LJP dumps Nitish, to go solo

LJP to fight against JD(U) candidates, but remains part of NDA

NAVIN UPADHYAY ■ NEW DELHI

The ambition of LJP chief Chirag Paswan to emerge as a major player in Bihar may change the political landscape of the State as the Lok Janshakti Party (LJP) on Sunday decided to go it alone in the Assembly polls starting month-end.

"Due to ideological differences with the Janata Dal (United) JD(U), a member of the alliance at the national level and in the Assembly polls, the LJP has decided to fight the elections in Bihar separately from the alliance," a party statement said after its parliamentary board meeting chaired by Chirag.

The decision is seen as a "surgical strike" on Chief Minister Nitish Kumar since the LJP will field its candidate against every single JD(U) candidate while contesting close to 140 seats in the 243-seat State Assembly contest.

The LJP said it will remain part of the NDA and its winning candidates will help form a BJP-led Government in Bihar. "We will not accept Nitish Kumar as Chief Minister at any cost," said an LJP leader.

The move will give better bargaining power to the BJP post-elections and may adversely impact its relationship with the BJP if Ram Vilas Paswan were to continue as a Union Minister in the Cabinet. Ram Vilas has undergone heart surgery in the national Capital and will remain hospitalised for a few weeks. Sources said the LJP will remain a part of the NDA at the Centre and Ram Vilas will retain his position in the Union Cabinet.

Lok Janshakti Party chief Chirag Paswan, along with party leaders, after the meeting ahead of Bihar Assembly elections in New Delhi on Sunday

In the resolution, the LJP said it will not fight the election under Kumar's leadership of the ruling alliance in the State, but insisted its MLAs will work to strengthen the hand of Prime Minister Narendra Modi. The meeting was chaired by its president Chirag.

A section of the JD(U) leaders suspect that Chirag's decision may not have been

- The decision is seen as a "surgical strike" on Chief Minister Nitish Kumar
- The LJP said it will remain part of the NDA and its winning candidates will help form a BJP-led Government in Bihar
- A section of the JD(U) leaders suspect that Chirag's decision may not have been possible without tacit support of the BJP
- The LJP is likely to field a number of JD(U) rebels and strategically utilise caste factors to inflict maximum damage on the JD(U) candidates
- JD(U) and BJP are likely to contest 119 seats each and leave five seats for Jitan Ram Manjhi's Hindustani Awam Morcha possible without tacit support of the BJP. "How can Chirag dare to do this without the support of the BJP? It's clear they want to remove Kumar post-elections," said a JD(U) leader. Chirag's decision will throw open interesting possibilities after the elections in case the BJP gets more number of seats than the JD(U). It is expected that since Kumar is facing serious anti-incumbency his strike rate will be much lower than the BJP. The presence of LJP candidate will also harm the prospects of JD(U) candidates. The LJP is likely to field a number of JD(U) rebels and strategically utilise caste factors to inflict maximum damage on the JD(U) candidates. In such a scenario, Nitish may struggle to retain his chair post-elections even if the NDA were to form a Government in the State. "Given the situation, the JD(U) will be far behind the BJP, and that will open interesting possibilities," said a BJP leader from Bihar. However, he warned that the confusion among the cadre of the BJP and the JD(U) and distrust at every level could also hurt the prospects of the alliance and may help RJD-led Mahagathbandhan on several seats.

In 2015, the LJP had contested 42 seats and won two. The JD(U) was then part of the Opposition alliance which decisively defeated the NDA.

Chirag sent an unmistakable message on Saturday about his future move when he posted a message on a social media, saying, "I am proud that I got an opportunity to work as an MP with a Prime Minister whose skillful leadership is known across the world."

Cong Govts in States to bring Act to put farm laws on hold

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

In no mood to accept the Centre's controversial farm Bills, the Congress has asked its State Governments to convene a special Assembly sessions to pass a Bill to defer implementation of the NDA Government's farm laws cleared by Parliament during the Monsoon Session and approved by President Ram Nath Kovind last month.

The draft version of the farm related Bills sent to the Congress-ruled States allows the State Governments to decide on the date of implementation of the Centre's laws and ensure that contract farming between the farmer and any company, or aggregator, cannot take place below a minimum support price (MSP).

The Modi Government's new farm Bills have triggered massive protests across the country by the Congress, Opposition parties, farmers' associations. Significantly the Bills passed by the States will also have to be cleared by the President of India, who can either approve or refuse to give them his assent.

The proposed Bills address the two of the Congress grievances about the new laws — it disallows MSP for farmers and opens them up (particularly the more vulnerable small and marginal farmers) to the predatory instincts of corporates and large-scale private players.

Former party chief Rahul Gandhi hit out at the "black

Party calls for special Assembly sessions

laws" and said the Congress would repeal them when in power and on Sunday he protested in Punjab.

The Congress, along with other Opposition parties, has launched countrywide protests against the Bills. The Congress sources said the party will also request the States to pass the new Bills where it is in alliance in Maharashtra and Jharkhand. "Besides we will also request States ruled by non-Congress and non-BJP Governments such as Kerala and West Bengal," said the AICC sources.

The Centre has already clarified that the laws give farmers the ability to sell their produce at markets and prices of their choosing. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has verbally assured farmers they can continue to avail of an MSP and that the Government will buy food grains at that price.

Farmers, however, remain unconvinced and have called for clauses that guarantee MSP and protect weaker members of their community against the dangers of contract farming.

Congress chief Sonia Gandhi recently asked party-ruled states to "explore possibilities to pass laws... which allows state legislatures to... negate the anti-agriculture central laws".

"This would enable the states to bypass unacceptable anti-farmers' provisions in the three draconian agricultural laws... would also alleviate the farmers from the grave injustice done by the Modi government and BJP," the Congress said in its statement.

PNS ■ HATHRAS

Around 700-800 people on Sunday held a caste-based meeting at the residence of former BJP MLA Rajvir Singh Pehalvan here on the issue of the death of a Dalit woman after she was sexually assaulted.

The meeting was held a day after UP Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath ordered a CBI probe into the incident. Heavy police force was deployed in the vicinity of the former BJP MLA's house, located around 8-9 kilometres from the victim's village. One of the organisers of the meeting and Pehalvan's son Manveer Singh, however, denied that the gathering comprised members from the so-called upper castes and said they were from "different sections of society".

"We welcome the CBI enquiry ordered by the Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister.

Bhim Army chief visits Hathras, seeks Y security for rape victim's family

Bhim Army chief BChandrashekar Azad on Sunday travelled to Hathras to meet the family of the 19-year-old gangrape victim just a day after Congress leaders Rahul Gandhi and Priyanka Gandhi visited Uttar Pradesh.

Meanwhile, police lathi-charge Samajwadi Party and RLD workers for defying the curfew orders imposed in the village. Azad, who has been raising his voice against the incident, marched toward the district this afternoon along with his supporters but was stopped about 20 km before Hathras.

The Bhim Army chief was later allowed to meet the family. "I demand 'Y security' for the family or I'll take them to my house, they aren't safe here. We want an enquiry to be done under the supervision of a retired Supreme Court judge," Azad said after meeting the victim's family.

If Cong comes to power, will axe farm laws: Rahul

Cong leader holds tractor rally in Moga, hits out at Govt for haste in passing 3 Bills

PNS ■ CHANDIGARH/MOGA

Standing up for the farming community in their agitation against the Centre's three contentious farm laws, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Sunday hit out at the BJP-led Central Government, while declaring that the "anti-farmer" legislations would be revoked if the Congress was voted to power.

Rahul, who joined Punjab's farmers in the heartland during the ongoing protests on Sunday as a part of his three-day tractor rally 'Kheti Bachao Yatra', minced no words to blame that the Narendra Modi Government wanted to destroy the three pillars of Indian agriculture — MSP, food grain procurement and mandis — by passing these three black laws.

He questioned the Central Government's "hurry" in bringing these laws in the times of Covid, while also blaming it for "snatching land and bread from the farmers".

That was not all, Rahul also went on to dub the BJP-led Central Government "a kathputli (puppet) Government whose strings are in the hands of the Adanis and Ambanis".

Addressing a rally, Rahul said, "I guarantee you, the day the Congress Government is formed (at the Centre), these three black laws would be scrapped and consigned to wastepaper basket." He added, "And if farmers are happy with these laws, then why are they agitating across the country? Why is every farmer of Punjab agitating?"

"What was the need to implement these laws amid Covid-19? What was the haste? If you had to implement, you should have discussed in Lok Sabha-Rajya Sabha. The PM says laws are being framed for farmers. If it's the case, why didn't you discuss openly in the House?" Rahul said.

Heavily criticising the BJP Government-led policies and laws for the farmers, Rahul said, "People of Punjab provide food to the country, you are the backbone of our country. Why is Modiji breaking this backbone to benefit a few people? The Congress will never let this happen."

Rahul made it clear that the Congress party will not let farmers' interest to get hurt by the new farm laws and assured the farmers that the laws will be scrapped the day the Congress comes to power at the Centre.

Centre to give 25 crore people Covid vaccine shots by July

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Government will try to receive and utilise 400 to 500 million doses of the coronavirus vaccine to cover around 25 crore people by July 2021, Health Minister Harsh Vardhan said on Sunday.

The Minister was replying to questions from his social media followers on the fourth episode of Sunday Samvaad. Pointing out that a high-level expert body was looking into all aspects of the coronavirus vaccines, the minister said, "Our rough estimate and the target would be to receive and utilise 400 to 500 million doses covering approximately 25 crore people by July 2021."

"Our utmost priority is how to ensure vaccine for each and everybody in the country," Vardhan said, adding, "Our topmost priority in coronavirus immunisation to be given to frontline healthcare workers."

Next 48 hours critical for Trump's Covid care, says White House chief

AP ■ ST CHARLES (US)

President Donald Trump's startling Covid-19 diagnosis serves as a cruel reminder of the pervasive spread of the coronavirus and shows how tenuous of a grip the nation has on the crisis, health experts said. With US infections rising for several weeks, Trump became one of the tens of thousands of Americans who test positive each day.

He went through a "very concerning" period Friday and the next 48 hours "will be critical" in his care, White House chief of staff Mark Meadows said Saturday. That differed dramatically from the rosy assessment by Trump's staff and doctors, who took pains not to reveal the president had received supplemental oxygen at the White House before he went to a military hospital.

Some of Trump's top advisers and allies also have tested positive recently. "No one is entirely out of the virus's reach, even those supposedly inside a protective bubble," said Josh Michaud, associate director of global health policy with the Kaiser Family Foundation in Washington.

Eight months after the virus reached the United States, worrying signals mounted of what's ahead this fall. The NFL has postponed two games after players on three teams tested positive. Some hospitals in Wisconsin have run low on space, and experts warned of a likely surge in infections during the colder months ahead.

Some economists said it could take as long as late 2023 for the job market to fully recover.

Don't lower the guard: CM Yogi stresses on breaking Covid infection chain

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Expressing satisfaction over the drop in the number of active Covid cases in the state by 22,000 in the last 17 days, Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath asked the people not to lower the guard, saying all efforts should be made to break the chain of infection.

He said that no effort should be spared to increase the Covid recovery rate in the state.

On Sunday, 3,930 fresh coronavirus positive cases were reported across the state taking the tally to 4,14,466 while 5,226 COVID-19 patients recovered. With the recoveries in the last 24 hours, 3,62,052 coronavirus infected people have been cured in the state.

Presiding over a high-level Unlock review meeting at his official residence here on Sunday, the chief minister asked officials to pay more attention to those districts from where more coronavirus positive cases were being reported. "In the first phase, go for the geographical mapping of the districts where more than 100 cases are being reported every day and identify the high-incidence clusters. In the next phase, districts with 50 or more cases should be taken up," he said.

The chief minister said that containment zones should be marked in identified clusters to ensure effective infection control. He said every person in a cluster should be tested and home delivery of essentials should be arranged.

The chief minister took stock of the Covid situation in Lucknow and Kanpur Nagar and directed the nodal officers of these districts, the additional chief secretary (Panchayati Raj) and Principal Secretary (Health) to chalk out an effective strategy to check the spread of coronavirus.

"Maintain communication with the home-isolated patients and patients admitted in hospitals through CM Helpline to get feedback on their condition. It raises their confidence and helps in building faith in the system," Yogi said.

He also asked people to study the treatment pattern of recovered COVID-19 patients and use it in future as a reference point.

Laying emphasis on dialogue, the chief minister said that any situation would be diffused by effective communication.

He directed the police officials to ensure total sensitivity and promptness in cases related to women, girls and Scheduled Castes/ Scheduled Tribes.

Asking officials to ensure proper arrangements at the paddy purchase centres, the chief minister said that the payment made to the farmers should not be less than the minimum support price (MSP) in any circumstances.

He also insisted that the farmers should be made aware of the need for drying and cleaning of the paddy before bringing it to the purchase centres.

Additional Chief Secretary (Health) Amit Mohan Prasad said during the past 17 days the number of active patients had come down by around 22,000. He said on Sunday, the number of active patients stood at 46,385 while the number of recovered patients was 3,62,052.

He said on Saturday 1,59,128 samples were tested and now the total Covid tests in the state had reached another milestone of 1,07,39,769.

Prasad said there were 21,648 asymptomatic COVID-19 patients in home isolation while 3,486 patients were admitted at private hospitals and the rest patients were recovering in government run Covid hospitals.

Over 4.03 lakh surveillance teams have visited 1,30,570 areas of the state and visited 2.60 crore houses to check the health of over 12.90 crore people.

BJP gears up for Assembly bypolls

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

The ruling Bharatiya Janata Party has gone full throttle to win the by-elections in all the seven Assembly constituencies in Uttar Pradesh, slated to be held on November 3, with Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath holding virtual meetings with the party workers in these constituencies and asking them to spread the message of good governance among the masses.

"Go out to the villages and spread the message of good work being done by both the Central and the state governments for the welfare of the people," the chief minister said while addressing party workers on Sunday.

The chief minister is leading the campaign from the front as he has already attended a meeting in Unnao.

BJP state president Swatantra Dev Singh has already addressed election meetings in two assembly constituencies.

BJP state vice president and MLC Vijay Bahadur Pathak said here on Sunday that the party had already deployed state ministers and other senior leaders in all the seven Assembly constituencies going to bypolls.

"The party was preparing for the bypolls even during the lockdown and the state leadership was in touch virtually with all the booth-level party workers in a phased manner," he said.

Pathak said that the party had screened the candidates for the bypolls and the final names would be announced soon.

As the BJP is all geared up for the bypolls, the opposition parties — Samajwadi Party, Bahujan Samaj Party, Congress and Aam Aadmi Party — have not yet launched their campaign.

Congress has announced candidates for just one seat of Bangarmau so far while other political parties are yet to select their candidates.

However, the BSP has selected some candidates but has not yet made an official announcement of their names.

On the other hand, the SP state leadership is in touch with the leaders of the Assembly seats where bypolls will be held. "We will come up with our candidates soon," SP spokesman Rajendra Chaudhry said.

However, the Election Commission will start the process of nominations in these seven seats on October 9.

Out of the seven Assembly seats going to bypolls, six were held by BJP and one by the SP. Though the results of these seven seats will not affect the fate of the government, it will leave a big political message for the UP assembly elections in 2022.

Among the Assembly seats where the bypolls will be held, Tundla seat of Firozabad fell vacant after the resignation of BJP's SP Baghel on being elected to Lok Sabha. BJP's Kuldeep Singh Sengar's Bangarmau seat of Unnao fell vacant as his membership was cancelled after he was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Unnao rape case. Apart from this, after the demise of Paras Nath Yadav of Samajwadi Party, the Malhahi assembly seat in Jaunpur fell vacant.

The seats of BJP's Janmejaya Singh from Deoria Sadar and Virender Sirohi from Bulandshahr fell vacant after their deaths, while Ghatampur seat of Kanpur fell vacant following the death of BJP's minister Kamal Rani Varun who died of COVID-19.

The Naugawan Sadat seat in Amroha fell vacant after international cricketer and state minister Chetan Chauhan died due to coronavirus infection. There are eight vacant Assembly seats but the Election Commission is not holding the bypoll to Suar seat in Rampur due to some legal complications. The Suar seat fell vacant after disqualification of Abdullah Azam, son of Samajwadi Party leader Mohammad Azam Khan due to age forgery.

The nominations will commence from October 9 and will end on October 16 while scrutiny of papers would be done on October 17. Candidates can withdraw their nominations till October 19.

The polling would be held on November 3 and the counting of votes would be taken up on November 10 along with the counting of Bihar assembly votes.

In all the seven seats, a four-cornered contest is expected as the BJP, the SP, the BSP and the Congress have announced to contest the bypolls.

Uttar Pradesh fares well in tuberculosis eradication

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

Uttar Pradesh has fared well in the elimination of tuberculosis (TB) even during the COVID-19 pandemic with an average of 52 per cent which is equal to the country's average but higher than that of Bihar and Maharashtra but lower than the average of Rajasthan, among the four TB high burden states.

According to officials and figures available on the Nikshay dashboard of the Union government, against the total target of 4.50 lakh notification of TB patients in UP fixed till September, 2020, the state could only identify 2,31,891 lakh, which is around 52 per cent.

At the country level, the target was 22,49,272 but the achievement was 11,77,007, which is also around 52 per cent. In the overall target notification, Rajasthan's achievement was 55 per cent while that of Bihar 41 per cent and of Maharashtra 49 per cent.

In UP, the public sector did better with a target of 60 per cent compared to 47 per cent target in the private sector.

Bihar and Maharashtra have performed below the national average of 52 per cent and the notifications in the public sector have reduced substantially. Bihar's percentage was 43 and that of Maharashtra 51.

The COVID-19 pandemic has impacted TB notifications across most states. Rajasthan has performed the best in comparison to the targets set for the public sector with the state meeting 74 per cent of the targets till September, officials claimed.

The officials said the most important intervention included in the National Strategic Plan for TB Elimination was the scale up of private sector engagement across the country. However, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, private sector engagement and notifications from the private sector have been impacted substantially. At the national level, the private sector has only met 45 per cent of the target for notifications.

SP, RLD workers clash with police in Hathras

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

The Samajwadi Party and Rashtriya Lok Dal workers on Sunday clashed with the police during the visits of their senior leaders to Hathras to meet the gang-rape victim's family members.

The SP and RLD workers were lathi-charged by the police for defying the prohibitory orders imposed in the village. Considering social distancing and other pandemic related norms, the authorities have permitted only five people from outside to visit the gang-rape victim's kin at a time.

The police lathi-charged several workers of the Samajwadi Party, Rashtriya Lok Dal and the Bhim Army on Sunday as they clashed with the cops during a visit to Bhulagarhi village of Hathras, the native place of the 19-year-old Dalit girl who died after alleged gang-rape.

The clashes broke out briefly when the police denied entry into the village to the visiting delegations of these political parties, saying that more than five people could not be allowed to go to the village.

The SP and RLD supporters clashed with the police and tried to break the barriers put up by the cops. They were joined by the Bhim Army later in the day.

The clashes began when the workers of the political parties started pelting stones at the police.

In return, the police baton-charged them. Many people, including RLD leader Jayant Chaudhary, son of former Union minister Ajit Singh, were injured in the police action. A couple of policemen, including DSP Anand Kumar, were also injured in the stone pelting.

