Farm protests swell Opp ranks

Prez gives his assent to three farm Bills amid farmers' protests

PNS ■ NEW DELHI/CHANDIGARH

President Ram Nath Kovind on Sunday gave his assent to the three farm Bills passed by Parliament even as the farmers' organisation and Opposition parties continued to rally against the controversial legislations. One of BJP's oldest allies and a founding member of the NDA, the Shiromani Akali Dal, on Sunday called for unifying the Opposition to take on the BJP.

Shiromani Akali Dal President Sukhbir Singh Badal addresses a gathering of party workers and farmers to mobilise them for October 1 Kisan March, which would commemorate all three Sikh religious Takhts in Punjab to Mohali, in Ropar district on Sunday. PTI

The Opposition had earlier urged the President to return the Bills to Parliament saying the Bills were anti-farmer and had been rammed through the Rajya Sabha without a division of votes. SAD president Sukhbir Singh Badal on Sunday called upon all political parties and organisations to close ranks for a united fight to protect the interests of farmers, farm labour and farm produce traders in the country, especially in Punjab.

"We are ready to join or follow any struggle in the overall interests of the farmers, farm labour, Arhatiyas and other farm produce traders," said Badal, while making his first public speech after the party broke alliance with the NDA on Saturday night. Badal received instant support from the Trinamool Congress. "We support Sukhbir Singh Badal and Akali Dal's stand with the farmers. Fighting for farmers is part of Trinamool DNA. In 2006, Mamata Banerjee risked her life on a historic 26-day fast for farmers' rights. We oppose Farm Bills 2020 as they endanger States' role, MSP, PDS procurement, TMC leader Derek O'Brien tweeted.

Thinking Derek for his support, Sukhbir tweeted, "Derek — your stand against the Agriculture Bills in Parliament is well known. Appreciate your support." He said the country needed to understand and empathise with the farmers and farm labour in view of the pathetic conditions in which they were living. Reiterating his party's firm commitment to preserving peace, communal harmony and fraternity in Punjab at all costs, Badal said, "We must not flinch from the ideals of keeping our struggle for people's rights absolutely peaceful and democratic. I must caution against attempts to defame our struggle by disturbing peace but that should only strengthen our resolve to safeguard the age-old values of Punjab's fraternity along the path of peaceful democratic struggle."

He again advised the Chief Minister to issue an Ordinance to declare the whole State a Mandi (Principal Marketing Yard) to save farmers from "black laws". Badal was addressing a gathering of party workers and farmers at Ropar,

SAD's exit may dent image of BJP's sabka saath, sabka vikas

DEEPAK K UPRETI ■ NEW DELHI

The exit of Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD), one of the oldest allies of the BJP, had claimed to have 36 NDA allies which included major parties like Telugu Desam Party (TDP), Shiv Sena and SAD, Janata Dal-United (JD(U)) and several other assorted regional outfits across the country.

The departure of SAD in a year when Shiv Sena too "lost patience" with the BJP and less than two years following the BJP's decision to move out of the NDA in 2018 reflects that the BJP is increasingly asserting itself with its plans and programmes after its sweeping victory in the Lok Sabha.

Peoples Democratic Party (PDP) of Mehbooba Mufti in Jammu & Kashmir and Uppendra Kushwaha's RSLP in Bihar, left the NDA due to different political reasons.

The NDA which started in 1998 under Atal Bihari Vajpayee has transformed considerably since 2014. With Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah taking a tight grip over the affairs of the Government and the party setting the BJP with an aim of "speedy expansion" in the States and introduce its policies the allies have reasons to feel threatened.

The protest against the too much of centralisation of decision-making in the NDA had also created rumblings in the North-East with Asom Gana Parishad walking out of the NDA to protest Citizenship (Amendment) Bill but it rejoined later. Another regional NDA ally Bodo People's Front too had differences with the BJP which were ironed out by State leadership.

Bihar's ex-DGP Gupteshwar joins JD(U), to fight Assembly election

PTI ■ PATNA

Former Bihar DGP Gupteshwar Pandey, who was all over national TV for the last few months, joined the State's ruling JD (U) on Sunday amid indications he would contest the Assembly polls beginning next month.

Pandey joined the party in the presence of Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, who is also the JD (U) president, less than a week after taking voluntary retirement from service.

His much-anticipated induction took place a day after he met Kumar and insisted there was nothing political in their conversation.

The 1987 batch IPS officer had strongly defended Kumar on the issue of institution of a CBI probe into the mysterious death of Sushant Singh Rajput, the Patna-born talented film star.

The voluble officer had reminded actor Rhea Chakraborty, Rajput's girlfriend and the main accused in the abatement to suicide case being probed by the CBI, of her 'aunt' (status) to question Kumar, when she suggested that there was politics behind the Bihar Government's decision to push for a CBI probe.

Pandey's application for VRS was accepted by Governor Fagu Chauhan on September 21, five months before the 1987 batch IPS officer was to superannuate, and in a rare gesture, a three-month cooling off period applicable to bureaucrats was waived in his case.

"I have a long, loving association with Kumar. He personally called me and offered party membership.

"I have a public profile and connect with people...people love me. But I don't know anything about politics. I will do what I am asked to do," he later told journalists.

"Pandey also turned up at a Press conference at the JD (U) headquarters where he was welcomed into the family by Ashok Choudhary, a Cabinet Minister who was earlier in the day appointed the working president of the State unit.

All households to pay sewage charges in Delhi

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

In a new move, the Delhi Jal Board (DJB) has approved a plan to collect annual sewage pollution charge from all households, irrespective of whether they are located in areas with or without sewer network.

According to a National Green Tribunal order, every individual household causing pollution by the release of sewage into an open environment or in the sewer network is liable for payment for its treatment as per 'polluter pays' principle. At present, the utility collects sewage charges only from those households which have water connections and a functional sewer network.

The money is utilised for maintenance, upkeep and to upgrade the sewer network. But many households get water from the DJB and generate sewage but have not been paying sewage charges as there is no sewer network in their area, according to an official.

The DJB has 25.20 lakh active water consumers, of which 19.94 lakh come under areas with sewage connection. Sewage charges are levied in their water bills. "Earlier, we had been collecting sewage charges from households which come under sewer network and have an active water connection.

He didn't have much success in his initial years in politics and had to wait till 1980 when the fledgling BJP sent him to the Rajya Sabha. From then on it was an uninterrupted stay in Parliament — five times as member of the Upper

A few administrators with a blend of the type that are associated with many leaders, Singh had the swallow the mortification of accompanying three terrorists — Ahmed Omar Saeed Sheikh, Mushtaq Ahmad Zargar and Masood Azhar — and escort the hijackers of the IC 814 aircraft to Kandahar in exchange for 175 passengers who were held hostage by Pakistan-backed terrorists.

His career, however, was also in the Government during the Kandahar hijacking of 1999. Singh escorted three terrorists — Ahmed Omar Saeed Sheikh, Mushtaq Ahmad Zargar and Masood Azhar — to Kandahar in exchange for 175 passengers of IC 814 aircraft who were held hostage by Pakistan-backed terrorists.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi and other top BJP leaders paid rich tributes to Singh. Modi said Singh served India diligently and will be remembered for his unique perspective on matters of politics and society.

The PM later spoke to Singh's son Manvendra to convey his condolences.

Modi said, "Singh served our nation diligently, first as a soldier and later during his long association with politics. During Atal's Government, he handled crucial portfolios and left a strong mark in the worlds of finance, defence and external affairs. Saddened by his demise."

in the Vajpayee Government.

In his message, Modi added, "Singh will be remembered for his unique perspective on matters of politics and society. He also contributed to the strengthening of the BJP. I will always remember our interactions. Condolences to his family and supporters. Om Shanti."

Expressing his anguish, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh said Singh served the nation in several capacities and distinguished himself as an effective Minister and parliamentarian.

"Singh would be remembered for his intellectual capabilities and stellar record in service to the nation. He also played a key role in strengthening the BJP in Rajasthan. Condolences to his family and supporters in this sad hour. Om Shanti," Singh said.

Bio toxic water dumping in Gurugram village causing massive environmental damage

PARVESH SHARMA ■ GURUGRAM
Lack of proper disposal of biological waste is a big problem in India and contributes a lot to pollution and contamination of groundwater resources. One such sorry incident has been unearthed in a Gurugram village, which has had frightening consequences on groundwater, the local people and animals. This particular case was unearthed by an animal activist two months ago when he observed an unauthorised dump of mixed bio waste water at Bhondis village agriculture land in Gurugram by a private pharmaceutical company, which is located in the same region. The illegal bio waste dump, which is located at the village land, of Gurugram district, was first noticed by animal lover Rohit. After finding the first dump in July this year, he shared his findings with his colleagues, and he has since raised this issue on social media platforms and yet to file an official complaint as he belongs from Kolkata, and had no idea where to file a complaint against the pharmaceutical company and its irregularities. "A week ago, when I was on my morning walk, I discovered the bodies of two rabbits which I suspected had died due to consuming toxic water dumped by the company. In about two months, I have noticed multiple times the company has illegally dumped bio waste water on the land of the region though a tanker," Rohit said. He also alleged that the tanker driver used to charge Rs 1,000 per round to dump for stray dogs and this dump jeopardizes their survival," the pet lover said. "The illegal bio waste dumping in the area not only poses a risk to the wildlife, but also threatens human life as the bio waste water has already polluted the groundwater as toxic water enters the ground and then our food cycle," Rohit added. He also asserted that the water level in the region is 300 feet deep but not drinkable. "Anyone can smell a chemical in the groundwater and the water colour will turn to be yellow in just a few hours preserved," he said. "I am shocked that nobody in the region noticed this gross negligence on part of the company as they have continued dumping toxic water on this piece of land. The bio waste would destroy the lives of people living in a 15-km radius, in addition to affecting wildlife, trees in the region," he elaborated. "I will soon file a detailed complaint against the company in the concern department and will demand stern action against the company," said Rohit, adding that the local administration should consider processing of bio waste, along with proper segregation and efficient waste collection policy, will help to tackle the problem more effectively."

Cause of concern: Fewer tests more deaths

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

The Covid-19 contagion is getting more fatal as it continues to spread in Uttarakhand. In a week ending September 26, a total of 88 deaths due to Covid-19 were reported by the state health department which is the highest number of deaths in a week ever since the contagion started in the state on March 15 this year. The first death due to the disease was reported in the state in the week seventh (April 26 to May 2). The 28th week (September 20 to 26) saw 6,196 cases which is less than the previous two weeks. In the 27 week, 9,749 cases were reported while in 26th week (September 6 to 12) 6,375 cases were reported. The less number of cases in the week which has ended could have contributed to less number of tests than the previous week. About 35,000 people illiterate in district, 339 girls found to be school dropouts

In a recent survey conducted by Dehradun district administration to identify illiterate people in the district, it was revealed that about 35,000 people have never been to school. Recently, the district administration announced its plan to end illiteracy from the district by January 26 and to achieve this goal, the administration asked people to volunteer to teach illiterate people in various areas of the district under the Padho Doon Badoh Doon campaign.

Informing about the campaign, the chief development officer (CDO), Nitika Khandelwal said that a survey conducted with the help of Anganwadi workers to identify illiterate people above the age of 11 years in the district was recently finished in which about 25,517 illiterate people have been identified and the data of about 10,000 illiterate people will be available soon. Meanwhile, it was also revealed in the survey that there are 339 girls aged 11 to 14 years who are school dropouts and did not finish their school education due to their families.

Though the number of illiterate people is quite high in the district, only about 40 volunteers have registered in the portal so far to teach such people.

According to Khandelwal, the classes of some people have already started in some areas and will begin soon in other areas too. She informed that any educated person can volunteer to teach illiterate people of the district and contribute in eradicating illiteracy in Dehradun district. As Khandelwal stated, there would be five students under one volunteer who has to give at least 25 hours to the students in a three-month period. The administration has given liberty to the volunteers to arrange and schedule their classes as per their will by coordinating with others. Besides, the volunteers will not have to go too far from their respective areas as the administration is providing them space in a school in the area a volunteer wants to take classes in. One can register at <http://dclservices.org/volunteer.php> to volunteer to teach illiterate people of the district.

Sheeshambada locals resume protest against handling of waste management plant

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

Even after the Ramky Enviro Engineers Limited (REEL) stated that proper procedure is being followed in the Sheeshambada solid waste management and recycling plant, the residents of Sheeshambada have resumed their protest against the plant once again.

The locals of Sheeshambada were already protesting against REEL that manages the operation of the plant and the Municipal Corporation of Dehradun (MCD) before the lockdown in March but according to the locals, the situation has gotten worse since then. Earlier the leachate released from the plant used to get accumulated outside the plant and get absorbed by the ground but the situation is now so bad that even the ground is unable to absorb the leachate. Now the leachate is getting settled there in layers which is causing issues like water contamination and air pollution besides a foul smell spreading in the area," said local resident Satpal Dhanyia. According to another local resident, several anomalies in the plant, no action has been taken so far by authorities concerned.

"There are just claims by the company about managing the plant well but they are all false. They have stated several times that they have leachate treatment plant (LTP) installed in the plant but still the leachate accumulates outside the plant. Heaps of garbage are visible there all the time besides the refuse derived fuel (RDF) not disposed of. We do not understand how anyone can ignore these things and claim that everything is running smoothly in the plant. Even our MLA, Sahdev Pundir has complained about it to the municipal commissioner. At least, the MCD should act as a responsible body but probably they are in connivance with the company too," added Negi. Locals also stated that it is also questionable how the plant has been unable to get the Certificate of Consent to Operate (CCTO) from Uttarakhand Environment Protection and Pollution Control Board (UEPPCB) about a year now. Moreover, on the question of what locals think about Ramky's plan to set up a waste to energy power plant in Dehradun, locals stated that they do not trust the company with their alleged plans to improve the sanitation facilities in the area. They added that they have resumed their protest against the bad working conditions of the plant and will keep on protesting until authorities listen to them.

State Govt has lost moral authority to rule: Pritam

PNS ■ DEHRADUN

Accusing the state government in corruption, the Pradesh Congress Committee (PCC) president Pritam Singh has said that it has lost the moral authority to be in the government. Talking to the media on Monday, Pritam Singh Bhawan here on Sunday, the PCC president said that the BJP MLA from Lohaghat has accused the government of promoting corruption. He said that the BJP MLA wanted to raise the issue of a road in his area in the state assembly under rule 58 but instead of listening to him, the state unit of BJP has issued a notice to him. He said that the people of the state are closely watching the character and activities of the government and the veil over the 'zero tolerance' rhetoric of the government has been removed.

