Farm protests swell Opp ranks

Prez gives his assent to three farm Bills amid farmers' protests

PNS ■ NEW DELHI/CHANDIGARH

President Ram Nath Kovind on Sunday gave his assent to the three farm Bills passed by Parliament even as the farmers' organisation and Opposition parties continued to rally against the controversial legislations. One of BJP's oldest allies and a founding member of the NDA, the Shiromani Akali Dal, on Sunday called for unifying the Opposition to take on the BJP.

The Opposition had earlier urged the President to return the Bills to Parliament saying the Bills were anti-farmer and had been rammed through the Rajya Sabha without a division of votes. SAD president Sukhbir Singh Badal on Sunday called upon all political parties and organisations to close ranks for a united fight to protect the interests of farmers, farm labour and farm produce traders in the country, especially in Punjab.

"We are ready to join or follow any struggle in the overall interests of the farmers, farm labour, Arhatiyas and other farm produce traders," said Badal, while making his first public speech after the party broke alliance with the NDA on Saturday night. Badal received instant support from the Trinamool Congress. "We support Sukhbir Singh Badal and Akali Dal's stand with the farmers. Fighting for farmers is part of Trinamool DNA. In 2006, Mamata Banerjee risked her life on a historic 26-day fast for farmers' rights. We oppose Farm Bills 2020 as they endanger States' role, MSP, PDS procurement, TMC leader Derek O'Brien tweeted.

Thanking Derek for his support, Sukhbir tweeted, "Derek — your stand against the Agriculture Bills in Parliament is well known. Appreciate your support." He said the country needed to understand and empathise with the farmers and farm labour in view of the pathetic conditions in which they were living.

Reiterating his party's firm commitment to preserving peace, communal harmony and fraternity in Punjab at all costs, Badal said, "We must not flinch from the ideals of keeping our struggle for people's rights absolutely peaceful and democratic. I must caution against attempts to defame our struggle by disturbing peace but that should only strengthen our resolve to safeguard the age-old values of Punjabi fraternity and the path of peaceful democratic struggle."

He again advised the Chief Minister to issue an Ordinance to declare the whole State a Mandi (Principal Marketing Yard) to save farmers from "black laws". Badal was addressing gatherings of party workers and farmers at Ropar, Hoshiarpur and Phagwara on Sunday, to mobilise them for October 1 Kisan March, which would commence from all three religious Takht Sahibs in Punjab and culminate at Mohali.

Taking a cue from its counterpart in Rajasthan, the Amrinder Singh Government in Punjab is considering bringing a legislation declaring the entire State as a Principal Mandi Yard to nullify the Central Act.

This would nullify the Central law prohibiting imposition of any tax or cess on out-of-mandi transactions.

Declaration of Punjab as a mandi will ensure farmers selling directly to third parties will get MSP and the State earns its mandi tax.

SAD's exit may dent image of BJP's sabka saath, sabka vikas

DEEPAK K UPRETI ■ NEW DELHI

The exit of Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD), one of the oldest allies of the BJP, from the National Democratic Alliance (NDA), would not impact the strong majority of the 303-member BJP in the Lok Sabha but it may dent its own catchy and all-season political slogan of "sabka saath, sabka vikas".

The NDA has now been reduced to a conglomeration of Janata Dal(U), LJP, AIADMK, Jana Nayak Janata Party, Apna Dal and a handful of regional outfits in North-East.

The SAD has only two members in the Lok Sabha, including Harsimrat Kaur, who resigned from the Modi Government following SAD's protest over three farm Bills recently passed by Parliament.

The three Rajya Sabha members of the SAD are Balwinder Singh Bhunder, Naresh Gujral and Sukhdev Singh Dhinsa.

On the eve of Lok Sabha polls in 2019 and soon after the poll victory, the BJP had claimed to having 36 NDA allies which included major parties like Telugu Desam Party (TDP), Shiv Sena and SAD, Janata Dal-United JD(U) and several other assorted regional outfits across the country.

The departure of SAD in a year when Shiv Sena too "lost patience" with the BJP and less than two years following the TDP's decision to move out of the NDA in 2018 reflects that the BJP is increasingly asserting itself with its plans and programmes after its sweeping victory in the Lok Sabha.

Peoples Democratic Party (PDP) of Mehbooba Mufti in Jammu & Kashmir and Upendra Kushwaha's RSLP in Bihar, left the NDA due to different political reasons.

The NDA which started in 1998 under Atal Bihar Vajpayee has transformed considerably since 2014. With Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah taking a tight grip over the affairs of the Government and the party and setting the BJP with an aim of "speedy expansion" in the States and introduce its policies the allies have reasons to feel threatened.

The protest against the too much of centralisation of decision-making in the NDA had also created rumblings in the North-East with Asom Gana Parishad walking out of the NDA to protest Citizenship (Amendment) Bill but it rejoined later. Another regional NDA ally Bodo People's Front too had differences with the BJP which were ironed out by State leadership.

Steady rise raises India's Covid count to over 60L

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

With an average over 85,000 cases per day during the last fortnight, India on Sunday crossed the six-million mark of the coronavirus cases. The second-most-affected country by the numbers of active and total cases, and third by the fatality count, India has added 6,72,564 cases since September 20. The last one million cases for India have come in just 12 days.

With this speed, India will surpass the United States (7,290,347) in the next 15-20 days.

The fatality cases will cross one lakh in the next 5-6 days with an average of 1100-1200 cases per day. According to the Health Ministry's data, 10 States and UTs — Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka, Kerala, Tamil Nadu, Uttar Pradesh, Odisha, Delhi, West Bengal and Chhattisgarh — account for 80 per cent of the new cases reported in a day.

The five most affected States by total cases are Maharashtra (13,39,232), Andhra Pradesh (6,75,674), Tamil Nadu (5,80,808), Karnataka (5,75,566), and Uttar Pradesh (3,81,491). There are five States with the biggest 24-hour jump in total cases are Maharashtra (18,056), Karnataka (9,543), Kerala (7,445), Andhra Pradesh (6,923), and Tamil Nadu (5,791).

A total 76 per cent of the new recovered cases are found in 10 States and UTs — Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh, Uttar Pradesh, Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Odisha, Delhi Chhattisgarh, Kerala and West Bengal. Maharashtra continues to top this list.

Union Health Minister Harsh Vardhan on Sunday said the Indian population is still far from reaching herd immunity against Covid-19 as shown by the Indian Council of Medical Research's (ICMR) second Sero Survey. As reports of coronavirus reinfection in the country emerge, the Minister said such cases are under investigation.

Bihar's ex-DGP Gupteshwar joins JD(U), to fight Assembly election

PTI ■ PATNA

Former Bihar DGP Gupteshwar Pandey, who was all over national TV for the last few months, joined the State's ruling JD (U) on Sunday amid indications he would contest the Assembly polls beginning next month.

Pandey joined the party in the presence of Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, who is also the JD (U) president, less than a week after taking voluntary retirement from service.

His much-anticipated induction took place a day after he met Kumar and insisted there was nothing political in their conversation.

The 1987 batch IPS officer had strongly defended Kumar on the issue of institution of a CBI probe into the mysterious death of Sushant Singh Rajput, the Patna-born talented film star.

The voluble officer had reminded actor Rhea Chakraborty, Rajput's girlfriend and the main accused in the abetment to suicide case being probed by the CBI, of her "auqat" (status) to question Kumar, when she suggested that there was politics behind the Bihar Government's decision to push for a CBI probe.

Pandey's application for VRS was accepted by Governor Fagu Chauhan on September 21, five months before the 1987 batch IPS officer was to superannuate, and in a rare gesture, a three-month cooling off period applicable to bureaucrats was waived in his case.

"I have a long, loving association with Kumar. He personally called me and offered party membership.

"I have a public profile and connect with people...people love me. But I don't know anything about politics. I will do what I am asked to do," he later told journalists.

"Pandey also turned up at a Press conference at the JD (U) headquarters where he was welcomed into the family by Ashok Choudhary, a Cabinet Minister who was earlier in the day appointed the working president of the State unit.

MP BY-POLLS

Cong announces second list of nine candidates

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

The Congress on Sunday released the second list of nine candidates for the Madhya Pradesh by-polls scheduled soon. The party had earlier released the list of 15 candidates.

The names were cleared by party president Sonia Gandhi. The Election Commission of India is likely to announce the by-poll dates by September 29. But the political temperature is already at all-time high as parties are preparing for the by-elections on 28 seats.

Madhya Pradesh Convress general secretary Rajiv Singh told that in the list announced on Sunday, Pankaj Upadhaya will contest from Joura constituency, Ajab Singh Kushwaha from Sumawali, Satish Sikarwar from Gwalior East, Harivallabh Shukla from Pohri, Kanihya Ram Lodhi from Mungawali, Parul Sahu from Surkhi, Uttam Raj Inranjan Singh from Mandhata, Abhishek Singh Tinku Bana from Badnawar and Rakesh Patidar from Suwasara. The BJP leaders have claimed that the MLAs who had quit the Congress, bringing down the Kamal Nath government, will contest the election on its ticket.

The Congress alleged that the BJP is not announcing the names for the elections, because once the list is announced the internal conflict among the leaders will come to fore.

Vajpayee's Man Friday Jaswant Singh no more

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Six years after a head injury she suffered from a fall at his home confined him to the hospital bed, former Union Minister Jaswant Singh, a close associate of ex-Prime Minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee, died here on Sunday. He was 82.

A former Army officer, Singh had been ill following the accident since August 2014. He had been in and out of the Army Research and Referral Hospital since then. Three months ago, he was back to the hospital — for one last time.

"It is with profound grief that we inform about the sad demise of Major Jaswant Singh (Retd), former Cabinet Minister of Government of India at on September 27, 2020. He was admitted on June 25, 2020 and being treated for Sepsis with Multiorgan Dysfunction Syndrome and effects of Severe Head Injury old (Optd) had a cardiac arrest this morning," the hospital said in a statement.

JASWANT SINGH

Singh fell out with the BJP leadership prior to the 2014 Lok Sabha polls and was denied the ticket. He went on to fight the election as an Independent candidate and lost. Three months later, he met with what would turn out to be a fatal accident.

Born on January 3, 1938, in Jasol village of Barmer district, Rajasthan, Singh did his study at the prestigious Mayo College and National Defence Academy, Khadakwasla. At the age of 19, he joined a cavalry regiment of the Indian Army. After serving in the defence services for eight years, he resigned from his commission in 1965 to take a plunge into politics.

He didn't have much success in his initial years in politics and had to wait till 1980 when the fledgling BJP sent him to the Rajya Sabha. From then on it was an uninterrupted stay in Parliament — five times as member of the Upper House and four times as Lok Sabha MP — till 2014.

An able administrator with few blemishes of the type that are associated with many leaders, Singh had the swallow the mortification of accompanying three terrorists — Ahmed Omar Saeed Sheikh, Mushtaq Ahmad Zargar and Masood Azhar — and escort the hijackers of the IC 814 aircraft to Kandahar in exchange for 175 passengers who were held hostage by Pakistan-backed terrorists.

His career, however, was also hit by controversy when he was in the Government during the Kandahar hijacking of 1999.

Singh escorted three terrorists — Ahmed Omar Saeed Sheikh, Mushtaq Ahmad Zargar and Masood Azhar — to Kandahar in exchange for 175 passengers of IC 814 aircraft who were held hostage by Pakistan-backed terrorists.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi and other top BJP leaders paid rich tributes to Singh. Modi said Singh served India diligently and will be remembered for his unique perspective on matters of politics and society.

The PM later spoke to Singh's son Manvendra to convey his condolences.

Modi said, "Singh served our nation diligently, first as a soldier and later during his long association with politics. During Atal's Government, he handled crucial portfolios and left a strong mark in the worlds of finance, defence and external affairs. Saddened by his demise."

Singh, considered close to Vajpayee and veteran leader L K Advani, held defence, finance and external affairs portfolios in the Vajpayee Government.

In his message, Modi added, "Singh will be remembered for his unique perspective on matters of politics and society. He also contributed to the strengthening of the BJP. I will always remember our interactions. Condolences to his family and supporters. Om Shanti."

Expressing his anguish, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh said Singh served the nation in several capacities and distinguished himself as an effective Minister and parliamentarian.

"Singh would be remembered for his intellectual capabilities and stellar record in service to the nation. He also played a key role in strengthening the BJP in Rajasthan. Condolences to his family and supporters in this sad hour. Om Shanti," Singh said.

Instructs collectors to ensure treatment in their dists, says recovery rate 80% in State

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan conducted State-level review of the situation of corona in the State and the work being carried out in preventing infection. Through video conferencing, he sought district-wise information from all the district collectors of the State and instructed them to make serious efforts in preventing corona infection. Chouhan said that corona recovery rate has become more than 80 percent in the State, but still continuous efforts are necessary. All collectors should ensure corona treatment arrangements in their respective districts, he added. Chouhan directed the officers to take special precautions in Jabalpur, Narsinghpur, Shahdol, Umaria, Khargone and Dhar. A separate review of the situation in these districts was held in the meeting. He also sought information about the period related to admission and discharge of patients after recovery from the Covid Care Centres in the districts. He instructed the collectors to constantly monitor the work of the Fever Clinics. Minister for Medical Education Vishwas Sarang, Chief Secretary Iqbal Singh Bains, Additional Chief Secretary Health Mohammad Suleman and Principal

Secretary to CM Manish Rastogi were also present at the meeting. The Chief Minister sought information through video conferencing about the medical facilities being given to patients under home isolation. He reviewed the availability of beds, status of oxygen beds and availability of doctors in the hospitals. Collector Gwalior informed that besides Government hospitals, good services are being given for corona treatment in private hospitals like Birla, Kalyan and Apollo Hospital.

Additional Chief Secretary Mohammad Suleman informed that a detailed review of Covid cases in Gwalior, Narsinghpur, Sagar, Hoshangabad, Khargone, Damoh, Jhabua, Shahdol, Betul, Chhindwara, Satna, Dhar and Indore has been conducted. Recovery rate has increased in most of the places. Fever clinics are doing very well with respect to Covid. At present, 23,000 tests have been conducted. In the meeting, Commissioner Gwalior was instructed to ensure daily review of the medical colleges.

IGRMS screens 'Constitution Contact Language Hindi or Hindustani'

STAFF REPORTER ■ BHOPAL

Under a series of programs organized throughout the year to create awareness among the general public and museum workers, Indira Gandhi Rashtriya Manav Sangrahalaya, Bhopal conducted a lecture of Shyam Benegal, a renowned director and screenwriter, focused on constitution making. The 57-minute film, 'Constitution Contact Language Hindi or Hindustani' was directed online / via Facebook. After watching the film, The program coordinator Doctor Soma Kiro told that, In this film, the Constituent Assembly reached the agreement that 'the official language of India will be Hindi (Devanagari script) but all the Government work (court and all other services) will be done in English till 15 years after the constitution comes into force. In 1963, Nehru gave direction to the Official Language Act, under which he pointed out that since 1965 all kinds of communication will be officially done in Hindi and English can be used as a subsidiary language. In this regard, the director of the museum, Praveen Kumar Mishra further explained that On 26 January 1965, the then Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri decided to declare Hindi as the official language and made it clear on All India Radio in a message to the nation that English can be used till then.

In this film, the Constituent Assembly reached the agreement that 'the official language of India will be Hindi'

As long as the public wants At the same time, removing the fear of non-Hindi speakers, he assured that every State can decide on its own that in which language it wants to do official work or communication, it can be a regional language or English can also be a central level. But along with Hindi, English will also be the main language of functioning and communication. After strong opposition, Hindi got the status of the official language of India but continued to get the status of 'national language', no one has the status of the national language in the Indian Constitution, it has been clarified by the Department of Official Language that Hindi As well as English, it can also be used for work in Parliament and Center. Apart from this, the States have the right to decide their own language under the legislature, as a result of which 22 languages have official status in India, including English and Hindi, on different occasions it has been clarified by the court that all these languages With equal status and no language more or less than anyone, this opportunity was seen by a large number of 270 people through Youtube.

Cong gives ultimatum to RJD, begins talks with local parties

DEEPAK KUMAR JHA ■ NEW DELHI

The Congress has initiated talks with local parties like RLSP, VIP, NCP and even with the former Union Minister in Vajpayee Government Yashwant Sinha to forge an alliance for the Bihar Assembly elections, starting next month. At the same time, it has given an ultimatum to its old natural ally RJD to make up its mind by this month end over the issue of seat sharing.

Sources said the Congress leadership has conveyed to RJD to come to the negotiation table and finish the seat sharing process so that enough time remains for the grand alliance to campaign.

RJD chief Tejaswi Yadav is likely to go to Ranchi to discuss further on the Bihar Assembly polls with his father, RJD patriarch Lalu Yadav, who is lodged in jail in Jharkhand in connection with the fodder scam.

The Congress has also shared its list of 'bastion' seats, some of them believed to be common for both the RJD and Congress which had fought the last assembly polls together and registered impressive wins to form the Mahagathbandhan government including JD (U), Nitish Kumar had later switched sides to BJP and formed the NDA Government.

Congress sources said it has agreed to project former Deputy CM and RJD chief Tejaswi Yadav as the Chief Ministerial candidate of the alliance but in lieu of more say in the choice of seats.

"We have already shared a list of 75 constituencies to

Home Ministry orders dispatch of 300 companies of paramilitary forces

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Union Home Ministry on Sunday ordered the immediate dispatch of 300 companies of paramilitary forces for poll-bound Bihar.

