian border in Ladakh, saying if the reports are true, it is a "provocative measure" on the part of Beijing and fits the pattern of its conduct in the South China Sea.

India and China have been locked in a military standoff, which began in May along the Line of Actual Control (LAC) in eastern Ladakh.

Armies of both countries have deployed a large number of troops along the LAC. Multiple rounds of talks between the two sides to resolve the standoff have not yielded any concrete outcome.

"If it (reports) turns out to be true, it would be yet another provocative measure by the Chinese military to change the status quo in the region," Democratic Congressman Raja Krishnamoorthi told PTI.

"It would also fit the pattern of their conduct in the South China Sea, where they build islands, where they try to change the facts on the ground, which is understood then, and they would be deeply disturbing, to say the least," said Krishnamoorthi, who is the first-ever Indian-American to be on the US House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

China claims almost all of the 13 million square mile South China Sea as its sovereign territory. It has been building military bases on artificial islands in the region also claimed by Brunei, Malaysia, the Philippines, Taiwan and Vietnam.

Beijing has also impeded commercial activity like fishing or mineral exploration by countries like Vietnam and the Philippines in the resource-rich region, claiming that the ownership — the territory belonged to China for hundreds of years.

Krishnamoorthi, who was recently re-elected to the House of Representatives for the third consecutive time, said the US stands with India.

The Congressman from Illinois said reports including satellite images are his source of information about Chinese construction activities.

"I have to say that we currently in the US Congress, but also the Trump and the incoming Biden administration stand by our Indian partners and the Indo-Pacific region," he said.

The recently concluded Malabar exercise of the US, India, Japan, Australia and the United States — is a signal that the democracies in the Indo-Pacific region will continue to stand with each other and push for a rules-based international order, the Congressman said.

Responding to a question,

Krishnamoorthi said US President-elect Joe Biden has been a longtime friend of India, and he along with Indian-origin vice president-elect Kamala Harris will stand with New Delhi.

"I think his selection Kamala Harris only cements a relationship given her own Indian roots. Secretary of State nominee Anthony Blinken is also a longtime friend of India. He knows the region extremely well. I trust that incoming Secretary Blinken is going to take the relationship to new heights, along with President Biden and vice president Harris," he said.

"They are going to continue the approach that has largely been taken by Democratic and Republican presidents, which is we stand with India in the region, and opposing any kind of militaristic action on the part of any neighbour, including China," he added.

Krishnamoorthi also said addressing COVID-19 needs to be the number one priority for India and the US.

"A global health partnership that involves India, the United States, and all of our partners and allies around the world, and others, is crucial for defeating the pandemic," he said.

"I'm confident it's going to happen, especially with Joe Biden as one of the world's premier preeminent leaders pushing this change," he said.

Strike Haifa if Israel killed scientist: Iran newspaper

AP ■ TEHRAN

An opinion piece published Sunday by a hard-line Iranian newspaper urged Iran to attack the Israeli port city of Haifa if Israel carried out the killing of the scientist who founded the Islamic Republic's military nuclear programme in the early 2000s.

Though the hard-line Kayhan newspaper has long argued for aggressive retaliation for operations targeting Iran, Sunday's opinion piece went further, suggesting any assault be carried out in a way that destroys facilities and "also causes heavy human casualties."

Israel, suspected of killing Iranian nuclear scientists over the past decade, has not commented on the brazen slaying of Mohsen Fakhrizadeh. A military-style ambush Friday on the outskirts of Tehran reportedly saw a truck bomb explode and gunmen open fire on the scientist, killing him and a bodyguard.

US Intelligence agencies and UN nuclear inspectors have said the organised military nuclear programme that Fakhrizadeh oversaw disbanded in 2003, but Israeli suspicion of Tehran's atomic program and his involvement has never ceased.

Kayhan published the piece written by Iranian analyst Sadrallah Zarei, who argued Iran's previous responses to suspected Israeli airstrikes that killed Revolutionary Guard forces in Syria did not go far enough to deter Israel. He said an assault on Haifa also needed to be greater than Iran's ballistic missile attack against American troops in Iraq following the US drone strike in Baghdad that killed a top Iranian general in January.

Striking the Israeli city of Haifa and killing a large number of people "will definitely lead to deterrence, because the United States and the Israeli regime and its agents are by no means ready to take part in a war and a military confrontation," Zarei wrote.

While Kayhan is a small circulation newspaper in Iran, its editor-in-chief Hossein Shariatmadari was appointed by Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei and has been described as an adviser to him in the past.

Haifa, on the Mediterranean Sea, has been threatened in the past by both Iran and one of its proxies, the Lebanese militant group Hezbollah.

Such a strike likely would draw an immediate Israeli retaliation and spark a wider conflict across the Mideast. While Iran has never directly targeted an Israeli city militarily, it has conducted attacks targeting Israeli interests abroad in the past over the killing of its scientists, like in the case of the three Iranians recently freed in Thailand in exchange for a detained British-Australian academic.

UN CALLS FOR RESTRAINT AFTER KILLING OF IRANIAN NUCLEAR SCIENTIST

United Nations: The United Nations urged restraint Saturday after tensions rose in the Middle East with the assassination of a top Iranian nuclear scientist.

Iran has blamed Israel for Friday's slaying of Mohsen Fakhrizadeh and vowed revenge.

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson has urged his Conservative Party lawmakers to back the Government's tier-based Covid-19 lockdown in a Parliament vote in a letter stressing that there "a sunset" clause — or expiry date — of February 3 on the latest restrictions.

In an attempt to curb a growing rebellion within his own ranks against the new measures which face a new height, Gen Wei, who is also a State Councillor, held bilateral talks with Army chief Gen Thapa at the army headquarters here during his day-long "working visit" to Nepal, said a statement issued by the Nepali Army.

Boris defends tier-based lockdown in letter to rebel colleagues

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson has urged his Conservative Party lawmakers to back the Government's tier-based Covid-19 lockdown in a Parliament vote in a letter stressing that there "a sunset" clause — or expiry date — of February 3 on the latest restrictions.

In an attempt to curb a growing rebellion within his own ranks against the new measures which face a new height, Gen Wei, who is also a State Councillor, held bilateral talks with Army chief Gen Thapa at the army headquarters here during his day-long "working visit" to Nepal, said a statement issued by the Nepali Army.

"Regulations have a sunset of 3 February. After the fourth fortnightly review (27 January), Parliament will have another vote on the tiered approach, determining whether the measures stay in place until the end of March," he wrote.

In his attempt to placate angry MPs opposed to further lockdowns, he also committed to publish more data and outline what circumstances need to change for an area to move down a tier, as well as analysis of the health, economic and social impacts of the measures taken to suppress coronavirus.

Most of England's population is set to fall under the two toughest tiers when the second national lockdown ends on December 2. Around 32 million people — covering 57.3 per cent of England and including London — will fall into Tier 2 or higher alert level which means the rule of six applies with up to six members of different households allowed to meet outdoors.

Hospitality venues are allowed to open but operate under these strict rules, with dining indoors restricted to single households and support bubbles and alcohol sale permitted only with a substantial meal.

Besides, some 23.3 million people — or 41.5 per cent of the population — are going to be placed in the highest alert level of Tier 3, which prohibits any mixing of households and hospitality venues allowed to open only for takeaways.

34 killed in separate suicide bombings in Af

AP ■ GHAZNI

At least 34 people were killed on Sunday in two separate suicide bombings in Afghanistan that targeted a military base and a provincial chief, officials said.

There were no immediate claims of responsibility for the attacks, which took place in Afghanistan government representatives and the Taliban hold face-to-face talks in Qatar for the first time to end the country's decades-long war.