The Congress leader claimed a power struggle is going on in the state and there seems to be no coordination between the government and state administration. Singh said, "In the episode involving the state minister Rekha Arya all the ministers are advocating that they should have the right to write the CR of secretaries. This power already is there with the ministers and there is a need to put it into execution. The manner in which the ministers are accusing officers and the officers in turn feeling discomforted and indirectly blaming the ministers shows

Says that there is no coordination between Government and administration that the issue is very serious."

The PCC president added that the minister Rekha Arya has indirectly questioned the Chief Minister (CM) by stating that the inquiry committee should have representation of ministers which shows no confidence in leadership. He said that in such a situation the state government has no moral authority to remain in office for a single day.

Fresh challenges to security of Uttarakhand

RP MAILWAL

The ongoing border row with China has brought fresh challenges to the security of Uttarakhand which was earlier also in the limelight after some Chinese army men had intruded into the demilitarized zone in the Barahoti area of high altitude district Chamoli of the state some three to four years ago. There was also a reported air space violation by the Chinese planes around the same time in the same district bordering China. At that time both the state and the Central governments seemed highly concerned over this incident as this happened to be a major development on this border with China after the 1963 war.

Over the years, and specially after the formation of Uttarakhand state in the year 2000 and the gradual dilution of ties with Nepal with which Uttarakhand's Pithoragarh district is reportedly posing a latent threat not only to the security of the state but to the entire country as well. Since the Indo-Nepal treaty of 1950 has not been abrogated as yet, cross border movement can be stopped in toto. Thus, there is always a possibility of rogue elements making an effort to enter India and pose a serious threat to the country's security. The present Nepalese political dispensation, which is heavily under the influence of China, may not be so much bothered allowing such agents to cross over to India. Similarly, we can safely assume that Uttarakhand's northern high altitude areas are being closely watched by China all the time. There are four areas lying above 17,000 feet, which make the cross border accessibility easy for the Chinese.

These are -Barahoti, Niti and Mana pass in district Chamoli and Lipoti pass in Pithoragarh district.

It is often reported that Chinese have developed an excellent infrastructure right across the border which includes communication, rail and road network. Besides, a large number of Chinese forces are said to have been positioned by China across its border with Uttarakhand recently in a bid to threaten the security of Uttarakhand and the country. Therefore, in the event of a war with India, Chinese would be able to shift their troops to the desired locations in no time. In contrast, however, India has no such infrastructure in place, particularly in Uttarakhand. Thus, in the eventuality of such a situation taking place, and in the absence of matching infrastructure in this side of the border districts, it might really cost Uttarakhand and the country dearly.

Therefore, there is indeed a crying need for developing a proper defense related infrastructure in the state. This central Himalayan state is also known for major centers of the latest border stand off, aided by millions of devotees round the year.

It seems the Union government is moving fast in this regard. The recent meeting of one of the senior air force officers, Air Marshal Rajendra Kumar with the state Chief Minister Trivendra Singh Rawat for allocation of some land for setting up a few advanced landing grounds and radar facilities can be seen as one of the steps in the right direction. Such facilities need to be set up in Chamoli, Pithoragarh and Uttarakhand districts. Even the army is planning to set up airfields in the border areas in the wake of the latest border stand off. It may also be mentioned here that the director-general of Border Roads Organisation (BRO) Lieutenant General Harpal Singh also met Rawat to discuss the fast completion of Rs 18,000 crore ongoing project for a vast road network along the Chinese border of the state. According to some reports, a few roads have already been completed.

Along with developing the defence related infrastructure, observers feel that there is also a pressing need to improve the communication, medicare, education and transport facilities in the mountains. They feel jobs need to be created for local hill folks who are still migrating to other states. They also stress the need for exploitation of available natural resources of the state in order to generate more revenue. The youth of the state are said to be the second line of defence. Similarly, observers feel that farmers can also provide enough strength to the hillfolks in the hour of need not only as food providers but also as fighters being the members of martial races. But farmers' basic interests must be protected.

Therefore, it is high time to a serious brainstorming is done to look into the gaping loopholes in the preparedness of the state to face the latest challenges from across the state's border.

Cong gives ultimatum to RJD, begins talks with local parties

Bihar Election Date 2020

DEEPAK KUMAR JHA ■ NEW DELHI

The Congress has initiated talks with local parties like RSP, VIP, NCP and even with the former Union Minister in Vajpayee Government Yashwant Sinha to forge an alliance for the Bihar Assembly elections, starting next month. At the same time, it has given an ultimatum to its old nemesis RJD to make up its mind by this month end over the issue of seat sharing. Sources said the Congress leadership has conveyed to RJD to come to the negotiation table and finish the seat sharing process so that enough time remains for the grand alliance to campaign. RJD chief Tejashi Yadav is likely to go to Ranchi to discuss further on the Bihar Assembly polls with his father, RJD patriarch Lalu Yadav, who is lodged in jail in Jharkhand in connection with the fodder scam. The Congress has also shared its list of 'bested' seats, some of them have to be common for both the RJD and

Grant leave liberally to jawans, paramilitary officers told

RAKESH K SINGH ■ NEW DELHI

Against the backdrop of casualties of six personnel due to suicide or fratricide in the last few months, the Central paramilitary forces have issued orders to its officers to liberally grant leave to the jawans, expeditiously resolve any issues being faced by them, timely clear their allowances and formulate a proper duty roster.

The move comes following a directive from the Union Home Ministry after the Confederation of Ex Paramilitary Force Welfare Association raised concerns over the rising shootout and suicides and demanded instructions to the Forces to check the trend.

During the last few months, jawans of paramilitary forces like CRPF, BSF, SSB and ITBP have resorted to fratricidal killings leading to the death of six jawans. This dangerous trend is continuing and in the majority of the cases, enquiries have concluded that domestic discord was the reason for such incidents.

Apart from existing measures already in place to check such incidents in the ranks, the Forces have issued a fresh set of guidelines to contain any such trend in the future.

The officials commanding their respective formations have been specifically asked to adopt a liberal approach in granting leave to the jawans. A suitable roster of duty of jawans can be formulated. Payment of allowances and entitlements should be made the earliest and without any hassles. Officials at different levels have further been asked to give sincere hearing to the concerns being faced by the jawans and make every possible effort to resolve their issues, officials said, adding the latest directive has been circulated across all the formations of these paramilitary forces.

While the Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) is engaged in a variety of internal security roles like anti-terrorism and counter Naxal operations, the Border Security Force (BSF) is tasked to secure the frontiers along Pakistan and Bangladesh, the Indo-Tibetan Border Police (ITBP) is tasked to the borders with China and the Sashstra Seema Bal is deployed along the boundary with Nepal and Bhutan.

PM Modi lauds farmers' resilience during 'mahamari'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Lauding the farmers for showing "tremendous resilience" during the Coronavirus pandemic and their contribution to 'Atmanirbhar Bharat' initiative, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Sunday said that they would benefit from the new agriculture-related Bills once these become laws. He also spoke about the rich Indian tradition of story-telling which, said, was needed to rejuvenate the family system.

Addressing the 69th edition of his monthly radio address 'Mann Ki Baat', Modi pointed out that farm growers had benefited when fruits and vegetables were taken off the ambit of the Agriculture Produce Marketing Committee Act in 2014 and now other farmers would benefit too. The Prime Minister noted that in the recent past, the agriculture sector has been liberated from many restrictions and has tried to break free from many myths. He shared the example of Kanwar Chauhan, a farmer from Haryana, who used to face "great difficulties" in marketing his fruits and vegetables outside the mandi, but in 2014, fruits and vegetables were excluded from the APMC Act, which "benefited him". Farmers would be able to send their produce wherever they want without old restrictions and get a good price, said the prime minister.

He also talked about Tamil Nadu Banana farmers' company, a collective of farmers, which purchased hundreds of metric tons of vegetables, fruits and bananas from nearby villages during the lockdown, and supplied a vegetable combo kit to Chennai. He mentioned the 'Irrada Farmer Producer' group from Lucknow who, during the lockdown, procured fruits and vegetables directly from the cultivators' fields, and sold directly in the markets of Lucknow, free from the middlemen. Talking about India's rich tradition of storytelling, PM

Modi said that "our stories are gaining popularity again." "We have had a tradition of storytelling. This is an ancient method of narrating stories. Kathakali Shebam has also been part of this. Different types of folklore are prevalent in our country," he said. "But there are issues with some of the families. Some families have lost touch with their values," he said, adding that stories can help reinvigorate such families.

"There has been a thriving tradition of telling stories in India. There is an important tradition of storytelling in Tamil Nadu and Kerala. It is called 'Kuttu' said PM Modi, talking about the various forms of storytelling prevalent in India. Modi spoke to people involved in this field. It included a group of women who run a part of this. Different types of folklores have been reported while only 215 such incidents were reported during this period last year. In 2020-21, ₹600 crore has been provided in the budget for the scheme and ₹548.20 crore has been released to the states well before time to ensure they can take up the activities in advance.

Every winter, not just Delhi but also large parts of north India are frequently enveloped in a thick blanket of smog, caused by air pollution from vehicular and industrial emissions mixing with fog. The burning of paddy stubble in the agricultural fields of Haryana and Punjab is often cited as a major cause of this unhealthy smog. This year, health experts fear that the effects of COVID-19, which primarily causes respiratory problems, would be worsened by heightened air pollution due to smog and smoke from the annual stubble burning. The burning of stubble emits large amounts of toxic pollutants like Methane, Carbon Monoxide and carcinogenic polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons.

'Indian population still far from achieving herd immunity against Covid'

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

Amid rising number of Covid-19 cases and fatalities, Union Health Minister Dr Harshvardhan on Sunday said that Indian population is still far from achieving herd immunity against COVID-19 as shown by Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) second Serology Survey and there is no room for complacency. Dr Harshvardhan also said that the ICMR expert panel is examining reinfection cases. A total of 88,600 new cases and 1,124 deaths have been reported in the past 24 hours in the country.

While interacting with social media users during 'Sunday Samsad-3', the Minister said: The findings of the second serology survey are going to be released soon. "But second sero survey indications are that we are far from having achieved any kind of herd immunity which necessitates that all of us should continue to follow COVID appropriate behaviour.

"The first sero-survey of May 2020 revealed that the nationwide prevalence of novel coronavirus infection was only 0.73 per cent," he said. The Minister also talked about the cases of reinfections being reported from the country saying that the "ICMR is also actively investigating and researching reports of reinfection and although the number of reinfection cases is negligible at the moment the government is fully seized of the importance of the matter."

Dr Harshvardhan discouraged the wide usage of investi-gational therapies such as remdesivir and plasma therapies. "Government has issued regular advisories regarding the rational use of investigational therapies. The private hospitals have also been advised against routine use of these investigational therapies:

The doctors in the States/UTs are being made aware of the therapies. The Union Health Minister also dispelled fears regarding the phased opening of schools and advised on proper protocol to be followed while visiting salons and hair-spa. India has been recording higher number of recoveries than the new cases for several consecutive days in the recent past. In the last 24 hours, 92,043 new recoveries have been reported in the last 24 hours in the country, 76 per cent of the new recovered cases are found in 10 States/UTs, said a senior health official adding that Maharashtra continues to top the list. for 'common variety' paddy at ₹1,868 per quintal and for 'A' grade variety at ₹1,888 per quintal for the current year. On Saturday, the Centre had announced purchase of the crops at MSP to placate the farmers across the country who were up in arms against the recently passed Farmers Bill which has got the President sanction on Sunday. The NCDC loan is supposed to assist the States or the State Marketing Federations in undertaking paddy procurement operations in a timely manner through their respective cooperative organizations.

Govt mulls eco-friendly CNG/LPG boats at tourist places

PNS ■ NEW DELHI

The Government is mulling to substitute petrol, diesel and kerosene in boats operating at tourists spots across the country with environment-friendly CNG/LPG fuel. This was stated by Union Petroleum Minister Dharmendra Pradhan at a virtual event held here on the occasion of World Tourism Day marked on Sunday.

Talking about sustainable environment, the Minister said that he was keen to take it further by substituting petrol, diesel, kerosene etc in operating boats at tourist spots with CNG/LPG which are pollution-free.

In fact, in Varanasi an initiative has already been undertaken in this regard with the local administration after consultation with the locals are planning to replace the pollution causing petrol driven boats at over 84 ghats of the Ganga river with the green fuel CNG. Pradhan also emphasised upon using battery operated vehicles in and around tourist spots. With Covid-19 playing spoilsports with the international travel, Union Tourism Minister Pralhad Singh Patel urged every citizen to visit at least 15 destinations in his country by 2022 to promote domestic tourism. He said that the Ministry has launched the Dekho Apna Desh (DAD) initiative early this year with the objective of creating awareness among the citizens about the rich heritage and culture of the country, encouraging citizens to travel widely within the country and enhancing tourist footfalls leading to development of local economy and creation of jobs at the local level. To create mass awareness, the Ministry has also launched an online DAD pledge and Quiz on the MyGov.in platform. The online pledge and Quiz are open to all for participation. Pradhan further said that the programme will help in enhancing the overall experience of the tourists, who would benefit from the knowledge of the local tourist facilitators and it will also help in creating employment opportunities even in the remotest parts of the country. This year United Nations World Tourism Organisation (UNWTO) has designated 2020 as the Year of Tourism and Rural Development. "This Year is an opportunity to promote the potential of tourism to create jobs and opportunities. It can also advance inclusion and highlight the unique role tourism can play in preserving and promoting natural and cultural heritage and curbing urban migration," said a senior official from the Ministry.