Additional police forces were rushed to strengthen the security in the area.

Later, a 5-member delegation of the SP led by party's state president Naresh Uttam met the family members. After the SP delegation, a delegation of RLD led by Jayant Choudhury met the kin of the victim.

Both the party leaders held the Yogi Adityanath government responsible for the incidents and demanded his resignation on moral grounds.

The opposition leaders also raised questions on why the district magistrate had not been suspended while the district police chief had been placed under suspension.

On Thursday, the Hathras administration had clamped prohibitory orders in the village after which scuffles broke out as politicians, including those from Congress and Trinamool Congress, as well as the media tried to access the village. About 300 police personnel stood on guard to prevent anybody from entering the village.

After visiting Bhulagarhi village on Sunday, SP state president Naresh Uttam said the kin of the rape victim were not satisfied with the measures taken by the state government for ensuring justice to the family.

Former MP Dharmendra Yadav, who was also in the delegation, said the Samajwadi Party supported the demand of the victim's family that the incident be probed by a sitting judge of the Supreme Court instead of the CBI.

The other leaders in the delegation were Jugal Kishore Valmiki, former chairman of Safai Commission, and several former MLAs and MLCs.

The RLD condemned the lathi-charge on Jayant Chaudhary and party workers when they were going to meet the family of Hathras victim and said the Bharatiya Janata Party government was unsuccessfully trying to gag the voice of opposition parties.

In a statement issued in Lucknow, RLD national spokesman Anil Dubey said the party leader was going to meet the family of the victim and there was no harm in it.

"The BJP is using its police force which is more adept in encounters and cracking lathis on innocents to gag the voice of dissent," he said.

He said the state government was destroying democracy by using force on unarmed protesters.

Containment activities in Aliganj, Tudiaganj areas strengthened

PNS ■ LUCKNOW

The Health department is making efforts to contain the spread of coronavirus in Aliganj and Tudiaganj where maximum number of cases are being detected at the moment. A senior official at the CMO office said these two have emerged as areas of concern after situation was brought under control in Gomtinagar and Indiranagar.

The official said there could be some pockets having local transmission in Aliganj because of which the virus was spreading despite containment activities.

"We have identified 13 points in Aliganj where we will send our teams and special surveillance will be carried out. We are increasing the number of rapid response teams for Aliganj from 13-20," he said. He added that contact tracing and active searches would be intensified in Tudiaganj.

"Alambagh, Indiranagar and Gomtinagar are in control and there is a lull in some areas, but we won't be complacent and will continue with our containment activities in these areas," he added.

The official said though a large number of cases have been detected in Aliganj, it was discovered in a review that out of the 131 patients found in Aliganj on Friday, 38 got themselves tested for the second time and hence there was a duplication of as many cases.

"If people have tested positive once, there is no need to get themselves tested again because it unnecessarily creates a burden on the system and adds to the positivity rate," he added.

Director of Ram Manohar Lohia Institute of Medical Sciences Dr Nuzhat Husain said many people who have already tested positive come to the hospital saying that they

Centre calls meeting on Gorkhaland issue

Send letters to Bengal Govt, all stake holders for Oct 7 meet

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

In a curious development, the Central Government has sent letters to the Bengal Government and other stake holders in the Darjeeling Gorkhaland movement asking them to attend a meeting in Delhi, sources said.

According to sources in the State Government, the Union Home Ministry has written letters to Principal Secretary Gorkhaland Territorial Authority and the GTA chairman Benoy Tamang inviting them in a meeting to be held at North Block on October 7.

Apart from the State Government and Tamang, letters have also been sent to the Bimal Gurung faction of Gorkha Janmukti Morcha, sources said adding the letter has been addressed to Gurung the former GJM chief and GTA chairman until his party witnessed a split in the wake of a violent movement a few years ago in Darjeeling giving rise to a second pro-State Government faction led by Benoy Tamang.

With Gurung and his deputy Roshan Giri since then going into political hibernation and a near-total peace returning in Darjeeling hills the timing and purpose of the letter has raised many an eyebrow.

The letter has also evoked concerns because of the fact that it for the first time refers to the specific term called "Gorkhaland" which thus far has been consciously and carefully avoided by both the Left Front and the Trinamool Congress Governments.

Earlier there had been no meeting with any agenda on the specific term of Gorkhaland," said a Trinamool Congress leader and MLA from North Bengal wondering whether the State Government would at all participate in the meeting.

"There seems to be a specific agenda on the part of the BJP to create a fresh ruckus ahead of the Assembly elections so that they can pocket the Gorkha votes in the Gills and Terai regions of North Bengal but if they want to once again open the Pandora's Box then they would suffer heavily in southern part of the State," said IK Lahiri a political observer.

For now however there was no communication from the pro-State Government Benoy Tamang faction on whether it would attend the meeting or not.

Pak resorts to heavy shelling on LoC at Poonch

Jammu: Pakistan resorted to heavy shelling and firing on Sunday at Indian positions on the Line of Control (LoC) in Jammu and Kashmir's Poonch district.

At about 3.20 a.m., Pakistan initiated the unprovoked ceasefire violation by firing with small arms and intense shelling with mortars along the LoC in Mankote sector, Defence Ministry Spokesman Colonel Devender Anand said. "Indian army retaliated befittingly," he added. Since the beginning of this year, Pakistan has been violating with impunity the bilateral ceasefire agreement signed by the two countries in 1999. In over 3,190 such ceasefire violations since January 2020, 24 civilians have been killed and over 100 injured. IANS

Maha Cong to stage satyagraha today to demand justice for Hathras family

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

As part of its ongoing protests against the "insensitive" manner in which the BJP's Yogi Adityanath Government handed the Hathras gangrape incident, the Maharashtra Congress will hold a State-wide Satyagraha on Monday to demand justice for the victim's family in Uttar Pradesh.

Announcing this here on Sunday, Maharashtra Pradesh Congress Committee president and State Revenue Minister Balasaheb Thorat said: "The Hathras incident in Uttar Pradesh has made India hang its head in shame, but the BJP's Yogi Adityanath government continues to remain insensitive. This case was handled in a very irresponsible and dictatorial manner. Instead of giving justice to the victim's family, the Uttar Pradesh government threatened them. Our fight will continue till the victim's family gets justice".

Maintaining that women and girls are not safe in the BJP-ruled states, the State Congress demanded to know as to why Prime Minister Narendra Modi, who chanted the slogan of "Beti Bachao" "is silent even today". Thorat said that his party would hold a state-wide satyagraha tomorrow to demand an answer from the "egoistic and insensitive" BJP government in Uttar Pradesh ensure that the victim gets justice. He said the satyagraha would be held at all the district headquarters in the state. Thorat said he would participate in the Satyagraha to be organised in Mumbai.

Demanding a Supreme Court-monitored inquiry into the Hathras incident, Thorat rooted for the suspension of Hathras district collector "Why did the police burn the body of the victim by dousing it in petrol? Why was the victim's family threatened and misled body that was burnt was of the victim? The victim's family has the right to know the answers to these questions and the Yogi Adityanath government will have to answer these questions," the state Congress chief said.

Thorat charged that the "arrogant and dictatorial" Yogi Adityanath had dismantled the democracy in his state. He said this after Congress MP Rahul Gandhi and General Secretary Priyanka Gandhi were stopped on their way to Hathras and manhandled.

by the UP administration? And what is the guarantee that the expressed their anger in protest against the repression from the Uttar Pradesh government.

"Finally, the UP government came to its senses and allowed Rahul Gandhi and Priyanka Gandhi to visit the victim's family. But on the way, the Congress workers were beaten with sticks and the male police officers went to the extent of touching the clothes of AICC general secretary Priyanka Gandhi. ## 10,000 women, groups worldwide seek justice for gangrape victim of UP

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

More than 10,000 people from all walks of life, cutting across caste, religion, gender, occupation and communities from almost every state in India and more than a dozen countries on Sunday condemned the Hathras incident and demanded justice for the heinous rape, brutalising attack and murder of a young Dalit woman there.

The people from across the country and the countries like the US, UK, Canada, Australia, UAE, Hong Kong, Japan, to Nepal, Netherlands, Sweden and Slovenia said in a joint statement said: "Despite a continuing saga of countless other cases of brutal sexual assault and murders especially of young Dalit women the conscience of this nation does not seem to be shaken enough to do anything serious to stop the systematic targeting of women, Dalits and the poor" "While there is a historicity to these incidents, under CM Yogi's rule, Uttar Pradesh has only gone from bad to worse. Crimes against women and Dalits have increased, and police have been given unlimited powers without any accountability. Today UP tops the charts for atrocities against Dalits, it also tops the charts for crimes against women," they said in their joint statement.

The signatories to the statement said that even as the tragic news of the death of the victim from Hathras was coming in, more cases of sexual violence on Dalit women have come up from Balrampur, Bulandshahar, Azamgarh, all in UP.

"The growing support base for Thakurs, the fact that no official visited the girl's family even once after her death, tells us the facts as they are, nobody cares and caste solidarity remains one of the ugliest and strongest kinship performances of the modern Indian State and one that must be challenged and broken.

LJP DUMPS NITISH, TO GO SOLO

Taking inspiration from PM Modi, the Lok Janshakti Party prepared the Bihar First, Bihari First Vision Document 2020 with the suggestion of four lakh Biharis so that Bihar and Bihari can be brought to the forefront. I not only hope but believe that you (PM Modi) will give your blessings to bring Bihar at the forefront and help return its lost identity and glory so that all my candidates can strengthen the hands of respected Prime Minister."

Chirag has held several rounds of meeting with top BJP leadership including Home Minister Amit Shah and BJP president JP Nadda.

Now that the LJP is out of the way, Janata Dal-United (JDU) and BJP are likely to contest 119 seats each and leave five seats for Jitan Ram Manjhi's Hindustani Awam Morcha.

CONG GOVTS IN STATES TO PASS ACT

The constitutional route Sonia Gandhi referred to in that statement allows state legislatures to enforce laws "repugnant to the parliament law" if they get the Presidential approval.

IF CONG COMES TO POWER, WILL AXE ...

Accompanied by Punjab Chief Minister Capt Amarinder Singh, Punjab Congress chief Sunil Jakhar, State party affairs general secretary in-charge Harish Rawat, Cabinet Ministers, MLAs among others, Rahul on Sunday kickstarted a three-day 'Kheti Bachao Yatra'.

Lambasting the Prime Minister for lying to the people and misleading the nation for the past six years to serve the interests of two-three large corporate houses of his "billionaire friends", Rahul cited the examples of demonetisation, GST and the debt and tax waiver of big industrialists amid Covid, while not giving a rupee's aid to the poor and the farmers.

"This is about your land and your money," Rahul warned the farmers, recalling the Land Acquisition Bill which the UPA Government had amended to protect the farmers but the Modi Government had scrapped, with the support of the Akalis, soon after taking over the country's reins.

"The Adanis and the Ambanis want to take over the land and money of the farmers without giving anything in return and the Prime Minister is helping them in exchange of 24X7 media coverage in his favour," he said.

Extending his, and the Congress party's full support to the farmers, Rahul said that he stood with the farmers in this fight for their survival and livelihood, which the Modi Government was trying to destroy with these draconian laws. "Together we will change these laws," he told the farmers, adding that the Congress will stand with the farmers in their fight and will not move back an inch.

Notably, President Ram Nath Kovind has given assent to the Farmers' Produce Trade and Commerce (Promotion and Facilitation) Bill; Farmers' (Empowerment and Protection) Agreement of Price Assurance and Farm Services Bill; and Essential Commodities (Amendment) Bill, which were passed by Parliament last month. Out of the three laws, farmers and farm leaders have expressed grave concerns over the first one that they claim was a roundabout way to eliminate procurement of wheat and paddy under minimum support price (MSP) programme.

As a part of his programme, Rahul will hold massive public meetings and tractor rallies across Punjab and Haryana for three days. After finishing his tractor rallies in Punjab's Patiala, he is scheduled to enter Haryana through Pehowa on October 6.

The hospital authorities had last month set up a special COVID ward for children, the first-of-its-kind facility in the national capital, officials said.

The U.S. leads the world in numbers of confirmed infections, with more than 7 million, and deaths, with more than 208,000. Only a handful of countries rank higher in COVID-19 deaths per capita. "The statistics are so mind-boggling, they make us numb to the reality of just how painful, unacceptable and absurd this is," said Dr. Reed Tuckson, board chairman of the nonpartisan Health Policy Alliance in Washington.

"Every single American must double down on their vigilance. If we don't, then we are being foolhardy and irresponsible."

Wallace Clark, 50, of Springfield, Illinois, said he was flummoxed by the president's diagnosis but hopes it makes people realize they need to take the pandemic seriously. "Some people probably think they're immune or can't get it, but it is possible. It does send a message," Clark said Saturday.

The president's infection occurred as the nation has reached a crossroads in its response to the virus.

Cong demands FIR against suspended Hathras SP

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ KANPUR

A delegation of Congressmen led by party's city unit president Har Prakash Agnihotri, handed over a memorandum addressed to Governor Anandiben Patel to the city magistrate in the absence of the district magistrate on Sunday. The delegation demanded that an FIR be registered against the suspended district police chief of Hathras and the probe into the incident be conducted by a judge of the Supreme Court.

Their demands were not met, the Congress would be forced to intensify its agitation.

The city magistrate assured the delegation that the memorandum would be forwarded to the Governor.

Addressing the press later, Agnihotri said the Congress demanded strict action against the suspended superintendent of police of Hathras who, instead of handing over the body of the victim to the family, cremated it in a hush-hush and undemocratic manner. He said this clearly showed that the former SP of Hathras on the diktat of the UP government was part of a deep rooted conspiracy to destroy evidence and protect the politically influential people behind the dastardly act.

He said there was massive resentment not only in the people of Hathras but the state and the whole country. He said the memorandum also drew the attention of the Governor that if the district magistrate and district police chief had tried to give justice to the victim's family within time, the situation would not have been what it was today.

He said it had clearly emerged that the SP was being remote-controlled by the Bharatiya Janata Party bigwigs in Lucknow and Delhi.

He said as per the circumstantial evidences, the needle of suspicion directly pointed at the UP government and so it should be dismissed immediately.

Prominent who were part of the delegation were MLA Sohail Ansari, Ashok Dhanvik, Subodh Bajpai, Ankita Dhanvik, Subodh Bajpai, Nadim Siddiqui and Imran Ansari.

India, China to hold 7th round of military-level talks on Oct 12

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

A stalemate continues at the tense Line of Actual Control (LAC) in Ladakh, senior military commanders will hold the seventh round of talks on October 12. Besides reviewing the current situation, the two Corps Commanders will also discuss ways to speed up disengagement leading to ultimate de-escalation.

The sixth round of military level talks since the stand-offs started in early May was held on September 21. For the first time, both the sides then issued a joint statement in which they agreed to "stop sending more troops to the frontline" and "refrain from unilaterally changing the situation on the ground."

The two delegations also agreed to hold the seventh round of commander-level talks "as soon as possible, take practical measures to properly solve problems on the ground, and jointly safeguard peace and tranquility in the border area."

As of now more than one lakh soldiers from both the sides are deployed at the 1,700 km long LAC in Ladakh. Moreover, the two countries have positioned heavy weapons and long range guns besides missiles closer to the border. Also, China has shifted more than 150 aircraft to the airbases in the Tibet region. It forced India also to take countermeasures and most of its frontline jets including SU-30, Rafales, Jaguars and MIG-29s are now operating from forward airbases all along the LAC stretching from Ladakh in the west to Arunachal Pradesh in the east.

On the forthcoming talks, sources said here on Sunday, the Indian side will be led by Lehn based 14 Corps chief Lt General Harinder Singh while the other side will be headed Major General Liu Lin. Singh is scheduled to take over as the commandant of the Indian Military Academy (IMA) and will be replaced by Lt General PGK Menon in mid-October.

Menon was present in the last round along with senior officers of the ministry of external affairs and the Indo-Tibetan Border Police (ITBP). The October 12 round will also see a joint team of military and external affairs discussing modalities to defuse tension, they said.

Incidentally, the two sides had held the diplomatic level parleys under the aegis of the Working Mechanism for Consultation and Co-ordination (WMCC). The Indian delegation in the virtual meeting was headed by Naveen Srivastava.

As regards the position on the ground, additional troops of India and China are deployed at various locations on the North and South banks of the Pangong Tso (lake) in Eastern Ladakh. These two points are the most sensitive at present since the Indian army preempted a Chinese aggressive move to dominate the hilltops in the region.

However, relative calm now prevailed on the border since two hour talks between External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar and his Chinese counterpart Wang Yi in Moscow on September 10. Both the ministers rolled out a mutually agreed five-point action plan to bring peace and tranquility to the LAC. Indian Air Force chief Rakesh Kumar Singh Bhadauria had last week described the situation as "not war, not peace."

Plans afoot to procure 400-500 million doses of Covid-19 vaccine by July 2021: Harsh Vardhan

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Union Health Minister Dr Harsh Vardhan on Sunday said that plans are afoot to procure 400-500 million doses of Covid-19 vaccine to cover upto 25 crore people by July 2021. He said even as States have been advised to send details of priority population groups by October ends, frontline healthcare workers will be given top-most priority in Covid-19 immunisation.

"Our rough estimate will be to receive and utilise 400-500 million doses, covering approximately 20-25 crore people by July 2021. All this is still under various stages of finalisation. The Government is already looking at immunity data for covid-19 disease while States have been asked to provide the list of health workers to be given vaccines," the minister said in his weekly 'Sunday Samvad' session.

"The list of frontline healthcare workers includes government sector as well as private sector doctors, nurses, paramedics, sanitary staff, Asha workers, surveillance officers and many other categories of frontline workers who are involved in facing, testing and treatment of patients," the minister said.

The Centre has also asked the States to come up with a list of cold chain facilities for storage and distribution of vaccine doses down to the block level, he said. AIIMS Director of Virology, are indigenously developed vaccines that are in a seamless phase 1/2 trial.

Apart from these three, Serum Institute is also expected to start

Randeep Guleria had recently said that if everything goes as per plan, the vaccine will be available by January 2021.

"The Centre is also working on plans for building capacities in Human Resources, training, supervision etc on a massive scale and roughly estimates to receive and utilise 400-500 million doses covering approximately 20-25 crore people by July 2021. The Government is also keeping an eye on immunity data with regard to COVID-19 disease while finalizing these plans," said the Minister.

Currently, three vaccines are undergoing human trials in India, with Serum Institute of India conducting a seamless phase 2/3 trial of the candidate jointly developed by the University of Oxford and AstraZeneca plc. The other two vaccines, by Zydus Cadila and another jointly by Bharat Biotech International and Indian Council of Medical Research's National Institute of Virology, are indigenously developed vaccines that are in a seamless phase 1/2 trial.

The Government is also keeping an eye on talks of the Russian Direct Investment Fund (RDIF) and Gamaleya Research Institute of Epidemiology for mass manufacturing of their Sputnik V vaccine by Indian companies.

Harsh Vardhan said that the government is open to introducing foreign-developed covid-19 vaccine in India, provided they prove they are safe and efficacious for the Indian population.