In eastern Ghazni province, 31 soldiers were killed and 24 others wounded when the attacker drove a military humvee full of explosives onto an army commando base before detonating the car bomb, according to an official in the Afghanistan National Security Council, who spoke anonymously because he was not permitted to speak directly to the media. Ghazni's provincial health department chief, Zahir Shah Nikmal, also confirmed the death toll and casualty figures from the attack.

Afghanistan's Defense Ministry released a statement claiming 10 soldiers were killed and nine wounded. The ministry also offered a different account of what happened. Interior Minister spokesman Tarik Arian said a suicide bombing took place, though he did not provide further details. The soldiers stationed at the base were responsible for conducting night raids, providing support to the army and police forces during the siege, and taking part in large-scale operations against the Taliban and Islamic State group in eastern and southern provinces of Afghanistan.

Thai pro-democracy protesters rally outside Army base

AP ■ BANGKOK

Thailand's indefatigable pro-democracy activists took to Bangkok's streets again Sunday, this time to protest the army as they push forward with their campaign for sweeping reforms, including to the nation's monarchy.

Around 800 protesters gathered in the afternoon and in early evening marched to the base of the 11th Infantry Regiment, which is closely associated with the country's royal palace. Their number grew to well over 1,000 as they settled in for speeches by protest leaders.

An advance group of protesters had already pulled away two decrepit buses that had been used to block the entrance to the base and removed strands of razor wire. A large contingent of riot police, several rows deep, stood in front of the gate but they didn't appear to be an imminent cause of a clash.

The protesters believe that the army undermines democracy in Thailand, and that King Maha Vajiralongkorn wields too much power and influence in what is supposed to be a democratic constitutional monarchy.

The student-led protesters for months now have been demanding reforms to make the monarchy more accountable, even though criticism of the institution has long been considered taboo and comments judged defamatory of the king and key royals are punishable by up to 15 years in prison.

"People should be able to criticize the king. People should be able to inspect what he does. In this way, people will respect and love him more," said activist Somyot Pruksakasemsuk, who served seven years in prison for defaming the monarchy and is facing criminal charges in connection with this year's protests.

New model to enable drug predictions against Covid-19

IAN ■ LONDON

Researchers have developed a computational model of a human lung cell which has been used to understand how SARS-CoV-2, the virus behind Covid-19 disease, uses the host to survive, and to enable drug predictions for treating the virus.

Using a computer model of a human lung cell metabolism, the study published in the journal Life Science Alliance, have captured the stoichiometric amino and nucleic acid requirements of SARS-CoV-2. Their model has identified host-based metabolic perturbations inhibiting SARS-CoV-

2 reproduction, highlighting reactions in the central metabolism, as well as amino acid and nucleotide biosynthesis pathways.

In fact, researchers found that only a few of these metabolic perturbations are able to selectively inhibit virus reproduction.

"We have created a stoichiometric biomass function for the Covid-19-causing SARS-CoV-2 virus and incorporated this into a human lung cell genome-scale metabolic model," said study author Orkun Soyer, from the University of Warwick in the UK.

Singapore woman who had Covid gives birth to baby with antibodies: Report

Singapore: A Singaporean woman, who was infected with the novel coronavirus in March when she was pregnant, has given birth to a baby with antibodies against the virus, offering a new clue as to whether the infection can be transferred from mother to child. The baby was born this month without Covid-19 but with the virus antibodies, the Straits Times newspaper reported on Sunday, citing the mother.

"My doctor suspects I have transferred my COVID-19 antibodies to him during my pregnancy," Celine Ng-Chan told the paper.

Ng-Chan had been mildly ill from the disease and was discharged from hospital after two and a half weeks, the Straits Times said. Ng-Chan and the National University Hospital (NUH), where she gave birth, did not immediately respond to a request for comment. The World Health Organisation says it is not yet known whether a pregnant woman with COVID-19 can pass the virus to her fetus or baby during pregnancy or delivery.

Dave Prowse, actor who played Darth Vader, dies at 85

AP ■ LONDON

Dave Prowse, the British weightlifter-turned-actor who was the body, though not the voice, of arch-villain Darth Vader in the original "Star Wars" trilogy, has died. He was 85.

Prowse died Saturday after a short illness, his agent Thomas Bowington said on Sunday.

Born in Bristol, southwest England, in 1935, Prowse was a three-time British weightlifting champion and represented England in weightlifting at the 1962 Commonwealth Games before breaking into movies with roles that emphasized his commanding size, including Frankenstein's monster in a pair of Hammer Studios horror films.

Director George Lucas saw Prowse in a small part in "A Clockwork Orange" and asked the 6-foot-6-inch (almost 2-meter) actor to audition for the villainous Vader or the Wookiee Chewbacca in "Star Wars".

Prowse later told the BBC he chose Darth Vader because "you always remember the bad guys." Physically, Prowse was perfect for the part. His lilted English West Country accent was considered less ideal, and his lines were dubbed by James Earl Jones.

Prowse donned Darth Vader's black armor and helmet for "Star Wars" (1977). "The Empire Strikes Back" (1980) and "Return of the Jedi" (1983).

He expressed some regret that, thanks to Vader's mask, "I can walk around with complete anonymity."

"All actors crave recognition and I'd like to have some like Luke Skywalker and Han Solo," he told The Associated Press in 1980. "Fortune tends to follow fame."

Prowse also worked as a trainer for other actors, helping Christopher Reeve prepare to be the Man of Steel in his 1978 film "Superman."

Prowse was also known to a generation of British children as the Green Cross Code Man, a superhero in a series of road safety advertisements during the 1970s and '80s.

He was a regular at "Star Wars" fan events, but was banned from official conventions by Lucas in 2010 after the pair fell out.

Mark Hamill, who played Luke Skywalker in the "Star Wars" films, tweeted that Prowse was "a kind man & much more than Darth Vader." Hamill said the actor "loved his fans as much as they loved him. #RIP "Ant-Man" director Edgar Wright also paid tribute to Prowse on Twitter.

RBI likely to maintain status quo for 3rd straight time on inflation concerns

New Delhi: The Reserve Bank is likely to keep the benchmark interest rates unchanged in its next monetary policy review in view of heightened retail inflation which has persistently remained above its comfort level, feel experts.

However, with the economic growth continuing to remain in the negative territory for the second consecutive quarter ending September, the central bank is likely to continue with the accommodative monetary stance keeping the hope alive for a rate cut next year when needed.

The six-member Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) headed by RBI Governor is scheduled to meet for two days starting December 2. The resolution of the sixth bi-monthly MPC meeting would be announced on December 4.

In its last MPC meeting in October, the RBI kept policy rates unchanged to help tame inflation that in the recent times has surged past 6 per cent mark. The RBI projected the country's GDP to contract 9.5 per cent in the current financial year due to the pandemic.

It has cut policy rates by 115 basis points since February. With inflation continuing to trend well above RBI's medium-term target of 4 per cent, there is limited room for a rate cut in the upcoming policy. We have seen encouraging signs of a pick-up in economic activity and a return of consumer demand, buoyed by the festive season," Kotak Mahindra Bank group president consumer banking Shanti Ekambaram said.

The next few months are

Retail inflation, calculated on the basis of Consumer Price Index (CPI), continued to rise for the ninth month in a row in October, reaching 7.61 per cent on the back of high food prices. This is the highest level of retail inflation since May 2014 when the inflation was at 8.33 per cent critical as it needs to be seen whether demand levels will sustain and the central bank will closely monitor the growth trajectory and high-frequency data prints, she added.

On the basis of Consumer Price Index (CPI), continued to rise for the ninth month in a row in October, reaching 7.61 per cent on the back of high food prices. This is the highest level of retail inflation since May 2014 when the inflation was at 8.33 per cent.