India drowns out Pak

Modi seizes the solemnity of the UNGA session to prioritise pandemic management as Imran Khan gets stuck on Kashmir

The United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) session this year is significant in more ways than one. It is the first virtual session, the first being held under the shadow of the pandemic and the first reset effort when de-globalisation and protectionism spin the narrative of the day as the world stands divided between polarities. It also happens to be the 75th anniversary of the august institution, and, therefore, a time to step back for member-countries and redefine their participatory role and contribution in a post-pandemic world. The theme is resonant of our times and at the same time loaded with possibilities. "The Future we want, the United Nations

we need: reaffirming our collective commitment to multilateralism — confronting COVID-19 through effective multilateral action." But Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan overrode the solemnity of the occasion and the geopolitical re-adjustment it demands by raising the Kashmir issue again and launching a diatribe against its changed status, ramming the same paragraphs of his earlier speeches. The world has accepted the constitutional space within which India abrogated Article 370 and has long turned a deaf ear to Khan's persistent chorus. But that has not stopped him from trying to "internationalise" the issue, even at the risk of appearing petty in the middle of an unprecedented world crisis. India's First Secretary in the Permanent Mission to the UN, Mijito Vinito, walked out when Khan started his rant and availing the right of response, made a pointed retort. As all the video speeches by world leaders had been pre-recorded, India did have an inkling of what was to come. But Prime Minister Narendra Modi left the rebuttal to officials and himself claimed the high moral ground by highlighting India's role as a "pharmacy to the world" while elaborating on its contribution to global cooperation against COVID-19 by aiding more than 150 countries. He also prioritised India's role as a South-South development partner, especially in the context of the India-UN development partnership fund and reiterated the pledge to take on global terrorism. By highlighting India's global commitment to welfare and respect of rule-based laws, he even negotiated a better role for India in the UN and sought reforms. This was a smart move, aligning India's objectives with the world imperatives and dismissing Pakistan's moves as unworthy of reaction from Modi himself. Khan's provocation has clearly not worked up either opinions or compelled Modi to dignify that with a reaction. And except Turkey, which echoed similar concerns on Kashmir, there was no taker for Pakistan's fresh tirade against us. That, too, because the latter has convinced the former that together they need to set the agenda for a neo-Islamic world as modern nations, considering the Arab world had accepted India and had been co-opted by the US to establish a working relationship with Israel.

Running promptly out of alliances and friends, and given the US' pro-India tilt, Pakistan is progressively getting aggressive on territorial gains for itself. It desperately wants to legitimise its illegal hold on Kashmir to counter India's abrogation of Article 370. That's the reason why it announced elections for the legislative assembly of Gilgit-Baltistan on November 15. Of course, India has protested against this forced conversion of a military occupied territory into an autonomous political entity but the fact is Pakistan wants to justify it as a reaction to India's move and is hoping to internationalise the issue once again. Besides, elections would also give legitimacy to the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor, which runs through Gilgit-Baltistan, thereby riling up India further. This follows its earlier declaration to redraw its maps and appropriate what it fancifully feels India owes it, parts of Kashmir, Ladakh and Junagadh in Gujarat. This is not backed by any credible reasoning, support groups, historical reasoning or legal validity. That's why Pakistan's cartographic offensive seems part of a larger Chinese design in the region and not just its independent move as it clearly shows that Kashmir shares a border with China. Held off by India on Ladakh that seems to have driven a wedge in China's greater plan to control the Karakoram by squeezing us with salami-slicing, Pakistan's territorial claims are clearly intended to exhaust our capacities and opening up a second flashpoint along our borders. Pakistan is simultaneously heating up the Line of Control (LoC); its ceasefire violations and infiltration bids have gone up by about 60 per cent this year. If recent reports are to be believed, then the Chinese have had a series of meetings with their Pakistani counterparts in Gilgit-Baltistan and have been aiding Pakistan clandestinely to revive old terror networks against India. Chinese drones have been deployed for surveillance missions along the LoC. Debt-trapped by China, Pakistan forgets that such unilateralism will begot unilateralism from the Indian side as well. And hurt its interests. The new map is nothing but an adventurist version of its 1947-48 map and negates all bilateral agreements that came after it, including the 1972 Shimla Agreement. What then would be the cascading impact on all subsequent treaties, like those on water-sharing? What about our valid land claims? Pakistan doesn't realise that its Kashmir strategy is not working anymore and exploited militancy is tiring out in the Valley. And China may use it for posturing but apart from nagging India with its proxy, will delink itself and go for a one-on-one strategic engagement with us for its larger concerns. Pakistan has misread its transactional and inscrutable all-weather friend.

Much needed closure

The Government should accept the arbitration verdict and draw a line under the Vodafone issue

Pranab Mukherjee was a consummate politician and when the man, who was India's 13th President, passed away recently, he was fondly remembered by all across the political spectrum. Yet, one of Mukherjee's legacies as Finance Minister was the unfortunate retrospective tax legislation that he included in one of the Finance Bills he presented. This singular piece of legislation, for which the entire Cabinet of the time, including Dr Manmohan Singh, must share responsibility, ruined India's reputation as an investment destination. It was in May 2012 that the Parliament passed the Finance Act under which various provisions of the Income Tax Act, 1961, were amended with retrospective effect to tax any gain on transfer of shares in a non-Indian company which derived substantial value from underlying Indian assets. And the exemplar of this legislation was the case the Government fought against British telecom giant Vodafone. Despite losing the case in the Supreme Court, tax authorities and the Government doubled down and the case went to arbitration in London, where even the member appointed by the ruled that India's demand was found in Vodafone's favour. The international arbitration tribunal ruled that India's demand in past taxes was in fact a breach of fair treatment under the bilateral investment protection pact. Vodafone India was later on merged with Aditya Birla Group's telecom company Idea.

Mukherjee had logic on his side when he wanted to tax deals where entities operating in the Indian market were bought and sold, even if they were not "based" in India. However, to make any act of legislation retrospective is not only unfair, it is also a confidence buster for investors, the thinking being that if it can be done once, it can be done again. When Narendra Modi said that he wanted to make doing business easier in India, he should have started by withdrawing the case against Vodafone and some other companies like Cairn. Maybe it wasn't done lest he be accused of being friendly to industrialists or the tax authorities thought that they had a good case (as they always think) but now that the arbitration case has been lost, it is time to end this once and for all. This was a clear instance of tax terrorism and India's reputation suffered as a result. At a time we need to roll out the red carpet for all investors, that is the least that can be done right now.

Free market or Company Kaj?

Corporations and agro-processors can demand graded products for MSP. Otherwise they may not buy at all or at reduced prices. Where will the small farmer go then?

INDIRA SHEKHAR SINGH

A Bharat bandh, millions of farmers on the streets, eight Opposition leaders Democratic Alliance (NDA) partners and Rashtriya Swamasevak Sangh (RSS) affiliates openly rebelling against the Government, these scenes have been dominating our news cycles. Yet Prime Minister Narendra Modi left the rebuttal to officials and himself claimed the high moral ground by highlighting India's role as a "pharmacy to the world" while elaborating on its contribution to global cooperation against COVID-19 by aiding more than 150 countries. Theoretically, the Bills appear well-intentioned but the devil is always in the implementation. Overall, they aim to empower farmers to sell from farm-gate into the process end of empowering, corporations and traders to expand their businesses and swamp the farm to fork chain. A new wave of liberalisation just rumbled into rural India. But many suspect the real agenda is generating "agri-dollars" and in the words of dissenting (Telangana Rashtra Samithi) MP Dr Keshava Rao, to "make an agriculture country into a corporate country". The Government argues that farmers are not free to sell anywhere because of a "corrupt and middlemen-infested Agricultural Produce Market Committee (APMC)". Hence, break the APMC and free the farmers. Now corporations and any other person with a PAN card can directly procure produce and sell to the APMC as they don't have any means of transportation, forget selling outside their geographic limits. The majority of farmers are marginal. This means they only grow enough to feed their families and sell a little surplus to the markets. From the village field, away from the town, they sometimes find it convenient to sell to local traders. Most of them begin the sowing season by taking credit for seeds and fertilisers and repay them through post-harvest sales. The tenant farmers are worse off. They want to sell at MSP but due to the trader-cum-corporate farmer relationship and market forces, which have an upper hand in price fixation, they cannot. So, on the face of it, liberalisation seems to be a good step as "farmers can sell anywhere". But is it? Here we must go by the warning given by MP Professor Manoj Jha to the Rajya Sabha: "Today the farmer is weak, highly indebted and trapped in the cycle of over-production and low income. His monthly household surplus is under ₹1,500 per month. This has already been destroyed by COVID-19. Each harvest season, his input and production costs rise, yet he cannot even sell at a minimum support price (MSP). As per reports, only six per cent farmers sell at MSP the remaining 94 per cent are dependent on markets and traders outside the rural India. But many suspect the real agenda is generating "agri-dollars" and in the words of dissenting (Telangana Rashtra Samithi) MP Dr Keshava Rao, to "make an agriculture country into a corporate country". The Government argues that farmers are not free to sell anywhere because of a "corrupt and middlemen-infested Agricultural Produce Market Committee (APMC)". "You have replaced the rohu and hilsa with the sharks. You will bring the East India Company back to India." He was referring to traders as the small fish and the big agri-business corporations as "sharks" that have no personal connection with farmers. In fact, most farmers still trust their eco-system of licenced commission agents as they deliver on prices and guarantee sales. Given agri-dollars in their pockets and new reform policies, food majors can break any market and create monopolies, forcing the farmers to sell cheaper or let their produce rot. Not convinced? Let's go back to the dal scam of 2015. After an investigation by the IT department, a scam valued at ₹2.5 lakh crore was unearthed. The consumers paid the price by buying arhar dal at ₹120/kg. It was reported that a cartel of agri-business companies was responsible for buying pulses at low prices through the supply chain networks and hoarding it overseas, creating artificial scarcity and profiting immensely by selling the stocks back to Indians at high prices. The Government used the Essential Commodities Act (ECA) to bust hoarders and recovered 75,000 metric tonnes of dal. But now, even the ECA limits on hoarding and stocking are being done away with. In 2006, Bihar removed the APMC regime and the real incomes of farmers in the State have fallen while private investment is yet to move into the State. Only traders are carting produce from Bihar all the way to Punjab to sell in mandis. Many vouch for APMC reforms and not its destruction as the regulated market is still the farmer's best chance at getting MSP. This is evidenced by Punjab. Won't rural India be engulfed by corporate markets that will ruin APMC systems and farmers' rights as the growers will be left unprotected overnight without a transitional and transparent system codified? The Samajwadi Party MP Professor Ram Gopal Yadav, asked if these reforms can assure the farmers' good prices? No, because the difference between APMC and corporate markets would be of "BSNL and Jio", he said. It was Biju Janata Dal MP Dr Amar Patnaik, who had first warned against "cartelisation". In effect, the private sector will be a phoenix rising from the ashes of our public infrastructure. The biggest problem in procurement, as we have seen globally, is grading. Corporations and agro-processors can demand graded products for MSP and if the gunny bag is ungraded, they may not buy at all, or at a reduced price. This is common practice, which results in huge losses for farmers and food security of the world. Traditionally traders graded the produce. With them gone, will farmers bear grading costs? Naturally, if they do, MSP can never be realised. There are also serious questions on post-harvest infrastructure and warehousing in rural India. Will the farmers, due to bad storage facilities, make distress sales? The new reforms favour the big farmers and agri-businesses but are detrimental for small and marginal farmers (below two hectares) that constitute 86.21 per cent of our total land holdings. Further, once the market forces evolve, unless MSP is made a legal right or Government procurement increases, achieving it will be a challenge. Contract farming is spurious. Agri-businesses and US model is enough to deduce how the contracting parties (agri-business firms) force the farmers to buy their recommended seeds, fertilisers and other inputs, often from their own vendors and at their prices. They also force the farmers to buy more equipment, increasing the cost of production each year. If the farmers don't abide, they don't buy the produce and legal proceedings follow. In India, the poultry sector is a good example of how the owners have been reduced to farm hands on their own property. And to take two steps back, PepsiCo filed a case against Gujarat farmers in a fair trial. PepsiCo has got more flak as many potato farmers committed suicide due to their procurement policies in West Bengal. The stories of contract used to exploit farmers are endless. The next big problem is no small and marginal farmer has access to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate and District Magistrate. How many of them will be able to go to the already over-burdened official to settle trade disputes? Even their journey for justice will become a nightmare given their literacy levels and manipulation by the bigger parties. The companies or traders will not be criminally liable; this is a regressive step favouring big agri-businesses. Modi needs to critically think about rising farmer suicides and doubling farmers' income by 2022. He ought to dispel the farmers' doubts and insist on specifics and mechanisms like ensuring the retail buyers do not go beneath a cut-off price. Otherwise, the haze of silence can be ominous. One fears the day when the words of Dravidu Munnetra Kazhagam (DMK) MP PKS Elangovan come true — "To sell the farmers their own land for the big cities and rural houses... It will kill the farmers and make them a commodity." (The writer is programme director for policy and outreach, National Seed Association of India.)

Protect the voters

Sir — Dates for the Bihar Assembly elections have been announced with special provisions, keeping in mind the ongoing pandemic. To make sure that the polling doesn't become a super-spreader event, the Election Commission (EC) has issued a set of measures. The election will be held in three phases. Polling or paramedical staff will conduct thermal screening of voters at the entry point of each polling station, the guidelines said. They will have more than several core single-use gloves for voters to put on before using the electronic voting machine to cast their vote. Over seven lakh units of hand sanitiser and about six lakh personal protective equipment (PPE) kits have also been arranged. For Covid patients and those with high fever, the EC has arranged an extra voting hour under the strict supervision of health authorities. This will be the first major election to be held in the middle of the worldwide Coronavirus crisis and it is yet to be seen if the above provisions will be enough to keep the voters safe. Bihar has

Hasty passage of farm and labour Bills

Given that the putative benefits of big structural reforms such as demonetisation and GST are not within sight, it is difficult to judge the likely impacts of the new farm and labour Bills. These moves will have enormous implications irrespective of whether they have any great merit or not. What is more important is the timing of these reforms. It is ironic that they come in the middle of a pandemic-hit economy. At a time when the overall national income has already shrunk 24 per cent and the economy faces massive demand compression, people cannot understand the logic of making these hasty moves. Structural reforms should be made when the economic agents are prepared for the change. Also, it is of paramount importance that a democratic Government communicates with people before enacting and enforcing new laws. There is no point in beginning communication exercise after committing the act. The corporatisation of agriculture and the provision for more flexibility to companies to freely hire and fire workers will adversely affect both farmers and labourers. There is also a greater chance that the cartelised industry giants will dictate the terms in both cases. In that sense, they could still end up being exploited as before. Obviously, these laws are only aimed at benefiting big corporate giants.

Bihar elections

Sir — With the dates of the Bihar Assembly elections being announced, the fate of the ruling Janata Dal (United) and the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP)-led Government, headed by Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, will be decided. Under fire for badly handling the Covid outbreak and the returnee migrants, Nitish Kumar might find staying in power rather challenging. This can also mean a transfer of a huge chunk of voters to Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD), which along with the rest of the Opposition bloc, the Congress and smaller allies, faced a humiliating defeat in last year's parliamentary polls. The stakes are also high for the Congress as the verdict will decide whether the grand old party can improve its tally of 27 legislators.