These paramilitary are from various units of CRPF, BSF, CISF, SSB, ITBP and RPF. The State Government was asked to submit detailed deployment plans for the poll duties of the 300 companies across the State. One company consists of 135 jawans and officers.

With 80 companies, CRPF has the highest number of its personnel deployed in Bihar. The BSF will send 55 companies, CISF 50, and SSB 52 companies. While 30 companies are from ITBP, the RPF will send 15 companies for the poll bound State.

The Union Home Ministry directed the paramilitary forces to adhere strictly to the Covid-19 guidelines during transportation, deployment and logistics.

Gujjar voters and Congress hopes to use Pilot to woo them.

Of the 28 seats, 25 were vacated by Congress MLAs who switched to the BJP to facilitate the comeback of Shivraj Singh Chouhan as Chief Minister, while three fell vacant due to the death of sitting MLAs.

Congress announced candidates for 9 more seats in which three of the nine candidates are ex-BJP leaders. The party had announced the first list of 15 candidates on September 11.

Grant leave liberally to jawans, paramilitary officers told

RAKESH K SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

Against the backdrop of casualties of six personnel due to suicide or fratricide in the last few months, the Central paramilitary forces have issued orders to its officers to liberally grant leave to the jawans, expeditiously resolve any issues being faced by them, timely clear their allowances and formulate a proper duty roster.

The move comes following a directive from the Union Home Ministry after the Confederation of Ex Paramilitary Force Welfare Association raised concern over the rising shootout and suicides and demanded instructions to the Forces to check the trend.

During the last few months, jawans of paramilitary forces like CRPF, BSF, SSB and ITBP have resorted to fratricidal killings leading to the death of six jawans. This dangerous trend is continuing and in the majority of the cases, enquiries have concluded that domestic discord was the reason for such incidents.

Apart from existing measures already in place to check such incidents in the ranks, the Forces have issued a fresh set of guidelines to contain any such trend in the future.

The officials commanding their respective formations have been specifically asked to adopt a liberal approach in granting leave to the jawans. A suitable roster of duty of jawans can be formulated. Payment of allowances and entitlements should be made at the earliest and without any hassles. Officials at different levels have further been asked to give sincere hearing to the problems being faced by the jawans and make every possible effort to resolve their issues, officials said, adding the latest directive has been circulated across all the formations of these paramilitary forces.

While the Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) is engaged in a variety of internal security roles like anti-terrorism and counter Naxal operations, the Border Security Force (BSF) is tasked to secure the frontiers along Pakistan and Bangladesh, the Indo-Tibetan Border Police (ITBP) is securing the borders with China and the Sashastra Seema Bal is deployed along the boundary with Nepal and Bhutan.

PM Modi lauds farmers' resilience during 'mahamari'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Prime Minister noted that in the recent past, the agriculture sector has been liberated from many restrictions

Lauding the farmers for showing "tremendous resilience" during the Coronavirus pandemic and their contribution to 'Atmanirbhar Bharat' initiative, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday said that they would benefit from the new agriculture-related Bills once these become laws. He also spoke about the rich Indian tradition of story-telling which, he said, was needed to rejuvenate the family system.

Addressing the 69th edition of his monthly radio address 'Mann Ki Baat', Modi pointed out that farm growers had benefited when fruits and vegetables were taken off the ambit of the Agriculture Produce Marketing Committee Act in 2014 and now other farmers would benefit too.

The Prime Minister noted that in the recent past, the agriculture sector has been liberated from many restrictions and has tried to break free from many myths. He shared the example of Kanwar Chauhan, a farmer from Haryana, who used to face "great difficulties" in marketing his fruits and vegetables outside the mandi, but in 2014, fruits and vegetables were excluded from the APMC Act, which "benefited him".

Farmers would be able to send their produce wherever they want without old restrictions and get a good price, said the prime minister.

He also talked about Tamil Nadu Banana farmers' company, a collective of farmers, which purchased hundreds of metric tons of vegetables, fruits and bananas from nearby villages during the lockdown, and supplied a vegetable combo kit to Chennai. He mentioned the 'Irada Farmer Producer' group from Lucknow who, during the lockdown, procured fruits and vegetables directly from the cultivators' fields, and sold directly in the markets of Lucknow, free from the middlemen.

Talking about India's rich tradition of storytelling, PM

Modi said that 'our stories are gaining popularity again'.

"We have had a tradition of storytelling. This is an ancient method of narrating stories. Kathakali Shebam has also been part of this. Different types of folklore are prevalent in our country," he said.

"But there are issues with some of the families. Some families have lost touch with their values," he said, adding that stories can help reinvigorate such families.

"There has been a thriving tradition of telling stories in India. There is an important tradition of storytelling in Tamil Nadu and Kerala. It is called Villu Pattu," said PM Modi, talking about the various forms of storytelling prevalent in India.

Modi spoke to people involved in this field. It included a group of women who run Bengaluru Storytelling Society and even asked them to narrate a story.

"I urge all storytellers to include all inspirational stories from the period of foreign rule as we are going to celebrate 75 years of independence, especially between 1857 and 1947. We can introduce our new generation to them in form of stories," he further said.

Stubble burning may worsen air quality in coming days

RAJESH KUMAR ■ NEW DELHI

Due to increasing cases of paddy crop residue burning in Punjab, the air pollution in northern India is likely to get poor in the coming days. Between September 21st and 25th, at least 612 paddy crop residue burning incidents have been reported while only 215 such incidents were reported during this period last year. The maximum were incidents reported from Amritsar, Tarn Taran and Patiala.

Besides NASA satellites, the agencies are using eight satellites like Metop-1, Metop-2, Noaa-18, Noaa-19, Terra-1, Aqua-1, S-NPP, and Drought TVD to capture the incidents of stubble burning in northern states. On the other hand, farmers have alleged that they do not have machinery to stop stubble burning.

As per the data compiled by Consortium for Research on Agroecosystem Monitoring and Modeling from Space, Indian Agricultural Research Institute (IARI), Punjab has reported 568 stubble burning incidents between September 26 and 18. Haryana has reported 31 incidents; Uttar Pradesh 12 and Delhi one incident so far. The data showed that incidents of paddy crop residue burning have increased since September 18.

Presently, Delhi and NCR's air quality is moderate. If wind directions change from Punjab side to Delhi, the air pollution will be poorer. Currently, wind direction is from Punjab to Pakistan

According to IARI data, there were 61,332 instances of stubble-burning in Punjab, Haryana and Uttar Pradesh between October and November, 2019. There were 75,532 instances in 2018, 88,948 in 2017 and 127,774 in 2016, according to data sourced from the Indian Council of Agricultural Research.

In late September and October each year, farmers mainly in Punjab and Haryana burn an estimated 35 million tons of crop waste from their paddy fields.

The Prime Minister's Office recently held high level meetings in advance with concerned states to tackle this issue ahead of the stubble burning season. As per data, total funds of ₹11,78.47 crore were provided in the year 2018-19 and 2019-20 to Punjab, Haryana, Uttar Pradesh and Delhi. In 2020-21, ₹600 crore has been provided in the budget for the scheme and ₹548.20 crore has been released to the states well before time to ensure they can take up the activities in advance.

Every winter, not just Delhi but also large parts of north India are frequently enveloped in a thick blanket of smog, caused by air pollution from vehicular and industrial emissions mixing with fog. The burning of post-harvest paddy stubble in the agricultural fields of Haryana and Punjab is often cited as a major cause of this unhealthy smog.

This year, health experts fear that the effects of COVID-19, which primarily causes respiratory problems, would be worsened by heightened air pollution due to smog and smoke from the annual stubble burning.

The burning of stubble emits large amounts of toxic pollutants like Methane, Carbon Monoxide and carcinogenic polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons.

'Indian population still far from achieving herd immunity against Covid'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Amid rising number of Covid-19 cases and fatalities, Union Health Minister Dr Harshvardhan on Sunday cautioned that Indian population is still far from achieving herd immunity against COVID-19 as shown by Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) second Sero Survey and there is no room for complacency.

Dr Harsh Vardhan also said that the ICMR expert panel is examining reinfection cases. A total of 88,600 new cases and 1,124 deaths have been reported in the past 24 hours in the country.

While interacting with social media users during 'Sunday Samaad-3', the Minister said: The findings of the second sero survey are going to be released soon. "But second sero survey indications are that we are far from having achieved any kind of herd immunity which necessitates that all of us should continue following COVID appropriate behaviour.

"The first sero-survey of May 2020 revealed that the nationwide prevalence of novel coronavirus infection was only 0.73 per cent," he said.

The Minister also talked about the cases of reinfections being reported from the country saying that the "ICMR is also actively investigating and researching reports of reinfection and although the number of reinfection cases is negligible at this moment the government is fully seized of the importance of the matter."

Dr Harsh Vardhan discouraged the wide usage of investi-gational therapies such as remdesivir and plasma therapies. "Government has issued regular advisories regarding the rational use of investigational therapies. The private hospitals have also been advised against routine use of these investigational therapies:

The doctors in the States/UTs are being made aware of the therapies.

The Union Health Minister also dispelled fears regarding the phased opening of schools and advised on proper protocol to be followed while visiting salons and hair-spa.

India has been recording higher number of recoveries than the new cases for several consecutive days in the recent past. 92,043 new recoveries have been reported in the last 24 hours in the country. 76 per cent of the new recovered cases are found in 10 States/UTs, said a senior health official adding that Maharashtra continues to top this list. It has alone contributed more than 23,000 followed by Andhra Pradesh with more than more than 9,000 cases.

Ten States/UTs account for 77 per cent of the new confirmed cases. Maharashtra continues to lead this tally. It has contributed more than 20,000 followed by Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh with more than more than 8,000 and 7,000 cases respectively.

C'garh, Haryana and Telangana get ₹19,944 cr for paddy purchase

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

A day after the Centre announced commencement of paddy procurement at the minimum support price (MSP) with immediate effect in Punjab and Haryana in the wake of early arrival of the kharif crop in these two States, the National Cooperative Development Corporation (NCDC), an apex financing organisation under the Union Agriculture Ministry, sanctioned ₹19,944 crore as the first instalment to Chhattisgarh, Haryana and Telangana for a smooth purchase process.

Chhattisgarh got the highest amount at ₹9,000 crores while for Haryana, the sanctioned amount is ₹5,444 crores and Telangana ₹5,500 crores. These States account for nearly 75 per cent of paddy production in the country. However, Punjab is yet to get any sanctioned amount.

The Centre has fixed MSP for 'common variety' paddy at ₹1,868 per quintal and for 'A' grade variety at ₹1,888 per quintal for the current year. On Saturday, the Centre had announced purchase of the crops at MSP to placate the farmers across the country who were up in arms against the recently passed Farms Bill which has got the President sanction on Sunday.

The NCDC loan is supposed to assist the States or the State Marketing Federations in undertaking paddy procurement operations in a timely manner through their respective cooperative organizations.

Govt mulls eco-friendly CNG/LPG-run boats at tourist places

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Government is mulling to substitute petrol, diesel and kerosene in boats operating at tourists spots across the country with environment-friendly CNG/LPG fuel. This was stated by Union Petroleum Minister Dharmendra Pradhan at a virtual event held here on the occasion of World Tourism Day marked on Sunday.

Talking about sustainable environment, the Minister said that he was keen to take it further by substituting petrol, diesel, kerosene etc in operating boats at tourist spots with CNG/LPG which are pollution-free.

In fact, in Varanasi an initiative has already been undertaken in this regard with the local administration after consultation with the locals are planning to replace the pollution causing petrol driven boats at over 84 ghats of the Ganga river with the green fuel CNG.

Pradhan also emphasised upon using battery operated vehicles in and around tourist spots.

With Covid-19 playing spoilsports with the international travel, Union Tourism Minister Prahlad Singh Patel urged every citizen to visit at least 15 destinations in the country by 2022 to promote domestic tourism.

He said that the Ministry has launched the Dekho Apna

Desh (DAD) initiative early this year with the objective of creating awareness among the citizens about the rich heritage and culture of the country, encouraging citizens to travel widely within the country and enhancing tourist footfalls leading to development of local economy and creation of jobs at the local level.

To create mass awareness, the Ministry has also launched an online DAD pledge and Quiz on the MyGov.in platform. The online pledge and Quiz are open to all for participation.

Patel further said that the programme will help in enhancing the overall experience of the tourists, who would benefit from the knowledge of the local tourist facilitators and it will also help in creating employment opportunities even in the remotest parts of the country.

This year United Nations World Tourism Organisation

(UNWTO) has designated 2020 as the Year of Tourism and Rural Development. "This Year is an opportunity to promote the potential of tourism to create jobs and opportunities.

It can also advance inclusion and highlight the unique role tourism can play in preserving and promoting natural and cultural heritage and curbing urban migration," said a senior official from the Ministry.

Kerala logs 7,445 new corona positive cases

5,791 afflicted in Tamil Nadu

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ CHENNAI/KOCHI

As the number of Covid-19 apatients touched an all time high in the State, Kerala Minister for Health K K Shylaja blamed the people for not following the guidelines and safety measures recommended by the Government and warned about a possible total lockdown. Neighbouring Tamil Nadu showed a decline in the number of new patients tested on Sunday as well as the total number of patients

On Sunday, 7,445 new persons were diagnosed with Covid-19 in the State and this took the total number of patients in Kerala to 56,709. The last 24 hours saw 21 patients succumbing to the pandemic.

According to a bulletin issued by Tamil Nadu Government, 5,791 new patients were diagnosed with Covid 19 on Sunday while the total Covid-19 cases were 46, 341. There were 80 deaths reported in the State during the last 24 hours. There are 10,368 more patients in Kerala than in Tamil Nadu.

Earlier in the day Minister Shylaja said the relaxation in the lockdown ordered by the Government for Onam holidays led to the increase in the number of patients. “The Opposition parties which are staging unnecessary and unwanted agitations across the State are equally responsible for this situation,” said the minister who was rated as the world’s top thinker in the year 2020 by Prospect , a British magazine.

Despite being a closed holiday, ambulances blaring their sirens , transported 3,752 persons requiring urgent medical attention because of Covid-19 to hospitals.

Kozhikode topped the list of 14 districts with highest number of new patients. The coastal district, known for its spots of cultural, historical and tourism importance tested 956 persons while Ernakulam (924) and Malappuram (915) new patients on Sunday.

Shylaja said though the State has more number of patients compared to neighbors, death rate is low in Kerala. “Our mortality rate is 0.12 per cent but this is likely to increase along with the number of new patients in days to come,” said Shylaja. She also said that the State may have to opt for a total lock down if the present trend continues and people do not follow the guidelines issued by the Government.

2 terrorists killed in J&K’s Awantipora

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ JAMMU

Two terrorists were gunned down by the joint team of security forces in Sambhoora area of Awantipora on Sunday while alert jawans of the Border Security Force (BSF) foiled a major infiltration bid by at least five heavily armed terrorists along the International border in Samba sector of Jammu frontier.

Till the time of filing the report, search operations were still going on at the encounter site in Awantipora.

However, twitter handle of the Kashmir Zone police while confirming the reports posted an update, “one more ‘unidentified’ terrorist eliminated in the ongoing operation, total two so far, search operations still going on”.

Meanwhile, in Jammu BSF spokesman in a statement said, “Alert BSF troops foiled another major infiltration bid from Pakistani side in the Samba sector on the intervening night of Saturday and Sunday.”

The spokesman said, the movement of a group of five terrorists was noticed on the Pakistani side of the IB in the Samba sector by alert BSF troops. It was the second such attempt through the Samba sector and the same was foiled. Earlier, terrorists from Pakistan had tried to intrude on the intervening night of September 14 and 15,” said a BSF spokesperson.

Mukul reaches out to Rahul Sinha as discord in BJP intensifiess

SAUGAR SENGUPTA ■ KOLKATA

A day after senior BJP leader ARahul Sinha expressed his displeasure over the appointment of Trinamool Congress defectors to high party posts at the cost of the “veteran time-tested” saffron leaders newly appointed party vice president Mukul Roy reached out to the disoriented leader saying Sinha and BJP were identical in Bengal.

Roy himself a founder member of the Trinamool Congress who left the party following his differences with Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee and joined the BJP a few years ago said, “Rahulda is the face of BJP in Bengal without whom the party would not have come this far... his contribution to the party is not less than anyone else.”

Sinha a former State party president was dropped as the party national secretary and was replaced by another Trinamool Congress discard Anupam Hazra a former MP. Hazra too struck a conciliatory note saying “all issues in the party can be sorted out through discussion,” adding he would approach the doors of all the leaders for better performance.

Three Bengal leaders were inducted into the national forum on Saturday. Apart from Roy and Hazra the third leader is Raju Bishta from Darjeeling who was made the party spokesperson.

Soon after being ignored in

Sinha a former State party president was dropped as the party national secretary and was replaced by another Trinamool Congress discard Anupam Hazra a former MP. Hazra too struck a conciliatory note saying “all issues in the party can be sorted out through discussion,” adding he would approach the doors of all the leaders for better performance the major reshuffle in the party on Saturday Sinha had exploded saying that he was hugely disappointed by the development. “I will speak up details 10-12 days later but for now I can say that I am extremely disappointed by the new arrangement where TMC defectors have been honoured with priced posts... Is this the reward I got for serving the party for the past 40 years?” he said adding “nothing can be more unfortunate and disappointing than this.”

The top-level schism tended to reach the grassroots with Hazra’s car on Sunday being gheraoed by angry saffron workers at Baruipur in South 24 Parganaas where the discontented workers complained against TMC men occupying important posts in the party.

