Fourth low pressure this Oct forms over the horizon

Citizens hold their breath as IMD forecasts heavy to very heavy rainfall over North Andhra from October 21

- An eastward trough remains rapidly moving across 119°E and continues to concentrate over Bay of Bengal. This system, located around 26°N today, is driven by the circulation over central Bay of Bengal. Over the next 24 hours, the trough will continue to intensify, leading to the formation of a low-pressure system. This system, along with the circulation over central Bay of Bengal, will continue to develop and deepen, potentially leading to the formation of a cyclonic system over peninsular India and the Bay of Bengal. The heavy rain accompanied by thunderstorms under the influence of the cyclonic system will cause significant impacts in the coastal regions of North Andhra.

India may be just about flattening its pandemic curve but there's no guarantee that we have handled the festival gush

There is some good news for India as the last two weeks have seen a decline in the number of new cases. The number of new cases has dropped from a peak of 400,000+ daily to below 250,000. However, we must not let our guard down as the virus continues to spread.

The Supreme Court judgment on the petitions pertaining to the three-month anti-CAA protests will restore some order in the way we express dissent

The judgment will have long-term implications on our political battles. It will ensure that if people are caught protesting, they will not be penalised. If the protests are peaceful, they will not be stopped. However, if the protests are violent, they will be stopped. But the key takeaway from this judgment is that we must stop pointing fingers at the Government and expect them to solve our problems. We must take responsibility for our actions and work towards a better future for India.

Democracy in crisis

The Indian National Congress has a long history of fighting for the rights of the people. However, the party has been in power for the past two decades and has failed to deliver on its promises. The people of India are tired of the corruption and nepotism that has plagued the party. The Congress has lost the support of the people and is on the verge of losing power.

Chase the vote

India may be just about flattening its pandemic curve but there’s no guarantee that we have handled the festival gush.

We must all be ready to face this new wave of challenges. We must be prepared to adjust ourselves according to the changing circumstances. We must all be ready to face this new wave of challenges. We must be prepared to adjust ourselves according to the changing circumstances.

Chasing the vote could be a political gamble, the rising air pollution, the farmers’ protests, and thestoffe attackers, who are seen as an extension of the political parties, could be a threat to the people of India.