Mixed feelings and hard reality

It is the best of times, it is the worst of times. Each day brings forth its old cacophony of contradictory claims and overwhelming statistics

VINAYSHIL GAUTAM

The global pandemic has sired some new phrases and expressions. One of them is "the new normal" is the ever-changing normal and another is "progressive digitalisation". Between "the changing normal" and "progressive digitalisation" is endemic anxiety over a situation totally out of our control. One doesn't know where it began and frankly one doesn't know where it could end. In the meanwhile, the act of governance of 130 billion people continues to spawn a large number of contradictions. It began with the slogan "jaan hai, toh jahan hai" (health is wealth). All shutters were closed in a matter of hours and events were allowed to run their course. Many in the power circles claimed to be surprised at the mass exodus on foot the lockdown triggered. Teenage daughters and pre-teen sons were seen pedalling their fathers and mothers on bicycles and tricycle carts to destinations they thought of as home, hundreds of kilometres away. A child perched on a suitcase on wheels was seen being pulled by a mother on a 700 km-long journey home. The distressing images were so many that even those who sensationalise such things in the media failed to call them "haunting images."

Some news channels launched a campaign to extend the period of the lockdown when the first three weeks were about to end. The powers that be obliged. The believers celebrated the extension of the lockdown period, which was then prolonged all over again. By the time the actual unlocking process started, many had almost forgotten how to begin again. This time around, the new slogan was "jaan bi, jahaan bi" (health as well as wealth). There were various permutations of the early "un-lockdown." Inter-State barriers got diluted, inter-district constraints played havoc and many "innovative" constraints surfaced.

Even today, in a city which is the proverbial centre of power, pick up a phone and call a landline of the metropolitan telephone service. The ring is preceded by a recorded voice message, which when translated into English, goes something like this: "In the entire country, the process of un-lockdown has begun. In such circumstances, move out of the house only when it is totally necessary..." The political masters proclaim that the "un-lockdown" phase is necessary to encourage economic activity. One is not quite clear how such telephonic alert on ringing out of the house would encourage economic activity. When this question was posed to the head of an information technology company, he chuckled and said, "Surely this is to encourage online business!" Pointing out that internet capacities are stretched to the limit, several communication platforms have drafted their amateurish connectivity regulations. This is something few have patience with. The endless webinars often get interrupted and the screen blinks that the "internet connectivity of xyz is weak."

Underlined, the economically weaker sections, desperate to keep the learning of their kids alive, scout around for second hand smartphones. To borrow from a much-celebrated English novel: "People were all going to heaven and all of them were going the other way. It is the best of times, it is the worst of times." Each day brings forth its old cacophony of contradictory claims and overwhelming statistics. One news channel proclaimed that 17 per cent of the world's total cases of Covid are in India — among the highest figures country-wise. Practically no virus-detection test claims to be definitive. Being positive means an interruption on where you could stay to get cured. Being negative leaves open the possibility of you still being infected. A statistician commented that a similar situation was reported 100 years ago when the Spanish Flu struck Mumbai and subsequently the rest of India. Indeed, the colonisers were to "blame" for that sorry state of affairs. After so much fanfare over "the great revolution" the Indian healthcare system has undergone, the tally of victims today remains similar in global percentages to that in the times of the Spanish Flu. In the meanwhile, one witnesses a state of policy reforms in education, administration, maritime-related matters and of course agriculture. Each intervention threatens a "new dawn." Believing in it is a great source of joy. One may suffer from COVID-19 or simple pharyngitis. One may or may not have access to a simple medical advice, which may or may not be clear or effective, but the sheer joy of living in such "pulsating digital times" is surely a "unique" experience.

In the meanwhile, a few business houses move from being successful to being even more successful. Mandis to ports are variously covered. We should be "grateful" that enterprises keep the wheels of the Indian economy lubricated. That apart, the poor pensioner — especially if he is on government pension — has seen his pension revised for several years since the last Finance Commission while other groups of employees have raked in their increments. Yet in the true Indian spirit, we firmly believe that "we shall overcome."

Bills to grow farmers' income

Reforms will have a net positive impact as the agricultural sector moves from a subsidy-centric to a market-oriented approach, encouraging the agripreneurial aspirations of the growers

BINDU DALMIA

Tough times are testing the most resilient of leaders globally. Despite the nation being confronted with serial adversities, Modi 2.0 retains and compounds the Prime Minister's political capital by powering on with the reforms agenda, regardless of the clamour by "compulsive contrarians", as the late Arun Jaitley referred to the Opposition.

Since the lockdown, the Centre has pressed ahead with a series of incremental reforms: From the Atmanirbharta series to the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020 and the trilogy of agriculture reforms. Then there are the three new Bills intended to consolidate social security for migrant labourers, which will impact 80 per cent of the population employed in the informal sector. The series of post-pandemic legislations cannot be viewed in silos but must be seen as a set of structural and incremental reforms aimed at rebooting the economy and improving the ease of doing business (EODB) for farmers.

The post-Corona "new normal" challenges every vector of economic growth to optimise and conserve resource efficiencies. This is so that each vertical of the economy turns self-sustaining and profitable. Agriculture is one vertical that has been constantly dependent on subsidies, doles and welfareism. This has been a constant drain on the exchequer as it was compelled to fund an uneconomic sector. To make matters worse, the farm sector delivered only subsistence legislations to the farmers, a point validated by the NSSO (National Sample Survey Office) estimates which show that rural indebtedness escalated by 12 per cent between 1993 to 2013.

Mitigating agrarian distress requires reducing dependency on cultivation as a source of livelihood and moving towards value-added manufacturing. Because a whopping 58 per cent of our workforce is dependent on farm income, but contributes only 17 per cent to India's Gross Domestic Product (GDP). At present, agriculture can only deliver a growth rate of 3.4 per cent per annum, whereas we need the sector to increase its productivity to contribute to at least 10 per cent to the GDP. A lift rural India out of poverty, increasing per capita earnings can only happen through expansion of economic activity by firing equally on all four cylinders of the economy: Agriculture, manufacturing, exports and services.

Essentially, the intent of any reform must be gauged by the degree of inclusivity embedded in its blueprint." Considering that 500 million of our workforce is engaged in farming, the landmark reforms will have a net positive impact as the agricultural sector moves from a subsidy-centric to a market-oriented approach, encouraging the agripreneurial aspirations of the growers.

The agr-reforms, though politically sensitive, were much needed after 73 years of independence in order to transit towards a "One Nation, One Market." Each farm Bill enables this transition differently. But this article specifically focusses on the Farmers (Empowerment and Protection) Agreement on Price Assurance and Farm Services Bill, 2020, which will increase efficiencies in the low-profit agriculture sector by opening it up to contract farming.

Why is corporatising agriculture a friendly reform? India, having matured to a farm-surplus economy, is today more in need of focussing on "surplus-management" to decrease wastage. This will increase farmers' profitability by ramping up cold storage facilities and food-processing infrastructure that will lead to value-added manufacturing. The annual agri-wastage is estimated at ₹92,000 crore, so corporatisation of the sector will enable building a seamless rural-to-consumer supply chain.

Contrary to allegations that the legislation is loaded in favour of corporates, I wish to substantiate through empirical evidence how corporatising the sector benefited farmers. It profited growers by underwriting their seasonal produce through a negotiated pre-fixed price with corporates that offered income surety. It also encouraged a shift from mono-cropping to crop diversification, bought in new technologies and helped in financing and modernisation. This is best evidenced in the case of contract farming as seen from the models of the Amul paradigm, the e-chaulaps and the Patanjali models of sourcing from farmers' collectives.

The active involvement of farmers in shared initiatives creates a sense of co-ownership as seen in the successful prototype of the Amul cooperative which was legendary in leading the White Revolution. Today, India is the largest food product FMCG outfit with a ₹52,000 crore turnover. The winning philosophy of Amul's strategy is that it treated every farmer as a stakeholder by offering him higher prices for the produce while purchasing, yet sold it to the consumers at marginal profits.

I am guilty of being politically incorrect by validating another example on how pursuing a successful model that it treated every farmer as a stakeholder by offering him higher prices for the produce while purchasing, yet sold it to the consumers at marginal profits, which decreased poverty rates from 10.2 per cent to 1.7 per cent in the last six years. And one of the ways it achieved this was by unliking farmers onto Alibaba's e-commerce platforms of the Taobao Village.

The Bill on contract farming is a win-win for both suppliers and marketers. The collectives gain by tapping into multiple synergies derived from the corporates' ability to support post-harvest logistics, processing, packaging, branding, retailing and their access to a wide distribution network. Marginal and small farmers own less than five hectares of land, so when they form collectives, the aggregation favours regular income, and, in fact, serves to enhance their collective economic and bargaining power.

Narendra Modi had promised to double farmers' income by 2022. The status quo in their earnings will remain if this incremental reform is not translated into multiple synergies in doubling farmers' income without unduly raising consumer prices, even as input costs continuously increase. To boost profitability, farmers need the skill sets at the command of corporates who have deeper insights into the ever-changing consumer needs.

To cater to the altered behavioural profile of the post-contagion consumers mean that they now have diminished purchasing power, yet seek superior nutritional benefits, better hygiene and contactless doorstep delivery. Also, the share of cereal in middle-income households is reducing in favour of fruits, vegetables and milk. Demand for value-added processed foods is on the rise. Increasing health and wellness awareness, too, is generating demand for a wider variety of foodgrains. This calls for a fundamental transformation for the farmer, from selling whatever was his traditional produce to adapting to what the consumer actually wants.

When demand-driven value chains enter the sector, they bring enormous benefits to the growers as they are able to align production with market demands. Because, at the end of the day, increased crop productivity alone is not sufficient to raise farmer incomes if market needs do not support such production.

Eventually, the Centre must aim at building consensus by assuaging apprehensions of farmers, who are being misled through fear-mongering by vested interests, lest they succeed in sabotaging a progressive legislation, as in the case of aborting the Land Acquisition Bill. Though agriculture is not in the Concurrent List and remains a State subject, as the new laws deal with inter-State trade, it becomes a Central subject. This should hold up to legal scrutiny. The Centre is then well within its rights to enact laws and no State Government that challenged this provision has won in the past.

Besides, over time, once farming turns into a lucrative industry, it holds the potential of widening the taxpayer base and could then be considered for being transferred to the Union list. The Centre should in fact aim at taxing farmers thus far exempt from taxation. Especially the rich growers with over 10 acres of land. A fair yardstick of evaluating taxation herein would be to take three-year averages, as there are annual variations in produce due to climate-risks.

Ultimately, India must harness the potential to transform into a meg food processing hub by optimising efficiency, as the farmer, too, aspires to move up in Maslow's hierarchy of needs and go beyond the Congress era slogan of roti, kapra aur makaan (food, cloth and housing) "to partake in a thriving modern economy."

When the ugly past comes knocking

People wonder how did Pakistani society come to accept for 11 years the draconian laws and ordinances that Zia passed during his rule?

NADEEM PARACHA

Recently, when social media in Pakistan exploded, condemning the rape of a woman on the Lahore motorway and the insensitive words used by Lahore's Capital City Police Officer (CCPO) — the victims there were also folks who suggested that the punishments for zina (rape and premarital sex) introduced in 1979 by the Zia-ul-Haq dictatorship, were successful in curbing sexual assaults in Pakistan. It wasn't hard for those who disagreed with this perception to produce facts and figures to negate this claim.

But this piece is not about that. Instead, it is a response to those who were left baffled after learning the dynamics and technicalities of Zia's laws in this context and inquired how society had accepted such laws for 11 years — the number of years the dictator General Zia was in power.

First of all, since women were most affected by these laws, which actually saw scores of them ending up in jail while their tormentors were set free, there was constant resistance from various women's organisations against Zia. In fact, bodies such as the Women's Action Forum (WAF) found themselves pushed on to the frontlines of the resistance after many mainstream political outfits opposed to Zia were neutralised through arrests, jail sentences, disappearances, torture and exile.

Zia extracted power from above by being part of the military establishment and through the support that he received from the US and Saudi Arabia. To draw political support from below, he nourished those segments and constituencies that had been developed and activated by religious parties during the 1977 movement against the ZA Bhutto Government from 1972-77.

One can assume that had he failed to cultivate support from these segments, he would have struggled to introduce the series of controversial laws that his regime imposed in the name of faith. Nevertheless, in 1988 when he passed away, he left behind a country rescued from the US and Saudi Arabia, the growth of militant sectarian and "Islamist" outfits whose leaders were brought into the mainstream to preach and practise armed jihad, a rise in hate crimes against minority sects and other religions, an onslaught on women's rights and a generation of young Pakistanis ravaged by drug addiction, gun violence and embroiled in deadly ethnic and sectarian conflicts. Corruption in State and Government institutions, too, increased when the regime repealed anti-corruption laws enacted in 1973. Zia introduced "development funds" for members of his hand-picked national and provincial Assemblies and wrote off bank loans taken by his supporters. Many senior officers of the armed forces and members of Zia's Cabinet were reported to have been involved in the narcotics trade and money laundering scams.

So why did so many Pakistanis go along with the charade of a regime which promised them a "new Pakistan" by claiming that it was going to finally create an "Islamic State" that it insisted was what Pakistan's founders had committed to deliver?

An increase in the rate of literacy from 1972 onwards meant that more urban Pakistanis were exposed to the writings and theories of scholars operating outside the intellectual and political realm of the "Muslim Modernism" of the country's founders. By the late 1970s, they had begun to question the sincerity and feasibility of the modernist project. Because of the impact of the loss of East Pakistan in 1971, many tended to agree with the anti-modernists that the project had been engineered to keep an economic and political elite in power. An increase in the literacy rate saw young women from the countryside emerging as petty bourgeoisie and trendsetters. What's more, when these classes came out on the streets during the 1977 anti-Bhutto movement, they were backed by the industrialist and business classes, who were repulsed by the "Left-leaning" Bhutto regime. The movement's slogan was Shahah Law. So in Zia's promise of an Islamic system, they could identify with what they believed was their true heritage and calling, whereas the industrialists and the businessmen yearned for a strong ruler who would reset the country's economic direction back to what it had been before Bhutto's chaotic "Socialism."

According to Riaz Hassan in the anthology, Pakistan at Seventy, an "Islamisation" process, even though had important social and political consequences. A large segment of the increasing population led a precarious existence, subjected to all kinds of hardships. This frustration generated a considerable amount of disillusionment with modernist governments and their policies of economic and social development. The persistent insecurity of urban existence over the years resulted in the emergence of various religious movements. The number of mosques in the cities multiplied and, through them, religious influences further permeated social life. This was shaped into a powerful segment and constituency by the religious parties and then nourished and expanded by the Zia dictatorship.

These segments provided considerable support for Zia's so-called "Islamisation" process. Even though those protesting against Zia's programmes and laws often managed to embarrass the regime by getting their point of view published in some Western newspapers, most human and civil rights activists and political workers went unheard even in the most liberal and democratic European countries.