“The TMC workers who have joined the BJP are getting important responsibilities where as we are being ignored by the district leadership ... this is unacceptable,” a party mandal workers said even as two groups engaged in fisticuffs sources said. About half a dozen party men had to be hospitalised, insiders said.

Similar skirmishes took place at Basirhat where the party men revolted against district party president Tapan Ghosh holding him guilty of getting sold out to the Trinamool Congress.

“Our district president is sold out to Prashant Kishore and is doing nothing. He has withdrawn the active fighting workers which is why the party is not taking any programme in the district,” angry workers said even as they vandalised the interiors of a tent where a party programme was to be held.

With film City just 131 km away, Aligarh’s talents will get a platform

Aligarh: Famous stars of India like Bharat Bhushan, Padma Vibhushan Gopal Das Neeraj, Javed Akhtar, Rahi Masoom Raza, Shahryar, and Ravindra Jain to Alka Yagnik have shone in the sky from the land of Aligarh who decorated the film world in the seven notes of their song and music. They gave many famous songs which are still alive in the hearts of the people. Now, the film city is going to establish at just 131 km from Aligarh which will be a great platform for the actors of Aligarh

AMU is well known for multi-talented actors. Even today, the actors of the AMU’s Kennedy Hall have a dream of Mumbai. For those talents, the 1300 km run of Mumbai will now be reduced to 130 Km of Noida where the Film City is planned to establish.

Zakir Sheikh, Director / Producer, Dhanak Media Production House, Aligarh said that there is no shortage of art in the Aligarh region. The film city will also employ artisans like Carpenter, Fine Art along with restaurants, hotels, and other small jobs. The effort is to take Brijwood forward, like Bollywood and Tollywood by making a family film in this era of vulgarity and take the civilization of Brij to the world level.

Ruturaj Sharma, Cinematographer, and Video Editor, Aligarh said that he is running a Stroller Studios production house along with a YouTube channel called Stroller TV. Having worked on several Bollywood projects, he is now working as a filmmaker at Delhi’s famous filmmaking institute Moonlight Films & Theater Studio. If a film city is formed in Noida, there will be more successful. Many artists and technical assistants associated with Aligarh will also get new jobs. There will be immense possibilities for success.

Many hit films like 2016 released Aligarh, 2017 released Toilet Ek Prem Katha, 2015 released Tevar, Nil Batte Sannata, N-8, 2019 released Luka Chuppi were shoot in Aligarh, Agra and nearby places. PNS

Tamil Nadu farming hero V Kannan succumbs to virus

KUMAR CHELLAPPAN ■ CHENNAI

Covid-19 claimed yet another Cunsung hero of Tamil Nadu, Kattumannarkoil V Kannan late Saturday night. He was 72 and succumbed to the pandemic in a corporate hospital in Chennai. Hailing from Cuddalore district, Kannan, a postgraduate with degree in law took to farming from his young age and was the vice-president of Cauvery Delta Farmers Association.

His was a life dedicated to the farmers of Tamil Nadu. He had only one ambition in his life- to see the major rivers of the country inter linked through a network of canals so that no farmers anywhere in the country would be denied irrigation facilities even amidst draught. Kannan wrote a book “River Cauvery-The Most Battl(r)ed”, which was release by Tamil Nadu Governor Banwarilal Purohit in May 2019. The Governor had reiterated the need to inter link the major Indian rivers so that the country would not see simultaneous floods and draught.

His was a life dedicated to the farmers of Tamil Nadu. He had only one ambition in his life- to see the major rivers of the country inter linked through a network of canals so that no farmers anywhere in the country would be denied irrigation facilities even amidst draught

Kannan had distinct and unique ideas for regaining the status of farmers and farming. “We do not want any charity from the State or Central Governments. Make loans available to us at reduced rates of interest and ensure that the agriculture produces get minimum support price announced by the Government. Also allow us to sell the farm produce to the buyers of our choice. This together with the interlinking of rivers would make life easy for us,” Kannan said before he was quarantined early this month.

Kannan is survived by wife, a son and daughter. A great scholar of Tamil classics, Kannan would be missed badly by the farming community, according to Pon Radhakrishnan, former union minister who was a close friend of the farmers’ leader.

Monsoon to withdraw from North India in 2 days

New Delhi: The Southwest Monsoon is set to retreat from west Rajasthan and adjoining areas from September 28. Overall, the country has received 951.3 mm rainfall than normal of 869.4 mm, about 9 per cent extra rainfall until September 27.

As per the India Meteorological Department (IMD), 19 states have received normal monsoon rainfall while 10 received excess or extra excess rainfall so far. Parts of north India -- Delhi, Himachal Pradesh, Jammu and Kashmir, Uttarakhand, Nagaland, Mizoram and Manipur--- have recorded deficient rainfall. The Union Territory of Ladakh has recorded high deficiency of rainfall this year. Due to good rainfall in 29 states, kharif crops acreage has recorded 1116.88 lakh ha as compared to last year

1066.06 lakh ha.

“Conditions are becoming favourable for withdrawal of monsoon from west Rajasthan and adjoining areas of northwest India from September 28 onwards. Going by the visible trend, a sharp decline in rain activity over central India can be expected from October second week onwards,” the IMD said.

June recorded 17 per cent more rainfall, while July saw 10 per cent deficiency. However, there was an excess rainfall in August -- the month recorded 27 per cent more rainfall than normal. In September, north-west India recorded a 46.8% rain deficiency while south peninsula received 67.7% surplus rain; east and northeast India received 12.8% surplus rain; central India recorded a 6.1% rain deficiency.

Rainfall in the range of 96 to 104 per cent of the Long Period Average (LPA) is considered as ‘normal’, while precipitation in the range of 104 to 110 per cent of the LPA is ‘excess’. Large parts of the country in west and south India, including Gujarat, Goa, Telangana, Andhra Pradesh, Tamil Nadu and Karnataka, have received excess rainfall. Sikkim is the only state to have received large excess rainfall.

As per IMD data, East and North East India has witnessed 7 percent, Central India 16 percent extra and South Peninsula 30 percent extra rainfall this monsoon season. North West India has witnessed 15 percent rain deficiency. PNS

Overcrowded UP jails emerge as hotspots of coronavirus

PRADEEP SAXENA ■ ALIGARH

Overcrowded jails of Uttar Pradesh have emerged as Covid-19 hotspot. Every 71 jails of the UP are overcrowded up to 3 to 4 times its capacity which gives rise to unhygienic conditions and impossible to maintain social distance.

17 prisoners were found Corona positive in Aligarh jail and 128 in Fatehgarh jail. According to DG jail Anand Kumar, more than 140,000 prisoners were tested for corona in UP’s 71 jails in which 7000 were found positive including jail staff.

Dr. Kafel and Sharjil who were in jail for the protest of CAA told that the capacity of one cell is 40 in which more than 130 prisoners were confined. There is no social distancing in the cell.

Prashant Kumar, social activist to pioneer said that these jails including Aligarh, Mathura, Agra, etc are the hotspot of the COVID virus which is like a COVID live bomb and can be blast anytime if the government will not take any appropriate action.

The way district prisons are facing the increasing cases of coronavirus, the AMU student leaders who had been jailed had already warned about this new hotspot of the coronavirus. Sharjil Usmani and Farhan Zuberi, who were arrested for protesting the Citizenship Amendment Act, had already told about the overcapacity after coming out of jail.

Sharjeel Usmani told that the population and resources of the city were limited at the time when District Prison was built, now the city has expanded 10 times in the last 125 years, but the prison capacity is still limited. A cell can hold 40 to 45 captives, but in the current situation, there are more than 130 prisoners. This can be ignored in normal circumstances, but in the time of a pandemic, this capacity can be very disastrous. Farhan Zuberi, another student who came out of the prison said that there is a stone of the British era outside the cell, in which the capacity of the cell is mentioned as 45. In this way, the capacity of the district jail is fixed around 1150.

Ladakh group withdraws call for boycotting autonomous body polls in Leh

New Delhi: An influential organisation of Ladakh on Sunday withdrew its call for the boycott of the Ladakh Autonomous Hill Development Council (LAHDC), Leh, after the Central government assured it that the demand for protection of language, demography, ethnicity, land and jobs of the locals will be considered positively within 15 days of the polls.

Union Home Minister Amit Shah also assured a delegation of the People’s Movement for Constitutional Safeguard Under Sixth Schedule for Ladakh that the central government is committed to empower the LAHDC of Leh and Kargil and would safeguard the interests of the people of the Union Territory of Ladakh.

In a joint statement, former Ladakh MPs Thiksay Rinpoche and Thupstan Chhewang, former Jammu and Kashmir minister Chhering Dorje and Union ministers Kiren Rijiju and G Kishan Reddy said the delegation was assured that all issues related to language, demography, ethnicity, land and jobs will be considered positively and taken care of. The Ministers on Sunday addressed media along with the leaders. Amit Shah had met the delegation on Saturday evening.

“A dialogue between a larger Ladakhi delegation comprising of representatives from Leh and Kargil districts under the aegis of Peoples Movement for Constitutional Safeguard Under Sixth Schedule for Ladakh and Union Home Ministry would commence after 15 days of the culmination of LAHDC, Leh elections. Any decision so reached in this connection would be in consultation with the representatives from Leh and Kargil,” the statement said. The statement said the central government is open to discuss protection of Ladakh’s language, demography, ethnicity, land and jobs under the 6th schedule of constitution and under other provisions while looking into issues related to Ladakhi people. “The delegation has agreed to withdraw its call for the boycott of the ensuing LAHDC, Leh elections and promised its wholesome support to the smooth conduct of these elections,” it said.

Rijiju said Union Minister of State for Home G Kishan Reddy would visit Ladakh on Monday and meet a cross section of people in the Union Territory to allay their apprehensions. PNS

He said over 96 lakh samples have been tested in the state till now. PTI

SUSHANT SINGH RAJPUT DEATH-RELATED DRUG CASE

Karan Johar's ex-aide Kshitij sent to NCB custody till Oct 3

TN RAGHUNATHA ■ MUMBAI

A day after his arrest in the ASushant Singh Rajput death-related drug case, a Mumbai holiday court on Sunday remanded Kshitij Ravi Prasad, a former executive of Karan Johar’s Dharma Productions, in the Narcotics Control Bureau (NCB) till October 3.

Amid an allegation by Advocate Satish Maneshinde, the lawyer of Kshitij, that the NCB “is bent upon falsely implicating Karan Johar or some top officers of Dharma Productions”, Metropolitan Magistrate V J Dongre agreed with the investigation agency’s plea and said that “the custodial interrogation of the present accused (Kshitij) is justifiable to reveal the truth”.

In his order remanding Kshitij in NCB custody till October 3, Magistrate Dongre said: “It further reveals from the remand papers that the present accused (Kshitij) has taken the delivery of Ganja from the accused Karamjeet (Singh) and his associate who are directly connected with (late Sushant’s house manager) Samuel Miranda. From the above facts, the link of the present accused seems to be connected with the present crime in which other accused (have already been) arrested”.

“So considering the serious nature of the offence in which several accused have already been arrested, I think the detailed custodial interrogation of the present accused (Kshitij) is justifiable to reveal the truth. Therefore the accused is remanded to the custody of the NCB till 03.10.2020,” the Magistrate stated, as he directed the NCB to produce Kshitij before the Special court at the next hearing.

In its remand application, the NCB remand application linked Kshitij’s arrest with the Sushat Singh Rajput-death related drug case and Karamjeet Singh was arrested on the statements by the arrested accused actress Rhea chakraborty and her brother Showik.

According to the NCB, the Kshitij’s house was searched on September 25 and “one roll joint believed to the remains of smoked Ganja joint was found that certain documents and gadgets were taken for further investigation”. “On the basis of a voluntary statement made by him” that he had procured hashish from accused Ankush Arneja, Kshitij was arrested.

In a 7-page remand application, the NCB Joint Intelligence Officer Murari Lal said that Sanket Patel, a peddler who had been arrested earlier, had supplied Ganja to Kshtij on the orders of another co-accused Karamjeet Singh Anand.

Patel, who is currently on bail, admitted that “on the instructions of accused Karamjeet”, he had delivered the Ganja to Prasad outside his home in Adani Building, Andheri west, 12 times between May-July 2020.

For each consignment of 50 gms, Prasad paid him Rs. 3,500 – coming to a total of 600 gms Ganja worth Rs.42,000 in that period. “On the basis of his voluntary statement and alleged involvement in dealing of illicit drugs, accused Sanket Hukum Chand Patel was placed under arrest. Presently he is on bail,” the remand application said.

During the search at Karmjeet’s residence, the NCB recovered 17 grams of Ganja, 4grams of Charas and Rs 6 lakh in cash.

In a statement given to the NCB, Karmjeet has admitted that he had supplied contraband to Samuel Miranda several times. In a significant disclosure, Karmajeet has told the NCB that he was linked to late Sushant, accused Rhea and her brother Showik in connection with supply of contraband and sometimes received payment by cash/Google pay. Based on his confession and alleged links with drug deals, Karmjeet was arrested and is currently in judicial custody.

The NCB told the court that Kshijit was indirectly connected with Anuj Keshwani – one of the earliest arrests made by the NCB - from whom commercial quantities of narcotics was seized.

With Kshitij’s arrest, the total number of persons arrested in connection with the Sushant death-related drug case has gone up to 20. Those arrested so far comprised: actress Rhea Chakraborty, her brother Showik Chakraborty, Abbas Lakhani, Karan Arora, Zaid Vilatra, Abdul Basit Parihar, Samuel Miranda, Dipesh Sawant, Kaizan Ebrahim, Anuj Keswani, Ankush Arneja, Karamjeet Singh Anand, Sanket Pat+el, Sandeep Gupta, Aftab Ansari, Dwyane Fernandes, Suryadeep Malhotra, Chris Costa, Rahul Vishram and lastly Kshitij Prasad.

While some of them are in NCB custody, others are in judicial custody. Three or four of them are currently on bail.

Meanwhile, appearing for Kshitij, advocate Satish Maneshinde alleged that the NCB had “harassed, blackmailed”, “even given a third degree treatment” to elicit statements from his client (Kshitij).

Maneshinde said that the team that raided Kshitij’s house did not find anything except “the end bit of a stale and dry cigarette butt” in the balcony. He told the court that the NCB team began insisting it was a ganja joint even though there was nothing to suggest that and even drew up a panchnama to that effect despite his protests. “Upon his wife’s insistence, the word ‘believed’ to be a ganja joint was inserted in the panchnama,” Maneshinde said.

Maneshinde alleged that his client (Kshitij) was categorically informed by key investigating officer in the presence of several other officers, that since he was associated with Dharma Productions, they would let him off if he implicated either Karan Johar, Somel Mishra , Rakhi, Apoorva, Neeraj or Rahul falsely alleging that they consumed drugs. “Kshitij refused to comply with this despite the pressure being mounted on him as he did not know any of these people personally and did not wish to falsely implicate anyone,” he said.

“It can be seen from the remand application and the statement of Kshitij Prasad that NCB is bent upon falsely implicating KJo or some top officers of Dharma Productions,” Maneshinde alleged.

India drowns out Pak

Modi seizes the solemnity of the UNGA session to prioritise pandemic management as Imran Khan gets stuck on Kashmir

The United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) session this year is significant in more ways than one. It is the first virtual session, the first being held under the shadow of the pandemic and the first reset effort when de-globalisation and protectionism spin the narrative of the day as the world stands divided between polarities. It also happens to be the 75th anniversary of the august institution, and, therefore, a time to step back for member-countries and redefine their participatory role and contribution in a post-pandemic world. The theme is resonant of our times and at the same time loaded with possibilities, “The Future we want, the United Nations

we need: reaffirming our collective commitment to multilateralism — confronting COVID-19 through effective multilateral action.” But Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan overrode the solemnity of the occasion and the geopolitical re-adjustment it demands by raising the Kashmir issue again and launching a diatribe against its changed status, ramming the same paragraphs of his earlier speeches. The world has accepted the constitutional space within which India abrogated Article 370 and has long turned a deaf ear to Khan’s persistent chorus. But that has not stopped him from trying to “internationalise” the issue, even at the risk of appearing petty in the middle of an unprecedented world crisis. India’s First Secretary in the Permanent Mission to the UN, Mijito Vinito, walked out when Khan started his rant and availing the right of response, made a pointed retort. As all the video speeches by world leaders had been pre-recorded, India did have an inkling of what was to come. But Prime Minister Narendra Modi left the rebuttal to officials and himself claimed the high moral ground by highlighting India’s role as a “pharmacy to the world” while elaborating on its contribution to global cooperation against COVID-19 by aiding more than 150 countries. He also prioritised India’s role as a South-South development partner, especially in the context of the India-UN development partnership fund and reiterated the pledge to take on global terrorism. By highlighting India’s global commitment to welfare and respect of rule-based laws, he even negotiated a better role for India in the UN and sought reforms. This was a smart move, aligning India’s objectives with the world imperatives and dismissing Pakistan’s moves as unworthy of reaction from Modi himself. Khan’s provocation has clearly not worked up either opinions or compelled Modi to dignify that with a reaction. And except Turkey, which echoed similar concerns on Kashmir, there was no taker for Pakistan’s fresh tirade against us. That, too, because the latter has convinced the former that together they need to set the agenda for a neo-Islamic world as modern nations, considering the Arab world had accepted India and had been co-opted by the US to establish a working relationship with Israel.

