Labourers dies after portion of old building falls on him

At a two-storey residential building at Sector-23A in Rohini, a 25-year-old labourer died when the portion of the building fell on him.

According to police, the incident took place around 9:30 am when the labourer, identified as Gurmeet Singh, was working on the construction site.

The labourer was rushed to the nearest hospital where he was declared brought dead.

According to the police, the building was situated at the corner of a lane which was under construction and the labourer was working on the roof.

The police are now investigating the matter.

Tie-up shutters, cut pan-gate

A tie-up of shopkeepers, traders and hoteliers against the Deputy Commissioner of Police (DCP) South-West, Anil Mittal, has been called off after the DCP assured them that their demands will be fulfilled.

The tie-up began on November 29 against the ban on the sale of firecrackers during Diwali and ChhathPuja.

The traders had been demanding the withdrawal of the ban on the sale of crackers, the reopening of the shops and the resumption of normal economic activities.

Mittal assured the traders that they would be consulted on a regular basis and their demands would be fulfilled.

He also assured them that all necessary measures would be taken to ensure the safety of the residents.

The traders have also been assured that the ban on the sale of firecrackers would be lifted in phases.

The DCP also informed the traders that a comprehensive plan would be formulated to ensure the safety of the residents during the festival.

Social distancing increasing loneliness in old people: Study

A new research adds to the growing body of evidence that social distancing introduced in response to COVID-19 in the pandemic has impacted loneliness in the older population and appears worse for the elderly.

The study found that increasing loneliness due to social distancing was associated with a smaller social network, lower perceived social support and a decrease in well-being. Participants demonstrated the negative impacts of social isolation and loneliness.

The study, which included a survey of more than 1,400 older people, reported that social distancing during the pandemic had a negative impact on social activity and well-being, and one author, Aron A. Hadland, University of Stirling, UK, stated: "We found no change in moderate physical activity and this study indicates a decrease in social support among older people," the authors noted.

Indian astronomers worked closely with Nobel laureate Andrea on Thirty Meter Telescope project: DST

The Thirty Meter Telescope (TMT) will be able to scan the universe in unprecedented detail, overcoming the inherent limitations of current telescopes. It will provide astronomers with the ability to observe the earliest stages of the universe’s formation, study the most distant galaxies, and probe the origins of black holes. The TMT’s unique design allows it to achieve higher resolution and sensitivity than any other telescope in the world.

The TMT is a joint project between the United States, Canada, and China, with additional partners including the United Kingdom and Japan. The project is funded by the US National Science Foundation, the National Research Council of Canada, and the Chinese Academy of Sciences.

The telescope, located on Mauna Kea in Hawaii, began construction in 2020 and is scheduled to be completed in 2025. It is expected to revolutionize our understanding of the cosmos and make significant contributions to fields such as astrophysics, cosmology, and exoplanet research.

The TMT will feature a segmented primary mirror with 33 individual mirrors, each measuring 8.4 meters in diameter. This combination of mirrors will provide the telescope with an effective aperture of 30 meters, allowing it to collect light from very distant objects.

The TMT will also incorporate advanced technologies such as adaptive optics, which can correct for atmospheric distortions to produce sharper images, and coronagraphs, which can block light from bright stars to reveal planets orbiting them. These technologies will enable astronomers to study the planets around other stars, potentially providing insights into the formation and evolution of our own solar system.

In addition to its scientific capabilities, the TMT project has significant economic and educational benefits for the countries involved. It promotes international collaboration, fosters scientific exchange, and provides training opportunities for young astronomers around the world.

KTR Jaleel in fresh trouble over fraudulent PhD thesis

It is a fresh boost for KTR Jaleel. The telangana health minister, who is embroiled in a controversy over allegations that he obtained a PhD degree from a fake university on the eve of the 2018 elections, is now facing fresh allegations. According to the video of a meeting held on Tuesday, the health minister, who is currently facing a storm of allegations, is now facing fresh allegations.

The video, which was recorded on Tuesday, shows KTR Jaleel in a meeting with doctors and healthcare workers in which he is seen discussing the issue of the fake degree.

The video also shows the health minister speaking about the issue of the fake degree, and how he is facing fresh allegations. The video has caused a stir among the political parties, with the opposition parties calling for the resignation of the minister.

Mr. Tharoor and Mr. Jaleel:

Mr. Tharoor and Mr. Jaleel have both denied the allegations, with Mr. Tharoor saying that he is not aware of any such allegations and Mr. Jaleel saying that he is not aware of any such allegations. Both of them have said that they will not comment on the matter until they have received a proper investigation.

The video has caused a stir among the political parties, with the opposition parties calling for the resignation of the minister. The opposition parties have said that the video is proof of the minister's nexus with the fake degree and that he should be immediately removed from his post.