This was because of the fact that much of the efforts of the media in these countries and their governments were focussed on the civil war in Afghanistan. The US and its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) largely looked the other way when the Zia regime was using religion to commit open human rights violations and intense political repression. The most the West was willing to offer at the time was political asylum to those thrown out or volunteering to move out of Pakistan because of the oppressive atmosphere here. For the US and its European allies, Zia was too important an asset to upset in the Cold War against "Soviet expansionism."

These are some of the prominent factors behind the dictatorship's success in unleashing laws and Ordinances which, today, would be almost impossible to enact without being vehemently challenged within and outside the country. However, attempts to retain and re-ignite them are still very much part of Pakistan's political playbook even today. (Courtesy: Dawn)

Concern is warranted that Zhenhua Data has profiled the children and partners of prominent Australians with photographs, news articles and criminal histories. The risk of online impersonations, deep fakes and other distressing forms of disinformation attack is real. FIRST PRESIDENTIAL DEBATE

How Trump, Biden are preparing

Washington: Ahead of the first debate-stage matchup between President Donald Trump and his Democratic challenger Joe Biden, each campaign is promising a stark contrast in policy, personality and preparation.

the attack when he discussed his strategy on MSNBC. "I prepared to go out and make my case as to why I think he's failed and why I think the answers I have to proceed will help the American people, the American economy and make us safer internationally," Biden said, arguing that Trump won't persuade voters with broadside because "the people know the president is a liar."

Biden's campaign has been holding mock debate sessions featuring Bob Bauer, a senior Biden adviser and former White House general counsel, playing the role of Trump, according to a person with direct knowledge of the preparations who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss internal strategy. Bauer has not actually donned a Trump costume in line with Trump stand-ins from the past, but he is representing his style and expected strategy.

Trump, because the direction of this election has been pretty stable for a long time now, and he needs to shake it up as any candidate would who's behind," Carney added. "The question is, can that work? Trump and Biden are scheduled to meet on the debate stage for the first time Tuesday night at Case Western Reserve University and the Cleveland Clinic in Cleveland, Ohio. The 90-minute event moderated by Fox News host Chris Wallace is the first of three scheduled presidential debates. Vice President Mike Pence and California Sen. Kamala Harris, Biden's running mate, will also debate in October.

Others, including those close to Biden's campaign, do not expect the debates to fundamentally change the race no matter what happens, given voters' daily struggles with the pandemic and the economy. They also point to high-profile debates in past elections thought to be game-changing moments at the time but that ultimately had little lasting effect.

"I'm sure the president will throw everything he can at (Biden). My guess is that they're preparing for that — bombarding him with insults and weird digressions," said Jay Carney, a former aide to Biden and President Barack Obama.

For some, the debates represent the most important moments in the 2020 campaign's closing days, a rare opportunity for millions of voters to compare the candidates' policies and personalities side-by-side on prime-time television. Trump has been trailing Biden in the polls for the entire year, a reality that gives the president an urgent incentive to change the direction of the contest on national television if he can.

You say the lie long enough, keep repeating, repeating, repeating. It becomes common knowledge," Biden said, arguing that Trump to articulate a detailed vision for a second term. "He doesn't know how to debate the facts, because he's not that smart," Biden continued. "He doesn't know that many facts. He is being advised to avoid direct confrontations and instead redirect the conversation to more familiar campaign themes of unity and issues that matter most to voters: the economy, health care and the pandemic. "Arguing over what's, litigating whether what he's saying is accurate, that is not winning to Biden," said Jen Psaki, a former Obama aide who is close to Biden's team. "This is an opportunity to speak directly to the American people. His objective should be to speak directly to them, but not be pulled in by Trump. That is hard." Trump has not been doing any formal preparation, according to aides and allies who spoke on the condition of anonymity to discuss private conversations.

No set has been constructed and aides refused to say whether anyone is playing Biden. Trump, instead, has maintained that his best preparation is doing his job — particularly his frequent and often contentious interactions with reporters. White House aides also scheduled an ABC town hall last week, but they expect Trump to real voter questions for the first time in months in preparation for the second debate.

Privately some aides and allies are worried that Trump's lack of formal preparation will lead him to fall into the same hubris trap as other incumbents in their first general election debate. Obama, for example, famously struggled in his first matchup against Mitt Romney in 2012.

He's like Goebbels: Biden compares Donald to Nazi propagandist

AFP ■ WASHINGTON US Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden said he expects "personal attacks and lies" from Donald Trump in their first televised debate on Tuesday, comparing the Republican president to Nazi propaganda chief Joseph Goebbels.

As a result, Biden predicted, "it'll be mostly personal attacks and lies; but I think the American people are on to him." Trump himself never ceases to mock what he says is his rival's lack of dynamism, nicknaming him "Sleepy Joe" and attacking his mental acuity.

Goebbels," Biden said. "You say the lie long enough, keep repeating it, repeating it, repeating it, it becomes common knowledge." "It's not like it's going to come as a surprise. And so I'm prepared to go out and make my case as to why I think he's failed and why I think the answers I have to proceed will help the American people and the American economy, and make us safer internationally."

"It is going to be difficult," the former vice president acknowledged in an interview broadcast Saturday on MSNBC. "He's sort of like Goebbels," Biden said. "You say the lie long enough, keep repeating it, repeating it, repeating it, it becomes common knowledge." Biden said, arguing that Trump won't persuade voters with broadside because "the people know the president is a liar."

Biden urges Senate not to confirm Trump's court pick before polls

Washington, United States: Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden on Saturday called on the US Senate to refrain from confirming President Donald Trump's Supreme Court nominee until after the November 3 election. "The Senate should not act on this vacancy until after the American people select their next president and the next Congress," Biden said, just moments after Trump announced his nomination of Amy Coney Barrett to replace the late liberal justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Barrett, a staunch conservative, will get a "very quick" confirmation in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Fighting erupts between Armenia, Azerbaijan, 16 killed

Yerevan (Armenia): Fighting erupted anew on Sunday between Armenian and Azerbaijani forces over the disputed separatist region of Nagorno-Karabakh and a top territorial official said 16 people were killed and more than 100 wounded, while Azerbaijan's president said his military has suffered losses.

Armenia also claimed that two Azerbaijani helicopters were shot down and three Azerbaijani tanks were hit by artillery, but Azerbaijan's defense ministry rejected that claim.

Heavy fighting broke out in the morning in the region that lies within Azerbaijan but has been under the control of ethnic Armenian forces backed by Armenia since 1994 at the end of a separatist war. It was not immediately clear what sparked the fighting, the latest since clashes in July killed 16 people from both sides.

Nagorno-Karabakh authorities reported that shelling hit the regions capital of Stepanakert and the towns of Martakert and Martuni. Armenian Defense Ministry spokesman Artur Hovhannissyan also said Azerbaijan shelling hit within Armenian territory near the town of Vardenis.

Another Armenian Defense Ministry spokeswoman, Shushan Stepanyan, said "the Armenian side" shot down two helicopters and hit three tanks. Azerbaijan President Ilham Aliyev ordered martial law be imposed in some regions of the country and called for a curfew in major cities.

Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov "is conducting intensive contacts in order to induce the parties to cease fire and start negotiations to stabilize the situation," Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Maria Zakharova said.

In a televised address to the nation, Aliyev said that "the losses" among the Azerbaijani forces and the civilian population as a result of the Albanian Prime Minister Edi Rama, chairman of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, called on the sides to stop fighting.

S Korea returns Korean War remains of 117 Chinese soldiers

Beijing: The remains of 117 Chinese soldiers who died in the 1950-53 Korean War were returned to China on Sunday in an annual repatriation delayed this year by the coronavirus outbreak.

South Korea handed over the remains at a ceremony at Incheon airport outside Seoul, and a Chinese military transport plane flew them to Shenyang, a northeastern Chinese city near the North Korean border.

North Korea accuses South of intrusion to find dead official said its troops shot the official South Korea refused to flee after refusing to answer to questions. It said North Korea maintained troops were unable to find the official's body and burned the object he was floating on in line with anti-coronavirus law.

Seoul: North Korea accused South Korea of sending a spy boat across the disputed sea boundary to find the body of a South Korean official recently killed by North Korean troops, warning Sunday the intrusion could escalate tensions. South Korea denied the accusation.

"We urge the South side to immediately halt the intrusion across the military demarcation line in the West sea that may lead to escalation of tensions," the official Korean Central News Agency said. "It arouses our due vigilance as it may lead to another awful incident." Along with its denial, South Korea proposed a joint investigation to resolve discrepancies in each country's account of the North Korean official's death last week.

South Korea President Moon Jae-in met with his National Security Council on Sunday. Moon's office said the council viewed Kim's apology as a positive step and a joint investigation with North Korea to find out what happened to the official.

Most of the 117 remains were found in the North Korean side against U.S.-led forces in the South during the war on the Korean Peninsula.

Senior presidential official Suh Choo-suk said South Korea also asked North Korea to restore a suspended military hotline between the nations to facilitate communications.

This year's return, originally planned for the spring, was postponed for several months because of the spread of COVID-19.

Police arrest dozens during unauthorised Maryland car rally

Ocean City (US): More than 100 people have been arrested on criminal and traffic offenses during an unauthorised car rally in a Maryland city, where confrontations between participants and police were captured on videos.

The Baltimore Sun reports that police from neighbouring jurisdictions helped Ocean City police officers with crowd control at the H2oi' rally in the beach town. "This is not a car show and the majority of these visitors are not car enthusiasts," he said. "Our policing philosophy is to be friendly, fair and firm. Unfortunately, the disorderly behaviour and unruly crowds left no choice but to shift our philosophy and take additional steps to protect our officers and our community."

A video posted online shows an officer from the Maryland Department of Transportation's Police unit grabbing a man walking in a crosswalk and forcing him to the ground. A department spokeswoman said the man was arrested for disorderly conduct and that police were gathering more information about whether the officer followed the proper protocol.

Final whale saved from grim Australia mass stranding

Sydney: A lone whale was rescued from among hundreds of carcasses Sunday, taking to 110 the number of creatures that survived a mass stranding in southern Australia.

The country's largest-ever mass stranding saw around 470 pilot whales become stuck in a remote harbour on Tasmania's rugged western seaboard last week, sparking a major effort to save the animals.

Authorities have warned that more whales could be found in the area, with some animals likely to become beached for a second time. The causes of mass strandings remain unknown, but some experts have suggested the pod may have gone off track after feeding close to the shoreline or by following one or two whales that strayed.

UN: Yemen's warring sides to swap more than 1,000 prisoners

Cairo: The United Nations said Yemen's warring sides agreed Sunday to exchange more than 1,000 prisoners, marking the first phase of a release plan reached earlier this year.

the country's north. A Saudi-led coalition, determined to restore President Abed Rabu Mansour Hadi's government, launched a military intervention months later.

The UN mission in Yemen said the internationally recognised government that was driven from the capital six years ago and the Houthis rebels agreed "to immediately release a first group of 1,081 conflict-related detainees and prisoners, including the lists of agreed-upon names."

Today is an important day for over a thousand families who can expect to welcome back their loved ones hopefully very soon," said the UN. Special Envoy for Yemen, Martin Griffiths, Sunday's deal came at the conclusion of a week-long meeting in Gland, Switzerland that was co-chaired by Griffiths' office and the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Boats have begun towing the dead whales into the open ocean, where they will be released over several days.

The UN said the deal was built on a plan that both sides agreed on in February. Griffiths urged both parties to "move forward immediately with the release and to spare no effort in building upon this momentum to swiftly agree to releasing more detainees." Fabrizio Carboni, ICRC's director for the Middle East, urged the parties to swiftly work to move the agreement "from signatures on paper to reality on the ground." AP

100,000 march in Belarus capital on 50th day of protests

Kyiv: About 100,000 demonstrators marched in the Belarusian capital calling for the authoritarian president's ouster, some wearing cardboard crowns to ridicule him, on Sunday as the protests that have rocked the country marked their 50th consecutive day.

in offence with a crushing 80 per cent of the vote. The opposition and some poll workers say the results were manipulated.

Protests also took place in nine other cities, underlining the wide extent of dismay and anger with President Alexander Lukashenko, who has stifled opposition and independent news media during 26 years in power.

Lukashenko has defied calls for him to step down and many prominent members of a council formed with the aim of arranging a transfer of power have been arrested or have fled the country. The protests have persisted despite the daily detentions of demonstrators.

Macron says longtime Belarus leader 'must go'

Paris: France is stepping up the pressure on Belarus' longtime leader Alexander Lukashenko, with President Emmanuel Macron telling a prominent French weekly that "Lukashenko must go."

The European Union said Thursday it does not recognize Lukashenko as president of Belarus because of large-scale protests by Belarusians who question the results of last month's presidential election that Lukashenko claims he overwhelmingly won.

Opposition members and some poll workers in Belarus say the vote was rigged.

Ahead of a trip Monday to Lithuania and Latvia, Macron was quoted in Sunday's Journal du Dimanche newspaper as saying "it's clear that Lukashenko must go."

"What's happening in Belarus is a crisis of power, an authoritarian power that can't manage to accept the logic of democracy and is clinging on by force," the newspaper quotes Macron as saying.

In speech Saturday to the virtual UN General Assembly, Belarus' foreign minister warned Western nations against interfering or imposing sanctions over the country's disputed presidential election and the government's violent crackdown on protesters.

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

'Economic disruption to deter RBI from quantifying FY21 growth forecast'

IANS ■ NEW DELHI

The dynamic economic outlook unveiled by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) from giving a pin-pointed growth as well as inflation forecast in the upcoming monetary policy report, experts opined.

The existing legislations mandate the RBI to come out with a growth and inflation forecast twice in an interval of six-months in the monetary policy report.

Expectedly, the report is slated to be issued with the upcoming policy review on October 1. The report was last issued in February.

"It has, however already highlighted the risks of a material contraction in economic output in the previous MPC report. As regards inflation, it is likely to reiterate its expectation of a moderation in the CPI inflation over the next few months due to lesser supply constraints, higher crop output in kharif season and also the favourable base effect kicking in."

According to Brickwork Ratings said: "With uncertainty regarding the pandemic looming large, the RBI may not provide a GDP forecast for FY21 in the upcoming MPC meeting. As in the previous statements, the RBI may continue to talk about economic contraction without quantifying the magnitude."

"Given the continuing uncertainty on the economic revival, it is difficult to say whether RBI will come out with clear forecasts on the GDP print for FY21," said Suman Chowdhury Chief Analystical Officer at Acute Ratings and Research.

Monetary Policy Report said that the global economy may slump into recession in 2020.