Running promptly out of alliances and friends, and given the US’ pro-India tilt, Pakistan is progressively getting aggressive on territorial gains for itself. It desperately wants to legitimise its illegal hold on Kashmir to counter India’s abrogation of Article 370. That’s the reason why it announced elections for the legislative assembly of Gilgit-Baltistan on November 15. Of course, India has protested against this forced conversion of a military occupied territory into an autonomous political entity but the fact is Pakistan wants to justify it as a reaction to India’s move and is hoping to internationalise the issue once again. Besides, elections would also give legitimacy to the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor, which runs through Gilgit-Baltistan, thereby riling up India further. This follows its earlier declaration to redraw its maps and appropriate what it fancifully feels India owes it, parts of Kashmir, Ladakh and Junagadh in Gujarat. This is not backed by any credible reasoning, support groups, historical reasoning or legal validity. That’s why Pakistan’s cartographic offensive seems part of a larger Chinese design in the region and not just its independent move as it clearly shows that Kashmir shares a border with China. Held off by India on Ladakh that seems to have driven a wedge in China’s greater plan to control the Karakoram by squeezing us with salami-slicing, Pakistan’s territorial claims are clearly intended to exhaust our capacities and opening up a second flashpoint along our borders. Pakistan is simultaneously heating up the Line of Control (LoC); its ceasefire violations and infiltration bids have gone up by about 60 per cent this year. If recent reports are to be believed, then the Chinese have had a series of meetings with their Pakistani counterparts in Gilgit-Baltistan and have been aiding Pakistan clandestinely to revive old terror networks against India. Chinese drones have been deployed for surveillance missions along the LoC. Debt-trapped by China, Pakistan forgets that such unilateralism will beguile unilateralism from the Indian side as well. And hurt its interests. The new map is nothing but an adventurist version of its 1947-48 map and negates all bilateral agreements that came after it, including the 1972 Shimla Agreement. What then would be the cascading impact on all subsequent treaties, like those on water-sharing? What about our valid land claims? Pakistan doesn’t realise that its Kashmir strategy is not working anymore and exported militancy is tiring out in the Valley. And China may use it for posturing but apart from niggling India with its proxy, will delink itself and go for a one-on-one strategic engagement with us for its larger concerns. Pakistan has misread its transactional and inscrutable all-weather friend.

Much needed closure

The Government should accept the arbitration verdict and draw a line under the Vodafone issue

Pranab Mukherjee was a consummate politician and when the man, who was India’s 13th President, passed away recently, he was fondly remembered by all across the political spectrum. Yet, one of Mukherjee’s legacies as Finance Minister was the unfortunate retrospective tax legislation that he included in one of the Finance Bills he presented. This singular piece of legislation, for which the entire Cabinet of the time, including Dr Manmohan Singh, must share responsibility, ruined India’s reputation as an investment destination. It was in May 2012 that the Parliament passed the Finance Act under which various provisions of the Income Tax Act, 1961, were amended with retrospective effect to tax any gain on transfer of shares in a non-Indian company which derived substantial value from underlying Indian assets. And the exemplar of this legislation was the case the Government fought against British telecom giant Vodafone. Despite losing the case in the Supreme Court, tax authorities and the Government doubled down and the case went to arbitration in London, where even the member appointed by the Indian Government was found in Vodafone’s favour. The international arbitration tribunal ruled that India’s demand in past taxes was in fact a breach of fair treatment under the bilateral investment protection pact. Vodafone India was later on merged with Aditya Birla Group’s telecom company Idea.

Mukherjee had logic on his side when he wanted to tax deals where entities operating in the Indian market were bought and sold, even if they were not “based” in India. However, to make any act of legislation retrospective is not only unfair, it is also a confidence buster for investors, the thinking being that if it can be done once, it can be done again. When Narendra Modi said that he wanted to make doing business easier in India, he should have started by withdrawing the case against Vodafone and some other companies like Cairn. Maybe it wasn’t done lest he be accused of being friendly to industrialists or the tax authorities thought that they had a good case (as they always think) but now that the arbitration case has been lost, it is time to end this once and for all. This was a clear instance of tax terrorism and India’s reputation suffered as a result. At a time we need to roll out the red carpet for all investors, that is the least that can be done right now.

Free market or Company Raj?

Corporations and agro-processors can demand graded products for MSP. Otherwise they may not buy at all or at reduced prices. Where will the small farmer go then?

INDRA SHEKHAR SINGH

A Bharat bandh, millions of farmers on the streets, eight Opposition leaders suspended, National Democratic Alliance (NDA) partners and Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) affiliates openly rebelling against the Government, these scenes have been dominating our news cycles. Yet Prime Minister Narendra Modi is confident that the three farm Bills are good for India.

Theoretically, the Bills appear well-intentioned but the devil is always in the implementation. Overall, they aim to empower farmers to sell from farm-gate but in the process end up empowering corporations and traders to expand their businesses and swamp the farm to fork chain. A new wave of liberalisation just rammed into rural India. But many suspect the real agenda is generating “agri-dollars” and in the words of dissenting (Telangana Rashtra Samithi) MP Dr Keshava Rao, to “make an agriculture country into a corporate country.”

The Government argues that farmers are not free to sell anywhere because of a “corrupt and middlemen-infested Agricultural Produce Market Committee (APMC).” Hence, break the APMC and free the farmers. Now corporations and any other person with a PAN card can directly procure products from farmers. Agri-business companies can enter into contracts with them. But what complicated matters was the lack of substance in the Bills, no mention of a guaranteed price for farm pick-ups in case of a bad year or excess yields and the Government’s cavalier manner of handling the Rajya Sabha last Sunday, negating debate and passing the Bills by voice vote. This naturally raised more doubts. Indian farmers have had centuries of slavery under the Company Raj and perhaps that’s why a muffled voice of MP SR Balasubramaniam, who evoked the “Champanan Satyagraha”, rang the loudest. APMC will be replaced by the corporate market as there is no fair agreement between two unequal parties, he stated. He may be right after all as a David and Goliath can never have a fair agreement. Neither can sheep and wolves co-operate, nor can a corporation and a marginal Gond farmer in Madhya Pradesh.

Today the farmer is weak, highly indebted and trapped in the cycle of over-production and low income. His monthly household surplus is under ₹1,500 per month. This has already been destroyed by COVID-19.

Each harvest season, his input and production costs rise, yet he cannot even sell at a minimum support price (MSP). As per reports, only six per cent farmers sell at MSP, the remaining 94 per cent are dependent on markets and traders outside the APMC mandi. Reality check — small and marginal farmers cannot even reach the APMC as they don’t have any means of transportation, forget selling outside their geographic limits. The majority of farmers are marginal. This means they only grow enough to feed their families and sell a little surplus to the markets. From the village field, away from the town, they sometimes find it convenient to sell to local traders.

Most of them begin the sowing season by taking credit for seeds and fertilisers and repay them through post-harvest sales. The tenant farmers are worse off. They want to sell at MSP but due to the trader-creditor-farmer relationship and market forces, which have an upper hand in price fixation, they cannot.

So, on the face of it, liberalisation seems to be a good step as “farmers can sell anywhere.” But is it? Here we must go by the warning given by MP Professor Manoj Jha to the Rajya Sabha:

“You have replaced the rohu and hilsa with the sharks. You will bring the East India Company back to India.” He was referring to traders as the small fish and the big agri-business corporations as “sharks” that have no personal connection with farmers. In fact, most farmers still trust their eco-system of licenced commission agents as they deliver on prices and guarantee sales.

Given agri-dollars in their pockets and new reform policies, food majors can break any market and create monopolies, forcing the farmers to sell cheaper or let their produce rot. Not convinced? Let’s go back to the dal scam of 2015. After an investigation by the IT department, a scam valued at ₹2.5 lakh crore was unearthed. The consumers paid the price by buying arhar dal at ₹210/kg. It was reported that a cartel of agri-business companies was responsible for buying pulses at low prices through the supply chain networks and hoarding it overseas, creating artificial scarcity and profiting immensely by selling the stocks back to Indians at high prices. The Government used the Essential Commodities Act (ECA) to bust hoarders and recovered 75,000 metric tonnes of dal. But now, even the ECA limits on hoarding and stocking are being done away with.

In 2006, Bihar removed the APMC regime and the real incomes of farmers in the State have fallen while private investment is yet to move into the State. Only traders are carting produce from Bihar all the way to Punjab to sell in mandis.

Many vouch for APMC reforms and not its destruction as the regulated market is still the farmer’s best chance at getting MSP. This is evidenced by Punjab. Won’t rural India be engulfed by corporate markets that will ruin APMC systems and farmers’ rights as the growers will be left unprotected overnight without a transitional and transparent system codified? The Samajwadi Party MP, Professor Ram Gopal Yadav, asked if these reforms can assure the farmers’ good prices? No, because the difference between APMC and corporate markets would be of “BSNL and Jio”, he said. It was Biju Janata Dal MP, Dr Amar Patnaik, who had first warned against “cartelisation.” In effect, the private sector will be a phoenix rising from the ashes of our public infrastructure.

The biggest problem in procurement, as we have seen globally, is grading. Corporations and agro-processors can demand graded products for MSP and if the gunny bag is ungraded, they may not buy at all, or at a reduced price. This is common practice, which results in huge losses for farmers and food security of the world. Traditionally traders graded the produce. With them gone, will farmers bear grading costs? Naturally, if they do, MSP can never be realised.

There are also serious questions on post-harvest infrastructure and warehousing in rural India. Will the farmers, due to bad storage facilities, make distress sales? The new reforms favour the big farmers and agri-businesses but are detrimental for small and marginal farms (below two hectares) that constitute 86.21 per cent of our total land holdings.

Further, once the market forces evolve, unless MSP is made a legal right or Government procurement increases, achieving it will be a challenge. Contract farming is specious. A glimpse into the US model is enough to deduce how the contracting parties (agri-business firms) force the farmers to buy their recommended seeds, fertilisers and other inputs, often from their allied stores or vendors and at their prices. They also force the farmers to buy more equipment, increasing the cost of production each year. If the farmers don’t abide, they don’t buy the produce and legal proceedings follow.

In India, the poultry sector is a good example of how the owners have been reduced to farm hands on their own property. And to take two steps back, PepsiCo filed a case against Gujarat farmers unfairly. PepsiCo has got more flak as many potato farmers committed suicide due to their procurement policies in West Bengal. The stories of contract used to exploit farmers are endless.

The next big problem is no small and marginal farmer has access to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate and District Magistrate. How many of them will be able to go to the already over-burdened official to settle trade disputes? Even their journey for justice will become a nightmare given their literacy levels and manipulation by the bigger parties. The companies or traders will not be criminally liable; this is a regressive step favouring big agri-businesses.

Modi needs to critically think about rising farmer suicides and doubling farmers’ income by 2022. He ought to dispel the farmers’ doubts and insist on specifics and mechanisms like ensuring the retail buyers do not go beneath a cut-off price. Otherwise, the haze of silence can be ominous. One fears the day when the words of Dravidan Munnetra Kazhagam (DMK) MP TKS Elangovan come true — “To sell the farmers themselves as slaves to the big industrial houses... It will kill the farmers and make them a commodity.”

Hasty passage of farm and labour Bills

Given that the putative benefits of big structural reforms such as demonetisation and GST are not within sight, it is difficult to judge the likely impacts of the new farm and labour Bills. These moves will have enormous implications irrespective of whether they have any great merit or not.

What is more important is the timing of these reforms. It is ironic that they come in the middle of a pandemic-hit economy. At a time when the overall national income has already shrunk 24 per cent and the economy faces massive demand compression, people cannot understand the logic of making these hasty moves. Structural reforms should be made when the economic agents are prepared for the change. Also, it is of paramount importance that a democratic Government communicates with people before enacting and enforcing new laws. There is no point in beginning communication exercise after committing the act.

The corporatisation of agriculture and the provision for more flexibility to companies to freely hire and fire workers will adversely affect both farmers and labourers. There is also a greater chance that the cartelised industry giants will dictate the terms in both cases. In that sense, they could still end up being exploited as before. Obviously, these laws are only aimed at benefiting big corporate giants.

Protect the voters

Sir — Dates for the Bihar Assembly elections have been announced with special provisions, keeping in mind the ongoing pandemic. To make sure that the polling doesn’t become a super-spreader event, the Election Commission (EC) has issued a slew of measures. The election will be held in three phases. Polling or paramedical staff will conduct thermal screening of voters at the entry point of each polling station, the guidelines said. They will have more than seven crore single-use gloves for voters to put on before using the electronic voting machine to cast their vote. Over seven lakh units of hand sanitiser and about six lakh personal protective equipment (PPE) kits have also been arranged. For Covid patients and those with high fever, the EC has arranged an extra voting hour under the strict supervision of health authorities.

This will be the first major election to be held in the middle of the worldwide Coronavirus crisis and it is yet to be seen if the above provisions will be enough to keep the voters safe. Bihar has

Political drama

Sir — What started as an investigation into the untimely death of actor Sushant Singh Rajput and the mysterious circumstances under which it happened has meandered into busting the drug racket in Bollywood. Many believe that this will unveil the dark side of the industry but will it? The Narcotics Control Bureau’s investigation doesn’t seem to be much concerned about unearthing the drug nexus but rather hunting down selective names unfriendly to the establishment. This has given the media anchors yet another chance to divert public attention from crucial issues. Increasing COVID-19 cases have been reduced to numbers flashing on one’s television screen, concerns around the economic crisis have been hushed and discussions on the recently passed farm and labour Bills are lost in the din. Rajput’s death was most unfortunate and the truth behind it needs to be exposed but people should not fall prey to the political drama surrounding it.

Bihar elections

Sir — With the dates of the Bihar Assembly elections being announced, the fate of the ruling Janata Dal (United) and the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP)-led Government, headed by Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, will be decided. Under fire for badly handling the Covid outbreak and the returnee migrants, Nitish Kumar might find staying in power rather challenging. This can also mean a transfer of a huge chunk of voters to Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD), which along with the rest of the Opposition bloc, the Congress and smaller allies, faced a humiliating defeat in last year’s parliamentary polls. The stakes are also high for the Congress as the verdict will decide whether the grand old party can improve its tally of 27 legislators.

Mixed feelings and hard reality

It is the best of times, it is the worst of times.
Each day brings forth its old cacophony of contradictory claims and overwhelming statistics

VINAYSHIL GAUTAM

The global pandemic has sired some new phrases and expressions. One of them is “the new normal is the ever-changing normal” and another is “progressive digitisation.” Between “the changing normal” and “progressive digitisation” is endemic anxiety over a situation totally out of our control. One doesn’t know where it began and frankly one doesn’t know where it could end. In the meanwhile, the act of governance of 130 billion people continues to spawn a large number of contradictions. It began with the slogan “jaan hai, toh jahan hai (health is wealth).” All shutters were closed in a matter of hours and events were allowed to run their course. Many in the power circles claimed to be surprised at the mass exodus on foot the lockdown triggered. Teenage daughters and pre-teen sons were seen pedalling their fathers and mothers on bicycles and tri-cycle carts to destinations they thought of as home, hundreds of kilometres away. A child perched on a suitcase on wheels was seen being pulled by a mother on a 700 km-long journey home. The distressing images were so many that even those who sensationalise such things in the media failed to call them “haunting images.”

Some news channels launched a campaign to extend the period of the lockdown when the first three weeks were about to end. The powers that be obliged. The believers celebrated the extension of the lockdown period, which was then prolonged all over again. By the time the actual unlocking process started, many had almost forgotten how to begin again. This time around, the new slogan was “jaan bi, jahaan bi (health as well as wealth).” There were various permutations of the early “un-lockdown.” Inter-State barriers got diluted, inter-district constraints played havoc and many “innovative” constraints surfaced.

Even today, in a city which is the proverbial centre of power, pick up a phone and call a landline of the metropolitan telephone service. The ring is preceded by a recorded voice message, which when translated into English, goes something like this: “In the entire country, the process of un-lockdown has begun. In such circumstances, move out of the house only when it is totally necessary ...” The political masters proclaim that the “un-lockdown” phase is necessary to encourage economic activity. One is not quite clear how such telephonic alert on stirring out of the house would encourage economic activity. When this question was posed to the head of an information technology company, he chuckled and said, “Surely this is to encourage online business!” Pointing out that internet capacities are stretched to the limit, several communication platforms have drafted their amateurish connectivity regulations. This is something few have patience with. The endless webinars often get interrupted and the screen blinks that the “internet connectivity of xyz is weak.”

Undeterred, the economically weaker sections, desperate to keep the learning of their kids alive, scout around for second hand smartphones. To borrow from a much-celebrated English novel: “People were all going to heaven and all of them were going the other way. It is the best of times, it is the worst of times.” Each day brings forth its old cacophony of contradictory claims and overwhelming statistics. One news channel proclaimed that 17 per cent of the world’s total cases of Covid are in India — among the highest figures countrywise. Practically no virus-detection test claims to be definitive. Being positive needs an interpretation on where you could stay to get cured. Being negative leaves open the possibility of you still being infected. A statistician commented that a similar situation was reported 100 years ago when the Spanish Flu struck Mumbai and subsequently the rest of India. Indeed, the colonisers were to “blame” for that sorry state of affairs. After so much fanfare over “the great revolution” the Indian healthcare system has undergone, the tally of victims today remains similar in global percentages to that in the times of the Spanish Flu. In the meanwhile, one witnesses a spate of policy reforms in education, administration, maritime-related matters and of course agriculture. Each intervention threatens a “new dawn.” Believing in it is a great source of joy. One may suffer from COVID-19 or simple pharyngitis. One may or may not have access to a simple medical advice, which may or may not be clear or effective, but the sheer joy of living in such “pulsating digital times” is surely a “unique” experience.