"All vaccines that are shown to be safe, immunogenic and efficacious in clinical trials outside India need to undergo bridging studies to prove their safety and immunogenicity in the Indian population as well. Such studies are conducted with much smaller sample size and end quickly," he said.

NCB on verge of unravelling larger nexus behind narcotics supply in Mumbai

RAKESH K SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

accused, Karmjeet, and his associates.

The Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB) that is probing the drugs angle in the Sushant Singh Rajput case is in the process of busting the larger nexus involving "influential circles" besides Bollywood behind the supply chain of narcotics in Mumbai.

Top sources said the influential circles could include politicians, bureaucrats, corporate honchos, businessmen and even police officials controlling or aiding the narcotics supply networks in Mumbai.

Phones and emails' analysis of the peddlers has pointed to a larger syndicate behind the drugs trade involving those engaged in procuring the contraband and distributing them to the high profile end users.

The Bollywood figures under the NCB radar have spilled the beans and analysis of their phones and emails has provided several leads to the federal probe agency, they said. The agency has already identified the peddling network and the film world celebrities who procured the substances from them.

Actor Deepika Padukone and her manager Karishma Prakash have been questioned by NCB in connection with the drugs probe related to Rajput. Kshiti Ravi Prasad, a former Dharmatic Entertainment executive producer, arrested earlier by the NCB in Bollywood-drugs case, was on Saturday remanded to judicial custody till October 6.

Prasad was arrested by the NCB after questioning in the drugs case linked to Rajput's death. The NCB had told the court earlier that Prasad had procured drugs from another Another actress Sara Ali Khan has also been grilled by the NCB.

The agency had earlier arrested actor and late Rajput's girlfriend Rhea Chakraborty, her brother Showik and others in connection with the Bollywood-drugs probe.

The CBI is separately probing Rajput's death case, in which Chakraborty and her family members were originally booked by Bihar police under the charge of abetment to suicide.

Officials have not ruled the penetration of drug mafia in some top educational institutions across the country.

Meanwhile, Pakistan's Anti-Narcotics Force (ANF) in a late night raid on Saturday in F-10, F-11 and G-12 neighbourhoods of Islamabad arrested seven members of a major drug syndicate suspected to be patronised by Pakistan army and Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf party headed by Imran Khan.

The Pakistan army is facing funds crunch in Covid times and revival of Taliban in Afghanistan, a number of officials are re-establishing the drugs trade network.

Interestingly, one of the Bollywood actresses under NCB gaze is a relative of a top former bureaucrat of Pakistan.

The ANF arrested seven persons during the raids, including a woman and seized Pakistani Rupees 300 million worth drugs like heroin, hashish and cocaine. This syndicate was engaged in supplying drugs to educational institutions, important personalities in the Government and the private sector.

Indo-French satellites to trace illegal spillage of oil by ships: French space agency

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The constellation of maritime surveillance satellites for the Indian Ocean Region, to be jointly launched by India and France, will be able to trace illegal spillage of oil by ships, a senior French space agency CENS official said on Sunday.

In August last year, CNES and ISRO committed to developing and building a constellation of satellites carrying telecommunications and radar and optical remote-sensing instruments, constituting the first space-based system of tracking ships continuously.

The monitoring centre will be based in India, the official added.

"With a revisit capability (of the satellites), this makes possible to task acquisitions several times a day. It will also be able to detect oil slicks and trace their origin," the official said.

The main purpose of this is to trace illegal spillage of oil by ships. The Indian Ocean Region has several Sea Lanes of Communication (SLOC) and used by many ships every day. The satellites will be operated jointly by France and India to monitor ships in the Indian Ocean.

The system will also cover a wide belt around the globe, benefiting a broad range of French economic interests, the official said.

Parts of the satellites will be built in both the countries and launched from India, he added.

CNES and the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) are also operating a number of climate-monitoring satellites together.

"Trishna", a highly precise thermal infrared observer, will also be part of the fleet of Indo-French satellites.

After a successful design phase led by a joint team of ISRO-CNES, the satellite is now set to enter its development phases in the coming months, the official said.

"It will provide continuous thermal monitoring at high resolution, its unmatched capabilities serving precious applications ranging from sustainable agriculture to drought forecasting and monitoring of urban heat islands," the official said.

France and India are also collaborating on the Gaganyaan, India's first manned space mission.

France will also be part of ISRO's mission to Venus, the official added.

WHO calls on vaccine makers to submit EOI for its evaluation

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

As the race for manufacturing the Covid-19 shot gathers pace, the World Health Organization (WHO) has called on vaccine makers to submit an expression of interest (EOI) for its evaluation.

Priority will be given to candidate vaccines that are expected to meet all or most of the WHO-published Target Product Profile (TPP) characteristics, said the WHO in a statement, adding that those EOIs that are considered acceptable to proceed with the submission of a dossier, will be assessed according to either the Emergency Use Listing (EUL) procedure or Prequalification.

Interested manufacturers can submit expressions of interest for vaccines evaluation by a letter to the vaccines and immunisation devices assessment team. "The letter should include name of the product, contact person, email address, description of the vaccine, presentation, indication, current phase of clinical trial, date of initiation and completion, high level details of interactions with national regulatory authorities, agreement in principle to allow national regulatory authorities to share confidential information with WHO to facilitate collaboration, status of interactions with COVAX," as per the statement from the global health agency.

Manufacturers that meet the criteria and have submitted a complete EOI will be contacted to schedule a pre-submission meeting to discuss the assessment procedure to be used (EUL/PQ), assessment pathway, date of submission of the dossier, readiness of submission package, upcoming availability of supplemental data and other important information that will help the manufacturer make decision on the submission and will help WHO coordinate resources to assess the dossier within the shortest possible timeline, details of rolling submissions and general requirement for data to be submitted. The purpose of the WHO prequalification assessment is to provide assurance that candidate vaccines meet the WHO recommendations on quality, safety and efficacy, including compliance with WHO recommended good manufacturing practice (GMP) and good clinical practice (GCP) standards; and meet the operational specifications for packaging and presentation of the relevant United Nations (UN) agency.

"This is to ensure that vaccines provided through the UN for use in national immunisation services in different countries are safe and effective, and are suitable for the target populations, at the recommended immunisation schedules, and with appropriate concomitant products," the WHO added.

Nitric Oxide can be effective in curing SARS-CoV-2-Virus: Study

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Researchers have found that Nitric Oxide (NO), a compound with antiviral properties which was widely used for treatment of coronavirus in 2003 SARS epidemic, can be effective in curing SARS-CoV-2-Virus causing Covid-19. The study is published in the journal Redox Biology.

"To our knowledge, nitric oxide is the only substance shown so far to have a direct effect on SARS-CoV-2," said Ake Lundkvist, a professor at Uppsala University, who led the study. "Since there is still no effective cure for COVID-19, the main emphasis in the treatments tested has been on relieving symptoms. This can shorten hospital stays and reduce mortality. To date, however, it has not been possible to prove that any of these treatments has affected the actual virus behind the infection."

Nitric oxide (NO) is a compound produced naturally in the body. Its functions include acting like a hormone in controlling various organs as per the study. Their study builds further on a discovery about the coronavirus that caused the first SARS epidemic. In 2003, NO released from S-Nitroso-N-acetylpenicillamine (SNAP) proved to have a distinct antiviral effect. The researchers from Uppsala University and Karolinska Institute have now investigated how the novel coronavirus involved in the current pandemic, SARS CoV-2, reacts to the compound. And SNAP was shown to a clear antiviral effect on this virus, too - and an effect that grew stronger as the dose was raised. "Until we get a vaccine that works, our hope is that inhalation of NO might be an effective form of treatment. The dosage and timing of starting treatment probably play an important part in the outcome, and now need to be explored as soon as possible," Ake Lundkvist said.

The research group are now planning to proceed by investigating the antiviral effects of NO emitted in gas form, the study said.

within organs. In acute lung failure, NO can be administered as inhaled gas, in low concentrations, to boost the blood-oxygen saturation level. During the SARS (severe acute respiratory syndrome) coronavirus epidemic of 2003, this therapy was tried out with success. One key reason for the successful results was that inflammation in the patients' lungs decreased, said the scientists. This property of nitric oxide - the protection it affords against infections, by being both antibacterial and antiviral - is the very one that now interests the researchers.

Their study builds further on a discovery about the coronavirus that caused the first SARS epidemic. In 2003, NO released from S-Nitroso-N-acetylpenicillamine (SNAP) proved to have a distinct

Dry weather likely to be over in most parts of northwest India during next five days

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The India Meteorological Department (IMD) on Sunday said dry weather is likely to be over most parts of northwest India during the next five days. According to the IMD, a low-pressure area is lying over northwest and adjoining west central Bay of Bengal off Odisha-north and Andhra Pradesh coasts. Under its influence, widespread rain and moderate thunderstorm with lightning is very likely over Odisha, Jharkhand, Gangetic West Bengal during the next 3-4 days. Heavy rainfall is very likely over Odisha during October 4 to 6 and over Gangetic West Bengal and Chhattisgarh during October 5 to 6.

IMD has declared a watch for a monsoon depression in the Bay of Bengal, the first in the post-monsoon season, from a low-pressure area materialising around October 9 after an incoming 'pulse' from the upstream South China Sea matures in stages.

In the post-monsoon season, it is usual for the Bay of Bengal and the upstream South China Sea to rhyme in unison as south-westerly monsoon flows gradually ebb and are replaced by the north-easterly by the seasonal anticyclone over the Tibetan highlands. Rainfall may increase over Odisha and coastal Andhra Pradesh from October 11-13 as the fresh low forms. Squally winds speeding to 40-50 km/hr may prevail of the North Andaman Sea, East Central and adjoining South-East Bay on October 9 and 10. Wind speeds could accelerate to 50-60 km/hr over the Central Bay on October 10 and 11 over North Coastal Andhra Pradesh and Odisha coasts and adjoining North Bay on October 11.

The IMD said that withdrawal of the monsoon from North-West India stays stalled as a prevailing low-pressure over the Bay of Bengal consolidates its grip on the opposite side over East India.

Tunnelling new heights

The Atal Tunnel that will bypass Rohtang pass will ensure year-round connectivity to Ladakh at a time we need it more than ever

The Chinese misadventure in Ladakh over the summer deeply disappointed a class of people who view a driving or riding trip to Ladakh as an essential step to manhood. They thought that if the Chinese were successful in their ingress and held on to their newly-acquired positions, summer road trips would never be the same again. Thanks to a ferocious counter by the Indian Army, not only can we still keep our summer tryst with Ladakh but now with the inauguration of the new Atal Tunnel, built between Manali and Leh, we can access Ladakh by road all-year-round. The nine-kilometre tunnel will reduce 46 km between Manali and Leh and since motorists will not have to go through the daunting Rohtang Pass anymore, they will save an incredible five hours and not worry about the route being snow-bound or how to avoid rockfalls. However, for full all-weather connectivity, additional tunnels need to be built on the Manali-Leh route as the high passes — Baralacha pass (16,040 feet), Lachung La pass (16,800 feet) and Tanglang La pass (17,480 feet) — on the axis will impede movement during heavy winter snow.

The story of the longest highway tunnel in the world at 3,000 metres, envisioned by Atal Bihari Vajpayee after Pakistan's sneaky attempt to cross the border in Kargil in the summer of 1999, was a long and tedious one. Building a tunnel at Rohtang became necessary after the Kargil conflict as Pakistan tried to break the link between Kashmir and Ladakh by disrupting activity on the Srinagar-Leh road. Given its geographic positioning close to the Line of Control (LoC), this road is exposed to Pakistani firing. The Manali-Leh link could then become a secondary conduit for our forces in Ladakh and our supply line to frontline garrisons would be uninterrupted. The tunnel's foundation stone was laid by United Progressive Alliance (UPA) Chairperson Sonia Gandhi on June 28, 2010, in the Solang Valley near Manali, some 570 km from the national capital. Even though construction started in 2010, a combination of geological challenges, particularly tectonic faults in the Himalayas, as well as a lack of political will to push construction, led to inordinate delays. That annui has changed after this summer's attempts by China to unilaterally change the status quo in eastern Ladakh. The opening of this tunnel will ensure that both troops and supplies can make it to the border much faster and will not have to depend on tenuous air supply lines of the snow-bound Rohtang Pass route in winter. It will also be a big boost to locals and the tourism sector. There are a number of technical firsts in this project. The horseshoe-shaped, single-tube, double lane tunnel with a roadway is an adaptation of the latest Austrian tunnelling method for construction. Taming the glacial-fed Seri rivulet inside the tunnel was one of the biggest challenges for the engineers. It has been designed to carry a traffic density of 3,000 cars and 1,500 trucks per day. And each can travel at a maximum speed of 80 km per hour. In case of an emergency, which may leave the main tunnel unusable, it has an overhead clearance of 5.525 metres. A fire-proof emergency egress tunnel has been built into the main tunnel itself. It is fully ride-safe with telephones every 50 metres, emergency exits every 500 metres and air quality monitoring every 1 km. Also, an automatic incident detection system with CCTV cameras has been installed every 250 metres. This is a great example of engineering as it is the world's longest highway tunnel above 10,000 ft but we need hundreds more of these projects if we are to really stand up and compete with China. Not just militarily but also economically. If India is to become a manufacturing and production hub, such projects are essential for faster movements and seamless connectivity.

It was suicide

AIIMS report rules out murder or foul play in Sushant Singh Rajput's death. Let's admit that he had a mental health issue

Finally, the nation may get closure over the sudden death of actor Sushant Singh Rajput and his family may find peace with confirmation that he did, indeed, commit suicide. An AIIMS panel led by Dr Sudhir Gupta, which has re-evaluated the actor's post-mortem report, has ruled out murder and has submitted its findings to the CBI. According to the experts, there were no injuries on the actor's body other than those caused by hanging and there were no marks of struggle or scuffle on the body and clothes to indicate that somebody had forced him into the act. So we have to accept that for all his outer success, he was a deeply troubled and broken personality who couldn't handle the pressures of living very well and tragically chose to give up on life. Hopefully, we can accept his frailties with as much grace and dignity he deserves as his success. Hopefully, we can honour his work as an actor/social entrepreneur. Hopefully, we can respect his memory enough and not milk it for ruthless politicisation, blame games, running pointless news cycles and spinning conspiracy theories. Most importantly, we need to stop beating around the bush and look at facts as they are — that he had a history of severe depression and though a "hero" in public perception, was too fragile, vulnerable and weak inside. One that made him take an anti-hero plunge into death. This should have been the real conversation all along, that of mental health issue becoming a new pandemic of our times and unsparing in its grip on individuals, from the ordinary to the extraordinary. His death should also open up a debate on performance pressure in the entertainment industry where a slew of actors took the extreme step as they ran into financial difficulties during the lockdown. In fact, the post-millennials are more prone to depression given they are facing the worst doom and gloom of our lifetime. We need a dedicated mental health policy and must think about healing and coping mechanisms in our societal structures.

What was initially reported as suicide — and duly confirmed by the autopsy report given by qualified doctors who are expected to know what they are doing — quickly turned into a murder conspiracy involving the actor's family, embezzled money, black magic, an allegedly exploitative live-in partner, a political bigwig, Bollywood mafia and nepotism, insider-outsider debate, a media circus and what not. But above all, this tragedy was weaponised by political parties to settle scores among themselves, using his starry aura. For Bihar Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, who has a severe image deficit, the case of a "son of the soil" exploited in faraway Mumbai couldn't have come at a more opportune time. Since the am Bihari considers Sushant his "hero", Sushant was iconised as "the pride of Bihar" though none of these politicians are known to have had an association with him. As for the BJP in Maharashtra, it spares no effort to pull down the Shiv Sena-led alliance Government on some pretext or the other. In Sushant's case, its troll army played up an alleged association his girlfriend had with Sena scion Aaditya Thackeray, raking up more muck than proof. And finally, we must stop the witch-hunt against his girlfriend Rhea Chakraborty for pushing him over the edge. Let us accept that Sushant may have been a recreational drug user like others in the industry and though her confession and complicity in procuring drugs for Sushant may help trace the drug racket in the industry, there is no need for further character assassination. Let us stop the venom and instead focus on the devil in our minds.

Success, he was a deeply troubled and broken personality who couldn't handle the pressures of living very well and tragically chose to give up on life. Hopefully, we can accept his frailties with as much grace and dignity he deserves as his success. Hopefully, we can honour his work as an actor/social entrepreneur. Hopefully, we can respect his memory enough and not milk it for ruthless politicisation, blame games, running pointless news cycles and spinning conspiracy theories. Most importantly, we need to stop beating around the bush and look at facts as they are — that he had a history of severe depression and though a "hero" in public perception, was too fragile, vulnerable and weak inside. One that made him take an anti-hero plunge into death. This should have been the real conversation all along, that of mental health issue becoming a new pandemic of our times and unsparing in its grip on individuals, from the ordinary to the extraordinary. His death should also open up a debate on performance pressure in the entertainment industry where a slew of actors took the extreme step as they ran into financial difficulties during the lockdown. In fact, the post-millennials are more prone to depression given they are facing the worst doom and gloom of our lifetime. We need a dedicated mental health policy and must think about healing and coping mechanisms in our societal structures.

The rape of conscience

We as a society have not moved beyond the culture of caste domination and consequently failed to generate a rigorous critique of caste-based atrocities

RINKU GHOSH

Are we, the self-professed aware society — the presumptuous lot who believe we have a right to shape discourse in this country and consume it ourselves for our own satisfaction — equally guilty of ignoring the Hathras gang-rape of a Dalit woman by upper caste men? Have we been conscientious enough or just wished her away with the smoke from her pyre, having exhausted all our concerns and candles about women's rights on Nirbhaya, just because she was closer to our kind, a working woman in Delhi? Or have we given into the fatigue and helplessness of justice that came seven years too late? Or in these days of all kinds of distancing, simply thought that the dust bowl of Hathras was too geographically and psychologically distant to merit our attention? Why did we have to wait for Nirbhaya's mother to take real and concrete action, asking her lawyer to take up the case for another wronged and abused daughter and fight legally? Where were activist-lawyers who are ever ready to move the courts? We never forgot to wish the Prime Minister on his birthday but why did we not use our hashtag power to force a comment out of him at that very blighted moment or ask him how his slogan of beti bachao beti padhao had been trampled upon and demised as beti daraao, beti hataao?

If Nirbhaya was an overnight shocker, the Hathras girl wasn't. The news was doing the rounds though we chose not to register it. The first reports that the 19-year-old had been gang-raped, bruised, battered and left to die in the fields, where she had gone to graze the cows, surfaced in the middle of September. Local media was aware of it but exploitation of Dalit women by upper caste men is so common in the heartland that it isn't considered newsworthy or human enough to follow up on. This despite the fact that the rapists tried to strangle her, cut off her tongue for fear she could testify against them and almost broke her spine that left her paralysed. Now, it turns out, the girl had been stalked by these men for quite some time but for all the helpline and women's cells, in a tiny hamlet of about 15 Dalit families surrounded by upper caste headmen, such democratic tools stand no chance. She writhed in excruciating pain for 15 days in hospital, fighting like a warrior for her dear life. Still, nobody, least of all the media, probed a gruesome murder of womanhood. Or even asked crime diary questions, like why wasn't an FIR registered, why were the FSL samples not taken immediately but days later when sperms are not to be found anyway to establish rape?