The report noted that the lockdown and the expected contraction in global output will weigh heavily on the growth outlook. The actual outcome would depend upon the speed with which the outbreak is contained and economic activity returns to normalcy, said the Monetary Policy Report for April 2020.

As per the report, due to the highly fluid circumstances in which incoming data for growth shifts in the outlook for growth on a daily basis, forecasts for real GDP growth in India are not provided in the Monetary Policy Report, awaiting clarity on the spread and duration of Covid-19.

Vodafone Idea starts upgrading 3G users to 4G in key markets

IANS ■ MUMBAI

Vodafone Idea Limited (VIL) has started upgrading its 3G users to 4G in key markets.

In a statement on Sunday, the company said that it has substantially enhanced 4G capacity by consolidating the Vodafone and Idea networks and deployment of latest technologies enabling it to upgrade large chunks of 3G spectrum to 4G. VIL will now be able to offer faster 4G data speeds to its 3G users on the Vi GIGANet network. The company's enterprise customers currently using 3G based services will be upgraded to 4G and 4G based IoT applications and services, in a phased manner, it said.

While the company will continue to offer basic voice services to its 2G users, 3G data users will gradually be upgraded to 4G in a phased manner across all markets.

According to Ravinder Takkar, MD & CEO, Vodafone Idea Limited, "With highest quantum of spectrum in the country and large part of it already reformed for 4G, VIL is now best placed to upgrade our 2G/3G users to high speed 4G data services."

"As our integration nears completion, we have already expanded our 4G coverage to 1 billion Indian population who can now avail faster data services pan-India. We believe our latest move will further catalyse the digital revolution in the country," he said.

To switch to the high speed 4G GIGANet network, 3G users will need to upgrade to Vi 4G SIM card and 4G smartphone. The company offers a range of bundled offers to upgrade to 4G, it said.

Diesel prices down for 3rd straight day

IANS ■ NEW DELHI

Diesel prices continued to dip for the third straight day on Sunday on the back of subdued crude oil prices globally.

In the national capital, diesel was priced at ₹70.80 per litre, 14 paise lower from the ₹70.94 litre on Saturday.

Similarly, its price fell in other metros as well. In Mumbai, Chennai and Kolkata, the fuel was sold at ₹77.22, ₹76.27 and ₹74.32 respectively on Sunday, compared to the previous levels of ₹77.36, ₹76.40 and ₹74.46 per litre. Oil marketing companies, however, kept petrol prices unchanged for the fifth consecutive day. In Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai and Kolkata, petrol was priced at ₹80.14, ₹80.14, ₹84.14 and ₹82.59 per litre respectively.

The recent fuel price fall is on the back of expectation of slowing demand for oil globally as a second wave of coronavirus spike threatens the derailment of economic activity.

Brent crude price is also subdued around $42 a barrel. For domestic auto fuel consumers, the price fall has been a bonanza amid the current fuel shortages in the country. With the price cut on Sunday, diesel has now become cheaper by ₹2.76 per litre in Delhi this month.

NTPC invites bids for biomass pellet procurement

IANS ■ NEW DELHI

State-run NTPC Ltd has invited bids for procurement of biomass pellets for its various thermal plants on domestic competitive basis (DCB) as part of its endeavour to reduce burning of crop residue on farmlands that cause air pollution.

The power producer has envisaged consumption of five million tonnes of pellets in the current year at its 17 power plants including NTPC Korba (Chhattisgarh), NTPC Farakka (West Bengal), NTPC Dadri (Uttar Pradesh), NTPC Kudgi (Karnataka), NTPC Sipat (Chhattisgarh), and NTPC Rihand (Uttar Pradesh).

NTPC had first undertaken this initiative on pilot basis in 2017 for biomass co-firing by replacing some of the coal with pellet-based fuel at NTPC Dadri, Uttar Pradesh. Post successful implementation, it now plans to replicate the model in 17 of its plants.

The invitation for bids would be done through e-tendering at SRM Portal. The bidding process will be followed by the Single Stage Two Envelopes (SSE) method.

"NTPC is confident that co-firing will help create large scale rural employment opportunities in processing as well as supply chain for biomass," the company said in a statement on Sunday. The power producer will give preference to bids from suppliers from Punjab and Haryana.

NTPC had fired 100 tonnes of agro residue-based pellets at Dadri, Uttar Pradesh in 2017. The test-firing was carried out in four phases, with gradual increase in percentage of firing from 2.5 per cent to 10 per cent along with coal. Till date, the company has fired more than 7,000 tonnes of agro residue pellets. As per estimates, about 145 MMTPA of crop residue remains unutilised and most of it is burnt in India in the open fields, creating severe air pollution that leads to health issues.

During the same period is considered a major contributor to the surge in PM 2.5 in northern India in the post-harvesting season.

"With its gross calorific value comparable to the bituminous coal, the use of biomass has the potential of the entire 145 MMTPA biomass burnt through co-firing in coal-based power plants is equivalent to 28,000 MW of round-the-clock generation of renewable power. The amount of electrical energy that can be produced from solar capacity of 125,000-150,000 MW," the NTPC statement said.

India's Aug crude steel output falls 4%, China logs 8% rise

IANS ■ NEW DELHI

Production of crude steel in India in August declined 4.4 per cent on a year-on-year basis to 8.48 million tonne (Mt), according to data from the World Steel Association.

During the same period last year, India had produced 8.87 million tonne of crude steel.

Globally, however, crude steel production recorded a marginal rise and China recorded 8.4 per cent increase at 94.8 million tonne.

In a statement, the World Steel Association said that total steel production for the 64 countries reporting to it was 156.2 million tonne in August 2020, up 0.7 per cent increase compared to August 2019.

It further noted that due to the ongoing difficulties presented by the Covid-19 pandemia, many of the estimates may be revised with next month's production update.

"China produced 94.8 Mt of crude steel in August 2020, an increase of 8.4 per cent compared to August 2019. India produced 8.5 Mt of crude steel in August 2020, down 4.4 per cent on August 2019," it said.

Japan produced 6.4 million tonne of crude steel in August 2020, down 20.6 per cent compared to August 2019. South Korea's steel production was 5.8 million tonne in August, down by 1.8 per cent on a year-on-year basis.

Germany produced 2.8 million tonne of crude steel in August 2020, down 13.4 per cent.

Demand for dairy products yet to reach pre-Covid level

HAREKRISHNA MISRA AND SANJIV DAS

The success of the 'Operation Flood' led to India emerging as the highest milk producing nation in the world. It was the success of the 'Operation Flood' that led to India becoming a milk-deficient country. From a milk-deficient country, India became self-sufficient in milk production mainly attributed to the role played by dairy cooperatives such as Amul (Gujarat Cooperative Milk Marketing Federation), Nandini (Karnataka Milk Federation) etc.

After the announcement of lockdown in March to curb spread of the COVID19, it resulted in disruption of supply chains associated with the various sectors of Indian economy. However, the dairy cooperatives continued with their operations of procuring milk from the members (as well as non-members) and distributors of dairy products to consumers notwithstanding operational challenges faced.

While many private sectors organised dairy players stopped or reduced milk procurement from farmers because of decline in dairy products, the co-operative dairies have continued to collect milk from dairy farmers to ensure best possible financial support in spite of lower sales. This has resulted in surplus stock of Skimmed Milk Powder (SMP) and butter with the co-operative dairies. On one hand the milk procurement has increased and on other the

Some of the Tariff and Non-Tariff Barriers Imposed on Indian Dairy Products Exports

European Union	Does not approve Indian dairy plant under pretext of Veterinary control, Antibiotic and Pesticide residue etc
USA	high import duty of 40 to 60% on dairy products
China	The world's largest importer of dairy products does not permit import from India due to ban imposed by India because of presence of melamine in dairy products imported from China
Russia	Requires their own Veterinary Team to approve plants. In the last four years, no approval has not been granted for Indian dairy industry for last many years
Canada	Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA) does not permit import of dairy products from India. In case of some import, import duty imposed as high as 250%.
Australia	Do not permit import of dairy products from India due to Food and Mouth Disease. Only reformed products are permitted.
South Africa, Mexico, Venezuela	No permit import of dairy products from India
Sri Lanka and Bangladesh	30% import duty on dairy products
Thailand	More than 40% import duty demand for the dairy products is yet to reach the pre-Covid level.

It is estimated that the dairy cooperatives currently have around 1.5 lakh tonne of SMP stocks, which implies around 1.5 million tonne of milk stock (conversion ratio of SMP to liquid milk 1:10). This stock is far more than the SMP stocks held with the co-operatives a year ago. With the onset of flush season (milk production goes up) from October, dairy cooperatives have been asking the government to provide incentives under the Merchandise Exports from India Scheme so that around 50,000 tonne of SMP could be exported.

INDIA DAIRY PRODUCTS EXPORTS

A number of countries which imports large quantity of dairy products are not permitting import of dairy from India applying various tariff and non-tariff barriers. The European Union (EU) does not approve dairy imports from India under the pretext of various issues like pesticide and antibiotic residue etc. The United States had a high import duty of 40 to 60% on dairy products. China, the world's largest importer of dairy products does not permit import from India after it imposed a ban on the import of milk and milk products from China years back because of presence of toxic chemical - melamine in Chinese dairy products. Russia's guidelines stipulate that their own veterinary control team approves dairy plants in India prior to imports. In the last four years, Russia has not granted any approval for Indian dairy plants.

'Climate change is an undeniable threat'

Actor and environmentalist BHUMI PEDNEKAR feels education is the significant channel to raise awareness on climate conservation.

"The changes we are observing are an undeniable threat to our civilisation. This year we have witnessed the Australian bushfires, oil spill in Russia's Arctic region, the Uttarakhand forest fires, Cyclone Amphan in West Bengal and Odisha, and California wildfires," she said.

"The effects will be catastrophic unless we act now. We need everyone to join hands to ensure that we leave behind barrels of hope and prosperity for the generations to come. Education is the significant channel to achieve this goal," added Bhumi.

'I would love to be running around trees and I love to play the demure girl, which I have played in a few of my south films. My point is that I want my character to be important to the plot. If you take away the character from the story, will the story still work? Sometimes, yes. But I want my character to be a memorable one.'

ACTOR KIRTI KULHARI

has reminisced about her character Jannat in Bard Of Blood on the one-year anniversary of the web series, saying it is the kind of role an actor lives for.

"Even when I utter the character's name, it hits me how gorgeous she is as a character. The character has been quite strongly etched in the people's minds and hearts," said Kirti.

"It's a character that anyone would fall in love with. Who wouldn't want to play a role that people just fall in love with? It was the kind of role an actor lives for," added she.

Billie introduces newborn son

Actor BILLIE LOURD and her fiancé, Austen Rydell, announced the birth of her son. The announcement came as a surprise, since Lourd's pregnancy was not made public.

The American Horror Story star shared a photo of their son's feet. The caption read, "Introducing Kingston Fisher Lourd Rydell" with blue heart and crown emojis."

In June, Rydell announced their engagement with a series of photos and a video of the couple. His caption read, "She said yes! (Actually she said Duhhh) But I guess that's even better than yes!"

We all know that the persistence of the novel Coronavirus is one of the few things that are here to stay. Hence, we must learn to accept the new normal, be it about everyday lifestyle changes or even fashion. And looking at the new garments and trends which are becoming staples in our wardrobes, the first would be gloves, which seem to be back in fashion. Designers are gradually introducing interesting pairs, which would hopefully help the people regain the human touch.

Various types of gloves have been introduced now such as disposable anti-bacterial, hypo-allergenic, environment-friendly and many more. The global demand for disposable gloves has suddenly skyrocketed as compared to their sales before the pandemic. These protective gears have become the latest additions in our wardrobes in the last few months.

Of course, we are not mentioning the latex surgical ones in which hands sweat like in saunas. The protective gear in our hands is somewhat a beautiful expression of our indomitable spirits in the face of contagion. Gloves have definitely been an overlooked accessory used for practicality, although it has gone down in history as the most universal item in fashion. They have become a necessary trend amid the pandemic due to the additional protection that they can offer other than masks and sanitisation. Celebrities and fashion influencers are now talking to social media to exhibit their collection of gloves, which are accessorised with nail-paints and rings. The latest accessory of fashionable gloves actually came into development just before the outbreak and designers were seen exploring their potential on fashion runways.

You can sport hand-embroidered gloves, anti-bacterial crocheted ones or printed, colourful ones to meet your different types of moods. There's one for every place — while you are set to hit the gym or an aerobics class, to the supermarket or while travelling. Gloves made of anti-microbial fabrics and fibres are the latest innovation that gives a long-lasting protection from microbes even after multiple washes. These fabrics protect your hands from various viruses and bacteria that are much required amid this unprecedented phase. Nelson Jeffery, Head of Design, Liva, shares a few noted trends:

EXHIBIT THE RIGHT COLOURS WITH OUTFITS

Colours play an integral part not only in fashion but also in our life as they add happiness, distract us from negative thinking, change actions and cause reactions. The type of colour combinations that we choose for ourselves reflects our personal self. The bright colour reflects happiness and positive vibes, while the dull shades reflect the tedious mood. As we are already mindful about matching our accessories on what we wear, choosing the right colour as per the outfit will help you create a new style statement.

While at work, gloves can get soiled and stained, at this point the colours that you choose can turn out to be life savers. Choosing darker shades is the best way to embrace the style of being carefree. A few timeless shades to select from are: Bittersweet chocolate: This deeply divine shade can match almost every outfit, making all the difference. Dark lavender: The shade has cer-

While we wear gloves essentially as protective gear, there's no reason why they cannot become our fashion accessory. Designers suggest that choosing the right colour according to your outfit will help you create your style statement. By TEAM VIVA tainly made a comeback in fashion as it is bright and vivacious, giving us the right summer vibe. It goes well on light colours like white, pink and off-white. Gallery red: Also known as rose red, with a tint of pink, it adds class to any outfit that you opt to wear.

ADD SOME CUTWORK

Cutwork style is back in vogue. The vintage technique and the intricate style lends a see-through look to the garment. Done by cutting away the fabric and binding the edges with buttonhole stitches, the technique emerged in the 14th century in Italy, and ever since, overcoming the top trends like laces and flares. Well, cutwork gloves can be worn for special occasions to give your attire a chic and more elegant look.

To keep the protection quotient intact, it's recommended to use latex/plastic gloves underneath the cutwork.