The government has mandated the RBI to keep retail inflation at 4 per cent (+/- 2 per cent). On concerns of elevated level of inflation, CRISIL Chief Economist Dharmakirti Joshi said the RBI policy will be on hold.

Echoing similar views, CARE Ratings Chief Economist Madan Sabnavis said, "I think RBI has no choice but to go for a pause now because inflation is still very high. Also, the scope for rate cut is more or less exhausted for this financial year. The RBI will address the issue more through OMOs, operation twists to influence the g-se yields rather than the repo rate cut."

According to M Govinda Rao, Chief Economic Advisor, Brickwork Ratings, considering that CPI inflation remains at an elevated level, the MPC is likely to continue with the pause in the rate.

"With real interest rates already in the negative zone, the space for rate reduction is limited at present. However, the accommodative stance is likely to continue," Rao said. The RBI is expected to maintain status quo given the fact that food inflation continues to be high, whilst core inflation has also inched up. Moneybox Finance co-CEO Deepak Agarwal said.

However, Anuj Puri, Chairman of real estate consultant Anarock said the real estate industry's perennial hope is fixed on lower interest rates, which would be enabled by reducing the repo rate.

The last meeting of the MPC was held from October 7 to 9, 2020. It was the 25th meeting of the rating-setting panel.

US second biggest FDI source for India during Apr-Sep 2020

New Delhi: The US has emerged as the second biggest source of foreign direct investment (FDI) into India, replacing Mauritius, during the first half of the current financial year, according to data of commerce and industry ministry.

During April-September 2020, India attracted FDI worth USD 7.12 billion from the US and USD 2 billion from Mauritius, which slipped to fourth position, the DPIIT (Department for Promotion of Investment and Internal Trade) data showed.

Mauritius was the second biggest FDI source during the same period previous year. The US was the fourth biggest investor during that period.

Singapore with USD 8.30 billion foreign inflows continued to be the top source of FDI for India in April-September 2020-21.

The country has received USD 10.12 billion inflows from Cayman Islands.

The islands was followed by Netherlands (USD 1.5 billion), UK (USD 1.35 billion), France (USD 1.13 billion), Japan (USD 653 million), Germany (USD 202 million), and Cyprus (USD 48 million).

According to experts, increasing FDI from the US reflects the further strengthening of economic ties between the two countries.

The US was also India's top trading partner in 2019-20.

Biswajit Dhar, a professor of economics at Jawaharlal Nehru University, said that "the US technology companies are buying stakes in Indian companies that is why FDI numbers are showing a rise".

Despite the fact that FDI from Mauritius is coming down, it still accounts for 29 per cent of the total inflows received by India during April 2020 and September 2020. In this period, India has attracted USD 500.12 billion foreign direct investment.

Foreign inflows into India grew by 15 per cent to USD 30 billion during the first half of the current fiscal. In August, India had attracted USD 17.5 billion worth of foreign investments.

FPIs net buyers for 2nd consecutive month in Nov, invest record sum of ₹60,358 cr in equities

New Delhi: Foreign portfolio investors (FPI) remained net buyers for the second consecutive month in November by pumping in a whopping ₹62,951 crore in Indian market.

For equities segment, this is the highest quantum of money invested ever since the FPI data has been made available by the National Securities Depository Ltd.

According to depositories data, FPIs invested a net ₹60,358 crore into equities and ₹2,593 crore in debt segment, taking the total net investment to ₹62,951 crore between November 3-27.

In October, FPIs were net buyers to the tune of ₹22,033 crore.

Global investors are preferring to invest in emerging markets more than developed markets as the potential upside is much higher in emerging markets, said

Harsh Jain, co-founder and COO at Groww.

Inflows into other emerging markets like South Korea and Taiwan show a similar trend, he added.

"FPIs have invested into top bluechips of India in a big manner. A bulk of the investment that has come in has been into the banking sector. So, the inflow has been concentrated in a few stocks," Jain further said.

Himanshu Srivastava, associate director - manager research, Morningstar India said that "few uncertainties have been behind us in November with the major one being the outcome of US Presidential election".

Attractive valuation compared to the developed markets and weakness in the dollar also supported buying, Srivastava said.

CAIT writes to PM, alleges violation of FDI norms by e-commerce firms

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Traders' body CAIT on Sunday wrote to Prime Minister Narendra Modi seeking "strong action" against e-commerce firms for alleged violation of FDI policy by them.

It also sought setting up of an empowered regulatory authority to regulate and monitor the e-commerce business in India.

In the letter to the Prime Minister, the Confederation of All India Traders (CAIT) claimed that "big e-commerce companies having deep pockets are leaving no stone unturned in monopolising the e-commerce business and retail trade of India with their malpractices and violating FDI policy of the government and relevant laws and rules".

It further said that "despite making several complaints against them, so far no concrete action has been taken and therefore it has become a major roadblock for small businesses to conduct online business activities". The traders' body claimed that various government authorities have failed to ensure the safety of the policy and law of the government.

"Though the Ministry of Commerce has taken some initiatives to impress upon them to conduct their business activities under the purview of the law but these e-commerce companies have been avoiding the law on one pretext or the other," CAIT said in the letter.

The traders' body while "urging for strong action against e-commerce companies" also requested that an e-commerce policy should be announced immediately with an explicit provision of empowered regulatory authority.

Resume REC trade soon, trading pause to impact discoms' ability to meet RPO targets: Power exchanges

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Further suspension on trading of renewable energy certificates (RECs) would impact state power distribution utilities' ability to meet renewable purchase obligation (RPO) targets, electricity exchanges PXIL and IEX said, stressing that the trading should be resumed at the earliest.

Talking to PTI, Indian Energy Exchange (IEX) Head and Senior Vice President - Business Development Rohit Bajaj said, "REC market is a key avenue for obligated entities such as captive power producers, discoms and open access consumers to fulfil their RPO requirements."

"Owing to the pause in REC trade since the last five months (July 2020), and compliance year coming to an end in the next four months, any further delay in resuming the trade will greatly impact their ability to meet their RPO targets in a timely manner," he added.

"We hope that honourable APTEL soon issues the final order so that the trading can commence in December," he added.

CII urges industry not to lower guard against Covid-19

New Delhi: Industry body CII has urged its member companies in north India to not lower guard against COVID-19 and ensure that the prescribed norms of wearing masks, maintaining physical distance of at least 6 feet and avoiding large gatherings are followed.

With COVID-19 cases rising for the past few weeks at an unprecedented rate, the pandemic continues to pose hardships for the country, the chamber said in a statement on Sunday.

Many states in northern India are experiencing probably the second or even the third wave of rise in infections and mortality. With the onset of winter, the problem is getting accentuated, especially for the vulnerable ones, it added.

Observing that while pandemetic fatigue is an expected and natural response to a prolonged public health crisis, the chamber said "we need to understand and keep in mind the repercussions of dropping our guard only because of health and safety of those around us but also its impact on our work and everyday lives".

CII Northern Region Chairman Nikhil Sawhney said, "As we can see, the signs of a rebound in our economy, the least we would want now would be another spate of shutdowns or closing of our workplaces due to infections."

"Already, we are seeing that some of the states are again being forced to announce night curfews and restrictions on social gatherings which I would say are not good signs."

Sawhney has written to the industry in north India, urging them to not lower guard against COVID-19 and to ensure that the prescribed norms are followed.

"We must also ensure that those around us, including family, friends and workforce also follow these rules at all times without fail. At the same time, in our offices, we need to maintain team from home policy for few more months," he said.

He highlighted that the government is committed to ensuring the availability of the vaccine and has stated that a definite process is underway for reaching it to the vulnerable sections of society.