What were we, the literati, busy with then? Precious news hours on actor Kangana Ranaut's insult by the Shiv Sena, the demolition of her office and the stereotyping of the woman as a victim despite her privilege and power. The nation had to give her justice; who cared about a poor Dalit woman or the other Dalit women who are being violated even as we write this but will never be heard or talked about, snuffed out before they can make a sound? The girl had to die to make the national news. Besides, we mindlessly devoured the interrogation of Deepika Padukone on her old recreational habit of using party drugs. And "awwwd" at how her caring husband was a real man, worried about the "anxiety attacks" she allegedly suffers from. Simply because the guilt was not on us but a set of pretty, powerful people who we may desire to be but knowing we won't, are happy to just pass the burden of sin and resultantly feel smug about our moral order. We could hold a relentless media trial on actor Sushant Singh Rajput's death but not on the Dalit girl. It mattered little that the Hathras girl, when alive, just rippled along the margins of our consciousness but since she was not upper caste, she didn't threaten our peace or stir our conscience enough. All we had to do was stand by her when she had the spirit to fight, campaign with her.

But as thinking people, we chose not to react. Selective crusades are egoistic, not altruistic. An afterthought is a bitter consolation prize. Rather debt.

The fact of the matter is that for all our claims of diversity and plurality, we do not live it. We are deeply casteist and hegemonic and, therefore, territorial and protectionist about our kind. We like to read about and watch excesses on Dalits but never feel the need to own their problems as our own. Or fight to stop them as we did during Nirbhaya. We have allowed more offenders to act with impunity. Had we felt guilty and not pitiful, the Hathras case wouldn't be seen as another case of a Dalit woman who was raped and murdered in the fields, her use only worthy enough to satisfy the lust of dominant caste men, who didn't have societal sanction to do this with their own women. This hypocrisy is one social custom that has survived like a stubborn medieval vestige. I remember working on a special supplement on the Dalit millennium for this paper in 2000 and travelling to a village somewhere near the Haryana-Rajasthan border. Since the Dalits were castaways, they had been allowed a settlement in the fringes. Though social interaction was considered abhorrent, it didn't stop the upper caste men from going there for sexual pleasures, more by force, less as seeking a service. The Dalit men were either paid off handsomely to remain silent or allow access to their women. The women were not even asked, they were considered "available." For young upper caste men, a visit here was the rite of passage before they became worldly-wise. One of the upper caste men had then gloated that at least no sex crimes had happened in the village or the youth hadn't turn deviant. As for Dalits, he reasoned, they got the money to run their lives. What has changed in 20 years as we claim to reform revisionist ways?

For a mindset to change, we, as civil society, haven't fought enough to make every case of gender and caste violence against Dalits a collective societal threat and give them prime time attention. We have confined Dalit issues to an activist sphere rather than making them the day's talking point. We have a Corona death tracker running on our devices every day. Do we have a tracker on excesses against women to remind ourselves what we need to do to stop them? How else can one explain the spiral in the crimes against Scheduled Castes and Tribes by seven per cent and 26 per cent in 2019, according to the National Crime Record Bureau (NCRB) figures. Uttar Pradesh tops this list of excesses. One just has to scan news reports of the last few months to find a repetitive pattern of violence against Dalit girls. They are usually attacked in fields when they are out on their chores and unescorted, they are brutally raped and killed and then left hanging from a tree, like a trophy in a bestial war, and a warning that more girls would meet a similar fate if their families sought remedial means. At other times, they are strangled. Some statistics show that at least four Dalit women are raped in India every day. The truth has got to be uglier considering the coercion by upper caste perpetrators, their hold on tools of governance, particularly the police. In the Hathras case, they left no trace of the victim at all. So that medieval powerplay of the hunter and the hunted, that masochistic intimidation of the vulnerable prey and the patriarchal domination continues. As for the caste brotherhood, it is a societal phalanx and an insurance for political capital. So if journalists are asking why an upper caste congregation was allowed in Hathras to shield the criminals, as if it was a shocking discovery, this clanish protectionism is not new. Take the Unnao rape case. The girl survivor was raped in 2017 by then BJP MLA Kuldeep Singh Sengar. Her complaint was not registered by the local police, her family was threatened and her father died in police custody after being beaten up by the accused MLAs' brother. No media, civil society or activist helped the girl till she threatened to immolate herself in front of Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath's residence. She created her own media-grab moment which finally led to Sengar's sentencing in 2019. Had there been a justice campaign immediately after the victim's plight came to light, the tolerance threshold would not have been stretched limitlessly.

Worse, women are failing their own kind. The National Commission of Women, which was so quick to come down on the hurt caused to Kangana and sought the Shiv Sena leader's arrest, waited to craft a response and then wrote a letter to the UP DGP seeking an explanation on why the police rushed through the cremation of the girl without her parents' consent. Ruling BJP women members, irrespective of their ideological commitment and no matter who they are beholden to, should have spoken out against this brutal rape. Union Minister for Women and Child Development Smriti Irani had no statement to make on the Hathras episode but had time to defend our laws at the UN. "Several of our legislations such as those pertaining to sexual harassment of women at the workplace, protection of women from domestic violence, protection of children from sexual offences, and our criminal laws' amendments, have been strong enablers of women empowerment...over the past six years," she said. Nothing could be a bigger lie. And as for all the educated and free-thinking people around us, who are ever ready to create a digital wave on wearing a handloom sari or putting red and black dots for all kinds of human rights excesses around the world, from Kashmir to Syria to Black Lives, we didn't have time to consider Hathras as our day of reckoning. The shame is on us. The guilt is in our delay.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A political stunt?

Sir — The news of US President Donald Trump and the First Lady Melania having tested positive for Coronavirus has shocked many, mainly because the Presidential election is due in November. Badly lagging behind in the polls against Democratic challenger Joe Biden, many believe it to be a political stunt. Stunt or not, Trump testing positive should be a warning sign to all those who believed what he said last week: "The end of the pandemic is in sight." In an interview with The Telegraph, Dr Richard Hatchett, chief executive of the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations (Cepi) said, that, although he expects the first doses of COVID vaccine to be available from the first half of 2021, the demand is likely to outstrip supply for a successful vaccine until at least 2022. So, as we continue living with the virus with no vaccine in sight, it is imperative that people realise that everyone is equally vulnerable. Hence, we need to follow WHO's COVID protocols and stay safe. We cannot afford to be lax in the foreseeable future.

The case that didn't matter

The lukewarm reaction of the political class to the verdict in the Babri Masjid demolition is on expected lines. Given that the demolition of the Masjid involves the religious sensitivities of the majority community, the main political parties have been cautious about their response while prominent Muslim and Left leaders from south India came down heavily on the verdict. All India Majlis-e-Ittehadul Muslimeen (AIMIM) president and MP from Hyderabad Asaduddin Owaisi said this judgement was given only to satisfy the Hindutva ideology. This puts a spotlight on the fact that political parties are concerned more with political gains than with moral principles.

After a series of lengthy delays, the verdict was pronounced after 28 years. Despite the importance the case carried, no Government, be it the Centre or the State, was interested in fast-tracking the case. Their disinterest in seeking justice in the demolition case shows that they did not want to alienate the Hindus.

As the construction of Ram Mandir is under way, the demolition of the Babri Masjid continues to be a festering wound for Indian democracy and its constitutional values. It is a reminder of the ignominious failure of Central and State Governments to prevent the monstrosity. Truth and justice lie buried deep under the debris. The social evil called communalism rages on.

Rules only for public

Sir — Madhya Pradesh Home Minister Narottam Mishra was in Indore to participate in a programme for distribution of assistance under the State Government's Sambal Yojana. However, he was in the news for a different reason. Mishra wasn't wearing a mask and when asked about it, he said, "I don't wear a mask at any programmes". So are rules only for the people? Or maybe Mishra wasn't aware that Indore is among the worst-hit districts in Madhya Pradesh. Either way, it is time that people in power respect the rules laid down for the safety of the people because unlike them, the virus isn't biased.

Too little too late

Sir — Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath's decision to suspend Hathras SP Vikrant Vir and four other policemen over the rape-murder case of the 19-year-old Dalit woman was too little too late. From cremating the victim's body in the dead of night to preventing journalists from meeting the family by erecting barricades to block all paths leading to the village, and manhandling the Opposition leaders on the pretext of imposition of Section 144, the UP Government has dealt all possible cards to isolate the victim's family and shield the accused. The sorry attempt to settle the growing unrest hasn't helped. On the contrary, it shows how rape and caste atrocities have been normalised in UP and to what extent the Yogi Government can go to hide it.

Witch-hunt

Sir — Any non-governmental organisation perceived "uncomfortable" has been put under the Government's scanner and Amnesty International has been the latest victim. Amnesty has closed its operations in India after the Government had its accounts frozen as they released reports on the human rights violations in Jammu and Kashmir and Delhi Riots.

Which revolutions will succeed?

Earlier, non-violent movements to overthrow illegitimate regimes used to succeed half the time, now they win only once in three attempts

GWYNNE DYER

The old calculation was simple and brutal: If you want to overthrow a tyrant, you must use violence. There was an occasional exception, like Mahatma Gandhi's use of non-violent protests to gain India's independence, but people wrote that off as being due to the fact that the British empire, being ruled by a democratic Government, was too soft. Tell that to the descendants of the tens of thousands of Irish, Kenyans, Malaysians, Yemenis, Iraqis, Egyptians and Afrikaners who were killed for trying to leave the British empire. It would be truer to say that the Gandhian non-violence obliged the British to avoid massive violence in India (and Pakistan got a free ride out on the same ticket).

And then, after bubbling underneath for four decades with a few partial successes like the American civil rights movement, non-violent tactics exploded into a kaleidoscopic range of peaceful revolutions in the late 1980s. From South and South-East Asia (the Philippines, Taiwan, Thailand, South Korea, Bangladesh) to Iran and the Communist-ruled countries in Eastern Europe, the technique seemed unstoppable. Though peaceful protest was drowned in blood in China in 1989, it kept notching up victories elsewhere: The Soviet Union, most of France's sub-Saharan colonies, South Africa and Indonesia in the 1990s; Serbia, Georgia, Armenia, Ukraine and Lebanon in the 2000s; and Egypt, Tunisia, Syria and Sudan in the 2010s. But all the non-violent uprisings of the 2010-2011 "Arab Spring", except Tunisia's, ended up being crushed by military coups or civil wars. And none of the current crop, in Belarus, Thailand and Algeria, is heading for a rapid or easy victory. Indeed, they might all fail.

What is happening to this technique that once swept all before it? It's more than three decades since this new technique startled the world and dictators are not usually fools. They saw what happened to their former colleagues who got overthrown and started working out counter-strategies that would weaken the determination and cohesiveness of the protesters. For example, all but the stupidest dictators now know that while violence can scare individuals and small groups into silence, it is almost always a mistake to use it against very large groups. It just makes them angry, and they'll usually be back the next day in much larger numbers. Your real objective, as a dictator, should be to trick the protesters into using violence themselves. Then the thugs who love a street-fight will rise to leadership positions in the protests while most other people withdraw, disgusted by the violence. Then you can use massive violence against the violent protesters who remain. Dictators have also learned to block the internet and mobile phones at the first sign of protest, or to mine electronic communications between the protest organisers to stop small groups from uniting into an unstopably big crowd. Keep that up long enough and you may just wait them out.

Harvard political scientist Erica Chenoweth is the go-to expert on this, and she has two very useful numbers for us. The first is that whereas non-violent movements to overthrow illegitimate regimes used to succeed half the time, now they win only one in three times. The other, more encouraging, finding is that if they can get 3.5 per cent of the population out in the streets, they almost always win. By this measure, the Belarus movement is still within reach of success as 3.5 per cent of Belarus's population is about 3,00,000 people, and demonstrations since early August, including those in cities outside Minsk, probably come close to that figure on most weekends. People are not yet bored, cowed, or in despair there as is evident by the protests on September 26, which saw 500 people being arrested.

The protests in Thailand against former general and coup-leader Prayut Chan-o-cha have not yet spread significantly beyond Bangkok and the mostly student protesters are certainly not even one per cent of the population. The movement continues to expand but its long-term prospects are doubtful. As for Algeria, the recent election of a new President closely linked to the last one (whom the protesters forced to resign last year) has brought the students back out into the streets in force. The COVID-19 lockdown robbed the movement of its momentum, however, and it is unlikely to regain it.

So maybe one success in three for regime change, just as Erica Chenoweth predicts. But her most important insight is that the 3.5 per cent number probably applies to any popular protest movement, including those in democratic countries. The goals of those movements need not be limited to overthrowing dictators. As she told the Harvard Gazette last year: "Though this (3.5 per cent) sounds like a really small number, but in absolute terms it's really an impressive number of people... Can you imagine if 11.5 million (Americans) were doing something like mass non-cooperation in a sustained way for nine to 18 months? Things would be totally different in this country."

Hope at the end of the tunnel

Built at an altitude of over 3,000 metres in the Pir Panjal Range, the Atal tunnel will not only provide all-weather connectivity but give our forces a strategic edge in troop movements

NAREESH KUMAR

We often express hope by saying, "There's light at the end of the tunnel." But in Himachal Pradesh, this adage is going to change to, "There's Lahaul-Spiti and Ladakh at the end of the tunnel." The long-awaited Atal tunnel was inaugurated by Prime Minister Narendra Modi on October 3. Its south portal is located at a distance of 25 km from Manali at an altitude of 3,060 metres, while its north portal is near village Teling and Sissu, in Lahaul Valley.

The 9.2 kilometre long tunnel is going to open new horizons for the people of Lahaul, Spiti and other far-flung areas of Himachal Pradesh in the true sense of the word. At 10.5 metres wide and 5.52 metre high, this corridor was constructed at a cost of around ₹3,200 crore. It has state-of-the-art electro-mechanical systems, including the semi-transverse ventilation system where large fans would separately circulate air throughout the tunnel's length, plus the SCADA-controlled fire-fighting, illumination and monitoring system.

Built at an altitude of over 3,000 metres (10,075 feet) in the Pir Panjal Range of the majestic Himalayas, the Atal tunnel will provide the region with much-needed connectivity, round the year, with the rest of the country. It is a horse-shoe shaped, single-tube, double lane tunnel with a roadway of eight metres. It has been designed for traffic density of 3,000 cars and 1,500 trucks per day with a maximum speed of 80 kilometres per hour (kmph). This new-found connectivity with the rest of India will open up many livelihood opportunities for the 32,000 tribal residents of Lahaul and Spiti and the adjoining areas, too.

This strategically-important and extremely challenging tunnel has been built in the tough and hostile terrain and weather of the Himalayas by an expert team of engineers of the Indian Army's Border Road Organisation (BRO), who overcame the toughest infrastructural and engineering challenge to execute this project. The tunnel has consumed 12,252 metric tonnes of steel, 1,69,426 metric tonnes of cement and 1,01,336 metric tonnes of concrete, and a whopping 5,05,264 metric tonnes of soil and rocks were excavated during its construction by adopting the latest Austrian tunneling method. The engineering team also faced impediments from the fast-flowing water from Seri Nullah on top of the tunnel, thereby making it one of the toughest projects to be executed by the BRO.

The world's longest highway tunnel at an altitude above 10,075 feet, the Atal tunnel will reduce the distance between Solang Valley near Manali to Sissu in Lahaul by around 46 km. This will cut the travel time from around two-three hours to just 15 minutes, depending on the traffic flow. The project also gains importance as such infrastructure can translate into rapid and efficient delivery of supplies the whole year round.

Situated on the border of two nations, the tunnel will ensure swift movement of troops, speedy transportation of rations, weapons and other logistics, the need for which has been felt for a long time. In fact, given its strategic location, particularly for the defence forces, the feasibility study of the project was done in May 1990 and the geological report was submitted in June 2004, followed by a design and specification study that was prepared and finalised in December

“ALTHOUGH THIS TUNNEL WILL OPEN UP A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITIES FOR HIMACHALIS, CREATE MORE JOB OPPORTUNITIES, BOOST TRADE, TOURISM AND SALE OF FARM PRODUCE, IT WILL ALSO THROW UP A FEW CHALLENGES FOR THE LOCAL POPULATION OF THE REGION. ONCE THE INFLOW OF TOURISTS BEGINS, THEY WILL HAVE TO DO THEIR BIT TO PROTECT THE FRAGILE ENVIRONMENT, PRISTINE BEAUTY, CULTURE AND INNOCENCE OF THE PEOPLE. THE STATE GOVERNMENT AND THE TOURISM BOARD WOULD BE WELL-ADVISED TO REGULATE TOURIST FLOW”

2006. The project received final technical approval in 2003 and tenders were floated in 2007. The foundation stone of the tunnel, which was at that time called the Rohtang tunnel, before it was changed to Atal tunnel by the NDA Government, was laid in July 2010 by UPA chairperson Sonia Gandhi. Though the project was scheduled to be completed by February 2015, it got delayed due to some unforeseen problems.

Now, that it is completed, the tunnel will ensure that the people of Lahaul Valley are no longer held hostage to the vagaries of nature as earlier the area used to be cut off from the rest of the country for about six months every year due to heavy snowfall.

Plus, the low temperatures also affected the power and communication infrastructure apart from disturbing life in general. Due to six months of snow, agricultural supplies from the area could not reach markets in northern India. The valley, known for the best potato production in the country, is also famous for its delicious cauliflower, peas, kuth, hops and fruits, especially apples. The all-weather connectivity to Lahaul Valley will now make it easier for the people to sell their produce throughout the year. Though the Spiti Valley will still be inaccessible in the winters beyond the Kunzum pass, the 117 km distance from Manali to Keylong, which used to take about five-six hours of travel time, will be reduced.

Given the tough terrain and the length of the tunnel, safety has been given top priority by the BRO. Consequently, there is a telephone facility every 150 metres of the stretch, a fire hydrant every 60 metres, emergency exits every 500 metres, a turning cavern every 2.2 km, air quality monitors every one km, air broadcasting system and automatic incident detection system with CCTV cameras every 250 metres. It also has parking facilities in case of a vehicle breakdown. Meanwhile, avalanche control structures are being constructed to prevent future damage to the roads.

However, it is not just the specifications of the tunnel that are alluring. Its significance lies in the fact that it will be a harbinger of major social changes, denoting a difference in the outlook of the people who led a separate and cut-off existence from the rest of India for half of the year, consistently. The Atal tunnel will immensely fortify the horticulture and travel industry in the area, which are the main sources of livelihood for the people. It will also be a great boost for emergency healthcare in Lahaul Valley as critically ill patients had to be airlifted during the winters.

The opening of the route is good news for businesses hit by the pandemic. The hotels, homestays and tourism-driven businesses that used to operate only for six months in a year will get a new lease of life. Tourists stand to gain as well. Earlier, the establishments charged a premium from the tourists since they were open for a short period due to connectivity and weather issues. Now, with the opening of the tunnel, there is no longer a truncated tourist season of six months. Hence, there will be a major tourist flow throughout the year. Competition will increase and in the end this will benefit customers.