The video is likely to cause further trouble for KTR Jaleel, who is currently facing a storm of allegations over his Ph.D. degree. The opposition parties have said that the video is proof of the minister's nexus with the fake degree and that he should be immediately removed from his post.
Bihar tug of war
Jayati Ghosh

The political heat in Bihar is palpable. The BJP has made it clear that it will not back down in its determined effort to retain this voter pot. The Congress, on the other hand, is trying to seize the moment. The mood in the state is none too friendly.

The frustration of voters is palpable, but in the absence of a viable alternative, the Congress appears to be the only game in town. The JD(U) and the RJD, once potent forces, have lost their grip on the electorate. The JD(U) has been reduced to a shells and the RJD has been reduced to a mere shadow of its former self.

The Congress, on the other hand, has been able to make inroads in the rural areas. The party has been able to capitalise on the issues of poverty, unemployment and corruption. The Congress has also been able to attract a number of disenchanted voters from the JD(U) and the RJD.

The situation in Bihar is complex and volatile. The Congress, with its established network and resources, has an edge. However, the BJP, with its strong base and well-oiled machinery, cannot be ignored.

The poll results in Bihar will be a test of the strength of the Congress and the BJP. The outcome will have implications for the national political landscape.

Accurate weather forecast a must

There is information on how farmers gain because of data availability but there is no data on how much they have lost due to a wrong forecast.

The President-elect has always espoused India’s cause in the US and lobbyd for an admnister of the world’s admas.

Biden’s Bharti policy

The US and India will need crafty and long-term strategies to step up the pace of their climate action. The US will be seeking mutual agreements to regularly report progress on their commitments. Biden’s ambition to see a net-zero economy by 2050 is also a good reason for India to look at the US as a possible partner. The US also wants to support India’s push for climate justice by seeking a just transition for fossil-fuel dependent countries and providing a vision for a low-carbon future.

The US has made clear that it will lead by example and set an example for the world to follow. Biden has called for a “whole-of-government” approach to climate change and has promised to rejoin the Paris Agreement. The US will also work with international organizations and other countries to strengthen the global climate response.

The US government under Biden has already taken several steps towards climate action. It has committed to reducing greenhouse gas emissions by 2030 and is working towards a net-zero carbon economy by 2050. The US is also investing in clean energy technologies and is working to support developing countries in their transition to a low-carbon future.

Overall, there is a strong case for India to work closely with the US on climate action. Both countries have a shared interest in mitigating the impacts of climate change and in ensuring a sustainable future for all. By working together, India and the US can make significant progress towards a greener, healthier, and more prosperous world.

David Attenborough’s ‘Earth: One Amazing Planet’

The film is a testament to the beauty and fragility of our planet. It is a reminder of the need to protect the environment and the importance of working together to achieve a sustainable future. The film is relevant to India as well, given the country’s commitment to climate action under the COP26 presidency.

India’s role in the film is not just as a showcase of its natural beauty, but also as a call to action. The film highlights the urgent need for action on climate change and encourages viewers to take steps to reduce their own carbon footprint. India’s participation in the film is a cyberpunk moment in the global climate debate, and a reminder of the country’s ongoing commitment to environmental protection.

Biden moves forward with his transition plans

WASHINGTON: US President Donald Trump on Monday said there were “no irregularities or widespread key battleground states, but indicated that it will explore all possible options to obtain an accurate vote count.”

Outgoing President Donald Trump has declined to concede that he lost the November 3 presidential race, despite evidence of widespread legal fights over his election defeat.

WILMINGTON: President-elect Joe Biden has said he will forge ahead with his administration even if the US Supreme Court rules in favor of President Donald Trump, which is expected to happen on Monday.

Biden said the Supreme Court’s decision will not affect the transition process because he plans to announce his team of health experts, economic advisers, and lawyers to prepare the White House.

The announcement comes after Trump’s legal team challenged the results of several key states in the US presidential election.

Trump campaign accuses FDA and Pfizer of withholding Covid-19 vaccine announcement before elections

WASHINGTON: US President Donald Trump accused Pfizer and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) of withholding the new Covid-19 vaccine announcement until after the election, saying that the politicians are “playing politics.”

The FDA and Pfizer have yet to announce when the new Covid-19 vaccine will be made available, but both companies have said they expect the vaccine to be approved in the coming weeks.

Biden eyes Washington veterans for key admin posts

WILMINGTON: President-elect Joe Biden is looking to fill White House jobs with more veterans, including notable departures from four potential cabinet positions.

It is also reported that Donald Trump filed his turn over with veterans and government.

The names under consideration include

- Defense Secretary Mark Esper
- Veterans Affairs Secretary Robert Wilkie
- Transportation Secretary Elaine Chao
- Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin

The task is given to even more veteran expertise in key positions in the Trump administration and will likely be filled with someone with more seasoned military experience.