In the light of this, it is essential for all industry members to be ready for a period of at least a year of continued vigil and precautionary measures for working towards containing disease prevalence, Sawhney said.

CII has prepared a detailed workplace protocol, which has been shared with the industry members to adhere to, including following work from home for all offices requiring non-contact activities, ensuring the fullest workplace safety measures where employees are required to be physically present, and conducting COVID testing of all employees and their families.

It also includes aggressively promoting awareness among employees' families and the larger community and relentlessly spreading the message of SMS -- sanitization and hand washing, mask wearing, social distancing.

Startup develops software for displaying garment images in 3D

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

A startup incubated by IIT Madras and NASSCOM has developed a software to convert flat images of traditional Indian garments into photo-realistic 3D images on e-commerce websites.

The software, its developers say, is a game changer for small and medium enterprises as it does away with the need of expensive model photoshoots.

The software, TRI3D, is aimed at helping SMEs survive the economic challenges brought by COVID-19.

According to the team, as many as 80,000 garments have been digitized and sold using TRI3D's Technology in India, Sri Lanka and Abu Dhabi in the last year alone.

More than 100 new generation entrepreneurs from across 50 locations in India have already deployed this technology.

"Our unique apparel visualization technology converts flat images of garments such as sarees into beautiful photographs of 3D images on models, mannequins and creative representations. We have developed a software substitute for conventional model photoshoots, convenient for even the small boutique designers but previously too cannot afford photoshoots," said IIT Madras alumni and startup co-founder Krishna Sumanth Alwal.

FinMin asks PSU general insurers to cut flab; rationalise branches, other expenses: Sources

New Delhi: The Finance Ministry asked public sector general insurance firms, especially National Insurance, Oriental Insurance and United India Insurance, to rationalise branches and cut down avoidable expenses to improve their financial health, sources said.

Earlier this year the Union Cabinet decided to halt the merger process of three state-owned general insurance companies due to weak financial positions of these three companies. Instead, the government approved fund infusion of ₹12,450 crore to meet regulatory parameters.

The finance ministry has asked these companies to cut the flab by rationalising branches and rein in other avoidable expenses like guest houses, etc, sources said.

Besides, sources said, they have been asked to expand their business through digital medium.

The Government in Budget 2020-21 had made a provision of ₹12,450 crore for capital infusion in these three insurance companies in order to maintain the requisite minimum solvency ratio

As part of capital infusion exercise, the government also approved raising authorised share capital of National Insurance Company Ltd (NICL) to ₹ 7,500 crore and that of United India Insurance Company Ltd (UIICL) and Oriental Insurance Company Ltd (OICL) to ₹5,000 crore each.

The ₹12,450 crore capital infusion approved by the Cabinet in July includes ₹2,500 crore provided to these companies during 2019-20.

During this year, the Government infused ₹3,475 crore while announcing infusion of the balance ₹ 6,475 crore in one or more tranches.

The government in Budget 2020-21 had made a provision of ₹6,950 crore for capital infusion in these three insurance companies in order to maintain the requisite minimum solvency ratio.

These PSU general insurers, with their large underwriting losses of ₹1,444.3 crore, together have been responsible for the overall losses of over ₹7,118 crore in 2019-20.

NICL, with a combined ratio of 160.8 per cent and underwriting losses of ₹5,759 crore, has suffered losses of ₹4,108 crore while OICL (141 per cent, ₹4,197 crore) and UIICL (132 per cent, ₹4,487 crore) have been hit with losses of ₹1,524 crore and ₹1,486 crore, respectively in 2019-20.

However, New India Assurance, the only exception out of the four public sector general insurers, posted a profit of ₹1,418 crore in 2019-20.

Cos raised ₹25,000 cr via IPOs in 2020 so far; next year expected to be equally strong

New Delhi: High liquidity and robust interest from investors helped companies raise nearly ₹25,000 crore through initial share-sales this year so far and 2021 is expected to be equally strong for the IPO market, experts said.

Adding to the depth of the IPO market, companies from diverse sectors like pharma, telecommunication, IT and financial services have made their way to the IPO space during the period under review.

According to an analysis of data available with the stock exchanges, 12 initial public offerings (IPOs) in 2020 so far raised around ₹25,000 crore, significantly higher than ₹12,362 crore mopped up through 16 initial share-sales in the entire 2019.

Prior to that, 24 companies had floated their IPOs in 2018 that raised ₹30,959 crore.

In 2020 so far, close to ₹25,000 crore has already been raised through IPOs and the figure could rise further as Burger King's Rs 80-crore initial share-sale is scheduled to open on December 2.

Vinod Nair, head of research at Geojit Financial Services, attributed high fund raising in this year compared to 2019 to high interest of corporates and retail investors for the primary market despite huge contraction in the economy.

At the same time, companies opted for the IPO route to build war-chest during the uncertainties and to strengthen their balance sheet, he added.

US, UK and Australia among top mktks for Indian sellers exporting products on eBay

New Delhi: The US, the UK, mainland Europe and Australia across the top markets for Indian sellers that are exporting products through cross-border e-commerce on eBay's platform, a top official said.

Indian sellers have been witnessing strong demand across categories like apparel, fine jewelry, toys, auto parts and accessories and home decor, especially during the holiday season (Thanksgiving to New Year's), eBay India Country Manager Vidmay Naini told PTI.

"Evolving consumer demand and increase in the trust in purchases outside domestic e-commerce reflect a huge market potential that developing countries like India should tap into for e-commerce exports."

The US, the UK, mainland Europe and Australia are the top markets Indian sellers are exporting products through cross-border e-commerce," he said. eBay's GBT (cross border trade) business in India has been in operation for over a decade with an aim to help Indian sellers list and sell merchandise to over 183 million buyers who shop on various global platforms on eBay across the globe, Naini said.

He noted that the overall global e-commerce business ranges around USD 4 trillion (based on data from eMarketer.Com).

"According to various estimates, the market B2C cross-border e-commerce potential for Indian sellers is approximately USD 1 billion now. The top-shopped categories that Indian sellers have observed during the holiday season sales are clothing, shoes, accessories, toys and games; auto parts and accessories; fine jewellery and watches; and home decor," Naini said. During the five days win-win of Black Friday and Cyber Monday, Indian sellers experienced a spike in the volume of orders and sales, and the holiday shopping continues till Christmas, he said.

Black Friday is celebrated a day after Thanksgiving with retailers wooing potential shoppers with special deals and discounts.

Naini cited data from a survey conducted among its users to state that shoppers have started relying more on digital marketplaces.

He said 31 per cent respondents said they had started holiday shopping before September 30 this year, and 41 per cent said they spent USD 1,000 on holiday gifts and celebrations in 2019. About 62 per cent said they planned to spend the same or more this year.

CBIC asks for physical verification of biz granted deemed GST registration between Aug 21-Nov 16

New Delhi: The CBIC has asked field offices to carry out physical verification of premises of businesses which have been granted deemed GST registration between August 21 and November 16 to ascertain that they have genuine business or intend to carry out so.

The Central Board of Indirect Taxes and Customs (CBIC) has also asked taxmen not to grant GST registration on deemed basis in cases where the applicant has not opted for Aadhaar authentication or the authentication has failed.

Current provision under Goods and Services Tax (GST) law allows for deemed registration upon completion of 21 days of application if the proper officer has not issued any notice within the said 21 days.

The CBIC, in its instruction to field offices, said that data suggests that during the period from August 21, 2020 to November 16, 2020 deemed registrations have been granted in many cases where Aadhaar authentication has not been opted for or has failed.

"These registrations granted on deemed basis require verifications to ascertain that they have genuine business or intend to carry out so," the CBIC said while issuing Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) for carrying out physical verification of persons who have been granted deemed registration.