Imagine the growth this will bring in the number and variety of tourist facilities in Keylong and adjoining areas. Manali, the biggest tourist attraction of the State, may soon be just a stopover. According to Government data, 1.33 lakh tourists visited Lahaul in 2019 whereas a total of 1.72 crore people vacationed in Himachal Pradesh. This means that most of the tourists generally visited Kullu, Manali, Shimla, Dalhousie, Dharamshala and other famous destinations in the State which had greater accessibility and good infrastructure. However, Lahaul-Spiti had a low tourist footfall due to the rough terrain and connectivity issues and was just used as a stopover by people doing a road trip from Manali to Leh or vice versa. There are plenty of homestays and camping facilities at Jispa, Keylong and Sarchu in the Valley and these are mostly visited by tourists en route to Ladakh. This was a major source of revenue for locals as well as the State Government. However, the opening of the tunnel is expected to change all this and strengthen the local economy in every way.

Though this tunnel will open up a world of opportunities for Himachalis, create more job opportunities, boost trade, tourism and sale of farm produce, it will also throw up a few challenges for the local population. Once the influx of tourists begins, they will have to do their bit to protect the fragile environment, pristine beauty, culture and innocence of the locals. The State Government and the tourism board would be well-advised to regulate tourist flow. There will have to be a mechanism for the development of tourism infrastructure keeping in mind the need to preserve the beauty and environment of Lahaul and Spiti, which is till now known as the abode of gods.

Will 2020 end with a Third World War?

The world community will have to wait anxiously and watch the simmering conflict between Armenia and Azerbaijan for the next few weeks

ANIL GUPTA

While the global community was glued to eastern Ladakh and the South China Sea (SCS) as flashpoints that may endanger global peace due to growing Chinese belligerence, another conflict has emerged in the Caucasus region. This area lies between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea, mainly occupied by Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia and parts of southern Russia. The region is the lifeline of oil supply to neighbouring countries with major pipelines passing through here. It also serves as the border between Asia and Europe.

On September 27, a long-simmering conflict in the south Caucasus once again burst into open clashes between Azerbaijan and Armenia. The cause of the ongoing battle, which soon may erupt into an all-out war since both nations have declared martial law, is the disputed enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh. The control of this enclave was ceded to Armenia in 1994 after a bloody separatist conflict.

Universally, Nagorno-Karabakh is accepted as part of Azerbaijan. Both countries have been fighting each other since then at irregular intervals. The latest provocation dates back to July this year when Armenia killed a general and other officers of Azerbaijan's military in a missile strike, leading to a big uproar in Baku which swore to take revenge soon. Azerbaijan was buoyed by the immediate Turkish offer to prepare for the response.

Nagorno-Karabakh proper has an area of about 4,400 square kilometres but Armenian forces occupy large swathes of the adjacent territory. Long-simmering tensions between majority Christian Armenians seeking union with Armenia and mostly Muslim Azeris began boiling over as the Soviet Union began to disintegrate in its final years. The USSR collapsed in 1991 and the republics became independent nations. In late 1991, a majority of Armenian inhabitants declared independence from Azerbaijan with Armenia's support. It led to the emergence of the Republic of Artsakh, which to date remains unrecognised.

The efforts of Azerbaijan to reimpose its authority led to a fight for ownership, soon converting into the bloodiest war between the two neighbours. The war saw atrocities on both sides. A 1994 ceasefire left Armenian and Azerbaijani forces facing each other across a demilitarised zone, where clashes are frequently reported. The region has since been under the control of Armenian forces, though it is still internationally recognised as part of Azerbaijan, as stated earlier. International mediation, including United Nations resolutions, have failed to resolve the crisis.

The new flashpoint has one thing in common to the other two, and that is the expansionist ambitions of another ultra-nationalist leader, the Turkish President, Recep Tayyip Erdogan. Ever since his ascendancy to power, he has embroiled Turkey militarily in neighbouring countries like Iraq, Syria and Libya, including the eastern Mediterranean region. He is on the opposite side of Russia in both Syria and Libya, leading to regional rivalry. Turkey is also pressing territorial claims in disputes with Greece and Cyprus, thus creating alarm among its North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) allies. It has a powerful military, which has also led Erdogan to view himself as the future leader of the Muslim world, displacing the traditional royal house of Saud. This is just like Chinese President Xi Jinping, who is dreaming to be the world leader replacing the US President. Erdogan is also preparing a non-Arab Muslim alliance with the active connivance of Pakistan. His growing assertiveness in the region has changed his nation's power dynamics.

While all other nations like India, China, the US, France, Iran and the European Union (EU) have asked both countries to refrain from a full-fledged war and return to the negotiating table to resolve the issue through dialogue, Turkey and Pakistan have offered open support to Azerbaijan and egged it on to liberate the disputed enclave from Armenian control.

French President Emmanuel Macron has warned Turkey to refrain from sending jihadists as mercenaries to the troubled area. It has also been reported that Pakistan has already sent Al Qaeda and Taliban jihadists to the area along with one unit of regular soldiers. Pakistan, which is already known as the fountainhead of terror, wants to convert this region into another epicentre of jihadist terror like Afghanistan. The majority jihadists, despite being Sunnis, are willing to fight alongside the Shiite Azeris against Armenians because they consider it as a holy war between the Muslims and the Christians. While Vatican has also called for restraint, both Pakistan and Turkey are encouraging Azerbaijan to continue the fight and have expressed their solidarity towards Muslim brotherhood. Pakistan is also keen to develop the area into another zone of Muslim liberation like Palestine and Kashmir. Whether this has the covert support of China is not yet clear but both Turkey and Pakistan enjoy good relations with each other.

The geopolitics of the region is very complicated. Turkey and Pakistan have military alliances with Azerbaijan, while Armenia has a similar treaty with Russia, which has a military base in Armenia. Russia also enjoys good relations with Azerbaijan and is its major arms supplier. Russia, France and the US jointly chair the Minsk Group, which was founded in 1992 by the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, now known as the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) to try and find a peaceful solution to the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict. All the three nations have close ties with Armenia. Turkey, being an important NATO member, has caused an imminent crack in the organisation with France and the US inclined towards Armenia.

Armenia has responded to the peace call by the Minsk Group but Azerbaijan's response is not yet known. Israel is an arms supplier to Azerbaijan but with Turkey openly supporting Azerbaijan and its newly-formed ties with Muslim nations in the Middle East, it has put Israel in a Catch-22 situation. Iran shares borders and is also friendly with both the nations. But in case of a religious war, it would have to decide to support Azerbaijan or stay neutral.

With global terror outfits moving into the area and more Muslim countries backing Azerbaijan, the situation is getting polarised. India, too, has a stake in the region. The North-South Corridor linking Mumbai to Moscow via Chabahar passes through Azerbaijan. India will not like the region to become another jihadist terror hub.

Outright war could put key pipelines at risk. Any direct involvement by Turkey will push Russia into the war. France has already warned Turkey. A direct attack on Armenia would invoke its defence pact with Russia and draw it into the conflict. In case of a Muslim versus Christian fight, many countries, including the EU, are likely to join, splitting the NATO. This would have repercussions beyond the region as well. If China decides to join its friends, Pakistan and Turkey, it may lead to a Third World War. But with China tied down in a confrontation with India and US-backed Taiwan, it is less likely. The world will have to wait anxiously and watch the happenings of the next two-three weeks to determine if 2020 will end peacefully or not. Yes, world peace is at stake.

GANDHI JAYANTI

Khadi India's flagship store records ₹1.2 crore sales

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

The soaring spirit of Khadi lovers got better of the Covid-19 fear on Gandhi Jayanti with the Khadi sales figure crossing the ₹1 crore mark at Delhi's flagship Khadi India outlet in Connaught Place.

The overall sales of Khadi was recorded at ₹1,02,19,496 on Friday (October 2), which is significantly high given the prevailing Corona pandemic situation, said the Ministry of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises.

Last year, the total sale at Khadi's CP outlet on October 2, stood at ₹1.27 crore. As many as 1,633 bills were generated throughout the day with an average purchase of ₹6,258 per bill. Customers belonging to different segments and age-groups queued at the Khadi India outlet since morning.

Industries Commission (KVIC) has also launched its customary annual special 20 per cent discount on all products to celebrate the 151st birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi.

KVIC Chairman Vinai Kumar Saxena attributed the massive sale figures to the frequent appeals of the Prime Minister Narendra Modi to buy Khadi and also its growing popularity among masses particularly the youth.

"Despite the corona pandemic, a large number of people still came out to buy Khadi which is a result of the repeated appeals of the Hon'ble PM. Khadi has become a household name and the number of Khadi lovers is constantly growing. And despite a manifold increase in production, KVIC has ensured the highest quality of its product range that has kept our consumer base intact," Saxena said. He added although the sale figure this year fell just short of last year's mark because of the pandemic, the over ₹1 crore single-day sale figure was still quite satisfactory.

The high sale figure of Khadi this year assumes greater significance. While almost all activities were closed during the Covid-19 lockdown, KVIC continued with its diverse activities across the country that includes the manufacturing of face masks and personal hygiene products like hand wash and hand sanitizers apart from a vast range of fabric and village industries products.

RBI affirms currency notes potential corona carriers: CAIT

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

The Confederation of All India Traders (CAIT) on Sunday said that the RBI had affirmed the possibility of currency notes as potential carriers of novel coronavirus and demanded government incentives for digital payments.

The development comes after CAIT wrote a letter to Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on March 9, 2020 seeking clarification whether or not currency notes are carriers of bacteria and viruses.

However, the letter was forwarded to the Reserve Bank of India, which replied to CAIT and hinted that currency notes could be carriers of bacteria and viruses, including coronavirus, and therefore more and more usage of digital payments should be done to avoid handling of currency, the confederation said in a statement.

The RBI further stated that "in order to limit the coronavirus pandemic, the public can make payments by sitting at homes through various online digital channels like mobile and Internet banking, credit and debit cards etc and avoid using or withdrawing cash to the extent possible."

According to CAIT National President BC Bhartia and Secretary General Praveen Khandelwal, the RBI's reply indicates that the currency notes do carry viruses and bacteria and, therefore, the maximum use of digital payments to avoid handling of currency notes was advised by them.

Furthermore, the CAIT urged Sitharaman to introduce an 'incentive' scheme for acceptance and adoption of digital payments.

UK, India joint operation targets online fraud scams

PTI ■ LONDON

A recent joint operation against computer software service fraud offences between the UK and Indian security forces has led to raids on 10 suspect offices in six cities of India, according to UK authorities.

The City of London Police, the UK's national lead force for fraud, revealed this week that it confirmed people in the UK had been defrauded by these companies to its counterparts in India, the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI).

They provided vital witness statements, detailing the victims' dealings with the companies concerned, evidence which is a key requirement to enable the police in India to take action against fraudulent companies.

"We welcome this enforcement action on the part of the Central Bureau of Investigation and will support their efforts to bring offenders to justice through the Indian courts," said Alex Rothwell, Temporary Detective Chief Superintendent at the City of London Police.

"At the time of the lockdown in India, we saw a sharp decline in reports of computer software service fraud in the UK, but we know that criminals adapt quickly to continue to try to defraud people. As more people work from home, the need to prevent fraud of this nature has become more urgent," he said.

The companies are alleged to have displayed pop-up messages on victims' computers warning them about serious technical problems with their device including the presence of malware infection.

Victims were then advised to call a helpline to gain assistance and were charged a premium fee for the "fix" and "ongoing support".

Victims were then made to pay this fee online or over the phone, meaning their financial details were shared with criminals.

On September 17, officers from the CBI conducted raids on 10 premises based on this information across six Indian cities. Some home addresses of people associated with the various companies were also visited.

According to the City of London Police, the CBI investigation into the case remains ongoing.

The latest operation follows previous joint operations, resulting from a partnership between the City of London Police, American tech giant Microsoft and Indian police forces to tackle such online fraud, which the UK authorities said has led to action against 37 call centres and resulted in 88 arrests.

India Inc expects steady recovery in Oct-Mar FY21: CII CEOs Poll

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

The business fraternity expects a steady recovery in the Indian economy during the second half of the financial year 2020-21, shows a poll of CEOs done by CII.

A statement by the industry body said that India Inc is estimating a capacity utilisation of over 50 per cent during October-March in FY21.

"A steady recovery of the Indian economy is on the anvil as corporate India restarts business and economic activity with lockdowns being increasingly relaxed in many parts of the country. For the first time since the advent of the pandemic in the country in early 2020, India Inc is now estimating a capacity utilisation of more than 50 per cent in the second half of this financial year," it said.

CEOs of top 115 companies who met at CII's National Council recently, indicated revival of positive business sentiment and gradual rise in expected corporate performance.

The CEOs of top companies who took the poll included representatives across sectors from metals and mining to manufacturing, auto, pharmaceuticals, health, energy, infrastructure, construction and leading services sectors including ITes, health, hospitality, tourism and e-commerce.

The apex body also had a large representation of the medium and small sector apart from start-ups, it said.

The statement said that the unlocking of almost all economic activities, along with the reform and revival measures announced by the government and the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) have contributed to the gradual improvement in business sentiments in the second half of the current financial year.

"While in most cases, the performance - revenue or capacity utilisation - is estimated to be lower than the comparative figures in 2019-20, a large percentage of the CEOs polled have shown confidence in the days ahead indicating that the worst may be behind," it said.

On consumer demand, while 32 per cent of the CEOs are hoping for better prospects, another 27 per cent of them expect no change when compared to the second half of the last financial year.

However, only 31 per cent of the CEOs expected their revenue growth to be in the positive territory in the second half of the current financial year compared to last year. Regarding exports, 40 per cent of the CEOs expect better prospects on exports and 24 per cent of them expect no change in prospects during the second half of the current fiscal when compared to the same period last year.

Stormy GST Council meet likely on Monday

NON-BJP STATES TO OPPOSE CENTRE'S BORROWING OPTION

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

The GST Council meeting on Monday may turn into a stormy affair, with non-BJP ruled states still being in disagreement with the Centre on the compensation issue.

While as many as 21 states, mostly ruled by BJP or parties which have supported it on issues, had till mid-September opted to borrow ₹97,000 crore to meet the GST revenue shortfall in the current fiscal, opposition-led states like West Bengal, Punjab and Kerala have not yet accepted the borrowing option given by the Centre.

Sources said in the 42nd meeting of the Council on October 5, opposition-ruled states would object to the Centre's borrowing options and demand alternative mechanism for funding GST compensation deficit.

They feel that the constitutional liability of compensating states lies with the union government.

In the current fiscal, the states are staring at a staggering ₹2.35 lakh crore Goods and Services Tax (GST) revenue shortfall.

Of this, as per Centre's calculation, about ₹97,000 crore is on account of GST implementation and rest ₹1.38 lakh crore is the impact of COVID-19 on states' revenues.

The Centre in August gave two options to the states to borrow either ₹97,000 crore from a special window facilitated by the RBI or ₹2.35 lakh crore from market and has also proposed extending the compensation cess levied on luxury, demerit and sin goods beyond 2022 to repay the borrowing.

The non-BJP ruled states are at loggerheads with the Centre over the issue of funding the shortfall.

Chief Ministers of six non-BJP ruled states — West Bengal, Kerala, Delhi, Telangana, Chhattisgarh and Tamil Nadu — have written to the Centre opposing the options which require states to borrow to meet shortfall.

While these states want the Centre to borrow to meet the shortfall, the Centre has argued that the revenue accruing from GST compensation cess goes to the states and the Centre cannot borrow on the security of the tax it does not own.

Under the GST structure, taxes are levied under 5, 12, 18 and 28 per cent slabs. On top of the highest tax slab, a cess is levied on luxury, sin and demerit goods and the proceeds from the same are used to compensate states for any revenue loss.

CIL's coal allocation to power sector under e-auction rises 8% in Apr-Aug

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

CIL's coal allocation under special forward e-auction for the power sector registered a rise of 8.4 per cent to 7.94 million tonnes (MT) in April-August period of the ongoing fiscal. The state-owned company had allocated 7.32 MT of dry fuel in the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year, according to the monthly summary by the coal ministry for the Cabinet.

However, in August there was no coal allocation under the scheme, Coal India Ltd (CIL) said.

In August 2019-20, 0.62 MT coal was allocated to the power sector by the company, it said.

Coal distribution through forward e-auction is aimed at providing access to coal for such consumers who wish to have an assured supply over a long period, say one year, through e-auction mode so as to plan their operation.

The purpose of the scheme is to provide equal opportunities to all intending coal consumers to purchase coal for own consumption through single window services as per requirement and at a price determined by themselves through the process of online bidding.

Forward e-auction is aimed at facilitating all the consumers of coal across the country with wide ranging choice for booking coal online, enabling them to buy dry fuel through a simple, transparent and consumer friendly system of marketing of the fossil fuel.

CIL is one of the major suppliers of coal to the power sector.

The company, which accounts for over 80 per cent of domestic coal output, is eyeing 710 MT output in 2020-21.

Microsoft's global revenue reached $4 billion, up 19.5 per cent over the first quarter and representing 35.2 per cent of the total global UC&C market in the second quarter.

With 11.1 per cent market share, Cisco's worldwide revenue was $1.3 billion, up 11.7 per cent quarter over quarter.

India's recovery gains momentum on economic package: DEA

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

The economic recovery of India has gained momentum due to the "Aatmanirbhar Bharat" economic package announced in May, said a report by the Department of Economic Affairs (DEA).

The 'Monthly Economic Review' for September 2020 cited the estimated growth in the Kharif foodgrain output for 2020-21 to show a recovering economy. The implementation of Aatmanirbhar Bharat (AB) package and unlocking of the economy have ensured that economic recovery in India has gained momentum. This is seen in agriculture with production of kharif foodgrains in 2020-21 estimated to go past the previous year's level," it said.

It noted that the growth of demand in the rural sector is reflected in registration of two wheelers, three wheelers and passenger vehicles along with tractor sales reaching or surpassing previous year levels in August. Automobile sales largely recorded improvement last month compared to September 2019, a major reason being the low base -- low sales during the year ago. The report also said that other high-frequency indicators have also improved in sync with global activity.

Increase in global demand has led to expansion of India's export at 5.3 per cent in September on YoY basis, it added. The recovery in rail freight enabled revenue earnings clocking positive year-on-year growth for the first time since March in the months of August and early September. The DEA report said that easing of inter-state movement restrictions, quarantine policy and unlocking were accompanied with recovery in rail passenger earnings as well.

Piyush Goyal inaugurates phoolbagan metro station

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

Railways Minister Piyush Goyal Sunday inaugurated Phoolbagan Metro station in Kolkata. The total estimated project cost is ₹8574.98 Cr and its total length is 16.5 kms.

The project will connect Howrah on the West bank of the river Hooghly with Salt Lake City on its East bank. The first-phase of the East-West Metro from Salt Lake Stadium to Salt Lake Sector five was inaugurated by Goyal on 13th February this year.

Goyal also flagged off the first train from the newly inaugurated Phoolbagan station through video link. In his address, congratulating all for taking extra initiative to complete the work of Phoolbagan station in the midst of COVID-19 pandemic, Goyal said that this extension of services from Salt Lake Stadium to Phoolbagan (a stretch of 1.665 kms) will be a great help for the commuters more so because of its proximity to Sealdah station.

Terming it a gift for Durga Puja, he also said that metro provides the safest, cleanest and fastest transportation system in Kolkata.

