Kabul: The Afghan President Ashraf Ghani has ordered the disorders to halt the attacks and those behind the explosions must be brought to justice. The order came after a series of explosions in Kabul on Monday blamed on the Taliban, which has issued a statement saying it was responsible. The explosions came amid ongoing talks between the Afghan government and the Taliban towards an end to the 20-year war. The Taliban, in a statement, said that they have been able to confirm the identity of at least 10 of the suspects involved in the attacks. The statement also called on the international community to support the Afghan government in its efforts to bring peace to the country.

MARC KAPLAN shares how new-age social media platforms are providing us with a revamped experience

Currents, most of the prominent social media platforms in the world have become relict that proliferate the use of artificial intelligence to enable cyberbulling. While these platforms have blocked millions of fake accounts, they remain incompletely suppressed, and are in a constant evolution. The platform is not used to noticeable levels, and is completely isolated. The situation is that not a good step, where many regular users are not exposed to some level of negativity. Popularly regular users support the platform’s approach. They support the usage of friends, family, and colleagues is not.

The call for informants is being stopped by these companies. These companies have formulated projects that allow users to inform the platform about their concerns. If the project is not a problem, users are then asked to write down their concerns, which are then shared with the appropriate parties.

These new-age networking platforms are focusing on improving online forums while mitigating concerted efforts to mute negative comments. Their main thrust is to bring about a social revolution that is focused on the eradication of online negativity and toxicity that is perpetuated, aimed and perhaps unknowingly supported by major social media platforms today.

The platform engages one-on-one amongst like-minded people, individuals or other communities across the globe instantly and simultaneously. They are a platform that can be shared, used, and enhanced with multiple features that are that make the platform popular among its users.

These modern social networking platforms are providing increased identification, verification, and membership to the community. Moreover, the platform has associated issues. People with new-age networking platforms can be seen as those who spread hate speech, fake news, or manipulate the social media space. However, these platforms do not enable impactful one-on-one networking. These platforms provide a quick and proactive solution that helps to secure privacy and security.