In the meanwhile, a few business houses move from being successful to being even more successful. Mandis to ports are variously covered. We should be “grateful” their enterprises keep the wheels of the Indian economy lubricated. That apart, the poor pensioner — especially if he is on Government benefits — has not had his pension revised for several years since the last Finance Commission while other groups of employees have raked in their increments. Yet in the true Indian spirit, we firmly believe that “we shall overcome.”

Bills to grow farmers’ income

Reforms will have a net positive impact as the agricultural sector moves from a subsidy-centric to a market-oriented approach, encouraging the agripreneurial aspirations of the growers

BINDU DALMIA

Tough times are testing the most resilient of leaders globally. Despite the nation being confronted with serial adversities, Modi 2.0 retains and compounds the Prime Minister’s political capital by powering on with the reforms agenda, regardless of the clamour by “compulsive contrarians”, as the late Arun Jaitley referred to the Opposition.

Since the lockdown, the Centre has pressed ahead with a series of incremental reforms: From the Atmanirbhar series to the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020 and the trilogy of agriculture reforms. Then there are the three new Bills intended to consolidate social security for migrant labourers, which will impact 80 per cent of the population employed in the informal sector. The series of post-pandemic legislations cannot be viewed in silos but must be seen as a set of structural and incremental reforms aimed at rebooting the economy and improving the ease of doing business (EODB) for farmers.

The post-Corona “new normal” challenges every vector of economic growth to optimise and converge resource efficiencies. This is so that each vertical of the economy turns self-sustaining and profitable. Agriculture is one vertical that has been constantly dependent on subsidies, doles and welfare. This has been a constant drain on the exchequer as it was compelled to fund an uneconomic sector. To make matters worse, the farm sector delivered only subsistence-level earnings to the farmers, a point validated by the NSSO (National Sample Survey Office) estimates which show that rural indebtedness escalated by 12 per cent between 1993 to 2013.

Mitigating agrarian distress requires reducing dependency on cultivation as a source of livelihood and moving towards value-added manufacturing. Because, a whopping 58 per cent of our workforce is dependent on farm income, but contributes only 17 per cent to India’s Gross Domestic Product (GDP). At present, agriculture can only deliver a growth rate of 3.4 per cent per annum, whereas we need the sector to increase its productivity potential to at least 10 per cent in order to lift rural India out of poverty. Increasing per capita earnings can only happen through expansion of economic activity by firing equally on all four cylinders of the economy: Agriculture, manufacturing, exports and services.

Essentially, the intent of any reform must be gauged by the “degree of inclusivity embedded in its blueprint.” Considering that 500 million of our workforce is engaged in farming, the landmark reforms will have a net positive impact as the agricultural sector moves from a subsidy-centric to a market-oriented approach, encouraging the agripreneurial aspirations of the growers.

The agri-reforms, though politically sensitive, were much needed after 73 years of Independence in order to transit towards a “One Nation, One Market.” Each farm Bill enables this transition differently. But this article specifically focusses on the Farmers (Empowerment and Protection) Agreement on Price Assurance and Farm Services Bill, 2020, which will increase efficiencies in the low-profit agriculture sector by opening it up to contract farming.

Why is corporatising agriculture a farmer-friendly reform? India, having matured to a food-surplus economy, is today more in need of focussing on “surplus-management” to decrease wastage. This will increase farmers’ profitability by ramping up cold storage facilities and food-processing infrastructure that will lead to value-added manufacturing. The annual agri-wastage is estimated at ₹92,000 crore, so corporatisation of the sector will enable building a seamless farm-to-consumer supply chain.

“EVENTUALLY, THE CENTRE MUST AIM AT BUILDING CONSENSUS BY ASSUAGING APPREHENSIONS OF FARMERS. THOUGH AGRICULTURE IS NOT IN THE CONCURRENT LIST AND REMAINS A STATE SUBJECT, AS THE NEW LAWS DEAL WITH INTER-STATE TRADE, IT BECOMES A CENTRAL SUBJECT. THIS SHOULD HOLD UP TO LEGAL SCRUTINY. THE CENTRE IS THEN WELL WITHIN ITS RIGHTS TO ENACT LAWS AND NO STATE GOVERNMENT THAT CHALLENGED THIS PROVISION HAS WON IN THE PAST”

Contrary to allegations that the legislation is loaded in favour of corporates, I wish to substantiate through empirical evidence how corporatising the sector benefited farmers. It profited growers by underwriting their seasonal produce through a negotiated pre-fixed price with corporates that offered income surety. It also encouraged a shift from mono-cropping to crop diversification, bought in new technologies and helped in financing and modernisation. The best Indian examples of corporatising farming are seen from the outcomes of the Amul paradigm, the e-chaupals and the Patanjali models of sourcing from farmers’ collectives.

The active involvement of farmers in shared initiatives creates a sense of co-ownership as seen in the successful prototype of the Amul cooperative which was legendary in leading the White Revolution. Today, India is the largest milk producer, and Amul is the largest food product FMCG outfit with a ₹52,000 crore turnover. The winning philosophy of Amul’s strategy was that it treated the dairy farmer as a stakeholder by offering him higher prices for the produce while purchasing, yet sold it to the consumers at marginal profits.

I am guilty of being politically incorrect by validating another example on how pursuing a successful Chinese template can benefit India, too. In 2016, the State Council of China officially made rural e-commerce a national strategy in its anti-poverty drive, which decreased poverty rates from 10.2 per cent to 1.7 per cent in the last six years. And one of the ways it achieved this was by uplinking farmers onto Alibaba’s e-commerce platforms of the Taobao Village.

The Bill on contract farming is a win-win for both suppliers and marketers. The collectives gain by tapping into multiple synergies derived from the corporates’ ability to support post-harvest logistics, processing, packaging, branding, retailing and their access to a wide distribution network. Marginal and small farmers own less than five hectares of land, so when they form collectives, the aggregation favours regular income, and, in fact, serves to enhance their collective economic and bargaining power.

Narendra Modi had promised to double farmers’ income by 2022. The status quo in their earnings will remain if this incremental reform is not translated into action. The challenge is doubling farmers’ income without unduly raising consumer prices, even as input costs continuously increase. To boost profitability, farmers need the skill sets at the command of corporates who have deeper insights into the ever-changing consumer needs.

To cater to the altered behavioural profile of the post-contagion consumers mean that they now have diminished purchasing power, yet seek superior nutritional benefits, better hygiene and contactless doorstep delivery. Also, the share of cereals in middle-income households is reducing in favour of fruits, vegetables and milk. Demand for value-added processed foods is on the rise. Increasing health and wellness awareness, too, is generating demand for a wider variety of foodgrains. This calls for a fundamental transformation for the farmer, from selling whatever was his traditional produce to adapting to what the consumer actually wants.

When demand-driven value chains enter the sector, they bring enormous benefits to the growers as they are able to align production with market demands. Because, at the end of the day, increased crop productivity alone is not sufficient to raise farmer incomes if market needs do not support such production.

Eventually, the Centre must aim at building consensus by assuaging apprehensions of farmers, who are being misled through fear-mongering by vested interests, lest they succeed in sabotaging a progressive legislation, as in the case of aborting the Land Acquisition Bill. Though agriculture is not in the Concurrent List and remains a State subject, as the new laws deal with inter-State trade, it becomes a Central subject. This should hold up to legal scrutiny. The Centre is then well within its rights to enact laws and no State Government that challenged this provision has won in the past.

Besides, over time, once farming turns into a lucrative industry, it holds the potential of widening the taxpayer base and could then be considered for being transferred to the Union list. The Centre should in fact aim at taxing farmers thus far exempt from taxation. Especially the rich growers with over 10 acres of land. A fair yardstick of evaluating taxation herein would be to take three-year averages, as there are annual variations in produce due to climate-risks.

Ultimately, India must harness the potential to transform into a mega food processing hub by optimising efficiencies, as the farmer, too, aspires to move up in Maslow’s hierarchy of needs and go beyond the Congress era slogan of “roti, kapra aur makaan (food, clothing and housing)” to partake in a thriving modern economy.

When the ugly past comes knocking

People wonder how did Pakistani society come to accept for 11 years the draconian laws and ordinances that Zia passed during his rule?

NADEEM PARACHA

Recently, when social media in Pakistan exploded, condemning the rape of a woman on the Lahore motorway and the insensitive words used by Lahore’s Capital City Police Officer (CCPO) for the victim, there were also folks who suggested that the punishments for zina (rape and premarital sex) introduced in 1979 by the Zia-ul-Haq dictatorship, were successful in curbing sexual assaults in Pakistan. It wasn’t hard for those who disagreed with this perception to produce facts and figures to negate this claim.

But this piece is not about that. Instead, it is a response to those who were left baffled after learning the dynamics and technicalities of Zia’s laws in this context and inquired how society had accepted such laws for 11 years — the number of years the dictator General Zia was in power.

First of all, since women were most affected by these laws, which actually saw scores of them ending up in jail while their tormentors were set free, there was constant resistance from various women’s organisations against Zia. In fact, bodies such as the Women’s Action Forum (WAF) found themselves pushed on to the frontlines of the resistance, after many mainstream political outfits opposed to Zia were neutralised through arrests, jail sentences, disappearances, torture and exile.

Zia extracted power from above by being part of the military establishment and through the support that he received from the US and Saudi Arabia. To draw political support from below, he nourished those segments and constituencies that had been developed and activated by religious parties during the 1977 movement against the ZA Bhutto Government from 1972-77.

One can assume that had he failed to cultivate support from these segments, he would have struggled to introduce the series of controversial laws that his regime imposed in the name of faith.

Nevertheless, in 1988 when he passed away, he left behind a country wracked by escalating Sunni-Shia strife, the growth of militant sectarian and “Islamist” outfits whose leaders were brought into the mainstream to preach and practise armed jihad, a rise in hate crimes against minority sects and other religions, an onslaught on women’s rights and a generation of young Pakistanis ravaged by drug addiction, gun violence and embroiled in deadly ethnic and sectarian conflicts. Corruption in State and Government institutions, too, increased when the regime repealed anti-corruption laws enacted in 1973. Zia introduced “development funds” for members of his hand-picked national and provincial Assemblies and wrote off bank loans taken by his supporters. Many senior officers of the armed forces and members of Zia’s Cabinet were reported to have been involved in the narcotics trade and money laundering scams.

So why did so many Pakistanis go along with the charade of a regime which promised them a “new Pakistan” by claiming that it was going to finally create an “Islamic State” that it insisted was what Pakistan’s founders had been committed to deliver?

An increase in the rate of literacy from 1972 onwards meant that more urban Pakistanis were exposed to the writings and theories of scholars operating outside the intellectual and political realm of the “Muslim Modernism” of the country’s founders. By the late 1970s, they had begun to question the sincerity and feasibility of the modernist project. Because of the impact of the loss of East Pakistan in 1971, many tended to agree with the anti-modernists that the project had been engineered to keep an economic and political elite in power. An increase in the literacy rate saw young wo/men from the country’s small towns and villages furthering their studies in colleges and universities of main urban areas. When they arrived to take their place in educational institutions in cities such as Karachi and Lahore, the ethos of their traditional upbringing felt alienated and even threatened by the vocal Left and liberal groups on campuses. Consequently, they were embraced by Right-wing religious outfits.

Many of these students would go on to graduate and settle in cities and become part of urban Pakistan’s emerging new petty bourgeoisie and trader classes. What’s more, when these classes came out on the streets during the 1977 anti-Bhutto movement, they were backed by the industrialist and business classes, who were repulsed by the “Left-leaning” Bhutto regime. The movement’s slogan was Shariah law. So in Zia’s promise of an Islamic system, they could identify with what they believed was their true heritage and calling, whereas the industrialists and the businessmen yearned for a strong ruler who would reset the country’s economic direction back to what it had been before Bhutto’s chaotic “Socialism.”

According to Riaz Hassan in the anthology, Pakistan at Seventy, an increase in the urban population also had important social and political consequences. A large segment of the increasing population led a precarious existence, subjected to all kinds of hardships. This frustration generated a considerable amount of disillusionment with modernist governments and their policies of economic and social development. The persistent insecurity of urban existence over the years resulted in the emergence of various religious movements. The number of mosques in the cities multiplied and, through them, religious influences further permeated social life. This was shaped into a powerful segment and constituency by the religious parties and then nourished and expanded by the Zia dictatorship.

These segments provided considerable support for Zia’s so-called “Islamisation” process. Even though those protesting against Zia’s programmes and laws often managed to embarrass the regime by getting their point of view published in some Western newspapers, most human and civil rights activists and political workers went unheard even in the most liberal and democratic European countries.

This was because of the fact that much of the efforts of the media in these countries and of their governments were focussed on the civil war in Afghanistan. The US and its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) largely looked the other way when the Zia regime was using religion to commit open human rights violations and intense political repression. The most the West was willing to offer at the time was political asylum to those thrown out or volunteering to move out of Pakistan because of the oppressive atmosphere here. For the US and its European allies, Zia was too important an asset to upset in their Cold War against “Soviet expansionism.”

These are some of the prominent factors behind the dictatorship’s success in unleashing laws and Ordinances which, today, would be almost impossible to enact without being vehemently challenged within and outside the country. However, attempts to retain and re-ignite them are still very much part of Pakistan’s political playbook even today.

FIRST PRESIDENTIAL DEBATE

How Trump, Biden are preparing

Washington: Ahead of the first debate-stage matchup between President Donald Trump and his Democratic challenger Joe Biden, each campaign is promising a stark contrast in policy, personality and preparation.

Trump has decided to skip any formal preparation. And while Biden's team believes the significance of the debate may be exaggerated, the Democratic nominee has been aggressively preparing to take on the president.

Biden's campaign has been holding mock debate sessions featuring Bob Bauer, a senior Biden adviser and former White House general counsel, playing the role of Trump, according to a person with direct knowledge of the preparations who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss internal strategy. Bauer has not actually donned a Trump costume in line with Trump stand-ins from previous years, but he is representing their style and expected strategy.

"I'm sure the president will throw everything he can at (Biden). My guess is that they're preparing for that — bombarding him with insults and weird digressions," said Jay Carney, a former aide to Biden and President Barack Obama.

"I think it's an important moment — I think it's really important for President Trump, because the direction of this election has been pretty stable for a long time now, and he needs to shake it up as any candidate would who's behind," Carney added.

"The question is, can that work?" Trump and Biden are scheduled to meet on the debate stage for the first time Tuesday night at Case Western Reserve University and the Cleveland Clinic in Cleveland, Ohio. The 90-minute event moderated by Fox News host Chris Wallace is the first of three scheduled presidential debates. Vice President Mike Pence and California Sen. Kamala Harris, Biden's running mate, will also debate in October.

For some, the debates represent the most important moments in the 2020 campaign's closing days, a rare opportunity for millions of voters to compare the candidates' policies and personalities side-by-side on prime-time television. Trump has been trailing Biden in the polls for the entire year, a reality that gives the president an urgent incentive to change the direction of the contest on national television if he can.

Others, including those close to Biden's campaign, do not expect the debates to fundamentally change the race no matter what happens, given voters' daily struggles with the pandemic and the economy. They also point to high-profile debates in past elections thought to be game-changing moments at the time but that ultimately had little lasting effect.

Those with knowledge of Biden's preparations suggest he will not take the fight to Trump if he can avoid it. But on Saturday, at least, he was on the attack when he discussed his strategy on MSNBC. "I'm prepared to go out and make my case as to why I think he's failed and why I think the answers I have to proceed will help the American people, the American economy and make us safer internationally," Biden said, arguing that Trump won't persuade voters with broadsides because "the people know the president is a liar." He also compared Trump to Adolf Hitler's propaganda minister, Joseph Goebbels, saying, "He's sort of like Goebbels."

You say the lie long enough, keep repeating, repeating, repeating, it becomes common knowledge," Biden said he doesn't expect Trump to articulate a detailed vision for a second term. "He doesn't know how to debate the facts, because he's not that smart," Biden continued. "He doesn't know that many facts. He doesn't know much about foreign policy. He doesn't know much about domestic policy. He doesn't know much about the detail."

While Biden has said he will try to be a fact checker of sorts on stage, the Democrat is being advised to avoid direct confrontations and instead redirect the conversation to more familiar campaign themes of unity and issues that matter most to voters: the economy, health care and the pandemic.

"Arguing over facts, litigating whether what he's saying is accurate, that is not winning to Biden," said Jen Psaki, a former Obama aide who is close to Biden's team. "This is an opportunity to speak directly to the American people. His objective should be to speak directly to them, but not be pulled in by Trump. That is hard." Trump has not been doing any formal preparation, according to aides and allies who spoke on the condition of anonymity to discuss private conversations.

No set has been constructed and aides refused to say whether anyone is playing Biden. Trump, instead, has maintained that the best preparation is doing his day job — particularly his frequent and often contentious interactions with reporters. White House aides also scheduled an ABC town hall earlier this month to expose Trump to real voter questions for the first time in months in preparation for the second debate.

Privately some aides and allies are worried that Trump's lack of formal preparation will lead him to fall into the same hubris trap as other incumbents in their first general election debate. Obama, for example, famously struggled in his first matchup against Mitt Romney in 2012. AP

He's like Goebbels: Biden compares Donald to Nazi propagandist

AFP ■ WASHINGTON

US Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden said he expects "personal attacks and lies" from Donald Trump in their first televised debate on Tuesday, comparing the Republican president to Nazi propaganda chief Joseph Goebbels.

"It is going to be difficult," the former vice president acknowledged in an interview broadcast Saturday on MSNBC.