He has further reassured that if land is made available and encroachments are removed then funds won't be a constraint for implementing any Railway project. Babul Supriyo, Minister of State for Environment, Forest and Climate Change congratulated Goyal for taking the initiative to commission this modern and beautiful Phoolbagan

Metro station so early.

He expressed hope that in the coming days people will be able to commute to and from Sealdah station easily due to this extension of East-West Metro. Sushri Debasree Chaudhuri, Minister of State for Women and Child Development was also present in this programme and expressed her happiness for commissioning of Phoolbagan station.

FPIs pull out in September after inflow surge in August

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

Persistent uncertainty regarding economic recovery and the surge in Covid-19 cases, led foreign portfolio investors (FPI) to pull out of the Indian markets last month after record investments in August.

The recent outflows in equities indicates increased heightened volatility in the global markets, according to the Department of Economic Affairs.

"While July and August witnessed record capital raising by leading domestic firms and low global interest rates, net FPI flows moderated to record an outflow of $0.33 billion in September owing to uncertainty around the pace of economic recovery and rising Covid cases in Europe and other countries including India," said the Monthly Economic Review for September 2020.

It also noted that India garnered the highest foreign portfolio inflows in the first half of 2020 compared to its emerging market peers.

Noting that the recent outflows in equities signal heightened volatility in global markets, it said: "However, reversal of selling spree in debt markets in September is a welcome change possibly triggered by low global bond yields."

The report said that on the financing side, net foreign direct investment (FDI) recorded an inflow of $3.3 billion in July compared to an outflow of $0.8 billion in June. Gross inflows increased from $3.6 billion in June to $4.7 billion in July.

The report also noted that globally the financial markets witnessed sharp corrections during September after rallying in August.

"Global stock market witnessed sharp correction during September after rallying in August, triggered by a marked gap between bullish investor sentiment and uncertainty about the recovery's strength," it said.

Azerbaijan's No 2 city targeted in fighting

Baku (Azerbaijan): The fighting between Armenian and Azerbaijani forces continued on Sunday over the separatist territory of Nagorno-Karabakh, with Azerbaijan's second-largest city coming under attack.

Azerbaijani officials said Sunday that Armenian forces attacked Ganja, the country's second largest city.

Hikmet Hajiyev, an aide to the Azerbaijani president, tweeted a video depicting damaged buildings, and called it the result of "Armenia's massive missile attacks against dense residential areas" in Ganja.

It wasn't immediately possible to verify the authenticity of the video.

Hajiyev said in another tweet that attacks on Ganja and other areas in Azerbaijan were launched "from territory of Armenia."

Armenia's Defense Ministry said that "no fire of any kind is being opened from the territory of Armenia in Azerbaijan's direction."

But Nagorno-Karabakh's leader, Arayik Harutyunyan, confirmed on Facebook he ordered "rocket attacks to neutralize military objects" in Ganja.

His spokesman, Vahram Poghosyan, said the territory's army destroyed a military airport in Ganja, a claim Azerbaijani officials denied.

The attack on the city killed one civilian and left four others wounded, the Azerbaijani Foreign Ministry tweeted. Harutyunyan said he ordered his forces to stop the attacks on Ganja to avoid civilian casualties.

Nagorno-Karabakh's leader added that "proportionate and crushing" strikes targeting the opponent's forces would continue, if Azerbaijan fails "to draw appropriate lessons."

The fighting, which broke out on September 27 and has continued for eight straight days, is the biggest escalation in years in the decades-long dispute over Nagorno-Karabakh.

The region lies within Azerbaijan, but is controlled by local ethnic Armenian forces backed by Armenia.

Both sides said the hostilities have spread beyond the breakaway territory and accused each other of attacking areas outside Nagorno-Karabakh.

Ganja, with a population of more than 330,000, is located roughly 100 kilometers (about 60 miles) north of Stepanakert, Nagorno-Karabakh's capital.

"Opening fire on the territory of Azerbaijan from the territory of Armenia is clearly provocative and expands the zone of hostilities," Azerbaijani Defense Minister Zakir Hasanov said in a statement Sunday.

As the fighting resumed

Sunday morning, Armenian officials accused Azerbaijan of carrying out strikes on Stepanakert and targeting the civilian population there.

Nagorno-Karabakh's leader Harutyunyan said that in response, his forces would target "military facilities permanently located in major cities of Azerbaijan."

In a statement issued later on Sunday, Azerbaijan's Defense Ministry rejected accusations of targeting civilians and civilian infrastructure.

Nagorno-Karabakh officials have said nearly 200 servicemen on their side have died so far.

Azerbaijani authorities haven't given details on their military casualties, but said 22 civilians were killed and 74 others were wounded.

Nagorno-Karabakh was a designated autonomous region within Azerbaijan during the Soviet era. It claimed independence from Azerbaijan in 1991, about three months before the Soviet Union's collapse. A full-scale war that broke out in 1992 killed an estimated 30,000 people.

By the time the war ended in 1994, Armenian forces not only held Nagorno-Karabakh itself but substantial areas outside the territory's formal borders, including Madagiz, the village Azerbaijan claimed to have taken on Saturday along with several others.

This week's fighting has prompted calls for a cease-fire from around the world. On Thursday, leaders of Russia, France and the United States — co-chairs of the so-called Minsk Group, which was set up by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe in 1992 to resolve the conflict — issued a joint statement calling for an immediate cease-fire and "resuming substantive negotiations ... Under the auspices of the OSCE Minsk Group co-chairs."

Azerbaijani President Ilham Aliyev said that Armenia's withdrawal from Nagorno-Karabakh is the sole condition to end the fighting. Armenian officials allege that Turkey is involved in the conflict and is sending fighters from Syria to the region.

Armenian Prime Minister Nikol Pashinian said earlier this week that "a cease-fire can be established only if Turkey is removed from the South Caucasus."

Ankara has denied sending arms or foreign fighters, while publicly siding with Azerbaijan in the dispute.

On Sunday, Turkey's Foreign Ministry condemned the attack on Ganja, saying it was proof of Armenia's disregard for the law.

Ankara accused Armenia of attacking civilian residential areas, and claimed that Armenia could commit crimes against humanity.

"Armenia is the biggest barrier to peace and stability in the region," the ministry said. AP

Prez Trump faces credibility crisis over health scare

Washington: One month from Election Day, President Donald Trump is facing a credibility crisis as yawning as his health crisis, at a moment when he needs the public's trust the most.

The president's coronavirus infection, as well as the illnesses of several aides and allies, has imperiled the highest levels of the U.S. Government.

The White House's efforts Saturday to project calm backfired in stunning fashion, resulting in a blizzard of confusing and contradictory information about the health and well-being of the commander in chief.

It's a moment months in the making, the collision of Trump's repeated defiance of his own administration's guidelines for staying safe during the pandemic and his well-known disregard for facts.

The result: deep uncertainty for Americans over who and what to believe about the health of the nation's leader at a perilous moment in U.S. History.

"This is bigger than Donald Trump. It's about the institution of the presidency," said Robert Gibbs, who served as President Barack Obama's first White House press secretary.

For any president, credibility in a crisis is paramount — the ability to rally

Americans of every political persuasion around a commonly accepted understanding of the situation.

For a president on the brink of an election, particularly one held in as tumultuous a year as 2020, it could be the difference between serving one term or two.

Yet Trump has squandered widespread credibility from the very start of his presidency, spending his first full day in office disputing official tallies of the crowd size at his inauguration and asking Americans to disregard photographic evidence showing that he drew fewer people to the National Mall in Washington than his predecessor.

The episode set the tone for the rest of his administration, with Trump creating alternate realities around issues big and small, amplified by the help of friendly media outlets. He frequently touts records and milestones that don't exist.

He spreads baseless rumors about his political opponents, including declaring without evidence that Joe Biden, his Democratic rival in the 2020 presidential campaign, might be on drugs in their debate. AP

Biden says some might pay price for backing him

Washington: Joe Biden says he urged some governors who wanted to endorse his presidential campaign to refrain from doing so because the Trump administration might retaliate by withholding medical supplies critical to COVID-19 relief.

Addressing a virtual town hall of the Amalgamated Transit Union town hall from Wilmington, Delaware, on Saturday, Biden said, "I probably shouldn't say this."

"I told some governors, don't endorse me who wanted to endorse me because you'll pay a penalty," Biden said.

"You won't get what you need from the federal government in terms of COVID prep." He added: "Not a joke, my word."

Biden's campaign has drawn the support of some leading Republicans who have broken ranks against their own party and President Donald Trump. AP

Russia reports 10,400 new daily cases, a record

Moscow: Coronavirus infections in Russia hit a new record on Sunday, with the government reporting over 10,000 new confirmed cases for the first time since mid-May.

The 10,499 new cases reported on Sunday bring the country's total to over 1.2 million. Russia currently has the fourth largest caseload in the world and has so far reported over 21,000 deaths.

The Russian authorities insist there are no plans to impose a second lockdown in the country that has lifted most of the virus-related restrictions imposed in the spring.

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said Friday another lockdown is currently not being discussed in the government.

At the same time in Moscow, which reported over 3,000 new cases on Sunday in the biggest surge in months, officials have recommended the elderly to self-isolate at home and have extended upcoming school holidays by a week.

On Thursday, Moscow mayor also ordered employers to have at least 30 per cent of their staff work from home. AP

Ready to take China-B'desh strategic partnership to new heights: Xi

Beijing: Chinese President Xi Jinping said he stands ready with Bangladesh leaders to better align the two countries' strategies and jointly promote the construction of his multi-billion dollar Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) to take the strategic partnership of the two countries to new heights.

Xi made the remarks in an exchange of congratulatory messages with his Bangladesh counterpart, Mohammad Abdul Hamid, on the 45th anniversary of the establishment of the bilateral diplomatic relationship on Sunday.

In his message, Xi hailed the steady and long-term friendship saying he is ready to work with Hamid to better align development strategies with Bangladesh, step up cooperation under the framework of the BRI and push forward the China-Bangladesh strategic, cooperative partnership to a new level, official media reported.

With over $26 billion Chinese investments and $38 billion dollars funding commitments, Bangladesh is one of the largest recipients of China's massive infrastructure project.

China has also offered zero-tariff treatment to 97 per cent of Bangladesh's exports by adding 5,161 more items to the existing list of 3,095 duty-free products.

The BRI seeks to build rail, maritime and road links from Asia to Europe and Africa in a revival of ancient Silk Road trading routes.

The issues related to BRI, earlier known as One Belt One Road (OBOR), has been a major bone of contention between India and China as one portion of the corridor passes through Pakistan-occupied Kashmir. AP

Besides Pakistan, where China initiated over USD 60 billion as part of the China Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC), China has stepped up its huge infrastructure investments in Bangladesh, Nepal, Sri Lanka and Maldives rising concerns of its growing influence in India's immediate neighbourhood.

The BRI is President Xi's top priority initiative, which aims firm up China's global influence.

The initiative has, however, attracted allegations, especially from the US, of debt-diplomacy after Sri Lanka handed over its Hambantota Port to a state-run Chinese firm in 2017 for a 99 years' lease in a debt swap amounting to $1.2 billion. Malaysia has also deferred several projects under the BRI, citing cost reevaluation. AP

Mecca reopens for limited 'umrah' pilgrimage

AFP ■ MECCA

Mask-clad Muslims circled Islam's holiest site along socially distanced paths on Sunday, as Saudi authorities partially resumed the year-round umrah pilgrimage amid extensive health precautions after seven-month coronavirus hiatus.

Thousands of worshippers entered the Grand Mosque in the holy city of Mecca in batches to perform the ritual of circling the sacred Kaaba, a cubic structure towards which Muslims around the world pray.

The umrah, the pilgrimage that can be undertaken at any time, usually attracts millions of Muslims from across the globe each year but it was suspended in March due to the coronavirus pandemic. It will be revived in three phases, with Saudi Hajj Minister Mohammad Benteen saying last week that 6,000 pilgrims per day will be allowed in the first stage to perform the umrah "meticulously and within a specified period of time."

A raft of precautions have been adopted to ward off any outbreaks during the umrah, according to state media.

The revered Black Stone in the eastern corner of the Kaaba -- which it is customary but not mandatory to touch during the pilgrimage -- will be out of reach, while the Grand Mosque will be sterilised before and after each group of worshippers.

Each group of 20 or 25 pilgrims will be accompanied by a health worker and medical teams will be on the ground in case of an emergency, Benteen said. AP

Firebrand cleric-cum-politician appointed as head of anti-government alliance in Pak

Islamabad: Firebrand cleric-politician Maulana Fazlur Rehman has been unanimously appointed as the chief of the newly-formed Pakistan Democratic Movement (PDM), an anti-government alliance launched by 11 Opposition parties to oust Prime Minister Imran Khan.

The decision was taken on Saturday during a virtual meeting of the Opposition parties attended by Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N) supreme and three-time former prime minister Nawaz Sharif, Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP) chairman Bilawal Bhutto Zardari, Balochistan National Party chief Sardar Akhtar Mengal among other senior politicians.

According to PDM's steering committee convener Ahsan

Iqbal, Sharif proposed 67-year-old Rehman's name as the alliance president and it was endorsed by PPP chairman Bilawal and others, the Dawn newspaper reported.

Sharif had initially proposed that Rehman should be appointed as the president on a permanent basis, but the idea was opposed by Bilawal and Awami National Party (ANP) leader Amir Haider Hoti, who suggested that the office should be given on a rotational basis to leaders of the constituent parties, the paper reported, citing sources.

There was an agreement among the leaders that Rehman should lead the PDM in the first phase as he had already led a demonstration, dubbed as 'Azadi March', against the present Pakistan

Tehreek-i-Insaf (PTI) government last year.

"Since the Maulana has already done a rehearsal and his party is more disciplined and has the ability to effectively mobilise the masses, therefore, in the first and decisive phase, he is the best choice," said one of the participants in the meeting.

Commenting on Rehman's appointment, Science and technology minister Fawad Chaudhry said it was a sad day for Pakistan that an "extremist Mullah" with ties to terrorist groups is selected to lead the opposition movement.

"Sad Day for Pakistan An extremist Mullah considered Close to terrorist groups of Afghanistan is selected to lead opposition movement against Government," Chaudhry tweeted. PTI

New Caledonia votes on becoming independent from France

Noumea (New Caledonia): Voters in New Caledonia turned out in large numbers on Sunday to decide whether the archipelago in the South Pacific should get independence from France and break ties that were first established in the mid-19th century.

Sunday's independence referendum is part of a three-decade decolonization effort aimed at settling tensions on the archipelago between native Kanaks seeking independence and residents willing to remain in France.

More than 180,000 voters were invited to answer the question: "Do you want New Caledonia to gain full sovereignty and become independent?"

"Today is not a day like any other. Everyone woke up with the will to express oneself (through the vote). This is a historic day," Robert Wayaridri, 60, told The Associated Press.

In Noumea, the capital, large lines of people waited to vote under the hot sun, sometimes for hours. Almost 80% of voters had already casted their ballots one hour before poll stations closed, according to the French ministry of the Overseas.

Across the archipelago, horns and cheers could be heard all day in the streets, and some people waved pro-independence flags in a relaxed atmosphere.

The FLNKS movement leading the independence campaign called on its supporters to stay "calm and respectful." Polling stations closed at 6 pm (9 am in mainland France). Results are expected later Sunday.

If voters choose independence, a transition period will immediately begin so that the archipelago can get ready for its future status. AP

Lanka imposes indefinite curfew in 2 towns

Colombo (PTI): Sri Lanka on Sunday imposed an indefinite curfew on two western provincial towns to contain the spread of the coronavirus following the detection of a community case after a gap of nearly six months, officials said.

The island nation has so far recorded 3,395 coronavirus cases and 13 fatalities due to the disease.

An indefinite curfew has been imposed on Divulapitiya and Minwangoda towns in the suburbs of Colombo after a COVID-19 positive patient was detected on Sunday, Army Commander and COVID-19 prevention task force head Shavendra Silva said.

He said a female from Divulapitiya who works in an apparel factory was found positive for coronavirus after she was admitted to a hospital in Gampaha for fever. Nearly 50 people from her workplace and the hospital have been sent for home quarantine after she was detected positive for COVID-19.

According to officials, this is likely the first COVID-19 community case detected since April. Recent infections have come from foreign returnees.

South African coffin-maker saw Covid-19 at work and at home

Johannesburg: The coffin-maker knew death too well. The boxes were stacked in his echoing workshop like the prows of ships waiting for passengers. COVID-19 was turning his business upside down.

Then it moved into his home.

Casey Pillay's wife was a midwife, delivering babies for coronavirus-positive mothers in Johannesburg, the epicenter of the pandemic in South Africa — once fifth in the world in number of cases — and on the continent.

That she would be infected, they knew, was a matter of time. When she fell ill during the country's surge in cases, she retreated to the main bedroom. Pillay withdrew to a bedroom next door. Scared, he barely slept, managing a few hours before dawn as his wife wrestled with some of the worst days of her life.

"I'd literally be on eggshells listening to what she was going through," Pillay said Tuesday. "I would go in every now and then, fully kitted up, just to check vitals, whether she needed oxygen. When she recovered, we sat down and had a chat. She was really scared because at one stage she thought she was gonna die."

It was a blessing in disguise, he said, to see someone with COVID-19 recover after so much exposure to death through his work.

Pillay, a manager at the coffin-making business, said about 10 colleagues also were infected. All are now OK. Their survival reflects the relatively low death toll from COVID-19 in South Africa, and in Africa in general, as the continent appears to defy dire predictions that the virus would cause massive numbers of deaths.

Life has edged back toward normal after a surge in infections in South Africa in June and July that threatened to overwhelm public hospitals. Many of the more than 1 million graves that Gauteng province, home of Johannesburg, once hurriedly mapped out have gone unused.

Still, the toll from COVID-19 — which has killed more than 16,000 people in South Africa, nearly half of the continent's over 35,000 deaths — has been painful, and the world surpassing 1 million confirmed deaths has again led to reflection.

"It has been a crazy, crazy, crazy couple of months," Pillay said. The need for coffins rose and fell as South Africa's lockdown levels changed, but overall, he said, "business went down." Under the strictest lockdown measures, so few people were driving in South Africa that the country's terrible rate of vehicle deaths plummeted. And alcohol sales were banned, "so you weren't having people fighting, murdering each other," Pillay said.

"Unfortunately, our whole business thrives on people dying." As the lockdown eased step by step and people were "not being disciplined" and going around without masks, the number of virus deaths increased. Now, a sense of normalcy is returning.

But COVID-19 changed everything. The price of basic materials shot up as "every Tom, Dick and Harry became an essential provider," Pillay said. Suddenly, a box of gloves was changing hands five times, with everyone taking a cut. What once cost 80 rand (USD 4.70) became 200 rand (USD 11.70) or 220 rand (USD 13).

Pillay scrambled to keep his workshop open and safe as orders rolled in. "The unfortunate part is, you've got so many workers and machines and can only do so much a day," he said. The workshop bustles with people carrying raw wood, sanding it and attaching polished handles.