During the physical verification, the officer, among other things, would verify that in case the applicant intends to carry out manufacturing activity, the capital goods, if required for the said manufacturing activity, have been installed.

The officer would also verify electricity connection, bills paid in the relevant period, size of the premises - whether it is commensurate with the activity to be carried out by the applicant, whether premises is self-owned or is rented and documents relating to ownership/registered lease of the said property.

You were possibly trained at a young age about ways to improve your physical health, however, mental health and self-care might have taken a backseat. If you have been diagnosed with a mental health ailment like anxiety or depression, the treatment typically comprises of emotional therapies and medication.

The lifestyle changes which tend to impact our state of mind are often less observed. Fortunately, with many now prioritising mood and cognitive health as much as their physical health, mental health and the discourse around it, in current times is less stigmatised than it was in the past. Today mindfulness is equally valued as much as physical health. Even those not suffering from a cognitive health condition may still look for effective ways to further take care of their mood, reduce stress and accomplish day-to-day mental health.

As with physical health, nurturing mental health is an ongoing process; simple daily practices and lifestyle changes can aid in this. Kanchan Rai, Mental and Emotional Well-being Coach, Founder - Let Us Talk, mentions five lifestyle modifications to get you started:

Practice relaxation techniques: While sensory input can release stress in the moment, relaxation techniques facilitate to condense overall stress levels. Practices like meditation, yoga, deep inhalation and progressive muscle relaxation can help put the brakes to anxiety levels and help balance your mind and body.

Healthy eating is a go-to option: In order to achieve an optimal brain functioning, you must increase the intake of wholefoods like green leafy vegetables, grains, legumes, seafood and lean meat in your diet. These foods encompass magnesium, folate, zinc and vital fatty acids which accelerate cerebral function. Edibles rich in polyphenols, such as wine, dark chocolates and berries are also vital in getting the mind activated.

social interaction and exposure to nature can possibly help mental well-being even further.

Reach out when you need help: Positive lifestyle alterations are not a replacement for medication or therapy but, rather, something you can undertake yourself in addition to treatment. While most lifestyle modifications can be encouraging, some fluctuations may be challenging if used as an emotional crutch. One might be required to deal with it delicately, and with expert support.

Prioritising sleep: Along with improving sleep patterns, sleep hygiene techniques also help to treat insomnia. These comprise of limiting caffeine usage, regulating your sleep time, limiting screen time and ensuring you wake up at a similar time in the morning. Never force yourself to sleep, if you are unable to sleep within around 20 minutes, it may be best to get up and focus on an activity until you feel tired. The other mainstay of achieving an enhanced sleep pattern is to limit light exposure. This will surge the emission of melatonin, which aids in sleep. Getting quality sleep is significant for regulating stress levels, thus indirectly mending mind health. —JNS

POWER OF THE PALETTE

Abstract artist WASSILY KANDINSKY's works revolved around Russian folklore and culture, portraying his belief in art's ability to transform the self and society. By UMA NAIR

The newly-opened Guggenheim Museum Bilbao in New York is now home to a stellar exhibition by abstractionist Wassily Wassilyevich Kandinsky. The most enchanting works here are his early woodcuts. Scholars say that before he abandoned the figurative idiom, Kandinsky created evocative works on paper, largely in black and white.

LAWYER-TURNED ARTIST

A very few people are aware that Kandinsky had traded a very promising career in law for a position of an art director at a printing firm in Moscow. The next year he came to Munich, carrying with him the knowledge of classic printmaking techniques like woodcut, etching and lithography.

The woodcut, in particular, challenged the artist to reduce compositions and narratives to simplified, expressionist forms, often using just black ink or limited palettes.

In 1907, Kandinsky produced numerous original woodcuts featuring women in traditional Russian costumes, embodying the romantic, fairytale imagery he favoured early in his career. Among them, Birches (Schalmei), Women in the Woods (Frauen im Wald), Two Birds (Zwei Vögel), and Church (Kirche) — as well as another woodcut, Horsemen — were reissued as photogravures with the title, Xylographies, in the Parisian magazine, Les Tendances Nouvelles in 1909.

CHURCH (1907)

The title, 'Church,' draws attention to the pervasive musical elements of the portfolio. Kandinsky's fascination with the emotional power of music inspired his later abstract compositions, and was a lifelong interest for the artist. In this woodcut, we see a composition that blends the architectural setting of a church with an onion-shaped dome with two women in the foreground. The women are standing on each side — left and right — and both are lost in their own contemplation. The details and elements of the children, the sky and the street — all become a part of a panoramic spread that juxtaposes each detail and anchors them with a singularity.

Scholars say that in this series of woodcuts, Kandinsky prepared one block for the artwork's lines and another with its coloured areas, pressed both onto the same paper, and then hand-painted the resulting image through watercolour. Kandinsky's lifelong and passionate interest in music was a great inspiration to his later abstract period. Although these works seem traditional to the contemporary audience, the reduction of forms was an important step forward for his early career.

Kandinsky's woodcuts are experimental in technique but fully assured and characterised by juxtapositions and combinations of events. The woodcuts ranged in style from Kandinsky's early fairytale idiom to fully-fledged abstracts of great power and beauty.

For him, 1907 became an important year. He produced a body of woodcuts that was published as Xylographies in 1909 in the Parisian periodical, Les Tendances Nouvelles. In the works, we see a current of nostalgia for traditional Russian folklore and culture — the onion-shaped domes of Church, the costumes of the women and an ambient sense of fullness.

Hence, Church is an important woodcut in the life works of Kandinsky as it reveals how his Russian roots continued to move and inspire him. He believed that great artists were like prophets but they had to be driven by a spirit. This woodcut testifies his brilliance, passion and love for the everyday idiom, which we so often take for granted.

INNER NECESSITY

Drawn primarily from the Solomon R Guggenheim Foundation's rich holdings, this comprehensive exhibition traces the four geographic sections of the aesthetic evolution of Kandinsky, one of the foremost artistic innovators of the early 20th century.

He set out on a crusade against conventional aesthetic values and discovered a new subject matter based solely on the artist's 'inner necessity' in a dream of a more spiritual future through the transformative powers of art. As his calligraphic contours and rhythmic forms revealed scarcer traces of their representational origins, Kandinsky began to advance abstraction and elicit what he called the "hidden power of the palette."

PIONEER OF ABSTRACTION

For Kandinsky, even the most abstract forms retained expressive, emotive content. For instance, the triangles embodied active and aggressive feelings; the squares denoted peace and calm; and the circles represented the spiritual and the cosmic realms. As a pioneer of abstraction and a renowned aesthetic theorist, he is among the foremost artistic innovators of the early 20th century. In his endeavour to free painting from its ties to the natural world, Kandinsky's work was based on an artist's 'inner necessity'.

In Munich, in the 1900s and the early 1910s, he began exploring the expressive possibilities of colour and composition but he was forced to abruptly leave Germany with the onset of World War I in 1914. The artist eventually returned to his native place, Moscow, where his pictorial vocabulary started to reflect the utopian experiments of the Russian avant-garde. He emphasised geometric shapes in an effort to establish a universal aesthetic language.

Kandinsky subsequently joined the faculty of the Bauhaus, a German school of art and applied design, that shared his belief in art's ability to transform the self and the society. Compelled to abandon Germany again when the Bauhaus closed under Nazi pressure in 1933, he settled outside Paris, where surrealism and the natural sciences influenced his biomorphic imagery. This exhibition extols his brilliance both as an artist and as a thinker.