"My guess is, it's going to be just straight attack. They're going to be mostly personal. That's the only thing he knows how to do," he said of Trump.

The debate Tuesday in Cleveland, Ohio will be the first time the 77-year-old veteran politician has faced the president he has promised to unseat. The men will meet again for two more debates before the November 3 election.

But some of his supporters fear that Biden, who is prone to blunders and slip-ups, may waver in these televised duels under the rhetorical blows of the Republican billionaire — who is also prone to blunders and slip-ups, but who is far more aggressive.

"He doesn't know how to debate the facts. He's not that smart," Biden also claimed. "He doesn't know much about foreign policy, he doesn't know much about domestic policy. He doesn't know much about the detail."

As a result, Biden predicted, "it'll be mostly personal attacks and lies; but I think the American people are on to him."

Trump himself never ceases to mock what he says is his rival's lack of dynamism, nicknaming him "Sleepy Joe" and attacking his mental acuity.

"He's sort of like

Goebbels," Biden said. "You say the lie long enough, keep repeating it, repeating it, repeating it, it becomes common knowledge."

"It's not like it's going to come as a surprise. And so I'm prepared to go out and make my case as to why I think he's failed and why I think the answers I have to proceed will help the American people and the American economy, and make us safer internationally."

Biden urges Senate not to confirm Trump's court pick before polls

Washington, United States: Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden on Saturday called on the US Senate to refrain from confirming President Donald Trump's Supreme Court nominee until after the November 3 election.

"The Senate should not act on this vacancy until after the American people select their next president and the next Congress," Biden said, just moments after Trump announced his nomination of Amy Coney Barrett to replace the late liberal justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Trump predicted that

Barrett, a staunch conservative, will get a "very quick" confirmation in the Republican-controlled senate. AFP

Fighting erupts between Armenia, Azerbaijan, 16 killed

Yerevan (Armenia): Fighting erupted anew on Sunday between Armenian and Azerbaijani forces over the disputed separatist region of Nagorno-Karabakh and a top territorial official said 16 people were killed and more than 100 wounded, while Azerbaijan's president said his military has suffered losses.

Armenia also claimed that two Azerbaijani helicopters were shot down and three Azerbaijani tanks were hit by artillery, but Azerbaijan's defense ministry rejected that claim.

Heavy fighting broke out in the morning in the region that lies within Azerbaijan but has been under the control of ethnic Armenian forces backed by Armenia since 1994 at the end of a separatist war. It was not immediately clear what sparked the fighting, the heaviest since clashes in July killed 16 people from both sides.

Nagorno-Karabakh authorities reported that shelling hit the region's capital of Stepanakert and the towns of Martakert and Martuni. Armenian Defense Ministry spokesman Artsrun Hovhannisyan also said Azerbaijani shelling hit within Armenian territory near the town of Vardenis.

Artur Sarkisian, deputy head of the Nagorno-Karabakh army, said that 16 people were killed and more than 100 wounded. It wasn't immediately clear if the figure included both soldiers and civilians. Earlier, the Armenian human rights ombudsman said a woman and child had been killed in the shelling.

Another Armenian Defense Ministry spokeswoman, Shushan Stepanyan, said "the Armenian side" shot down two helicopters and hit three tanks. Azerbaijani President Ilham Aliyev ordered martial law be imposed in some regions of the country and called for a curfew in major cities.

In a televised address to the nation, Aliyev said that "there are losses among the Azerbaijani forces and the civilian population as a result of the Armenian bombardment," but didn't give further details. He also claimed that "many units of the enemy's military equipment have been destroyed."

Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov "is conducting intensive contacts in order to induce the parties to cease fire and start negotiations to stabilize the situation," Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Maria Zakharova said.

Albanian Prime Minister Edi Rama, chairman of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, called on the sides to stop fighting. The long-unsuccessful negotiations for resolving the territory's status has been conducted under OSCE auspices. AP

S Korea returns Korean War remains of 117 Chinese soldiers

Beijing: The remains of 117 Chinese soldiers who died in the 1950-53 Korean War were returned to China on Sunday in an annual repatriation delayed this year by the coronavirus outbreak.

South Korea handed over the remains at a ceremony at Incheon airport outside Seoul, and a Chinese military transport plane flew them to Shenyang, a northeastern Chinese city near the North Korean border.

Chinese soldiers fought on the North Korean side against U.S.-led forces in the South during the war on the Korean Peninsula.

Most of the 117 remains were found in the Demilitarized Zone that separates North and South Korea. It was the seventh annual repatriation, and the largest since the 437 returned in the first one in 2014. In all, the remains of 716 Chinese soldiers have been sent back.

This year's return, originally planned for the spring, was postponed for several months because of the spread of COVID-19. AP

North Korea accuses South of intrusion to find dead official

Seoul: North Korea accused South Korea of sending ships across the disputed sea boundary to find the body of a South Korean official recently killed by North Korean troops, warning Sunday the intrusion could escalate tensions. South Korea denied the accusation.

"We urge the South side to immediately halt the intrusion across the military demarcation line in the West Sea that may lead to escalation of tensions," the official Korean Central News Agency said. "It arouses our due vigilance as it may lead to another awful incident." Along with its denial, South Korea proposed a joint investigation to resolve discrepancies in each country's account of the South Korean official's death last week.

Officials in Seoul have said the 47-year-old was likely attempting to defect before North Korean troops aboard a boat fatally shot him and burned his body.

According to Seoul, North Korea on Friday sent a message including a rare apology by leader Kim Jong Un for the shooting death of the official, who was found floating on an object in its waters.

The North Korean message distributed by South Korea said its troops shot the official because he attempted to flee after refusing to answer to questions. It said North Korea maintained troops were unable to find the official's body and burned the object he was floating on in line with anti-coronavirus rules.

Sunday's KCNA report confirmed North Korea notified South Korea on Friday with its account of the incident, but it didn't say whether the notification included an apology from Kim.

South Korea's military and coast guard responded to North Korea's claim of a border incursion by saying their ships and aircraft have been searching waters south of the boundary since Friday in case the official's body drifts back.

South Korean President Moon Jae-in met with his National Security Council on Sunday. Moon's office said the council viewed Kim's apology positively and proposed a joint investigation with North Korea to find out what happened to the official.

Senior presidential official Suh Choo-suk said South Korea also wants North Korea to restore a suspended military hotline between the nations to facilitate communications. AP

100,000 march in Belarus capital on 50th day of protests

Kyiv: About 100,000 demonstrators marched in the Belarusian capital calling for the authoritarian president's ouster, some wearing cardboard crowns to ridicule him, on Sunday as the protests that have rocked the country marked their 50th consecutive day.

Protests also took place in nine other cities, underlining the wide extent of dismay and anger with President Alexander Lukashenko, who has stifled opposition and independent news media during 26 years in power.

The protest wave began after the Aug. 9 presidential election that officials said gave Lukashenko a sixth term in office with a crushing 80 per cent of the vote. The opposition and some poll workers say the results were manipulated.

Lukashenko has defied calls for him to step down and many prominent members of a council formed with the aim of arranging a transfer of power have been arrested or have fled the country. The protests have persisted despite the daily detentions of demonstrators. AP

Macron says longtime Belarus leader 'must go'

Paris: France is stepping up the pressure on Belarus' long-time leader Alexander Lukashenko, with President Emmanuel Macron telling a prominent French weekly that "Lukashenko must go."

The European Union said Thursday it does not recognize Lukashenko as president of Belarus because of large-scale protests by Belarusians who question the results of last month's presidential election that Lukashenko claims he overwhelmingly won.

Opposition members and some poll workers in Belarus say the vote was rigged.

Ahead of a trip Monday to Lithuania and Latvia, Macron was quoted in Sunday's Journal du Dimanche newspaper as saying "it's clear that Lukashenko must go."

"What's happening in Belarus is a crisis of power, an authoritarian power that can't manage to accept the logic of democracy and is clinging on by force," the newspaper quotes Macron as saying.

In a speech Saturday to the virtual U.N. General Assembly, Belarus' foreign minister warned Western nations against interfering or imposing sanctions over the country's disputed presidential election and the government's violent crackdown on protesters. AP

Police arrest dozens during unauthorised Maryland car rally

Ocean City (US): More than 100 people have been arrested on criminal and traffic offenses during an unauthorised car rally in a Maryland city, where confrontations between participants and police were captured on videos.

The Baltimore Sun reports that police from neighbouring jurisdictions helped Ocean City police officers with crowd control at the H2oi" rally in the beach town.

Ocean City Police Chief Ross Buzzuro said in a statement Sunday that the rally participants came to the city "to disrupt, destroy and disrespect our community and our law enforcement officers." "This is not a car show and the majority of these visitors are not car enthusiasts," he said.

"Our policing philosophy is to be friendly, fair and firm. Unfortunately, the disorderly behaviour and unruly crowds left no choice but to shift our philosophy and take additional steps to protect our officers and our community." AP

A video posted online shows an officer from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Police grabbing a man walking in a crosswalk and forcing him to the ground. A department spokeswoman said the man was arrested for disorderly conduct and that police were "gathering more information" about whether the officer followed the proper protocol.

Ocean City Mayor Rick Meehan has vowed to end the annual event. To deter people from coming, legislators allowed the city to create a zone with reduced speed limits and increased fines for infractions such as racing, skidding and wheel-spinning. AP

Final whale saved from grim Australia mass stranding

Sydney: A lone whale was rescued from among hundreds of carcasses Sunday, taking to 110 the number of creatures that survived a mass stranding in southern Australia.

The country's largest-ever mass stranding saw around 470 pilot whales become stuck in a remote harbour on Tasmania's rugged western seaboard last week, sparking a major effort to save the animals.

It was "absolutely remarkable" another whale was found alive six days after the pod was first discovered, a Tasmania environment department spokeswoman told AFP, adding that it had been taken back out to sea.

More than 100 rescuers toiled for days in chilly waters, but many volunteers and conservationists have now packed up as efforts turned to disposing of the remaining carcasses.

"There has been a tremendous team effort and this combined commitment has allowed us to get as many whales as we can back out to sea," Parks and Wildlife Service manager Rob Buck said of the "complex rescue."

With more than 300 carcasses spread across a 10-kilometre area (about 6 miles), authorities shifted their focus Sunday to a mass sea burial.

Boats have begun towing the dead whales into the open ocean, where they will be released over several days.

Authorities have warned that more whales could be found in the area, with some animals likely to become beached for a second time.

The causes of mass strandings remain unknown, but some experts have suggested the pod may have gone off track after feeding close to the shoreline or by following one or two whales that strayed. AFP

UN: Yemen's warring sides to swap more than 1,000 prisoners

Cairo: The United Nations said Yemen's warring sides agreed Sunday to exchange more than 1,000 prisoners, marking the first phase of a release plan reached earlier this year.

The UN mission in Yemen said the internationally recognized government that was driven from the capital six years ago and the Houthis rebels agreed "to immediately release a first group of 1,081 conflict-related detainees and prisoners, in accordance with the lists of agreed-upon names."

The prisoner swap deal was seen as a breakthrough during 2018 peace talks in Sweden. Both parties agreed then to several confidence-building measures, including a cease-fire in the strategic port city of Hodeida.

Implementation of the tentative peace plan, however, stumbled amid ongoing military offensives and distrust between the two sides. The conflict in the Arab world's poorest country erupted in 2014, when the Iran-allied Houthis seized the capital and much of the country's north. A Saudi-led coalition, determined to restore President Abed Rabu Mansour Hadi's government, launched a military intervention months later.

"Today is an important day for over a thousand families who can expect to welcome back their loved ones hopefully very soon," said the U.N. Special Envoy for Yemen, Martin Griffiths. Sunday's deal came at the conclusion of a week-long meeting in Glion, Switzerland that was co-chaired by Griffiths' office and the International Committee of the Red Cross.

The UN said the deal was built on a plan that both sides agreed on in February. Griffiths urged both parties to "move forward immediately with the release and to spare no effort in building upon this momentum to swiftly agree to releasing more detainees." Fabrizio Carboni, ICRC's director for the Middle East, urged the parties to swiftly work to move the agreement "from signatures on paper to reality on the ground." AP

Pradhan calls for switching to 100% clean fuels

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

On the occasion of World Tourism Day, Oil Minister Dharmendra Pradhan on Sunday urged for switching prime tourist destinations to 100 per cent clean fuel.

He was addressing a virtual meet on 'tourism and rural development' along with Tourism Minister Prahlad Singh Patel, an official statement said here.

Pradhan commended the Ministry of Tourism for its novel initiative 'Dekho Apna Desh' that promotes and encourages local heritage and tourist sites.

He spoke about India's rich culture, history and ancient architectural marvels which offer immense scope for the growth of the tourism industry.

Tourism industry, he said, offers immense job opportunities and called for weaving sustainability with tourism and collaborating to switch prime tourist cities to 100 per cent clean fuels, which will further help protect monuments and ensure a cleaner environment for tourists.

'Economic disruption to deter RBI from quantifying FY21 growth forecast'

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

The dynamic economic upheaval unleashed by Covid-19 pandemic might hinder the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) from giving a pin-pointed growth as well as inflation forecast in the upcoming monetary policy report, experts opined.

The existing legislations mandate the RBI to come out with a growth and inflation forecast twice in an interval of six-months in the monetary policy report.

Expectedly, the report is slated to be issued with the upcoming policy review on October 1. The report was last issued in February.

"Given the continuing uncertainty on the economic revival, it is difficult to say whether RBI will come out with clear forecasts on the GDP print for FY21," said Suman Chowdhury Chief Analytical Officer at Acuite Ratings and Research.

"It has, however already highlighted the risks of a material contraction in economic output in the previous MPC report. As regards inflation, it is likely to reiterate its expectation of a moderation in the CPI inflation over the next few months due to lesser supply constraints, higher crop output in kharif season and also the favourable base effect kicking in."

According to Brickwork Ratings said: "With uncertainty regarding the pandemic looming large, the RBI may not provide a GDP forecast for FY21 in the upcoming MPC meeting. As in the previous statements, the RBI may continue to talk about economic contraction without quantifying the magnitude."

"Given the continued surge in Covid-19 cases in the country's major hubs, which is hindering the recovery process, we expect the Q2FY21 GDP to shrink by 13.5 per cent."

In April, the RBI's

Monetary Policy Report said that the global economy may slump into recession in 2020.

The report noted that the the coronavirus pandemic, lockdown and the expected contraction in global output will weigh heavily on the growth outlook. The actual outturn would depend upon the speed with which the outbreak is contained and economic activity returns to normalcy, said the Monetary Policy Report for April 2020.

As per the report, due to the highly fluid circumstances in which incoming data produce shifts in the outlook for growth on a daily basis, forecasts for real GDP growth in India are not provided in the Monetary Policy Report, awaiting a clear fix on the intensity, spread and duration of Covid-19.

It is widely expected that persistently high inflation fanned in part due to supply side disruptions along with seasonal factors will deter the

Vodafone Idea starts upgrading 3G users to 4G in key markets

FIANS ■ MUMBAI

Vodafone Idea Limited (VIL) has started upgrading its 3G users to 4G in key markets.

In a statement on Sunday, the company said that it has substantially enhanced 4G capacity by consolidating the Vodafone and Idea networks and deployment of latest technologies enabling it to upgrade large chunks of 3G spectrum to 4G."VIL will now be able to offer faster 4G data speeds to its 3G users on the Vi GIGAnet network. The company's enterprise customers currently using 3G based services will be upgraded to 4G and 4G based IoT applications and services, in a phased manner," it said.

While the company will continue to offer basic voice services to its 2G users, 3G data users will gradually be upgraded to 4G in a phased manner across all markets.

According to Ravinder Takkar, MD & CEO, Vodafone Idea Limited, "With highest quantum of spectrum in the country and large part of it already reformed for 4G, VIL is now best placed to upgrade our 2G/3G users to high speed 4G data services."

"As our integration nears completion, we have already expanded our 4G coverage to 1 billion Indian population who can now avail faster data services pan-India. We believe our latest move will further catalyse the digital revolution in the country," he said.

To switch to the high speed 4G GIGAnet network, 3G users will need to upgrade to Vi 4G SIM card and 4G smartphone. The company offers a range of bundled offers to upgrade to 4G, it said.

Diesel prices down for 3rd straight day

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

Diesel prices continued to dip for the third straight day on Sunday on the back of subdued crude oil prices globally.

In the national capital, diesel was priced at ₹70.80 per litre, 14 paise down from ₹70.94 a litre on Saturday.

Similarly, its price fell in the other metros as well. In Mumbai, Chennai and Kolkata, the fuel was sold at ₹77.22, ₹76.27 and ₹74.32 respectively on Sunday, compared to the previous levels of ₹77.36, ₹76.40 and ₹74.46 per litre. Oil marketing companies, however, kept petrol prices unchanged for the fifth consecutive day. In Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai and Kolkata, petrol was priced at ₹81.06, ₹87.74, ₹84.14 and ₹82.59 per litre respectively.

The recent fuel price fall is on the back of expectation of slowing demand for oil globally as a second wave of coronavirus spike threatens further derailment of economic activity.

Brent crude price is also subdued around $42 a barrel.

For domestic auto fuel consumers, the price fall has been a bonanza amid the current tough economic conditions. With the price cut on Sunday, diesel has now become cheaper by ₹2.76 per litre in Delhi this month.

NTPC invites bids for biomass pellet procurement

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

State-run NTPC Ltd has invited bids for procurement of biomass pellets for its various thermal plants on domestic competitive basis (DCB) as part of its endeavour to reduce burning of crop residue on farmlands that cause air pollution.