And the entire nature of mourning in South Africa changed. The government said COVID-19 burials should happen right away instead of waiting for the usual weekend funerals. AP

'We need to raise better sons'

Actor AYUSHMANN KHURRANA said, "Shocked, shattered and devastated. After Hathras, another gangrape and murder at Balrampur! It's barbaric, inhuman and calls for the most severe punishment to the guilty. When will this stop? We are failing every single day to protect the women of our country. We have to do more than just protecting women. We have to raise better sons!"

The actor, who has been roped in by UNICEF India as a celebrity advocate, aims to work at ending violence against children.

He said, "My role is to further children's rights, use my voice and my influence to help violence against children end as it is absolutely unacceptable and preventable."

Actor TAAPSEE PANNU took a jibe at certain news channels without taking names, saying these channels have entertained people on behalf of the actors till the time theatres were shut.

She said that with cinemas set to reopen, such channels should focus on real news now.

"Now that theatres are allowed to open with 50 per cent occupancy, it's only fair to expect some 'news' channels to focus 50 per cent more towards 'real' news. Thank you guys, you held the fort of entertainment long enough on our behalf. We can take over from here on," Taapsee tweeted.

'Everyone can't be involved in drugs'

Actor AKSHAY KUMAR shared a video on his Twitter account on Saturday, defending the film industry against rampant allegations of drug abuse.

Akshay said posting a video on Twitter, "I speak to you with a heavy heart today. Although we are called stars, you've created Bollywood with love. For years we've tried to reflect the sentiments of the common people of our country through our films. So, if you are angry today, we understand and respect it. Today, narcotics and drugs are the most talked-about topics. I can't lie to you saying this problem does not exist. It does exist. But that doesn't mean every single person from the profession is involved. That's not possible."

BOMAN TURNS MENTOR

The actor-screenwriter has completed over 150 sessions of his online screenwriting series, Spiral Bound. He tells CHAHAK MITTAL how his skills evolved with each interaction and made him learn more in the process

How often have you seen characters from films come alive in reality? Well, when actor-screenwriter Boman Irani took to the online space to conduct screenwriting sessions during the lockdown, we could certainly remember his character, Viru Sahastra Buddha from 3 Idiots.

In the pursuit to capturing and presenting the roots of cinema, Irani chose screenwriting to be his subject as it forms the very basis of cinema. The actor has been mentoring over hundreds of students and screenwriting enthusiasts and professionals. And today, as he completes over 150 sessions of the series, Spiral Bound, he tells us about his incredible journey of mentoring. Excerpts:

How did you conceptualise an online screenwriting series?

It began more than half a year ago when I was launching my production house, Irani Movietone. Spiral Bound was born at the launch party.

I called up my dear friend, Alexander Dinelaris, who is Oscar-award winning film Birdman's screenwriter, post the launch to take a workshop for some 280 screenwriters.

This was an extension of that workshop, which we were supposed to have a second round of, this year. We couldn't due to the lockdown. However, later, the lockdown turned out to be a perfect opportunity to do Spiral Bound virtually. And since it took so long to reopen, we're now close to completing 160 sessions. Hitting 150 was certainly a landmark!

What was the research involved?

Some six to eight years ago, I had started writing my own script but even after working on it extensively, I constantly felt that it lacked something. So I took some help from my friend and became a student in New York for a year. There, I did a lot of reading, extensive writing and research. Today, after nine years down the line, thanks to my gurus, I feel that the knowledge that I may have acquired, it would be great if I could share that with my fellow writers and screenwriting enthusiasts and professionals. And why not? We need good screenplays and writers.

Why did you name the series, Spiral Bound?

When you finish writing your first draft of a script, and get it's first print, instead of putting it in a folder or stapling together, you always prefer it to be spiral bound!

What was your approach while mentoring hundreds of students online?

Screenwriting was already on my plate, much before the lockdown. It's just that we got a lot of time and opportunity to do it then. We started with four students and young writers who had been in touch with me over the years and I'd share with them some problem-solving questions over the phone. At times, they'd come over and we'd discuss and deal with their queries. During the lockdown, I started hearing them out online when one of them said if one of his friends could join the session, and I was like "sure!" This way, four became eight and 16 and now there are 200 of us!

Do you think actors/directors should engage more in such personal, live interactions about film subjects?

I have myself given it a thought many a times that actors and directors should engage in such personal and live interactions. I think it's important. I am not saying that I have an authority but yes, we do have a certain amount of experience working in films and why should we not share it. Apart from learning from my own guru, I have learned the best from all the experiences that I have had over the years. I have worked with the best directors and some of the finest writers and, along the way, learned from their experiences. I really feel mentoring young writers, directors and actors is important because through this, we're going to raise our own game. Even if it is good, it needs to be raised, everyday.

Well, art is about reinventing and telling stories in more modern and post-modern ways. Your experiences should be shared and should help others create their own and newer ones. It is definitely a great idea. And I hate to say that lockdown turned out to be a good thing, but if we do try to do something good, we can create opportunities for ourselves while staying at home, too.

Today, the focus has shifted to OTT platforms and content-driven projects... How did you address this in your sessions?

I agree that with the OTT platform, the attention has been shifted to content. However, I think the term 'content-driven' is very hyped and very loosely used. I think all films, even if you're making a commercial one, should have content even if they're just entertainers. The content should be understandable, engaging and entertaining.

I realise that we are talking about OTT platforms especially at a time when cinemas are shut, but when the cinemas open and we have the big screens available to us again, I think films should have, if not unusual story ideas, an entertaining story. It should be far more thematic to say the least.

How do you think stories and themes for films will include this period in the future? Is COVID going to bring a major revolution in how films/series portray real life?

I genuinely feel that COVID time in our life is just a period, be it six months of lockdown, a summer, more than a summer, a year or even more than a year. Periods, events and incidences — these are just the backdrops, which are just tracing the trials and tribulations in a human being's life. That event could be war time or even of peace. But eventually, a human story is always about pursuit, about what s/he wants and thrives for constantly. S/he has to undergo a lot of hardship to achieve that and those accomplishments come in people's life in various ways. The story is only about that goal, no matter whether the backdrop is COVID, war or robbery or even circus.

The story that you should be following is the goal that a human is trying to achieve and the obstacles that he goes through to achieve it. That is what is called thematic. And COVID is just a force. The more important part is how human beings react to that.

Completing 150 sessions... How did you see the process evolve through each session?

I never expected the Spiral Bound family to go on for so long. We have gotten together as a family and used this sacred time to learn. I don't know when people would be able to go out and learn to make up their careers for themselves. They wouldn't get a period like this to actually learn.

Even if we say that a person is always a student and learning something. For a statement, it is valid; we learn as we grow and from our experiences. But how often do we actually study something after we've finished off our school or college? How many times do we actually sit down and study post that? How often do we master a new subject or a discipline? No, we don't study all our lives.

But this has been literally people coming together and studying, making notes and learn something new. Whenever people are talking about their respective projects, I asked them to stop thinking about them for the time being. I just wanted them to imbibe something everyday and then apply to that to all the problems they wanted to overcome. Because it's not going to come back in our lives and I am not saying this with remorse, rather with happiness. I hope the lockdown period as it is doesn't come back again because I don't think we should be sitting at home. But again, now that we are, I think it would be incredibly stupid of us not to utilise this time learning something.

Anything about shooting during the current times, since you're working on Jayeshbhai Jordaar?

Well, Jayeshbhai Jordaar is almost complete. We didn't have to work a lot on it after the lockdown. There's just a little bit of dubbing that is left.

The wait isn't over

Even though cinema halls are opening soon, the big Bollywood films will take a little longer to release

Cinema lovers across the country are overjoyed as the Government of India announced the reopening of cinemas across the country from October 15. The decision has been hailed by the film fraternity, too, who are now waiting for all the state governments to give a green signal.

"This is a great announcement but we still have to wait for all the states to open up. Many states like Maharashtra and Tamil Nadu are yet to open up. Sooryavanshi and '83 have been ready for quite some time. Sooryavanshi was originally slated for a Diwali release, but it's not practical. Even if theatres open up in November, you can't release such a big film with 15 days promotion time," Reliance Entertainment Group CEO Shibashish Sarkar said.

While filmmaker Rohit Shetty's Sooryavanshi will bring Akshay Kumar back in the cop avatar, actor Ranveer Singh will be seen in the much-hyped Kabir Khan's '83 as the iconic Kapil Dev, who captained India's first-ever cricket World Cup victory campaign in 1983.

"As of now, '83 is slated for a Christmas release. Of course, we won't bring two films in December.

I still haven't had a chat with Rohit Shetty or Kabir Khan. But one thing is clear that we don't want to hold the films indefinitely. We would like to bring one film during Christmas and another during January and March, but we have to see when all the states open up," said Sarkar.

Well, clearly, none of bigwigs want a clash at this point. Amir Khan's Laal Singh Chaddha was originally set for a Christmas 2020 release. The film, based on the 1994 Tom Hanks blockbuster Forrest Gump, has now been moved to Christmas 2021.

have Indu Ki Jaawani, starring Kiara Advani, and the Parineeti Chopra-starrer Saina Nehwal biopic. "We are immediately starting work on these two films, and more films will follow. There is also Madam Chief Minister, starring Richa Chadha in the lead. It is also going into post-production. These three films would probably be the first few we plan to release once the theatres open. We are looking at November release dates, once we get clarity by mid-October. We will start the campaign accordingly and are hoping to have one or two releases during Diwali," said Bhanushali.

Shariq Patel, CEO, Zee Studios, said that their banner, too, has a few films ready to go off the block. "Cinema owners have continually highlighted safety and hygiene measures they are taking. It is time to bring back the audience to the theatre. We are extremely excited about the news, as the whole purpose of our job is to bring entertainment and joy to the audience. We have recently launched Khaali Peeli on Zee Plex. Yes, we have a few projects ready and are looking forward to bringing these to our audience in the theatres," he said.

Some of the forthcoming projects announced by the studio includes the Manoj Bajpayee and Diljit Dosanjh-starrer Suraj Pe Mangal Bhari and the Bosco Martis directorial Rocket Gang.

The lockdown saw many Bollywood films skipping the theatrical route and opting for a direct OTT release. Producer Anand Pandit's The Big Bull, with Abhishek Bachchan in the lead, and the Amitabh Bachchan-starrer Chehre are among the forthcoming films scheduled for OTT release, but Pandit hopes to re-release these films in theatres.

"The industry as a whole is relieved and excited at the prospect of cinemas re-opening, with safety precautions in mind. The Big Bull and Chehre are both scheduled for OTT release. However, we are definitely looking at the possibility of a re-release in theatres. In the meantime, I would like to release some of my previous releases for free to welcome the audience back to the theatres," said the producer, who has backed films like Total Dhamaal and Sarkar 3 in the past.

No end to learning

In a tribal village of Jharkhand, teachers and students overcome the challenges of Coronavirus by attending classes in open air spaces, following social distancing norms.
By AMRENDRA SUMAN

Schools and colleges, after being shut for over six months due to COVID-19, will now be allowed to open from October 15 albeit in a graded manner as announced by the Ministry of Home Affairs, MHA on September 30. While releasing the guidelines for phase five of the unlock, it allowed states and UTs flexibility to reopen schools and colleges. The decision, however, needs to be taken on a case-to-case basis, after consulting the institute management and assessing the situation, it said. Parental consent will also be required. Earlier, these institutes were allowed to partially reopen from September 21, 2020 as MHA had permitted studies of classes nine to 12 to voluntarily go to schools for seeking guidance. Even during that time, many states had chosen not to reopen the school while the states that did allow students on voluntary basis, did not receive positive response from parents. Clearly, they were not ready to send children back to school even as education of 300 million students has been severely affected. In remote villages of the country, however, the picture is unexpectedly, a little different. In a tribal village in Dumka district of Jharkhand, which is inhabited by the Santhal tribal community, parents and students are showing positive response to the efforts of the school administration to provide education in a safe environment to its students. In Bankati village, located just nine km from the district headquarters amid forests and surrounded by lush green fields, students can be seen studying under trees strictly maintaining the norms of social distancing. Teachers stand at a distance reading out lessons using a microphone and a sound system. "With imposition of nationwide lockdown, schools were shut, and teachers were advised to provide lessons online. Here, in this nondescript village, where people cannot afford two square meals, expecting them to have smart phones and internet was unrealistic," shared Shyam Kishore Singh Gandhi, Headmaster, Upgraded Middle School, Bankati. He further explained that parents in tribal villages seldom allow their children to return to school after a long break owing to the financial constraints.

"The whole situation was understandable — the lockdown and suspension of the classes but I could not make peace with the fact that the effort of so many years of creating awareness towards education in this tribal village will go waste. Teaching is my religion, and I felt really uncomfortable sitting at home doing nothing about it. As I kept thinking of ideas to overcome the hurdles, the idea of teaching in open spaces ensuring appropriate distance between students struck me," shared an excited Shyam Kishore.

What started as a tryout soon became a norm as students too showed interest and started attending classes regularly. Today, a total of 250 children from class one to eight are consistently attending classes in open air spaces, following social distance rules and maintaining cleanliness and hygiene. Wearing mask is mandatory for each and every student while regular sanitisation also takes place. Children come and sit on both sides of the road at a distance of one meter as villagers help organise the classes.

The initiative is also backed by different members of the tribal groups. Community teachers Sarita Murmu and Murshila Tudu along with several other young teachers have contributed effectively to the task. These young, educated minds were sitting idle at their homes owing to unemployment. Their dedication to improve the quality of education for the younger generation was evident during these tough times as they chose to support the initiative without any financial interest.

"Most of the villagers rely on agriculture for their income or are daily wage labourers. Due to low socio-economic status, villagers often involve their children in agriculture work during vacations or force them to quit education to work as labourers. Due to COVID, many parents had decided to discontinue the education of their children but since the beginning of these community classes under the trees, they have changed their mind," shared Sameer Marandi, Village Head.

Masoodi Tudu, a senior officer from district administration, during his visit to Bankati village said that such creative adaptation by the teachers to face the challenges created by unprecedented circumstances will further strengthen the faith of students and parents in education. Certainly, the efforts of the teachers and enthusiasm of children speak volumes about their yearning to learn and grow.

SOURCE OF SUFFERING

Even the best brains cannot sustain an economy if they do not comply with the rules of ethics and principles of spiritual wisdom, says RAJYOGI BRAHMAKUMAR NIKUNJ JI

Since ages, ethics have always been an important priority for people all over the world. This is because it comprises of a number of good attributes — honesty, clemency, forbearance, kindness, bravery, chastity, commitment, redemption, reliance, charity, generosity, patience, longanimity, leniency, mildness, intelligence, tranquility, quietness, serenity, loyalty, admonition, complacency, modesty, shyness, altruism, goodness, generosity and so on.

However, in present scenario, it is being widely believed and said that business and ethics do not go together and hence it is not possible for everyone to follow ethical way and earn money. It was quite astonishing when one of the world's most prestigious business school came out with an official statement that they won't be starting a course of Business Ethics even though they have been given a hand some grant by the government for the said purpose. The faculties from school explained that the business school, which had three professors as experts in teaching Business Ethics, tried their level best for a year to teach the subject as a part of its regular curriculum but they failed to evoke any interest in students or gain any success.

The authorities have, therefore, now decided not to keep any staff for teaching ethics to students of Business Management which clearly shows that most businessmen wish to earn money without being guided or controlled by any ethics. Evidently, there is an increasing trend in the present day society not to recognise the age-old truth that, sooner or later, the money earned without any ethical principles plays havoc in one's personal, family and public life. It becomes a source of sufferings of various kinds for not only does it generate a parallel economy but also an atmosphere of corruption, leading to moral breakdown of the society.

These facts are not just true of businesses abroad but in our homes too we are familiar with this wide-spread evil. Isn't it? The recent IT raids on some top business houses and the press criticism of certain government deals present us a gloomy image. Leaving a wide margin for many of the scandals being untrue and much of the criticism being biased, it can be said that all is not well with business and state deals as far as ethics is concerned. Add to this, the widely prevalent practice of deficit financing that has had a very bad effect on the moral standards of the people and the currency-value of the country. The result of this has been that almost all nations, today are debtors with weak economies and almost all industrialists and rich men are, directly or indirectly, dependent on the borrowings from banks or through bonds or fixed deposits or savings of the middle class and poor people.

The planned economy almost everywhere is near its exhaustion point and peak of resource crunch. This shows that even the best of brains cannot sustain an economy in a healthy state if it is divorced from the ordinary rules of ethics or principles of spiritual wisdom. The best thing, therefore is to observe moral norms and to base our economy on ethics, for without that, there cannot be peace and happiness in the world.

Take holistic care

We need to focus on providing protection, education, health and psycho-social assistance to children in a structured and professional manner, says SUMANTA KAR

The pandemic and the lockdown restrictions have not only disrupted the education of the children but have also affected their psychological health. It is important to keep a check on thousands of children who are without parental care or at the risk of abandonment.

The SOS Children's Villages of India have gathered knowledge about the emotional distress and the boredom that children from marginalised communities are going through everyday. After accessing the problems here are some of the ways they shared to address the crisis:

CHILD SAFEGUARDING

We need to focus on providing care, education, health, and psycho-social well-being of children in a structured and professional manner. A comprehensive policy, outlining guidelines that focused on awareness, prevention, reporting and responding was developed, communicated, and implemented across their organisations. An Epidemic Response Team (ERT) was also constituted for ground level execution and monitoring.

To safeguard the safety of the children in the villages, it is important to ensure that essential supplies, hygiene kits (comprising tissue papers, liquid soaps, and hand sanitisers), and medicines are always stocked in the villages. Masks and hand sanitisers should also be distributed.

It is also important to comply with all health directives from the government and health organisations. Doctors from government hospitals should periodically conduct COVID-19 awareness classes to mothers in villages, to equip them to meet the physical and emotional needs of the children right from infancy to adulthood. For their community outreach programme, they provided materials and services to over 15,000 children during the lockdown with a daily average reach of 30-40 children virtually and wherever possible, through home visits. It helped them to better assess their well-being and identify any child safeguarding issues. Supporting #BreakTheChain campaign, SOS India mentors Self Help Group leaders to help them spread awareness about COVID-19. They also created regional language posters and content to increase awareness about COVID-19 in the communities.

PSYCHOLOGICAL WELL-BEING

The biggest challenge has been to keep the children in good mental health amid lockdown and school closures. Some of the ways that have proved effective in relieving their stress include engaging children in activities that tap their creative talents, coupled with fun-filled physical activities.

We must encourage children to make posters for promoting the do's and don'ts for creating awareness about COVID-19. Children should involve themselves in yoga and meditation. Some should explore their artistic talents, some indulge in baking and a few can start gardening and vegetable farming as a hobby. There should be activities such as games, drama, reading, cleaning up of physical spaces, and community volunteering.

Several SOS Villages have come up with ways of continuing the tradition of evening prayer, while maintaining social distancing. In Puducherry, a couple of children not only lead the morning prayers but also read out the news and engage everyone in a quick round of trivia. A classical dance performed by children of Nagapattinam on COVID-19 preventive measures, was telecast by a TV channel in Tamil Nadu recently. The performance initiated by the children themselves, was hugely appreciated by viewers. COVID has brought forward many painters, singers, actors, orators and writers amongst the children.