PRINT FOR A LITTLE DRAMA

Wearing print and patterns can be intimidating as compared to solid colour gloves. Mixing prints has always been a top fashion trend. Prints have evolved throughout and now have become the priority when we think of something trendy. Even though many women prefer to live in a terminal state of simplicity out of fear of looking too complicated or frumpy but bold prints are more wearable than they seem. It's just about making the right choice. If you end up choosing too many prints at a moment, it can look chaotic rather than stylish. Hence, choosing simple prints can be the must-have in gloves.

PUFF AND VOLUME

When we get a little overexcited or think of dramatising our mood into our attire, puff style is something to go about without any doubt. When we started to see the puff trend rising, it seemed like just the season's newest must-have. And ever since, it's been re-imagined in so many iterations and has returned season after season, becoming more than just a fleeting trend.

These are usually worn during the winters, however, with the ever-evolving style statement, gloves are becoming a more casual and go-to style.

Safety garments like gloves and masks are here to stay no matter how far we come with the pandemic. Hence, choosing the right and comfortable fabric like viscose will always be a great option to sustain this virus in the best possible way.

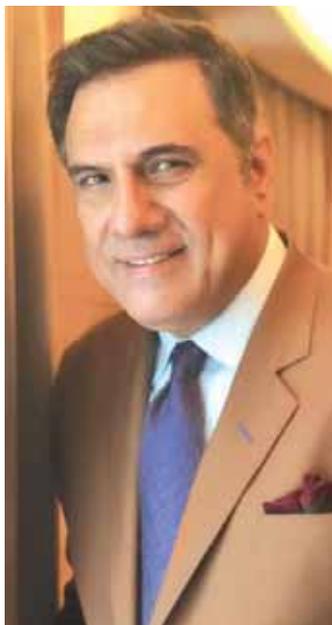

The power of words

Through a series of lockdown workshops, actor BOMAN IRANI offers a learning opportunity to budding writers, amateurs and professionals from different walks of life to master the nuances of screenwriting

It has been actor Boman Irani's endeavour to break down the craft of cinema for brilliant minds of all ages. The actor, who is known for his path-breaking performances in 3 Idiots and Lage Raho Munnabhai, has answered his call as a storyteller by devising Spiral Bound, a series of screenwriting workshops for eager learners. This initiative by the actor has clocked in 150 online screenwriting sessions during the lockdown.

Through these workshops, Irani offered a learning opportunity to budding writers, amateurs and professionals from different walks of life to unite and learn the nuances of screenwriting. What started for him as a step towards being a student of cinema, has now resulted in an incredible journey of mentoring hundreds of students.

Happy to have arrived at the milestone of hitting 150 sessions, Boman took to his social media to express gratitude towards artists and filmmakers, who showed their support to Spiral Bound. In the caption, he wrote, "One hundred and fifty sessions on screenwriting in just about 165 days right through this lockdown. Writers, directors, actors, designers, beginners, all... with heart. All with the intention to learn and grow. Not allowing the chains of these lockdowns to shackle and get the better of us. If at all we were shackled, it was with each other. Bound by the spiraling shackles of learning, love and friendship. Proud of each and every one of you! Grateful too!"

He said, "Spiral Bound began with the idea of jamming on stories and refining them. We have over 100 people attending the sessions every day and now clocking in 150 sessions leads me to think that what we're offering these minds is really working for them."

The first workshop was conducted by Alexander Dinelar, Oscar-winning film Birdman's screenwriter and dear friend to Boman. This was the release of 83, where he will be portraying the role of a former Indian cricketer Feroz Engineer, and Jayeshbhai Jordaar.

Boman believes that these workshops will produce some great films in the future. He said that it's all about the power of screenplay. "No camera can do wonders if the screenplay isn't worthwhile. It has the power to make or break great films," added he.

On the work front, the actor looks forward to the release of 83, where he will be portraying the role of a former Indian cricketer Feroz Engineer, and Jayeshbhai Jordaar.

THE ROAD TO DREAMS

The Indira Awas Yojana in the Poonch district of Jammu & Kashmir might be promising houses but the villagers are demanding roads first.
By QADIR ASHRAFI

Last month, Lieutenant Governor of Jammu & Kashmir, Manoj Sinha, reviewed the progress of the Pradhan Mantri Gram Sadak Yojana (PMGSY) in a meeting held at Raj Bhavan in Srinagar. While stressing upon maintaining the quality of roads, he directed the concerned officials to strictly adhere to the project timelines. The focus of the LG reflects not only the strategic significance of the territorial connection in remote, hilly regions but also stresses upon roads being an important indicator of development. It is through roads that people residing in these tough, mountainous corners of this newly-announced Union Territory will be able to participate in development of the country. However, the condition of roads in several difficult-to-reach areas needs immediate attention of the administration.

In the border district of Poonch, located 250 km from Jammu city, many villages still lack road connectivity. Malhan, the smallest Panchayat of Surankot tehsil in Poonch, is one of the many areas where road connectivity has been one of the most pressing issues for several years now. In 2012, the initiation of work for road construction between Sehri Khawaja to Ziarat Sharif Maidan had brought a new ray of hope for the villagers. The idea of not having to go through difficult mountainous trails during extreme weather conditions provided a sense of comfort to them. But the happiness was short-lived as due to some internal reasons, the construction was put on hold. Now, it's been eight years, and people here are still awaiting that road construction to go on the floors again and connect them with the town.

"We had given up our land for the department to pave the road. Villagers sacrificed their fields and gardens for the larger good of the entire community that faces several challenges while commuting through the kutcha roads," shared the villagers who have not received any compensation for the land they had given up. According to them, officials from the department visit the area only to leave after giving them assurances, which have not yet materialised into anything concrete in the last eight years.

During his Poonch visit in July this year, the former LG Girish Chandra Murmu, the predecessor to LG Manoj Sinha, had also focussed on the construction of roads. That time, the chief of the concerned department had visited the village and promised that the villagers' demand will be resolved at the earliest and the road will be completed, however, only to no relief.

"The road belongs to my ward. Its incomplete construction has become a hindrance in other works of development in the area," expressed the villagers. The attention of the concerned authority, this Panchayat had even boycotted the second phase of the programme, 'Back to Village' run by the Central Government, but to no avail," explained Shamim Akhter, the Panch of Ward No. 5.

Adding to the complication, the Panchayat has recently received guidelines from the district department that the construction of houses under Indira Awas Yojana (IAY) should be completed within three months. The beneficiaries of the scheme were waiting for the road to be constructed as without it building a house will be quite difficult. If they do not obey the orders, they will have to return the installment that has come into their accounts along with an interest. "That's the dilemma. If the road issue isn't resolved soon, I will not be able to benefit from the IAY scheme. Construction of roads needs to be completed first and then the houses should be built," shared Abdul Khaliq, one of the beneficiaries of the IAY scheme.

Not just construction of the houses but the development challenges of such isolated villages can be addressed easily once the road connectivity is established. Reaching schools, hospitals and town for work and other needs will become easier. The emphasis of the current administration on construction of roads in rural areas is surely a positive sign. It is this belief in the government that people of this village are waiting patiently for their dreams to be fulfilled.

The foolproof law

Instead of seeking short-term rewards through corrupt deeds, let us respect karma and live a righteous life, reaping the fruit of joy and well-being, says

RAJYOGI BRAHMAKUMAR NIKUNJJI

It's often said, "Honesty is the best policy." Which is the reason why a kind and an honest person would never approve of someone who reaches heights by foul means or through corruption. To them, life often seems unfair and the result, at times, turns out to be revengeful. However, one fails to understand an important fact that the law of karma is eternal and unchangeable. The principle of cause-and-effect — "as you sow, so shall you reap."

Corruption in India has stirred many political debates and agitations in the history, attracting extensive coverage in the Indian media too. Bribery, scams and misuse of public money are becoming common. Many a times, those involved in these activities go scot-free, lead a luxurious life and enjoy many privileges without being held accountable for their nefarious deeds. But we forget that the law of karma is infallible and immutable. As per this law, every act or expression by a human being will be experienced by him/her in the same degree and nobody can escape the effects of this law. What we cannot see most of the time is how and when an action is punished or rewarded, due to which we get disillusioned. However, as per the karmic law, sometimes the result of an action may be carried over to the next life and hence, it says that there is always justice in whatever happens. The fact that there are all kinds of differences — physical, economical and social — is the very evidence. It's because of the consequences of our previous karma which are carried over and experienced in the next birth.

We hence should perceive life in a deeper and a more holistic way. First, we must realise that the doer of karma is not the body but the being or the soul, which is immortal. The eternal law of karma facilitates and shapes the continuous journey or evolution of the human soul. We are here to express our true nature and experience the reward of that. Our expressions may be a subtle feeling or thought or they may be a visible action.

It is unfortunate that most people today are blind to their spiritual identity and law of karma, as a result of which they believe that they are here for one lifetime and so they can eat, drink, make merry and indulge in all pleasures through right or wrong means. But the fact is that such people may have wealth but they lack peace of mind, health and true joy. This narrow-minded limited view of human life has spawned vices such as lust, greed, ego and attachment. In the pursuit to have more, enjoy more and possess more, people have become totally callous about the suffering of others, compassion, sharing and cooperation. Even when people suffer the result of their bad karma, they do not realise that they have to improve themselves instead they blame others and become even more corrupt and vicious. If people could see in advance that each corrupt deed they commit would boomerang into a painful suffering for them either in this life or in the future, they would never commit something wrong again. But they neither have the wisdom nor the strength to live a life of total moral integrity. We must realise that the richness of one's character is the most essential and real wealth that raises the value of human life.

Today, people have lost faith in god and good karma. But the law of karma is the most foolproof one that guarantees good return to those who do good. The time and place and the source from where it will come vary. But the wheel of divine justice never fails. So, instead of seeking short-term pleasures and rewards through corrupt deeds, let us live a righteous life and reap the fruit of abundant joy and well-being.

On a quiet road in India's capital, tucked away on a wide, red-brick sidewalk, the children of the country's COVID-19 lockdown are being tutored. The children, ages four to 14, carry book bags more than two kilometers (a mile) from their thatched-roof huts on the banks of the Yamuna River to this impromptu, roadside classroom. There, they receive free lessons in Math, Science, English and Physical Education, taught by a former diplomat and his wife.

It all began when Veena Gupta's maid, who lives on the bank of the river, complained that with schools shut, children in her impoverished community were running amok and wasting time. "If they stayed at home doing nothing, they'd become drifters," said Dolly Sharma, who works at Veena's high-rise apartment, which overlooks the lush riverbank.

Veena, a singer and grandmother of three, and her husband, Virendra Gupta, decided to go out to the street and teach the kids so they are not left behind when school reopens. "They don't have access to internet, their schools are shut and they don't have any means to learn," said Veena, who bought books, pencils, notebooks and other teaching materials, and set up the small, open-air classroom under the shade of a leafy banyan tree.

The country's stringent lockdown to curb the spread of COVID-19 shut schools across the country in late March. Most remain closed as the number of cases has surged past five million, making India second-most hit in the world by the Coronavirus.

While many private schools switched to digital learning and online classes, children in most government-run schools either don't have that option or don't have the means to purchase dig-

A new gurukul

A couple runs street-side classes for some underprivileged students as digital learning isn't an option for them ital learning tools like laptops or smartphones. "There is only one mobile phone in my family and it is usually with my father. I can't study online," said Nitin Mishra, a ninth grade student in Virendra's math class. Mishra's mother works as a part-time maid and his father is unable to find employment.

The street-side classes have grown as dozens of children showed keen interest. Now the Guptas — with help from their driver, Heera — teach three different groups thrice a week, morning and evening. After class, the children are treated to homemade lemonade and cookies prepared by Veena.

The two by teaching the kids makes them feel closer to their grandchildren, who live abroad. "My father would make me spend my summer vacation learning the next year's curriculum in advance," said Virendra, who served as Indian ambassador to several countries including South Africa. It really boosted my confidence and made me interested in schoolwork. And that is what I am trying to do with these children, so when their school reopens, they are slightly ahead of their class."

Veena said she hopes to recruit more volunteers to teach the street-side classes. "It is not about the money that people can contribute and give, it is about their time," she said. "They should take out little bit of their time, an hour or so, if not every day, every alternate day, and come and help these children." —AP

VITAMIN D CUTS DEATH RISK IN COVID PATIENTS

A new research adds to the growing body of evidence that patients with sufficient levels of Vitamin D are less likely to experience complications and die from COVID-19. As per a study, published in the journal PLOS ONE, hospitalised COVID-19 patients who were given Vitamin D sufficient, with a blood level of 25-hydroxyvitamin D of at least 30 ng/mL (a measure of Vitamin D status) had a significantly decreased risk for adverse clinical outcomes and death. In addition, they had lower blood levels of an inflammatory marker (C-reactive protein) and higher blood levels of lymphocytes (a type of immune cell to help fight infection). "This study provides direct evidence that Vitamin D sufficiency can reduce the complications, including the cytokine storm (release of too many proteins into the blood too quickly) and ultimately death from COVID-19," said study author Michael F Holick from the Boston University in the US.

COVID PREGNANCY DOESN'T AFFECT NEWBORNS

Researchers have found that SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes COVID-19 during pregnancy was not associated with complications in the newborn child. For the study, published in the journal JAMA, the research team have examined the association between a positive SARS-CoV-2 test during pregnancy and complications in mothers and their newborn babies. Almost two out of three pregnant women who tested positive for SARS-CoV-2 were asymptomatic and the researchers found no higher prevalence of complications during delivery or of ill-health in the neonates. However, pre-eclampsia was more common in infected women. "One possible reason for the latter is that both pre-eclampsia and COVID-19 impact several organs and can present similar symptoms," said study lead author and Mia Ahlberg from Karolinska University Hospital in Sweden.

MODEL DETECTS MUTATIONS IN BREAST CANCER

Researchers have developed a computational model which is effective in detecting and identifying genetic mutations in breast tumours. The study included results from over 3,200 patients with breast cancer. The researchers used RNA sequencing, a sensitive, precise tool which has very gradually started to be applied clinically, although not yet for breast cancer. The study, published in the journal EMBO Molecular Medicine, used breast tumours for analysis from the unique Swedish SCAN-B project. "We hope that SCAN-B RNA sequencing will be in clinical use as early as next year, mainly to help in the identification of which breast tumours are high-risk and which are low-risk," said study researcher Lao Saal from Lund University in Sweden. When the team analysed the genetic mutations in the breast tumours of the patients in the study, they found that almost 87 per cent had at least one mutation for which potential drugs already exist.