Nirvana Inn set for digital premiere

The Adil Hussain-starrer Nirvana Inn will have a digital world premiere on a pay-per-view basis for 99 hours on December 11. The Hindi-language psychological horror drama, which also stars Sandhya Mridul and Rajshri Deshpande, is directed by Vijay Jayapal. It follows the story of a boatman who becomes the caretaker of a Himalayan resort after an attempted suicide.

"Nirvana Inn is very unique in its narrative. We hardly see this style in Indian cinema. I loved how the reality of my role easily slips into nightmarish vision. Very intelligently done. Never played a role of this kind. I think Vijay Jayapal has a lot to offer to Indian cinema. I hope he gets what he really wants to," said Adil.

Sandhya shared that director Jayapal brings a simple real personal approach to his films and a "normalcy in the handling of relationships between characters and a palpable emotional thread occasionally which is interesting, especially in the genre of horror it's more uncomfortable and then terrifying. For me this role was easy and then not."

Nirvana Inn, which had its world premiere at the Busan International Film Festival 2019, will be available on the digital platform Cinemarepreneur.

The film is produced by Stray Factory, Uncombed Buddha, Stop Whinging (Australia) and Harman Ventures in association with Magic Hour Films (Singapore).

The producers said in a collective statement: "With theatres closed and OTTs crowded, independent films have to find truly independent ways of distributing their film. We have decided on an unconventional release because this gives the power to the audience to decide the fate of the film, we hope this sets a trend for many more independent films."

BREAK THE CYCLE OF ABUSE

India saw a sharp escalation in the cases of violence against women during the lockdown. RAMA SHARMA reports that the situation is worse in remote areas as women neither have information regarding their rights nor have access to necessary resources

Last week on November 25, people from across the world protested violence and abuse against women on International Day for Elimination of Violence against Women. In the context of the ongoing pandemic, a United Nations report suggests that all types of violence against women and girls, particularly domestic, has intensified. Several women's rights organisations across the world are demanding their respective governments to take effective measures to safeguard young girls and women caught in the cycle of violence.

Considered to be the 'Shadow Pandemic', growing amid the COVID-19 crisis, the UN has stated that to stop the same, global collective efforts are needed. 'As COVID-19 cases continue to strain health services, essential services such as domestic violence shelters and helplines have reached capacity. More needs to be done to prioritise addressing violence against women in COVID-19 response and recovery efforts', highlighted the report published by the UN.

India, which reported a 7.3 per cent increase in rape cases from 2018 to 2019 as per the National Crimes Record Bureau, saw sharp escalation in incidences of violence against women during the nationwide lockdown implemented to contain the spread of virus. As per different news reports, the National Commission of Women (NCW) received 13,410 complaints of crimes against women between March-September 2020, of which 4,350 were domestic violence. Complaints peaked in the March-May period with 1/3rd of them being filed in these three months

These days, with a pandemic raging, this is what life can look like: Staring at your face on Zoom for hours instead of occasionally glimpsing it in the mirror. Living out the days in loungewear. Wearing minimal makeup because no one sees much of you. Considering an investment in home exercise equipment because gyms are closed or restricted.

The pandemic has forced people to spend more time with themselves than ever. Along the way, it has reshaped and broadened the way many think about and prioritise how they treat themselves — what has come to be called self-care.

The pandemic-era incarnation of self-care isn't about buying a signature outfit, wearing a trendy shade of lipstick or getting a perfect haircut. It has, for many, put the purpose and meaning of life front and centre, reconfiguring priorities and needs as the virus-infected months drift by. No longer are worries about longevity and fears of mortality mere hypotheticals. They are 2020's reality.

It is this daunting reality that has skyrocketed the importance of "me" time: stress-baking the latest viral creation, tending to a garden, learning a new skill, getting dressed like you're going out just to feel some semblance of normalcy. "People are social beings. And while the social fabric has been torn down, and you can't be a normal social person, you have been more focused on yourself," says Rod Little, CEO of Edgewell Personal Care, which makes Schick and Bull Dog products. Rod adds, "It's beautiful for longevity, as opposed to how I she wears a cat-eye look with natural, peach-colored lipstick. She did her makeup "to cheer myself up." But when it comes to consumer products, the pandemic is pushing makeup aside as people gravitate towards skin care products. The virus is even turning the "lipstick index" upside down.

Typically, lipstick sales skyrocket when the economy gets rough because it is an inexpensive way to feel good. But during the pandemic, makeup sales have been rocky, and sales of skincare products are up. In fact, 70 per cent of consumers scaled back their use of makeup this year, according to the NPD Group Inc, a market research firm. As a result, skincare has edged makeup up as the top category in the beauty industry's market share from January through August.

"People are being more mindful of what they are putting on their skin because of the pandemic," says Lauren Yavor, a beauty influencer.

Beauty chains and department stores are ramping up offerings in moisturisers and bath and body products. Walmart teamed up with Unilever, maker of Dove and Suave, to launch shops called "Find Your Happy Place" aimed at customers looking to destress. The concept, in the works before the pandemic, was accelerated by one year.

Within makeup, eyeshadow and eyeliner as well as false eyelashes are thriving as people play up the features that are peeking through their masks when they're out, says Larissa Jensen, NPD's beauty industry advisor. Hair products saw an 11 per cent sales increase during the third quarter as people take a DIY approach to colouring and styling.

Says Ed Eggleston Bracey, chief operating officer of Unilever North America's personal care and beauty division: "This is a wellness revolution."

A deeper importance How deep does this run? It is all the pandemic self-care working, or are people are just going through haphazard motions? One psychologist compares it to a roller coaster — up on some days, down on others.

"Some days, you have a great day when you did all the things you wanted to do. You got up on time, you made a salad. And then the next day, it's Cheetos for lunch," says Dr Vaile Wright, a senior director at the American Psychological Association.

Being kind to one's self feels especially important during the pandemic, where every aspect of human life has been impacted and there is little control over what's next. That level of uncertainty is unnerving, Wright says, and further depletes already limited energy levels.

Self-care, of course, is only one dimension of coping during stressful times. Surveys have shown a sharp increase in anxiety disorders. Many therapists are reporting a 50 per cent increase in caseloads. Virtual mental health services are booming — another form of self-care, in a more medical sense. "Having a toolbox of coping skills is really critical," Wright says. She highlights other types of self-care like meditation, journaling and organising — each of which has its own culture and committed practitioners. "We have a tendency to isolate emotionally. It is really important that people don't do that," Wright says.

Ultimately, "self-care" contains as many definitions as there are people who take care of themselves — a Google search of the term will show you that. The World Health Organisation takes an expansive view, describing it as a "broad concept that includes hygiene, lifestyle, social habits, income levels and cultural beliefs — and, in the best cases, can "strengthen national institutions" to encourage a society's overall health.

For all the horror the pandemic has brought, it has also revealed things that matter. And from the way people have reacted through this time, it seems clear that, in all the forms it takes, self-care matters — particularly right now, particularly with so many unknowns still ahead. —AP

A better world

If we want all sections of society to have moral values, we need to educate people about the right religious beliefs, says RAJYOGI BRAHMAKUMAR NIKUNJ JI Offlately, there has been a lot of buzz around the topic of values in every profession. To achieve this, the need for values in all walks of life and human activity emanates from the growing realisation that all conflicts arise from infringement or dissonance of values and that the problems of deterioration in the state of law and order and the lack of harmony have arisen because of violation of values by people. Therefore, we must not miss the essential moral dimension if we want to have peace and happiness in our life and harmony and synchronicity in the society. However, it is little realised that values are derived from our beliefs. Hence, our visions and aspirations determine the set of values necessary to realise our goals and ideals.