Under the guidance of animators and co-workers, out-reached children are engaged in several activities to 'Stay safe by staying at home' by pursuing their hobbies along with usual academic routine. Bal Panchayat members have championed promoting preventive messages by developing posters, stickers and pasting these in public spaces, making and sharing videos to demonstrate social distancing as well as handwashing.

It is crucial for children and young adults to look forward to a bright future without having any great concerns or anxiety, while being safe and healthy.

BP DOSE MAY LOWER DEATH RISK FROM FLU

Researchers have found that drugs to lower the blood pressure of the type 'ACE inhibitors or angiotensin II receptor blockers' reduce the mortality rate of influenza and pneumonia.

For the study, published in the Journal of the American Heart Association, the research team compared mortality rates among 5,00,000 Danish patients who were admitted to hospitals in Denmark with influenza and pneumonia during the period 2005 to 2018.

"A little over 1,00,000 of the admitted patients took ACE inhibitors or angiotensin II receptor blockers, and the study shows that fewer of them were put on a ventilator and that they had lower mortality rates," said study author Christian Fynbo Christiansen from the Aarhus University Hospital in Denmark.

The study arrives mid in a discussion of treatment which peaked while the Corona pandemic was at its height.

US-BASED SENSOR RAPIDLY DETECTS COVID

In ray of hope to identify asymptomatic people, researchers in the US have developed a new test with a low-cost sensor that may enable the at-home diagnosis of a COVID infection through rapid analysis of small volumes of saliva or blood, without the involvement of a medical professional, in less than 10 minutes.

When attached to supporting electronics, the sensor can wirelessly transmit data to the user's cell phone through Bluetooth technology.

A crucial part of the global effort to stem the spread of the pandemic is the development of tests that can rapidly identify infections in people who are not yet symptomatic.

The team at California Institute of technology developed this multiplexed test (a test that combines multiple kinds of data) with a low-cost sensor developed in the lab of Wei Gao, assistant professor in the Andrew and Peggy Cherng department of medical engineering.

COFFEE BEFORE BREAKFAST MAY UP DIABETES

If you're taking coffee before breakfast, read this carefully. Researchers have found that drinking coffee first thing can have a negative effect on blood sugar control — a risk factor for diabetes and heart disease.

For the study, published in the journal British Journal of Nutrition, the research team looked at the effect of broken sleep and morning coffee across a range of different metabolic markers.

"The results show that whilst one night of poor sleep has limited impact on our metabolism, drinking coffee as a way to perk you up from a slumber can have a negative effect on blood glucose (sugar) control," said study authors from the University of Bath in the UK.

During the study, the research team asked 29 healthy men and women to undergo three different overnight experiments in random order. In one, condition participants had a normal night's sleep and were asked to consume a sugary drink on waking in the morning.

NITRIC OXIDE CAN TREAT CORONAVIRUS

In a major finding, researchers have discovered that an effective way of treating the Coronavirus behind the 2003 SARS epidemic also works on the SARS-CoV-2 virus behind the COVID-19 pandemic.

According to the study, published in the journal Redox Biology, the substance concerned is nitric oxide (NO), a compound with antiviral properties that is produced by the body itself.

"To our knowledge, nitric oxide is the only substance shown so far to have a direct effect on SARS-CoV-2," said study author Ake Lundkvist from the Uppsala University in Sweden. Since there is still no effective cure for COVID, the main emphasis in the treatments tested has been on relieving symptoms. This can shorten hospital stays and reduce mortality. To date, however, it has not been possible to prove that any of these treatments have affected the actual virus behind the infection.

YOGA AND MEDITATION REDUCE CHRONIC PAIN

Indfulness-based stress reduction (MBSR) course — yoga and meditation — was found to benefit patients with chronic pain and depression, leading to significant improvement in participant perceptions of pain, mood and functional capacity.

According to the study, published in the Journal of the American Osteopathic Association, most of the participants (89 per cent) reported the programme helped them find ways to better cope with their pain while 11 per cent remained neutral.

Chronic pain is a common and serious medical condition affecting an estimated 100 million people in the US, which correlates with annual costs of approximately $635 billion.

The small-scale study was conducted in a semi-rural population in Oregon, US, where issues of affordability, addiction and access to care are common.

Luckily it worked out for me. We keep talking about close victories and this was one of them. Really satisfied with the way everyone stepped up.

It was a bit difficult, proud that the guys pulled it through. We had different plans - try and change it up, not go with the same thing over and over again.

"Particularly when you have a world-class all-rounder in Andre Russell. He is an incredible striker, and when he comes up the order, obviously everybody else has to shift down a little bit.

"It wasn't easy to start off (while batting), lack of partnerships as I said, losing wickets back-to-back isn't ideal, but there were a few positives coming out of this match.

Bowlers lead charge after explosive batting to take defending champs on pole position

PTI ■ SHARJAH

Quinton de Kock was back amongst the runs with a sizzling 39-ball 67 before the bowlers did a commendable job in batsmen friendly Sharjah to power Mumbai Indians to a clinical 34-run win over Sunrisers Hyderabad in the Indian Premier League here on Sunday.

The swash-buckling duo of Hardika Pandya (28) and Kieron Pollard (25 not out) scored at their usual brisk pace but it was Krunal who propelled MI to 208 for five with 20 runs off a mere four deliveries in the last over.

Then, the MI bowlers did just enough to restrict SRH to 174 for seven.

Chasing 209, a formidable target even on the small Sharjah ground, SRH began with Jonny Bairstow sending Trent Boult's third delivery into the stands. Two fours and a six followed before Boult had the Englishman for a 15-ball 25.

David Warner (60 off 44 balls) got into the act with a couple of boundaries off Jasprit Bumrah. Manish Pandey had raced to 16 when Hardik Pandya dropped a sitter, his view blocked by the evening sun.

Pandey lofted Rahul Chahar over long-on for a massive six and Warner followed suit, hitting the leg-spinner for another maximum in the same over as SRH kept pace with the required run-rate.

The prolific Australian then cut his compatriot James Pattinson through the point region before smashing Krunal for a six and four to help SRH past the 100-run mark in the 11th over.

Attempting an upper cut against Boult, Kane Williamson was out caught by Quinton de Kock, after Bumrah bowled an excellent six-run over.

Last match hero Priyansh Garg failed to replicate his performance but it was the big wicket of Warner, in the 16th over bowled by Pattinson, that almost sealed the game in MI's favour even as the required rate soared past 14 runs an over.

For MI, there were two wickets apiece for Boult (2/28), Pattinson (2/29) and Bumrah (2/41).

Earlier, Rohit Sharma plonked Sandeep Sharma over mid-wicket for a six to start the proceedings but the MI skipper was out caught behind the very next ball as he chased a wide delivery, only to nick it to Jonny Bairstow.

The on-field umpire Richard Illingworth was not convinced by Sandeep's loud appeal but the review went in favour of his team.

Suryakumar struck six boundaries, including a couple of pleasing drives, in his 18-ball 27 before being dismissed by Siddarth Kaul, who played his first game of the season. Kaul leaked as many as 64 runs in his four overs.

At the other end, de Kock worked the ball around nicely in between playing the big shots, as Mumbai Indians maintained a healthy run rate.

After 10 overs, MI were 91 for two with de Kock looking in fine touch.

Playing in place of the injured Bhuvneshwar Kumar, Sandeep had done more than what was expected of him in his first two overs, sending back the in-form Rohit early.

But MI have enough firepower in their batting lineup and recovered from the early blight with de Kock leading the charge.

However, the seasoned South African, who reached his half century with a six straight over the bowler's head, got out after Rashid Khan took a fine running catch off his own bowling to signal the arrival of Hardik.

Pandya would have been dismissed cheaply but David Warner could not hold on to a difficult chance at the boundary.

Manish Pandey, who had spilled one earlier in the day, made up for that with a sensational catch to send back Ishan Kishan for a 23-ball 31.

CSK outplay Kings XI

IAN S ■ DUBAI

Shane Watson and Faf du Plessis conjured up commanding unbeaten half-centuries as Chennai Super Kings demolished Kings XI Punjab by 10 wickets to snap their string of losses in the IPL here on Sunday.

CSK relished a much-needed victory after three defeats in a row, overhauling a 179-run target with remarkable ease.

Watson (83 not out) and Du Plessis (87 not out) ensured that there was no close finish this time, reducing the match to a 'no-contest' with their authoritative batting. The seasoned Australian punished the KXIP bowlers with 11 fours and three sixes in his 53-ball unbeaten knock while Du Plessis hit 11 fours and a six from 53 balls to also remain not out.

Except Mohammed Shami, KXIP did not have a bowler who could trouble the opposition batsmen and CSK exploited it to the fullest. CSK moved to sixth spot from bottom with this confidence-boosting win.

Skipper KL Rahul had hit a well-paced 63 to lead Kings XI Punjab to a competitive 178 for four after electing to bat but in the absence of good bowlers it was an onerous task to stop the experienced CSK brigade.

KXIP looked set for a bigger total but both Pooran and Rahul were dismissed by pacer Shardul Thakur off successive balls in the 18th over. CSK, like their rivals, also got to a solid start with openers — Du Plessis and Watson — creaming off 60 runs in the Powerplay overs.

They did not exactly set the field on fire but an effective strokeplay helped them begin the chase in right earnest. The Australian-Protea duo blended caution with aggression, picking the right deliveries to attack. They raised the team hundred in the 10th over.

Watson got to his fifty with consecutive boundaries off Chris Jordan while Du Plessis raised his own with a single off the same bowler.

Earlier, Rahul and Agarwal were cautious. No lofted shot was played till the last over of the Powerplay with the two batsmen preferring to drive along the ground. It was also because Deepak Chahar and Sam Curran hardly pitched it short. Even if Agarwal and Rahul opened their arms it was to slap the balls outside the off stump, when there was enough room to do that.

CSK captain MS Dhoni introduced spin in the seventh over with Ravindra Jadeja, who created a chance too but Agarwal's hit fell just short of a diving Du Plessis.

Leg-spinner Piyush Chawla succeeded in getting the breakthrough when Agarwal pulled one straight to Curran. The openers added 61 runs in 8.1 overs.

Delhi, RCB fight for top

A back-in-form Virat Kohli's tactical acumen will be put to test against Shreyas Iyer's unassuming but dynamic brand of captaincy when the two most impressive teams of the ongoing IPL — Royal Challengers Bangalore and Delhi Capitals — face each other here on Monday.

Both DC and RCB have looked solid so far and are placed atop the standings with three wins out of four games each.

While Iyer has shown great form in his team's four matches, Kohli finally got his act together in RCB's last game against Rajasthan Royals, striking a fluent half-century.

On Saturday, Iyer (88 not out off 38 balls) again showed his class after Prithvi Shaw's (66) opening act as Delhi beat Kolkata Knight Riders by 18 runs.

Kohli too finally got his touch back after three ordinary outings with an unbeaten 72 off 53 balls to guide RCB to a comfortable eight-wicket win over Rajasthan Royals.

And come Monday, the two skippers would look to lead from the front and outwit each other in what promises to be a thrilling contest.

While Shaw has so far looked quite in control at the top of the order for DC, Shikhar Dhawan's form would be a cause of concern for Iyer.

But on the brighter side, Delhi seem to have finally got Rishabh Pant back in form as he dusted off his rustiness with a quick-fire 17-ball 38 against KKR.

To add to it, there is Marcus Stonis and Shimron Hetmyer waiting in the wings.

On the bowling front, Kagiso Rabada is the go-to man for DC even though he leaked runs against KKR the other day.

South African pacer Anrich Nortje has been brilliant for DC in the opening and slog overs and bowled a brilliant penultimate over against KKR on Saturday.

Harshal Patel, as Ishant Sharma's replacement, did well enough to finish with 2 for 34 in 4 overs but the fit-again Ravichandran Ashwin and Stonis went for runs.

RCB, on the other hand, have been served well by the young Devdutt Padikkal at the top. The left-hander, considered the next big thing in Indian cricket, is fourth in the run-scorers' tally with 174 from four games, including three fifties.

And if Aaron Finch too gets going, it would be difficult for any side to stop the marauding Bangalore openers.

Kohli's return to form is a relief for RCB's batting unit, which also has the likes of the in-form AB de Villiers, Shivam Dube and Gurkeerat Singh among others.

Isuru Udana has been a welcome addition in RCB's bowling line-up along side Navdeep Saini and the spin duo of Washington Sundar and Yuzvendra Chahal.

But Australian leg-spinner Adam Zampa is yet to adjust to the conditions.

RCB would also be hoping for Chris Morris to recover quickly after the South African all-rounder picked up a side strain before the start of the tournament.

Boult, Bumrah made difference in end

IAN S ■ SHARJAH

SunRisers Hyderabad (SRH) Scaptain David Warner's 60 was not enough as his side fell to a 34-run defeat to Mumbai Indians (MI) on Sunday at the Sharjah Cricket Stadium. Warner said that the combined efforts of MI's Jasprit Bumrah and Trent Boult in the death overs made it difficult for SRH to keep up with the required run rate.

"The stats do tell the tale, their two most experienced bowlers, they bowled well towards the end and we couldn't target the fence," said Warner after the match. Chasing MI's score of 208/5, SRH could only reach 174/7. It is the first time this season that a team has not been able to cross 200 in Sharjah.

gauge the wicket properly, during the day time it's perhaps a bit slower and when the ball gets soft - it's difficult to hit the wicket harder. They had runs on the board and we were left chasing at 10 RPO - we didn't string partnerships together to take the chase deeper," he said.

Warner kept SRH in the chase while batting with the top order consisting of his opening partner Jonny Bairstow, Manish Pandey and Kane Williamson but SRH fell off the pace after they lost their third wicket.

DK SHOULD BAT AFTER MORGAN, RUSS

Two-time IPL winning Kolkata Knight Riders captain Gautam Gambhir believes current skipper Dinesh Karthik should bat after Eoin Morgan and Andre Russell and also wants Sunil Narine to be dropped from the top of the order. Apart from a 23-ball 30 coming at no 3 against Mumbai Indians, Karthik has failed to produce any significant score despite batting ahead of Morgan so far in the tournament. "Rahul Tripathi goes up the order, Dinesh Karthik plays at no 6, not before Morgan and not before Russell as well. Probably Sunil Narine goes to bat at 8 or 9. If Morgan bats no 4 and Russell at 5 and Dinesh Karthik to follow," Gambhir told ESPNcricinfo.

WE CAN OUTSKILL RCB

Unfazed by the threat posed by the big guns of Royal Challengers Bangalore, Delhi Capitals' pacer Anrich Nortje said his team is capable of outperforming their opponents on Monday. Nortje said it is all about sticking to basics and executing their plans as the Capitals, who defeated Kolkata Knight Riders by 18 runs on Saturday night, will face RCB in an IPL game here. "It's going to be a good challenge. They have got a pretty good line-up, and have some big names. But, I think we have got a good team as well and the guys have been training really well," Nortje said in a release issued by DC on Sunday. "If we just execute our skills, perform the way we have been, I think it's going to be a very good game, and I'm sure we can outskill them."

TOP 3 SHOULD DO MORE

Steve Smith on Saturday said that the top three batsmen have to perform better after their eight-wicket defeat to Royal Challengers Bangalore (RCB). "Our top three should be doing the job a lot more. In the last two games we haven't got going and that has cost us. We have to take it a little bit deeper us three and then we have enough power, we have seen what Tewatia can do, Jofra and Tom Curran as well," said Smith after the match. "He [Lorror] played nice, under pressure having lost quite a few wickets and he was able to build throughout the middle, I thought he played a really mature innings. There are few areas we have to work on, we will go back and have a look at it."

MORGAN SHOULD LEAD KKR: SREESANTH

Eoin Morgan should lead Kolkata Knight Riders instead of Dinesh Karthik in the remaining matches of the Indian Premier League (IPL) 2020, believes out-of-favour fast bowler S Sreesanth. "Genuinely feel Eoin Morgan should lead the side, surely not DK. World Cup-winning captain should surely lead IPL side," Sreesanth tweeted after KKR suffered an 18-run defeat against Delhi Capitals at the Sharjah Cricket Stadium in their latest IPL encounter. "I hope KKR looks at this issue and they need a leader who will lead from front like Rohit, Dhoni or Virat, what a player," he added.

Inter Milan dropped its first points of the season as it drew 1-1 at Lazio in Serie A on Sunday, in a match that saw both teams reduced to 10 men late on.

Earlier, Atalanta made it three wins out of three with a 5-2 victory over Cagliari.

Juventus was supposed to be playing Napoli later but Gennaro Gattuso's team has not left Naples after two of its players tested positive for the coronavirus.

League authorities and Juventus have indicated the game should go ahead, raising the prospect of Napoli being handed a 3-0 loss by the league judge for failing to show. In Rome, Lazio was still smarting from a 4-1 defeat at home to Atalanta and was beset by injury problems.

It lost two more players to injury during the first half and also conceded the opener in the 30th minute when Ivan Perisic cut in from the left and managed to get the ball to Lautaro Martinez who turned and fired into bottom left corner.

While there have been upsets in the women's draw, it's business as usual for Rafael Nadal among the men at the French Open.

Against a player who loves him so much that he named his cat after him, Nadal showed no mercy with Sebastian Korda, seeing off the 20-year-old qualifier with a 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 thumping on Court Philippe Chatrier to reach the quarterfinals at Roland Garros for the 14th time.

Nadal has yet to drop a set in his pursuit of a 13th French Open crown that would give him 20 major titles overall, tying Roger Federer's record.

Korda, the son of 1998 Australian champion Petr Korda, got swept away by Nadal's power on the red clay but did get consoling words of encouragement from his 34-year-old tennis idol who said the youngster's play was "really impressive."

"All of our generation, we try very hard to be passionate," Nadal said.

"If that's a good inspiration for the young generation, that's good."

Liverpool can now leapfrog Leicester to move joint top of the table alongside Merseyside rivals Everton if they win at Aston Villa later on Sunday, while Jose Mourinho takes his Tottenham team to Old Trafford hoping to exact revenge on Manchester United for his sacking nearly two years ago.

Arsenal have taken nine points from their opening four games as they look to return to Champions League football for the first time in five years next season.

But the Gunners were fortunate to take all three points at the Emirates as they had an early escape when David Luiz escaped a red card for a pull on Oli Burke.

Mikel Arteta's men got going after the break and a fine team move opened the scoring on the hour mark when Bukayo Saka headed home Hector Bellerin's cross at the far post.

West Ham doubled their lead in style nine minutes before half-time when Fornals cushioned Cresswell's long punt perfectly into his path before slotting past Kasper Schmeichel for his first goal since February.

Leicester failed to muster a single shot on target and with seven minutes left, Bowen slotted home from Fornals' pass.

At St Mary's, Southampton won their second successive game by seeing off lowly West Brom 2-0.

Ralph Hasenhuetl's side dominated throughout but had to wait until the 41st minute to open the scoring when Moussa Djenebo's clever drag-back eluded Jake Livermore before the winger struck his finish into the bottom corner.

Oriol Romeu, who hadn't scored since February 2019, met Stuart Armstrong's cross with a brilliant volley from the edge of the area to wrap up the points in the 69th minute.

Wolves bounced back from their thrashing at West Ham as Pedro Neto's clean strike into the bottom corner was enough to beat Fulham 1-0 at Molineux.