The power producer has envisaged consumption of five million tonnes of pellets in the current year at its 17 its power plants including NTPC Korba (Chhattisgarh), NTPC Farakka (West Bengal), NTPC Dadri (Uttar Pradesh), NTPC Kudgi (Karnataka), NTPC Sipat (Chhattisgarh), and NTPC Rihand (Uttar Pradesh).

NTPC had first undertaken this initiative on pilot basis in 2017 for biomass co-firing by replacing some of the coal with pellet-based fuel at NTPC Dadri, Uttar Pradesh. Post successful implementation, it now plans to replicate the model in 17 of its plants.

The invitation for bids would be done through e-tendering at SRM Portal. The bidding process will be followed by the 'Single Stage - Two Envelope' Bidding System.

"NTPC is confident that co-firing will help create large scale rural employment opportunities in processing as well as supply chain for biomass," the company said in a statement on Sunday. The power producer will give preference to bids from suppliers from Punjab and Haryana.

NTPC had fired 100 tonnes of agro residue-based pellets at Dadri, Uttar Pradesh in 2017. The test-firing was carried out in four phases, with gradual increase in percentage of firing from 2.5 per cent to 10 per cent along with coal. Till date, the company has fired more than 7,000 tonnes of agro residue pellets. As per estimates, about 145 MMTPA of crop residue remains unutilised and most of it is burnt in India in the open fields, creating severe air pollution that leads to health issues. Open burning of agro residue is considered a major contributor to the surge in PM 2.5 in northern India in the post-harvesting season.

"With its gross calorific value comparable to the bituminous coal, the power generation potential of the entire 145 MMTPA biomass burnt through co-firing in coal-based power plants is equivalent to 28,000-30,000 MW of round-the-clock generation of renewable power which can produce the same amount of electrical energy as can be produced from solar capacity of 125,000-150,000 MW," the NTPC statement said.

India's Aug crude steel output falls 4%, China logs 8% rise

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

Production of crude steel in India in August declined 4.4 per cent on a year-on-year basis to 8.48 million tonne (Mt), according to data from the World Steel Association.

During the same period last year, India had produced 8.87 million tonne of crude steel.

Globally, however, crude steel production marked a marginal rise and China recorded 8.4 per cent increase at 94.8 million tonne.

In a statement, the World Steel Association said that total steel production for the 64 countries reporting to it was 156.2 million tonne in August 2020, a 0.6 per cent increase compared to August 2019.

It further noted that due to the ongoing difficulties presented by the Covid-19 pan-dem, many of the estimates may be revised with next month's production update.

"China produced 94.8 Mt of crude steel in August 2020, an increase of 8.4 per cent compared to August 2019. India produced 8.5 Mt of crude steel in August 2020, down 4.4 per cent on August 2019," it said.

Japan produced 6.4 million tonne of crude steel in August 2020, down 20.6 per cent compared to August 2019. South Korea's steel production was 5.8 million tonne in August, down by 1.8 per cent on a year-on-year basis.

Germany produced 2.8 million tonne of crude steel in August 2020, down 13.4 per cent.

The US produced 5.6 million tonne of crude steel in August 2020, a decrease of 24.4 per cent compared to August 2019.

Food and Civil Supplies Min Bharat Bhushan Ashu kick-starts paddy procurement in Punjab

Chandigarh: Punjab Food, Civil Supplies and Consumer Affairs Minister Bharat Bhushan Ashu today kick started paddy procurement at Rajpura Grain Market. Reiterating that Chief Minister Captain Amarinder Singh led state government always stood by the farmers, he averred that every effort would be made for the withdrawal of the anti-farmer bills passed by the Union Government. He was accompanied by MLA Rajpura Hardial Singh Kamboj, MLA Ghanour Mr. Madan Lal Jalalpuri, Punjab Mandi Board Senior Vice Chairman Mr. Vijay Kalra and Food and Civil Supplies Director Anindita Mitra.

Interacting with the media persons after starting government procurement operations, Ashu said, following the directives of the Chief Minister Captain Amarinder Singh, the state government has made elaborate arrangements for the procurement of expected arrival of 170 lakh metric tonnes of paddy across the mandis of the state, adding that state government was committed to procure every grain of the produce because it was the fruit of six months of hard work of the farmers. "Punjab Government has made all out arrangements for the smooth and uninterrupted procurement of paddy crop in all the Mandis of the state keeping in view the COVID-19 pandemic," he added.

Ashu appealed to the farmers not to set fire crop residue in the fields as it will exacerbate COVID situation in the state and bring only dry produce to the mandis for easy and hassle-free procurement. He said that

Raj is better than other States under corona control: CM

Jaipur: Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot said that all classes have played an important role in the fight against corona infection in the State. With the help of public representatives, leaders of various parties, NGOs, social workers, religious leaders, Bhamashahs and Corona Warriors, the State Government has succeeded in controlling the corona infection to a great extent in the State, with the death rate from corona also being minimal. He said that in this war against Corona, the entire state remained united and everyone's cooperation was saved in saving the lives of people and their livelihood. In the future, all will fight together against Corona.

Gehlot was holding a video conference from the Chief Minister's residence on Saturday to discuss the steps taken so far for the Covid-19 epidemic with the leaders of various political parties and representatives of voluntary organizations. He also sought suggestions from leaders of all parties and representatives of voluntary organizations. He said that corona management in Rajasthan has been very good. The state is in a much better position than other states on various parameters of epidemic control.

The Chief Minister said that for the last few days, there has been a concern expressed by the public representatives, public and various organizations on the growing transition. He said some states had previously imposed a lockdown two days a week. But the Indian government says that two days a week lockdown is not useful to prevent infection. Due to the long lockdown in the past, livelihood crisis has arisen in front of the livelihood workers. He said that to prevent infection, the state government has imposed Section 144 in 11 cities of the state and prohibited the gathering of more than five persons.

Gehlot said that no more than one person should visit the patients admitted in the Covid Care Centers. The risk of infection increases with more than one family visiting patients. He instructed to issue advisory in this regard. During the VC, representatives of social organizations and NGOs also suggested to create greater awareness about health protocols among the general public. Everyone gave suggestions regarding strict adherence to social distancing and applying mask.

Medical Minister Dr. Raghu Sharma said that adequate oxygen beds, ventilators and ICU beds are available in the state. He said that the state's testing capacity has exceeded 51 thousand per day. In the coming time, 4500 tests will be done daily with Cobas machine in SMS hospital.

CAIT calls for early roll out of e-commerce policy

CAIT is all set to launch its e-commerce portal 'Bharatemarket' in Oct

FIANS ■ NEW DELHI

The Confederation of All India Traders (CAIT) has called upon Union Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal to roll out the e-commerce policy at the earliest to curb "malpractices" of large e-commerce players in India.

In a statement, the traders' organisation said: "Indian e-commerce ecosystem has been greatly vitiated by large e-commerce companies and in the wake of steep rise of e-commerce share in the Indian domestic trade, it is all the more necessary to have a robust and well defined e-commerce policy so that small businesses do not suffer at the hands of large e-commerce companies having deep pockets and enormous resources."

Further, it said that CAIT is all set to launch its e-commerce portal 'Bharatemarket' in October. CAIT has also demanded formation of a regulatory authority for regulating and monitoring e-commerce business and having adequate powers to penalise offenders of the e-commerce policy. It has also suggested that there should be no relaxation in FDI policy for e-commerce players.

Demand for dairy products yet to reach pre-Covid level

HAREKRISHNA MISRA AND SANDIP DAS

The success of the 'Operation Flood' led to India emerging as the highest milk producing nation in the world more than two decades back. From a milk deficient country, India became self-sufficient in milk production mainly attributed to the role played by dairy cooperatives such as Amul (Gujarat Cooperative Milk Marketing Federation), Nandini (Karnataka Milk Federation) etc.

After the announcement of lockdown in March to curb spread of the COVID19, it resulted in disruption of supply chains associated with the various sectors of Indian economy. However, the dairy cooperatives continued with their operations of procuring milk from the members (as well as non-members) and distributions of dairy products to consumers notwithstanding operational challenges faced.

While many private sectors organised dairy players stopped or reduced milk procurement from farmers because of decline in demand, majority of the co-operative dairies have continued to collect milk from dairy farmers to ensure best possible financial support in spite of lower sales. This has resulted in surplus stock of Skimmed Milk Powder (SMP) and butter with the co-operative dairies. On one hand the milk procurement has increased and on other the

SOME OF THE TARIFF AND NON-TARIFF BARRIERS IMPOSED ON INDIAN DAIRY PRODUCTS EXPORTS

European Union	Does not approved Indian dairy plant under pretext of Veterinary control, Antibiotic and Pesticide residue etc
USA	high import duty of 40 to 60% on dairy products
China	The world's largest importer of dairy products does not permit import from India due to ban imposed by India because of presence of melamine in dairy products imported from China
Russia	Requires their own Veterinary team to approve plants. In the last four years, no approval has not been granted for Indian dairy industry for last many years
Canada	Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA) does not permit import of dairy products from India. In case of some approval, import duty imposed as high as 250%.
Australia	Do not permit import of dairy products from India due to Food and Mouth Disease. Only retorted products are permitted.
South Africa, Mexico, Venezuela	No permit import of dairy products from India
Sri Lanka and Bangladesh	30% import duty on dairy products
Thailand	More than 40% import duty demand for the dairy products is yet to reach the pre-COVID level.

It is estimated that the dairy cooperatives currently have around 1.5 lakh tonne of SMP stocks, which implies around 1.5 million tonne of milk stock (conversion ratio of SMP to liquid milk 1:10). This stock is far more than the SMP stocks held with the cooperatives a year ago. With the onset of flush season (milk production goes up) from October, dairy cooperatives have been asking the government to provide incentives under the Merchandise Exports from India Scheme so that around 50,000 tonne of SMP could be exported.

It will provide higher remuneration to millions of farmers in the post-Covid19 phases

A number of countries which imports large quantity of dairy products are not permitting import of dairy from India applying various tariff and non-tariff barriers. The European Union (EU) does not approve dairy imports from India under the pretext of various issues like pesticide and antibiotic residue etc. The United States had a high import duty of 40 to 60% on dairy products. China, the world's largest importer of dairy products does not permit import from India after it imposed a ban on the imports of milk and milk products from China years back because of presence of toxic chemical - melamine in Chinese dairy products. Russia's guidelines stipulate that their own veterinary control team approves dairy plants in India prior to imports. In the last four years, Russia has not granted any approval for Indian dairy plants.

‘Climate change is an undeniable threat’

Actor and environmentalist BHUMI PEDNEKAR feels education is the significant channel to raise awareness on climate conservation.

“The changes we are observing are an undeniable threat to our civilisation. This year we have witnessed the Australian bushfires, oil spill in Russia’s Arctic region, the Uttarakhand forest fires, Cyclone Amphan in West Bengal and Odisha, and California wild-fires,” she said.

“The effects will be catastrophic unless we act now. We need everyone to join hands to ensure that we leave behind barrels of hope and prosperity for the generations to come. Education is the significant channel to achieve this goal,” added Bhumi.

‘I would love to be running around trees and I love to play the demure girl, which I have played in a few of my south films. My point is that I want my character to be important to the plot. If you take away the character from the story, will the story still work? Sometimes, yes. But I want my character to be a memorable one.’

—Adah Sharma

Actor KIRTI KULHARI has reminisced about her character Jannat in Bard Of Blood on the one-year anniversary of the web series, saying it is the kind of role an actor lives for.

“Even when I utter the character’s name, it hits me how gorgeous she is as a character. The character has been quite strongly etched in the people’s minds and hearts,” said Kirti.

“It’s a character that anyone would fall in love with. Who wouldn’t want to play a role that people just fall in love with? It was the kind of role an actor lives for,” added she.

Billie introduces newborn son

Actor BILLIE LOURD and her fiancé, Austen Rydell, announced the birth of her son. The announcement came as a surprise, since Lourd’s pregnancy was not made public.

The American Horror Story star shared a photo of their son’s feet. The caption read, “Introducing Kingston Fisher Lourd Rydell” with blue heart and crown emojis.”

In June, Rydell announced their engagement with a series of photos and a video of the couple. His caption read, “She said yes! (Actually she said Duhhh) But I guess that’s even better than yes!”

We all know that the persistence of the novel Coronavirus is one of the few things that are here to stay. Hence, we must learn to accept the new normal, be it about everyday lifestyle changes or even fashion. And looking at the new garments and trends which are becoming staples in our wardrobe, the first would be gloves, which seem to be back in fashion. Designers are gradually introducing interesting pairs, which would hopefully help the people regain the human touch.

Various types of gloves have been introduced now such as disposable, anti-bacterial, hypo-allergenic, environment-friendly and many more. The global demand for disposable gloves has suddenly skyrocketed as compared to their sales before the pandemic. These protective gears have become the latest additions in our wardrobes in the last few months.

Of course, we are not mentioning the latex surgical ones in which hands sweat like in saunas. The protective gear in our hands is somewhat a beautiful expression of our indomitable spirits in the face of contagion. Gloves have definitely been an overlooked accessory used for practicality, although it has gone down in history as the most universal item in fashion. They have become a necessary trend amid the pandemic due to the additional protection that they can offer other than masks and sanitisation.

Celebrities and fashion influencers are now taking to social media to exhibit their collection of gloves, which are accessorised with nail-paints and rings. The latest accessory of fashionable gloves actually came into development just before the outbreak and designers were seen exploring their potential on fashion runways.

You can sport hand-embroidered gloves, anti-bacterial crochet ones or printed, colourful ones to meet your different types of moods. There’s one for every place — while you are set to hit the gym or an aerobics class, to the supermarket or while travelling. Gloves made of anti-microbial fabrics and fibres are the latest innovation that gives a long-lasting protection from microbes even after multiple washes. These fabrics protect your hands from various viruses and bacteria that are much required amid this unprecedented phase.

Nelson Jaffery, Head of Design, Liva, shares a few noted trends:

EXHIBIT THE RIGHT COLOURS WITH OUTFITS

Colours play an integral part not only in fashion but also in our life as they add happiness, distract us from negative thinking, change actions and cause reactions. The type of colour combinations that we choose for ourselves reflects our personal self. The bright colour reflects happiness and adds positive vibes, while the dull shades reflect the tedious mood. As we are already mindful about matching our accessories on what we wear, choosing the right colour as per the outfit will help you create a new style statement.

While at work, gloves can get soiled and stained, at this point the colours that you choose can turn out to be life savers. Choosing darker shades is the best way to embrace the style of being carefree. A few timeless shades to select from are:

Bittersweet chocolate: This deeply divine shade can match to almost every outfit, making all the difference.

Dark lavender: The shade has cer-

While we wear gloves essentially as protective gear, there’s no reason why they cannot become our fashion accessory. Designers suggest that choosing the right colour according to your outfit will help you create your style statement . By TEAM VIVA tainly made a comeback in fashion as it is bright and vivacious, giving us the right summer vibe. It goes well on light colours like white, pink and off-white.

Gallery red: Also known as rose red, with a tint of pink, it adds class to any outfit that you opt to wear.

ADD SOME CUTWORK

Cutwork style is back in vogue. The vintage technique and the intricate style lends a see-through look to the garment. Done by cutting away the fabric and binding the edges with buttonhole stitches, the technique emerged in the 14th century in Italy, and ever since, overcoming the top trends like laces and flares. Well, cutwork gloves can be worn for special occasions to give your attire a chic and more elegant look.

To keep the protection quotient intact, it’s recommended to use latex/plastic gloves underneath the cut-work.

PRINT FOR A LITTLE DRAMA

Wearing print and patterns can be intimidating as compared to solid colour gloves. Mixing prints has always been a top fashion trend. Prints have evolved throughout and now have become the priority when we think of something trendy. Even though many women prefer to live in a terminal state of simplicity out of fear of looking too complicated or frumpy but bold prints are more wearable than they seem. It’s just about making the right choice. If you end up choosing too many prints at a moment, it can look chaotic rather than stylish. Hence, choosing simple prints can be the must-have in gloves.

PUFF AND VOLUME

When we get a little overexcited or think of dramatising our mood into our attire, puff style is something to go about without any doubt. When we started to see the puff trend rising, it seemed like just the season’s newest must-have. And ever since, it’s been re-imagined in so many iterations and has returned season after season, becoming more than just a fleeting trend.

These are usually worn during the winters, however, with the ever-evolving style statement, gloves are becoming a more casual and go-to style.

Safety garments like gloves and masks are here to stay no matter how far we come with the pandemic. Hence, choosing the right and comfortable fabric like viscose will always be a great option to sustain this virus in the best possible way.

The power of words

Through a series of lockdown workshops, actor BOMAN IRANI offers a learning opportunity to budding writers, amateurs and professionals from different walks of life to master the nuances of screenwriting

It has been actor Boman Irani’s endeavour to break down the craft of cinema for brilliant minds of all ages. The actor, who is known for his path-breaking performances in 3 Idiots and Lage Raho Munnabhai, has answered his call as a storyteller by devising Spiral Bound, a series of screenwriting workshops for eager learners. This initiative by the actor has clocked in 150 online screenwriting sessions during the lockdown.

Through these workshops, Irani offered a learning opportunity to budding writers, amateurs and professionals from different walks of life to unite and learn the nuances of screenwriting. What started for him as a step towards being a student of cinema, has now resulted in an incredible journey of mentoring hundreds of students.