There is no human being, however remote from the civilised society he might be living, who has absolutely no beliefs as they are basic to life. Even a cave-man has some values but there is no value which is not derived from some belief knowingly or unknowingly. So, we should be clear in our mind as to what do we mean when we talk of a particular value. In other words, we should be aware of the particular 'belief system' that is behind that value. For example, when Mahatma Gandhi talked of non-violence, he included Brahmacharya also in his concept of Ahimsa. He said that a person, who aspires Ahimsa as a value in his life, must follow celibacy. So, when he pledged himself to it, he announced that he would consider his wife as his mother. So, he did not talk of human values without non-violence was pretty different from what many others, professing the observance of these values would say.

Similarly, if we were to ascertain what 'tolerance' as a value meant to different communities, we would have to know their religious beliefs. Like, in some religions, the concept of definition of tolerance does not include tolerance to the condemnation of, or even adverse comment on their sacred book or a derogatory remark about a revered person in the history of their religion. In such matters, they feel that they are under attack and hence they feel highly provoked and throw tolerance to the winds. So, tolerance has a limited scope in their value system because they think that their beliefs are such.

History is witness to many events where numerous places of worship of a religion were destroyed by people of another religion. They initiated attacks on and acts of destruction of, what was a holy place to the followers of another faith, because, according to the belief of the former, 'the holy place' of others was a place of false beliefs and practises and, therefore, it was natural for them to destroy such places. Thus, the value, called 'respect' for the faith and the holy places of other religions or sects had a very narrow scope.

The above mentioned examples should make it clear that all systems of human values have the same background and implying the same virtue because their belief systems are different. So, if we now wish to transform the world and have moral values in all sections of society, we will have to work to educate people to have right beliefs because, without transforming them, you cannot have a changed value system with or without the latter, you cannot have a better world.

The greatest glory in living lies not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall.

ANXIETY LINKED TO ALZHEIMER'S ONSET RISK

Researchers have discovered that anxiety is associated with an increased rate of progression from mild cognitive impairment to Alzheimer's disease.

Anxiety has been frequently observed in patients with mild cognitive impairment, although its role in disease progression is not well documented.

"We know that volume loss in certain areas of the brain is a factor that predicts progression to Alzheimer's disease," said study senior author Maria Vittoria Spannato from the University of South Carolina, US. "In this study, we wanted to see if anxiety had an effect on brain structure, or if the effect of anxiety was independent from brain structure in favouring the progression of disease," Spannato added.

The study group included 339 patients, average age of 72 years, from the Alzheimer's Disease Neuroimaging Initiative 2 cohort.

SEROTONIN ZONES IDENTIFIED

Researchers have identified specific areas of the brain that individually promote patience through the action of serotonin, a chemical that the body produces.

The research, published in the journal, Science Advances, gains significance in view of the fact that learning to suppress the impulse for instant gratification is often vital for future success, but how patience is regulated in the brain remains poorly understood.

Serotonin is one of the most famous neurotransmitters of behaviour, helping to regulate mood, sleep-wake cycles and appetite," said study co-author Katsuhiko Miyazaki from Okinawa Institute of Science and Technology Graduate University in Japan.

The study on mice showed that serotonin-releasing neurons from dorsal raphe nucleus (DRN) penetrate many areas of the brain, including the nucleus accumbens (NAc), orbitofrontal cortex (OFC) and medial prefrontal cortex (mPFC).

A PERSON'S ESSENCE REMAINS SAME ALL LIFE

In a unique study, researchers have now shown that the essence of an individual remains largely stable over the years. "In our study, we tried to answer the question of whether we are the same person throughout our lives," said study author Miguel Rubianes from the Complutense University of Madrid (UCM) in Spain.

"In conjunction with the previous literature, our results indicate that there is a component that remains stable while another part is more susceptible to change over time," Rubianes added.

The 'continuity of the self' — the capacity for self-awareness and self-recognition — remains stable whereas other components such as physical aspects, physiological processes and even attitudes, beliefs and values are more liable to change.

Even components such as personality traits tend to change slightly over the years, but "the sense of being oneself is preserved, improving our understanding of human nature," Rubianes said.

GENUS OF BACTERIA IN THE GUT LINKED TO IBS

Researchers have detected a connection between Brachyspira, a genus of bacteria in the intestines, and irritable bowel syndrome (IBS) — especially the form that causes diarrhoea.

Although the discovery needs confirmation in larger studies, there is hope that it might lead to new remedies for many people with irritable bowel syndrome, the study published in the journal Gut, reported.

The pathogenic bacterial genus, Brachyspira, is not usually present in human gut flora. A new study links the bacterium to IBS, particularly the form with diarrhoea. The bacterium hides under the mucus layer protecting the intestinal surface from fecal bacteria. "Unlike most other gut bacteria, Brachyspira is in direct contact with the cells and covers their surface," said study author Karolina Sjögberg Jabbar from the University of Gothenburg, Sweden.

EMOTIONAL FLEXIBILITY HELPS RELATIONSHIPS

Being emotionally flexible may be one of the most important factors when it comes to longevity and overall health of romantic and familial relationships, say researchers.

The study, published in the Journal of Contextual Behavioral Science, statistically combined the results of 174 separate studies that had looked at acceptance and commitment therapy, mindfulness, and emotion regulation.

The researchers' aim was to clarify how and when emotional flexibility on one hand and inflexibility, mindless, and rigid inflexibility on the other were linked to the dynamics within families and romantic relationships.

"This meta-analysis underscores that being mindful and emotionally flexible in tough and challenging situations not only improves the lives of individuals, it might also strengthen and enrich their close relationships," said study co-author Ronald Rogge from the University of Rochester in the US.

Former Oz skipper makes second consecutive 62-ball hundred to lead hosts to ODI series win despite India's fight with bat Australia buried India under an avalanche of runs for a 51-run drubbing in the second ODI and an unassailable 2-0 series lead after the majestic Steve Smith produced another master-class in the form of a 64-ball 104 here at Sydney Cricket Ground on Sunday.

Batting first, Australia rode on five fifty-plus scores including Smith's blazing knock, to post an imposing 389 for four against a sluggish India.

This was the Australian run-machine's fifth century against India in the 50-over format and second on the trot after his ton in the series-opener, which came off 66 deliveries.

A target of 390 proved to be too much for India as they were stopped at 338 for nine, with captain Virat Kohli (89) and KL Rahul (76) finishing as their main contributors in what turned out to be another forgettable outing for the beleaguered visitors.

India started the big chase in earnest with the in-form Shikhar Dhawan (30) and Mayank Agarwal (28) dealing in boundaries from the onset.

If Agarwal found the fence twice in the first over, Dhawan struck Mitchell Starc for three successive fours to get the Indian innings going.

A magnificent cover drive by Agarwal took the visitors past 50 in 6.1 overs. However, in trying to go for one too many, Dhawan perished.

In came Kohli and he has mostly done through his illustrious career, the Indian captain played some delightful shots on the way to his 87-ball innings to keep the visitors in with a chance.

During his stay in the middle, Kohli pulled, drove, flicked and cut with plenty of success as India tried to keep the required rate within 9-10 runs per over.

But pacer Josh Hazlewood provided Australia their biggest breakthrough when he had Kohli caught brilliantly by a diving Moises Henriques at mid-wicket.

That brought Hardik Pandya in

I tried to whack the ball a bit too hard in the IPL, now I have started to hit the ball with a bit more finesse which is probably working better for me. I'm just playing nice cricketing shots... Nice to score some runs again for the team and get us to a good total.

We were completely outplayed: Kohli

PTI ■ SYDNEY

India skipper Virat Kohli had no qualms conceding that the visitors were outplayed by a confident and ruthless Australia in the series-deciding second ODI on Sunday, pinning the blame on the ineffective and inconsistent bowling by his side.