DIABETES DRUG LOWERS HEART ISSUES

Drugs known as sodium-glucose cotransporter-2 (SGLT2) inhibitors are associated with a lower risk of major heart problems in patients with type-2 diabetes than dipeptidyl peptidase-4 (DPP-4) inhibitors, say researchers. As per a study, published in the journal The BMJ, previous trials have shown that SGLT2 inhibitors can reduce the risk of heart conditions such as heart attack, stroke, and heart failure compared with placebo. But some of these trials had important limitations, making it difficult to interpret the results, and data on the effects of individual SGLT2 inhibitors on the heart are limited. The research team from McGill University, Canada set out to compare the risk of cardiovascular events between SGLT2 inhibitors and DPP-4 inhibitors among adults with type-2 diabetes in a real practice setting.

EXCESS BELLY FAT UPS EARLY DEATH RISK

Researchers have found that excess fat stored around the abdomen is associated with a higher risk of early death from any cause, regardless of overall body fat, whereas larger hips and thighs are associated with a lower risk. The results, published in the journal The BMJ, suggest that measuring central fatness may be a more reliable indicator of risk of death from excess weight, and should be used alongside body mass index to help determine the risk of premature death. Body mass index (BMI) is a simple measure widely used to assess people's weight. But its reliability is often criticised, as it does not distinguish fat from muscle and does not tell us where body fat is stored. "It is already well known that being overweight or obese is linked to a greater risk of heart disease, certain cancers, kidney disease, and neurological disorders," said study author from Semnan University of Medical Sciences in Iran.

We were probably 20-30 runs short and then it would have been a good game. If you don't put the right total on board, it's going to be hard to defend.

The plan was simple. I was there to get set and see my team through. Total wasn't that big. So it was important for me to stay there. As a batting unit, I think we all did well.

Rahul Chahar is a fantastic leg-spinner and has had a brilliant last season and he is looking in good form. As far as matches are concerned, it is a matter of time, things fall in place.

I've practiced power hitting a lot in the past couple of years. I think it was really important for our team to get this win.

BATTING MAYANKLASS

Mayank Agarwal outshone his Kings XI Punjab captain KL Rahul with a maiden IPL hundred as the duo pummelled the Rajasthan Royals bowlers into submission to post an imposing 223 for 2 here on Sunday.

Agarwal (106) and Rahul (69) stitched 183 runs for the opening stand, the highest partnership for any wicket so far this season as they took apart the Royals bowlers who were also wayward in their line and length.

The duo just missed the record of highest opening wicket partnership in IPL history by a mere two runs when Agarwal was out for the 17th over after hitting 10 fours and seven sixes during his magnificent 50-ball knock.

Nicholas Pooran then hit 25 not out from just eight balls while Glenn Maxwell also remained unbeaten on 13.

It's Rohit vs Kohli

PTI ■ DUBAI

Royal Challengers Bangalore would be looking to address their pace-bowling concerns when they face defending champions Mumbai Indians in the Indian Premier League here on Monday.

RCB started on a winning note but then their start stuttered collapsing against Kings XI Punjab, resulting in a humbling 97-run defeat.

After scores of 14 and 1, Kohli is due for a big one and would be itching to spend more time in the middle order.

Opener Devdutt Padikal, who started his IPL career with a classy half-century, did not do much against KXIP and will be aiming for consistency.

Australian limited overs captain Aaron Finch would be hoping to convert starts into match-winning performances while AB de Villiers, who has looked in god touch, will be expected to provide the late fireworks again with the lower order not inspiring a lot of hope.

It is still not clear whether RCB will have the services of South African all-rounder Chris Morris, who sat out of the first two games due to a side strain.

In the bowling department, Yuzvendra Chahal, as always, will be the key man with pacers, barring Navdeep Saini, leaking runs.

Dale Steyn and Umesh Yadav have proved expensive so far. The South African great is likely to retain his place in the playing eleven but the same can't be said about Yadav, who could make way for Mohammed Siraj.

England all-rounder Moeen Ali will be a welcome addition to the middle-order but with Josh Philippe keeping wickets regularly, he can only replace Steyn.

Mumbai Indians, who ticked all the boxes in their comfortable win against Kolkata Knight Riders, are unlikely to tinker with their team composition.

The biggest positive is that skipper Rohit Sharma is back among the runs and looked in ominous touch against KKR, and so did Suryakumar Yadav.

The only change that the team can make is bring in Ishan Kishan in place of the bulky Saurabh Tiwary.

Apart from their batting prowess, Hardik Pandya and Kieron Pollard can jointly perform the role of an additional bowler, but MI coach

Mohammed Nissar has made it clear that they don't want to take any risks with Hardik, who is playing after a long break following a back injury.

Southern Stars wrap T20 series

IANIS ■ BRISBANE

Australia women came out with yet another incredible performance, both with bat and ball, as they defeated New Zealand by eight wickets in the second T20 on Sunday, thereby securing the three-match series.

Australia first bundled New Zealand for 128 in 19.2 overs, with the innings punctuated by another contentious White Ferns dismissal and then chased down the target with more than three overs to spare. Chasing the target, Alyssa Healy who earlier in the first innings went past MS Dhoni to set the over record for maximum dismissal in T20s — gave a solid start to the Aussies along with Beth Mooney. The pair added 51 runs in 4.3 overs before Healy got out after scoring 33 runs off just 17 balls, which included five 4s and a six. Soon Mooney also went back to the pavilion after contributing with 24 runs.

Focus will be on talent like Shafali : Neetu David

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

Newly-appointed women's chief selector Neetu David says her panel's focus will be on uncaring more young talent like 16-year-old Shafali Verma, who became an overnight star with her rare six-hitting ability.

One of the finest spinners to have come out of India, David, very much understands the requirements of modern-day limited-overs cricket.

Opening batter Shafali was 15 when she earned her maiden call up last year and six months after making her India debut, she played a major role in the team's march to the T20 World Cup final in March.

"The way cricket is being played, it is quick and for that we need more players like Shafali. Earlier, the approach was different but now you see batters trying to be aggressive from the word go even in domestic cricket. We want to give opportunity to those kind of players," the 43-year-old, who has taken over from Hemlata Kalia, told PTI.

David holds the world record for best bowling figures in an innings in a Test — 8/53 against England in Jamshedpur in 1995.

She played 10 Tests, taking 41 wickets. She retired from international cricket in 2008.

The first assignment of the David-led panel will be picking three teams for the Women's T20 Challenge, to be held in UAE in November alongside the IPL play-offs.

Picking squads will be a challenge as no cricket has been played since March due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

"Nothing is permanent. Change is the rule of nature on the edge of the box and tap in. Experience and youthful energy in the team is a good combination."

HARDIK KEEN TO BOWL

Mumbai Indians Director of Cricket Operations Zaheer Khan on Sunday said Hardik Pandya is keen to bowl but the team management needs to listen to his body as the all-rounder is playing after a lengthy layoff due to a back injury. "We are all expecting him (Hardik) to bowl and he is someone who really changes that balance of any side when he is bowling and he understands that," Zaheer said when asked about Hardik's bowing. "But we have to listen to his body and that is something the conversation which we have been having in consultation with the physios. We are looking forward for him to bowl, he is very keen and really wanting to bowl, we just have to wait and be patient and listen to his body. At the end of the day for any bowler injuries play a huge role."

DC HAVE A GOOD BALANCE

Having played a vital role in Delhi Capitals' emphatic 44-run win against the Chennai Super Kings, South African pacer Anrich Nortje will look to continue the same run of form in his debut IPL season. "It's just unbelievable. It's great to get a wicket finally, I mean after not getting one in the first game. I felt like to come in and run in today, just give it my best, control what I generally do and I think at the end it paid off. So, I was just trying to do my thing at the end," said Nortje on being able to break the deadlock.

AFRIDI MISS PAK PLAYERS IN IPL

Pakistan's former captain Shahid Afridi has rued the absence of top players from his country in a "big platform" like the Indian Premier League. In a report published in the Pakistani media, Afridi said that the IPL is a big platform for any player to get exposure, gain experience and improve. "The IPL is a big brand and I know that if our players like Babar Azam and others get a chance to play in it they would learn to play under pressure situations. Unfortunately, due to the existing policies, our players are not getting that big platform," he said.

Goffin exits Roland Garros

AP ■ PARIS

Top-seeded Simona Halep won 10 straight games in beating Sara Sorribes Tormo 6-4, 6-0 to reach the second round of the French Open on Sunday and extend her winning streak to 15 matches.

Wearing thick black leggings and a long-sleeved pink jersey to combat the chilly conditions on Court Philippe Chatrier, the 2018 champion made a series of unforced errors and trailed 4-2. But then she found her range, clinching the first set with a hold to love and sealing victory on her first match point when her Spanish opponent clipped a forehead wide.

She is ranked second but seeded first at Roland Garros because defending champion Ash Barty skipped coming to Paris because of coronavirus concerns.

Halep won titles on clay in Prague and Rome and her winning run — interrupted by the pandemic — dates to February.

Over on Court Suzanne Lenglen, U.S. Open runner-up Victoria Azarenka experienced a vastly different temperature to Flushing Meadows only two weeks ago.

The tenth-seeded Azarenka fumed when match officials didn't immediately send her and opponent Danka Kovinic back to the locker-room during a rain interruption.

Goffin, a former quarterfinalist here, was the first seeded player to be knocked out when he lost 7-5, 6-0, 6-3.

His countrywoman Elise Mertens — the 16th seed — fared better in beating 122-ranked Russian Margarita Gasparyan 6-2, 6-3.

Super Suarez

AP ■ SHEFFIELD

Suarez set up a goal two minutes after coming on as a substitute, his sumptuous pass finished off by Marcos Llorente, before scoring himself with a powerful header at the back post.

He then added another in injury time following up his own shot to make it six for rampant Atletico at the Wanda Metropolitan.

Diego Costa had earlier given the home team the lead. Angel Correa and the impressive Joao Felix, who was perhaps the best player on the pitch put Granada out of sight, before Suarez stole the show.

Suarez might have had a hat-trick given he also won a penalty and had the ball under his arm to take it, only for the decision to be reversed by referee Javier Estrada. But Suarez's performance off the bench completed the perfect start to the season for him and for Atletico, who might start to believe the scoring problems of last term could be behind them. It was not only Suarez's contribution that would Diego Costa has pleased Diego Simeone but the displays of his other forwards, with Costa and Felix, perhaps invigorated by the Uruguayan's arrival, looking sharper.

Felix was excellent. If the 20-year-old can find some consistency this season after a stop-start opening year, Atletico could challenge for the title.

They might have been two up in the first quarter of an hour as Costa did well to head in Correa's cross before Felix won a penalty, his dancing run into the box drawing a foul from Domingos Duarte.

But Saul Niguez's shot was brilliantly saved by Rui Silva, with Felix booting the ball into the stand in frustration, suggesting he might have been keen to take it.

Bayern beaten in 2020

AP ■ SINSHEIM

Hoffenheim ended Bayern Munich's 32-game run without defeat on Sunday with a 4-1 win in the Bundesliga.

Bayern's former reserve team coach, Sebastian Hoeneß, coaxed a concentrated relentless team effort from his new side and was rewarded with goals from Ermin Bicakic, Munas Dabbur and two including a penalty from Andrej Kramaric.

It was Bayern's first defeat in any competition since a 2-1 loss at Borussia Mönchengladbach on Dec. 7, 2019, and Hoeneß's third as coach since he took over the Bavarian powerhouse on Nov. 3, 2019.

Bicakic opened the scoring in the 16th minute with a header into a corner, and Dabbur made it 2-0 eight minutes later. Hoffenheim goalkeeper Oliver Baumann's long kick seemed to catch Bayern's defense by surprise.

Benjamin Pavard attempted to win the ball from Kramaric, but instead it fell kindly for Dabbur, who calmly lobbed the ball over Bayern's advancing goalkeeper Manuel Neuer.

Joshua Kimmich pulled one back in the 36th letting it fly from outside the penalty area inside the far top corner, giving Baumann no chance.

Flick brought on star striker Robert Lewandowski and midfielder Leon Goretzka for the last half hour, then Kingsley Coman and the 17-year-old Jamal Musiala with a little more than a quarter-hour remaining.

Two goals in the final three minutes saw Inter Milan come from behind to beat Fiorentina 4-3 in Serie A.

Inter finished last season a point behind Juventus, which won a record-extending ninth successive Serie A. The Nerazzurri also lost the Europa League final to Sevilla, a final prompted Inter to receive a delayed start in Serie A.

Fiorentina took the lead with less than three minutes on the clock as some woeful Inter defending allowed Christian Kouame to play a one-two with Giacomo Bonaventura on the edge of the box and tap in.

Lautaro Martinez leaped on the stroke of halftime, curling in the ball.

Inter took the lead early in the second half. Martinez bamboozled Sofyan Amrabat on the edge of the box and his shot from a tricky angled was turned by Fiorentina defender Federico Ceccherini into his own net.

Fiorentina leveled in the 57th with a well-worked counter started and finished by Gaetano Castroveto.

That was assisted by Franck Ribery, and the Fiorentina winger was again inspirational six minutes later with a delightful pass to send using the slipstream that braked too late for the second turn, allowing Hamilton to retake first. Bottas later said he was off the bench to make their "Inter debuts and, just as Inter appeared to be heading for defeat, the home side turned the match around. Hamilton knocked on Radja Nainggolan's ball over the top for Luukaku to side-foot in from close range in the 87th, and D'Ambrosio headed in Alexis Sanchez's cross following a short corner two minutes later.

Valtteri Bottas won the Russian Grand Prix on Sunday after his Mercedes teammate Lewis Hamilton's race was ruined by penalties, in front of the largest crowd of the pandemic-hit season.

Hamilton had been looking to match Michael Schumacher's record of 91 wins in Formula One but had to settle for third behind Bottas and Max Verstappen. Bottas built a sizeable lead over Verstappen with ease and cruised to his first win since the season-opening Austrian Grand Prix.

Hamilton was already under investigation by the stewards when he started the race from pole position. Before the race he twice stopped to perform practice starts at the exit of the pit lane, rather than in the designated area. That eventually earned him two five-second penalties, dropping him as low as 11th at one stage.

"Where's that in the rule book?" he asked the team, and called the situation "ridiculous."

Hamilton had asked Mercedes over the radio if he could perform the starts there, and was told he could.

It was the second time in three races that a team blunder cost the British driver a shot at victory.

Hamilton was leading at the Italian Grand Prix when he was given a penalty for entering the pit lane while it was closed, after a radio message from the team warning him was sent too late.

Hamilton's championship lead over Bottas was cut to a still-healthy 44 points with seven scheduled races remaining on a calendar heavily modified because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Bottas, who also claimed the bonus point for fastest lap, said he wanted to "thank my critics" after ending a run of eight races without a win despite having, with Hamilton, by far the fastest car.

He tried to take the lead off Hamilton at the start