Happy to have arrived at the milestone of hitting 150 sessions, Boman took to his social media to express gratitude towards artists and filmmakers, who showed their support to Spiral Bound. In the caption, he wrote, “One hundred and fifty sessions on screenwriting in just about 165 days right through this lockdown. Writers, directors, actors, designers, beginners, all... with heart. All with the intention to learn and grow. Not allowing the chains of these lockdowns to shackle and get the better of us. If at all we were shackled, it was with each other. Bound by the spiraling shackles of learning, love and friendship. Proud of each and every one of you! Grateful too!”

He said, “Spiral Bound began with the idea of jamming on stories and refining them. We have over 100 people attending the sessions every day and now clocking in 150 sessions leads me to think that what we’re offering these minds is really working for them.”

The first workshop was conducted by Alexander Dinelaris, Oscar-winning film Birdman’s screenwriter and dear friend to Boman. This was before the lockdown when the actor launched his production house — Irani Movietone. He shared that he wanted to write his screenplay but couldn’t. He was looking for some guidance, so he went to New York in search of it. And he met Alexander there. That’s how it all started.

Boman believes that these workshops will produce some great films in the future. He said that it’s all about the power of screenplay. “No camera can do wonders, if the screenplay isn’t worthwhile. It has the power to make or break great films,” added he.

On the work front, the actor looks forward to the release of 83, where he will be portraying the role of a former Indian cricketer Farokh Engineer, and Jayeshbhai Jordaar.

THE ROAD TO DREAMS

The Indira Awas Yojana in the Poonch district of Jammu & Kashmir might be promising houses but the villagers are demanding roads first.

By QADIR ASHRAFI

Last month, Lieutenant Governor of Jammu & Kashmir, Manoj Sinha, reviewed the progress of the Pradhan Mantri Gram Sadak Yojana (PMGSY) in a meeting held at Raj Bhavan in Srinagar. While stressing upon maintaining the quality of roads, he directed the concerned officials to strictly adhere to the project timelines. The focus of the LG reflects not only the strategic significance of the territorial connectivity in remote, hilly regions but also stresses upon 'roads' being an important indicator of development. It is through roads that people residing in these tough, mountainous corners of this newly-announced Union Territory will be able to participate in development of the country. However, the condition of roads in several difficult-to-reach areas needs immediate attention of the administration. In the border district of Poonch, located 250 km from Jammu city, many villages still lack road connectivity. Malhan, the smallest Panchayat of Surankot tehsil in Poonch, is one of the many areas where road connectivity has been one of the most pressing issues for several years now. In 2012, the initiation of work for road construction between Sehri Khawaja to Ziarat Sharif Maidan had brought a new ray of hope for the villagers. The idea of not having to go through difficult mountainous trails during extreme weather conditions provided a sense of comfort to them. But the happiness was short-lived as due to some internal reasons, the construction was put on hold. Now, it's been eight years, and people here are still awaiting that road construction to go on the floors again and connect them with the town.

"We had given up our land for the department to pave the road. Villagers sacrificed their fields and gardens for the larger good of the entire community that faces several challenges while commuting through the kutchas roads," shared the villagers 'who have not received any compensation for the land they had given up. According to them, officials from the department visit the area only to leave after giving them assurances, which have not yet been materialised into anything concrete in the last eight years.

During his Poonch visit in July this year, the former LG Girish Chandra Murmu, the predecessor to LG Manoj Sinha, had also focussed on the construction of roads. That time, the chief of the concerned department had visited the village and had promised the villagers that the matter will be resolved at the earliest and the road will be completed, however, only to no relief.

"The road belongs to my ward. Its incomplete construction has become a hindrance in other works of development in the entire Panchayat. To attract the attention of the concerned authority, this Panchayat had even boycotted the second phase of the programme, 'Back to Village' run by the Central Government, but to no avail," explained Shamim Akhter, the Panch of Ward No 5.

Adding to the complication, the Panchayat has recently received guidelines from the district department that the construction of houses under Indira Awas Yojana (IAY) should be completed within three months. The beneficiaries of the scheme were waiting for the road to be constructed as without it building a house will be quite difficult. If they do not obey the orders, they will have to return the installment that has come into their accounts along with an interest. "That's the dilemma. If the road issue isn't resolved soon, I will not be able to benefit from the IAY scheme. Construction of roads need to be completed first and then the houses should be built," shared Abdul Khaliq, one of the beneficiaries of the IAY scheme.

Not just construction of the houses but the development challenges of such isolated villages can be addressed easily once they are connected via roads. Reaching schools, hospitals and town for work and other needs will become easier. The emphasis of the current administration on construction of roads in rural areas is surely a positive sign. It is this belief in the government that people of this village are waiting patiently for their dreams to be fulfilled.

The foolproof law

Instead of seeking short-term rewards through corrupt deeds, let us respect karma and live a righteous life, reaping the fruit of joy and well-being, says

RAJYOGI BRAHMAKUMAR NIKUNJ JI

It's often said, "Honesty is the best policy." Which is the reason why a kind and an honest person would never approve of someone who reaches heights by foul means or through corruption. To them, life often seems unfair and the result, at times, turns out to be revengeful. However, one fails to understand an important fact that the law of karma is eternal and works on the simple principle of cause-and-effect — "as you sow, so shall you reap."

Corruption in India has stirred many political debates and agitations in the history, attracting extensive coverage in the Indian media too. Bribery, scams and misuse of public money are becoming common. Many a times, those involved in these activities go scot-free, lead a luxurious life and enjoy many privileges without being accountable for their nefarious deeds. But we forget that the law of karma is infallible and immutable. As per this law, every act or expression by a human being will be experienced by him/her in the same degree and nobody can escape the effects of this law. What we cannot see most of the time is how and when an action is punished or rewarded, due to which we get disillusioned. However, as per the karmic law, sometimes the result of an action may be carried over to the next life and hence, it says that there is always justice in whatever happens. The fact that there are all kinds of differences — physical, economical and social — is the very evidence. It's because of the consequences of our previous karma which are carried over and experienced in the next birth.

We hence should perceive life in a deeper and a more holistic way. First, we must realise that the doer of karma is not the body but the being or the soul, which is immortal. The eternal law of karma facilitates and shapes the continuous journey or evolution of the human soul. We are here to express our true nature and experience the reward of that. Our expressions may be a subtle feeling or thought or they may be a visible action.

It is unfortunate that most people today are blind to their spiritual identity and law of karma, as a result of which they believe that they are here for one lifetime and so they can eat, drink, make merry and indulge in all pleasures through right or wrong means. But the fact is that such people may have wealth but they lack peace of mind, health and true joy. This narrow-minded limited view of human life has spawned vices such as lust, greed, ego and attachment. In the pursuit to have more, enjoy more and possess more, people have become totally callous about values like honesty, compassion, sharing and cooperation. Even when people suffer the result of their bad karma, they do not realise that they have to improve themselves instead they blame others and become even more corrupt and vicious. If people could see in advance that each corrupt deed they commit would boomerang into a painful suffering or loss for them either in this life or in the future, they would never commit something wrong again. But they neither have the wisdom nor the strength to live a life of total moral integrity. We must realise that the richness of one's character is the most essential and real wealth that raises the value of human life.

Today, people have lost faith in god and good karma. But the law of karma is the most foolproof one that guarantees good return to those who do good. The time and place and the source from where it will come vary. But the wheel of divine justice never fails. So, instead of seeking short-term pleasures and rewards through corrupt deeds, let us live a righteous life and reap the fruit of abundant joy and well-being.

The country's stringent lockdown to curb the spread of COVID-19 shut schools across the country in late March. Most remain closed as the number of cases has surged past five million, making India second worst-hill in the world by the Coronavirus.

ital learning tools like laptops or smartphones. "There is only one mobile phone in my family and it is usually with my father. I can't study online," said Nitin Mishra, a ninth grade student in Virendra's math class. Mishra's mother works as a part-time maid and his father is unable to find employment.

The street-side classes have grown as dozens of children showed keen interest. Now the Guptas — with help from their driver, Heera — teach three different groups thrice a week, morning and evening. After class, the children are treated to homemade lemonade and cookies prepared by Veena.

The two say teaching the kids makes them feel closer to their grandchildren, who live abroad. "My father would make me spend my summer vacation learning the next year's curriculum in advance," said Virendra, who served as Indian ambassador to several countries including South Africa. It really boosted my confidence and made me interested in schoolwork. And that is what I am trying to do with these children, so when their school reopens, they are slightly ahead of their class."

Veena said she hopes to recruit more volunteers to teach the street-side classes. "It is not about the money that people can contribute and give, it is about their time," she said. "They should take out little bit of their time, an hour or so, if not every day, every alternate day, and come and help these children."

VITAMIN D CUTS DEATH RISK IN COVID PATIENTS

A new research adds to the growing body of evidence that patients with sufficient levels of Vitamin D are less likely to experience complications and die from COVID-19. As per a study, published in the journal PLOS ONE, hospitalised COVID-19 patients who were vitamin D sufficient, with a blood level of 25-hydroxyvitamin D of at least 30 ng/mL (a measure of Vitamin D status) had a significantly decreased risk for adverse clinical outcomes and death.

In addition, they had lower blood levels of an inflammatory marker (C-reactive protein) and higher blood levels of lymphocytes (a type of immune cell to help fight infection). "This study provides direct evidence that Vitamin D sufficiency can reduce the complications, including the cytokine storm (release of too many proteins into the blood too quickly) and ultimately death from COVID-19," said study author Michael F Holick from the Boston University in the US.

COVID PREGNANCY DOESN'T AFFECT NEWBORNS

Researchers have found that SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes COVID-19 during pregnancy was not associated with complications in the newborn child. For the study, published in the journal JAMA, the research team have examined the association between a positive SARS-CoV-2 test during pregnancy and complications in mothers and their newborn babies.

Almost two out of three pregnant women who tested positive for SARS-CoV-2 were asymptomatic and the researchers found no higher prevalence of complications during delivery or of ill-health in the neonates. However, preeclampsia was more common in infected women. "One possible reason for the latter is that both preeclampsia and COVID-19 impact several organs and can present similar symptoms," said study lead author Mia Ahlberg from Karolinska University Hospital in Sweden.

MODEL DETECTS MUTATIONS IN BREAST CANCER

Researchers have developed a computational model which is effective in detecting and identifying genetic mutations in breast tumours. The study included results from over 3,200 patients with breast cancer. The researchers used RNA sequencing, a sensitive, precise tool which has very gradually started to be applied clinically, although not yet for breast cancer. The study, published in the journal EMBO Molecular Medicine, used breast tumours for analysis from the unique Swedish SCAN-B project. "We hope that SCAN-B RNA sequencing will be in clinical use as early as next year, mainly to help in the identification of which breast tumours are high-risk and which are low-risk," said study researcher Lao Saal from Lund University in Sweden. When the team analysed the genetic mutations in the breast tumours of the patients in the study, they found that almost 87 per cent had at least one mutation for which potential drugs already exist.

DIABETES DRUG LOWERS HEART ISSUES

Drugs known as sodium-glucose cotransporter-2 (SGLT2) inhibitors are associated with a lower risk of major heart problems in patients with type-2 diabetes than dipeptidyl peptidase-4 (DPP-4) inhibitors, say, researchers. As per a study, published in the journal The BMJ, previous trials have shown that SGLT2 inhibitors can reduce the risk of heart conditions such as heart attack, stroke, and heart failure compared with placebo. But some of these trials had important limitations, making it difficult to interpret the results, and data on the effects of individual SGLT2 inhibitors on the heart are limited. The research team from McGill University, Canada set out to compare the risk of cardiovascular events between SGLT2 inhibitors and DPP-4 inhibitors among adults with type-2 diabetes in a real practice setting.

EXCESS BELLY FAT UPS EARLY DEATH RISK

Researchers have found that excess fat stored around the abdomen is associated with a higher risk of early death from any cause, regardless of overall body fat, whereas larger hips and thighs are associated with a lower risk. The results, published in the journal The BMJ, suggest that measuring central fatness may be a more reliable indicator of risk of death from excess weight, and could be used alongside body mass index to help determine the risk of premature death. Body mass index (BMI) is a simple measure widely used to assess people's weight. But its reliability is often criticised, as it does not distinguish fat from muscle and does not tell us where body fat is stored. "It is already well known that being overweight or obese is linked to a greater risk of heart disease, certain cancers, kidney disease, and neurological disorders," said study authors from Semnan University of Medical Sciences in Iran.

We were probably 20-30 runs short and then it would have been a good game. If you don't put the right total on board, it's going to be hard to defend.

The plan was simple. I was there to get set and see my team through. Total wasn't that big. So it was important for me to stay there. As a batting unit, I think we all did well.

Rahul Chahal is a fantastic leg-spinner and has had a brilliant last season and he is looking in good form. As far as matches are concerned, it is a matter of time, things fall in place

BATTING MAYANKLASS

PTI ■ SHARJAH

Mayank Agarwal outshone his Kings XI Punjab captain KL Rahul with a maiden IPL hundred as the duo pummelled the Rajasthan Royals bowlers into submission to post an imposing 223 for 2 here on Sunday.

Agarwal (106) and Rahul (69) stitched 183 runs for the opening stand, the highest partnership for any wicket so far this season as they took apart the Royals bowlers who were also wayward in their line and length.

The duo just missed the record of highest opening wicket partnership in IPL history by a mere two runs when Agarwal was out in the 17th over after hitting 10 fours and seven sixes during his magnificent 50-ball knock.

Nicholas Pooran then hit 25 not out from just eight balls while Glenn Maxwell also remained unbeaten on 13.

Rahul was content to playing second fiddle to Agarwal though the KXIP captain also made some brilliant shots during his 54-ball knock studded with seven fours and a six, continuing his rich vein of form after his 132 not out against Royal Challengers Bangalore.

Agarwal surged ahead of his captain by reaching his fifty (from 26 balls) in style with a six off Shreyas Gopal and followed it up with another maximum to bring up KXIP's 100 in the ninth over.

KXIP reached 110 at the halfway mark.

The Royals captain Steve Smith kept on shuffling his bowlers and spinner Rahul Tewatia was hit for 19 runs in the eighth over, which included two sixes and a four.

The Royals bowlers had no clue how to deal with the marauding opening duo. Only Ankit Rajpoot conceded less than 10 runs an over.

PTI ■ DUBAI

Royal Challengers Bangalore would be looking to address their pace-bowling concerns when they face defending champions Mumbai Indians in the Indian Premier League here on Monday.

RCB started on a winning note but then their star-studded collapsed against Kings XI Punjab, resulting in a humbling 97-run defeat.

After scores of 14 and

It's Rohit vs Kohli

1, Kohli is due for a big one and would be itching to spend more time in the middle.

Opener Devdutt Padikkal, who started his IPL career with a classy half-century, did not do much against KXIP and will be aiming for consistency.

Australian limited overs captain Aaron Finch would be hoping to convert starts into match-winning performances while AB de Villers, who has looked in god touch, will be expected to provide the late fireworks again with the lower-order not inspiring a lot of hope.

It is still not clear whether RCB will have the services of South African all-rounder Chris Morris, who sat out of the first two games due to a side strain.

In the bowling department, Yuzvendra Chahal, as always, will be the key man with pacers, barring Navdeep Saini, leaking runs.

Dale Steyn and Umesh Yadav have proved expensive so far. The South African great is likely to retain his place in the playing eleven but the same can't be said about

Yadav, who could make way for Mohammad Siraj. England all-rounder

Moeen Ali will be a welcome addition to the middle-order but with Josh Phillippe keeping wickets regularly, he can only replace Steyn.

Mumbai Indians, who ticked all the boxes in their comfortable win against Kolkata Knight Riders, are unlikely to tinker with their team composition.

The biggest positive is that skipper Rohit Sharma is back among the runs and looked in ominous touch against KKR, and so did Suryakumar Yadav.

The only change that the team can make is bring in Ishan Kishan in place of the bulky Saurabh Tiwary.

Apart from their batting prowess, Hardik Pandya and Kieron Pollard can jointly perform the role of an additional bowler, but MI coach Mahela Jayawardane has made it clear that they don't want to take any risks with Hardik, who is playing after a long break following a back injury.

HARDIK KEEN TO BOWL

Mumbai Indians Director of Cricket Operations Zaheer Khan on Sunday said Hardik Pandya is keen to bowl but the team management needs to listen to his body as the all-rounder is playing after a lengthy layoff due to a back injury. "We are all expecting him (Hardik) to bowl and he is someone who really changes that balance of any side when he is bowling and he understands that," Zaheer said when asked about Hardik's bowling. "But we have to listen to his body and that is something the conversation which we have been having in consultation with the physios. "We are looking forward for him to bowl, he is very keen and really wanting to bowl, we just have to wait and be patient and listen to his body. At the end of the day for any bowler injuries play a huge role."

DC HAVE A GOOD BALANCE

Having played a vital role in Delhi Capitals' emphatic 44-run win against the Chennai Super Kings, South African pacer Anrich Nortje will look to continue the same run of form in his debut IPL season. "It's just unbelievable. It's great to get a wicket finally. I mean after not getting one in the first game. I felt like to come in and run in today, just give it my best, control what I generally do and I think at the end it paid off. So, I was just trying to do my thing at the end," said Nortje on being able to break the deadlock.

AFRIDI MISS PAK PLAYERS IN IPL

Pakistan's former captain Shahid Afridi has rued the absence of top players from his country in a "big platform" like the Indian Premier League. In a report published in the Pakistani media, Afridi said that the IPL is a big platform for any player to get exposure, gain experience and improve. "The IPL is a big brand and I know that if our players like Babar Azam and others get a chance to play in it they would learn to play under pressure situations. Unfortunately, due to the existing policies, our players are not getting that big platform," he said.