"We were completely outplayed. I think with the ball, we were not that effective, we didn't hit the areas that we wanted to consistently and they have a strong batting line-up, they know the conditions and the angles well," the middle and the all-rounder, in the company of KL Rahul, played some big shots. But they were never going to be enough.

Rahul departed after striking five sixes and four boundaries in his 66-ball knock. India completely lost the plot after that.

Australia fast bowler Pat Cummins picked up 3/67 in his 10 overs.

Besides Smith's 104-run knock, swashbuckling opener David Warner smashed 83 off 77 while skipper Aaron Finch contributed 60 in a first-wicket stand of 142 in under 23 overs.

Kohli said at the post-match presentation.

Chasing Australia's 389, India finished at 338 for 9 with Kohli (89) and KL Rahul (76) being the top-scorer.

"Look at the scoreboard, we got 340 and still fell short by 50 odd, so the chase always felt steep and we knew one or two wickets would take the required rate to up to 13, 16 and so we had to keep hitting," the India skipper said.

"They took the chances that they created in the field, which was the difference, otherwise it would have been a much closer game."

"...Credit to them, they bowled much more consistently and used the dimensions well."

Kohli said the two catches which led to his and Shreyas Iyer's (38) dismissal were the "defining moments" of the game. "Me and KL (Rahul) were talking if we stick around till 40-41 (overs), even 100 in the last 10 overs with Hardik to come, it was game on, that was the game plan but the two catches that they hung on to were the defining moments," he said.

Warner suffers injury, taken to hospital for scans

PTI ■ SYDNEY

Australia's swashbuckling opener David Warner's participation in the remainder of the limited-overs series against India was thrown into doubt after he suffered a groin injury during the second ODI on Sunday.

Warner hobbled off the field after he struggled to get up following a dive in the fourth over of the Indian innings. A car waited outside the Sydney Cricket Ground to take the senior player to a nearby hospital for undergoing scans.

Asked about the opener's condition at the post-match presentation ceremony, Australian skipper Aaron Finch said he was not aware of its severity but didn't expect the south-paw to be available.

"No idea. We've got to reshuffle it around, I don't think he'll be available," Finch said after the game. Considering the way Warner grimaced in pain after falling while diving to stop the ball, it appears he could not only miss the third and final ODI but also the following three-match T20 series. The Twenty-20 games are scheduled to start on December 4 in Canberra.

Our bowlers need to adapt to conditions quicker: KL

PTI ■ SYDNEY

Backing his struggling bowlers to the hilt, India's vice captain KL Rahul on Sunday said that Jasprit Bumrah and Co have endured hard lessons in adapting to conditions so far and it is not a surprise that wickets have been hard to come by on batting-friendly Australian tracks.

The Indian bowlers, who did exceedingly well in the IPL before landing in Australia, have bled runs in the first two ODIs, letting the hosts run away with a decisive 2-0 series lead.

The ever-reliable Bumrah and the fiery Mohammed Shami have been made to look quite ordinary by the home team batsmen, who have scored at will.

"I would not agree when you say they are struggling. It's different conditions, different format. It's learning for us to sit back and think of how to do better when playing on such good batting wickets," Rahul said at the post-match conference.

KL Rahul speaking to the media

"In white-ball cricket, it is vital to get wickets regularly, then only you can keep the run-rate under check... We have to find (our) mantra to get wickets and the batting unit has to think about how to stretch the 30-40-run partnerships," he assessed.

Rahul said Australian bowlers could do well because of the familiarity with the conditions.

"We did not adapt quick enough. It's a learning curve for the bowling group to adapt quicker."

Asked if it's just a bad phase for Bumrah, who struggled even in New Zealand earlier this year, Rahul said the speedster will come back strongly.

"We all know Jasprit is very fiery and competitive on the field. He means a lot to this set up, we know the value of Jasprit. It's about time that a champion player comes back and delivers and gets wickets for us."

"In New Zealand and Australia, the wickets are too good to bat, you will see that bowlers will not get wickets, that's acceptable."

Phillips' record-breaking ton sets up Kiwis win

AFP ■ MOUNT MAUNGANUI

West Indies captain Kieron Pollard accused his side of not performing to international standards on Sunday after New Zealand comprehensively won the second T20I by 72 runs on the back of a record century by Glenn Phillips.

New Zealand wrapped up the series at Mount Maunganui with a game to spare, after winning the opening match on Friday by five wickets, as Phillips provided a batting masterclass.

Called up to the T20 side while regular skipper Kane Williamson focuses on the upcoming Tests, Phillips plundered eight sixes and 10 fours on his way to 108 as New Zealand posted a mammoth 238/3 and then restricted the West Indies to 166/9.

"You never know when the next opportunity is going to come

Glenn Phillips celebrating his century

New Zealand stand-in skipper Tim Southee called Phillips' performance "incredible", adding that his two catches, one diving at full stretch on the boundary, and the sharp run out showed "he's got that X-factor about him".

But while Phillips, along with Devon Conway who produced an unbeaten 85, put the game firmly in New Zealand's hands, opposing captain Pollard was left fuming.

After winning the toss and sending New Zealand into bat under overcast skies, Pollard believed the West Indies were in control when the Black Caps reached the halfway mark at 84/2. "But between overs 10 to 15 we sort of lost it there," Pollard said. "In terms of the energy and feel and erratics in the field, that's not the standard that we want to set for ourselves, and not the standard anyone wants to see in international cricket."

Walegn, Yehualaw win ADHM with record times

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Ethiopians Amedework Walegn and Yalemzerf Yehualaw smashed event records to win the men's and women's titles respectively in the Airtel Delhi Half Marathon held in a bio-secure environment amid the Covid-19 pandemic, here on Sunday.

The results in this World Athletics Gold Label road race were unprecedented with both the elite race winners re-writing the event records.

Both Walegn (58:53 seconds) and Yehualaw pocketed $27,000 first prize and an additional $10,000 as event record bonus.

In fact, Yehualaw ran the second fastest women's half marathon ever. Her timing of 1:04:46 was just a quarter of a second outside the world record time (1:04:31) of compatriot Ababel Yeshaneh, who finished third.

For India, Tokyo Olympics-bound Avinash Sable smashed the national record with a time of 1:00:30.

The 26-year-old Sable, from Maharashtra, was 10th overall. He pocketed ₹3.5 lakh first prize and an additional ₹1 lakh for setting event record among Indians. According to the Athletics Federation of India's official records, the earlier national half marathon record stands at 1:03:46 in the name of Kalidas Hirave of Maharashtra.

In the men's elite race, last year's Silver medalist Walegn beat compatriot and defending champion Andamlak Belihu in a nail-biting finish in event record time of 58:53 seconds. Walegn had won a Bronze at the World Half Marathon among Indian elite runners, clocking 1:00:30. This was the first time an Indian ran below 61 minutes in the ADHM.

Srinu Bugatha, who won the race last year, was second with a time of 1:04:16 while Durga Bahadur Budha was third, clocking 1:04:19.

In the star-studded women's elite race, Yehualaw surged ahead after the halfway mark to win in record time, bettering the earlier mark of 1:06:00 in the name of compatriot and defending champion Teshay Gemechu, who could not finish on podium this time.

Kenya's Ruth Chepngetich was second in 1:05:06 while another Ethiopian and world half marathon record-holder Ababel Yeshaneh was third in 1:05:21.

Yehualaw had finished second in last year's ADHM and third in the World Half Marathon last month.

Among Indians, Parul Chaudhary, who had finished second last year, took the Gold in 1:12:18 while Sanjivani Jadhav (1:13:00) and Komal Jagdale (1:14:04) were second and third respectively.
